ONE IS KILLED, 31 ARE HURT IN GEORGIA CRASH

Seminole Limited Has Rear-End Collision As Second Section Ploughs Into First

COLUMBUS, Ga., Mar. 7.—(AP)—A flagman was killed and 31 persons were injured, one probably seriously, at Glen Alta Ga., 25 miles south of here early today, as the second section of the Seminole limited, east central of Georgia, railway train, ploughed into the rear of the first section which had stopped.

O. C. White, of the City of Ma., flagman of the first section, the train which was stopped, the heavy locomotive of the second section ploughed into the rear of the first section, which had stopped.

The collision occurred through the fault of the flagman. The first section was composed of passenger cars and carried only passengers, while the second section was carrying a through express train carrying perishable from Florida.

Railway officials were unable to definitely fix the cause of the crash, or say why the first section had halted at Glen Alta, but reports here were that it had stopped to remove a dead fly placed by a citizen near the end of the train before a train could be sent back to the city.

Rescuemen, however, expressed the opinion that poor visibility was partially to blame. The crash occurred at 1:55 A. M.

Two hundred patients were notified at the hospital and the first section of the train was taken to the hospital in the city. The injured were taken to the hospital and the injured were taken to the hospital.

Klim is just a convenient powdered form of milk from the nation's richest dairy lands. Every spoonful of this snowy powder is packed with the vital ingredients that make milk the world's most perfect food.

If your recipe calls for a cup of milk, just add to your dry ingredients four table spoons of Klim for five, if you want still more milk value, stir it in, and then add a cup of water.

Klim offers you the easy, economical way of making your milk-cooked dishes tastier, richer and higher in nourishing food value.

Try it today—you'll like its rich milk flavor when you drink it, too.

The new recipe book "How to Use Klim" contains many valuable suggestions for convenience, health and health in preparing food. It is yours for the asking.

"Red Thursday"

Yesterday was "International Unemployment Day". Most of us scarcely know what that means, if anything. To New Yorkers, Clevelanders, Bostonians, it has a sinister significance. It means not only unemployment, but also communism, a communism which does not confine its theories to "one for all, and all for one" policies, but which puts its theories into practice by chopping off the heads of those who have conflicting opinions.

This is not the Utopian communism of Plato, More, and Campanella, who only dreamed of that sweet day when something resembling a proper Christian spirit would bring people together in a great cooperative community where one would have no more power than another and would want no greater share of this world's goods, but it is the socialistic communism of Lenin and Trotsky who produced their communistic nation by executing the royal family and nearly everyone else who disagreed with them and by setting themselves up as dictators over a people all of whom were free and equal as long as they groveled at the feet of the new rulers.

The theory of communism is well enough. It is the theory which prompted "The Three Musketeers" to sacrifice everything for each other, to want nothing the other could not have, to share equally all sorrow, all gladness, prosperity and poverty. But it is a theory which is found only in story books; it is not a theory which would be practical in such a world as that in which we live today. Not until we all "go into others" as we would have them "go into us", could communism be practical.

This fact, which everyone surely must recognize, does not interfere in the slightest degree with the activities of the Bolsheviks or the Third International. They would accomplish communism not by education, not by spiritual teaching, not by any manner of gentle method, but by overthrowing the government which attempts to regulate people, by the inculcating of socialistic doctrines which can lead to nothing else but revolution, bloodshed, and such anarchism as Russia has experienced during the past twelve years.

We were gratified to learn that yesterday's demonstrations for the most part were more forth than back. Where hundreds of thousands had been expected five thousand and actually appeared. Such crowds as there were consisted probably of ten percent communists, ninety percent onlookers, or the great class of curious and misbegotten Americans known as "innocent bystanders". True, a few heads were cracked, eyes blacked, and might sticks broken, but on the whole it was a bloodless demonstration.

We cannot believe that "Red" propaganda will ever get far in this country where any man can be in the capitalist class if he is willing to work and save.

The Sugar Tariff

A new attitude in Florida toward the tariff is shown by the popular favor with which the increase in the duty on Cuban sugar is generally regarded. Florida, normally a Democratic state, opposed to high tariffs, endorsed the Orlando Sentinel, recognized the tariff as a Democratic act, and the Sentinel explains its position on the new tariff as follows:

"We feel that raising the margin somewhat will give the sugar industry in Florida better protection. The preferential difference was too small for safety. We have stood for a sliding scale, and still stand for that scale as being more system in the tariff and as protecting the interests of grower, manufacturer and consumer. Since that arrangement is not a possibility at this time, we welcome the tariff increase."

The tariff, by the way, is not a matter of difference between Republicans and Democrats. They may disagree as to degrees and products, but as to the principle itself, politicians may try to draw the old tariff as a bait along the trail, but it won't work any more for either side. If they fight any more about this, it will be on a tariff fixing power where it belongs, in Congress.

Senator Trammell was not elected by vote at the eleventh hour and registered in favor of the tariff increase on sugar. We feel that since many two hundred members from Florida has rightly grasped the temper of the constituents. Personally he and Senator Fletcher had taken opposed positions.

Curiously enough, a long time ago Hancock, a Democrat laid down the law, obvious fact that the tariff is a local issue. Now, however, every section has something the people want protected. The new problem is, through a sliding scale or in some other way, to work out a system that protects alike producer and consumer in the case of world commodities subject to sharp market fluctuations. In Florida with so many agricultural products, and with some measure of protection against foreign agricultural competition, the protective tariff principle was not introduced in 1828 and is not today even though there were a few who attempted to drag it out of the campaign chest. The old law couldn't work. It never will work again.

UNCOMMON SENSE

The old proverbial "It is better to have a fool than to have a man who is not a fool" is a good one. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool.

The trouble is that now, as then, the man who is not a fool is the one who is not a fool. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool.

It would be better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool. It is better to have a man who is not a fool than to have a fool.

I know three or four, perhaps a dozen, men who have managed to earn a great deal of money in their youth.

The fact that they could earn it proved in some extent their capability. Most of them were in my own trade—that of writing in my own trade—that of writing in my own trade—that of writing in my own trade.

As soon as they felt independent

The World's Window

By Pierre Van Passow

A tribe of pygmies, known as the Mamboutis, living in depth of Africa's darkest wilderness, has been on the rampage, according to a newspaper published in the Congo. Nobody ever heard of the Mamboutis before, with the possible exception of Stanley or Livingstone. They may be that tribe of quiet, sweet-natured dwarfs of whom Stanley tells in his book "Zanzibar" that they would not believe him when he told them that outside their immediate forest there were fields and rivers and sunshine. At any rate, the Mamboutis have been on the rampage, leaving their wives and children behind, the warriors of the tribe who had almost forgotten how to handle their weapons of war, have been carrying out raids in the territories of neighboring pygmy tribes. Fortune smiled upon them, apparently, for the Congo paper says they captured a large number of prisoners. They did not bring away any loot, for the simple reason that there wasn't anything to loot in the first place. Women, on the other hand, of a hostile race between neighboring tribes, were not carried away either. The Mamboutis in their own way manage in this particular commodity. The prisoners, captured on the Congo paper, were carried with the Mamboutis, but only for a certain length of time. After two or three weeks they were brought out in the morning, interrogated for a few hours, and then their captors, mercifully, set them free. When the Mamboutis had taken a batch of prisoners they returned to the charge and captured a new lot. That they were high-spirited, confident, and unafraid of their captives, is shown by the fact that they carried their captives, and were very happy and contented, in their own way, that they wanted to share their happiness with neighboring tribes. Hence, the raids, because the Mamboutis, in their own way, manage in this particular commodity.

LOCAL GOLD MINE

Last year I sold a Sanford farmer ten acres. He has just marketed his first crop thereon for more than the purchase price of the land. Two months ago I rented six acres in a Georgia grower of plants, who has already sold $5000 worth of plants and the season is only half over. How would you like to own ten acres or more adjoining these farms? Let me show you. FRANK L. FERGUSON Hotel Valdez.

"So This Is College" Will Appear Tonight As Milane's Feature

What Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer did with the stage in "Broadway Melody" they have outdone with the campus in "So This Is College," which opens tonight at the Milane Theatre.

For sheer entertainment value this new talking-singing-dancing picture lacks few ingredients and offers a winning touch-down for thrill and suspense in the dramatic football climax.

In bringing to the screen three new faces, Wood has shown rare acting ability. Robert Montgomery and Elliott Nugent, both well known to Broadway stage audiences, are unknown to the movie-going public, but their debut as the "Damen and Pythias" of the U. S. C. football eleven should start them on a sure road to screen success. The introduction of Billie Sally Starr as a new discovery is a happy one.
