'A real cliffhanger'

SANFORD - The wait continues.

Seminole County officials were ready Monday to get the word they had won out in the race with California to offer the training facility for the United States World Cup soccer team. Instead, the word was no word. "It's a real cliffhanger." said County Manager

Ron Rabun.

A national soccer spokesman said Monday the final decision hasn't been made. "We're still running things through with regards to the situation," said John Polis, spokesman for the U.S. Soccer Federation. "It's not hopeful we'll have anything today. Maybe in 24 or 48 hours." "It looks favorable for Orlando," said Barry Taylor, a Longwood sports consultant who maintains contact with USSF and World Cup USA 1994 officials. "They've decided to back off the announcement for now while the lawyers look over everything. Negotiations are moving forward."

SANFORD - The Seminole County School Board approved part of the proposed 1992-93 budget recommendations yesterday. It includes rehiring at least 111 teachers, most of whom were let go earlier this year.

Superintendent Paul Hagerty made his initial budget presentation at a workshop session yesterday afternoon. The increase in teachers is listed on the proposed budget at a cost of $2,595,605.

Of the 280 persons laid off in the past year, 98 were teachers. John Pavelchak, acting assistant superintendent of business and finance explained. "Whether or not all of the teachers hired this time will be the same persons that were let go will be determined by the Personnel Department, but I would assume most of them will be returning."

"This is strictly to reduce the pupil to teacher ratio," Hagerty said.

The teachers will be called back to reduce the pupil to teacher ratio by one, at each of the 44 schools, 17 will return to high schools, 13.5 to middle schools, and 34 to elementary schools.

At the high school level, it would reduce the level from 29 to one, to 28 to one. For middle schools, the drop would be from 30 to one to 29 to one, and at the elementary school level, from 27 to one to 26 to one.

Additionally, 'one extra teaching unit, to be classified as an "assistant", will be added to each school for an additional 44. The type of assistant however, drew questions from the board.

Board member Jeanne Morris said, "With the assistant that could be added, I would like to see more flexibility at the elementary and middle school level," she said.

Board member Joe Williams agreed. "Perhaps we should look at other jobs such as clerical or occupational specialists," he suggested. Other members discussed the possibility of rehiring counselors and media specialists. Discussion however, eventually returned to Hagerty's original plan to "rehire only those Bee Teachers, Page 6A

SANFORD - Seminole High School Principal Gretchen Schapker recapped her first year in charge for Sanford Historical Downtown Waterfront Association members this morning by outlining programs and plans the school will implement this year.

"I had no idea there was so much going on." SHDWA President Chris Cranius said after the meeting.

Shapker said the Tech Prep Program is ready to begin training middle level students for jobs in technology. The program is also available at Lyman High School. A Department of Education grant for nearly $600,000 is paying for Tech Prep. "There is explosive growth of technology on the job. We're ready," she said.

Tech Prep allows students in their last two years

Tech Prep allows students in their last two years to study a high technology curriculum that is "more applied, more relevant," Shapker said. Students then transfer to Tech Prep partner Seminole Community College for a final two years in their course of study. Students may choose Automotive Service, Electronics, Computer Drafting and Health Services.

"Everything is so much more technical. Trouble shooting on an automobile, for example, is now nputer." she explained. Schapker said a Department of Labor study for the

Hippo killed by lightning

PUNTA GORDA - A hippopotamus who keepers said had acted strangely since its brother was shot by vandals last year was killed by lightning.

Garth, a former circus performer, was found dead Monday morning at Octagon Wildlife Sanctuary, according to Octagon founder Pete Caron.

Veterinarian Kurt Winter said the 7.000-pound hippo was electrocuted. Tissue samples were taken for analysis at the University of Florida, he said.

Garth's brother. Percy, was killed by gunshots last August. Police never found those responsible.

Garth pushed Percy's body to the center of their pond, and kept keepers at bay for a day.

He appeared to be lonely ever since, doing odd things, including trampling his fence and leaving the sanctuary in October.

County plans lower tax rate

By J. MARK BARFIELD Heraid Staff Writer

SANFORD - Keeping the reins on spending is the theme of County Manager Ron Rabun's proposed budget for the year beginning in October.

By taking advantage of a 5 percent spending cut begun earlier this year, lowering the range of pay increases, and making other modifications, Rabun has been able to reduce the county tax rate and move still forward with new programs. The 5 percent reduction lead to $2 million in either savings or deffered spending, said Rabun. "We didn't want to react," said

Rabun, "we wanted a proactive approach."

Commissioners began their four-day review of Rabun's proposed $233.7 million spending plan Monday with reviews of a proposed automated geological computer database and the final buildup of fire engine crews.

The public will be able to review the proposals in a series of town hearings next month. The sessions will be held at the Agricultural Auditorium at the county's Five Points complex in Sanford Aug. 12 and at the Central Branch Library in Casselberry on Aug. 11 and 13. Each session begins at 7 p.m.

Commissioners will set the tentative millage rate July 28 which the Property Appraiser will use to send out notices to taxpayers. The county can lower the rate, but not increase it without individually notifying each property owner again. The county will adopt the budget and tax rate in two hearings. Sept. 6 and 22.

Rabun has proposed lowering the countywide tax rate from about $5.70 per $1,000 of taxable property to about $5.42. The effect of the decrease would be to lower the annual tax from about $427 to $406 for owners of $100,000 homes taking the state's $25,000 homestead exemption.

County tax income for general operations will increase slightly from $49.6 million to $51 million as the result of new construction.

Commissioners reviewed two major programs Monday, the financing of a geographic information system, GIS, and completion of program to provide three men in each fire engine.

Central Services Director Cindy Wright said the GIS system would reduce duplication and reduce time spent on matters that involve land which includes 80 percent of the information handled by the county. The GIS system may take 10 years to complete and involves the Property Appraiser's Office and several county departments.

Property Appraiser Bill Suber said the system would tie together databases from the different divisions to give someone everything known about a piece of property. including owner, elevation and location of nearby utilities and roads. The system would eliminate most paper maps used by the county and would end duplication of maps and other information among departments.

We are not operating very ef-fectively or effectently," said Wright.

Rabun asked for $190,514 to buy equipment and hire one staffer to coordinate the system development. Suber has already appropriated

Year-round classes off to a 'smooth' start

By LACY D Herald People Editor

SANFORD - Officials from the three Seminole County schools that began year-round classes Monday all summarized the first day in one word. "Smooth." Geraldine Wright. Sanford's Goldsboro Elementary School principal said.

"Smooth. It's so smooth, I keep waiting for something to happen." ines Schmook. Geneva Elementary School assistant principal said.

"Smooth. Everybody knows what they're doing, where they're going.

I've never started school in July. though. It's a long time till Labor Ovledo's Lawton Elementary Dav." School principal Terry Rabun joked.

Wright said about 800 students were expected to report to Goldsboro yesterday. She said 750 showed up.

"It was a busy day. I kept looking for a larger number of kids on the bus. I had to remind myself that on the new system, there are 20 percent fewer kids on campus." she said.

Students are assigned tracks, by color. Twenty percent of the students rotate vacation time. In three weeks, one track will vacation for three weeks while another track begins classes.

Lawton's assistant principal Blanche Bowlden said the program has been very well-received by parents. She said 648 students reported Monday, about 45 less than they were anticipating. Those numbers are excellent, she said, because some children are expected to have moved from the area. Some students may not have their paperwork and physical exams complete, and so were unable to begin school Monday.

"All in all, it was very, very good. No tears today," Bowlden said.

Schmook reported 652 students sat in classes. Geneva expected 680.

"That's great, absolutely great. We had more kids show up today than ever," she said.

The only problem Schmook noted was minor. Some tears were shed by a few nervous kindergariners.

'We had a few mothers who cried. too," she said.

Wright said she considers the new year-round program a success.

"I think everybody had a good day. If it goes as smooth as this first day, I'm in favor of it." she said.

Commission to direct travel promotions

MIAMI - An industry-driven state-commission on tourism has been created to shape promotional campaigns for Florida's biggest business.

Gov. Lawton Chiles led a ceremonial signing of a bill creating the commission to show his commitment to the $24 billion industry with 650, 100 employees.

"I know that many of you have had a tough time in the last year," the governor told an audience that absorbed a 4.1 percent drop in visitation last year, the largest single-year decline since the 1972 energy crisis. "Today I think we've taken that step to get tourism back into form."

International tourism, fed by the weak dollar, is still a bright spot for Florida and has kept the state from feeling "the full effects of a disastrous national recession," Chiles said Monday at the governor's annual tourism conference.

Applications for HRS boards scarce

TALLAHASSEE - Lawmakers gave regional citizen boards more say in running the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, but in some places there are few applicants for the job.

For instance, in Broward County, where the deadline for applications is Aug. 20, just two people have applied to be on the board of District 10.

Many districts have extended the deadline for applications, hoping to get more response.

The boards must be balanced in terms of race, gender and culture, but just coming up with members is proving to be a challenge in some places.

Each board will have 15 to 23 members. Gov. Lawton Chiles and county commissioners will make the appointments, choosing from a slate of 45 names submitted by a nominating committee.

Krog says job with Chiles has been fun

TALLAHASSEE - Jim Krog, the outgoing chief of staff for Gov. Lawton Chiles, said he found the job rewarding despite the failure of many of the governor's programs in the Legislature.

"This has been fun," Krog said Monday. "You can't get a better job than this in terms of making an impact here and there. I've just got some things I need to work through with my family."

Krog, a lobbyist with the Steel Hector and Davis law firm before becoming Chiles' campaign manager in 1990, said he would probably return to the lobbyist ranks.

"Yeah, I'm going to look at a couple of things," he said. "I really haven't made a decision."

State law bars Krog from lobbying the executive branch for two years after his departure, but he can lobby the Legislature or other agencies.

Chiles said he has yet to sit down and talk with Krog but doesn't think his chief of staff will have a change of heart. Krog said he hadn't decided when to leave.

Letter evoking slavings angers officials

MIAMI - University of Florida officials are so angry by a letter to families of students urging them to buy a stun gun that they may end the practice of selling the school's student mailing list.

The letter by John Katon, president of the Tamiami Range & Gun Shops in Miami, reminds parents of the recent series of student murders around the Gainesville-based campus.

"As the father of four precious sons and daughters, I share your anxiety about your own child or children - especially when that child attends the University of Florida and still must deal with the psychological trauma of the recent student-killing spree," the letter read.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Remorseful cop killer executed

Associated Press Writer

STARKE - Edward Dean Kennedy, who escaped execution by just two hours in May, died this morning in Florida's electric chair for killing two men during a 1981 prison escape.

Kennedy was condemned for the April 11, 1961 murder of Floyd H. Cone Jr. and Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Robert Patrick McDermon in Duval County.

The execution proceeded without problems, said Kathy Putnam, a spokeswoman for Gov. Lawton Chiles, who gave the final approval minutes before. Chiles had no comment.

'Peace be with you all." Kennedy said after he was strapped into the chair, adding in Arabic "Allahu akbar ('Allah is the greatest.")"

When the power to the electric chair was turned on at 7:04 a.m. ET. Kennedy pushed up and back, and his right hand clenched.

After about a minute, large puffs of white smoke rose from the place on his right leg where the electrode was attached. When the power was cut at 7:06.

his body settled into the chair. Even as a doctor performed the post-mortem examination, Kennedy's upper chest twitched briefly.

Susan Cary, a Gaineaville attorney who works with death row inmates, said Kennedy mouthed the words "I love you" to her before the execution. As she spoke to reporters, a giant rainbow loomed over the state prison.

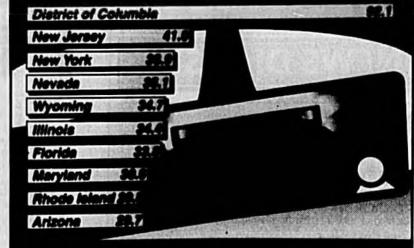

Floyd Cone Sr., father of one of the murder victims, witnessed the execution.

"Today justice has finally been carried out after a far too long delay. Floyd Jr. and Bob McDermon were tried, sentenced and executed in a matter of minutes. They were denied any time for appeals for their lives."

The judicial system is more concerned about the rights of defendants than those of victims, he said, then addressed his family's loss.

Role models influenced by television

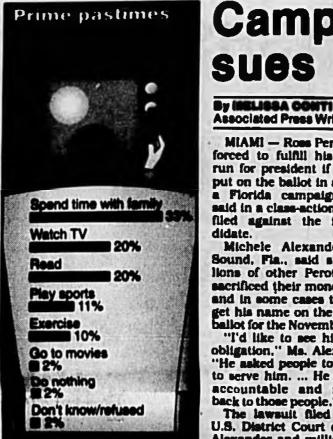

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Many children find role models while watching television - but the availability of jobs as ghostbusters and vampire hunters may be limited.

A Florida State University study says most television programs watched by children give them a false impression of the working world.

The study, a doctoral dissertation by Judith McGregor, found that television portrays too few people working and even fewer being rewarded for it. It also found the jobs depicted do not represent the occupational makeup of the real world.

"Many children nominate television characters as people they would like to be like when they grow up," said McGregor, who earned her Ph.D. in elementary education from the departpractice at FSU. "Children frequently spend more time in front of a television set than in a formal classroom. This makes it important to look at the content of what they are watching."

Everglades mercury levels climbing

ST. PETERSBURG — As mercury levels mysteriously continue to rise in the Everglades, stymied scientists want Floridians to be more careful about the sources of the toxic element they can control.

University of Florida environmental engineering professor Joseph Delfino headed a yearlong study of South Florida wetlands released Monday. It showed significant increases in mercury contamination in sediment during the last three to five years.

'In some places, it is as high as a threefold increase, and in others, it's only a 20-percent increase," Delfino said. "Right now, it is not possible to determine the sources."

But scientists do have ideas about where some of it comes from

"We believe that up to one-half of all the mercury released into the atmosphere comes from the oceans. Other natural sources include volcanic activity and forest and swamp fires," Delfino said.

Bertrand challenges Warren for county commission seat

By J. MARK BARPIELD Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD - Saying it's time for a change. Ray Bertrand of Sanford is seeking the District 1 county commission seat held by Pat Warren.

Democrat Bertrand, 34, will face either Warren or Republican John Tracy in November. Bertrand said after deciding to run for county commission earlier this year, he decided not to oppose Democrat Fred Harden in District 5 where he now resides. Although Bertrand does not have to live in District 1 while campaigning, he will have to move there upon election.

Bertrand splits his time between his role as the "bad guy" in the Wild West Frontier show at Walt Disney World and as an Orange County corrections officer. Commission to direct travel promotions

MIAMI - An industry-driven state commission on tourism has been created to shape promotional campaigns for Florida's biggest business

Gov. Lawton Chiles led a ceremonial signing of a bill creating the commission to show his commitment to the $24 billion industry with 650, 100 employees.

"I know that many of you have had a tough time in the last year," the governor told an audience that absorbed a 4.1 percent drop in visitation last year, the largest single-year decline since the 1972 energy crisis. "Today I think we've taken that step to get tourism back into form."

International tourism, fed by the weak dollar, is still a bright spot for Florida and has kept the state from feeling "the full effects of a disastrous national recession," Chiles said Monday at the governor's annual tourism conference.

Applications for HRS boards scarce

TALLAHASSEE - Lawmakers gave regional citizen boards more say in running the state Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services, but in some places there are few applicants for the job. For instance, in Broward County, where the deadline for applications is Aug. 20, just two people have applied to be on the board of District 10.

Many districts have extended the deadline for applications. hoping to get more response.

The boards must be balanced in terms of race, gender and culture, but just coming up with members is proving to be a challenge in some places.

Each board will have 15 to 23 members. Gov. Lawton Chiles and county commissioners will make the appointments. choosing from a slate of 45 names submitted by a nominating committee.

Krog says job with Chiles has been fun

TALLAHASSEE - Jim Krog, the outgoing chief of staff for Gov. Lawton Chiles, said he found the job rewarding despite the failure of many of the governor's programs in the Legislature.

"This has been fun," Krog said Monday. "You can't get a better job than this in terms of making an impact here and there. I've just got some things I need to work through with my family.

Krog, a lobbyist with the Steel Hector and Davis law firm before becoming Chiles' campaign manager in 1990, said he would probably return to the lobbyist ranks.

"Yeah, I'm going to look at a couple of things," he said. "I really haven't made a decision."

State law bars Krog from lobbying the executive branch for two years after his departure, but he can lobby the Legislature or other agencies.

Chiles said he has yet to sit down and talk with Krog but doesn't think his chief of staff will have a change of heart. Krog said he hadn't decided when to leave.

Letter evoking slavings angers officials

MIAMI - University of Florida officials are so angry by a letter to families of students urging them to buy a stun gun that they may end the practice of selling the school's student mailing list.

The letter by John Katon, president of the Tamiami Range & Gun Shops in Miami, reminds parents of the recent series of student murders around the Gaineaville-based campus.

"As the father of four precious sons and daughters, I share your anxiety about your own child or children - especially when that child attends the University of Florida and still must. deal with the psychological trauma of the recent student-killing

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE Remorseful cop killer executed

By ROH WORD Associated Press Writer

STARKE - Edward Dean Kennedy, who escaped execution by just two hours in May. died this morning in Florida's electric chair for killing two men during a 1981 prison escape.

Kennedy was condemned for the April 11, 1961 murder of Floyd H. Cone Jr. and Florida Highway Patrol Trooper Robert Patrick McDermon in Duval County.

The execution proceeded without problems, said Kathy Putnam, a spokeswoman for Gov. Lawton Chiles, who gave the final approval minutes before. Chiles had no comment.

"Peace be with you all." Kennedy said after he was strapped into the chair, adding in Arabic "Allahu akbar ('Allah is the greatest.")"

When the power to the electric chair was turned on at 7:04 a.m. ET. Kennedy pushed up and back, and his right hand clenched.

After about a minute, large puffs of white smoke rose from the place on his right leg where the electrode was attached. When the power was cut at 7:06, his body settled into the chair. Even as a doctor performed the post-mortem examination. Kennedy's upper chest twitched briefly.

Susan Cary, a Gainesville attorney who works with death row inmates, said Kennedy mouthed the words "I love you" to her before the execution. As she spoke to reporters, a giant rainbow loomed over the state prison.

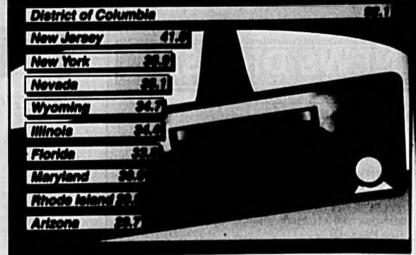

Floyd Cone Sr., father of one of the murder victims, witnessed the execution.

"Today justice has finally been carried out after a far too long delay. Floyd Jr. and Bob McDermon were tried, sentenced and executed in a matter of minutes. They were denied any time for appeals for their lives."

The judicial system is more concerned about the rights of defendants than those of victims, he said, then addressed his family's loss.

"There's a void in our lives as part of us is gone that can never be replaced," Cone said. "All that we have left now are a few personal things, pictures, and precious memories.

Role models influenced by television

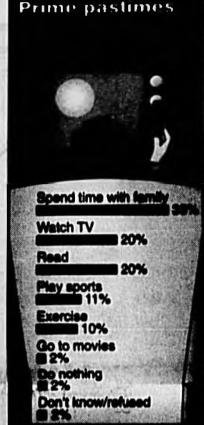

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE - Many children find role models while watching television - but the availability of jobs as ghostbusters and vampire hunters may be limited.

A Florida State University study says most television programs watched by children give them a false impression of the working world.

The study, a doctoral dissertation by Judith McGregor, found that television portrays too few people working and even fewer being rewarded for it. It also found the jobs depicted do not represent the occupational makeup of the real world.

"Many children nominate television characters as people they would like to be like when they grow up." said McGregor, who earned her Ph.D. in elementary education from the department of educational theory and practice at FSU. "Children frequently spend more time in front of a television set than in a formal classroom. This makes it important to look at the content

A teen-age girl has a baby out of wedlock. The father of the child is a high school dropout without a job. They should be the target of welfare reform efforts percolating in California and elsewhere. That's because most welfare recipients are short-timers.

These individuals usually seek assistance because of an unfortunate circumstance such as a divorce, the death of a spouse, or a temporary disability. the short-timers stay on the public dole only until they can get back on their feet. They are not a problem.

The real drain on the welfare system is the long-term recipient, like our teen-age mother. While long-termers constitute a minority of the welfare caseload, they account for the biggest expense. If they somehow can be weaned from welfare dependency, tremendous savings are to be had.

But how to do this? Through a rather simple formula: Education + marriage + work equals upward mobility.

Census Bureau poverty data bear this out A family with two parents, both high school graduates, with one or both working full time, ycar-round has a better than 95 percent probability of not being poor. The key to attacking poverty then is to encourage poor young men and women to get high school diplomas, get married, stay married and get jobs.

Unfortunately, the existing welfare system provides insufficient incentives for education or marriage or work - the keys to escaping poverty. Instead, much of the $210 billion a year that all governments spend on welfare goes to treating symptoms of poverty.

Much of this is simply wasteful spending. In fact, the Census Bureau calculates that it would cost roughly $5,200 to lift the average poor family above the poverty line. With a total 7 million such families nationwide, this adds up to roughly $37 bilion. The problem of welfare is not that government is spending too little. It's that government is spending unwisely.

Rosa Perot's dramatic decision not to run for the presidency after all was, obviously, a product disillusionment on both scores. The mudof what has happened to this man in the past three or four months

We can dismiss the explanation he offered at and Perot, who no his press conference: that the Democrats have now "revitalized themselves" to the point where what was for all practical purposes a two man selfless patriot, was race between himself and Bush had become a three-way battle, likely to end up in the House of Representatives. That, Perot told reporters, would be highly unsatisfactory.

Mr. Perot may truly believe this rationale for his decision, but few others will. For one thing, it is by no means clear that the contest would have ended up in the House of Representatives if he had stayed in it. His poll ratings were beginning to slide, and it was entirely possible that he wouldn't have carried a single state in November, let alone enough to deprive Bush or Clinton of a majority in the Electoral College.

The truth is that Ross Perot has undergone quite an education in the past few months. He seems to have started out with the naive belief that a large groundswell of amateur volunteers would be enough to win him the presidency, and that once elected his indisputable talents as a business executive would enable him to implement the policies he considered desirable.

The spring of 1992 proved a long, dismaying gunners were all over him within weeks,

As soon as he rose to speak to an audience not composed of his own volunteers (I.e., the NAACP), his impromptu remarks quickly made mat ters worse. Before long, the professional advisers he had hired to counsel him on the finer points of campaigning (e.g., Ed "I carried 49 states for

Worst of all, his recent efforts to study the innumerable national problems to which he had "frankly never given a moment's thought," and to devise palatable proposals for solving them. must have shaken him to the core. Quite clearly, being president was going to require a lot more than a few of his famous snap analyses. Finally, on the evidence of his press conference, it had begun to dawn on Perot that a president without a party of his own, confronting a Congress controlled by shrewd and hostile Democrats or Republicans, lacks many of the weapons of a CEO who owns a majority of his corporation's voting stock.

So Ross Perot, not for the first time in his colorful career, pulled out of a situation that had stopped being "fun." He had learned what Finley Peter Dunne's Mr. Dooley observed many years ago: "Politics ain't bean-bag."

The early beneficiary of this development is probably George Bush. Perot had conceived of the race as basically between himself and Bush. and had pounded Bush mercilessly, all but ignoring the Democrats. Now, that imbalance has ended, and the race is back to its normal Republican-vs.-Democrat configuration.

ROBERT WAGMAN Money spoke at Dem convention

NEW YORK - With most of the political suspense wrung out of national political conventions long before the first delegate arrives in town, the real story behind these quadrennial gatherings is increasingly money - money raised by the party and its candidates, and money spent by the delegates, lobbyists and the attendant media army. For the past 15 years, the GOP has ranged far ahead of the Democrats In raising huge amounts of "soft" money - contributions made directly to the party as opposed to a particular candidate. The latter are limited to $1,000 per candidate, or to $5,000 from a regis-tered political action committee. Soft donations, however.

have gotten the drift. They recognize the formula for upward mobility and they are trying to bring reform to the failing welfare system.

· In California, for instance, Gov. Pete Wilson is backing an initiative that, among other things, would pare cash benefits by 15 percent after six months for families in which an able-bodied parent is not working. The Wilson reform also would provide an additional $50 monthly stipend for teen-age welfare moms who stay in school.

In Wisconsin, Gov. Tommy Thompson has initiated a plan that rewards teen-age mothers who marry. While unmarried welfare moms receive a flat $440 a month regardless of how many children they have, married moms not only receive the $440 but also an extra $80 per month for each child.

Neither the Wilson nor Thompson reform incoporates the entire formula for escaping poverty and welfare. But at least they address certain elements of the formula. And that represents a sea change in the governmental approach to welfare.

Other states shuld build on the reforms that governors like Wilson and Thompson have undertaken. Once one state builds all the clements of upward mobility into its welfare system, we may finally see the beginning of the end of the wasteful welfare state.

JAY D. HAIR Cyanide mining poses risks

Cyanide is a potent killer. It is also the chemical heart of a mining process that's extracting billions of dollars of gold from ore that just a decade or so ago was considered played out.

This year somewhere between 100 million and 200 million pounds of cyanide will be poured into a new Western mining bonanza already producing twice as much buillon as the 1850s California gold rush.

What's called the cyanide heap leach process is the chemical fix behind a surge in U.S. gold production from 500,000 ounces in 1979 to nearly 9.5 million ounces last year. With gold selling in the $350 per ounce range, that spells business in the billions.

The cyanide process is also etching an environmental legacy that includes dead wildlife, leaks and spills of contaminated water and long-term threats to underground water supplies.

The process itself has been understood for a long time, but only put to widescale use since the late 1970s. It starts with heaps of gold-bearing ore. either newly dug from open pits or left over from old mining operations. Sprinklers douse the heap with water mixed with cyanide. The chemical dissolves out microscopic particles of gold as it leaches through the ore heap. The resultant "pregnant solution" is collected in a pond and then pumped to a plant where the gold is processed. The lure of cyanide heap leaching is that it can make a profit on ore that contains as little as one one-hundredth of an ounce of gold per ton. That's nine times more efficient than conventional gold processing methods. It also means enormous quantities of ore are needed to feed the process. The open pit being dug at the Deep Post deposit in Nevada is expected to be 2,600 feet deep, a mile wide and two miles long by the time its U.S. and Canadian owners are ready to walk away from the job there.

The first problem to show itself as cyanide sites proliferated was the death of wildlife that drank the "pregnant solution" in ponds. Like everything else in the process, it's size and scale that count. Some of these ponds are more like lakes. The "pond" at one of Nevada's larger cyanide sites covers 125 acres.

State and federal game officials have documented the deaths of tens of thousands of migratory birds dosed with cyanide when drinking at the ponds. Privately, they say the toll is probably in the hundreds of thousands. Deer, elk and other animals have died for the same reason.

While this wildlife wastage does persist, it can be overcome by fencing off the ponds and placing netting over them, or by storing the solution in scaled tanks. These steps are finally being taken, although no survey exists to pinpoint the laggards.

It took a little longer for the next problem - the spills and the leaks - to become evident. Many ponds are inadequately lined to prevent seepage. A 1990 leak at one Colorado mine killed all aquatic life in a 17-mile stretch of the Alamosa River. In another case, in Lawrence County, S.D., a leak of 6,500 gallons of cyanide-laced water a day went undetected. For years. This leaked water, now leaching out heavy metals like lead and cadmium. is slowly percolating toward underground aquifers.

In other cases. ponds have spilled over their banks. usually due to storm surges from heavy rainfall and runoff. Two years ago, a containment dam at a mine in Bouth Carolina (the nation's third largest gold producer), burst after a storm. Ten million gallons of cyanidedosed water flooded into nearby streams and creeks. The year before, the Central Valley Region Water Quality Control Board charged that cyanide solution from a 92,000-gailon spill at the Carson Hill Mine in California was diluted into the New Melones Reservoir, which serves city and farm users.

The chemical fix behind a surge in U.S. gold production.

Mine operators say these kinds of problems are being resolved, which is true in part but by no means in whole. They also point out that cyanide dissipates into harmless components after relatively brief exposure to sun and air. Their line is that there won't be any long-term cyanide problem if the heaps are flushed out before abandonment and the ponds are either pumped dry or are allowed to evaporate.

That's where the third problem lies, the one that may not crop up until long after the gold is gone. A few years ago, repair work on an abandoned California cyanide pond turned up an unexpected discovery, according to David Mullon Jr., Southwest representative of the Washington, D.C.-based Mineral Policy Center. The acdiment wasn't free of cyanide as predicted. Instead, according to a state report, the possibility of a toxic cyanide discharge may persist for the next 20 years. If this California finding is an example of a generalized condition. Mullon says, scores or hundreds of other sites may be "storing concentrated pockets" of cyanide that could eventually leak through the base of the pond and percolate into the groundwater.

six-figure amounts. The Republicans have been successful with their "Committee of 100," the membership of which is composed of those giving more than $100,000. Through such groups the GOP has raised millions. However, at this year's New York convention, the Democrats showed they could do it too.

Sitting in VIP scats in the Madison Square Garden skyboxes were members of the DNC's Business Council. According to the organization's co-chair, Nell Offen, it has accepted many new members in the last few months. The lowest rung in the "Council" is for those giving at least $15,000. If you raise $200,000 or personally give $100,000 you become a "Managing Trustee." In New York. 32 such managing trustees received skybox convention seats, invitations to the best parties, and tickets to sold-out Broadway shows.

But the Democrats did not just treat big donors to a week of fun. Millions of dollars went from donors' checkbooks into campaign coffers, as hundreds of Democratic candidates held fund-raising breakfasts, lunches and cocktail parties. Another $3 million went to help Bill Clinton balance his primary books.

It normally costs about $70 to take the train from Washington to New York. But an undetermined number of lobbyists were happy to pay $9,930 more for the same three-hour trip aboard the "Victory Special," a train chartered by the DNC to bring Party VIPs from Washington to New York for the convention.

According to a letter sent out by the DNC to a select list of Washington lobbyists, for your $10,000 you got a train ride and the ability to spend three hours "roaming the train to enjoy the ride with members of Congress. Democratic governors and mayors and major Democratic contributors from all over the country. ... Whether meeting new acquaintances, catching up with old friends or enjoying the scenery through the glass wall of the special observation car, the journey promises to be memorable."

A DNC spokesman says it is too early to say how many took the offer. But it is reasonable to believe that few who did spent much time admiring the scenery at about $50 a mile.

The Democratic convention was a showcase for lobbyists, as the Republican convention in Houston will be. The weekend before the convention, and most every convention afternoon and evening, was crammed with lavish parties thrown by lobbyists.

The Louisiana delegation, and its leader Sen. J. Bennett Johnston, chairman of the Energy Committee, were treated to a lavish champagne buffet boat ride around Manhattan by the natural gas folks. The investment banking firm of Goldman Sachs & Co., which sells a lot of municipal bonds, held a lavish party honoring Democratic governors at the Museum of Modern Art.

Densons who would help reduce the pupil to teacher ratio this year, and consider the others, perhaps next year."

Neither Hagerty nor Pavelchak expected any programs would be cut from the school system during this coming year.

One other point approved by the Board yesterday was a proposal to partially restore the Student Museum and Environmental Center. Hagerty has budgeted $89,622 for the Museum, and $126,236 for the Center. He has also proposed adding one teacher and one assistant to the Student Museum, and two teachers and one assistant to the Environmental Center, with one custodian serving both operations.

Although there was a question of whether or not the six additional hires would relate directly to the pupil to teacher ratio, Warren said, "It is better to hire these additional personnel than, having to close these facilities and let them deteriorate." She added, "Even though they only involve students in grades four and five at the present time, they still help reduce the actual ciaseroom sizes from time to time, which allows the teachers

Following the workshop meeting, the Board voted to accept the proposal for "assistant teaching units" suggested by Hagerty, without making any changes and approve hiring personnel for the Museum and Environmental Center. The Board will not be considering the total budget and recommended millage rate for the time being. Pavelchak said, "The next meeting is this Thursday when the Board will is to approve what will be legally advertised." He added, "There is a public hearing scheduled for July 29, at 7 p.m., then the final budget hearing for adoption and setting of the millage rate will be held on Sept. 10."

Although Hagerty gave an overview of the entire budget, there was very little discussion on the financial aspects of it during yesterday's workshop.

Hagerty's proposed millage rate for fiscal 1992/93 would be down by only .018 from the present year, at 10.071.

taxes this year are expected to be $95,888,904, compared to $93,300,766 this past year." He added, "Part of the millage is required by State Law, which is slightly higher than this past year, at 6.493 compared to 6.459, but with our debt service needs approximately $200,000 lower, we were able to recommend a lower millage rate overall."

Hagerty's budget has also called for an increase in the amount allocated for school supplies, a total of $127,416.

Raises recommended by Hagerty will be at a two percent step increase. Pavelchak said. "This is the amount normally recommended for raises every year.'

Following a two hour work session during which time the various aspects of the budget were presented, the Board voted unanimously to accept Hagerty's recommendations, without any changes.

pushes children's 'GI Bill' Bush

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - The "GI Bill for Children." President Bush's plan to give $1,000 scholarships to students from poor and middle-income families, is getting a new push on the eve of its introduction in Congress.

Bush today was traveling to Archbishop Ryan High School, a Catholic school in northeast I'hiladelphia, to conduct an "Ask George" session on educational choice with 500 students, teachers, parents, educators and community leaders. Cardinal Anthony Bevilacqua was expected to speak.

Today's trip came on the heels of a sharply partisan televised address by Bush to campaign rallies in 27 states Monday night.

He accused Democrats of being weak on defense and foreign policy and said they think "that world peace doesn't matter."

While blaming Democrats for blocking his economic recovery program. Bush said. "We are polsed for what could be a spectacular recovery." On the other hand, he said the nation has been hurt by "this terrible anemic recovery or recessionary times.

Bush said that if Americans

"want to get rid of the deadlock in Washington they can start by getting rid of some deadwood in the United States Congress."

The administration chose the 2.650-student school for today's visit as having the sort of student body that would benefit from the administration's proposal.

"The White House wanted a school within a city with stu-dents from middle-income families who would benefit from the education choice bill." said Geri Arts, a communications assistant with the archdiocese of Philadelphia. "There are mostly middle-income children attending school there," she said

The Bush proposal, which might be altered to attract cosponsors, would allow poor or middle-income families to use the money at public or private schools, including religious institutions.

Since it was announced with fanfare at the White House last month, there has been little action on the $500 million pilot plan. Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., planned to introduce it in the Senate this week but an aide said Danforth still was trying to line up co-sponsors.

The plan guarantees a vigor-

States, cities or local school districts would have to apply to the Education Department for a share of the $500 million. The president likened the concept to the OI Bill, which helped millions of veterans attend college.

Parents must be free to use this money at the school they believe will best teach their child, whether the school is public, private or religious," said

Rep. William Ford, D-Mich., the chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, accused Bush of making a "phony promise to guilible people that they're going to be able to take public money and use it to go to a church-related school."

The Senate in January rejected, 56-37, an earlier Bush proposal for $30 million for school choice demonstration projects.

Clinton fires back at Bush

LOUISVILLE - Bill Clinton today scoffed at President Bush's criticism of the Democrat's economic plan as "smoke and mirrors." calling the president "an expert on that subject" who is inattentive to the nation's health care, education and jobs criscs.

Bush, signaling a tougher White House line against the Democratic presidential candidate, said Monday that Clinton's proposed economic program would "be a big mistake."

"What I see is a program that does not address itself to the deficit." Bush said in a Rose Garden event. He said figures Clinton uses to suggest he can invest billions in new jobs and infrastructure while cutting the deficit in half over four years were "smoke and mirrors."

from districts one, two and four in the 1993 election. Districts' three and five would be expanded in the 1994 city commission election. There would be no election required in 1995.

Longwood —

Persons elected this year would continue to serve two year terms. Both District 3, presently held by Commissioner Clanci Keith, and District 5, held by Lovestrand, will be on the ballot. Additionally, with Mayor Adrience Perry seeking a congressional seat, the remainder of her term as commissioner for District 1 will also be on this November's ballot.

The recommendation about terms of office for the city clerk and city attorney did draw some comments. At the present time, either can only be terminated by a vote of at least four to one. The proposed change would require only a three to two vote, similar to the requirements for dismissing a City Administrator. "We don't need this," Lovestrand said. "The city attorney is not a city employee, and is hired under a contract which already stipulates firing can be done by a three to two vote.'

Lovestrand also objected to the item pertaining to the transfer of appropriations from one department to another in certain circumstances, without the matter having to go before the commission.

"I realize it's a lengthy process at times," Lovestrand said. "but this city has a sordid past history of making impetuous decisions, and I believe every decision ought to come before the city commission or public referendum before any decisions on transferring or spending money can be made.

Lovestrand commented this morning. "In the first place, 1 didn't like the way the items were all presented for commission consideration on one ordinance. I believe they should have come up as separate matters.

He did vote in favor of the proposals last night. "just to bring it up for a public hearing during the second reading." he said.

With the ordinance approved by a unanimous vote, the second reading and public hearing will now be acheduled for the Aug. 3 City Commission meeting.

Track Series crowded 65 show up at Lake Mary high

From staff reports

LAKE MARY - The Lake Mary Track Series had its largest turnout of the season Monday, with 65 people competing.

"We had so many people it's pathetic," said Tournament coordinator Mike Gibson. "Six kids aged three and under ran in the 50 yard dash, and we've never had that before. It was so cute to watch them run down the track. The highest quality event was the two-miler with David Leggerton. He was impressive."

The track series takes place every Monday, with field events starting at 5 p.m. and track events following at 6:30. Next week, the Watermellon Mile Prediction will add to the fun. Contestents will, without the aid of timing instruments, predict their times, with the closest male and female winning a watermellon.

Leggerton, whose sons Doug and Daniel also competed, finished first in the two miler, with a 10.57.9 clip. He defeated David Brelford, who finished at 13.49.1.

Costin was the starting and faced just two batters over the minmum over the first three innings. Defensively, Wilder, playing second base, was involved in six of the first 12 outs recorded by Seminole and saved a run by making a back-hand grab of a shot headed for center field.

Eubanks again carried the big bat as he went 4-for-4, scored two runs and drove in four more. Also getting hits were Petterson and Frost (both 2-for-3), Raines and Hillinski (one double each) and Ferrell, Monaco and Taylor (one hit each).

The final saw the locals again facing Lake Worth, who had battled back out of the loser's bracket.

Seminole got on the board immediately as Ferrell walked with bases loaded in the bottom of the first inning to plate Taylor. McCarthy, meanwhile, started on the mound and pitched a perfect nine up, nine down over the first three innings. But in the fourth inning it looked like Lake Worth might tie the game.

With one out and runners on second and third, the Lake Worth cleanup batter lined a shot to deep left centerfield that was caught on the run by Frost, who planted himself and rifled a perfect one hop throw to Taylor at the plate to retire the unsuspecting Lake Worth runner and complete the double play to end the inning.

Seminole then gave itself some insurance in the fifth inning as Torres led off with a double to left and took third on a failed pickoff attempt. He then scored on a wild pitch. Petterson followed with a triple and he scored on a botched appeal at first base.

Lake Worth threatened again in the sixth inning. After the visitors loaded the bases with no one out, Frost was called on to quell the threat. He responded by enticing the first batter to pop up to the catcher, got the next batter to ground to Hillnski who forced the runner at the plate and then ended the inning by getting another grounder to Hillinski.

The Seminole team would like to thank the following businesses for sponsoring their trip to state: Ken Rummel Chevrolet, Publix of Casselberry. The Coca-Cola Bottling Company, McDonald's, Winn Dixie, Goodings and Wal-Mart.

Questions of nationality easily answered

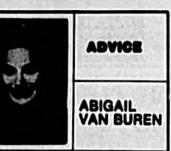

DEAR ABBY: In reference to a problem you were asked to help with: I have a story that will make your correspondent feel much better about her inability to tell one Asian from another. Chompoo, a sweet little Thai girl, lived in our apartment building while going to school in Washington, D.C. While shopping with her in one of the big department stores, we spled another Asian-looking girl, so we pointed her out and asked if that girl was also Thai. Chompoo said she'd find out, so she went over to her and they exchanged a few pleasant words, introducing themselves. As it turned out, the other girl asked our Thai friend if she was Filipino.

Chompoo said that many times they can't tell one nationality from the other themselves, so how could we be expected to? We had people of all nationalities in our home nearly all the time and we enjoyed them all, but like you said, Abby, "Ask them - most of them are proud to tell you and will not take offense."

M.B.B. (RETIRED IN LORIDA) DEAR M.B.B.: Most, but not all. One reader wrote to say that she (out of curiosity) approached a gentleman with Oriental features and said, "My friend and I have a bet on. Where are you from?"

The gentleman replied, "Cincinnati."

She said that she and her husband had talked it over and decided that since I had given her the vase, they would leave it to me in their will - and if I predeceased them, it would go to my children. (I could tell by her tone that she thought she was being very generous.)

I am aware that I have no legal claim on the vase. Also, they did not have to tell me about the appraisal, or remember me in their will. However, had the situation been reversed, I would have returned the vane as soon as I learned of the appraisal.

U.N. resumes relief flights

SARAJEVO, Bosnia-Herzegovina - U.N. officials reopened Sarajevo's airport for relief flights today despite continued shelling of the Bosnian capital, and planes loaded with aid were already on their way.

Croatian radio reported that Sarajevo was bombarded from Serb positions until midnight with shells falling mostly in the suburbs of Alipasino, Polje and Dobrinja, near the airport. The airport was closed all day Monday, cutting the capital's lifeline for aid shipments, because of flerce fighting in Sarajevo that also engulfed the airport.

Mike Attchinson, a U.N. High Commissioner for Refugees coordinator in Zagreb, said aid flights would be allowed in at a slower pace than before the one-day halt.

Maj. Gen. Lewis MacKenzie, the U.N. commander in Sarajevo, "wants only one aircraft on the ground at a time," and that will cut the number of daily flights from 21 to about 13. Aitchinson said.

Prototype crashes killing seven

QUANTICO. Va. - The second crash in 13 months of the experimental V-22 Osprey tilt-rotor aircraft provides new ammunition to critics just as Congress is taking a hard look at the expensive helicopter-airplane hybrid.

All seven people aboard a prototype V-22 died Monday when the aircraft plunged into the Potomac River while trying to land at the Quantico Marine Air Facility.

The House Appropriations Committee and Senate Armed Services Committee were due this week to take up a plan that would free some $1.5 billion for continued development of the aircraft, breaking a four-year stalemate with the Pentagon over funding for the project.

"It couldn't have come at a more inopportune time." said Brian Keeter, a spokesman for Rep. Robert K. Dornan, R-Calif., a staunch supporter of the program.

In June of last year a V-22 crashed at the New Castle County Airport in Delaware about three minutes into its first flight while it hovered about 15 feet off the ground. No one was hurt.

Perot explains specifics

WASHINGTON - Ross Perot, who was widely criticized for lacking specifics on issues, was readying an economic plan so specific and austere that top aides say he would have had trouble running on it.

Among the proposals sure to have generated the most heat: a 50-cent-a-gallon increase in federal gasoline taxes and cuts in Social Security payments.

It's all a moot issue, since the Dallas billionaire last week abruptly ended his never-declared independent presidential challenge. A five-year, $800 billion deficit-reduction plan was the centerpiece.

On foreign policy, Perot was ready to call for a complete overhaul of the State Department to make trade promotion the main mission of U.S. embassies around the world. And his campaign was putting the finishing touches on a tough "zero tolerance" anti-drug policy.

AIDS conference draws thousands

AMSTERDAM. Netherlands - Keeping people free of gonorrhea, syphilis and other sexually transmitted diseases appears to dramatically slow the spread of AIDS, several new studies suggest. Many contagious genital diseases cause open sores, and experts believe this allows the AIDS virus to get into the bloodstream, even when the sores are too small to be seen.

New evidence of the role of these diseases in spreading AIDS was presented Monday at the Eighth International Conference on AIDS in Amsterdam.

The meeting has drawn more than 10,000 researchers, doctors and people with AIDS to the Dutch capital for a week of discussions on how to fight the global epidemic.

Police accused of corruption

HONG KONG — A highly decorated Chinese police lieutenant who recently fied his homeland has provided an inside look at police corruption in Communist China, accusing police of running smuggling, prostitution and auto theft rings. Gao Peiqi, who worked in Shenshen in southern China, said. "The police in China are like a criminal syndicate. Corruption is wide-ranging and the government can't control it." Using confidential documents and details from cases he had broken himself, Gao, 43, described a police force riddled with malfeasance, lacking the ability and will to stop it. What causes muscles to cramp up painfully?

causes muscle spasms and how do I get rid of them? They've occurred for over a week in my back and are very painful.

DEAR READER: Muscle spasms commonly occur under two circumstances: a metabolic imbalance within the muscle or a temporary lack of oxygen to the muscle.

In the first instance, the muscle may be dehydrated or lack a mineral, such as sodium or potassium. Thus, this type of cramp is prevalent in athletes during strenuous activity -especially in hot weather when excess perspiration causes mineral depletion. Most of us are familiar with the incapacitating leg cramps that may affect long-distance runners who fail to replenish their stores of fluid and sodium/potassium.

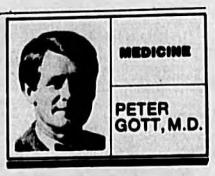

Similarly, muscle injuries -such as strains, pulls and bruises -- will alter the metabolic workings of muscle fibers, leading to painful spasms.

In the second case, muscles are extremely sensitive to changes in blood oxygen and carbon-dioxide levels. Since older people often suffer from "silent" arterial blockages (from arteriosclerosis), the first sign of trouble may be exercise-induced cramps, called claudication, or nighttime leg cramps, when the blood flow to the extremities is reduced because of inactivity. Spasms due to arteriosclerotic blockages may require by-pass surgery or balloon angioplasty. Nocturnal cramps may be prevented by taking quinine pills at bedtime.

In my practice, spasm of the back muscles is usually the result of strain or injury. Treatment includes avoidance of the offending activity (lifting and bending, for example), rest, heat. gentle stretching exercises and physical therapy (for more severe cases). For persisting or severe back spasms, patients should seek medical attention to

In the final of the open trials held in Memphis, the team of Edgar Kap-lan/Nor-man Kay, Bill Root/Richard Paviscek and Mike Passell/Brian Glubok were 39 International matchpoints (IMPs) behind with 16 deals to go. After 15 of these in the Root/Pavlicek room, they had moved ahead by seven IMPs, having won the seasion by 47-1. This was the fateful fin Four hearts was the contract at both tables. There are three top losers: one spade, one heart and one club. So it appears that It will come down to a club gucas. At the other table, system restraints had forced North to open one diamond. After South responded one heart. West made a light take-out double. When East produced the heart king during the play, it was easy for South, Eric Rodwell, to place

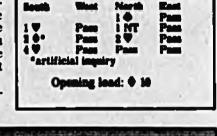

West with the club ace and make his contract.

Against Pavlicek, Bob Hamman led the diamond 10. Afraid the lead was a singleton. Pavilcek didn't want to continue with the ace and another heart. instead he led a low spade; maybe East wouldn't rise with the ace. However, now West could win with the ace and lead his second diamond. When East lot in with the neuri gave West a diamond ruff. West cashed the club ace to defeat the contract. gaining 10 IMPs and winning the match by three. Even if declarer had played trumps immediately, he probably would have gone down. Once he learned that West had the spade ace, he would have been inclined to place East with the club ace (the theory of split aces).
