River Steamer To Be Claimed By Davy Jones

Oceola Is Towed To Jacksonville For Dismantling By Rubin Iron Works

The money, sub-covered hand of Davy Jones was reaching out today from oceanic depths to claim the old Oceola, former Clyde-Mallery Line craft which was tied up at a local wharf for several years.

Towed to Jacksonville three weeks ago, the boat is now being dismantled at Commodore's Point. She was acquired by the Rubin Iron Works of Jacksonville, Workmen plan to gut her machinery and sell it.

W. A. Laffer, City Commissioner, was the owner of the Oceola for some time after it had been refitted from the Jacksonville-Sanford service on the St. Johns.

In the cabin, holds and pilot house of the ship ring the hollowed and aged echoes of a splendor that was Central Florida in the making. She was the finest craft on the St. Johns in the days when her popularity was at its peak.

Capt. Thomas W. Lund, now confined to St. Luke's Hospital in Jacksonville, was on the bridge of the Oceola when she made her first trip in 1912 and for virtually the remainder of her active life.

The popularity of the vessel, is attested by the fact that the Clyde-Mallery Lines still receive letters asking when the Oceola will make her next trip between Jacksonville and Sanford.

While it is definitely assured that the machinery of the ship will be sold, the fate of the hull is still undetermined. There was an indication that one or two firms in the State are seeking to convert it into an oil barge.

The river steamer, carrying approximately 75 passengers and 300 tons of freight, sailed three times a week on a regular schedule from Jacksonville from the time of her construction until she was withdrawn in 1928. Her running time between the Gateway City and Sanford was about 20 hours.

Pioneer Night Is Successful At Lake Mary

Nearly 500 persons packed the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce building last night to pay homage to Seminole County's pioneer in Frank Ryan's annual Pioneer Night celebration.

Forty-two honored guests—the pioneers—were among the audience. They were headed by Mrs. J. C. Hubbard of Sanford, who gave her age as 107 years.

W. Herbert Messer delivered the principal address when Judge Edward B. Smith, elected speaker, was unable to attend. Other talks were given by R. L. Howell, Sr., Robert True, P. D. Anderson, Fred R. Wilson and C. L. Colby.

Pioneer Sanfordites who attended, and their ages, are as follows: D. R. Long, 82; W. H. Hughes, 62; James Couch, 70; A. Corpany, 78; Mrs. Nellie Corpany, 74; G. (Continued on page three)

In case you're not a hunter and are unfamiliar with the County's wild life, a diversion will be provided to tell you that Old Clubfoot was a buck—one of the finest ever to roam through the woodlands of Central Florida.

The deer boasted 14 points on his antlers, and the dead carcass tipped the scales at more than 200 pounds. It was believed that he is the largest buck to fall before the gun of a Florida sportsman.

Old Clubfoot had been hunted for at least 12 years by some of the section's greatest marksmen. However, the wild animal gave hunters the slip for more than a decade.

Much-Sought Deer Falls Before Gun Of Huntsman

Old Clubfoot, 14-Point Buck, Is Taken In Haunts Near Wekiva Bridge By Willis Brown

By PAT PATTERSON
Old Clubfoot is dead. He fell before the leaden ball that sped from the muzzle of Willis Brown's shotgun.

In case you're not a hunter and are unfamiliar with the County's wild life, a diversion will be provided to tell you that Old Clubfoot was a buck—one of the finest ever to roam through the woodlands of Central Florida.

The deer boasted 14 points on his antlers, and the dead carcass tipped the scales at more than 200 pounds. It was believed that he is the largest buck to fall before the gun of a Florida sportsman.

Old Clubfoot had been hunted for at least 12 years by some of the section's greatest marksmen. However, the wild animal gave hunters the slip for more than a decade.

Brown felled the buck Thursday morning in Lake County near the Wekiva Bridge. He hunted without dogs and accidentally ran upon Old Clubfoot.

"I had been hunting all morning," Brown said, "and was just about ready to leave the woods. As I started toward home the buck got up before me from a clump of bushes. I shot him seven times before he fell. His hide was the toughest.

Sportsmen in this region know the deer because of a physical deformity from which he got his name. The right front foot, probably injured in his youth, always left the heavy imprint of a half cloven hoof and a light imprint of another hoof. This was positive identification, and many a sportsman's heart has pounded just a little faster when he found these tracks fresh.

Brown said Old Clubfoot apparently had been sleeping for many weeks near the spot where he met death, since there is considerable trampled down grass to indicate the buck had wallowed there.

Local Building Hits $118,315, Paxton Reports

Construction In '36 Exceeds Activity For Year Previous

Construction activities in Sanford during 1936 reached a high total of $118,315, or $34,000 beyond the $84,315 mark hung up in 1935, as reported today by G. P. Paxton, City Building Inspector.

November of last year saw the most money being poured into building when municipal permits were issued for $27,525. October, 1935, was the biggest month year before last with $35,340.

Second highest month of the year just closed was reported to be February, when Mr. Paxton wrote permits totaling $15,625.

While no statistics were available to show the classification for which the monies were expended, it was known that residential improvements and construction represented the greater part of the total outlay.

Following is the 1936 building activity, showing in the order named, the month, the number of permits issued, the total amount represented. The final figure represents the amount of permits issued in the same month of 1935.

January—six, $1,965; $300.
February—nine, $15,625; $250.
March—six, $475; $6,925.

Police Probing Fish Is Winner Slot Robbery In Of Garden Club Theater Building Decoration Event

Chief Williams Says New Year's Celebrated Orderly

City police today were investigating the slot machine robbery at Biggers' Soda Shop in the Ritz Theater building, an event of early New Year's morning.

An unidentified party forced their way through the front door of the establishment, knocked out the glass of the jackpot on the slot machine and emptied its contents, then removed a 5-cent machine to rob and leave in an alley nearby.

Police did not announce an estimate on the amount of money removed from the machines. It was one of the first slot robberies to be recorded here in several months.

While Chief Roy Williams reported several arrests over the New Year celebration period, he said that Sanford was unusually orderly in ushering in 1937.

Two men, Howard Mann of Orlando and J. H. Westman, were booked on charges of driving while drunk and will be tried Monday afternoon in Municipal Court. Jack Paitz, a negro, was arrested on charges of reckless driving.

Chief Williams said there were four persons picked up by police and docketed for alleged drunkenness, all of whom are to face Judge Miller on Monday.

The police chief and deputies of County Sheriff McClelland's staff reported no automobile or traffic accidents through New Year's Day.

Mrs. Welsh Awarded Prize For Best Ensemble Display

The Sanford Garden Club Christmas lighting and decorations committee today announced Ben Fish as winner of the $7.50 first award for the best Christmas tree on exhibition through the holiday season.

Other first prizes are as follows: Ensemble contest, Mrs. Eillah Welsh, awarded $5 in cash; doorway contest, Mrs. D. L. Thrasher, awarded $2.50 cash; doorniece contest, Mrs. W. G. Fleming, awarded two passes to the Ritz Theater.

Mrs. B. R. Beck won a prize, a lamp, for showing the best tree. A lamp also went to Mrs. W. A. Pitts for having second best ensemble. Second best doorway was exhibited by Mrs. Harry Heerin who received two dinners at Eddie's Restaurant.

Honorable mention for trees was awarded to Mrs. W. A. Laffer and Mrs. Hal Wight. The same honor for ensembles was given Mrs. R. A. Newman, Mrs. W. M. Scott, Mrs. H. H. Coleman, and Mrs. H. J. Lehman.

A beautiful garden mention was given Tom Jones, while the judges commented on the beautiful arch shown by Mrs. J. Dingfelder.

Twenty-three entrants participated in the contest this year, according to Mrs. H. B. Pope, chairman of the contest committee, the largest number ever to enter the annual Garden Club event.

Prizes were made possible through contributions of the Florida Power and Light Company, the Sanford Electric Company, the Ritz Theater, Eddie's Restaurant, McCrory's Store, Woolworth's Store, and the Garden Club.

Local Troops Mobilized For Emergency Duty After Removal Of Commissioners

Sholtz' Action Causes Trouble

Sanford National Guardsmen returned early today from Daytona Beach where they were called last night to prevent possible disorders that had been expected to arise after Gov. David Sholtz issued an order removing the City Commission.

Sixty-six men comprising Company "D" under command of Capt. Harold G. Washburn were hurriedly mobilized at 5 P. M. Friday and rushed across the intervening 40 miles by motor.

Some of the imported militiamen halted outside the City limits, but the greater number of troops crossed the boundary line and halted in the suburbs where they awaited orders to advance if necessary.

The imported militiamen halted just outside the Daytona Beach City limits and only officers entered the City proper. It was understood that the rank and file, fully equipped for action, were to be called inside only in the event of martial law being declared.

Gov. Sholtz signed an order Wednesday removing Mrs. Irena Armstrong as mayor of Daytona Beach as well as four other city officials, (then "left for an unannounced destination," the Associated Press said.)

Drummers, Buglers Chosen For Local Junior Legion Unit

Eight drummers and eight buglers were chosen last night to form the 16-unit drum and bugle corps of the Sanford Sons of the Legion.

Percy Mero, American Legion Boys' Work chairman, said names of the youngsters selected will be revealed until next Friday night when the corps holds its first regulation drill.

Several new instruments have been ordered, it was reported, and enough equipment will be available to completely outfit the 16 boys.

Mr. Mero announced that a National Junior Rifleman's Association charter, listing 40 boys, had been received. Boyges will arrive next week.

The organization's rifle team is slated to resume range firing within the next two or three weeks, according to tentative plans.

events; its tragedies, its disasters, its joys and sorrows, its good news and bad, which make newspaper headlines, and every year sees about the same size headlines as another. But 1937 will see some headlines preserved in history for centuries to come where the headlines of the average year are forgotten almost before the ink is dry. School children two thousand years from now will be reading about the conquest of Ethiopia even as they read about Caesar's Gallic Wars today. And history books ages hence will devote many pages to David and Willie even as they do today to Anthony and Cloopers.

The Anonymous Road Hog

If everybody had his name put on him in large letters so that it could be read 15 feet away, says Strickland Gillilan, author and humorist, a great forward step would have been taken in reforming the world and starting an era of law-abidingness and good manners. Writing in the Rotarian Magazine, Mr. Gillilan cites examples of how it would work out. One of these examples should be of special interest to those who realize the need for cutting the hazards of auto traffic:

"A guy" is driving a car," writes Mr. Gillilan. "Another guy who wants to go faster than Guy No. 1, comes up behind him. The horn of the back car is sounded. 'A guy' in front keeps right on, or pulls over to the left and speeds just enough to hold the other man from passing. When they get to a place where another car is approaching from the opposite direction 'a guy' slows down. Soon as there is nothing coming in the opposite direction, he speeds up just enough to hold back the man behind him.

"Finally the man behind gets so angry that he steps on the gas and violates nine or ten speed laws and other driving regulations to pass 'the road hog' at any hazard. As he goes by, he leans out of the car window and relieves himself of a large and lurid variety of assorted such and suches, to which benison he gets a response in kind with a few who-do-you-think-you-are thrown in for good measure.

"What would have happened," asks Mr. Gillilan. "If Guy No. 1 had had his name in letters a foot high on the back of his car? In the first place, he would either have speeded up and stayed ahead so as not to embarrass or impede the man behind him; or he would have pulled over instantly and let the man go by. He wouldn't mind having someone say, 'There was this and that in the road ahead of me today who did thus and so, may his soul rot.' But he wouldn't want it said that 'Guy Zenophanes Soso was in front of me today and he ought to have his permit cancelled.'

"Likewise, if the man behind had had his name on his car, he wouldn't have resorted to unmannerly and abusive language as he finally whizzed by. He would not have cared if Guy had gone home and said 'some feller' cussed him out, but he would have cared if Guy Zenophanes Soso had gone home and told that 'Richard Y. Gobyne is certainly a skunk and has had road manners.'

"Get rid of the opportunity to be anonymously nasty, and you will get rid of most of the nastiness. Human vanity is the thing involved—some call it pride, some call it self-respect. I don't care what you call it. Call it red precipitate or asphalt if you want to. It is vanity which in by no means a bad thing. The world couldn't get along well without it."

Lynch Law

Among the other developments of 1936, many of which showed definite trends in the right direction, lynch law, which for many years has been one of the most serious blotches on the good name of this country, particularly of the South, suffered a serious setback. If the improvement in the annual number of lynchings continues, it may not be long before Judge Lynch can be permanently retired from the bench.

The report for 1936 just released by the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute reveals that during the entire year only nine persons in the whole United States met death by lynching; in 1935 there were twenty persons lynched in this country; during the previous year there were fifteen, and in the year preceding that there were twenty-eight.

However, these figures do not tell the whole story of the progress which has been made in maintaining law and order. During 1936, when the fewest number of persons were actually lynched in many years, there were no less than thirty-five other instances in which attempts were made at lynching which proved unsuccessful.

In preventing these thirty-five lynchings from taking place, the lives of not less than sixty-nine persons were saved; since, in many instances, there were two or more possible victims involved. In preventing the lynchings, no lives were lost, and officers of the law avoiding any possible violence simply by the timely removal of prisoners to places of safety, or by taking other necessary precautions. In only five cases was armed force necessary to repel would-be lynchers.

In the nine cases where lynchings actually occurred, six of the victims were already in the hands of the law and presumably would have been properly punished for their crimes. If guilty, had the law been allowed to take its course. The other three had not yet been captured, but there is no reason to believe they would not have been if the officers had been given time.

As a new year begins, let us hope that continued progress will be made in stamping out this constant threat to law and order.

SANFORD TWENTY YEARS AGO

Adorned with quantities of white flowers and green, the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wight was beautiful today for the marriage of their daughter, Miss Margaret Louise Wight, to Clarence Roy Kirtley of Chicago, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Kirtley of Iowa. The beautiful ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. J. A. Davidson of the Congregational Church and wedding music was played by Miss Adelaide Higgins. The bride was girlishly pretty in her traveling suit of mole colored broadcloth which was finished with collar and cuffs of ozo and braided belt of self material. She had a corsage bouquet of delicately tinted lavender orchids which were sent after the wedding to the mother of the groom to be used at her golden wedding anniversary on Jan. 6. The winsome maid of honor was Miss Sarah Wight who wore a lovely little frock of white organza, ruffled from hem to waist with inch wide ruffles. Mrs. Thomas Wight, the attractive little ring-bearer, was a manly young figure in a white suit. The bride, whose winsome charm and pleasing personality have won for her a wide popularity in the most exclusive society circles of Florida, is the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wight. The groom is a graduate of Grinnell University. A man loved for his sterling qualities and high principles by those who know him best. After Jan. 15 Mr. and Mrs. Kirtley will be at home in Chicago.

Mrs. M. Warren of Pawnee City, Neb., turned her 640-acre farm which this year produced 17,000 bushels of wheat into grass for next year to save it from erosion. A service club at Muskogee, Okla., is distributing white canes with red tips to the city's blind, so motorists will recognize them and grant immediate right-of-way.

CANDLELIGHT

By NINA OLIVER DEAN

"No tree in all the grove but has its charms..."

Since the beginning of the world the tree has had an important part in the story of mankind from the day when Adam ate of the forbidden fruit and suddenly saw Eve surrounded by a dark and curious enchantment. The bible constantly employs the symbol of the tree—the tree of life, "which bare twelve manner of fruits", the green byz tree, "the tree known by his fruit". In history, there is the Charter Oak, and in romances, there are the friendly trees under which lovers meet.

In every man's life, although there may be many trees that grow forever green in the garden of memory, there is usually one about which there is something special. It may be an association with the days "when we were very young" and could claim the world from the tree tops like little Anthony Adverse over his convent wall; it may be the wistful ghosts of a boy and girl long since grown up who one day carved their initials in a birch tree's bark; it may be an old elm on a college campus that helps keep alive the picture of a boy in cap and gown who planned by one warm June commencement day; it may be a hickory that grew by a little red school house, a hickory that gave its branches for switches until it hurt; it may be a tree in some foreign land that makes one think of happy jaunting about the earth and sailing the seven seas, or it may be a tree remembered "nirrely" for its beauty.

Have you a tree in your past? Perhaps it is a spruce, sharp and straight on the coast of Maine, or a peach, cloudy pink with dark branches in Georgia, or a cactus making its queer brutal jagged silhouette against the Arizona sky, or an apple with its friendly gnarled branches in "the valley" of Virginia, or a magnolia with its great waxy blossoms white under the Mississippi moon.

It may be that your special tree is a horse chestnut that makes you think of a golden day in Paris in the Spring, or the big banyan that dominates the courtyard of the old Moana Hotel in Honolulu and furnishes a perfect background for white mess jackets and evening gowns, or the olive tree of silver green on the slopes above the Arno in Florence.

Or perhaps your tree lives only between the pages of a book—Shakespeare's greenwood tree in "As You Like It" or the tree-tops that "lay asleep like green waves on the sea" in Shelley's "Recollection, the locusts whose will bloom bordering the drive at the "Little Colonel's" house in Lydboro Valley, the lofty trees of the temple in Swinburne's "Palace of Pan," or one of the many immortal trees that grow in Wordsworth's "Rural Wood."

New England has her "spreading chestnut tree, where the village smithy stood"; Georgia has its Sydney Lanier oak under which the poet sat and sang of Glynns, Mississippi has its John Sale and his book, "The Tree Named John", rich with the darkey folk custom of naming a tree for a new born child and then reading into the health or sickness of the tree the future of the man.

Here in Florida, the leading lady from the point of view of size and interest is Seminole County's Big Cypress near Longwood. Then, there is the gracious sweep of the drive of Royal Palms at the Hialeah Park in Miami, the gumbo limbo with its brown bark near the Deering estate, and the tree planted in Miami by James Whitcomb Riley On the St. Johns River near the Geneva Bridge, there are cabbage palmettos, lean and tall like feather dusters against the sky, oddly foreign and giving the whole picture a suggestion of the Nile.

In Orlando, there is the great oak tree on Orange Avenue that stretches across the entire front of a pleasant looking red brick house, and a very special Eucalyptus in Eola Park high lighted by afternoon sun. All over Florida, there is the incredible beauty of the orange tree with its legendary fruit and its enduring magic. One day I stopped on the road side to admire a very fine tree in the modest grove of an old cracker farmer. I grew a big lyrical in my attempt to make articulate my feeling about his orange tree.

After I had quoted Margaret Deland, Cecil Roberts, and Milton's sonorous phrase about the Tree of Life—"high, eminent, blooming ambrosial fruit of vegetable gold", and recalled the golden apples of Hesperides, the old cracker shifted his tobacco to the opposite side of his jaw,

FLORIDA HIGHLIGHTS

One of the greatest men of Florida was DR. JOHN GORRIE, inventor of mechanical refrigeration. Today his memory is venerated in the Hall of Fame in Washington, D. C., by a sculptured likeness. After graduating from a New York medical school, Dr. Gorrie settled in Apalachicola in 1822. Realizing the urgent need of artificial ice by producers of perishable foodstuffs, Dr. Gorrie, after long research, discovered the solution, and during the period between 1847-1850 devoted all his energies to perfect and commercialize the process. Although Dr. Gorrie's invention was successful, he died in 1855, without seeing his dream realized—that of furnishing the southern states with a dependable ice supply.

Over 300 Guests Enjoy New Year Party At Mr. and Mrs. Leffer's

More than 300 people of social and civic prominence enjoyed themselves yesterday afternoon and evening at the open house reception held by Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Leffer at their home in Rose Court.

Presiding over the punchbowl which was decorated in red, was Mrs. H. B. Pope, wearing a lovely black lace costume. The punch was served in the dining room which was a mass of red and white gladioli. The table was laid in a design of red and white gladioli, with tall candelabra on each end. Brazilian peppers dotted the decorations, presenting an unusual and beautiful spectacle.

The drawing room, too, was decorated with vari-colored gladioli, dotted with Brazilian peppers while both the north and the south sun-rooms, which were thrown open to hold the overflow crowd, were decorated with many varieties of potted plants and Brazilian pepper.

Coffee was poured in the drawing room by Mrs. W. T. Langley. Mrs. Leffer was assisted by Mrs. M. S. Wiggins who was resplendent in a fragile, peach-colored lace gown. Mrs. E. L. Perkins, who was crowned in a royal blue lace creation, presented a most attractive appearance as did Mrs. R. B. Deas, who wore a lovely (hoar) evening dress.

The hostess herself was beautifully gowned for the occasion in a dress of red and green. Mrs. Alan Mosely, Mrs. Mary Strong and Mrs. Minnie Jones also capably assisted for the occasion as did Mr. A. J. Peterson and H. B. Pope.

During the late hours of the evening, the punch bowl was removed and the table laid in a buffet style to provide a buffet luncheon for the guests who remained and for the latecomers.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH
 "God" is the subject of the lesson, sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, Jan. 3.

The Golden Text is from Psalm 118:27, "God is the Lord, which hath shewed us light."
 Among the citations which comprise the lesson-sermon is the following from the Bible: "I am persuaded, that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord." (Rom. 8:38,39).

The lesson-sermon also includes the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "When the evidence before the material senses yielded to spiritual sense, the apostle declared that nothing could alienate him from God, from the sweet sense and presence of life and truth."

More than 2,500 men and women were employed in December transplanting Bermuda onions on 1,800 acres in Webb and Zapata counties, Texas.

Eleanor Powell Returns In "Born To Dance"

Brilliant Dancing Star Resumes Screen Career After Recent Illness

Songs that cling to the ear, beautiful girls, elaborate spectacle, a plot brimming with laughs—topped by the sensational dancing of America's "Queen of Taps," Eleanor Powell—combine to make "Born to Dance," which plays Sunday and Monday at the Ritz Theater, the screen's most distinguished musical hit.

Winning stardom in her first picture, "Broadway Melody of 1936," the brilliant Miss Powell again demonstrates her generous and unusual endowment of beauty, acting ability, natural charm and the prowess which earned her the title of the world's champion feminine tap dancer.

In "Born to Dance" the star has been given every opportunity to reveal her versatile talents for she does everything from dancing up and down flights of stairs to leading a band with her toes. Her numbers, as well as those which include the lavish chorus spectacles, are the creation of Dave Gould who introduced the famed "Caroles" and more lovely ensembles and routines have seldom been seen on the screen.

Of outstanding importance also are the musical numbers written by that ace exponent of words and music, Cole Porter of "You're the Top" fame. Powell has contributed an enchantingly lilting score with such songs as "Easy to Love," "I've Got You Under My Skin," "Swinging the Dixie Away" and "Hey, Babe, Hey," guaranteed to be sung over every radio and played by every dance band for months to come.

Its story of a small-town girl who falls in love with a navy man and nearly loses him to a stage favorite is packed with entertainment. It is a logical plot with interesting submarine sequences, picturesque naval backgrounds and comedy highlights but the wealth of spectacular beauty in the lavish scenes, the brilliant dancing and the unforgettable music, plus the attractive performances of the star and a dazzling supporting cast are the distinctive features of the most entertaining musical picture to come out of Hollywood.

Thrills Galore Fill New Jungle Film Coming To Ritz

The charge of a hundred maddened elephants upon a bamboo Malayan village, the death-leap of an infuriated man-eating tiger, and a battle in tree tops by a horde of baboons are a few of the thrills that make "The Jungle Princess," which shows at the Ritz Theater Tuesday, one of the most thrilling and exciting stories of the current season.

The friendship of a jungle girl with a tiger and giant chimpanzee, and the love which is born between her and a white man lost in her dangerous domains, keep the story at lightning speed and form the romantic background for the thriller. Dorothy Lamour, recently of the radio, makes her film debut as the girl, and Ray Milland is the man whom she loves. Others in the cast are Akim Tamiroff, Lynne Overman, Molly Lamont, and Ma'a, the latter the hand-some Eskimo remembered for his portrayal in "Eskimo."

Milland goes into the Malay jungle to investigate rumors that there is a witch in the for-

ELEANOR SEEMS HAPPY

Eleanor Powell seems happy to be back in pictures. At least, that is one's opinion from the looks she's giving James Stewart. The scene is taken from "Born To Dance" which opens at the Ritz Sunday.

Showing At The Ritz This Week

Kay Francis Is Star In 'Give Me Your Heart'

George Brent Cast Opposite Of Dark, Sophisticated Lady

"Give Me Your Heart," a poignant screen drama based on the famous stage play by Jay Mallory, "Sweet Alons," has been booked as the feature attraction at the Ritz Theater Wednesday and Thursday, with glamorous Kay Francis in the stellar role.

The picture a Cosmopolitan production released by Warner Bros., which is said to give Miss Francis the finest dramatic opportunity of her career, presents her as an ultra modern young Englishwoman who seeks happiness in glorious surroundings in London, New York and Italy.

The plot is daring, the situations novel in the extreme, but most striking of all is the treatment which is frank and brilliant, but clean and in good taste.

The unusually talented cast supporting Miss Francis, includes George Brent, Roland Young, Patricia Knowles, Henry Stephenson, Freda Inescort, Helen Flint, Halliwell Hobbes, Zeffie Tilbury and Elsiebeth Dudgeon.

Miss Francis has the role of a motherless English girl who has been brought up by her father, a scientist living in Italy. Returning to London for a visit, she meets a young British nobleman whose wife is a semi-invalid, and the two fall desperately in love.

Roland Young, who plays the part of an English aristocrat and a warm friend of both families, discovers that the girl is going to have a child. Hoping to help both families he tells the young nobleman's father, who is longing for an heir, which he knows his son's wife cannot give him.

They persuade Kay to give up her child at birth, pointing out that the child shall eventually inherit the title.

Kay sails for America, and on the boat meets an American business man, a part played by George Brent, whom she marries. The girl being constantly driven by nervous tension, tries to find relief by plunging into the mad social world.

his wife, with "their" son happens to be in America at the time, so the playwright secretly arranges a meeting.

The tension is terrific, but the nobleman's wife finally guesses that the other woman is the mother of "her" son. In a climax fraught with the greatest intensity, she and the other girl finally come to an understanding and matters are smoothed out.

Patric Knowles plays the role of the young nobleman, Henry Stephenson that of his father and Freda Inescort is the invalid wife. Halliwell Hobbes is her name and Helen Flint, her American doctor with whom the playwright falls in love.

Barbara Stanwyck Plays Lead In 'Banjo On My Knee'

Joel McCrea Takes Odd Romance

A drama with music, deftly relieved by comedy and enlivened by several new song hits, combine to make "Banjo on My Knee," the Twentieth Century-Fox picture which plays Wednesday and Thursday at the Ritz Theater, a hit screen production.

The cast includes Barbara Stanwyck and Joel McCrea co-starred, supported by such talented and popular players as Helen Westley, Buddy Ebsen, Walter Brennan, Walter Catlett, Anthony Martin and Katherine de Mille.

The story opens on the shanty-boat of Walter Brennan whose son, Joel McCrea, is about to marry a "land girl," Barbara Stanwyck. Brennan is entertaining the guests by playing his one-man band contraption, comprising almost every conceivable musical gadget including the "banjo on his knee." Everyone is merry except Katherine de Mille who wants Joel for herself. She boasts to her bibulous Granny, Helen Westley, that she could get him right now if she wanted him. Barbara, overhearing, declares that she "can love deeper and fight better than any girl on the River!"

Infuriated, Barbara demands he take her with him and, when he refuses, she runs away with Catlett. In New Orleans, Barbara tells Catlett she will not go through with it, and gets a job as dishwasher in the nearby Creole Cafe, a river-side cabaret.

Republicans To Stand By Snell, Robinson Will Lead Administration Force In Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4.—(AP)—Democratic House members strove to agree on floor leader today in order to permit swift organization of the new congress, confronted by administration requests for immediate action on Spanish neutrality and relief measures.

Selection of a party chief, who will be the right hand man of speaker Bankhead, Alabama, Democrat, in directing House legislation, was a final preliminary for the opening of the heavily Democratic Congress at noon tomorrow.

The major party's 332 representatives, chosen in the second Roosevelt landslide, were summoned to make a choice at a caucus late this afternoon. John O'Connor, New York, and Sam Rayburn, Texas, both claimed a victory on the first ballot. The contest was so heated that some whispers of a possible dark horse compromise spread through the capital. Speaker Bankhead has no opposition.

A handful of Republicans will have Snell of New York as floor leader.

Young Joseph Robinson of Oregon will be Democratic leader in the Senate while 16 Republican senators will rally behind McNary of Oregon.

County Motorists Purchasing Tags, Avoiding Delays

Appeals for the early purchase of 1937 automobile licenses have resulted in considerable response. Tax Collector Joe D. Jinks said today, but there are still hundreds who have failed to buy plates.

"Persons who wait until the last minute will find themselves greatly inconvenienced by a long wait to get near the tag window," he asserted. "This week it should be a simple matter to buy a tag without a tedious wait."

Jan. 15 has been set as the deadline when all 1936 licenses will no longer be in force. There has been no indication that an extension will be granted to the 15 days of grace already allowed.

Mason Tells Of Wild Bird Life In Local Areas

200 Species Of Birds Found In County, Audubon Head Says

C. Russell Mason, president of the Florida Audubon Society, was the principal speaker at the regular weekly luncheon of the Rotary Club today, and gave an interesting discussion on birds and bird life, particularly in Seminole County.

There are more than 200 species of birds in this county, and 114 of them were positively identified in a census which was taken last month. A number of species known to exist in this county could not be found at that particular time and certain migratory birds are here only during certain seasons of the year.

There are two different kinds of buzzards in this section of the State, Mr. Mason stated, and neither of them, he added, are protected by law though they ought to be. Thought at one time to be responsible for the spread of long eared, laws protecting them were lifted, but Mr. Mason added, while it was later discovered in the State experimental laboratory, that buzzards had nothing to do with the spread of this disease, nothing was ever done about changing the law.

"Owls and hawks are protected by law," Mr. Mason said, "but are often shot at by hunters because of the mistaken impression that they are responsible for the shortage of game birds. It is not true that only the good hawk is a dead hawk. Both owls and hawks kill rodents, snakes, and other animals which are destroyers of game birds, and in that way do much more good than harm."

Mr. Mason also explained the tremendous increase in the number of egrets which has taken place since they came under the protection of State laws. Twenty years ago, these beautiful birds, whose plumage during the nesting season brought fancy prices in the market of the world, had become almost extinct. Then drastic laws were passed by the State, and today they are very plentiful being found almost everywhere in the County.

Besides Mr. Mason other guests at today's luncheon were Herbert A. Harris of Endicott, N. Y., and Harry Brumby, and A. W. Hunkly of Orlando.

Washborn Denies Rough Tactics Of Guardsmen Says Photographer Asked To Wait Before Getting Photo

Cap. Harold C. Washborn, acting commander of the Sanford National Guard unit, today emphatically denied the "rough tactics" attributed to his men "hounded" an Orlando newspaper photographer Friday night when the latter attempted to take pictures of the guards who had been called in Daytona Beach in a political case.

"The Orlando Morning Sentinel of Sunday carried a story of the 'rough tactics' accorded the photographer," Washborn said. "He denied all the allegations in the article, and branded it as a 'gross misstatement of facts.'"

Cap. Washborn and 66 men from the local detachment had been called in to act as a posse.

Both men are wizards in politics. Both are veterans. Both have a grand title and neither will give an inch to the opposition, each preferring direct to indirect methods.

It probably was this quality in the two men which first led to an open break and earned for Washborn the name of the "toughest political guy in the State."

Few, if any, outside the immediate intimate political circles of Sholtz and Armstrong know the first incident which was the basis of the local, although it possibly could have been torn over the alleged difference of Volusia County candidates in the election of 1931.

Early in January, 1936, Washborn was a definite rift between the Mayor and the Governor, and it became publicly known when Armstrong failed to attend the dedication of Sholtz Field, the Daytona Beach airport, where the dedication address was made by the Governor.

After that event offensive and counter-offensive movements were part of the day's routine for both men. Public sympathy apparently ran with the Daytona Beach Mayor.

On the other side of the fence, there is some indignation over the fact that the Daytona Beach City Hall was converted into an armed fortress prepared to resist any "invasion" of the Sholtz-appointed men.

However, Armstrong supporters point out that this situation never would have occurred had it not been for the issuance of the ouster order which failed in its first effort to accomplish its design.

Behind It All

Ed Armstrong, resigned mayor of Daytona Beach, and Governor Dave Sholtz were seen from the National Guard building today. Armstrong was given considerable credit for the election of Sholtz to the Governor's chair for the mayor is said to have given his financial aid as well as other support.
