County Budget Crisis: No Crisis At All

And Tom Giordano (First of two stories).

The so-called $8 million budget shortfall the Seminole County administrator has recently brought to the attention of the county commission as a projection for fiscal 1983-84 probably can best be described as a multi-million-dollar misunderstanding. A misunderstanding that has created the impression county taxpayers may be in for a rough year next year and may see their property tax bills increased considerably.

That, however, is not necessarily the case, and, indeed, if most or all of the other county commissioners follow Board Chairman Sandra Glenn's present thinking, there won't be a tax increase at all.

The misunderstanding, or confusion, came about a few days ago when County Administrator T. Duncan Rose III presented a partial and preliminary budget projection for fiscal 1983-84. It reflected an $8 million shortfall to be eliminated or reduced by one or a combination of several options Rose attached to the imagined, the Herald sent reporters to Rose's office for a document, most of which have some frightening press conference to put the matter in perspective. On implications, such as climinating a hundred or so jobs in the county; raising the property tax by almost 15 the county's office of management and budget director, percent and so on.

Well, county commissioners reacted as expected. We'll have none of that, they said in effect, although the three-hour press conference: document should not have surprised them much, since Rose had told them in March there could be an $8 on several aspects of the projected budget shortfall. million shortfall in the next fiscal year unless certain remedial action is taken. But even though commissioners heard about it in March - the media did too, but missed it completely - no one took it seriously until Rose actually produced a document supporting his prediction.

To get a handle on the problem, big or small, real or hand with the reporters were Rose, Eleanor Anderson, and Chairman Glenn.

Some of the things that stood out clearly during the

- 1. Rose. Anderson and Glenn may not see eye to eye Frequently when a question was asked and the reporter looked for confirmation or denial, one would nod in agreement while one or both of the others shook his/her head in disagreement.

Mrs. Glenn says she's not sure that's beneficial or a hindrance to commissioners. Nor is she certain, she said, she'd like to see that in the future,

- 3. Anderson, who disagreed with Rose on several points, says she definitely would prefer it if preliminary budget projections are not done in future years as they were this year, that is, preparing an earlier version, then another just prior to the commissioners' budget deliberations. Why? Because she said it created many long hours of work, not to mention overtime for some of her hourly-rate staffers. Rose disagreed, but didn't elaborate. Asked if she knew how much it cost for the extra work, Anderson sald no, but she's considering a cost study.

It's Ironic, too, that Anderson was upset over the extra work imposed on her department having to prepare Rose's preliminary projections this early in the game, knowing she'll have to turn in another, more complete document in a few weeks, since it was she who brought the projected shortfall to Rose's attention. She said she realized a few months back that all of the capital improvements projects the county commission was Mayor Walter Sorenson sald that meeting will be held at 8:30 a.m. Friday at city hall.

A week ago, city officials met with builders of prospective developments in the city to determine how those developers can assist the city in acquiring and financing a water production system. One developer indicated he may build a water plant with sufficient capacity to serve his own subdivision and later deed over the plant to the city.

Another, representing Residential Communities of America, said his firm would have a concrete proposal to make to the city within two weeks. RCA is planning to build 700 plus housing units in the State Road 46A area.

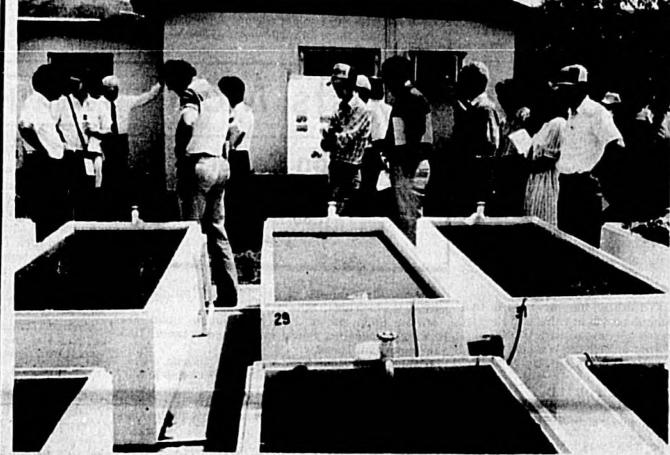

In recent weeks, the Sanford City Commission which supplies Lake Mary with water, urged the city to prepare for a system of its own. The commissioners stated fears that because of Lake Mary's spurt in growth. Sanford water reserves would be diminished or depleted.

Lake Mary has some 1,000 housing units either on the drawing boards for construction within the next 18 months or already under construction.

Kulbes told the Lake Mary Commission Thursday night that developers are about ready to begin construction of Feather's Edge, a townhouse development on Rinehart Road and Sun Drive.

Kulbes said the developers have applied for septic tank permits from the county health department and will be extending a 12-inch city water line on Lake Mary Boulevard from in front of the Forest mobile home community to Rinehart Road.

Missing Kids

Seminole Not Plagued With Problem As Are Other Areas In U.S.

By Donna Estes Herald Staff Writer (First of two articles).

While there may be a problem nationally and even in Florida with large numbers of missing children, Seminole County has been lucky.

Among the largest local law enforcement agencies in the county -Sanford, Altamonte Springs and Casselberry police departments not a single young child is listed on the records as missing for an extended period of time.

Most of the less than one dozen young people listed as missing by the departments over an extended period are described by the departments as "runaways" and of that number most have run away not once but several times prior to the latest episode.

Meanwhile, President Ronald Reagan is expected to declare Wednesday as "Missing Children Day." U.S. Sen. Paula Hawkins, R. Winter Park, who authored a bill signed by Reagan on Oct. 12, 1982, concerning missing children, asked for the special designation.

It is the fourth anniversary of the date that Etan Patz of New York City, who would now be 61/2 years old, disappeared. He is still missing.

The Hawkins legislation creates two separate national clearing houses on missing children, according to Jay Hall, a Hawkins' alde who gathered much of the statistical information which led to the special

Half said the first clearing house would deal with attempting to trace the background of the 3,000 unidentified bodies of children found every year in the nation.

The law also creates a central registry of names, physical descriptions and other information on missing children. Hall said. In addition, the "Missing Children Act" gives parents the opportunity to go to the office of the FBI to make certain that their children's names have been entered into the clearing house records, he said.

Hawkins, while garnering support for the legislation, searched out statistics on the numbers of missing children in the nation, coming up state.

with an estimate that 1.5 million children are missing annually.

Hall said some information on numbers came from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, but mostly "we did our own survey of the 40 to 50 most populous cities in the country and what authorities knew. It was an the Sheriff's Department and the area that was not well researched or well described.'

Hall said Mrs. Hawkins office in the process became an authority on

Of the 1.5 million total missing children. Hall said about 1 million are runaways or "throwaways." He described "throwaways" as those children who have been kicked out of their homes or forced to leave because of abuse.

Another 100,000, which Hall said is a very conservative estimate, are victims of "parent-nappings." He said this leaves 20,000 to 50,000 children each year who disappear and whose cases are not solved by the end of the year. This group includes different kinds of children. he said, such as "no doubt" runaways; victims of sexual abuse and "stranger kidnaps," where children are living some place as someone's surrogate child.

In the survey of the 40 largest cities in 1981, Hall said, reports of 100,000 missing children were found and 8,000 of the cases remained unsolved at the end of the "Eight to 10 percent do not return home and their cases are not solved at the end of the year," he said.

The Florida Legislature in 1982 appropriated funds to the Florida Department of Law Enforcement (FDLE) to create a missing children's information clearing house to collect, store and disseminate information in an effort to locate missing children. It does not, however, conduct investigations.

The Florida clearing house is located in the Division of Criminal Justice Information in Tallahassee which houses the state's information computers, linked with each law enforcement agency in the

The resolution expresses the city's opposition to any amendment which would "allow two municipalities to merge by any method other than approval by a vote of the qualified voters in each area affected."

It urges the county legislative delegation to oppose any amendment of state law or the enactment of any special act which would allow two or more cities to merge through the "device of a winner-take-all" referendum.

Lake Mary was created by a special act of the Legislature nearly a decade ago. The local legislators required that more than 50 percent of Lake Mary's voters approve incorporation before consent of those being brought into the city." Noting he is opposed to any move in that direction unless approved by the majority vote of both sides. Selph predicted there will not be enough support during this session for the legislation to even get it on the calendar.

IN BRIEF NAACP Suspends Hooks Over Policies Dispute

ST. LOUIS (UPI) - Margaret Bush Wilson, national board chairman of the NAACP, has suspended Executive Director Benjamin L. Hooks in what apparently is a dispute over policies and a clash of personalities.

Hooks, a Baptist minister and former member of the Federal Communications Commission, was replaced in his NAACP job by Thomas 1. Atkins, the civil rights organization's general counsel, the St. Louis Post-Dispatch said in a copyright story.

Much of the friction between Hooks, a native of Memphis, Tenn., and Mrs. Wilson reportedly was the result of disagreements concerning the roles of the executive director and the policy-

In the meantime. Atkins will handle Hooks' daily responsibilities for managing the national office in New York City and serving as the organization's official spokesman.

Tighter Airline Security

MIAMI (UPI) - In the wake of three commercial airliner hijackings to Cuba in three weeks, federal aviation officials are considering tightening airline security - possibly by putting more armed sky marshals aboard flights.

"If this is continued we will take whatever steps are necessary to beef up security," said Jack Barker, Federal Aviation Administration spokesman in Atlanta.

Eastern Airlines Flight 24 from Miami to New York, with 132 people aboard, was commandeered Thursday by a man who claimed to have a bomb and demanded to go to Cuba to see his Cuban officials arrested the hijacker when the Boeing 727 landed at Havana's Jose Marti Airport and then allowed the plane to resume its flight.

The jet was the first Eastern airliner to be hijacked to Cuba since July 1981 and the third U.S. passenger alreraft to be hijacked this month. Capitol Air flights from San Juan, Puerto Rico to Miami were diverted to Cuba on May I and May 12.

Armed federal agents have been riding sclected flights since the last outbreak of skyjackings by homesick Mariel boatlift refugees three years ago.

The number of federal marshals riding various flights had been cut back in recent months, but FAA officials said that more agents would be assigned to hijack duty if the current rash of hilacks continued.

Eastern officials also said they would be taking a closer look at their security arangements in light of the hijacking.

4 Top EPA Officials Quit

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Four more top officials of the Environmental Protection Agency have resigned in a new round of housecleaning at the agency, where 20 political appointees have left their jobs since it became enmeshed in controversy.

The latest to resign, on William Ruckelshaus' second day as EPA administrator, included Frederic Eldsness, assistant administrator for water, and Kathleen Bennett, assistant administrator for air, noise and radiation.

Two regional administrators. Peter Bibco of Philadelphia and Lester Sutton of Boston, also resigned, EPA spokesman Rusty Brashear said.

approving in concept were based on much lower estimates than they actually would cost and would, therefore, create a shortfall.

Now comes the tricky part: dissecting the preliminary budget projections to determine the extent of the shortfall, if any, and how that shortfall might be eliminated or reduced so no tax increase will be

There is no $8 million shortfall in reality, according to Mrs. Glenn. She said there's really only a problem of $4 million or so because of the capital improvements projects tentatively to be included in the next fiscal year's budget. And she indicated she feels reasonably certain that can be dealt with without a tax increase. How to go about it? She, Rose and Anderson again said they disagree "philosophically" on how it might be accomplished.

Why is there a discrepancy about a projected $8 million shortfall that may really be a $4 million shortfall? Before looking more closely at Rose's projections for the coming fiscal year, here's a look at the county's adopted budget for this fiscal year so comparisons will be easier understood. This year's county budget is $67 million. It is supported by state, federal and other non-property tax revenues such as fees, etc., totalling $49 million, leaving some $18 million to be raised from property taxes. Based on the county's tax base, the county set a tax rate of $5.48 per $1,000 assessed valuation to raise the $18 million. In Rose's capital improvements. The group A accounts include with.

done, though all seemed to agree it could, indeed, be such county expenditures as payroll, operating expenses, reserves and $4.5 million for capital improvements.

Now here's where some of the philosophical differences come up. According to Mrs. Glenn, if the capital improvements portion is set aside, the remainder of the accounts reflect a shortfall of only about $3.5 million. Rose and Anderson insist that it's a bare bones budget that calls for that $3.5 million increase. It reflects a 1.9 percent inflationary factor and a 6.12 percent factor for normal increases in fringe benefits for county employees. However, Mrs. Glenn said the $3.5 million projected budget increase is "normal" and that by the time the commissioners get through going over the partial budget projected for next fiscal year, he included accounts line item by line item, the projected snortfall only those accounts called group A - accounts should be all but eliminated. That, then, would leave supported in part by property taxes — and anticipated only the $4.5 million in capital improvements to be dealt

Large amounts of biomass can be produced in aquatic plants cultured in nutrient non-limiting conditions, said Reddy. About 85 percent of the plant tissue is potentially convertible to methane gas. For example, one kilogram (dry weight) of water hyacinth will produce about 300 liters of methane gas. This is the equivalent to about 11,000 BTU per kilogram of water hyacinth.

In addition to the methane gas, the digestor residue will also contain several plant nutrients which can be used as fertilizer. One kilogram (dry weight) of water hyacinth will also produce about 28 grams of nitrogen, eight grams of phosphorus, 32 grams of potassium, 18 grams of calcium, five grams of magnesium, and several minor elements.

Darby said there are 100 cement tanks at the center with aquatic plants growing in them to determine what elements added to the water make the plants more efficient in removing nutrients from the water.

Reddy said the results obtained in this research program can be readily adapted to treat polluted water, sewage effluents, runoff from animal operations and industrial wastewaters. The resulting blomass can be used for producing energy. The results of the program can also be adapted to areas where aquatic plants are a nuisanse problem.

18 Twisters Leave 10 Dead

HOUSTON (UPI) - A swarm of at least 18 tornadoes cut a 150-mile-long swath across southeast Texas in 12 hours of terror Friday, killing at least 10 people, injuring more than 50 others, tearing through a dozen towns and cutting power to 200,000.

Twelve hours after a twister onslaught between 2 and 3 a.m. CDT killed eight people in five counties, tornados ripped through a trailer park in Crosby east of Houston and the Jefferson County Airport between Beaumont and Post Arthur, killing one more person in each place.

A Harris County sheriff's dispatcher said the Chapman Mobile Home Park at Crosby already had been hit in the early morning storms, with three trailers demolished, and then the afternoon twister hit, flattening 17 more.

"The early tornado chased a lot of people out of here. Otherwise It could have been really a disaster," said Russell Popp, in his 30s, who along with many others moved his family out after the predawn storms.

Van Brown drove up to find his trailer demolished and learned his wife, Carol, 27, had been killed. He screamed aloud, punching the side of his pickup truck, asking himself why he did not move his family out after the morning storm.

Details were sparse on the Jefferson County Airport twister, but an empty commuter airplane was flipped and the roof of the airport terminal collapsed. The terminal was being searched.

When the first wave of tornadoes struck about 2 a.m., Daniel William Rau Jr., 15, was sucked out of his family's trailer home near Prairie View, Texas, with a friend clutching at him. The wind threw the youth 200 yards, killing him.

"I was trying to hold him as tight as I could," said Scott Thomas, 18, who was sleeping next to Danny In the Rau trailer home. "It blew him away from me. He flew out the top of the traffer."

Four-year-old Kelly Handsbrough was sleeping in bed with her mother, Frances, when a six-ton tree crushed their bedroom in north Houston, killing the child.

"The thing fell right on top of her (Kelly). The other kids said she was hollering at first but was dead when they got to her," said neighbor Gene Malone, who tried to help. The mother was treated at a hospital for puncture

Plant Expansion Costs More

The city of Sanford must pay nearly twice the original $58,000 pricetag for a 3.2-acre site earmarked for an extension to the city's sewage plant, a jury has decided.

After a four-day trial, a 12-member jury agreed that the city should pay $100,000 for the site west of the city's sewage treatment plant near Lake Monroe.

The property was condemned in 1981 to provide for more drying beds for the planned sewage plant expansion and the city deposited $58,344 with the courts to pay for the property, according to City Attorney Bill Colbert.

During the four-day hearing, the jury heard that property in the area had increased in value and the city will now have to increase it's deposit to $100,000 plus Park, told police her house was robbed between 10:30 interest to Gary C. #### 'GOAT LADY' ARRESTED AGAIN

Seminole County's "Goat Lady", Ingeborg Morris, has been released from the county Jail under a pre-trial release program after being arrested Sunday afternoon after three small goats were found in her yard in violation of a court order.

Morris, 48, was arrested at her home, 2331 Oak Drive. Longwood, at about 2 p.m. and charged with resisting arrest without violence. She was freed on $500 bond.

Deputies Judith Davidson and John Negri said they went to Morris' home after a complaint had been received that there were goats on her property. A court order was issued February 28 allowing spot checks to be made to ensure Mrs. Morris was not harboring goats which are forbidden in a residential area.

The arrest report says that Morris obstructed the two sheriffs by holding a gate closed and then turning 'several large dogs loose and running away."

The confiscated goats were taken to the county's animal control shelter at the Five Points complex.

Chiles, Hawkins Are Worth A Bundle

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Sen. Lawton Chiles' holdings are worth at least $1.3 million dollars and those of Paula Hawkins, his Republican colleague, are worth $453,000 or more, according to financial disclosure reports.

Chiles, a Lakeland Democrat first elected in 1970, listed holdings in his public report worth at least $1.3 million. However, because of broad financial categories under which . holdings are listed. Chiles could be worth as much as $2.5 million.

Mrs. Hawkins, a first-term senator from Winter Park, listed holdings of $453,000 to $710,000 in the report released this week. However, unlike Chiles, she did not list her homes or $33,300 in honoraria in 1982 for 20 automobiles, exceptions which are speeches to such groups as the legal under Scnate rules.

Chiles listed liabilities of $545,000 to $1.2 million, all bank notes or mortgages. Mrs. Hawkins listed liabilities of $15,000 to $50,000, a single personal loan from a Winter Park bank taken out by her in outside income last year, most of husband, a self-employed electronics engineer.

Chiles flatly refuses all honoraria, payments made to members of Congress for such things as speeches and articles in national publications. The House limits honoraria, the Senate does not. Mrs. Hawkins, however, accepted

How To Deal With The Japanese

This country's ambassador in Tokyo, Mike Manssield, likes to call U.S.-Japan relations "the most important bilateral relationship in the world." There may be a bit of hyperbole in that statement, but probably less than most Americans might imagine.

Japan now has the second largest economy in the Free World. Its two-way trade with the United States totaled $63 billion last year, which made Japan second only to Canada as a U.S. trading partner.

Politically and geographically, if not yet militarily, Japan is the key to peace and stability in historically volatile northeast Asia. More specifically, Japan is the one indispensable link in the chain of U.S. defenses stretching across the Western Pacific.

Break that link and the entire American defense posture in Asia is outflanked. The Soviet Union's powerful Pacific fleet would then have unimpeded access to sea lanes that sustain not only Japan but also the United States and all of its other allies in

It would be difficult to overstate the importance of maintaining good relations with Japan. Ironically, the paramount need to do so comes at a time of friction between Washington and Tokyo unmatched since the end of the American occupation of Japan 31 years ago.

Millions of Americans, appalled at the decline of such domestic industries as autos, steel, and consumer electronics, blame what they perceive as unfair competition from Japan. This resentment is compounded by widespread feeling among Americans that Japan is getting a free ride on defense, with the U.S. taxpayer footing the bill.

The Japanese, for their part, tend to see the United States as an increasingly difficult and demanding friend. Two successive American administrations have leaned hard on Japan to boost its defense expenditures dramatically. But what looks like strategic necessity and simple equity in Washington strikes many Japanese as a dangerous mlitarization of the U.S.-Japan rela-

And more than a few Japanese are quick to point out that rearmament on the scale desired by Washington would violate the spirit if not the letter of Japan's peace constitution, a charter cent, and officials couldn't locate him. drafted and imposed by the Americans themselves following World War II.

As for what officials, in Tokyo call "trade friction," the Japanese note that they have voluntarily restrained auto imports for the last two years to give the battered American auto industry time to recover. They also cite steps by the last two Japanese prime ministers to lower trade barriers that had heretofore protected much of the Japanese market from foreign competition.

There are elements of truth on both sides of these arguments. Yes, Japan had gotten a free ride on defense. But pressing the Japanese too hard on the defense issue will backfire if that pressure frightens too many Japanese and consequently undermines the pro-American but necessarily cautious Liberal Democratic Party that has ruled Japan since the 1950s.

Similarly, the United States must continue to press Japan for additional reductions in trade barriers that have kept too many American goods out of the Japanese market. But Washington must also understand that Japanese politicians are no more free to ignore their constituencies - tobacco growers or beef ranchers, for example - than lawmakers on Capitol Hill can afford to ignore the plight of unemployed autoworkers.

Japan is a democracy. Its political system works more by consensus than by confrontation. Public opinion polls in Japan, and the actions of the Japanese government since the late 1970s, show a willingness to shape a more equitable U.S.-Japan relationship. The polls also show that most Japanese, including supporters of the Liberal Democratic Party, are wary of any sudden and dramatic changes in basic national policy. Evolution rather than revolution is the rule in Japan.

The challenge for American policymakers is to press hard enough to encourage further progress but not so hard as to risk inflicting permanent damage on a sometimes fragile relationship that is vital to both countries.

BERRY'S WORLD

By Doris Dietrich

The vacation season is upon us - when Floridians change roles and become tourists in other areas.

Folks have their own idea of "having a ball." Some rush to backpacking and climbing every shady mountain while others find vacation paradise in sultry. romantic tropical islands. Then there are those who find Florida and do a little sweeping up around their own back doors.

Two or three times a year, we take time out to regroup, take care of business, shop and be lazy. The slow, easy life is relaxing - but may become boring and a dull drag on a daily basis.

On our most recent time out, my husband and I did something new to us. We went to the flea market where we warmly mingled with hundreds of other shoppers, walking, talking and gawking. The wares available were a far cry from the carpetbagger days and many are not really what I consider "flea" items.

Our purchases included knives, plants and vegetables.

Pausing before an attractive display of colorful, garden-fresh vegetables, a sign, "Vidalia Onions...$1:00," caught my eye. I carefully and lovingly picked up the small carton containing three onions and drifted back to my childhood in Alabama.

There was nothing - but nothing - as tasty in the spring after school as a Vadalia onion sandwich. Thin slices of the succulent sweet bulb stacked on freshly baked homemade bread and dressed with lemony homemade mayonnaise and freshly ground black pepper was — and still is — an exciting adventure in authentic downhome dining worth writing home

Why, no true Southerner is worth his grits unless he knows that a Vadalia onion is one of the things that being from the South is all about. The world-famous onion is grown in Vidalia, Ga., and it doesn't come cheap. What I considered to be quite smelly and tacky in my childhood is now advertised in Southern Living as a gourmet item - the Vidalia onion.

Snapping back from the nostalgic daydream, I apologetically announced to my husband, "My grandmother would turn over in her grave if she knew I paid a dollar for three onlons "

Cautiously looking around for spics lurking nearby, he teased," If we hurry up and get out of here, maybe she won't find out." We guiltily splurged, quickly made the purchase and also made a quick exit.

The very next day, we had visitors from Atlanta, my godchild, Megan Torbett, and her parents, Debble and Kenny Torbett (Kenny is formerly of Sanford).

They came bearing gifts - lovely gifts a bottle of my favorite fragrance (that doesn't come cheap) and a large, orange mesh bag of onlons, straight from Vidalia.

RUSTY BROWN Never Ending Heartache

Some people think divorce is - to borrow a phrase from Hamlet — "taking arms against a sea of troubles, and by opposing, end them."

Unfortunately, they sometimes find that long after the divorce is final, the sea of troubles is still there. It continues to wash over their heads, threatening to sink them in bitterness, anger and strife over the children.

Revenge and rancor, like uninvited dinner guests, take places at the table. My heart aches for those caught in this conflict.

I've been reading the reviews of "Heartburn," a new novel by the witty journalist Nora Ephron. It's a supposedly humorous, thinly disguised account of the breakup of her marriage to the famed Watergate reporter, Carl Bernstein. Critics take note of the book's JEFFREY HART biting tone and bitterness. "Reading it," said one reviewer, "is like watching someone trying to tell a joke while gnawing a knuckle."

I have seen similar pain in friends. Marion, a woman I know, was divorced 10 years ago when her daughter was only two. Her initial reaction was relief. "I luxuriated in the peace. How wonderful," she said, "to live through days unmarred by quarrels, shouting and bad feelings."

Soon, however, came the arguments over child-support. Sometimes the ex-husband paid, sometimes his checks bounced. Sometimes he didn't send a

We have been to court for something or other every year since the divorce, says Marion. Once it was over telephone rights: The judge told her to leave the room when her daughter gets a call from her father. In another courtroom hassle, an opposing attorney suggested placing the child in a foster home. Marion flew into a rage and swore. She was fined $100 for contempt of court.

Still another bad scene occurred a few months ago when she went to her ex-husband's home to pick up her daughter's clothes after her daughter had lived there for several months. Tempers flared between the former spouses and she found herself decked on the sidewalk. She filed a police report for aggravated assault and battery.

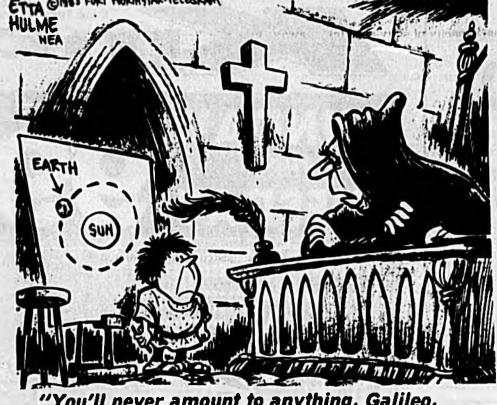

This month, the parents were back in court again to hammer out a new visitation plan. In concurrent action, the father is seeking custody again. The child, now 12, has been understandably affected by this turmoil and has been seeing a psychiatrist. After 10 years, how much more battering can these three individuals

I know a man in his 50s who had a brief marriage some 15 years ago. He and his wife had a child, now 13. The divorce was final in 1971, the wife going through four attorneys in the process.

Still not satisfied, she found a fifth attorney to sue my friend, Ralph, for fraud. She suspected that because he was self-employed, he was lying about his income. No fraud was proved, but the drawn-out litigation cost him thousands.

"You'll never amount to anything, Galileo, until you stop watching so much Copernicus."

CBS Has A Problem

General William Westmoreland did not manage to win the Vietnam War, but in the libel suit he is pressing against CBS he has done both the public and the profession of journalism an important service.

Libel suits tend to be intricate and drawn-out, and so it will not be amiss here to review the outlines of the case.

In January of 1982, CBS aired a televised documentary called Uncounted Enemy: A Vietnam Deception." The show was preceded by a big advertising campaign, lifeliding fullpage ads proclaiming the discovery of a 'conspiracy" at the highest levels of the U.S. Army to minimize enemy troop strength in Vietnam. That was the theme of the show as the viewers experience it. In order to convey a rosy view of the progress of the war, the Army leadership conspired to underreport enemy strength.

A few months later, TV Guide appeared with a blazing cover headline "Anatomy of a Smear." Its article described the CBS documentary as "powerful and polished" but also as 'often arbitrary and unfair," and charged that CBS had distorted the evidence in order to argue a preconceived thesis.

Shaken by this attack. CBS - to its credit - launched an in-house investigation, headed by executive producer Burton Benjamin. Meanwhile, General Westmoreland and one of the other men interviewed on the show sued CBS Inc. for $120

The in-house investigation was pursued honestly and thoroughly, and it issued in a 68-page report that, until last week, remained secret.

The Benjamin Report finds that producer George Crile placed heavy reliance on a friend and former CIA agent named Sam Adams who - according to one account - was "obsessed" with the conspiracy theory of the troop-strength estimate. CBS hired Adams as a consultant; but, on the program, did not identify him as such. He simply appeared on the screen as the dispenser of expert testimony.

The Benjamin Report finds that the documentary was heavily "Imbalanced" against General Westmoreland and the Army. Nine witnesses appeared in support of the conspiracy thesis. Only two were seen in rebuttal, Westmoreland and General Daniel Graham. The latter had only 21 seconds on the screen.

The report finds that witnesses sympathetic to the conspiracy theory were Washington has inherited something coached, and their testimony, that either bound him to policies not of heightened, sometimes at the expense: his making, or hindered his own of several re-takes.

Did the documentary succeed in proving the existence of a conspiracy? No, it did not, according to the Benjamin Report, and it also violated in serious ways CBS's own "guidelines."

All of this remained locked in CBS's vault until U.S. District Judge Pierre N. Leval ruled that the report had to be made available to the court as part of the discovery process in the Westmoreland libel suit. CBS at last handed it over, accompanied by a lame statement that "CBS stands by the documentary and its value to those seeking a broader understanding of the Vietnam experience." Well, this documentary may help us to such an understanding in ways not intended by CBS and those who produced it.

The documentary in question differs not at all in its general thrust from countless other media productions that have as their obvious goal the denigration of American institutions — in this case the Army — and the undercutting of American efforts from Vietnam to El Salvador. There exists, of course, a widespread perception that the major media are indeed biased in precisely that way, and numerous books and articles have been written on the subject attempting to prove the case empirically. Media spokesmen have either ignored such studies or brushed them

The beauty of the Benjamin Report Is that CBS has now, so to speak, caught itself in the act. The whole business is deliciously parallel to the Nixon Watergate tapes, on which the relentless bugger bugged himself.

Making Of The President

WASHINGTON (UPI) - President Reagan has been subjected to a certain amount of joshing for saying the policies of previous administrations have made it more difficult to reach some of his goals.

Typical of his critics is House Democratic Leader Jim Wright of Texas, who last week called Reagan "the biggest alibi artist ever to serve in the White House.'

"Ronald Reagan says blame it on Jimmy, or blame it on Jerry, or blame it on Lyndon, or blame it on Harry, or Zachary Taylor or Millard Fillmore," Wright told the House.

No matter how far back you go, Reagan is by no means the first chief executive to feel emcumbered by his predecessors.

Franklin Roosevelt inherited a worldwide depression that nurtured the seeds of Nazism that led to World War Harry Truman inherited the atom bomb project that led to the Nuclear Age with all of its attendant ills. Dwight Elsenhower inherited a war in Korea that led to "M-A-S-H" reruns on television. LBJ inherited a domino theory that led to the escalation of the light at the end of the tunnel. And so it has gone throughout history. Every American president after policies. Recall, if you will, some of the things done by John Adams, our second president, with ramifications his successors have had to cope with. Fact: It was during Adams' administration that the U.S. Marine Corps was created. Now Reagan must resolve disputes over sending Marines to Lebanon. Fact: Adams signed the first federal forestry legislation. Anyone at all famillar with the controversy swirling about Interior Secretary James Watt knows what a headache public lands have become. Fact: Adams was president when the U.S. Public Health Service was established. Health care has been one of the major issues confronting Reagan. James Madison, the fourth president, created a precedent of sorts by permitting the national debt to climb above the $1 million mark. To James Monroe, the fifth president, fell the honor of presiding over the nation's first financial panic. Rutherford B. Hayes, the 19th president, received the first Chinese diplomatic delegation.

And so it went - each president contributing another ingredient to the policy hash that has given his successors indigestion.

Reagan, as the latest in the line, has had it tougher than most.

It having been nearly 200 years since the end of George Washington's second term, almost two centuries of presidential policy decisions have piled up on

Are Cubans Fighting In Nicaragua?

WASHINGTON - Alarming in-telligence reports out of Nicaragua warn that Fidel Castro may already have sent Cuban troops to help the Sandinista regime fight U.S.-backed rebels there. One report put the number of Cuban troops at 1.000; another estimated

If these reports turn out to be accurate, the Cuban military buildup in Nicaragua could give the Sandinistas the edge they need to crush the guerrillas of the Nicaraguan Democratic Force.

This much is known about Cuban strength in Nicaragua: There are at least 5,000 civilian advisers and 1,500 military and security advisers.

But there are also unconfirmed in-telligence reports that a substantial Cuban military force arrived in Nicaragua two weeks ago, headed for the key town of Ocotal. If true, this development could lead the Reagan administration to beef up its aid to the "contras," as the anti-Sandinista rebels call themselves. The war would then escalate dangerously.

I sent my associate Jon Lee Anderson to Central America for a firsthand look at the situation. He spent a week inside Nicaragua with a task force of 165 contras and went along on an ambush directed at the Sandinista militia. He picked up some evidence, impossible to confirm independently, of a Cuban presence in the combat zone of northern

One rebel group commander, who calls himself Comandante Sereno, said his men had killed two Cubana carrying Soviet-made AK-47 submachine guns and "some strange machines" that turned out to be television cameras.

'I didn't know what the contraptions were," Sereno recalled. "I was afraid they might be bombs. I fiddled with one until a green light came on. It seared me, so I sprayed them with my machine gun." The green light was the camera's "on" signal.

How did he know they were Cubans? They were obviously not Nicaraguans, he said. They were tall, black and bearded. Sereno said he had fought with Cubans when he was with the legendary Commander Zero — Eden Pastora during the Sandinistas' revolution against Anastasio Somoza's national guard in 1979.

Futhermore, Screno sald, "before the ambush we could hear them talking. and they had Cuban accents." The two cameramen, presumably filming the action for Cuban and Sandinista TV. had made the fatal mistake of carrying arms for protection.

Another incident involved an 18-year-old squad leader nicknamed "The Greek." He was pointed out as "the man who killed the Cuban lady

"She was a doctor at the government hospital in Ocotal," a guerrilla said.

"She treated me once." Another young rebel said she was known as "the fat lady," and added: "But she wasn't just a doctor. She carried a gun."

The Cuban woman was riding in a jeep that was part of a Sandinista convoy ambushed by the rebels. When the ambush started, she yelled at the guerrillas: "Dogs of Reagan! You will all

The Greek said he lobbed an RPG-7 (rocket-propelled grenade) at the jeep. It was a direct hit.

The Cuban connection is a major worry for the young contras. They've heard rumors that Castro has already sent missiles to the Sandinistas, and a 'regiment" to reinforce the garrison at Ocotal.

At present, the rebels said, they're doing well against the militia because it is largely made up of "cannon fodder" - untrained peasants forced into a service by the Sandinistas. "But if the

May 25, 1983, has been designated Missing Children Day. The purpose of this day is to increase public awareness and understanding of the national missing children tragedy.

Over the past year, we have made great strides in addressing the problem of missing children. On October 12, 1982, the President signed into law the Missing Children Act, which provides crucial assistance to parents and law enforcement agencies throughout the country. In January of this year, the Justice Department announced a test program to expedite its handling of parental abduction cases. In February, the FBI issued a new commitment to investigate cases in which there is any possibility a child has been kidnapped. In March, Florida began operating a statewide Missing Children Information Clearing House to help parents and police.

Recently, civic organizations, local businesses, and area police agencies have started programs to fingerprint children. These programs are operated on a volunteer basis only with all records to be kept by parents as a means of identification for police if a child should disappear from home.

This type of identification can be of a great benefit. In the course of the medical and dental records of my investigation into the missing children problem, I have learned that parents frequently can pro-vide little identification to help police in the search for a lost child. Fingerprints can help, but parents can do even more.

Perhaps the single most important item for identification that parents should keep to a recent, close-up color photo clearly showing their child's face along with a full-length photo of the child. Unfortunately, my experience has been that many parents simply do not have this type of photo on their children or, at the very least, a record of the names and current addresses of all doctors and dentists who have treated their children. A description or photo of any identifying marks, such as birthmarks or scars, and a tape recording of the child's voice also would be helpful.

Parents also should keep on file

We can be thankful that most parents will never need this information for the police, but we know that some parents will. Missing Children Day should take every available precaution to protect our children to the fullest extent possible.

Changes Are Needed In State High School Competency Tests

"Merry had a little lamb..." True or False?

"Fowl," cried the protagonists, 'That question is ethnic in nature, and, ethnic in nature is naturally

"How fowl?" queried the Florida Department of Education.

"Fowl indeed! If one is not a Basque, one wood knot no that a lamb wood bee the anser. Merry mite have the flew...'

Until Saturday, last, this writer had neither empathy nor sympathy for the purported beleagured blossoming high school (potential) graduates within the State of Florida, being possessed of a demon belief that graduating students probably should know how to read and write prior to receiving a piece of paper, stating that they knew how to read and write, further believing that said students should be able to read the paper that states they know how to read and write.

However, it was my pleasure and to my edification to listen to a commentator on TV describe several specific examination questions designed by the Department of Education to determine who amongst our "finishing" students will, in fact, "finish." or "graduate." An example is cited, noting that only the gist of the question is correct; actual wording may have been somewhat...more easy or somewhat...more difficult.

...A.P. High School bus, capable of containing sixty-four persons, was departing on Thursday for an Armadillo-eating contest. Thirtyfour students signed up on Tuesday to ride the bus, and twentythree students signed up on Wednesday to join their school mates. How many empty seats remained when the bue departed

A.P. High School on Thursday? This is an unfair question! "A.P. High School" is not properly identified; ergo, it is problematic that participants in the examination would actually know if (a) A.P. High School actually existed. (b)

the bus really had a scating (or standing) capacity of sixty-four, (c) did thirty-four students really sign up for the contest on Thursday, (d) did twenty-three students really sign up for the contest on Thursday, (e) did thirty-foour students agin up on Tuesday for the contest to be conducted on Thursday, (f) did twenty-three students really sign up for the contest to be conducted on Thursday, although their actual signing day was Wednesday, and, (g) did the bus actually depart A.P. High School, as scheduled, to carry, tote, or trek the students to the Armadilloeating contest, was it conducted in accordance with regulations established by the Florida State Armadillo-eating Conservatory?

One wonders... Two years ago, on a bright, warm sunny Saturday morning, it was my pleasure to indulge myself in the Teacher's Certification Examination, presumably authored by the aforementioned Board of Education, in order that I might well qualify to instruct our pre and post siblings. Lacking instant recall, the following represents a typical, difficult question: Mary ran three kilometers and Harold ran fourteen kilometers. How many kilometers did Mary and Harold run? It might be argued that Mary ran three kilometers and Harold ran fourteen kilometers, but lacking that response as a possibility, the undersigned opted for seventeen. Apparently my guessing was within the standards of tolerance for the Department of Education, for my teaching certificate was granted.

Now, to the point. It is completely unfair for prospective graduating high school students to participate in an examination equally difficult to the one offered to prospective teachers.

Returning to "on a bright, sunny Saturday" for a moment, my day was not entirely lost, for I thoroughly enjoyed motoring from Lake Mary to a (relatively) faraway junior college, depositing $25.00, and participating in a time-sequenced examination. My sanity was retained by (a) transporting a twelve-pack of iced Lager, and (b) taking a collection of crossword puzzles.

Upon completion of the first time-sequenced examination, something about an essay regarding the reflection of fast food service re contemporary society, I raised a stuttering hand and requested permission to "spend a penny." Permission was denied until I suggested that I suffered from colitis. Two lagers and one crossword puzzle later, I was completely at ease with section two of the certification examina-

Some ten lagers and three sequences later, the examination was finished, the lager and the crosswords were finished, and I was out some $25 plus automobile expenses. My time and money would have been better served had

I attended a soft-core rock concert. Presupposing someone perchance has read through this dissertation thus and so far, it appears necessary to end with an explicit...the Department of Education seeming to fail of implicits...Suita being brought against the Department of Education by odd and sundry ethnic groups are obviously false, for no, repeat no, ethnic group would degrade themselves to the extent necessary to find the examination anything other than a time-consuming bore. Any person who may have attended, however spastically, Way Below Normal, Yipahooee State, Hog Jaw Junction, or Black Crick Union, would only object to the inconvenience of the examination.

"Which examination?" you ask. Good question. In fairness to the prospective teachers and the prospective high school graduates, there thud bee a change in the tests. It jost aint fare. The kids shud not have to add double #'s to find out if the bus is gonna leaf, and the teachers shuddent otta no how many kilometers there r in a

Chamber Opposes Building Inspector Bill

In reference to the various bills that are under consideration by the Florida State Legislature, we strongly recommend the following

We oppose SB 558 (Vogt) and HB 807 (Ward, Gardner) for two reasons. First we do not believe that building inspection permit fees should be used exclusively for funding the cost of building inspection. Second we do not favor the state being the certifying agency for building inspectors.

We support HB 765 (Silver) as we do not feel that inspection or approval of a building or plan by any municipality, county, or state agency is a warranty of condition of the building or adequacy of the

We oppose Uniform Municipal Election Dates (PCB4) that mandates the county supervisor of elections will conduct all municipal elections and will be reimbursed by the cities for the expense of the election. # Payment For Hospice Care Still Available:

Q. My father is terminally [1] with cancer. I have been reading that the federal government will pay to take care of the termi-nally ill under the hoopies pro-gram but that the administration is reducing support for these activities. Are hospice services available for my father and will the government assis in providing this care? A. Yes, hospice services are currently available for terminally ill cancer patients, such as your father. Last year, Congress allowed the Medicare program to begin paying limited amounts for hospice care. Although Congress was cutting back on many other services, it decided that hospice care - which helps dying people remain in their homes and free of pain as long as possible - was both a humane and relatively inexpensive alternative to high-technology hospital care.

When Congress passed the law making hospice care an eligible expense under Medicare, they knew that strict limits were needed to prevent the commercialization of the hospice approach. Hospice care can be less expensive and more comforting than hospital care because it involves the use of volunteers and family members. So, to keep costs down, Congress prescribed the types of programs and services that were to be covered, and set a per patient limit of $7,000 - which is approximately 40 percent of the estimated $19,000 cost of conventional Medicare services for cancer patients in their last six

Recently, the administration suggested that conventional Medicare service for cancer patients is closer to $11,000. If one applies the 40 percent formula to $11,000, the hospice benefit would be reduced to about $4,300 - an amount that hospice providers say will force them to turn away the terminally ill who need intensive care. Those dying of cancer would have no alternative to high-cost hospital care.

hospice benefit will be the subject of much debate in coming weeks, and an effort will almost certainly be made to remedy this situation.

Hospices are a European idea that have become part of the American health care system over the last decade. Currently, there are approximately 1,200 hospices in the United States caring for about 40,000 patients.

Q. I am 74 years old. My eyesight has deteriorated to the point that I just can't drive anymere. I sold my car — and new rely on taxicabs to go shopping, to the decter and to church. I never realised how costly and unreliable public transportation was until now. Isn't there anything being done to improve transportation a services for the elderly and is others who have difficulty get- y ting around? A. Yes. The Older Americans Act. which is administered locally by the Area Agency on Aging in your community, receives funds to provide transportation services to people over age 60, regardless of their income. In addition, many cities around the country offer reduced fares for regular riders of public : transporation.

It is quite possible that there are transportation services available in your community. To obtain further information on transportation services in your area, I would suggest that you contact your local Area Agency on Aging.

9. I west with my 67-year-old mother last week for a routine eye exam. Her decter teld her that there was nothing more he sould do for her — that she was already wearing the strongest eyeglesses he could give her. Is there anything I can do to help her? Should I cook a second

A. Your doctor should have referred your mother to an office b specializing in low vision care for the partially sighted. Elderly persons with reduced vision, including those who may be "legally blind," often have the potential for improvement of their functional vision if they obtain a low vision examination and if it is determined that low vision aids could improve their vision.

What Editors Say

The Codar Rapide (Iowa) Gasette Chicago has its first black mayor. A nation which has kept a close watch on a rough campaign in a rough city will now - for a while, at least - keep an equally close watch on how Harold Washington fares in the chair held so long by Richard ... Arguments can be made that factors other than the race entered into Tuceday's vote. Washington had a well-publicized misdemeanor tax conviction in his past, and a history of unpaid bills. ... His opponent, Bernard Epton, would have been the city's first Jewish mayor and its first Republican mayor in 52 years. Real issues, such as a reform of patronage practices, may have influenced some voters.

It would be ridiculous, though, to deny the overriding impact of race. The election drew a record 1.3 million voters, 82 percent of those registered, and they split almost exactly on racial lines.

... So what happens now? Well, it often escapes attention in discussions of a city so closely associated with the Iron rule of Boss Daley, but Chicago has a "weak mayor" form of government. Washington's compaign pledges, no matter how sincers, mean little if he lacks support of both the City Council and the badly splintered remnants of the Democratic machine. But Washington's background as a lawyer, a legislator and a party official indicate he will give a good account of himself. And while the race issue clearly decided the election, it need not continue to 1 divide Chicago.

Medicare and Medicaid Programs Need Help

Social Security seems to be the subject of the day. Too many people are of the belief that Social Security was meant to be a retirement pension and not just a supplement. Many of our politicians have led the less educated people to believe that it was a retirement pension. Many of the people who believed that, have told it just that way. People also were of the belief that Medicare and Medicaid would pay 80 percent of the hospital and medical bills because the forms read that way, until there were many complaints to our congressman and they had the forms changed and printed to read that they paid 80

Severe budget cuts and the transfer of responsibility for those in need back to the private sector has challenged the Christian Service Center...and we are meeting that challenge. But we need even more help. The CSC has only 40 full-time employees (mostly cooks), but manages over 4,500 volunteers annually to successfully provide hot meals, family counseling and emergency community support to over 39,000 needy people. The CSC must continue to grow to meet the ever-increasing needs of those for whom we accept responsibility...those that are shut-in and can't get a daily hot meal; those that are without work and need food; those that have serious family problems and need a professional friend and many, many others. Those of us involved in the CSC are prepared to grow to meet those challenges.

The Center needs the help of our churches and the people of Central Florida to raise the $900,000 necessary for the land and the construction of this building over the next two years. $300,000 is required by September 15, 1983, to close the land purchase. #### Keys To Jellybeans, Congressional Mail Contains Surprises

WASHINGTON (UPI) - When it comes to telling members of Congress how they feel, voters are relying on more than letters. Keys, tea bags and jellybeans are among the things that have landed on congressional deaks.

Some items that symbolize voters' beliefs are overt, like the keys sent to elected officials as reminders of the homes they couldn't buy because of high interest rates.

Others are more subtle. Rep. Claude Pepper, D-Fla., received tea bags from voters upset about tax policies. The tea bags evoked images of the Boston Tea Party and reiterated the colonial complaint of "no taxation without representation."

Senate staffer Mary Cannon recalls the time Sen. Charles Mathias, R-Md., got a jar of jellybeans from a voter opposed to President Reagan's tuition tax credit plan that would have given tax advantages to parents who sent their children to private schools.

"Opening the mail on Capitol Hill is like reading the front page of the newspaper," Ms. Cannon said in a recent interview. "People pick up on the subjects that hit them."

Americans demonstrated their opposition to cuts in school lunch programs by sending House members 800,000 "Save School Lunches" pie

Many groups have cut down on hefty postage bills by delivering the items themselves. The "Right to Life" anti-abortion group passes out red roses to every congressional office on Jan. 22, the anniversary of the legalization of abortion. The roses represent the fragile and thorny issue of abortion.

Such campaigns attract attention. "I don't know any organization that brought such items that hasn't brought the press with them,' says Mike Johnson, press secretary to Rep. Robert Michel, R-III.

The American Banking Association had more than the written word in mind when it urged Americans to send Congress pre-printed post cards objecting to the 10 percent withholding of tax on interest and dividends scheduled to go into effect in July. Thousands and thousands of post cards piled up, and were instrumental in congressional votes to scrap or delay the withholding. The issue still must be finally resolved.

But Dick Leggitt, an aide to Rep. Stan Parris. R-Va., said the post card campaign became counterproductive when his office started receiving 25,000 daily.

"This well-orchestrated campaign was making it very difficult for members of Congress to handle their day-to-day business, 'Leggitt says.

However, he said special interest groups' reliance on mass mail campaigns "reveals an understanding of which buttons to push to make the system work." Despite the attention postcards and visual aids receive, Capitol Hill staffers still recommend the write your congressman" approach.

"The written letter still carries more weight than any other means," Johnson said, "If they're concerned enough to write, it may affect their voting. We're in the business of responding to people that are concerned."

Animal Cruelty Charges Probed

During April, Seminole County Humane Society volunteers conducted 41 cruelty investigations throughout the county involving dogs, cats, chickens, ducks, rabbits, horses and cattle.

Twenty-one of these cases were in the Sanford area with complaints ranging from animals with insufficient food, water and shelter to abandoned newborns, lack of medical care for severely injured animals to animals that had been beaten and decapitated.

Volunteers traveled over 2,000 miles during the course of these investigations which resulted in the impoundment of 11 horses, 11 pupples and four dogs with cruelty charges pending.

Pet owners are advised to provide special protection against the summer heat. Adequate food, water and shelter are daily necessities.

If you see any animal being mistreated, please call your Humane Society — 323-8685.

★'Natural' Foods, Herbal Medicines Could Be Toxic

CHICAGO (UPI) - People who seek "natural" or herbal medical remedies should be wary of toxic side effects, a doctor says in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

Dr. Redmond P. Hogan III, of the Indiana University Medical Center in Indianapolis, outlined a case of a 25-year-old woman who had been drinking large amounts of a home-brewed herbal tea and suffered abnormal menstrual bleeding as a result.

Her problem was caused by natural anti-coagulants in the tea - not by a gynecological disorder.

★ New Anti-Viral Aerosol Helps Treat Colds, Flu

CHICAGO (UPI) - A new aerosol anti-viral treatment that is inhaled through a mask can reduce common cold discomfort and cut in half the contagious potential and duration of fever.

The anti-viral treatment - ribavirin was described in the latest issue of the Journal of the American Medical Association.

It was tested against influenza viruses and respiratory syncytial virus (RSV) both significant causes of severe respiratory illness and widespread winter flu

Dr. David S. Fedson of the University of Virginia School of Medicine in Charlottesville said RSV is the most common cause of serious lower respiratory tract disease in infants and young children.

"In later years, repeated infection with these agents is inescapable," said Fedson, who pointed out influenza viruses have long been associated with fatal respiratory disease among the elderly and others with serious medical conditions.

Dr. Caroline Breese Hall and colleagues at the University of Rochester School of Medicine in New York said a study among college students showed 50 percent less virus spread among ribavirin-treated patients than in a placebo-treated group.

The study also showed RSV-infected patients treated with ribavirin exhibited less malaise and shorter fever durations, she said.

In another study among college students, Dr. Harvey W. McClung and colleagues at Houston's Baylor College of Medicine, who previously reported on successful ribavirin spray treatment of influenza A infections, said the ribavirin aerosol was found to be effective in treating influenza B virus infection.

"We know of no previous report of the successful treatment of influenza B virus infection in man," said McClung. "With this development, the treatment of influenza is simplified because treatment can be started immediately with the awareness that therapy effective against both A and B virus infections is being used.'

The aerosol application - inhaled through a mask - proved more effective than oral administration, which delays drug delivery to the infected site,

New Guidelines To Help Schools Better Prepare College Bound

A new College Board document, three years in the making and reflecting the opinions of 1,400 experts, is expected to help high schools do a better job of preparing students for college.

The title of the document issued recently is "Academic Preparation for College: What Students Need to Know and Be Able to Do."

It describes what students headed for college need in English, the arts, mathematics, science, social studies, foreign language and computers.

The College Board, which provides testing programs and other services for college-bound youths, is a membership organization of more than 2,600 colleges and high schools.

Its testing program includes the Scholastic Aptitude Tests taken by more than a million students each year and the College Level Examination Program that provides high school students college level work through Advanced Placement courses.

The SAT predicts how well a student will perform in college, measuring aptitude for college-level work.

The new guidelines were issued in response to two concerns on the high school-college front, including sliding SAT scores.

Average scores on the SAT measuring verbal aptitudes skidded from 478 to 424 in the years between 1962 and 1981. The average SAT scores measuring math aptitudes dipped from 502 to 466 during the same period.

Another reason for the guidelines aimed at better preparation for college: many high school graduates, once they enter any but the most selective colleges. must take remedial work to raise to college level their skills in writing, reading and mathematics.

Dr. Adrienne Y. Bailey, vice president for academic affairs at the College Board, said:

We hope that this document will assist boards of education and others responsible for educational policy to assess what needs to be done to improve the quality of secondary education.

"This will not be accomplished overnight." she said. Highlights from "Academic Preparation for College:" -Computer competency: Students should know how to use a computer and appropriate software. -English: Literature, language and composition should be studied in depth. In addition, skill in writing also should be developed in subjects besides English since it pertains to all academic disciplines.

-The arts: In addition to a basic understanding and appreciation of the unique qualities of each of the arts, students should develop some ability to perform in one - singing or instrumental perfomance, painting, dancing or acting. -Mathematics: Calls for integration of the computer in traditional fields of algebra, geometry and functions.

Recommends calculus as preparation for students aiming for engineering, economics, medicine, natural sciences and computer science. —Science: Recommends a through quantitative understanding of at least one field of science, including mastery of skills needed to perform laboratory and field work. -Social studies: Recommends acquaintance with U.S.

history and world geography and cultures, plus a thorough grounding in at least one of the social sciences - economics, political science, geography or sociology. -Foreign Language: College entrants should be able to speak, read and write elementary sentences in at least one foreign language. Students also should acquire knowledge of the culture, history and life patterns of the society in which the language is spoken.

Energy Source Of The Future Could Be Liquid Coal

BRISTOL, Va. (UPI) - Researchers say coal, the coal, a concection of coal dust, water and chemicals that stepchild of the energy industry and scourge of environmentalists, could be - and should be - the fuel of America's future.

But right now, the industry is plagued by the lowest demand, highest production, lowest profits and highest unemployment in 50 years. Rall prices, meanwhile, are going up, oil prices are going down and economists don't see a turnaround for Dixie coafields before next

As the industry teeters, miners and mine owners are keeping a prayerful eye on a group of scientists trying to turn coal into the Cinderella of the synethic fuels world.

"We're learning to diversify the coal industry - how to develop new products," said Dr. Richard Wolfe, who heads United Coal Co.'s research department. "We don't want to buy a chain of Montgomery Wards. We're finance the research that could lead them out of the talking about how to take the coal industry and develop economic plus Instead, they rely on the U.S. Department increased markets."

Wolfe proudly displays three jars of black goo that could be Appalachia's answer to Arab oil wells - liquid burn like oil.

Experts say new customers are the only salvation for an tip-and-down industry that swoons when oil prices

Limited markets - mainly steel and electricity production - have caused every downturn in coal's boom-and-bust cycle this century. When steel and utilities stop buying - as they did last fall - coal prices drop from $40 to less than $20 per ton.

Scientists say they can turn coal into efficient, clean-burning oil and gas substitutes if coal producers will only gamble on new markets and the federal government will finance more research.

Yet few coal companies are willing - or able - to of Energy and companies like United, the only Southern coal producer with a full research department.

"We have two priorities - we can't solve all the problems," said Wolfe, the son of a coal miner from combuster," also removes sulphur from coal smoke, Beckley, W.Va.

"We want to develop some new equipment to improve coal recovery and efficiency of operation. That's short-term. Second is the liquid coal market."

Liquid coal can take several forms - coal-water, coal-oil, and coal-methanol — all of which can be moved. stored and used like oil. "It's a very significant new fuel," said DOE spokesman Bob Porter.

Florida Power Co. is testing a coal-water mix in place of No. 6 fuel oil, according to Dr. Walter Hibbard of Virgnia Polytechnical Institute, and Tennessee Eastman Co. in Kingsport will become the first private corporation to make chemicals from coal-methanol this Researchers are also finding ways to end coal's air pollution bug-a-boo.

They have found, for example, that sending electric beams through smokestacks zaps sulphur and nitrogen before they escape into the air. And burning coal on a bed of air and limestone, a process called "fluidized bed Other companies are pulverizing coal to clean it more thoroughly, and researchers are experimenting with microwaves to remove sulphur atoms from coal.

"We want to get the squeal out of the pig." Woile said. "It won't start helping the coal industry next week, next month, or next year." Porter said, "but by the latter part of this decade, maybe." But the immediate future for Dixie coalfields is bleak.

A world oil glut sent OPEC prices tumbling, rail deregulation is likely to boost coal shipping costs, electricity consumption and steel production are down and Congress is considering deregulating natural gas.

Blaine Carter, president of the Virginia Coal Association, said the oil price drop may slow industry coverting to coal. "Reducing imported oil is the biggest objective our country should have." Wolfe said. "Exceedingly strict government regulations on coal allowed more oil to replace coal being burned. Personally, I'd like to see a few smokestacks today.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

United Standardizing Rates Across The State

United Telephone of Florida will standardize its rates and charges for services and equipment throughout its operations in the state.

According to Ed Hall, company district customer services manager, some of United's customers in Winter Park and surrounding communities will see a decrease in their monthly bills while others will notice an increase. The rate change is anticipated to be shown in telephone bills sent out on or before

Presently, United's individual line residence customers formerly served by Winter Park Telephone pay $8.50 for the access line or "dial tone" to their homes and 95 cents for each standard rotary dial telephone they lease. Individual line business customers pay $21.10 for the access line and $1.35 for each standard telephone.

United is reducing the "dial tone" charge to $7.95 for residences and $20.95 for businesses. The basic instrument rental fee will be set at $1.50. Therefore, a residence or business customer with one standard rotary dial phone will not see a change since the total amount each month for local service and one phone remains at $9.45 and $22.45 respectively.

"Generally speaking, those who own their phone equipment will see a slight reduction." Hall said. "But because the instrument rental charge will be more, customers who lease two or more telephones will see an increase.

In addition to the instrument rental increase of 55 cents. United Telephone's rental charge for basic pushbutton telephones will increase by 60 cents. However, the charge for providing the pushbutton dialing feature will be reduced from $1.20 to $1.00 per line.

Hall said United Telephone is allowing customers the option to buy the telephones they are leasing and climinate the monthly instrument rental fee.

fundamental to man as his basic need for food, clothing,

Recognition of the need to communicate beyond the normal range of the human voice undoubtedly came early in man's history. But it wasn't until the last quarter of the 19th century that man finally solved the baffling problem of how to transmit his voice beyond the range of a shout. The solution came from Alexander Graham Bell in 1876 - the telephone.

"Of all the inventions brought forth in the 1800s, from the telegraph to electric lights, none has had the direct social impact of the telephone," says Southern Bell Manager Larry Strickler. "The acceptance of this

The need for communication has always been as invention by the public was phenomenal. In its first wear, Bell's company sold telephone service to 1,000 subscribers. In one generation, the number of telephones in service had jumped from zero to six million."

> The telephone has forever changed man's perspective of time and distance, says Strekler. In intellectual jargon, it's called space-time convergence. In more basic terms, it simply means that the distance between New York and California seems considerably less than it did 100 years ago.

> "Another way the telephone has affected society is that it was among the first of modern man's devices to provide instant gratification," Strickler says.

It's Summer's Hottest Tourist Lure

By Bill Lohmann

Walt Disney World's Epcot Center could be called the standing-in-line capital of the world.

Streams of humanity wind their way from the glant, gleaming Spaceship Earth to a circular theater with spectacular scenes of China.

There are lines to buy tickets and lines to buy hot dogs.

In its first half-year of operation. the popularity of Epcot Center has surpassed even the wildest expectations of Disney officials, who have grown accustomed to such tourist enthusiasm.

At least one travel agency already calls Epcot, which opened last October, the top destination for the nation's travelers.

'The reaction to Epcot has been phenomenal," said Disney spokesman Phil Lengyel. "We're running at higher levels of attendance than we had anticipated."

Disney officials already have scrapped their pre-1983 attendance estimates for their complex just west of Orlando. They now expect upwards of 23 million visitors at Walt Disney World - Epcot and the Magic Kingdom - during the year. a substantial revision from the original 18-million estimate and nearly double last year's 12.5 million that visited the Magic Kingdom.

During the first three months of LAKE BUENA VISTA (UPI) - 1983, nearly 6 million visitors crammed into Walt Disney World an increase of more than 3 million. Twice during the Christmas season. officials were forced to close Epcot when its 6,000-space parking area was filled.

Though Disney officials won't break down the figures for each park, they credit the rise to Epcot.

They expect the summer to bring more of the same. The 81 billion Epcot - Experimental Prototype Community of Tomorrow — features Future World and World Showcase and covers 260 acres. The Magic Kingdom, opened 11 years ago as a near carbon copy of California's Disneyland, spans 100 acres three miles to the north. There is little similarity between Epcot and the Magic Kingdom. At Epcot, there are few squeals of delight, more looks of amazement. Although a different kind of a good time, it doesn't appear many people have been disappointed by

The drawback has been walling on line but a recent check at Epcot found lines of less than 30 minutes at the various attractions in Future World - the glant geosphere Spaceship Earth. World of Motion. Journey Into Imagination and Land. Similar lines were found in the shops and restaurants that require advance reservations, and at World Showcase, where nine countries currently are represented with ex-

Those queues are a far cry from the hordes of people who often waited more than an hour during the winter months for a 17-minute journey through the Spaceship Earth, the huge silver globe that serves as Epcot's symbol.

But Lengyel said the long lines may be back this summer after schools ict out.

Another sign of Epcot's popularity is likely to return - "No Vacancy."

The added crush of visitors to central Florida is wonderful news for hotels if not necessarily heartening to tourists.

For several weeks earlier this year, nearly 98 percent of the 35,000 hotel rooms in the metropolitan area were filled.

"Epcot certainly has put a lot of pressure on us," said Clayne Dice, a spokesman for the Orlando hotelmotel association. "We knew it was going to be good, but we didn't know it was going to be that good."

The tight bookings forced some travelers visiting Epcot to stay 90 miles to the west in Tampa or 60 miles to the east in Daytona Beach.

SCC's tennis team dechampionship this Tuesday in Ocala. If will be the final appearance for what may be the top junior college tennis program in the nation since coach Larry Castle has de-. cided to step down next year and with him goes the program. With their state championship trophies from the left are Mike Pernfors, Marty Bromfield, Phil Treen, Greg Miller, Castle, Toblas Svantesson, Dan Merritt, Thomas Lehn and Ake Svensson.

Emotional Raiders Defend Title

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

This coming Tuesday, at the Central Florida Community College campus in Ocala, the Seminole Community College tennis team will be defending its National Junior College Championship against a strong field of competition. And, although last year's national title was a dream come true for coach Larry Castle and his team, the 1983 nationals will be just as important and very emotional for the Raiders.

Important because no team has ever won back to back national titles. Emotional because this is the last year of tennis at SCC.

'This year's nationals will have one of the strongest fields in recent years." Castle said. "SCC is among five or six other teams who have a good shot at

The other teams that are eyeing the title include host Central Plorida CC. Cooke County, Paris and Killean, all from Texas, and Jefferson State Alabama. Play in the nationals will begin final week of preparation." Castle said. "In an attempt to be as sharp as possible and get used to the early summer heat that was a big factor in last year's nationals."

Tuesday and run through Saturday. "We practiced twice a day during the a good all court game."

SCC finished with a 23-3 record this season with two losses coming to four-year college teams. The Raiders won the Mid-Florida Conference title for the ninth consecutive year and the state crown for the third year in a row. SCC has an impressive record of 173.6 in junior college play over the past nine years and a record of 272-23 overall.

At number one singles, SCC has the best in sophomore Mike Pernfors who is considered the top junior college player in the nation by many coaches, Pernfors was an All-American on last year's national title team and he will go on to the University of Georgia in 1984.

"Mike is a coach's dream," Castle said. "He has astonishing quickness and plays

Also returning for a shot at his second straight national title is sophomore Ake Evensson, one of the strongest players at the junior college level. Svensson was All-State in 1982 and was a big contributor in the nationals a year ago.

"He's a great competitor," Castle said of Svensson. "He has flawless ground strokes and his serve and volley game have improved."

Greg Miller is especially eager to get at nationals again this year. In 1982. Miller had a singles and doubles overall record of 68-1 with his only loss coming in the finals of nationals. Miller will again team up with Svensson to form one of the strongest doubles teams in the nation.

Last year's number seven player. Dan Merritt, comes back in 1983 with a great deal of experience and one of the top 20 players in the state. Merritt will play an important role in the national title quest for the Raiders. In 1982. Merritt had a 20-0 record at the number seven post-

Freshman Tobias Svantesson, who grew up in the same town in Sweden as Pernfors, is already being highly sought by four-year schools. Svantesson is a strong singles player and will team up with Pernfors at number one doubles.

One of the top ranked junior players in England, Phil Treen has responded well for the Raiders and will play an important part at nationals. Treen has a fine all-court game and has the best instincts at the net of any player on the team. according to Castle.

Mark Bromfield is another freshman who will be a key in the national title drive. Bromfield in one of the strongest doubles players on the team.

Thomas Lehn, also a freshman, is in the position that Merritt was in last year. The ending of the tennis program at SCC will hurt Lehn but he will be a welcome addition to any other team.

SCC has the ingredients to take a second straight national title, but the Raiders will not have a chance to defend it and go for a third straight if they do win it all. The fact that SCC's tennis program is in its final days of existence should give the players even more to shoot for Tuesday when the National Junior College Championship 3 get un-

Wobbly Holmes Survives Witherspoon To Retain Title; Dokes, Weaver Draw

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UPI) - Larry Holmes and Michael Dokes doubtless will be doing some counting today: of their wounds and blessings.

Both heavyweight champions were pushed to the limit Friday night, absorbing a lot of punishment at the fists of little-known Tim Witherspoon and ex-champion Mike Weaver, respectively.

But when they departed into a black desert night, Holmes and Dokes were still champions.

Holmes, the World Boxing Council titleholder, was nearly knocked out in the ninth round against Witherspoon. The brave challenger pummeled the 33-yearold champion and had him in deep trouble, landing many right hands on the champion's jaw. Somehow, Holmes stayed on his feet and wobbled back to his corner at the

But Witherspoon wasn't through. Taking advantage of his comparative youth, the 25-year-old from Philadelphia came on the final three rounds of their 12-round matchup.

When the final bell sounded, Holmes had a swollen right eye and other bruises and Witherspoon thought he had the championship. But one judge. Chuck Hassett of California, scored it 118-111 for Holmes and assured the champion he'd keep his title. Judge Herb Santos scored it 115-114 for Witherspoon while Chuck Minker scored the fight for Holmes, 115-113, giving him the

Magic's Block Preserves Lakers' Place In The Finals

SAN ANTONIO, Texas (UPI) - The Los Angeles Lakers, with a hostile crowd creating the kind of noise that can be felt as well as heard, proved Friday night they still have the ingredients of a

The opening game of the best-of-seven series will be played in Philadelphia on Sunday with the Lakers trying to become the first team in 14 years to repeat as NBA titleholders.

"San Antonio is a tough team and I'm glad it's over,' said Johnson. "We won it because the high number. We had the one they didn't have.

Los Angeles coach Pat Riley was drained by the emotional game, one in which officials Darrell Garretson and Hugh Evans turned the players loose for a physical, body-bashing evening.

"That was a helluva game," said Riley.

"I was afraid that we would get upset along the way. That sometimes happens to championship teams."

Los Angeles, which won all three games played on San Antonio's home floor, took a 13-point lead early in the second half, but the Spurs rushed back to make a game of it down the stretch and almost pulled off the victory that would have created a seventh game.

Lakers' guard Norm Nixon slowed San Antonio with a steal and a hasket just inside the 5-minute mark that gave his club a 6-point lead.

Nixon then hit one of two free throws with 85 seconds left that put the Los Angeles advantage at 101-96. But the Lakers could not score again while the Spurs' Artis Gilmore and George Gervin hit baskets that brought San Antonio to

White Sox Regain Sock, :3 Homers Smack Royals

United Press International

After almost a month of futility, Tom Paciorek, Greg Luzinski and Ron Kittle Friday night helped put the sock back in the White Sox.

The trio clubbed home runs to snap Chicago out of a long hitting alump and n lift the struggling White Sox to a 9-6 i victory over the Royals at Kansas City,

"It's a matter of time with any club," said Pactorek, whose club is still hitting an anemic .234. "Everyone's going to hit eventually. We've got guys capable of hitting much higher than they are. You just don't want to put too much pressure on yourself. We were due; things like this happen. It's baseball, that's all.

The three homers equaled Chicago's team total during the first 19 days of May and helped the White Sox snap a three-game losing streak with their only second victory in the last 10 games.

Also resurrected in the triumph was left-hander Britt Burns, who collected his 1 first victory of the season by scattering six hits over five innings. Salome Barojas t hurled four innings to get his second

But Chisox manager Tony LaRussa realized this triumph has to be the first of many if his club is to go anywhere this

"I've never had much success thinking this is a landmark game or that one is." said LaRussa. "It doesn't make tomorrow's game any easier. We've just got to put a few of these together."

Harold Baines' sacrifice fly in the first off Vida Blue, 0-3, snapped a string of 24 consecutive scoreless innings by Chicago and gave the White Sox a 1-0 lead. Pactorek added a solo homer in the second. Jerry Dybzinski a two-run. bases-loaded single in the fourth. Luzinski a two-run homer and Kittle a solo shot in the fifth to stake Chicago to a 7-3 lead.

The homers were No. 7 for Kittle and No. 3 each for Paciorek and Luzinski. In addition, it was Luzinski's first since April 19, his first extra-base hit since April 29 and his first RBI since May 2.

"I'm tickled pink," said Luzinski, just 5-for-53 prior to his blast. "There's no question about it - it's been a long time coming. I felt a lot better up there. I was swinging free instead of muscling it. But there's a long way to go. It's just nice to see us spread the offense around tonight.

George Brett highlighted the Kansas City attack with two hits, including a two-run homer in the fifth, to cut the Chicago lead to 7.5. It was his 10th

Allen's Start Provides Relief For Mets

Neil Allen, who couldn't provide relief coming from the bullpen, may cure the Mets' starting headaches.

"I've got to start him again after this," New York manager George Bamberger said Friday night after Allen, making only his seventh career start, pitched a six-hitter to lead the Mets to a 4-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers. "I really like the way he went about his job," Bamberger said. "I'm trying to establish a pitching rotation. With me using him as a starter it should stabilize our rotation a little

"The fans have been behind me the whole time and you can't imagine what that's done for my confidence." Allen said. "I really want to pitch well for them."

Allen scattered six singles and struck out a career-high seven in going the distance for the first time in his major-league career. Allen, bothered by control problems earlier this season, walked three in raising his record to 2-4.

"I'd like to be back in the bullpen eventually," Allen said. "I know after this performance they'll prbably want to start me again and I'll do whatever management

"But I consider myself a relief pitcher and that's what I'd like to be again. A few weeks ago I was at the lowest point in my career. But that's all behind me now. I threw the ball over with good stuff on it."

Hubic Brooks delivered a two-out single off loser Jerry Reuss, 5-2, to score Ronn Reynolds with the Mets' first run in the third inning and added another run-scoring single in the fifth to cap a two-run inning.

Mookie Wilson singled home the other run in the fifth and New York added a run in the seventh on a wild pitch by Reuss.

The Mets were aided by some poor defensive play by the Dodgers, who committed two errors that led to two unearned runs and failed to make three other routine plays that contributed to Mets' runs.

New York took a 1-0 lead in the third when Reynolds was credited with an infield single on a botched play at first base, moved to second on an error by Reuse and scored on Brooks single.

Reynolds hit a double to right to lead off the fifth and scored on a two-out single by Wilson after the Dodgers gave Wilson an extra chance to swing by failing to catch his foul fly down the right-field line.

Reuss then had Wilson picked off first but Wilson made it safely to second on first baseman Greg Brock's wild throw. Wilson scored when Brooks grounded a single past Brock, who failed to come up with a routine grounder.

MONTREAL (UPI) - Expos pitcher Steve Rogers, who sent down nine Giant batters in strikeouts, says the secret is in the fastball.

Rogers won his fifth straight game Friday and brought his record to 6-1 in pacing the Montreal Expos to a 7-1 rout of the San Francisco Giants 7-1.

"That's the second time this season I've gone that high with my strikeouts," said Rogers, who was staked to a 5-0 lead after the third inning. "When you get a big lead, you start using your fastball. And that has to help your strikeout ratio. It was also the fifth complete game this year for the Montreal pitching staff.

"A while back, our bullpen was hurting, so I needed a complete game," said Rogers. "But now we have a solid builpen once again, so a full game is not mandatory, even though I'm happy to get one."

Acting Montreal manager Vern Rapp said Rogers "had a good night with his control. Steve got hot hitters out. As a matter of fact, the first four hitters in their lineup only got one hit among them."

Rapp was subbing in for manager Bill Virdon, who went to Arkansas for the funeral of Expos coach Mel Wright. Wright died earlier this week. Virdon is expected back for the Expos game today with the Giants.

Warren Cromartie hit a bases-loaded tworun double in the second inning, making the score 3-0 after the Expos had jumped ahead 1-0 on Andre Dawson's first inning sacrifice fly. Giants starter Fred Breining. 4-4, lasted just two innings. Gary Carter's two-run third inning home

Defense, Enthusiasm Should Help Patriots Bounce Back

By Chris Fister Herald Sports Writer

Inconsistency and inexperience. Those two words were commonplace during the 1982 football season at Lake Brantley High. The Patriots finished with a record of 28, its only victories were over Seminole which finished 0-10 and Lake Mary which finished at 1-9. But, even though Lake Brantley suffered through a rather dismal season. coach Dave Tullis was impressed with his team's improvement and enthusiasm near the end of the year.

And Tullis expects that to carry into the 1983 season. And, along with good enthusiasm, the Patriots will have experience with seven starters returning on offense and seven returning on defense also. Only one returned to each unit last year.

"We've got a lot of kids coming back and will have real good leadership," Tullis said. "We'll have decent size and quickness and the enthusiasm has been good during spring practice."

Although it only had a 2-8 record last year, Lake Brantley was a much better team than the record indicates, particularly on defense. The Patriots defense allowed 153 points in 10 games, three points more than Apopka, which finished second in the Five Star Conference with a 7-3 record, gave up. Lake Brantley's defense was at its best near the end of the season when it gave up a total of 55 points in the last five games, an average of 11 points per game. The Patriots held two of the county's best teams, Lyman and Lake Howell to just six points, losing on both counts by the score of 6-0.

So, as you can see, defense was not Lake Brantley's problem in 1982. The offense, on the other hand, was virtually nonexistent. The Patriots were shutout seven times last year and didn't score until the fifth game, a 19-7 loss to Spruce Creek. Lake Brantley scored only 63 points in the entire season, an average of 6.3 per game, and more than half of those points came in a 34-6 victory over Lake Mary.

Inexperience at key positions, a sophomore starting at quarterback for instance, was a major factor for Lake Brantley a year ago. But, if Lake Brantley can stay healthy. the Patriots could turn it around in 1983 with defense being a strong point again while the offense will be helped by experience and a couple of transfer students.

Here is a look at the potential fall starters: Quarterback: A big difference from a year ago as Dennis Groseclose, who will be a junior, gained valuable experience as a starter and showed improvement over the course of the season. Groseclose completed 30 of 76 passes last season for 246 yards. Lake Brantley will also have Kenny Van Castren challenging for the quarterback slot. A transfer from New York, Van Castren will be a senior in '83.

Running backs: Will be a strong point for the offense with three returning starters, its best back returning after an injury and a transfer from Lake Mary. Last year's leading rusher, Allen Armstrong, will be back for his senior year and will probably start at tailback. Armstrong gained 361 yards on 81 carries last season and was 10th among the county's leading ground gainers. Steve Emmons and Bill Black, both will be juniors. add depth to the tailback slot. At fullback, Greg Shatto joins the Patriots after transferring from Lake Mary. Shatto, who will be a senior, is tough up the middle and also has speed once he gets into the open field. Chuck Stallings will also be at fullback in his senior year after being among the Patriots leading ball carriers a year ago. And, after sitting out most of the 1982 season with a knee injury, Joe Waresak should be ready to go in 1983. Waresak got off to a fine start last season and a big part of the Pats offense was gone when Waresak

Offensive line: Two of Lake Brantley's better linemen in '82 are returning and the Patriots have a promising transfer coming in at tight end. Carlos Ince, a transfer from New Jersey, has looked good in spring practice, according to Tullis and will probably be the starting tight end with strong support from Tim Whittimore. At right tackle. Robert Maler, a starter last year, returns for his senior year with bench strength from Andy Craft. The right side of the line will be strong with Maier and right guard Bob Whittick starting. Whittick was among the best linemen in the county last season as a junior. Curt Mull and Greg Risse will see action at center while Kevin Moser and Matt Gavrodic will be at left guard and Bryan Hammond and Bill Neville will be at left tackle.

Wide receivers: The Patriots might be a little thin in the receiving department since losing its top pass catchers, Phil Logas and Baron Ewing, to graduation. John Harris and Rex Black are possible starters at Hanker while David Dewar, Brad Dunn, John Mondo, Tim Hosley and Sean Lindell are possible starters at split end.

Defensive line: Dean Shirley emerged as one of the Pats best defensive linemen as a sophomore last season and Tullis is looking for leadership from Shirley in 1983. Shirley will be at defensive tackle and joining him will be Chris Anderson and Shawn O'Brian off last year's team and newcomers to varsity Larry Froeming and Ricky Perez. The ends will be Tony Hotstetler, Steven Frein, Joe Chickowski and Doug Joseph. Scott Hubbard and Clarke Millikan were linemen on last year's team, but both of them sustained injuries in spring practice. Hubbard injured his shoulder and Millikan broke his wrist.

Linebackers: The strongest point on the defense last year, the linebacking corps will be just as strong in 1983. Leading the way is Donnie O'Brian, who was second in the county in tackles with 109 last year as a junior, is among the best linebackers in the Central Florida area and possibly the state. O'Brian was a First Team selection to the All-County team last year joining the likes of Lyman's Mike Hill and Oviedo's Tom Johnson. Byron Bush and Pat James will play important roles this year and added strength will come from Larry Mula, Jeff Morris and Rubin Perez along with rovers Scott Horwitz and Bobby Garrison. Jeff Hammond, who injured a knee in spring practice, also plays the rover position.

Defensive backs: The Patriots top secondary men are returning and the defensive backfield will be stronger and more expereinced this season. Scott Salmon and Ricky Phillips, both starters last season, will probably start at cornerback with support from Curt Marn, Danny Black, Mike Gothelf and Craig Marien. The safeties will be Jeff King and Clark Lee.

The kicking game: Another good point for the Patriots with experienced Chuck Stallings, the best punter in the Five-Star six stops and one assist while linebacker punting and place kicking chores. Bench strength comes from Bobby Garrison, Carlos Ince and Craig Marien.

Lake Brantley will host a jamboree on Friday. May 27 with the first quarter starting at 7:30 p.m. Joining the Patriots in the jamboree will be Lake Mary, Lake Howell, Oviedo and DeLand.

Armstrong Leads White

Allen Armstrong rushed for 175 yards on 24 carries and Greg Shatto added 81 on 21 attempts as the White blanked the Blue. 12-0, in the annual Lake Brantley intrasquad football game at Lake Brantley Friday

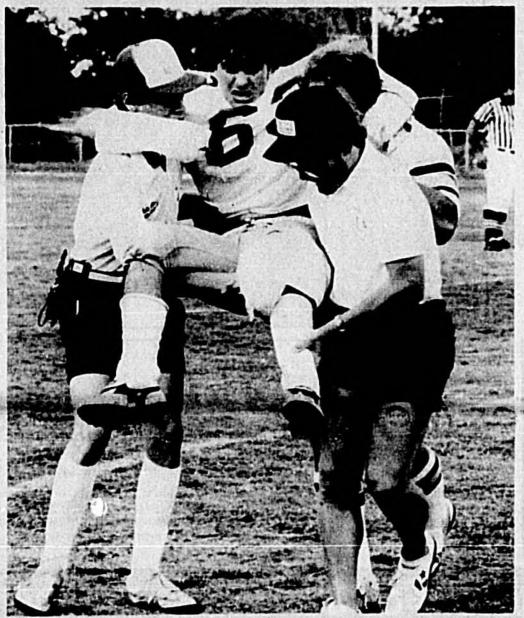

Armstrong, a 6-0 175-pounder, was the key man on the White's first touchdown drive midway through the first quarter. He ripped off gains of 7, 6, 4 and 11 yards before scoring on a three-yard run for a 6-0 lead. The point after attempt failed.

The half ended at 6-0, but it didn't take long for the White defense to add to the total in the third quarter. Linebacker Pat James separated Blue running back Bill Black from the ball, and All-County linebacker Donnie O'Brian scooped it up and rambled eight yards into the end zone for the second score. The PAT again failed, but the White was in control, 12-0, with 8:05 to play in the Defensively. White cornerback Curt Marn picked off two passes to keep the Blue in check. Blue quarterback Kenny Van Castran completed just 3 of 15 for 31 yards. White QB Dennis Groseclose was 2 of 6 for 12 yards. Blue cornerback Scott Salmon had Conference last year, handling both the Byron Bush had five solos and 13 assists.

Lake Howell linebacker Steve Cina is helped off the field after injuring his left knee. Lake Howell coach Mike Bisceglia didn't know the extent of the injury Friday night, but deemed it serious. The Lake Howell White used two touchdown passes from Darin Slack to Jeff Solomon and a goal-line stand in the last quarter to hold off the Silver, 24-18.

Goal-Line Stand Saves Howell Blue

Darin Slack tossed two touchdown passes to Jeff Solomon and the Blue turned in a goal-line stand with four minutes to piay to hold off the Silver, 24-18, in Lake Howell's annual intrasquad game Friday night at Lake Howell.

"The Blue defense held them off at the end," said defensive coordinator Bob Becker. "The goal-line stand was the difference."

The Silver jumped on the scoreboard first when Harold King scored on a two-yard run. The drive was punctuated by several big gainers by Bill Lang, one of the top defensive backs in the state last year as a junior who will spend some time on offense this year, too, according to coach Mike Bisceglia.

Later in the second quarter, Robert Kerr booted a 31-yard field goal to slice the Silver lead in half. 6.3.

Spring Football

The Blue took its first lead two minutes into the second quarter when Slack found Solomon for 22 yards and a touchdown. Kerr kicked the point and the Blue went ahead. 10-6, which is the way the first half ended.

The margin grew to 17-6 in the third quarter when fullback Jay Robey bulldozed four yards into the end zone. Kerr again converted. Quarterback Troy Quackenbush then spearheaded a drive to pull the Silver within 17-12. Quackenbush. a second-team, all-county selection last year went in from one yard out on a sneak. The PAT again failed.

Lang turned in one of his game-when he snared a Slack pass at the Silver 47 and returned it 53 yards to put the Silver up by one, 18-17. The point after again missed.

With just six minutes to play. however. Slack manuevered the Blue into position and then hit Solomon on a flag pattern for 15 yards and the go-ahead touchdown. Kerr split the the uprights for a 24-18 lead and the goal-line stand two minutes later did the rest.

Solomon is making the transition from running back to slot back for the Hawks which return eight of 11 offensive starters from last year. He and sophomore slot back Jerome Evans each made several good grabs during the game.

One unfortunate happening for the Hawks Friday was a knee injury to middle linebacker Steve Cina. "We don't know how serious it is breaking moves later in the quarter yet." said Bisceglia.

Special To The Herald This prayer was written over 50 years ago by a woman who has seen not only her children, but her grandchildren and great grandchildren grow to "manhood and womanhood." Mrs. Etta Appleby of Loch Arbor is the oldest member of a family with five living generations.

This weekend, her family and friends will gather around her to celebrate an important landmark in her life - her 100th birthday.

Etta Susie Jones Appleby was born May 20, 1883, in Charleston, S.C. In 1903, she married Albert Kistler Appleby, whom she'd known since childhood.

Mr. Appleby's job, that of yardmaster for Atlantic Coastline Railroad, moved them first to the Savannah, Ga. area, then, in 1914, to Sanford. The Applebys raised their eight children in a house on 15th Street.

The family later moved to Lake Mary, and when her husband died in 1944, Mrs. Appleby moved to her current home in Loch Arbor.

She lived alone, insisting upon doing all of the housework and yardwork herself. Ten years ago, she suffered a heart attack while moving a heavy limb after a storm blew it down.

One of her daughters, Bernice Jackson, came to live with her at that time, although Mrs. Appleby insisted that the incident had just caused her to "lose her breath for a minute."

Despite recent health problems which have slowed her down and confined her to a wheelchair, she loves receiving visitors. She enthusiastically invites everyone to "sit down! sit down!"

She's very witty and banters with her doctor on the occasions he comes to see her. When he told her he was going to take her to Charleston to see the gardens, she retorted with a coy smile, "That's very nice of you, but I don't believe I'll be able to go." Mrs. Appleby loves children and flowers. She enjoys seeing her three great, great grandchildren and her young great grandchildren. Her yard is filled with beautiful flowers which she still gets out to water herself on nice days.

Most of Mrs. Appleby's life has been devoted to other people. "Mother's led a very active life. She's done a lot of charity work and helped a lot of people," said Mrs. Jackson.

Most of that charity work centered around the First United Methodist Church of Sanford, where she's the oldest charter member. Until November, Mrs. Appleby sewed beautiful aprons and pillows to benefit the church at the annual bazaars.

Although never a seamstress by trade, Mrs. Appleby has done a lot of sewing. As Mrs. Jackson explained it,"Well, Mama had eight children..."

Of her eight children, seven, ranging in age from 61 to 77, are still alive. Her son Earle died at a young

Her other children are Lionel Appleby of Sanford. Hazel Bisset of Columbia, S.C., Bootsle Deveaux of Charleston, S.C., Marion St. John of New Orleans, Daisy Taylor of Palm Beach, and Irene Verney of

She has nine grand children, nine great grandchildren, and three great, great granchildren.

Although her birthday was officially Friday, Mrs. Appleby will be celebrating all day Saturday, May 21 at her home at 212 S. Crystal Drive. She is expecting 20-25 out- of-town guests for the occasion. Any of her friends who wish to help her celebrate are encouraged to stop by.

In And Around Lake Mary

Colorful Parade Heralds Chamber's 60th Birthday

Visitors passing through Lake Mary last Saturday must have wondered what was going on.

Roads leading into the city were blocked off by the police barriers, cars were parked everywhere and people were hurrying in toward the downtown area.

It was not a fire that the sounds of fire engine sirens were responding to, but it was the start of the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce's 60th anniversary parade celebration.

Following the fire trucks were marching high school bands, antique cars, motorcycles, horses, clowns, trolley cars, flag corps and floral floats.

Young and old alike lined the streets to watch as the parade passed. Looking out among the people, you could see the excitement in the smiling faces of small children, and sense the goose bumps running up and down their spines as they watched.

Special guests arrived via old Model-T Fords and convertibles to the viewing stands set up on the steps of city hall.

Bill McCollum. Art and Phyllis Grindle, Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson, Longwood Mayor June Lormann. Sanford Mayor Lee Moore, grand marshals Lena Gleason and LuRene Ball, Lake Mary City Commissioners Ray Fox, Charles Lytle, Burt Perinchief, Kenneth King, and other honored guests were served iced tea and cookies by Lillian Megonegal and Alice Moughton, official hostesses who baked the cookies.

Lillian and Russell Megonegal beautifully decorated the porch in patriotic red, white and blue bunting.

As the parade passed city hall, city manager Phil Kulbes narrated the event for cable television.

Following the parade, everyone moved down to Lake Mary Elementary School where a special program was presented. After a welcome by master of ceremonies Art Grindle, the Lake Mary High School Band led in singing the national anthem and the flag was raised by the fire department's Explorer Post #840. School principal Jack Frost led the invocation.

As the program continued, awards were presented to six parade entrants: Best Theme Interpretation went to Lippincott's/Country Curl. First runner-up was the Community Improvement Association. Best non-profit float entry was the Elks Club and most creative design went to the Driftwood Merchants Association. The best musical marching band award went to Lake Mary High School Band and best non-musical unit was won by the Dixieland Cloggers.

Chamber president Dick Fess also gave out two special awards to local businesses for their extra efforts this last year in doing volunteer work for the chamber. Receiving awards for giving of time, talents and volunteer work were Cafe Sorrento and Lippincott's Ink Spot.

Parade grand marshals Lena Gleason and LuRene Ball then had a chance to stroke the beards of the five contestants in the beard growing contest. One by one, Mayor Walt Sorenson, Dave Joswick, Dick Fess, Larry Seigler and Larry Strickler had their beards poked, pulled and measured by the ladies. Decisions were finally made in two categories. The longest beard award went to Mayor Sorenson, while the neatest beard went to Larry Strickler.

Following the ceremonies. Dick Fess and DeLores Lash served the guests anniversary cake especially baked for the occasion by Cindy Brown.

The only disappointment plans for throughout the entire event was they plant that high winds prevented the invited.

freedom hot air balloon from going

Special thanks go out to Russell Megonegal, parade chairman, and to all the people who worked so hard to make the parade the success that it was.

Community Health Center Draws Crowd At Open House

By Marva Hawkins Herald Correspondent

Central Florida Migrant and Community Health Center Inc. held open house May 15 at its new office. 2472 Park Ave., Sanford. Over 100 community leaders and well-wishers attended the open house and toured the facility.

The center is a non-profit. primary health care facility with clinic sites in both Sanford and Oviedo. It is the only primary health care facility in Seminole County.

Services provided year-round at the Center include comprehensive health care which includes medical and dental services, laboratory testing, pharmacy, health education and patient transportation.

Services are offered to anyone entering the clinic. Emphasis is placed on those patients who cannot afford a private physician. Individuals with personal physicians are encouraged to continue using their own physician.

The center is supported by private patient fees, third-party payments, donations and a federal grant. The private patient fees are based on a government mandated sliding fee scale. By using this sliding fee scale, the cost of the services is determined by a family's or individual's total yearly income.

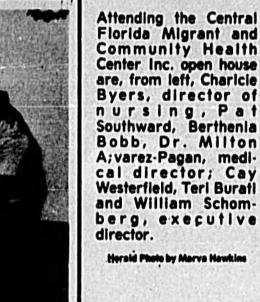

The federal poverty guidelines for income is the basis for determining who receives services and at what rate. Those who fall below a certain level on the scale receive their services at a reduced rate. Others pay the full rate.

Health care is directed toward the entire family with a focus on preventive and periodic care as opposed to "virus-oriented" medi-

The center treats both acute and chronic patients and is designed to provide basic health care services as well as to serve as a tool for instilling preventive health measures into our patients.

Studies show that cost of health services to center patients is lower than that of other health care providers.

Hospital Salvation For Needy

DEAR ABBY: Because of your longtime interest and support of the Salvation Army Booth Hospital for unwed mothers, I want to bring you up-to-date.

For two agonizing years we feared we would have to close our doors because our money was running out. In fact, a date was set and the hospital announced that no more girls could be admitted. Sick at heart, we all prayed a lot, and God heard our prayers because some generous people (and foundations) came to our rescue, and now the Booth Hospital is safe for another three years!

We are filled to capacity, Abby, but I'm sad to report that our unwed mothers keep getting younger and younger. Presently we have one 10-year-old and three 11-year-olds.

Our Emergency Lodge has become a haven for homeless families — especially mother and their fatherless children. It, too, is filled to capacity - 100-bed, family-style accommodations, 2.050 persons served annually, 74,825 meals served annually.

Every spring, just before Easter, our board purchases new clothing for each child in the lodge. The mothers and children select their new clothes with the help of the Salvation army officer. A "fashion show" is held, and the children model their new clothing. (These are the first "new" clothes that some have every had!) It's always the happiest, most touching affair of our year.

Sorry about the length of this, but I knew you'd like to know.

> ALICE WINTERS. PRESIDENT. BALVATION ARMY WOMEN'S AUXILIARY CHICAGO, ILLINOIS

DEAR RS. WINTERS: Congratulations on keeping affoat for another three years. Now that the government has cut, back so drastically on funding agencies that provide services to the public, let me remind those with money to give, and especially those who have foundations, that the Salvation Army has never asked. "What religion are you, or what color are you?" It provides food, lodging and clothing to all in need.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 16-year-old volunteer at a Baltimore hospital. Most of the patients on the 12th floor are on a weight-loss program, so one of the doctors thought of an incentive to get them to lose weight. He suggested that each one put $25 in a pot, and the first one who loses 20 pounds will win the jackpot. There will be no second or third prizes; the winner gets it all! There's a lot of money in that pot, and believe me, Abby, those fatties are losing weight faster than they put it on!

Please send me the "dieter's prayer" you published. (It starts out like the 23rd Fsalm.) I want to post it on the scale the dieters use to weight themselves on. It would really be encouraging. Thanks a lot.

MARYLAND

DEAR ME: The "dieter's prayer" is on its way. Now none of those dieters can say they never had a prayer.

Getting married? Whether you want a formal church wedding or a simple. "do-your-own-thing" ceremony, get Abby's new booklet. Send $1 plus a long, selfaddressed, stamped (37 cents) envelope to: Abby's Wedding Booklet, P.O. Box 38923, Hollywood, Calif. 90038.

Florida Mormons Have New Temple

ATLANTA (UPI) - The new Southern temple of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints will be restricted to card-carrying Mormons, but the temple president says the ceremonies performed there are sacred, not secret.

Wearing cloth covers over their shoes to protect the carpet, visitors to the $3.5 million temple are guided through its 27,000-square-feet and given explanations of the functions of various rooms.

The open house ended Saturday. After the first of several dedication ceremonies is held June 1, only church members will be allowed inside.

Once this house is dedicated. It becomes a sacred holy place," Temple President Robert Winston said in an interview.

"Only worthy church members can come. Those who live to the covenants of morality. honesty in every respect, tithe, and obey the other covenants are allowed to come to the temple," Winston said.

show anyone who's interested what the temple looks like and answer questions about it or the ceremonies that will be performed there.

"We are trying to demonstrate to the public what we do here is not secret, merely sacred." he said

Once the temple is dedicated. Mormons from the 11 states it serves will come there for ceremonies that can only be performed in a temple - marriages, taking the covenants of the church and baptismal ceremonies for the dead.

The temple will serve the estimated 160,000 Mormons in Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi. North and South Carolina, Louisiana, Arkansas, Tennessee. Kentucky, Florida and Indiana. Worldwide the church counts 5.1 million members.

Mormons in good standing must have a computer card to enter the temple. After entering, they will change from street clothes to all-white garments as a symbol of purity and of leaving behind the cares of the

The Atlanta temple is the second Mormon temple east of the Mississippi and the 19th in the United States. Mormons in the Southeast have had to travel to Washington to be married, take the covenants or baptize the dead.

The building covered with white Georgia marble has a gold statue of the angel Moroni with trumpet in hand atop its 96-foot spire.

Winston said Mormons believe Moroni revealed golden plates that bear history of a people who came from Jerusalem to America in 600

He said the angel gave the plates to a boy named Joseph Smith in New York in the 1820s. Smith translated the golden plates and formally restored the Mormon church in 1830.

The history from the plates makes up the Book of Mormon, which Mormons treat as part of the Gospel, along with the King James version of the Bible and a book of Doctrines and Covenants. Winston said Mormons believe God gave the Doctrines and Covenants to Smith.

Among the unique doctrine of the church are marriages that last for eternity and ceremonies to baptize the dead. Winston said Mormons believe everyone lives as a spirit before and after his life on earth.

"Before the 1,000 years of the millennium (the period when Christ will reign on earth) are up, we believe all the people who have ever been born will have this work (baptism) performed for them," Winston

He said church members search for records of their ancestors and are then baptized in their ancestors' names, giving the ancestors the opportunity for salvation. The dead who are not related to church members are found by teams of church members who scour government and church records.

The names of the dead are filed in archives and computers at the church's headquarters in Salt Lake City, Utah. When church members visit the temple-they are often baptized in the name of a dead person.

The church also conducts religious training sessions each weekday at 8 a.m. for high school and college students and Winston said families are encouraged to spend one night a week together to promote better communication.

Mormons are also encouraged to keep a one-year supply of food and clothes for their families in their homes to be used "for whatever reason ... to gain some independence from the uncertainties of life - hurricane, storm, unemployment. To be independent of those things and able to share with others," Winston said.

Volunteer work for the church is also expected of Mormons. Winston said.

"Church members must learn to be preachers. Everyone must be ready to perform the duties of a minister when the church calls," he said.

Winston, a retired executive of the Bendix Avionics Division, moved to Atlanta from St. George, Utah, at the request of the church to donate three to five years of his time as president of the temple.

No Such Thing As Bad Prayer

The subject today is prayer - more specifically.

prayer in school.

I have two texts for what I am going to say. The first is, "There is no such thing as bad prayer. Some prayers are merely Letter than others." (This is an adaptation of W.C. Fields' famous line, "There is no such thing as bad whiskey. Some is just better than others.") My second text is. "Never let the best become an enemy of the good" (a line from a modern author named VanderPost).

A syndicated writer for the liberal press, who is opposed to such things as the National Day of Prayer and prayer in the schools ("A gimmick is a gimmick is a gimmick") says, "Behind many of these uses and abuses of prayer is the idea that prayer per se is good."

He goes on to give his definition of the best kind of prayer. "It is a gratultous act of praise, sublimely uscless (not a utilitarian device), wondrously irrelevant and therefore mysteriously pertinent."

That is beautiful. Who could improve on it? But by using this definition of "best" to knock the National Day of Prayer and prayer in school, the writer is ignoring VanderPost's cautionary dictum, "Never let the best become an enemy of the good." All prayer is good - at least to the extent that it is better than no prayer at all.

George Tyrrell, an early 20th century Catholic writer. in a defense of the practice of saying the rosary and other conventional acts of religion, said, "The church recognizes a certain 'lower goodness' in these semiconsclous, automatic and merely mechanical species of activity. It refuses to despise the half because it is not the whole, or to confuse little with nothing.

"In the bare-walled cubicles of pure reason, if the soul cannot do her best, she can do nothing. In a Catholic temple, she can do her second-best or her third - and the hundred little occupations and formalities which we do in church are not less good because others are better. or because abuses are frequent and easy.

Perfunctory prayer certainly is not the best kind of prayer. And school prayer would run the danger of being a perfunctory religious observance. But it would be a simple acknowledgement of God. It would be a "nice" way to start each school day. One after another, we have given up our nice habits and in so doing, we have turned into a nation of slobs - a people without any class or elegance. And don't let anyone tell you that hasn't better.'

Saints And Sinners

affected the quality of life today.

There is another reason why a return to prayer in the schools would be a good thing. It would point up something that many of us have lost sight of: A good home life today is not enough.

After children reach a certain age, some psychologists now say, what they have learned at home will determine about 30 percent of their behavior. What they see in the outside world will affect them to a much greater degree = 70 percent.

This might mean that those people are wrong who say that religion should be taught in the home and at church but should be kept out of the schools. We must somehow bring the qualities of home life that have a beneficial influence on a child's life into school and society or they may be largely lost.

Looking at it from another perspective, it may be one of the jobs of the schools to "boister" the moral foundations that have been laid down in the home.

Those of us who are parents have often heard our children come home from school and say, "My teacher said...." What the teacher had said was something we had been telling our children since grade one. But it had no impact until it was reinforced by the teacher.

Since a youngster may be inclined to regard as unimportant whatever is omitted from school, the schools can actually undermine the influence of religion when they leave it out.

To make prayer meet "the test of the best" or else be kept out of the schools would be to "despise the half because it is not the whole or to confuse little with nothing."

School prayers are "not less good because others are

Happy Birthday Church

"Happy Birthday to you, dear Church, happy birthday to you." This familiar song would be appropriate for Sunday, May 22, The Day of Pentecost. This is one of several reasons for the importance of this day in the life of the Christian Church.

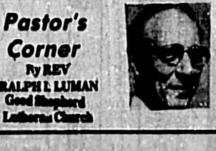

Pentecost comes from the Greek word 'pentekoste." meaning 55 days after Easter. Pentecost is the anniversary of the gift of the Holy Spirit upon the disciples of Jesus. It also marks the end of Christ's redemptive work for us and fulfills his promise to send the Spirit.

Th festival of the church year has remained untouched (so far) by the blatant commercialism of Christmas and Easter. Thus, it can be observed without attempting to "reclaim" it from the secular world. It is a time of celebration, gratitude and hope. Celebration because it is the birthday of the Church. Graticude for the gift of the Spirit and the enlightenment he gives to believers. Hope because the Spirit makes all things new. Pentocost is a day of rejoicing and happiness, as are Christmas and Easter. The color of the Day of Pentecost is red, a reminder of the tongues like fire that rested on the heads of the disciples. Red is also the color of shed blood of the martyrs who gave their lives for the

The experience of Pentecost should be a time of renewal and recommitment in the present day church. There may not be tongues of fire or sounds like the blowing winds but the presence of the Holy Spirit is as surely present in the lives of believers as he was on that first
