

Iran Parliament To Decide Crisis

LONDON (UPI)—Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini said Saturday in a statement broadcast by Tehran Radio the fate of 50 American hostages held at the American embassy in Tehran will be decided in April when Iran's new parliament meets for the first time.

The statement by the Iranian leader said in part: "As I have said repeatedly, we demand the return of both the shah and the nation's riches. The Modern students who have occupied the den of espionage (the U.S. Embassy) have dealt a crushing blow to the world-devouring U.S.A."

"But since the representatives of the people will soon be meeting in the Islamic Consultative Assembly (parliament), any decisions on the release of the hostages and the concessions to be obtained in return for their release will be up to them, since they are the people who should take a hand in the course of political events."

"Of course, until the Islamic Consultative Assembly is set up, the Revolutionary Council and the president of the republic will continue their efforts to have the shah and the nation's riches returned," Khomeini said.

The assembly is to be elected in March and April.

The broadcast came as the five-member U.N. Commission appointed to investigate the alleged crimes of deposed Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi left for Tehran.

The U.N. chartered Gulfstream II, 12-seater jet took off at 12:15 p.m. (6:15 a.m. EST) Saturday and was expected to arrive at approximately 8 p.m. (11 a.m. EST) in Tehran.

The announcement the commission finally was on its way came after statements from Iranian officials saying the body's work would have no bearing on the fate of the hostages, who are spending their 112th day in captivity.

The closest thing to a hopeful sign Friday was the announcement by Algerian Ambassador Mohammed Bedjaoui, co-chairman of the U.N. investigative commission, that his group would leave Geneva Saturday for Tehran.

Bedjaoui, who unexpectedly flew back to New York Wednesday on "private business," met U.S. Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim for one hour before returning to Geneva.

He refused to discuss the meeting but, followed by a group of reporters as he hurried off to catch a plane, he shouted out: "There is no problem. All is all right. I am leaving for Geneva today and the commission will leave tomorrow for Tehran."

In Geneva, the other commission chairman, Andres Aular of Venezuela, said: "We are pleased to be finally on our way and we feel very optimistic about the outcome of our work. We hope to start work right away."

The commission was formed at Iran's request to investigate crimes the Islamic regime alleges the shah committed during his reign.

Iranian officials, including President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr and Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotbzadeh, also said the commission would be a "first step" towards an agreement to free the hostages. He said they would be allowed to discuss that issue when they arrived in Tehran.

Horsemen Ride Hattaway

By DONNA ESTES
 Herald Staff Writer

State Rep. Robert Hattaway, D-Altamonte Springs, was the target of the wrath of many of the estimated 150-200 persons, mostly horse trainers, breeders and racers, who jammed the Casselberry City Hall last night to have their say on the proposed conversion of the Seminola Harness Raceway to a greyhound racing track.

The gathering was called by State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, in whose district the track is located.

Also seated on the raised dais in the council chamber were: William Demetree and Paul Derivas, owners of the raceway; Jerry Collins, general manager of the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club in Longwood; Dr. Warren Morgan, head of the regulated industries committee of the Florida House of Representatives; an aide of State Rep. Dick Batchelor, D-Orange County, and Casselberry Mayor Owen Sheppard. In the audience was State Sen. Vince Fechtel, R-Leesburg, who served previously as a state representative for Seminola County.

But Hattaway, who has prefiled a bill to permit the conversion of the track, was the one most called upon to explain his interest in the conversion. At no time did he indicate he had changed in his support for conversion. He was not available for comment today.

Hattaway said the Legislature set precedent for his proposed bill in 1976 by allowing the conversion of a horse track to a dog track.

Hattaway said there would be a greater return to the state in taxes if the conversion were approved, noting Seminola Downs paid the state $7,000 last year while income to the state from a dog track would be about $2 million. He said the new owners would underwrite costs, estimated at $30,000 to $40,000, of installing a traffic signal at Seminola Boulevard and Winter Park Drive and also would pay the city for salaries of reserve police officers needed to direct traffic. He said the preferred entertainment among sportsmen and parimutuel wagering fans is not harness racing, but dog racing.

A story from Collins that he had been misled while a member of the Legislature in the 1940s into accepting expense money from a constituent in properly brought a quick response from Hattaway.

Hattaway said Demetree probably contributed $100 to his campaign in 1978 while Collins and others had contributed much more. "I don't take campaign contributions and let them buy me," he said. "$100, $1,000, $3,000 or no amount of money will buy Bob Hattaway," he said.

Demetree, speaking first at the gathering, said he pays in excess of $800,000 to the state each year in taxes. He said he wanted to make an enterprise of the horse track, "not the white elephant it has been in the past." Demetree said the property currently has a $3.2 million debt.

"I did not buy the track with the intent of its being a harness track. It is a loser. I don't believe I can make a profit with a harness track," he said, adding if the Legislature wishes he would be willing to allow operation of dog and horse racing both, with the proceeds from dog racing picking up the losses from the horse racing.

To complaints that a dog track would generate larger crowds on the two-lane roads leading to the track, Hattaway said the county plans to widen Seminola Boulevard to Winter Park Drive this year and to finish the improvements on Seminola to the track next year.

Hattaway said Demetree has promised to advertise the route to the track from U.S. 17-92 and Seminola, to discourage use of other routes.

Brantley, saying he called the meeting to try to separate fact from rumor, asked Demetree if it is his intention to move the dog racing license if he acquires it to a site at Lake Mary Boulevard and Interstate 4. Demetree said he has had no intention of moving the license from Casselberry.

Dr. J.L. Mello, also a longtime resident of the city, said when harness racing "is the only game in town it has made money." He said Daytona Beach dog racing impinged on the Casselberry horse racing. "Let the dogs run on the summer dates and see how much money they make," he said, to applause from the crowd.

"We'll be happy to take those dates if they are offered," Hattaway responded. Member of the audience screamed, "We? We? We? Who is we?"

Hattaway did not respond.

Robert F. Neimeyer, secretary of the Florida Greyhound Association Inc., said his organization favors the conversion. "Harness racing is a good sport but a loser," he said. "Closing Seminola Harness Raceway is part of a national trend," he said.

Meanwhile, Brantley said the people of Seminola County ratified the creation of the Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club in a 1981 referendum. Brantley said he isn't sure whether another referendum might be necessary before another dog racing track could be created in the county. "I wonder if it is legal to do this without a referendum?" Brantley asked.

Hattaway responded that "laws are made and laws are changed. If you want a referendum, maybe that's a good idea. We would see if people want dog racing or just Alai to operate. If you want to take that chance, it is all right with me," he said.

Casselberry Council Chairman Frank Schutte, speaking for himself, said he is concerned about increased traffic generated by a dog racing facility. "Casselberry will not get one more thin dime whether horses or dogs race there." He said he could foresee bumper-to-bumper traffic on the residential streets, including Winter Park Drive, Sunset Drive and others if the conversion is permitted and that traffic emptying from the track will further congest the Red Bag Lake-Winter Park Drive-State Road 438 intersection.

"Is it proper for elected officials to do something to benefit private enterprise at the expense of the public safety and welfare?" he asked.

County Commissioner Bob French said he hopes regardless of who operates the track they will pay a proportionate share of the cost of correcting the problems they create.

Herb Crabtree, another resident, said while he doesn't care whether a horse track or dog track operates at the site, the group that acquired the horse track property has invested its money and ought not be denied the opportunity to use its property.

Brantley said, however, the group put up $2.5 million on the chance it would be allowed to operate a dog track. "It was a gamble," Brantley said.

Presidential Candidates Jump On Carter For Inflation

WASHINGTON (UPI)—January's monthly consumer price increase, the largest in six years, led Republican and Democratic presidential candidates alike to denounce the administration's anti-inflation policy.

The Labor Department Friday said consumer prices rose by 1.4 percent in January, the biggest monthly gain since 1973. Gasoline prices, zooming at the fastest rate ever recorded, were 60 percent higher than a year earlier.

When compounded, the January price rise worked out to a startling 18.2 percent annual inflation rate — far above President Carter's inflation forecast only three weeks ago of 10.4 percent.

Sen. Edward Kennedy, challenging Carter for the Democratic presidential nomination, said, "This means that the president of the United States is playing a losing hand in fighting the battle against inflation."

"I believe that the president of the United States is ignoring the important signals of our economy," Kennedy said.

Kennedy again called for an immediate, across the board, six-month freeze on prices, wages, interest rates, dividends and rents.

But the administration said it is still opposed to mandatory wage and price controls to try to counter inflation.

"I can't think of anything more disastrous now" than government-imposed controls, said Robert Russell, executive director of President Carter's Council on Wage and Price Stability.

"Controls cause more inflation," he said. "They should only be used in dire emergencies."

"Wage and price controls offer no shortcut to the goal of price stability," added Charles Schultze, chairman of the White House Council of Economic Advisors, in a speech in Miami, Fla.

Government leaders have chosen to rely on voluntary wage-price guidelines, "fiscal restraint" in government spending and hopes oil prices won't be boosted much higher.

President Carter, on his way to Camp David, Md., was asked if the economy was in bad shape. "The country's strong but inflation is too high," Carter said.

Banks responded quickly to the inflation figures, with Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. jumping its prime lending rate to 18 1/2 percent and other major banks going to 18 percent.

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan and other Republican presidential candidates denounced Carter's anti-inflation policy.

Republican National Chairman Bill Brock called the inflation rate "an outrage" and said Carter's policies have "brought this nation to the brink of economic disaster."

"The people will hold this free-spending Democratic Congress and this financially spineless administration to account in November," he said.

The Labor Department said its price index for all urban consumers stood at 233.2 last month.

That means goods and services which cost $100 in 1967 were priced at $233.20 in January.

Lane Kirkland used his dry, intellectual wit, but in the end blamed the Carter administration for rising inflation in this nation.

"Do you hold the Carter administration responsible for this fantastic inflation?" a reporter asked Kirkland, AFL-CIO chief.

"Well, it's the only administration we have," he replied.

Because of the continual hike in prices, and the effort of the president's Pay Council to keep wages increases this year to between 7.5 percent and 9.5 percent, Kirkland said the rationale for labor participating in the council was "withering away."

Neutralizing The Olympics

The idea that "politics" should be kept out of the Olympic Games has led the International Olympic Committee to a flat rejection of President Carter's call for a boycott of the summer games in Moscow. We stand with Mr. Carter in his argument that it abuses the definition of politics for Olympic teams to ignore the fact that their host country is engaged in the military conquest of a weak neighbor.

Special Interest Caucuses Spreading

WASHINGTON — A new and insidious growth is spreading over Congress like poison ivy — the special-interest caucus. The caucus, a group of legislators who band together to pursue mutually perceived goals, was like political parties — not provided for by the framers of the Constitution. Unlike political parties, however, the special-interest caucus is getting to be simply a slick way to increase the clout of industries seeking government handouts or legislative favors.

of money and effort in their campaign to handcuff the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) and to eliminate key consumer protection regulations. "One way to make Congress more representative in the immediate future might be to establish public financing of congressional campaigns." The anti-consumer movement emphasizes one major theme in its pitches to Congress and the grassroots: federal regulations are a financial burden to consumers, a point hotly disputed by many lawyers, regulators, economists and average citizens. "Actually, most public opinion polls indicate that consumers appreciate the benefit of regulations which help create a safe environment and prevent unfairness and abuse in the marketplace," CU's chief executive says. "To the consumer, many federal laws and regulations have translated into dollars and lives saved, and health protected. "Yet, despite this support for regulation, Congress is systematically and singlemindedly dismantling regulatory protection."

Huge Electric Bank Signs Are Wasting U.S. Energy

President Carter strongly urges us to conserve energy. We have been given temperature guidelines for homes, restaurants, stores and other public places. But this hasn't gone far enough. We — probably you, too — are surrounded by banks and other buildings that waste electricity through the night. Lighting up the streets is fine, of course, and might even help cut crime. A good case can also be made for theaters, restaurants and stores to have electric signs to attract patrons. But those electric signs on tops of buildings and other tall buildings are nothing more than wasteful advertisements. At home, we are motivated to use less electricity not only as a patriotic gesture but to reduce the family's energy cost. While trying to cut out use of electrical appliances, however, we may not really be cutting costs because we don't know what the most current energy prices are. Our lighting company, Florida Power and Light has itemized the electricity use of typical appliances based on its own figures and published reports. It is a helpful guide to effective cost cutting. But bear in mind that the following figures are only examples reflecting the relative costs of operating various products. Power usage varies depending on such factors as brand, weather, use patterns, home size, location and insulation. And costs per kilowatt hour vary from place to place. Too many appliances are listed in the Florida Power and Light report for all to be included in this column. I have selected some that are used in most homes. Under laundry, the estimated monthly cost for a washing machine is 41 cents; a hand iron runs 23 cents and a clothes dryer runs $3.38. For food preservation, the monthly operating cost of a typical manual-defrost refrigerator-freezer is $5.53. Frost-free refrigerator-freezers runs as high as $7.65 for 14- to 17-cubic-foot models and $9.23 for those measuring 17 to 20 cubic feet. A manual-defrost 14.5- to 17.5-cubic-foot freezer costs about $6.08 to operate; a frost-free version costs $8.46. Remaining in the kitchen, here are some average monthly operating costs: broiler-rotisserie, 32 cents; coffee maker, 41 cents; toaster, 14 cents; trash compactors, 18 cents; microwave oven, 72 cents; range with oven, $2.81; cleaning oven, $2.75. Cooling less than 5 cents a month each to operate are electric can openers, carving knives, fondue pots, blenders, ice crushers, ice-cream makers, juicers, knife sharpeners, food mixers, wash compactors, 18 cents; microwave oven, 72 cents; toaster with oven, $2.81; cleaning oven, $2.75. So, we can be diligent about turning off the lights when we leave a room, making fewer trips to the refrigerator or sweating a bit when the air conditioner is shut off. We may not be saving that much electricity, but — unlike the owners of those brightly lit buildings — we're at least trying.

Trainer, Breaker, Better Retires In Longwood

He's Worked With Horses Most Of Life

Joe McFadden has been around horses most of his life. He has ridden horses, broken them, trained them, raced them, and even bet on a few during his 76 years, but the only ones he has owned have been those he planned to sell again immediately.

McFadden was taking care of horses for Homestead Stables and to rent out any extra space to friends. Training in Florida was such a popular idea that they were soon swamped with requests for training space.

...THE HOPE OF OUR COMMUNITY, OUR NATION!

When you've seen great ships sail into a broad river and make their way to the sea, you forget that every river has its source.

Far up in the Adirondack Mountains of northern New York a mountain stream tumbles its rocky way to the valley ... so begins the mighty Hudson.

Human might and greatness are the same. They begin in a small way as the individual makes the right decisions, embraces the important values, chooses the course of his life.

A strong religious faith can set a long way in helping us find our true destiny. Christian beliefs as we worship together that what we do today is but a point along the way to what God intends us to become.

Briefly At Local Church's Expense? TV Church Gets $ And Power

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer
The threat the established churches feel from the suddenly influential and increasingly prosperous television preachers is two-fold—members and money are leaving local congregations and setting their religion in the comfort of their living rooms, and the religious content of the televised message is simplistic and generally a distortion of the full Christian message.

Witness Training
On Sunday evening the First Baptist of Sanford will begin two types of witness training sessions. A five session series to equip youth and adults of the church to go on a Mission Tour to the Cherokee Indians, June 7-15 will be directed by the pastor, Dr. Jay T. Cottrell, who is the pastor of the building was constructed in 1956 at a cost of $271,000, for which a 15-year note was negotiated. The note was paid out in 13 1/2 years.

Inter-Faith Chapel In Capitol
Florida's new capitol building in Tallahassee is a bronze and granite symphony of the religious faiths of the state. The walls will be of 16 bronze plaques that tell the story of the religious history of Florida. Each plaque will bear a symbol and a historic inscription to the entrance of the chapel.

Christ Of The Lighted Way
John Otenham wrote: "To every man (person) there opens a way and ways and a way. And the high road trends the high way, and the low road gropes the low. And in between on the misty flats The rest drift to and fro; And every man (person) decides The way his (her) and shall go."

DEAR HELOISE: Anyone who saves knows the inconvenience of needing a bobbin only to find all of them are filled with the wrong color thread. Well, here's how I make a handy holder for leftover bobbin thread.

I cut a plastic drinking straw into two-inch lengths and wind the bobbin thread onto them, securing the starting end with a piece of tape or knotting it and slipping the knot into a slit made in the end of the straw.

After wrapping the thread tight around the straw, I place the loose end into a slit in the straw, then store it until the thread is needed again.

What's so great about winding the thread onto a straw is that the straw fits on the spindle of my sewing machine!

Hilda G.
Now that's one of the cleverest sewing hints to come along in quite awhile.

How many of us wrap bobbin thread around the first thing that comes in sight — or back onto the original spool — only to run out of thread right in the middle of a gathering stitch. Thanks for sharing.

MAKE A MOLD

DEAR HELOISE: How many people consider the possibilities of those new plastic 2-liter soda bottles? I've found a way of making these bottles — the kind that don't have a detachable bottom — into something useful.

I cut the bottom off at the rim (or indentation) and the resulting pretty shape makes a perfect gelatin mold.

MEG'S SURPRISE PACKAGE

DEAR HELOISE: I am a girl of 12 and a faithful reader. I enjoy surprising people, so here's a hint on wrapping presents.

Take some boxes from small to big. Wrap your present (you might want to stuff it with cotton or paper) in the right size box.

Then put it into a bigger box, wrap, and then into a still bigger box, etc.

If you don't want to waste wrapping paper, use newspaper.

Try it, it boggles the mind!

I'll bet it does — and I'm sure it makes a happy occasion last just that much longer.

DOT Seeks Changes At Site Of Tragedy

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Two-and-one-half years after a traffic accident claimed the lives of four members of a Sanford family, the state Department of Transportation (DOT) has come up with a plan to change traffic patterns at the site of the tragedy.

According to a report given to Sanford City Manager Warren Knowles by his assistant, Steve Harriett, the remedy may be hard to achieve. Knowles has written letters to the Burger King company and the Kimco Corp., owners of Zayre's Department Stores, seeking their assistance.

The accident occurred on Oct. 28, 1977 at the Burger King Exit onto U.S. 17-92. Mrs. Betty Dallabrida and three of her children died as a result of the traffic accident and other members of her family were injured.

Harriett in a written memo to Knowles said the DOT has suggested that:

- The lane structure at State Street be modified and traffic signals be installed at its intersection with U.S. 17-92.
- The exit from the Burger King restaurant on U.S. 17-92 be eliminated and exit traffic be routed via the neighboring Zayre parking lot out to U.S. 17-92 where the traffic signal is proposed to be.
- The turning radius into Western Sizzlin' be modified to facilitate easier flow into and out of the restaurant.
- The lane on the access street directly in front of the Sanford Plaza stores at its intersection with U.S. 17-92 be modified and improved.

Additional changes be made which do not involve the use of private property at 27th Street and the fork at Park Drive.

Harriett said the DOT has the funds to implement part of the changes including the installation of the traffic signal, but it needs the cooperation of the businesses to complete the plan requiring donation of rights-of-way in some instances.

Harriett said representatives of Burger King and Zayre's are opposed to donating right-of-way because the donation would hinder their business operation.

He said Burger King does not want to lose its exit capability onto 17-92 and Zayre does not want the burden of bearing Burger King's exit traffic. Harriett reported both firms said donating the property would penalize their business by altering their entrance and exit ways.

"The future of the proposed plan looks bleak," Harriett's memo said. "We will probably lose the chance for the traffic signal unless the business owners reconsider and give DOT the rights-of-way they need. Without modifications suggested in the Burger King and Zayre areas, installation of a traffic signal would be of little benefit," Harriett said. He added that the Western Sizzlin' representative said his company will be open to cooperating with DOT.

In other business at the Sanford City Commission meeting scheduled for 7 p.m. today, Knowles will report that increased costs of gasoline and diesel fuel may deplete the city's contingency account.

Knowles will tell commissioners if the difference in the budgeted allocation for fuel holds at 23 cents per gallon over the budgeted amount and if consumption of fuel remains at its present level, the additional funds needed to get through the remaining seven months of the fiscal year is $22,540.

In addition, he will report that the current balance in the city's contingency fund from which the additional cost would be paid is $25,200.

"If the price continues to climb and if there is no reduction in use, the needed funds will exceed the contingency balance. Most departments are reducing the fuel use and holding it fairly level now," he said.

Knowles, in a written report to the commission, said the fire department is doing a good job of conserving fuel and the public works department is doing an excellent job.

Bani-Sadr Calls U.S. 'Naive'

By United Press International

Iranian President Abolhasan Bani-Sadr said in an interview published today that he is "amazed at the naivete" of U.S. officials and said America still has failed to understand the revolution that overthrew the shah.

"The United States has understood nothing of our revolution and seems not to be interested in understanding it," Bani-Sadr said. "They attributed the seizure of the hostages to what they described as fanatical Iranians. Then they interpreted my election as a victory for a moderate against the clergy."

"They are wrong on both counts," Bani-Sadr said in an interview with the Hong Kong Star.

"They must understand that the students' action and my election constitute two faces of the same coin, namely the Iranian people's wish for independence and an end to United States domination," he said.

He said the holding of the hostages is aimed at "changing the equation between us and the West."

"I am amazed at the naivete of the American authorities," Bani-Sadr said.

"When the masses under the direction of Imam (Ayatollah Ruhollah) Khomeini were rebelling against the tyrant shah, the Americans tried to label the movement as Islamic-Marxist."

"Once the shah escaped and we set about establishing an Islamic republic, these same circles began insinuating that religious fanatics have taken over Iran," he said.

In Iran, members of a U.N. panel seeking an end to the hostage crisis were going ahead with their investigation today based on "extremely constructive" groundwork in a first round of talks with Bani-Sadr.

FIREMEN CONTROL BLAZE

Firemen fought to extinguish a blaze in the bathroom of a home at 612 1/2 S. Park Ave. in Sanford Saturday evening. The blaze did an estimated $500 in damage to the bathroom, with some smoke damage to the rest of the apartment occupied by Arthur Lytle, said Sanford Fire Chief George Harriett. The fire started at about 8:06 p.m. when fumes from a leaking spray can under the bathroom sink were ignited by a gas-fired water heater nearby, Harriett said.

White House Visit Thrills Olympians

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The triumphant U.S. Olympic team flew to Washington today for lunch with President Carter. The athletes got a rousing welcome from 1,000 fans who serenaded them with the National Anthem at Andrews Air Force Base.

Bearing a dozen medals, including a major upset gold medal in hockey and five golden victories by speed skater Eric Heiden, the team arrived in three Air Force jets at Carter's invitation. They rode buses to the White House.

"It's been a long night. We've been out celebrating," said hockey goalie Jim Craig of North Easton, Mass., at the airport.

"It's a real great thing to see this outpouring of nationalism. It does our kids good to see it. It's unbelievable," said hockey coach Herb Brooks.

The 150 athletes — many wearing medals around their necks and decked out in their red, white and blue suits — at first got off the planes and headed straight toward the buses at Andrews.

But many were moved by the cheering of the nearby crowd and went over to shake hands.

There was no band, but the crowd broke out in a stirring rendition of the Star Spangled Banner.

A crowd of several hundred gathered at Andrews at midmorning, but soon swelled to nearly 1,000 before the first plane arrived at 11 a.m. EST.

Hockey team member Bill Baker of Grand Rapids, Minn., was asked whether he supports the presidential request for a boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow.

"I support whatever President Carter decides," said Baker. "But the athletes have worked a long and hard time and I don't believe politics and athletes should be together."

Carter called Brooks Sunday and invited the athletes to town after the U.S. hockey team defeated the favored Soviet Union Friday and then rallied to beat Finland Sunday and win the gold medal in one of the biggest upsets in Olympic history.

"This team startled the athletic world," Brooks told reporters at Lake Placid. "I don't mean the hockey world, I mean the athletic world. As years go by, you'll remember these people."

Steven Harriett Brings New Goal To Sanford Legacy

GEORGE WASHINGTON HARRIETT
... former city police officer

The announcement was made a month ago. Steven Harriett, 26, was appointed assistant city manager of Sanford, one of the youngest men in the state to hold such a position of responsibility.

It should not have been a surprise. Harriett usually gets what he goes after. A native of Sanford, he began as a patrolman little more than 4 1/2 years ago. After only two years with the department he sought the position of administrative aid to Police Chief Ben Butler when it became vacant and won that job.

His goal in life is to be Sanford's city manager someday — after he has "learned everything."

He has a degree in criminology from Florida State University. He plans to return to school in September, or possibly even this summer, at the University of Central Florida pursuing a degree in public administration.

Public service in the employ of the city of Sanford has been a family affair with the Harrietts for the past half century.

It began with Steve's grandfather, George Washington Harriett, who was a police officer with the city force until his death in 1930. The senior Harriett's one son, W.H. Harriett, was a Sanford police officer from 1946 until he retired in 1971.

Another son, Steve's father, G. Manning Harriett, has been fire chief for nearly 38 years. George M. Harriett Jr., Steve's brother, served on the police department in the 1960s.

Combined city service of these five members of the family to this point totals about 75 years.

A 1971 graduate of Seminole High School, he was active in the Key Club there and worked at a local super market through his high school years. Although he grew up with the fire department — he and his family were always around the department — firefighting did not appeal to him as a career.

Harriett always had a very personal feeling about the city itself. "As I was growing up everyone knew everyone else and associated with each other. It was a typical small town and a nice place to live."

Today the city government operation is much more technical, more professional and "we are aware of our commitment to better service that brings direct benefit to the citizens," Harriett said, adding the city government personnel are trying to keep up with the changing times.

Even though the town is growing the people remain much the same, he said, noting the people of Sanford are still basically close-knit. "I grew up planning that someday I would be working for the city."

One of Harriett's prized possessions is a photograph of the grandfather he never knew, attired in his police uniform.

The youngest of three boys born to Fire Chief and Mrs. Harriett, he is the only survivor. He and his wife, Suzie, have a son, Steven D. Harriett Jr., two months and two weeks old.

Active in the Sanford Kiwanis Club and in his church, Sanford Alliance, Harriett enjoys photography, reading and education. "I like to go to school to learn things," he said.

His job entails a lot of duties and responsibilities, he said, adding it is a training program as well. He believes the position requires a desire to learn, incorporating education and common sense. Basically he is available to do whatever City Manager Warren Knowles wishes him to do.

While the city's work schedule requires 37 1/2 hours on the job, Harriett's practice is to "work until the job is done. I'm not a clock-watcher," he said.

"I perform the work as necessary, doing whatever it takes to get the job accomplished," he said. Currently he is in process of revising the safety program for the city employees. He also is researching the city's capital-purchasing and retirement plans, searching for ways to revise and improve both.
