Legislators Eye 17-92 Expansion

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

State Reps. Bobby Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, and Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, have joined forces in the Florida House of Representatives to get $1 million in funding allocated for the expansion of U.S. 17-92 from four lanes to six lanes from downtown Casselberry to the north Longwood city limits.

"I would hate to take the money out of Orange County's side, but I will if I have to," Hattaway said today.

Hattaway said the House transportation committee of which he is a member has approved legislation granting an additional $20 million in state general revenue funds to the state Department of Transportation (DOT).

Of that sum, he said, $11.9 million is being designated for Orange County, $1 million more than is necessary for the entire program when the Seminole project was not included. The committee's recommendation will next come before the House appropriations committee, he said, to include the Seminole County project.

But, he said, the Orange County Commission has estimated only $16 million will be needed for the airport interchange. "Brantley and I feel that extra million should come to Seminole County," Hattaway said.

The legislator said to six-lane 17-92 for the distance designated would cost $118,000. The state already has sufficient right-of-way for the expansion and DOT officials said there would be no problem doing that work next year if the funding is approved this year. "It could be ready to go in 12 months and we will be pushing for it," Hattaway said.

Hattaway, a member of the House transportation committee, said he voted against the expansion and DOT officials said there would be no problem doing that work next year if the funding is approved this year. "It could be ready to go in 12 months and we will be pushing for it," Hattaway said.

Hattaway said he has already discussed the problem with Sen. Bill Gorman, chairman of the Orange County delegation, and received assurances from Gorman he will try to "plug Seminole County into the Senate bill."

In another matter to do with roads and Seminole County, Hattaway said $3 million in federal and state funds have been allocated to rebuild the Interstate 4-state Route 418 interchange, including $250,000 for planning, $2.3 million for construction and $255,000 for DOT inspection fees.

After harvesting a field of cucumbers just south of Stenstrom Bridge on state Route 415 Bernard Wilke, 1401 Sanford Ave., usually dumps the small, broken, or misshapen ones. He noticed some people would go through them and pick out some that were usable. "I just set a wagon out for them, they're welcome to it," he said.

Missing Link Found?

CHARLOTTE, N.C. (UPI) — The University of North Carolina-Charlotte, the University of California at Berkeley, the Smithsonian Institution and the L.S.B. Leakey Foundation have scheduled news conferences Tuesday to announce the discovery of a missing link in the evolutionary chain.

UNCC spokesman Ken Sanford said Thursday the announcement will be made simultaneously at UNCC, Berkeley, the Smithsonian in Washington and the Leakey Foundation in Pasadena, Calif.

He said the news conference involves "an anthropological find that may alter all previous interpretations of the origins of primates, including man. A recent expedition has found a missing link in the evolutionary chain."

The find reportedly involves an expedition to Burma late last year and early this year. Sanford said the findings were only recently confirmed.

The Smithsonian and Leakey Foundation were involved in financing the expedition in which only two Americans participated.

Veteran Says New Medicine Pick-Up Rule A Hardship

By GEOFFREY POUNDS Herald Staff Writer

A Veterans Administration directive limiting the mailing of prescription drugs to disabled veterans in south Seminole County is creating hardships for those now having to drive to Orlando to pick up their medicine, one veteran affected has charged.

Edward Yokley, 67, of 418 N. Winter Park Road in Casselberry, said he must make a trip to the VA Outpatient Clinic in Orlando at least every three weeks to pick up the medication he requires for heart and nervous disorders he has suffered since 1943. He said prior to April, the VA clinic sent his prescriptions through the mail. When he got his last supply of needed drugs in the mail last month, he said he also got a letter from the chief of the clinic, W.W. Silverblatt, informing him that medication to outpatients within the Orlando metropolitan area would be discontinued.

The letter stated: "Due to the limited staff and the large number of prescription mailouts outside the Orlando metropolitan area, mailout services to patients within the Orlando metropolitan area will be discontinued. You will be required to pick up your refills in the future. Exceptions to this rule will require written authorization by your attending physician."

At Lincoln, assistant clinic director, admitted today that the change in policy could "create inconvenience for some veterans," but he said the clinic did not have the staff to prepare the medications for mailing.

"It takes about twice as long to prepare, label and mail the prescription as it does to dispense it here," he said. "They have to realize we have a limited staff."

Lincoln said the directive affects veterans only south of Casselberry and Fern Park. Veterans at the north end of the county may still receive their drugs by mail, he said.

In addition, Lincoln said those veterans who are too disabled to make the trip may still gain mail service.

Lincoln said those veterans who will now have to drive to Orlando to receive their prescriptions will not be paid travel expenses.

"To some it might not be much, but I figure it takes me about $10 a trip," said Yokley. "And that's coming out of my food budget. Most of us are on pretty tight incomes."

Yokley said that in addition to the expense, the volume of patients at the clinic means he sometimes has to wait several hours just to receive his medication.

Lincoln said there are about 300,000 veterans in the seven-county area served by the clinic. He said on an average, the clinic sees about 200 patients a day, but he said he did not have figures on the number of veterans affected by the discontinuation of mail delivery prescriptions.

14-Year-Old: They Treated Me Just Like The Chief

By SHARON CARRABO Herald Staff Writer

Thursday, the Casselberry police department had a police chief who was 14 years old. So did the Longwood and Orlando police departments.

The police chiefs aren't attaining their rank at an earlier age than usual.

Thursday was the kick-off day to observe the national "Respect for Law Week." All in all, five area police departments and the Seminole County Sheriff's Office participated in the event sponsored by the South Florida Optimist Club.

Bill Goss, a seventh-grader at the Lake Howell Preparatory School, held the rank of the Longwood police chief. Although he missed a day of school, he concedes he still "learned a lot of stuff."

"I learned how the fire trucks run, how they do the calls and they have to let out the traffic after school," Goss says.

Other youngsters who were police chief for a day were: Scott Costines, of Casselberry, a seventh-grader at South Seminole Middle School, police chief of the Casselberry police department; Santa Egge of Orlando was police chief of Orlando while Lucia Mitchell, 17, of Casselberry was the Winter Springs police chief; 81-year-old Laurie Ramsey of Casselberry was police chief of the Altamonte Springs force.

Miss Ramsey, who was taken on a tour of the police and fire facilities and rode around town in a squad car, says she learned "what it's like to be on the other side of the law."

Angelo Costantini, 14, of Orlando stepped into the shoes of Seminole County Sheriff John Polk for a day. Early Thursday morning, the young sheriff granted this reporter a brief interview in his new office. He sat straight-backed in the sheriff's black leather chair that seemed to tower over his small frame. Each answer in a nod of the head or a verbal "yeah."

"He's learning how to be a good sheriff," says Polk as he chuckled at his successor's brevity.

Angelo was given a tour Thursday of the facilities, the jail and detective division and a ride in the sheriff's squad car.

"I will have someone introduce him to all of his employees," Polk said. "As of 90 minutes ago, he had no employees and now he has 200."

The purpose of this type of role-playing affects youngsters "an opportunity to gain a little insight into the world of law enforcement."

"We want to let them know we are here to work with them, to help them.

"In all reality, our youth today is going to be your sheriff tomorrow and your president and your governor and even your county commissioner," Polk says.

Their morning began with a breakfast held in their honor at the Holiday Inn in Altamonte Springs. The youngsters joined members of the law enforcement agencies and the Optimist Club before venturing forth on their new careers.

After spending his day as chief at the Casselberry police department, Goss says he knows what it's like to be the chief ranking officer there.

"You don't have to do much," Goss explains. "You can just sit back in the air-conditioning and just drive around in the car and relax."

Unemployment Figure Up To 5.8 Percent In April

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Unemployment edged up a tenth of a percent to 5.8 percent in April, the Labor Department said today. The number of Americans on the job—a figure which has been growing rapidly—dropped by 670,000.

The unemployment rate, which was 5.7 percent in March, has hovered around its current level for the past nine months. April job levels were down for adult men, women and teenagers and for whites and blacks. The job declines were concentrated among blue collar workers.

Total employment dropped by 670,000 workers in April to 86.3 million. For the past eight months employment had been growing at an average of 300,000 jobs-a-month.

The Labor Department said the reasons for the turnaround were "not entirely clear," but may in part have to do with bad weather, school schedules and religious holidays and the effects of the recent teamsters strike and lockout.

On the unemployment side, there were some of the key figures:

- The jobless rate for adult men was 4 percent and for adult women 5.7 percent, both exactly the same as March.
- For teen-agers of all races, the unemployment rate jumped a full percentage point in April, from 15.3 to 16.5 percent. This means teenage unemployment has not improved significantly since last year, when it also was in the 16 percent range.
- For black teen-agers, the jobless rate jumped from 31.5 percent to 34.5 percent. This was almost as high as February's 35.5 percent, and the figure is bound to rise as the administration does expect some economic slowdown during the rest of this year and counts on this to help it fight inflation.
- The civilian labor force declined by 600,000 in April to 102.1 million.
- Non-farm industrial employment remained approximately unchanged in April at 88.3 million, seasonally adjusted. A jump of 325,000 in this category in March was interpreted by

It's Good News ;
Some Bad News

Whether the news about Social Security is good or bad depends on where one stands in the labor force — on the active rolls, or retired.

Pensioners who have been watching inflation shrink the buying power of their Social Security checks have the good news that help is on the way.
Benefits will rise by nearly 10 percent in July, reflecting an automatic semi-annual cost of living adjustment.

But that same news is not good for the employees and employers paying a Social Security tax that took one jump this year and is scheduled to rise even more sharply in 1980. Trustees of the system are now questioning whether these tax increases, voted by Congress in 1977 with a promise that they would solve the Social Security financing problem, may turn out to be not enough.

The trustees recently issued a report saying
the system will be "financially sound for well past the turn of the century," but with an ominous
qualifier: A recession serious enough to raise unemployment to 8 percent while inflation remains at 6 percent or more could put a "severe" strain on Social Security trust funds as early as 1983.

rise even more sharply in 1980. Trustees of the system are now questioning whether these tax

The trustees recently issued a report saying
the system will be "financially sound for well past the turn of the century," but with an ominous
qualifier: A recession serious enough to raise unemployment to 8 percent while inflation remains
at 6 percent or more could put a "severe" strain on Social Security trust funds as early as 1983.

That's what happened during the recession of 1975, creating the crisis which Congress purportedly solved in 1977 by increasing the tax and by revising the formula for applying cost-of-living benefit increases. The trustees — Social Security Commissioner Stanford Ross and cabinet secretaries Michael Blumenthal, Ray Marshall and Joseph Califano — now seem to be saying that the problem isn't solved at all.

Economists are predicting a business slowdown of some degree this year. It would not have to be very severe — given the current inflation rate and its impact on benefits — to produce another serious inflation problem. The amount of money going into the Social Security pipeline and the amount going out.

Obviously the 96th Congress must grapple with the fact and the truth about Social Security. First, it must reject the tantalizing notion that the tax increased in 1977 can somehow be rolled back as a tax-cutting measure in 1980. Even the qualified optimism of the trustees would be insupportable if this new infusion of trust fund income were cut back.

More important, the House and Senate must act on the Social Security reforms proposed by President Carter earlier this year as a further means of bringing future demands on the system under better control. It must also proceed with the overhaul of the disability side of Social Security to overcome its demonstrated flaws — benefit levels and other provisions which create an incentive for the disabled worker to seek retraining and another job.

The burden which the new Social Security tax schedules will place on American workers and their employers in the 1980s is as heavy as they can be expected to shoulder. If there are new cracks appearing in the facade, the repair work must be done in the area of the promises the system is making to future beneficiaries and not in higher taxes.

only comfortable adding new promises to federal programs, not retracting old ones. But the truth is knocking insistently at the door.

Many Advantages To Chewing Food

DEAR DR. LAMB - Thank you for the fine advice to throw laxatives into the trash can and train the bowels naturally. I did just that and I'm very grateful for the advice.

All my life I was taught to chew my food well to digest the sugars and starches. My daughter worked for a fine doctor until his death who advised this but my present physician says that this is not true - that the entire body handles sugar. Who's right?

I doubt your doctor was really cross with you. He probably just wanted to emphasize how important it was that you should have milk as part of your diet.

ERA Team Hits Pavement In MD Fight

Seminole County Realtors affiliated with ERA (Electronic Realty Associates) wearing their electric blue with ERA logo will be joining with more than 3,000 brokers and sales associates all over the country in an effort to raise $1 million for the fight against Muscular Dystrophy.

They are participating as part of the ERA Broker Council of Greater Orlando in "A Weekend in May for MDA" on Saturday and Sunday. The home-to-home collection will take place between 1 and 5 p.m., Saturday and Sunday. The money raised will become part of the final total to be presented by ERA to Jerry Lewis on the Jerry Lewis Labor Day Telethon.

Coordinating the drive in the Sanford area will be Don Wilson of J.B. Steelman Realty, who says although the goal nationally is for each broker and associate to raise $50, his office is shooting for $100 by each of the 10 representatives from J.B. Steelman in Sanford. Last year the firm in all of its Central Florida branches was top fundraiser for MDA in the state.

Muscular Dystrophy is a muscle wasting disease that kills and cripples thousands of children and adults each year. ERA became a corporate sponsor of the Muscular Dystrophy Association in December of 1976 and quickly realized that the only way to raise the large amounts of money needed to fight Muscular Dystrophy was to go directly to the public, said Wanda B. Westcott of Westcott Realty, Inc., Orlando, chairman for A Weekend in May for MDA.

One Hundred Skaters Prepare Performance

What has 200 legs, 800 wheels, and is going to put on a show?

It is a group of roller skaters, at least one hundred strong, that will be performing at Melodee Skating Rink on West 25 Street at Airport Boulevard near Sanford Sunday and Monday at 7:30 p.m.

The skaters, many of whom just started taking lessons 6 months ago, range in age from adults to 3 years old. The show is called "Eight is Enough" and takes its title from the proper use of all 8 wheels on a pair of roller skates used in starting, stopping, jumps and spins.

Numbers in the 90-minute show will include an Alice in Wonderland production (see cover) with Sanford skaters — Juit Oliver, 13, playing Alice and Barbara Diamond, 14, as the white rabbit. Star Wars, the Little Engine that Could, a Disco number, and A Doggie in the Window routine will all feature local skaters in costumes, props and special effects provided by parents and volunteers.

The show is being directed by Chuck Best, a member of the Society of Roller Skating Teachers of America, and assisted by Dottie Burkett. A video tape of the show will be made and used in lessons for the skaters and relatives who can not attend will have a chance to see the skaters at a later time.

As with most amateur productions, there are many preproduction problems and disputes over parts to be played. Allan White 9, and his brother Danny, 6, of Sanford had an argument as to who was going to be the head and who was going to be the tail of the dog in the Doggie in the Window routine. As it happens with many brothers, the biggest won.

Fantasy Island Setting Is Film Editor's Fantasy

DEAR DICK: My husband and I are curious about the setting for "Fantasy Island." I refer to the introduction with the waterfall, the lagoon where the plane lands and other scenic shots. It looks beautiful. Jean Siedobotham, Tucson, Ariz.

The "Fantasy Island" introduction is not any one place, it's a bit of here and a bit of there. The waterfall was shot on the island of Kauai, Hawaii. They don't even know where that is that the plane lands, because it's a stock shot they bought. Some of the other places were the studio back lot (that's where the people get off) and the Arboretum in Arcadia, Calif. (that's where the shot of the water is).

DEAR DICK: I went to see "The Buddy Holly Story" not long ago and I was puzzled. When Buddy Holly died in the plane crash, he left a wife and unborn child behind, but they failed to say what happened to them. Would you please tell me what has happened to them after all these years, what they are doing, where they are living and if his child may become another great entertainer like his father? CHEYENNE DUNN, Wichita Falls, Tex.

Two weeks after Buddy was killed in that plane crash, his wife, Maria Elena, miscarried, so there was no child. Buddy's widow, who came to Hollywood for the premiere of the movie, has remarried and now lives in Lubbock, Tex.

DEAR DICK: I've been seeing some of the older movies, and wonder how the Warner Bros. Productions Co. came about. I believe there were three brothers. How did they get into the kind of business. Are they still alive? S.A.C., Tucson, Ariz.

Actually, there were four Warner brothers — Albert, Harry, Sam and Jack — who started the company. They began by showing early movies in a nickelodeon they set up in a converted store in New Castle, Pa., in 1918, then began making movies six years later. They set up Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., in 1923. Jack, the last survivor of the four brothers, died last year.

DEAR DICK: Please tell me what happened to one of my favorite programs, "Carter Country." Will it be on again? M. Elizabeth Jensen, Pleasanton, Mich.

If you're not careful, you can see that show currently. It has come on again, in the "Soap" time period, and will be seen regularly until June. Its future, after that, is undecided.

DEAR DICK: Will you please settle something for me. My sister says the baby boy on "Little House on the Prairie" is the child of Charles and Caroline. I say no, that their baby boy died and this baby is the one that Half Pint found. Mrs. Francis Arnett, Joplin, Mo. The show has had more babies than you can shake a rattie at, so follow closely. Three seasons ago, Charles and Caroline had a baby boy, who died. Two seasons ago, Charles and Caroline had a baby girl, Grace, who survived. Last season, they adopted a 12-year-old boy, named Albert, but we won't count him. The baby that Half Pint found never stayed around because it was returned to its real mother almost immediately. So the only baby currently on the show is little Grace.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if Dick Maized, who plays the tuba in Lawrence Walk's orchestra, is married to Mary Lou Metzger, who sings and dances with Walk. My in-laws-in-law says they are, but I heard different. C.C.V., Stewart, Fla.

Your brother-in-law is a reliable source. Dick and Mary Lou are married, a Walk band romance.

DEAR DICK: On a radio program, Irving Mansfield, discussing the deceptive appearances of some movie stars, said that John Barrymore was 4-foot-4. I can't believe that. Is it true? Evelyn R. Schorr, Tucson, Ariz.

No. Most reference works list him at either 5-foot-0 or 5-foot-10.

DEAR DICK: Who played the inspector in "Les Misérables"? Donnie Kaplan, Willingboro, N.J. That was Anthony Perkins, always a steady, excellent actor, and that was another fine performance.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me anything about Linda Purl, and what she'll be working on next? Karen Washburn, Clarksville, Tenn.

By the time you read this, you should have seen her co-starring with Susan Cassidy in an ABC-TV movie, "Like Normal People." Currently, Linda is in Ireland, where she's starring in a movie for NBC called "The Flame Is Love." This is the first Barbara Carland (she's England's great romantic novelist) book to be filmed.

A Star Is Born?

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA)—It takes two things to make a star. A starring role — in a successful film.

A lot of actors have thought they had it made, when they got big parts. But then when the picture died a grisly death, they realized their starring part didn't amount to a hill of beans. Unless the public sees the picture, they could have the best role in the world and it wouldn't help.

VICTORIA RACIMO

Which brings us to Victoria Racimo, an exotic beauty who has the role, and now has her fingers crossed waiting to see if the picture is a hit.

The movie is "Prophecy," and the word is that it is a good one — scary, important, dramatic. John Frankenheimer, who directed it, told Victoria Racimo that he thinks if the picture is well received, it will make big stars out of the two leads — Victoria Racimo and Robert Foxworth.

There is a sequence near the end in which she is swimming for her life. People who have seen it say it will do for her what Jacqueline Bisset's picture in "The Deep" did for her.

But, of course, it all depends how she critics and the public like "Prophecy." If it turns out nobody likes it then nobody will care one way or how another provocative that shot in the water is.

"Prophecy," because of certain elements in the plot line, was a very hush-hush project while it was shooting. In fact, they had a couple of ex-CIA men guarding the location gates, and everybody who worked on the film had to have badges to be allowed on the set.

"Actually," Victoria Racimo says, "John Frankenheimer was very afraid that the TV people would learn about the plot and rip it off."

It is basically a story about the effects of methyl mercury poisoning on people and animals. Supposedly, this creates a mutation which turns out to be a monstrous creature.

If "Prophecy" makes it, and if Frankenheimer's prophecy about "Prophecy" comes true, then we will have another very lovely star to follow. Victoria Racimo is a slim, beautiful brunette — whose interesting features make you wonder what her back ground is.

She is Filipino-Irish-American Indian-English, and there aren't many of those around. She was born in New York, began studying ballet at 11 and was always her where to go the turned out to be Oscar Hammerstein) and she reported to a woman (she turned out to be Carol Haney) who told her to present herself to another man (who turned out to be Gene Kelly). Kelly asked her to sing (when she said she didn't know any songs, he suggested "Happy Birthday") and dance.

She was hired, and stayed with "The World of Suzie Wong" for its entire run. She's been acting ever since, although she no longer sings or dances.

She has tried very hard to avoid ethnic typing, and it's been a struggle, but she feels she is succeeding. She has played many different nationalities — from the Chinese of her first part to the Vietnamese wife of Paul Winfield in the TV movie, "Green Eyes," to an American Indian in "Red Sky at Morning."

Fantasy Island Setting Is Film Editor's Fantasy

DEAR DICK: My husband and I are curious about the setting for "Fantasy Island." I refer to the introduction with the waterfall, the lagoons where the plane lands and other scenic shots. It looks beautiful. Jean Slidobotham, Tucson, Ariz.

The "Fantasy Island" introduction is not any one place, it's a lot of here and a lot of there. The waterfall was shot on the island of Kauai, Hawaii. They don't even know where that is that the plane lands, because it's a stock shot they bought. Some of the other places were the studio back lot (that's where the people get off) and the Arboretum in Arcadia, Calif. (that's where the shot of the water is).

DEAR DICK: I went to see "The Buddy Holly Story" not long ago and I was puzzled. When Buddy Holly died in the plane crash, he left a wife and unborn child behind, but they failed to say what happened to them. Would you please tell me what has happened to them after all these years, what they are doing, where they are living and if his child may become another great entertainer like his (or her) father? CHEYENNE DUNN, Wichita Falls, Tex.

Two weeks after Buddy was killed in that plane crash, his wife, Maria Elena, miscarried, so there was no child. Buddy's widow, who came to Hollywood for the premiere of the movie, has remarried and now lives in Lubbock, Tex.

DEAR DICK: I've been seeing some of the older movies, and wonder how the Warner Bros. Production Co. came about. I believe there were three brothers. How did they get into this kind of business. Are they still alive? S.S.C., Tucson, Ariz.

Actually, there were four Warner brothers — Albert, Harry, Sam and Jack — who started the company. They began by showing early movies in a nickelodeon they set up in a converted store in New Castle, Pa., in 1906, then began making movies six years later. They set up Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., in 1923. Jack, the last survivor of the four brothers, died last year.

DEAR DICK: Please tell me what happened to one of my favorite programs, "Carter Country." Will it be on again? M. Elizabeth Jensen, Plaiswell, Mich.

If you're not careful, you can see that show currently. It has come on again, in the "Sons" time period, and will be seen regularly until June. Its future, after that, is undecided.

DEAR DICK: Will you please settle something for me. My sister says the baby now on "Little House On The Prairie" is the child of Charles and Caroline. I say no, that their baby boy died and this baby is the one that Hal Pint found. Mrs. Francis Arnett, Joplin, Mo. The show has had more babies than you can shake a rattle at, so follow closely. Three seasons ago, Charles and Caroline had a baby boy, who died. Two seasons ago, Charles and Caroline had a baby girl, Grace, who survived. Last season, they adopted a 12-year-old boy, named Albert, but we won't count him. The baby that Hal Pint found never stayed around because it was returned to its real mother almost immediately. So the only baby currently on the show is little Grace.

DEAR DICK: Could you tell me if Dick Maestri, who plays the tuba in Lawrence Welk's orchestra, is married to Mary Lou Metzger, who sings and dances with Welk. My brother-in-law says they are, but I heard different. C.C.V., Stuart, Fla.

Your brother-in-law is a reliable source. Dick and Mary Lou are married, a Welk band romance.

DEAR DICK: On a radio program, Irving Mansfield, discussing the deceptive appearance of some movie stars, said that John Barrymore was 5-foot-4. I can't believe that. Is it true? Evelyn R. Scher, Tucson, Ariz.

No. Most reference works list him at either 5-foot-9 or 5-foot-10.

DEAR DICK: Who played the inspector in "Los Miserables"? Denise Kaplan, Willingboro, N.J.

That was Anthony Perkins, always a steady, excellent actor, and that was another fine performance.

DEAR DICK: Can you tell me anything about Linda Park, and what she'll be working on next? Karen Westerbek, Clarksville, Tenn.

By the time you read this, you should have seen her co-starring with Shaun Cassidy in an ABC-TV movie, "Like Normal People." Currently, Linda is in Ireland, where she's starring in a movie for NBC called "The Flame Is Love." This is the first Barbara Carland (she's England's great romantic novelist) book to be filmed.

A Star Is Born?

By DICK KLEINER

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — It takes two things to make a star. A starring role — in a successful film.

A lot of actors have thought they had it made, when they got big parts. But then when the picture died a grisly death, they realized their starring part didn't amount to a hill of beans. Unless the public sees the picture, they could have the best role in the world and it wouldn't help.

Which brings us to Victoria Racimo, an exotic beauty who has the role, and now has her fingers crossed waiting to see if the picture is a hit. The movie is "Prophecy," and the word is that it is a good one — scary, important, dramatic. John Frankheimer, who created it, told Victoria Racimo that he thinks if the picture is well-received, it will make big stars out of the two leads — Victoria Racimo and Robert Foxworth.

There is a sequence near the end in which she is swimming for her life. People who have seen it say it will do for her what Jacqueline Bisset's T-shirt picture in "The Deep" did for her.

But, of course, it all depends on how the critics and the public like "Prophecy." If it turns out nobody likes it then nobody will care one way or how another provocative that shot in the water is.

"Prophecy" because of certain elements in the plot line, was a very hush-hush project while it was shooting. In fact, they had a couple of ex-CIA men guarding the location gates, and everybody who worked on the film had to have badges to be allowed on the set.

"Actually," Victoria Racimo says, "John Frankheimer was very afraid that the TV people would learn about the plot and rip it off." It is basically a story about the effects of methyl mercury poisoning on people and animals. Supposedly, this creates a mutation which turns out to be a monstrous creature.

If "Prophecy" makes it, and if Frankheimer's prophecy about "Prophecy" comes true, then we will have another very lovely star to follow. Victoria Racimo is a slim, beautiful brunette — whose interesting features make you wonder what her back ground is.

She is Filipino-Irish-American Indian-English, and there aren't many of those around. She was born in New York, began studying ballet at 11 and was always ambitious and independent.

At the same age, she read in the paper about the forthcoming production of a musical called "The World of Suzie Wong." Since her face could be called Oriental (somewhat), she went to the theater on her own and asked for an audition.

A tall man politely showed her where to go (he turned out to be Oscar Hammerstein) and she reported to a woman (she turned out to be Carol Haney) who told her to present herself to another man (who turned out to be Gene Kelly). Kelly asked her to sing (when she said she didn't know any songs, he suggested "Happy Birthday") and dance.

She was hired, and stayed with "The World of Suzie Wong" for its entire run. She's been acting ever since, although she no longer sings or dances.

She has tried very hard to avoid ethnic typing, and it's been a struggle, but she feels she is succeeding. She has played many different nationalities — from the Chinese of her first part to the Vietnamese wife of Paul Winfield in the TV movie, "Green Eyes," to an American Indian in "Red Sky at Morning."

Cassidy Opts For Career In Acting

By DICK KLEINER
HOLLYWOOD (NEA) — Everybody grows up some time. Even teenyboppers. And teen-age rock-and-roll idols, too.

So Shaun Cassidy, 21 years old, a rock performer since he was in the eighth grade, is growing up. Maybe you could even put that in the past tense and say he's already grown up. "I'm starting to feel," says Cassidy, "that I'm getting over the hill. That's because my taste in music is changing very much. Disco music is the most happening thing right now — and I don't like it."

"And I feel that the kids today don't know music at all." He is not abandoning music, at all. But he says the music he is recording today reflects an older influence than is usual with people his age. He prefers the music of the '60s to the music of the '70s, and what he plays shows it. But he is going in, more and more, for acting. In mid-April, ABC telecast the drama, "Like Normal People," in which he and Linda Purl played a retarded couple who got married. It was, by far, his most demanding role and, he thinks, could very well be a turning point in his career and his life.

"It's nice to finally find out," he says, "that I really am an actor. I was very nervous before I did it because it was a big undertaking, but I knew I had to do something like it. I had to test myself, to push myself, because it's real easy to get comfortable in a mold."

And Shaun Cassidy has gotten a little comfortable there, for the year or so that he co-starred with Parker Stevenson as "The Hardy Boys." While he realizes the show was great exposure for him, and that acting in it every day was a wonderful learning process, the series never taxed him dramatically.

"No," he says, with a wry grin, "I sure wasn't disappointed when 'The Hardy Boys' went off the air."

He says his parents — Shirley Jones and the late Jack Cassidy — tried to deter him from an acting career. Since he had been getting paid as a rock star for much of his childhood, they were primarily concerned with making sure he finished high school.

"I did — barely," he says. He did his first European tour with his band while he was a senior in high school and so, when he came back, he was faced with a problem of making up a course. Since his only two courses, as a senior, had been ceramics and physical education, it's hard to see how he failed, but he did fail P.E.

He made it up in summer school. At the time, he was just about to be finished with that weight around his neck, and gave no thought at all to college. Another sign of his maturity is that he is beginning to regret that decision.

"I've thought about college a lot more lately," he says, "than I did then. I'm thinking now of taking some courses in the evenings. I'd like to take courses that would help me in what I'm doing now — courses in writing or acting."

"I've never even been to an acting class. I never had any training of any kind. As a matter of fact, I was talking to Harvey Hart, who directed 'Like Normal People,' about that and he said I shouldn't study. He thought it would screw me up. He bought me some books, Stanislavsky and Chekhov, and he said that was all the training I needed."

One further sign of Shaun Cassidy's growing up is the dream he is dreaming lately. The kid dreams — big cars, girls, lots of money and fame — are gone, maybe because he's already gotten them.

Now he's thinking in terms of a quieter life. He'd like to have a farm, back east, perhaps in Pennsylvania, where he spent a year.

Eleanor And Adolf: Two 'Novel' Approaches

By KATIE FELSETHAL
American Library Assn.

"Eleanor" (as in Roosevelt) and "Young Adolf" (as in Hitler) are fiction, but fiction woven around fact. Rhoda Lerman and Beryl Bainbridge have created three-dimensional characters — a feat that often eludes even the most talented biographers. Because each woman captures her subject in the early years — before they became this century's foremost saint and sinner — they shake our fondest prejudices.

Lerman's Eleanor is certainly no saint. As in Lerman's "The Last Days of Pompeii," she is a mass of contradictions. "Eleanor" opens in the summer of 1914, when its protagonist is 33, and closes in the summer of 1921; a period that contained World War I, Franklin's affair with Lucy Mercer, his disastrous run for the vice-presidency and his crippling polio.

Lerman's choice of these years is a good one. They forced Eleanor to face Franklin's fallibility and to figure out her own needs. Yearning for contact with women who are neither senators' wives nor debutantes, she attends the Paul Sorvino dons a hearing aid. He watches your lips when you speak. There is a heightened sense of awareness about him, rather like an animal who leans into the wind and whose body is prepared to express anything from stillness to flight.

Sorvino is portraying a deaf lawyer, Lowell Myers, in "Dummy," a two-hour true-life dramatic special to be broadcast May 20 on the CBS Television Network. Myers defended an illiterate, deaf, black youth on a felony charge, forging a trusting relationship with his client.

"An actor only is interested in information which turns into behavior," states Sorvino, between scenes, on location in Chicago. "I went to deaf people and becomes morbidly attached to his brother's landlord, a poor, bookish, elderly Jew named Meyer. "The decline of the Roman Empire is a classic example of historical decadence resulting from contaminated blood," Adolf explains to him, so self-absorbed that he's oblivious of the fact that he's spewing anti-Semitism to a Jew who also happens to be his only friend.

A plan hatched by Meyer to prevent public health functionaries from seizing children packed by poor parents too many to a bed, fizzles.

"I don't understand," Adolf says to Meyer, as he watches parents stand passively in doorways as some holding babies in their arms — are herded toward a Black Maria. "There were hundreds of you and not a dozen of them. They didn't even use the police."

Meyer explains bitterly, "Let the minority act with enough authority and the majority will walk like lambs to the slaughterhouse" — a lesson young Adolf was never to forget.

Bainbridge explains that what intrigued her about Hitler's early years was that he seemed so downright mediocre. "I had always assumed that he was fenced who had least fully formed into history without parents or background." Instead she discovered a man who loved his mother, had brothers and sisters, played the piano. "He did not torture the cat or throw William Patrick over the balcony."

'The Wild, Wild West Revisited'

Martin: 'Back Where We Started'

Ross Martin sat in his mobile dressing room, just outside the stage where "The Wild, Wild West Revisited" was being filmed and admitted to feeling a whole lot like Rip Van Winkle. "There's a very funny feeling about our doing this film," he mused. "I get the impression of wheels that have been turning for the last ten years, and now I feel right back where we started."

The "right back where we started" was the CBS Studio Center lot in Studio City,

Calif., where the original "The Wild, Wild West" series was produced during the years 1960 through 1969. Now, after 10 years, there was Robert Conrad cavoring in his black western duds as the formidable James West, secret government agent extraordinaire, with good old Artemus Gordon (Martin) once again at his side.

The entire de-ja-vu experience of the intrepid duo's return to harness will be broadcast as a special movie presentation, Wednesday.

"Since first reading the script," said Martin, "I've thought of the story as a delightful spoof on ourselves.

In this film, we dare to show our characters an honest ten years later, with all their deteriorating faults. Our timing is just a bit off, we're not quite so quick on the uptake, and I have to put James through a callisthenics course to get him in shape. It's all great fun."

Martin's nostalgia also centered around stunt coordinator Chuck Courteney and stunt heavy Red West, who both worked in the original series, as did Bud Alper the sound engineer (mixer), who'd been a sound boom technician for the series. And there was also Mickey Golden, who had been Ross' series "stand-in," but who was now doing the same work for Conrad.

Ross summed up his interim 10 years with a sigh, admitting that he'd opted to do only television specials, plays and feature films after leaving the series and was now wondering about the choice.

"I was getting out of series work just when such marvelous people as Milti Claytor, Dean Martin, Carol Burnett, Glenn Ford, Jimmy Stewart, Tony Curtis, Tony Quinn and Shirley MacLaine were all moving into series television."

'In this film, we dare to show our characters an honest ten years later with all their deteriorating faults'

Ross kept his creative hand in the business by appearing in musicals and plays, such as "1776,"

"Gigli," and "The Good Doctor"; directing several episodes of "Here's Lucy" and "Love American Style"; and making a number of motion picture-for-television, including "Wednesday's Child" with Shirley Jones, "Dying Room Only" with Cloris Leachman, and "The Crooked Hearts" with Rosalind Russell and Douglas Fairbanks Jr.

Martin also appeared as the Hawaiian "godfather" type racketeer Tony Alka in "Hawaii Five-O." It was during the filming of that "Five-O" episode that Ross first worked with songwriter-actor Paul Williams. From that association he recommended Williams for the guest starring role of Michelle Loveless Jr. in "The Wild Wild West Revisited."

The athletic actor, who has a law degree, also found time to win 27 tennis trophies, playing in various pro-am tournaments over the past eight years.

In summing up his new film, Martin rubbed his jaw, let a glint creep into his eyes and said, "You might say that old television series secret agents never die, it's just tougher for them to get out of trouble."

HOLLYWOOD — (NEA) — It is pretty good when a kid from the tough, underprivileged Spanish Harlem area of New York can look at himself in the mirror when he's 30 and say he's done it all.

That's happened to Enrique Estrada. You know him by the name he took when he turned actor — Erik Estrada. Growing up as Enrique, or Hank as the Irish kids he met called him, he learned that he'd never get anywhere in acting with a Latino name like Enrique.

He figured Erik Estrada Highway Patrolman with Larry Wilcox, is one of NBC's few bright spots and sure of a few more seasons. And he has big plans for other things.

"I've got some car shows set up, some appearances, things like that," he says. "And I want to train my voice, I want to study acting. Eventually, I want to do all sorts of things."

"But I told my agent that right now I don't want to work except for 'CHiPs.' Financially, I don't have to. I was offered the Freddie Prinze movie (they are planning a film biography of the late comedian) and I said no. It would take me too long to get ready for it."

Estrada figures he has some play time coming, time to enjoy his popularity and the financial rewards that go with it. He has, in the trite expression of today, "paid his dues" and now is his time to have fun.

Gas Stations Mobbed Violence Is Reported

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Imposition of gas rationing in California's urban areas drew closer today, as desperate motorists mobbed gasoline stations for the second day in some areas Friday, bringing reports of scattered violence.

But among the stories of violence and price-gouging there were also reports of unusual acts of helpfulness and courtesy.

County officials prepared to meet Monday with Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr., on his proposal for a state-mandated "odd-even" rationing plan in counties that request it. It appeared many officials from heavily populated areas would do so — putting the plan into effect in those areas as early as Tuesday.

With gasoline stations closed or open for only a few hours a day, huge lines, stretching a mile or more into traffic, formed Friday in the Los Angeles area. Many motorists waited more than an hour to reach the pumps — sometimes to be told only then that the station's tanks had just run dry.

Police in Los Angeles and other Southern California cities reported some fights between motorists over their places in line, and between motorists and station attendants.

In Los Angeles, Mabel Arias, 26, 8 1/2 months pregnant, complained to police she was beaten "all over my body" by a man who accused her of cutting in front of him in a line.

Edwin Lewis, 28, described by police as the size "of a football player," was detained and released pending investigation.

Police said Lewis reportedly countered by letting air out of the woman's tires, and she allegedly got out of her car and slapped him. Lewis denied he hit her, saying he only grabbed her arm to protect himself.

Lewis was still filling his tank when police arrived. "I just got carried away," he reportedly said.

But in Burbank, Chadney's restaurant dispatched waitresses to give motorists — many of them sweltering in the afternoon sun — free lemonade in plastic foam cups.

In some lines, those who ran out of gas while waiting watched in anger while others darted around and in front of them. In other instances, fellow motorists left their cars and pushed the crippled autos along by hand.

In Sacramento, Gov. Brown Friday unveiled his plan to institute controls on gasoline sales in those counties that ask for them, using his powers to take extraordinary measures in the face of "disaster or extreme peril."

The plan would allow motorists to buy gasoline only every other day, based on the last digit of the vehicle's license plate, restricting sales to a maximum of 20 gallons and a minimum of half a tank to prevent panic "tank-topping."

Emergency and commercial vehicles, motorcycles and autos driven by the handicapped were exempted.

Police Follow Their Own Advice

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The Los Angeles Police Department, which is urging residents to be calm and remain soft-spoken in the face of the gasoline drought, decided it better follow its own guidelines.

As reports increased of fights between motorists and gas station attendants over scarce gasoline, the department issued a news release Friday warning that unless motorists "maintain some semblance of sanity," the department would have to "add to an already difficult situation by having to cite or arrest unthinking, rude inconsiderate drivers."

Fifteen minutes after it was distributed, police spokesmen recalled the release and issued a rewritten version.

The new one said the department "is appealing to motorists to remain patient and courteous ... The motoring public is asked to please cooperate by obeying the laws and exercising common courtesy."

Cubs Born; Cougar Expecting

By JANE CASSELLBERRY Herald Staff Writer

Central Florida Zoological Park at Sanford has announced another blessed event at the zoo. Four Bengal Tiger cubs were born April 29 and mother and cubs are doing well. The mother is one of the two baby tigers Down in from Tennessee in 1975 and fed from a bottle. She was only this year paired for the first time with the zoo's male Bengal Tiger.

The mother is keeping the cubs in seclusion in her den until their eyes open and they are able to move about under their own power, which should be by the end of next week, according to Zoo Director Alan Ronn.

"Bengal Tigers have from two to six offspring," he said, "but two is usual, four unusual and six rare."

"She is doing an excellent job of mothering the cubs," Ronn said, "but they have to be kept away from the father because he might kill them."

"All the cubs look like they're in good strong healthy condition and if their mother demonstrates an ability to care for the cubs, there should be no problems in raising them until they are sold to another zoo," according to Sam Wilson, zoo employee.

Now on exhibit are the three-lively kits born to the zoo's Red Fox last month. These animals are still a little shy having been only recently exposed to the public view. They have been observed at feeding time in the open exhibit near the Wool Monkey exhibit.

Zoo officials also announced the female cougar is scheduled to deliver cubs sometime in July adding to the zoo's animal inventory.

A pair of black panthers arrived at the zoo this week from Chicago, Ronn said.

Plans have been announced for the construction of the new Children's Zoo to begin sometime this year. It was learned, zoo officials said, that after advertising for bids on the construction of a dry moat for the elephant paddock last week was overbid by all companies submitting sealed bids.

Present plans call for constructing the exhibit by subcontracting the work, zoo officials said.

Two special events are planned at the zoo in the near future. On Sunday, May 13, the Florida Symphony Orchestra will present a children's concert at 2 p.m. aimed at delighting young and old and will be included with admission to the zoo. There will be no parking at the zoo itself on that day, except for paraplegics, Ronn said, but those attending will be transported from the parking area at the I-4 Industrial Park by six shuttle buses. The procedure will play between the zoo entrance and the picnic shelter.

On June 2 from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. the Seminole County Council of PTAs and Burger King will sponsor a Children's Art Festival for Central Florida children from pre-school through 12th grade. Children will be admitted free and will draw or paint their own impressions of the zoo and animals to be judged for prizes, including four awards.

Headstart Center Closed Over Fire Code May Open

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Community Action's (SCA) headstart center in Bookertown ordered closed by the county Department of Public Safety's fire division earlier this week because of fire code violations that were corrected Tuesday.

County Commissioner Sandra Glass, Nelson commissioner to SCA, said today she will present to follow commissioners' recommendations that have been necessary to bring the center into compliance with the code are either ordered or on hold in violation of the code.

She said she will ask her colleagues to consider granting a waiver to the fire code temporarily to permit the center to reopen in view of the attempt to comply with the code.

Mrs. Glass said she conferred with Mrs. Portia Spenser, founder and director of the headstart program for the past 11 years, fire department officials and County Administrator Roger Neiswander about the problem Friday.

The headstart program is designed to enhance the educational development of underprivileged preschool children. The Bookertown center has 20 children enrolled.

When the Bookertown center was closed, the classes were moved to temporary quarters in a nearby church, according

Addiction For New Life At This Halfway House

By SHARON CARRASCO Herald Staff Writer

"To make something out of my life is my biggest motivation to stay sober," says a man in his mid-20s with long blond wavy hair.

"I have too much self-esteem to see myself in the gutter somewhere."

The young man, call him Mike, is one of six residents now at the Seminole Halfway House who decided to trade their addiction to alcohol for a chance to lead normal, happy lives.

About three years ago, Mike admitted to himself he had a drinking problem but it wasn't until his marriage and college career fell in that he was ready to quit.

"There are a lot of beautiful things out there that I don't see when I'm drinking," Tom says. "I want to be the man I was supposed to be in the world."

The Seminole Halfway House offers men like Tom and Mike a helping hand to regain the community "socially, spiritually and vocationally," says John Bissell, residence manager.

Since 1972, the Seminole Halfway House has served as a "change agency" where individuals move from detoxification to being a wholly integrated part of the community, Bissell says. It is located just south of Lake Mary Boulevard.

The halfway house, which is under the direction of Seminole County Mental Health, has a capacity to house 10 individuals. It offers residents care services, counseling and therapeutic treatment and rehabilitation support.

"We concentrate on helping a client develop a support system he can use in terms of his ability to live without the use of alcohol," Bissell says.

Another consideration is helping the individual find meaningful employment that would still in him feelings of self-esteem and self-worth, Bissell says. These feelings have a tendency to deteriorate in alcoholics, he explained.

"They generally come in here with a very low self-esteem and we try to help them develop some kind of program for living sober," Bissell says.

But the halfway house is more than a common place for clinical treatment of alcoholism, Bissell says. It is similar to a small community where every resident contributes something. "We are not a holding house or detention home," Bissell stresses. "This is a home. We do a lot of things together. We try to have everyone sit down for dinner, say grace, break bread. Try to establish that kind of identity."

Each resident is responsible for some particular aspect in the upkeep of the home to help him get into the habit of confidence. For example, a resident might be required to have his bed made by 8 a.m. or the dishes washed by 10 a.m.

"I want to be the man I was supposed to be in the world"

"This might sound simple but an alcoholic by nature would want to rebel against that," Bissell says.

If a resident doesn't do his household chores, he isn't making a contribution to the "community," Bissell says. Fellow residents will remind him of that during the group sessions held each week, he says.

There's a different activity at the halfway house almost every day of the week. "Members of the Alcoholics Anonymous meet here on Tuesdays for their regular meetings and Wednesday nights are set aside for recreation," Bissell says.

Through the mental health center, the halfway house makes available to residents the use of a psychologist, clinical psychologists, psychological testing and other services, he says.

"We are currently evaluating and re-evaluating our alcoholic recovery program to assure we have an attitude toward the development of optimum recovery opportunity," Bissell says.

The renovations which were being accomplished with a federal grant for materials and with a six-person federally funded Comprehensive Employment Training Act (CETA) crew have been held for several weeks because four of the crew got permanent jobs elsewhere, Mrs. Spenser said.

"We'll need, adding he is referring a few applicants to SCA.

"We can't get the qualified people SCA may be looking for," he said. "The skilled people are getting jobs elsewhere."

Kaiser said the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services (HRS) in late December asked his department to make a preliminary inspection of the headstart centers to assist SCA in gaining state licensing.

Kaiser said the fire department did the inspection, cited the Bookertown, Altamonte Springs and Midway centers for fire code violations and gave them 90-days to bring the centers into compliance.

The 90-days expired in early April.
