Executives plead innocent

MIAMI - Teledyne Industries and two of its executives have pleaded innocent to charges they exported material used to make Iraqi cluster bombs.

Also indicted in the case are Chilean arms exporter Carlos Cardoen, who is believed to be in his homeland: Cardoen's Swissco Management Inc.; and two of his employees.

Teledyne, headquartered in Los Angeles, is accused of shipping 130 tons of weapons-grade zirconium to Cardoen in the 1980s in violation of U.S. export laws. Cardoen allegedly . used the material to build 24,000 cluster bombs for iraq.

Appearing before U.S. District Judge Shelby Highsmith on Wednesday were Teledyne's zirconium sales manager Edward A. Johnson, 53, and fellow employee Ronald W. Griffin, 61, both of Albany, Ore.

They remained free on $50,000 bond after pleading innocent to the federal indictment.

Autopsy confirms murder, suicide

PALM BAY - An autopsy shows the deaths of three members of a Paim Bay family were a double murder and suicide, police said.

Police detective Clark Maars said Wednesday the autopsy showed that Rodrigo Selles, just recently fired from his part-time job, shot his wife Joan, 39, and 12-year-old son Dylan, before killing himself.

All three died from gunshot wounds to the head. The bodies were found Monday after Mrs. Selies failed to show up for work. A semiautomatic handgun was found near the bodies of Selles and his wife in their bedroom. The boy's body was found in another bedroom.

Rodrigo Selles was fired last week from his part-time job as a park attendant and groundskeeper with the city park's department after he criticized his supervisor.

Angry youths cause $2300 damage

ORLANDO - Youths angered over a sold-out reggae concert caused some $2,300 in damages in downtown Orlando, police said.

Police who dodged a barrage of rocks and bottles on Wednesday arrested 13 people for disorderly conduct and battery on a law enforcement officer.

Authorities said Dekko's nightclub and South Trust Bank each sustained $500 in damages. An Orlando TV news van received $300 in damages and city damages were estimated at $1.000.

The problem began about 12:05 a.m. Wednesday outside Dekko's when the club became full, leaving several hundred youths outside. According to police, some members of the crowd became disorderly and began smashing in the cashier's window and doors of the club.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Juvenile violence escalating

By Associated Press

TAMPA - Juvenile violence is escalating in the state and Florida Supreme Court chief justice said it's no surprise considering the easy access to guns and the violence kids see on television and in movies.

Rosemary Barkett described a boy who was abused regularly by his alcoholic father. The abuse culminated with the father shooting his son, causing permanent damage to the boy's arm.

'Violence is all they know, and it is inevitable that they turn to what they know," Barkett said Wednesday at the opening of a conference sponsored by the Florida Mental Health Institute, the University of South Florida and the Florida Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services.

Barkett cited figures claiming a juvenile is arrested for murder in Florida an average of every other day.

Eviolence is all they know, and it is inevitable that they turn to what they know.

-Rosemary Barkett

The 95,000 juvenile arrests reported in Florida in 1990 were up 7 percent from the previous year.

From 1982 to 1990, murders involving juvenile suspects reported to the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services rose 151 percent. During that same period, rape referrals increased 72 percent, and robbery referrals increased 144 percent. Barkett said, in reaction to the escalating violence. Florida and the nation must make tough choices beyond the emphasis on detention and the trend toward trying juveniles in adult court.

'As long as we keep relegating our nation's societal problems to a lower strata of concern, we will not diminish violence in our society, we will increase it." she said.

"We're being too shortsighted if we continue to believe that issues of racial inequity. issues of taking care of our children ... are parochial and less important than the environment or building roads. Success in (those other) areas is meaningless if our children won't be around to enjoy (it)."

After her speech, Barkett was asked what Florida should do to address juvenile violence. She said people must stop looking to the Legislature or the judiciary for solutions.

She challenged the conference participants - educators, counselors, police and government officials - to try to find solutions every day. She urged them to view the problem as a challenge.

Sergeant asked to prove heritage

By Associated Press

TAMPA - A police sergeant has been asked to prove his ethnic heritage after fellow Tampa officers complained he switched from white to Hispanic on a promotion list.

But Sgt. Robert Guidara, 39, said Wednesday the city approached him in late 1988 asking him to consider changing his ethnic classification.

Guidara, who was born in Rome to Italian parents, said the city's employee relations office "initiated it and encouraged it to look good on ... statistics. Through their own recruitment effort, I agreed to it. Now they prove it to them. I'm

Screws found in Diet Pepsi can

From Associated Press reports

JACKSONVILLE - A sealed Diet Pepsi can containing a metal screw has been found here, but federal officials discounted any link between the discovery and recent reports of contaminated cans.

"It just sounds like a quality control problem," said Randy Bringger, of the U.S. Food and Drug Administration's office in Jacksonville.

Janice and Regan Askwith told investigators Wednesday they noticed something rolling around inside the sealed can and had it examined with an X-ray machine at a local hospital.

"I think (Pepsi) ought to clean their closets out and find out what's going on." Janice Askwith said.

Bringger said the X-ray appeared to reveal a screw, probably from a machine used in canning. The can was turned over to the FDA.

The screw likely came loose from the beverage filling device and slipped into the can, said Pepai spokeswoman Becky Madeira from the company's Somers, N.Y., headquarters, A code on the can will point investigators to the plant where the can was filled.

totally perplexed."

Being a minority or female sometimes can make the difference in promotions in the police department. And the city has its own goals for promoting minorities.

Guidars, a supervisor on the department's anti-drug squad, said he-always has considered himself an Italian American.

But because his wife is Hispanic and his daughter bilingual, Guidara believes federal guidelines allowed him to switch from white to Hispanic shortly before being promoted to sergeant in 1989.

"I contend that I have a legitimate, legal and ethical right to identify myself as Hispanic based on legitimate bloodlines and cultural identification," the 15-year veteran said. "I am proud of who I am and of my selected ethnic affiliation."

A person's race or ethnic classification is left up to the person, not the "scientific definition of anthropological origins." according to federal Equal Employment Opportunity Commission guidelines. "An employee can be included in a group to which he or she appears to belong, identifies with or is regarded in the community as belonging."

Airman sentenced for mailing liquor into Saudi Arabia · shiant

By Associated Press

MACDILL AIR FORCE BASE - Boxes addressed to the enlisted chief of the military post office at King Abdul Aziz Air Base in Saudi Arabia after the Persian Gulf War looked suspicious to one of the postal clerks.

They arrived once or twice a week by registered mail, each wrapped with brown paper and weighing 45 pounds, for Senior Master Sgt. Charles Hamilton.

"Most people who are deployed here don't get that many boxes," clerk Joy Barleen told military investigators in December 1991.

On Wednesday, a military judge sentenced Hamilton to up to six years in prison for having 40 cases of gin and scotch mailed to him between September and December 1991 after the Persian Gulf War. He sold the liquor on the black market. Alcoholic beverages are illegal in the Muslim nation.

"I sold it to civilian contractors," Hamilton said Tuesday as he pleaded guilty at a court-martial. "I'd take it to their houses in downtown Dhahran."

The judge ordered Hamilton to serve four years of confinement and two additional years if he fails to pay a $75,000 fine. Hamilton also was reduced] to airman basic, the Air Force's lowest rank, and will lose all pay and allowances.

Hamilton will be allowed to retire, but his retirement pay will be the lowest possible because of the rank reduction. Hamilton, 39, a 21-year veteran, had been only one stripe shy of the Air Force's highest enlisted rank.

He had faced a maximum of nine years in prison and a punitive discharge, which would have disallowed retirement benefits, for violating federal postal law and military orders against selling, transferring or drinking alcohol in Saudi Arabia.

Hamilton, who now lives in Valrico near Tampa, took in more than $66,000, getting $200 for a 1.75 liter bottle or $100 a liter.

Security police discovered a bottle of liquor near a friend's bed during a routine inspection. Investigators soon heard of drinking parties in Hamilton's quarters.

U.S. Customs agents at Philadelphia International Airport then opened a package with a blank declaration form attached. Inside was $43,450 in cash, four watches and assorted jewelry.

TAMPA - Christopher Wilson, a black New York City tourist allegedly kidnapped by three white men and set ablaze, doesn't care a judge moved his trial from Tampa, but he's disappointed at the delay.

"He wants this to be over with, to get through with it and get on with his life, and ultimately he wants justice to be done," pro-secutor Eric Myers said after telling Wilson a defense request for a change of venue was granted Wednesday.

Hillsborough Circuit Judge Donald Evans set Aug. 23 as a tentative date. Possible sites mentioned in court were West Palm Beach, Orlando and Fort Myers, but later a prosecutor said Fort Myers was eliminated because its demographics were not similar enough to Tampa.

Three laborers are accused of abducting the 32-year-old stock brokerage clerk at gunpoint on New Year's Day at a shopping plaza. They allegedly drove him to a remote field, doused him with gasoline, and set him ablaze. One has agreed to testify against the others.

Mark Kohut, 27, and Charles Rourk, 33, both of Lakeland, are charged with attempted firstdegree murder, kidnapping and robbery in the attack on Wilson, who suffered burns over nearly 40 percent of his body.

A note left at the scene read "One les nigger, one more to go" and was signed "KKK."

EDITORIALS Kids who carry guns to school

The Dade County School system has a new policy against children carrying guns on school property. Although Seminole County's restrictions are much better, the Dade restrictions deserve comment.

Until a five year old policy was reversed, children in Dade County caught carrying guns were allowed to continue schooling, but with rehabilitative training.

Beginning this fall, children over age 16, with guns on school property, or using guns to commit assault and battery, will be expelled.

It was not clear what would happen to children under 16 carrying guns. That problem was apparently not decided upon by the Dade School Board.

The board stopped short of specifying automatic expulsion for the older age group. Students will be required to go before a board to have their case examined

We can be pleased that Seminole County has not determined an age differential for expulsions. A child of any age, with a gun on school property, is automatically suspended, and will be brought before the board to determine if expulsion is required.

The decision was not made easily in Seminole, nor was it in Dade County. No doubt, it required many hours of soul searching on the part of board members, and probably several cases of gun-carrying before the matter came up for a decision. We should be pleased that Seminole County's School Board took stronger action in this situation. It is unfortunate that guns on school property has reached a point where Actor and the second se to k other counties. Dade however, is not setting a good example for us to follow.

Have you seen a woolly mammoth?

dinosaur bodies that biodegraded many millions

Much of the excitement over "Jurasaic Park" arises from the fact that cloning dinosaurs is not, scientifically speaking, altogether out of the question. We have only begun to digest this fact, however, and when we are finished some of its implications are going to surprise the daylights out of us.

The fundamental point that needs to be grasped is that every cell contains material so structured that it describes all of the characteristics possessed by the plant or animal of which the cell was a part. It should theoretically be possible, therefore, to produce (or "clone") from a single cell of any organism a genetic twin of that organism.

The hypothesis on which "Jurassic Park" is based is that, although the last dinosaur died 65 million years ago, certain insects who dined on dinosaur blood were subsequently trapped in tree sap. This hardened into amber, was found by modern scientists, and provided them with enough of the dinosaurs' cellular material to enable them to clone a whole park full of living. breathing dinosaurs.

Of course, there are plenty of troubles with the hypothesis, most of them having to do with the unlikelihood of finding enough of the necessary genetic material to piece together a whole dinosaur. (Dinosaur fossils contain no dinosaur tissue whatever; they are simply rock casts of of years ago.) But there's nothing wrong with the theory; in fact, a carrot has already been cloned from a cell of another carrot. That raises some very interesting questions indeed. For example, what's to prevent scientists from cloning a woolly mammoth? These huge animals, relatives of the modern elephant, once roamed over Asia and North America, but became extinct about 10,000 years ago. But almost complete mammoth bodies have been re trieved from the Siberian permairost; in fact, according to my Britannica, "cases have been reported in which aled dogs were actually fed the meat from frozen mammoth carcasses." There is obviously no shortage of mammoth DNA to use in cloning new specimens.

Or what about the extinct giant ground sloth, which survived in at least one Patagonian cave as late as 50,000 years ago? I have seen, hanging on a wall in the British Museum of Natural History in London, a yard or so of bumpy sloth skin retrieved from that cave. Plenty of DNA therel

Or how about bringing back the dodo? It was extinct by 1681, but (again according to the Britannica) there is "a head and foot at Oxford," plus other DNA-rich oddments here and there.

By now you probably think (or hope) I'm joking, but I'm not. I see no reason why we won't be able, in the foresceable future, to clone any extinct species of which a shred remains. As for the northern spotted owl, its survival, if not its prosperity, can be assured without the loss of a single lumberjack's job. We might even, as a precaution, clone the blue whale (though ] wouldn't want the assignment).

From there, it would be just a step to producing clones of anything that interests or appeals to us. Assuming Russia really does have Hitler's lower jawbone, we might clone a genetic twin of the old boy, right down to his mustache, and send him on a lecture tour promoting the Gospels.

Bring back boarding houses

A boarding house, a room and board, a bed and breakfast are all the same song. "A Rose is a Rose." All smell the same.

In every large southern city there has been and in some cities they still have a "Mrs. Somebody's boarding house" where single ladies and gentlemen could stay who work everyday and do not want the responsibility of an apartment or house, cooking, etc. Salespeople from miles away know they have a clean room and a good meal in the evening with friends to talk of old times or of problems, a ready-made family. If people travel much they have stopped at Mrs. Carter's, the Hamilton House, Andrew Homer in Boston, all the historical inns which are proud to have them in their cities. You just don't ring the bell as a newcomer to a boarding house; you fill out papers, you are investigated, only the nicest people are welcomed into the family. After that you will always be "family" and welcomed home.

There are several huge homes in this area that would make good boarding houses. People could stay for the senior games and people who are alone and just need company at the dinner table would have others to talk and laugh with on the front porch. Relax and the world becomes right again. Just think, on weekends, rest and then go down for coffee (no food in room), loaf around or just go out on the porch or go for a drive. Just waiting for that 6 o'clock call for dinner (you have from 6 to 6:30 to be scated) after which the dining room is closed. Small tables or the famous long table in the center of the room (you carn that right by how long you have been there, or a vote).

How many large six or seven bedroom homes do we have near a fine location, but they would be taxed to death. What do you really have of history in this area? When can a person returning here say proudly, "I remember this when ....

Someone talked real good to get two bed and breakfast homes (another name for room and board). That is for transient people, tourists. I'm talking of boarding houses for people alone, tired of a big home, tired of freeloading children, tired of being alone at dinner, tired of not hearing another human voice day in and day out, coming home from work to see nothing or no one.

But no, that would make too many lonely people happy, not tourists, so no money for the tax pocketbook, just people wanting human companionship and a decent place to live. That's what history is about.

Goldwater urges moderation

Barry, we hardly knew ye.

Some of us were introduced to you in 1964 by a little girl picking petals oil a blossom while a voice counted backward to zero and a mushroom cloud enveloped our black-andwhite TV screens. Others figured they knew the real Barry Goldwater after hearing The Sentence in The Speech ("...extremism in the defense of liberty is no vice....") as you accepted the 1964 Republican presidential nomination.

But only now, in your retirement years, have we been permitted to glimpse and appreciate the thoughtful, unexplored side of "The Conscience of a Conservative." Your recent bold declarations of opposition - to your ex-military colleagues' ban on gays and your National Rifle Association colleagues' tolerance of cop-killer assault weapons - sent fellow conservatives a powerful new message:

Moderation in the defense of liberty is no vice.

Your military credentials (Army Air Corps pilot. World War II; major general. Air Force Reserve: founder, Arizona National Guard: chairman, Senate Armed Services Committee) add influence that exceeds that of our present commander in chief and pundit corps --combined! Your legion of admirers ought to be rethinking their opposition to President Clinton's position after reading your unminced words, written for The Washington Post:

"After more than 50 years in the military and politics, I am still amazed to see how upset people can get over nothing. Lifting the ban on gays in the military isn't exactly nothing, but it's pretty damned close.

"Everyone knows that gays have served honorably in the military since at least the time of Julius Caesar. They'll still be serving long after we're all dead and buried ....

"The country and the military know that eventually the ban will be lifted. The only remaining questions are how much muck will we all be dragged through, and how many brave Americans like Tom Paniccia and Col. Margarethe Cammermeyer will have their lives and careers destroyed in a senseless attempt to stall the inevitable.

'Some in Congress think I'm wrong. They say we absolutely must continue to discrimi-nate, or all hell will break loose. Who knows, they say, perhaps our soldiers may even take up arms against each other. "Well, that's just stupid....

"If I were in the Senate today, I would rise on the Senate floor in support of our commander in chief. He may be a Democrat, but he happens to be right on this question."

Meanwhile, in our urban battlegrounds, drug gangs are out-gunning cops and murdering bystanders with AK-47s and other rapid-firing weapons, as the NRA fights even modest curbs urged by police chiefs. Once again, you, Barry Goldwater, lent a voice of authority to the side of common sense. Having posed with your favorite rifle for those "I'm the NRA" magazine ads - having declared, "I've been a member of the NRA. I collect, make and shoot guns" you've also taken aim at the NRA when you knew in your heart it was wrong.

"I'm completely opposed to selling automatic rifles.' you said a few years ago, as quoted in The Washington Post. "... I've never used an automatic or semiautomatic for hunting.... They have no place in anybody's arsenal. If any SOB can't hit a deer with one shot, then he ought to quit shootbelatedly, are we getting to know all there is to know about Barry Goldwater. Just the other day, on CNN's "Larry King Live," we heard your straight talk on gays in the military - plus a rare jolt of decency in politics. When the ever-genial host asked what you thought of President Clinton, you replied: "I would not like to answer that question right now. Ask me that about December. I'd like to give this man a chance. He inherited one godawful mess. Let's just admit that .... He's a Democrat. I'm a Republican. I want to give this kid a good chance.'

steps up and powders one. Straight over the wall.

I know, the game everybody wants to play right now is called Bash Clinton. But I'm taking a time out to tell you he slammed a home run when he put the despots who govern China on notice that it's time to clean up their human rights mess. The occasion was the annual debate over whether to grant most-favored nation trade status to Beijing. Countries so designated pay sharply reduced tariffs on goods exported to the United States. Almost all trading partners are granted MFN status. Once they've got it, the matter rarely comes up again. Not so with China. After the 1989 Tiananmen massacre - in which hundreds if not thousands of pro-democracy demonstrators were shot or crushed beneath tanks - Congress insisted on an annual review of China's trade status and on linking it to its record on human rights. Three times, George Bush beat down efforts to put conditions on China's MFN status. He had been the American liaison officer in Beijing for a year, and he fancted himself an expert on all things Chinese. "I know the Chinese," he kept telling us. They won't respond to pressure, he said.

Just to make sure the butchers in Beijing understood that their friend George understood them, he dispatched his national security adviser and deputy secretary of state to China to lick boots, offer toasts and "resume our important dialogue on international questions of vital interest to both our nations."

And how did the Chinese respond to George's gentle touch? They executed, imprisoned and tortured thousands more dissidents. They forced women to undergo sterilizations and abortions. They continued their brutal suppression of Tibet.

During the 1992 campaign, Bill Clinton castigated George Bush for his indulgence of Chinese oppression and called for "an America that will never coddle tyrants, from Baghdad to Beijing." He vowed to tie China's MFN status to its human-rights record, its arms sales and its unfair trade practices.

Clinton's decision was Solomonic: Arms sales and trade practices would henceforth be severed from the MFN issue, but human rights would not. With exiled Chinese students standing beside him, the president renewed China's MFN status and issued an executive order outlining the conditions that must be met if it is to be approved next year: Progress in human rights, release of political prisoners, protection of the "religious and cultural heritage" of Tibet and much more. Trade with China is important, Clinton said, but "we are concerned that many activists and pro-democracy leaders ... continue to languish behind prison bars in China for no crime other than exercising their consciences."

Four years after Tiananmen, a president of the United States finally stands up for principle. Nice game, Bill.

P/Z addresses new development, derby track approval this evening

By NICK PPEIFAUF Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - The city's Planning and Zoning Commission will meet this evening to consider a new residential development, a single-family home in a commercial area, and the city's planned soap box derby track.

The residential area is being proposed by David Feinberg, representing James and Debra Trizzino, owners of property on the cast side of Upsala Road, one half mile north of C.R. 48A.

The property is presently zoned SR-IAA, for a single family dwelling. Feinberg is asking for a rezoning to PD, planned development.

Plans call for the establishment of Pamala Oaks, which would have 28 dwelling units on lots with a minimum of 4.000 square feet each. The total property is 4.9 acres, with one small single family dwelling already on the land.

The Greeneway Expressway is proposed immediately north of #### the site, and is expected to separate the area from the surrounding property which is industrial development.

The Director of Planning and Development is recommending the rezoning be approved for Pamala Oks.

The conditional use request for a single-family residence has been submitted by David A. Stump, representing the estate, of Sarah Krider. The request is for a single family home at 2818 S. French Ave., in a GC-2, general commercial zoning district. Marder is recommending approval of the request,

The third matter for P&Z consideration is in two parts. A public hearing for conditional use, and consideration of the site plan, both connected with the city's proposed Soapbox Derby race track, to be built by the city at the northeast quadrant of Oregon Avenue and Lowe Avenue. The land is presently zoned AG, agricultural.

Work at constructing the race course is already underway. "We have started clearing some planned for commercial and of the land and working on setting up the facility." said Parks and Recreation Director Mike Kirby, "but we won't start any actual construction until we get final approval from P&Z."

> Planning and Development Director Jay Marder is also recommending approval of the race track plans.

The race had previously been held on French Avenue in Sanford from approximately 18th to 13th streets. Several complaints were received however, regarding the full day of street closing which effected a number of businesses in the area, and prevented the easy flow of through traffic.

The matters are all scheduled for consideration by the Planning and Zoning Commission this Thursday night, beginning at 7 p.m., in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

go to the office as told. An undetermined number of other students joined the confrontation.

SHS Principal Gretchen Schapker said school officials investigating the incident found that Blake "did not use his best judgment in dealing with the case." Although she said she did not know the number of students who joined the confrontation, she said one student was suspended for failing to follow a directive. "They didn't use their best judgment either," she commented, referring to the students. Phillip (Duke) King, 19, the senior involved in the incident said he called "down" to get on the ball court. Blake said another student called for a turn first. King said he cursed but did not curse at the coach. King claims the coach began shouting at him. Physical contact resulted between the coach and student according to King. King claims he struck the coach and that Blake then picked him off the floor, lifted him over his shoulder and slammed him to the floor more than once. King also claims Blake choked him any coach is willing to take the during the fight. The fight continued. King said, until another coach interceded. A school resource officer eventually escorted the student to the office, where the witnesses were interviewed. King said he has pain in his back and neck since the incident and may be unable to play ball on an SCC baseball scholarship.

The Seminole County School Board is expected to make the suspension official at its July 27 meeting.

Schapker said no change in Blake's coaching duties was included in the suspension.

Blake said he will take time to think over the summer and "do a little fishing with my Dad."

Seminole High School has been a big part of my life for almost 20 years," the Sanford native said. He said he is teaching the children of his former fellow classmates at Crooms High School.

"I don't know what will happen in the fall," Blake said, "I'll wait and see what the options are." He does not know what jobs will be available or whether he will coach. "I'll have to see what is brought my way." Schapker said she will appoint an acting football coach from within the SHS coaching staff, if position. She will be hiring a physical education teacher to fill Blake's teaching position.

"Mr. Blake is a valuable teachcr." Schapker said. "He is well-known in the community and a very prominent citizen. This is an unfortunate situation and a loss to Seminole High School."

Blake said he told Schapker he would work with the new acting coach to adjust to the ins and outs of the SHS program.

A coach and PE teacher at SHS for 18 years, Blake coached the girls track team to four consecutive state track championships, 1986 to 1989. They have won the district championships every year since 1979. The girls team won the state heptathlon titles in 1987 and 1988.

Head football coach since February, 1988, Blake's teams compiled a 33-20 record. Blake is also a minister at a Sanford Baptist Church.

Blake graduated from Crooms High School and Bethune-Cookman College. He taught in 1972 then played football in the Canadian Football League for three years before returning to teaching.

in addition to resting and fishing. Blake said he hopes to follow his son, Jeff's career with the New York Jets. Between training camps and pre-season workouts, Blake said Jeff may come home for a visit in a few wccks.

Goard said a dramatic increase in absentce voting could also delay election results. Absentce ballots must now be counted before precinct-cast ballots are tallied.

State lawmakers showed a marked interest in early voting this year. Several proposals were tacked onto an election reform bill then removed, said Sarah Jane Bradshaw, director of the House Ethics and Elections Committee. None of them were Bradshaw said one proposal would allow voters to cast absentce ballots in elections offices before Election Day simply because they chose to do so.

Another proposal would extend voting to begin 10 days before Election Day. Supervisors could establish voting booths in mails and grocery stores, even on Saturday and Sundays. Voting would end four days before the day of the election to allow ballot-counters to prepare lists of those early voters to assure they don't vote twice.

Jack Ascherl, the New Smyrna Beach Democrat who chaired the House elections committee, said he will propose another carly voting bill next year that will likely extend the number of days people can vote.

"It seems to me that in this day and time with people's busy schedules it should be easier for them to come out and vote." said Ascherl.

Ascheri said most of the county elections officials in the state oppose early voting because of the increased costs, so he will address their concerns in his proposal next year.

cane. If Sturm were to resign before the end of his term. Democratic governor Lawton Chiles could appoint a replacement for the Republican commissioner.

Sturm could not be reached for comment.

Both in and out of office, Morris has taken the lead in several controversial issues. notably on the beautification of Lake Mary Boulevard. As a commissioner, he led the effort to beautify the road to turn it into a gateway to the county.

A committee led by Morris recommended a $5.4 million package of landscaping and upscale roadway improvements. but the financially-frugal opposed the plan and eventually, a dramatically trimmed down $750,000 plan was approved. As mayor, he led an unsuccesful fight to force utility companies to bury their cables along the roadway.

The fight reached the Florida Supreme Court, which ruled local governments in the state don't have the power to force utilities to bury their lines. City commissioners subsequently agreed to pay the $1.2 million cost with city revenue bonds.

By Associated Press TALLAHASSEE - Lottery Secretary Marcia Mann said she plans to kick off a $2 lottery bingo game this fall. The Lottery Department hasn't decided on the odds for the game or the prizes but it does know the basic rules of the game, which will take about 10 minutes to play. "It's not the game you stand in the store and play; you take it home." Mann said Tuesday.

"Anybody who likes board games will like it. On the left side of a ticket about three times the size of instant scratch-off tickets will be a "caller's square" where players will scratch off 25 letter and number combinations. Players then can check and see which combinations they've matched on four player's squares on the right side of the ticket.

such things as matching a row of five or the four corners of one square. The prizes in other states' bingo games range from $2 to $10,000 per ticket, and about one out of every four tickets is a winner.

The reason for the game is to add a new dimension to the lottery's lineup - and potentially more than $350 million annually to the state's $2 billion salcs.

Bingo would be the first major new game since the lottery introduced Play 4 in July 1991. The other games are Lotto, Fantasy 5, Cash 3 and "Instant" scratch-off games, which change every few months.

Bingo lottery games have caught on in the last couple of years. Kentucky and Iowa both have games.

Kentucky lottery spokesman Greg Donaldson said the new cket. Players would get prizes for about $2 million a week.

Retirement worries: health, money

By JENNIFER DIXON Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Substantial numbers of Americans are nearing retirement without a pension, assets or health insurance, according to early results from one of the largest studies on how people fare as they age.

The emerging portrait of the 50-something generation, released today by the National Institute on Aging, also finds many middle-age Americans sandwiched between obligations to frail, aging parents and their own adult children and grandchildren.

Conducted by the University of Michigan's Institute for Social Research, the study is based on interviews last year and early this year with nearly 13,000 middle-age Americana in 7.600 households.

"People nearing retirement are The magnitude of this age shift mostly in pretty good shape physically, mentally and eco-nomically," says F. Thomas Juster, who directed the study. "But behind the averages are large proportions of people failing into some category - ill or disabled, without pensions, insurance or assets, or lacking family support - that may rob them of a satisfying and suc-cessful retirement." said Juster, an economics professor.

The study began in 1990 and researchers plan to continue their work for the next 12 years. The research is designed to provide reliable information on the labor force activity, health status and family responsibilities of Americans nearing retirement. "As we move through the turn of the century, the U.S. population will be aging rapidly, thanks to the baby boom generation.

will present major new challenges to the nation's health and economic institutions."

Among the study's findings: -Almost half of those surveyed believe that there is some likelihood they could lose their lob in the next year and that they have less than a 50-50 chance of finding a new job in a few months. "Overall, there is a good deal of job insecurity ... possibly a good deal more than existed in the past," the report said. -The median income among households surveyed was about $37,500, with median assets about $80,000. About 20 percent of couples reported virtually no assets. -One out of every seven people surveyed is not covered by any kind of health insurance. Substantially higher numbers of black and Hispanic households don't have a health plan.

-Two in five will have no pension income at all, other than Social Security.

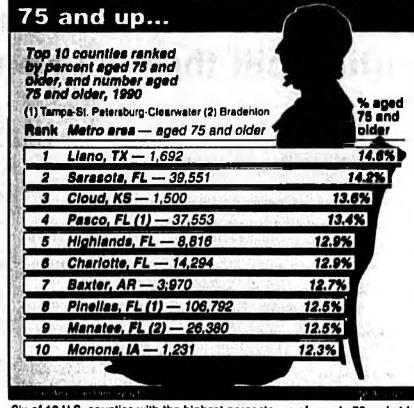

-About two-thirds of the participants say they're in excellent or very good health. About 20 percent reported a health condition that limits work

-Almost three-fourths of participants would prefer to go from a fulltime job to part-time work when they retire, rather than leave the work force abruptly.

-About one in five are afraid to leave their current jobs because they might lose pensions or health insurance benefits if they switched employers.

-About 70 percent of the married couples are members of four-generation families.

-Two-thirds of those surveyed have living parents or parents-in-law.

Six of 10 U.S. counties with the highest percentages of people 75 and older are located in Florida. Liano, Texas, however, is No. 1 with 14.6 percent.

Parents, school children try to cope with kindergartner's suicide

By JOHN PACENTI Associated Press Writer

DANIA, Fla. - School officials gave out hugs and explanations to young elementary students trying to make sense of the death of a 6-year-old girl who killed herself by standing in front of a train.

Meanwhile, some parents of the students wondered why kindergartner Jackie Johnson had to cross the railroad tracks to Dania Elementary School when another school was in her neighborhood.

Authorities said Jackie fought off siblings and a cousin to stay in front of the oncoming freight train, because she wanted "to become an angel and be with her mother."

School officials say her mother. Carla Johnson, is terminally ill. Officials with the Broward County Medical Examiner's office say they are trying o confirm mother has AIDS.

"We are de-emphasizing the suicide part so that children don't think they can get attention by doing this," said Dania Elementary School principal Carole Stanler, fighting back tears. "I was a little bit concerned with the 'wanting to be with the angels' part because somebody might want to be an angel, too." Fourth-grader Josh Coe says he understands why Jackie might want to die since her mother was terminally ill. "If my mother was ill, I'd do the same thing," said the 11-year-old Coe. "I know how she feels. My grandma is ill," he said. "It's still a tragedy."

School psychologist Jan Lowenthal said the students appeared to be handling the tragedy well. 'There's maybe a question or two and they're a little guleter than usual," she said. "We are not seeing a lot of tears." Stanler a Jackie sh she said. "I don't think it's fair." Moments after Ceasar crossed the track with her daughter, a Broward County schools spokeswoman Merrie Meyers said students cross the tracks to Dania Elementary because of a court-ordered desegregation settlement and that bus service isn't allowed within a two-mile boundary of the school.

'There are students throughout Florida who cross railroad tracks in order to attend schools," said Meyers, adding the crossing isn't considered dangerous because of the nearby intersections.

stamps commemorating rock By PATRICK DOLAN

Postal service introduces

Associated Press Writer

CLEVELAND - The Elvis stamp got some company Wednesday when the U.S. Postal Service issued stamps commemorating music legends Bill Haley, Buddy Holly, Otis Redding, Ritchie Valens, Clyde McPhatter and Dinah Washington.

Elvis Presley got another stamp - this one featuring his last name. The original, issued in January, bore only his first name.

Special issues drew lines of stamp collectors at Postal Service ceremonies in Cleveland, where the Rock and Roll Hall of Fame and Museum is being built, and in Santa Monica, Calif., home of the National Music Foundation.

"I think nearly everyone has strong memories of the songs of these seven giants of rock 'n' roll and rhythm and blues," said Michael Coughlin, U.S. deputy postmaster general. "They are pioneers. They have changed the course of everyday life."

Officials of the Rock Hall, which broke ground for construction June 7, assisted at the Cleveland ceremony, Hall Chairman William Hulett received a framed display of the stamps, which will be displayed when the hall opens in 1995.

"Most of us grew up with rock 'n' roll, so these stamps interest a lot of people," Hulett said.

Other cities marked the occasion with events that attracted a mix of music fans and stamp collectors.

Hundreds of Buddy Holly fans went to his hometown, Lubbock, Texas, to get special postmark cancellations, be-bop at a Crickets concert and visit his grave. Lubbock Postmaster John Frisby canceled the first Holly stamp and presented it to Holly's widow.

"To me, his music is the top," said Garland Pool of Athens, Texas. "It's fresh and crisp. It doesn't go out of style.'

In Macon, Ga., about 300 fans of Redding gathered outside the Douglas Theater, where he was discovered in the early 1960s. He died at age 28 in a plane crash in 1967.

At Washington's Hard Rock Cafe, Presley's "Return to Sender" was playing as collectors lined up at a post office on wheels parked at the curb outside.

'We're not sure of that," said Richard Rodriguez, an investigator with the medical examiner's office. "That's the million dollar question."

Gloria Wright, the cousin of Jackie's mother, said Wednesday she couldn't comment on the accident and quickly closed the door at the home where Jackie had been living.

The girl with a sun of a smile was the youngest suicide in Broward County, according to the county medical examiner and students had questions for a team of counsciors who converged on the K-5 Dania Elementary School.

signs of being distraught, but it often is hard for teachers to tell with younger children.

"It could truly be an accident," Stanier said. "I don't think she thought out all, the consequences of it."

After school, Stanier walked some students out, giving them encouragement. Meanwhile, some parents rushed their students across the tracks before sheriff deputies could make them use the intersections.

Helen Ceasar was walking her 7-year-old daughter, Sheena, across the tracks from Dania Elementary School. She said that Jackie should have been

Multiple meteorites doomed dinosaurs, study suggests

By MALCOLM RITTER AP Science Writer

NEW YORK - Scientists reported evidence today that the dinosaurs were killed off not by a single asteroid crashing into the Earth, but by several.

A popular theory blames the extinction of the dinosaurs on a single impact near the Mexican town of Chicxulub.

But the new study says bits of asteroid found north of Hawaii could not have come from the Mexican site. And it says similar finds in Europe, New Zealand, the Atlantic and Indian oceans and claewhere have differing chemical compositions that suggest they came from still other impacts.

Eric Robin and colleagues at the Center for Low Radioactivity in Gif-sur-Yvette in France presented their evidence in the Journal Nature.

Virgil Sharpton of the Lunar and Planetary Institute in Houston said that while the French scientists may be right about a Pacific impact, he found it more likely that the Pacific material came from the Mexican impact.

The idea behind the meteorite theory is that a large impact could have doomed dinosaurs by setting off such catastrophes as widespread firestorms or kicking up dust that blotted out the sun and led to a lethal cooling.

The French scientists studied material that was deposited on the ocean floor at about the time impact there.

THE GREAT AMERICAN INVESTMENT of the dinosaur extinction. Tiny rounded grains and jagged fragments contained spinels, which are crystals that form in very high temperatures, such as those of an asteroid burning in the atmosphere or smashing into a surface.

The researchers said the Pacific spinels did not come from a Mexican impact because the jagged fragments could not have been blasted all the way from the Chicxulub crater some 6,000 miles away without melting. Besides, the spinels would not have formed from an impact on land, where most of the asteroid material would be vaporized, they said.

Sharpton disagreed, saying unmelted fragments of quartz thought to have come from the Mexican crater have been found all over the world. The spinels could have come from a land impact because research suggests the back end of a crashing meteorite blows into the sky while retaining its basic composition, he said.

Sharpton also said the size and aluminum content of the Pacific spinels fit in with prior work suggesting that spinels worldwide came from an impact in the area of Chicxulub.

Robin replied that it is not clear whether the widespread quartz all came from the Mex-

Democrats set to ram a deficit cutting bill through Senate panel

By ALAN FRAM Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Democrats are ready to muscle President Clinton's deficit-reduction bill through the Senate Finance Committee after replacing an unpopular energy tax with a gasoline tax like and new Medleare cuts.

Like the measure the Democratic-controlled House narrowly approved last month, the Senate bill is dominated by higher taxes on the well-to-do, companies and some Social Security recipients.

"We mean to see II gets all the way through" the Senate, Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, said Wednesday after the Finance panel's 11 Democrats ended a month-long standoff and crafted a compromise measure.

Treasury Secretary Lloyd Bentsen halled the agreement, which increased the bill's reliance on spending cuts, as "an important step along the path to enactment."

The Finance Committee planned to vote today on the legislation, which would add 4.3 cents to the 14.1 cent-per-gallon tax already on gasoline. It seemed all but certain that the panel's nine Republicans, eager to kill the bill because of taxes they call excessive, would not succeed. Mitchell said debate by the full Senate would begin next week.

Finance Committee Chairman Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., said people earning more than $100,000 a year would bear 80 percent of the bill's tax burden. Families under $20,000 would actually pay less taxes, he said.

When combined with spending cuts planned in later measures and reduced interest payments on federal borrowing, the legislation would shave $508 billion off budget deficits over the next five years — a blt higher than the House total.

But the Senate's Democrats, generally more conservative than their House counterparts, refashioned parts of the package.

Overall, the changes reshaped Clinton's deficit-reduction plan into one relying on spending cuts for $260 billion and tax increases for $248 billion - a ratio that conservatives said was important.

"it keeps faith with a Democratic Party being on a new course, a centrist course," said Sen. David Boren, D-Okla., who led efforts to kill Clinton's energy tax and add spending cuts.

The senators' most prominent change: killing Clinton's tax on the heat content of fuels, electricity and other forms of energy. The so-called Btu tax was designed to raise $72 billion over five years.

They replaced it with the new levy on each gallon of gasoline, diesel and aviation fuels. The new tax, which would take effect Oct. 1, would bring the government about $25 billion over the five-year period.

To flud extra savings, senators added $19 billion in Medicare cuts.

In "Orlando" an aged Queen Elizabeth I - played by a man tells the young nobleman Orlando — played by a woman — "do not fade, do not wither, do not grow old." With this supreme gender-bender beginning, Orlando winks his way through 400 years of history, first as a man, then as a woman. Through his-her journey. there's a buoyant air of adventure and much charm as this strange creature slips through the boundaries of time and sexuality. And what a stunning journey it is. "Orlando" is nothing less than a sumptuous tale of love and loss and passion and possession and the curse that each of the sexes must bear. It's all that. And more.

Sally Potter's film, based on the Virginia Woolf classic, is a lyrical unfolding, cloaked in silky layers of subtlety and wit. It's not all highbrow musings either, but more of a playful dash.

"Orlando" begins in the 1600s with its curious changeling (a beguiling Tilda Swinton) ministering to a dying Queen Elizabeth (deftly cast with Quentin Crisp). The queen gives her favorite nobleman property and mystically grants him immortality. The slim and fine-boned Orlando sets out by failing in love with an exquisite Russian princess, Sasha (Charlotte Valandrey), telling her she should be his simply because, "I adore you and you are mine."

In scenes of breathtaking beauty, he courts her during a strange pagentry on the frozen river Thames. They dine outdoors under big-top tents with the food delivered by swirling,

Honesty is the best policy

DEAR ABBY: I met a very pretty girl. (I'll call her Mary.) I liked her a lot and we started seeing a lot of each other, but I never laid a hand on her. She told me she was three months pregnant when we met, and I stood by her until after the baby was born. The baby's real father took off, and I ended up taking responsibility for a kid who wasn't even mine. I am a dishwasher in a fast-food place. I lied about my age to get the job.

Mary's parents think I am the baby's father. I told them I wasn't, but Mary's father said that "God" told him I was - and God doesn't lie. Mary begged me to tell her parents that I am the baby's father, so I did. Now they hate me and don't want me around.

I hate lying to Mary's parents, and I am not in love with Mary. If I tell her parents I lied, it will be very hard on her. How can I bring out the truth without hurting Mary? She's 15 and I am 17, and I was told that if Mary's father makes a stink. I will be in trouble with the law. What should I do?

ALL MESSED UP DEAR MESSED UP: Do you realize that by saying that you are the baby's father you will have to support the child until he is an adult? It would appear that Mary used you to get herself out of a jam.

Tell Mary that you are through lying, then tell her parents that you are not the baby's father that you and Mary never had sex, and if they will pay for the test to prove it, you are willing to take the test.

Where are your parents? You seem to be a very decent but naive young man, but you need adult guidance. The lesson to learn here is that honesty is always the best policy.

DEAR ABBY: My sister, who lives in Ohio, is visiting me and my husband for three weeks. (we live in Florida.)

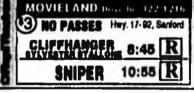

'Sis'' received a telephone call the other evening, and my husband answered the telephone and asked the caller who was calling.

I told my husband that he was rude to have asked who was calling, since the call was not for hlm.

My husband thought he did the proper thing to have asked the caller who was calling. Who was correct?

DEBBIE DEAR DEBBIE: Your husband. (I am assuming he inquired in order to tell your sister who was calling her - not out of personal curiosity.

any suggestions? DEAR READER: From the short description of your ailment, I cannot second-guess the many specialists you have seen. However, one diagnosis that you should consider is trigeminal neuralgia.

This is a nerve disorder of unknown cause, marked by frequent attacks of excruciating pain in the distribution of the trigeminal nerve, along one side of the jaw, the check or the neck. In some patients, the condition is associated with nerve compression from abnormal blood vessels. Thus, surgery to decompress the nerve may be necessary. Non-surgical treatment includes carbamazepine and phenytoin pills. Trigeminal neuralgia (tic douloureux) must be differentiated from nerve pain caused by tumors. Sometimes the affliction is associated with multiple sclerosis, Sjogren's syndrome or rheumatoid arthritis, discases of the immune system. Also, migraine may masquerade as facial pain. Finally, the diagnosis of atypical facial pain must be included, although it is frequently throbbing in character.

Because the treatment of your pain syndrome depends on the cause, you should return to the neurologist at one of the medical centers in your community, where specialists will conduct blood and nerve tests to confirm the diagnosis. If you do have trigeminal neuralgia, surgical decompression may be your best option.
