Lake Mary teams go for top 10

Both the Lake Mary High School girls' and boys' track teams will be shooting for a top 10 finish at the Class 4A state track meet Saturday night.

Lake Mary will be represented by three athletes in four events of the girls' meet and four athletes in four events of the boys' competition. See Page 1B

Knicks strategy bungled

The New York Knicks figured James Edwards wouldn't hurt them from the inside, nor could Isiah Thomas do any outside damage.

Mom wins malpractice suit

FORT LAUDERDALE — The mother of a boy who was injured after he was taken to Broward General Hospital with an asthma attack in 1985 was awarded $8.6 million by a Broward County jury.

Cynthia Bates sued the North Broward Hospital District for medical malpractice after her 16-month old son suffered collapsed lungs and respiratory failure. Broward General emergency room personnel had improperly hooked him to a ventilator, said Bates attorney, Sheldon Schlesinger.

The boy, now 6, suffered severe brain damage and cannot walk, talk or care for himself, Schlesinger said. He still is a patient at the hospital.

Turtle invasion begins

FORT LAUDERDALE — Florida sea turtles have begun their annual nocturnal trek to south Florida beaches to lay hundreds of thousands of eggs, which volunteers hope to take to hatcheries to increase survival chances.

Most of the nests will be relocated because hatching turtles, who instinctively scurry toward moonlight to find the ocean, often are lured by city lights toward streets and certain death, said marine biologist Cathy Mattison.

Only an estimated one in 1,000 hatchlings reaches adulthood.

Loggerhead turtles are protected by federal law, while green and leatherback turtles are on the endangered species list.

Loggerhead turtles nest as far north as North Carolina in the gulf states, but most of the nesting occurs on Florida's east coast.

Female turtles will lay two to nine nests, usually depositing more than 100 eggs each time, during the season between May and September.

Fourteen nests were spotted by volunteers in Broward County on Thursday.

In 1989, 1,686 nest were found on Broward beaches. Some 152,000 eggs were relocated to hatcheries and 105,000 survived. Foxes and raccoons destroyed 2,200 eggs, and the rest were infertile.

Boat festivities begin

By J. BRADLEY DILLING

SANFORD — The bands are getting ready. The racers are drifting in. And the party is about to begin.

The Coors Light Super Challenge '90 boat-race weekend will start today with the "Hysterically Historic Downtown Street Party," beginning at 5 p.m. and ending about 11 p.m.

The party will begin with a boat parade and the evening's attractions will include live music as well as clowns on unicycles selling balloons, mimes, jugglers, magicians, face painters, dunking booths, a kiddie train, moon walk and other carnival-type amusements.

A fireworks display is scheduled for 9 p.m. Saturday.

At least 85 drivers and their boats and crews are expected to participate in the races, promoter Michael Hyam, of Sunset Sports Associates, said today.

"We already have the tents set up for the crews and there is a big tent for the V.I.P. party tonight and for people to get out of the sun during the races this weekend.

The proceeds from the party will be divided among the Thomas Whigham Foundation for AIDS Research, the St. Lucia Festival Association and the Sanford Historic

Zoo's expanded toucan exhibit will open today

SANFORD — In the latest move in a series of renovations and expansions, the Central Florida Zoological Park is expanding its toucan exhibit to create a habitat that zoo officials hope will encourage the breeding of the two birds, which they have had for about four years.

"We're really getting into going back and enlarging and refurbishing habitats for animals that we already have," Fred Antonio, zoo general curator, said.

Like the toucan exhibit, which is being dedicated today, Antonio said, the squirrel monkeys and margay feline and reptile exhibits have all seen expansion in recent months.

Several renovation projects have taken place in the past year, in part because added funding has been available in the form of Seminole County Tourism Development Council dollars after the TDC was established in 1988, zoo Director

Zoo wants bigger slice of tourist tax

SANFORD — Members of the Seminole County Tourism Development Council will consider a request by the Central Florida Zoological Society to increase their 25-percent slice of the tourist tax pie to half of all revenues collected. The TDC has mixed opinions about the request, but will consider it in two weeks, Hudson said.

Several requests for TDC funds have been trimmed from the list the council will consider on May 24.

Some say bumpy road to blame for driving away customers

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Driving down Wekiva Park Drive is kind of like sitting on a washing machine that's gone awry.

You're bumped.
You're jarred.

Anyone who's driven down the road that parallels the Wekiva River north of State Road 46 knows. It feels like your car is going to fly into pieces at the next bump. In fact, residents of the road find pieces of cars lying on the road everyday.

Katie Moncrief, owner of Katie's Wekiva River Landing, says the road drives business away from her campground and canoe concession.

"Every day, we have people tell us they're not coming back because of the road," Moncrief said.

Gary Amson, park manager, said the bumpy half-mile drive north of State Road 46 often gets visitors in a bad mood. "If they come on a day that the road is good, they have a good time all weekend," Amson said. "But if they come on a day it's bad, it seems to get them off on a bad note and they complain all weekend."

Pat Morgan, the county's road grading supervisor, says the shell-topped Wekiva Park Drive and most of the county's 160 miles of maintained unpaved roads develop the washboard surface because people drive too fast

Young authors holding annual meeting today

SANFORD — Seminole County elementary school students met today at Seminole Community College today for the Young Authors' Conference to celebrate the craft of writing and to learn from each other and writing experts.

Writing skills are an important part of the language arts curriculum in the Seminole County schools, especially at the elementary level.

"I think the children need to learn about writing at an early age," explained Myrna Walters, coordinator of elementary reading and language arts.

In the new "integrated learning" approach to teaching language arts, a renewed emphasis will be placed on helping youngsters get their thoughts on paper using concepts such as innovative spelling which allows them to express themselves on paper without concern for details

WRESTLING WITH THE BUDGET

If you can purchase it, drink it, smoke it, or watch it, the Legislature has a tax for it

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — The House and Senate voted Thursday to approve rival spending plans of more than $26 billion for the coming fiscal year, setting the stage for negotiations toward a budget compromise during the final three weeks of the annual legislative session.

Both chambers then turned to debate over approximately $1 billion in new taxes and fees, stepped up tax collections and funding shifts needed to finance state government.

Senators waded through 180 amendments to their $26.4 billion budget bill before voting 38-1 to approve it. Later, after lengthy debate, it voted 36-2 to approve its tax bill.

The House dealt with a similar number of amendments to its budget, including one failed attempt to add anti-abortion language to the spending plan for the fiscal year beginning July 1. The House bill passed by a 95-18 margin.

Despite the revenue increases, both spending plans were considered austere. Both carried forward cutbacks that were ordered during last November's budget crisis, and both provide for increased demand for many state services without inflationary adjustments.

Nevertheless, lawmakers found room for plenty of "turkeys" — projects of local interest. For example, the Senate plan dips into a new $3.6-billion Preservation 2000 trust fund for endangered-land purchases for specific items.

The Senate also defeated an amendment by Sen. Jack Gordon, D-Miami Beach, that would have stripped $475,000 in state subsidies for the Miami Grand Prix and Motorcycle Grand Prix and giving the money to the homeless.

A similar amendment by Rep. Toby Holland, R-Palmetto, carried in the House, however, moving $1.8 million from economic development trust funds into a $16.9 million grants program to provide emergency shelters for children.

The Senate budget includes $200 million in cuts to existing programs, but required another $828.8 million in new taxes and fees to bring it into balance.

It also includes a 14-cent increase in the cigarette tax, higher taxes on real estate transactions, partnerships, a $295 use tax on new vehicles brought into the state, and a 10-cent-per-drink

Report: Set course for space study

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The United States must chart a more specific path for the future of the space program before making major decisions about building new types of spacecraft, a report concluded Friday.

"A national dialog is urgently needed to establish the future course of the publicly supported space program and to outline the preferred means of accomplishing the program goals," said the Office of Technology Assessment report. "Access to Space: The Future of U.S. Space Transportation Systems."

"The lack of a clear course for U.S. space activities makes the scale and character of future demand for space transportation highly uncertain," the 92-page report states. "It is not sensible to choose among space transportation options without first selecting the specific goals to be served."

Congress must choose among a variety of options in deciding which space programs to fund, including building new spacecraft or upgrading existing vehicles, the report said.

- The options include:
- building improved "expedient launch vehicles or ELVs," which are rockets used only once.
 - limiting the number of space shuttle launches each year to only eight to 10, which is fewer than the number proposed by NASA.
 - building additional space shuttles.
 - improving the safety and reliability of the existing space shuttle fleet.
 - developing an crewless space shuttle to carry cargo into space, known as the "shuttle-c."

NASA starts 'tricky' repair job

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — Engineers swarmed over the shuttle Columbia Thursday, rigging access platforms and gearing up to replace a faulty cooling system valve in a "tricky" repair job expected to delay launch to around the end of the month.

Columbia and its seven-member crew had been scheduled for liftoff next Thursday on a long-awaited Spacelab astronomy mission, but NASA managers Wednesday delayed the flight and ordered the replacement of a valve in one of two Freon coolant "loops" that are critical to safe operations in orbit.

A NASA statement released after a two-day flight readiness review said launch would be delayed "two to three weeks," but engineers said Thursday a launch attempt would be possible by the end of the month if all goes well, roughly two weeks beyond the original May 17 date.

A new target launch date will not be set until next week, after engineers get a better idea about how long it will take to do the work.

Frankly unacceptable

In another shameless display of incumbent abuse of franking privileges, members of the House of Representatives are bombarding their constituents with hundreds of millions of pieces of political propaganda — all at taxpayer expense.

Lawmakers are writing home on such a scale that the House Administration Committee has just authorized purchase of a large diesel truck. The $48,000 vehicle is needed to shuttle the huge volume of franked mail between the House mail room and a rented warehouse.

Last fall, Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., attempted to prohibit mass mailings, which typically are sent to every postal patron in a state or congressional district. In an amendment to a $1.9 billion appropriations bill, Wilson called for $58.2 million of the amount earmarked for free mailings to be shifted to a program to help drug-addicted babies, leaving only $10.2 million for mail money.

But when Congress and the Bush administration put together an anti-drug plan, the Wilson amendment was rejected and members managed to preserve their costly perquisite of incumbency. As a cynical nod in the direction of reform-minded voters, however, lawmakers voted to limit the number of mass mailings from six to three a year for members of Congress. A limit of two pages also was placed on newsletters.

The Postal Service now estimates that the House will spend at least $79 million on constituent mailings this year, overspending its allowance by about $35 million. This extra cost must be absorbed by the post office until Congress provides reimbursement.

By contrast, senators have shown some restraint. Postal officials estimate the Senate's franking bill for the year will be about $18 million, or $6 million less than the amount allocated. In view of the pressing need to contain wasteful spending, the Senate has pleaded with the House to demonstrate similar restraint.

But the cascade of taxpayer-funded correspondence from the House is not likely to slow down. Voters can expect to continue to pay for more of the sort of unsolicited, self-serving mail dispatched by numerous representatives.

Hapless voters who receive this political junk mail can, of course, toss it in the trash can. But there's no consolation in knowing that, whether they want it or not, they will have to pay for it as long as Congress continues its abuse of the franking privilege.

Height and might

Some Japanese are upset because their leaders look shorter than American leaders. At summit sessions, U.S. presidents and secretaries of state always seems to tower over their Japanese counterparts.

Time magazine says a Japanese foreign ministry's official made short shrift of his countrymen's complaints, replying "We cannot fake anything. These guys are short. We have to face it."

He might have softened that accurate but somewhat insensitive remark by adding that many powerful leaders also were very short.

The classic example is Napoleon Bonaparte, a veritable shrimp who nevertheless for many years had Europe trembling in its boots. And, of course, there was tiny David, who clobbered Goliath.

However diminutive in stature they may be, Japanese leaders have helped create a financial and technological giant. So Japanese subjects should not, forgive the phrase, sell their leaders short.

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Baker not prime for 1992 VP slot

SAN FRANCISCO — The latest rumor making the rounds in Washington concerns that sly fellow James Baker. Nobody doubts that he is ambitious to be president. His only problem is how to get there. According to the rumor, his good friend President Bush will give him a leg up in 1992 by reshuffling various high officials.

Vice President Quayle would (on this theory) be persuaded to step down and become secretary of defense — defense being the topic on which everyone concedes that Quayle was an expert while serving in the Senate. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney would take over as secretary of state. And Secretary of State Baker would then be designated as Mr. Bush's choice for the vice presidency in his own second term. Fate, presumably, would take matters from there.

The first thing that has to be said for the above scenario is that it is by no means out of the question. If President Bush wants these things to happen, they will probably happen. (There is one fly in the ointment, however: The Constitution prohibits two individuals from the same state from serving as president and vice president. So either Mr. Bush or Baker would have to change his Texas residence. Mr. Bush would probably have the easier time of it, given his long association with Kennebunkport, Maine.) But how likely is Mr. Bush to go to all that trouble, even to promote the fortunes of his friend Baker? Dropping an incumbent vice president is, in itself, a confession that the individual imperils the ticket — an admission Mr. Bush is not likely to want to make unless change is absolutely essential. Moreover, the president is famous for his loyalty, and Dan Quayle is doing everything he can to earn it. Finally, whether Quayle weakens the ticket or not, the polls will probably show a Bush-Quayle ticket so far ahead of any likely Democratic combination that Quayle's alleged defects simply won't matter.

Nevertheless, it is at least conceivable that Baker might make it to the vice presidency by the route described above. And, of course, once there he might become president at any moment if some disaster overtook Mr. Bush. But what if George Bush lived out his second term in rosy good health? How likely is it that Baker could win the 1996 presidential nomination on his own?

Dropping an incumbent vice president is a confession that the individual imperils the ticket.

I have high regard for Baker's intelligence and political skills, but I simply cannot bring myself to believe that his personality is politically salable, at the presidential level, at this stage in American politics. In order to win the nomination, Baker would have to enter and win the lion's share of the Republican primaries. Presumably there would be plenty of rival candidates, and it is surely likely that some of them, and perhaps all of them, would be more attractive to the average voter than Baker. This is, after all, the Age of Television, and a certain easy manner in confronting that tube is almost essential if a candidate is going to command the support of American voters. But Baker comes across as uptight, button-tipped and foxy. His smile, when he displays one, is the kind that implies he knows something we don't know and he can't tell us. Efforts to give him a "human touch" by showing him roping dogs, or doing whatever else he does for relaxation on weekends, simply make matters worse.

GEORGE F. WILL

Silber gives Democrats hope

BOSTON — Most politicians aspire to be petunias, pleasant commonplace flowers in the public garden. Then there is John Silber, the candidate as thistle.

If you are looking for kinder and gentler, look elsewhere. Silber, 63, a former professor of philosophy, is on leave from the presidency of Boston University where he frequently fought with the faculty. (A faculty member on Silber: "First-rate minds can be lunatics, like Ezra Pound.") He is seeking the Democratic gubernatorial nomination in Massachusetts. "I don't speak plastic," he says. Indeed.

On his BU salary, the highest among university presidents: "I'm not embarrassed to get one-quarter of what a mindless anchorman on TV gets. I'm not average." Any pledge not to raise taxes "borders on insanity." Jesse Jackson (Silber can't endure "the mindless, rhyming pieces of nonsense on which he has built a career") might be Cabinet material because every President's Cabinet "needs someone to write bumper stickers."

His tongue has always been tart. When the young Bill Bennett, now drug czar, was Silber's student, Silber compared Bennett's doctoral dissertation to Texas chili: "Mostly beans and mush with the occasional meat."

A lifelong educator who has taught at Yale and Texas, his words on schools are especially unminced. Many schools are "institutionalized programs of child neglect." The curriculum of the typical school of education ("certifying the ineducable to be educators") amounts to "a two- or three-year negative intelligence test." A voucher system would mean "the end of public education" unless teachers' unions allowed outside evaluations of teachers and ensured that they are "worthy mentors and available to pupils as needed."

He favors a state examination for all high-school seniors. A school in which fewer than 80 percent pass would be on probation. Two consecutive such years and the school would be decertified and denied public funds. To stop teachers from giving "social promotions," Silber favors similar state examinations for fourth and eighth graders. "The high-school diploma in Massachusetts is too often a fraudulent document."

When Silber says back to basics, he means basics: We should begin by teaching children something that, in earlier times, reality taught them through the deaths of siblings and elders: "They are going to die." Sound education depends on this contact with reality. The President's campaign theme was "Don't worry, be happy." Silber's is: Life is real, life is earnest. Life is short.

In a time of cloying national triumphalism, Silber's is the voice of a scold. He believes America has become self-indulgent, enervated by wealth and demoralized by bad philosophy. "Self-indulgent? Educational standards "are derisory by standards that were operative in ordinary little country schools a hundred years ago." Enervated? The affluence that capitalism produces is dissolving the virtues — industriousness, deferral of gratification — that capitalism requires. Bad philosophy? The transformation of whims into "needs," then into "rights," proceeds on the assumption that "sincerity" creates "values" and a no-fault life.

Although Silber, like a lot of Democrats, voted for Reagan and Bush, he calls himself "a traditional liberal Democrat." He led a Texas campaign against capital punishment, helped found the Head Start program, and says that without pre-school programs for children ages three, four and five who lack adequate adult care at home, "we can only talk empty about equality of opportunity."

He has been a Democrat 54 years, since 1936, when his father received a home-improvement loan from an FDR program, and enlarged his family's house. But his father still praised Hoover and lambasted FDR, so child Silber said, "Why is it that everything good that has happened to our family has happened since Roosevelt became President?" The thistle was prickly early.

If Democrats can find the nerve to nominate him, he should win in a state where only 14 percent of voters are Republicans and Republican candidates must attract disaffected Democrats who think liberalism has become woolly-headed. However, his party may be unnerved by the accusation that he is "insensitive."

Recently he was denounced for saying that a woman has an opportunity to be a pretty girl between, say ages 15 and 25. Critics called him insensitive to women over 25. But Silber said what he said while discussing a Yeats poem (specifically, the line "What shall I do for pretty girls now my old hawd is dead?") in a high-school class that Silber says included "exceedingly scruffy, dirty, ill-kempt, young girls." He told them they were in a wonderful window of life and instead of luxuriating in their loveliness "they were throwing it away with their assiduous effort to be repulsive."

If you are looking for kinder and gentler, look elsewhere.

Families grieve over Army error

WASHINGTON — Johnnie Parish of Joshua, Texas, lost his brother Frank in the Vietnam War in 1968. But the harshest legacy of the war came last year for Johnnie when he found out that the Army had buried the wrong body in Frank's grave.

Lou Ann LaBohn of Washington, D.C., doesn't know who is buried beneath the tombstone that bears the name of her brother Gary, but she's sure it isn't him.

Veronica Shanley of San Diego agreed only a few weeks ago, against her gut feelings, to let the government put her son Michael's name on a tombstone with three other names over a common grave. She went along with the gesture to honor the others in her son's unit, but she believes Michael is still alive.

These families are the war's latest victims. They are at the mercy of the Pentagon, which they feel is trying, once and for all, to bury the past, if not the right bodies.

Some 2,300 Americans are still officially unaccounted for and presumed dead from the Vietnam War. The government has used everything from hard-boiled science to guesswork to analyze bone and teeth returned since the end of the war. So far, 280 of the missing have been accounted for. The process is a nightmare for those who feel their loved ones are still alive.

It is bad enough that Vietnam and its allies kept the remains too long, and in some cases tried to pass off animal bones as soldiers' remains. But America's own accounting process is flawed too. The Pentagon sometimes ask families to accept pieces of bone or teeth and call the case closed.

LaBohn's brother's purported remains were part of a bag of 17 teeth and 145 bone fragments, the longest of which was less than 2 inches. The remains came from a helicopter crash involving nine men. The military doesn't know if any of them got away alive.

With or without the families' consent, the government makes its best guess and then erases the name of that soldier from the list of the missing. That doesn't erase the doubts of the families. Military records show some remains that defy identification, yet they have been given a name and a plot at Arlington National Cemetery.

Dr. Michael Charney, a forensic pathologist from Colorado, is a critic of the Pentagon's ID program. He estimates that 70 percent of the cases he has re-examined relied on circumstantial evidence, not science. And he blames that in part on the rush to close cases at the Army's ID lab in Hawaii.

The Army denies that it is in too big of a hurry to do the job right. It defends the group burials as the best way to allow families and comrades to put their loved ones to rest. The Army's chief of casualty affairs told us, "There can't be anything worse than not knowing. And when they get something, they feel better about it."

But Shanley said she went to an elaborate Army funeral for her son only to pay her respects. "They are hoping I accept some of the remains to be my son's and I don't," she told our associate Dan Niegomir.

LaBohn relented and attended a similar funeral for her brother Gary. "I just got tired," she said. "It's been 21 years. To tell you the truth, I don't think any part of my brother is in that coffin."

Parish had his doubts back in 1973 when the Army gave his family a coffin of unrecognizable remains and said that they were his brother Frank. Last year, Frank's real body was returned by the Vietnamese with his dental work intact.

They are at the mercy of the Pentagon, which they feel is trying to bury the past, if not the right bodies.

Four children die in fire

MILWAUKEE — A mother was arrested following a smoky house fire that killed four of her children and left two others hospitalized in critical condition early Friday, authorities said.

The fire broke out before 10 p.m. Thursday, trapping six of seven siblings left alone in their two-story downtown home, said Lt. Roosevelt Harrell, a spokesman for the police department's Criminal Investigation Division.

Six of the children were taken to area hospitals. Four girls — ages 5, 6, 8, and 9 — died. Two brothers, ages 2 and 4, were listed in extremely critical condition early Friday at St. Luke's Hospital, Harrell said.

The 26-year-old mother, whose name was not released, was arrested and charged with neglect of children leading to death, Harrell said.

Radio offers unique Mom-day gift

LEXINGTON, Ky. — What is the ultimate Mother's Day gift? A dozen roses? Dinner at a fancy restaurant? A ticket to Hawaii?

How about a vasectomy?

That's what one Lexington radio station is giving away today as the culmination of its week-long promotion for Mother's Day on Sunday. "We weren't sure exactly what response to expect," said Peter Delloro, programming director for WKQQ-FM. "But it's all been positive. There are some religious connotations to a vasectomy, but we haven't gotten any negative calls. None."

Executives bold risk slim for recession

by VINCENT DEL GIUDICE
UPI Business Writer

HOT SPRINGS, Va. — A report presented today to a meeting of America's corporate leaders said the chances of a recession in 1990 and 1991 are slim and predicted that the economy will grow slowly.

The high-powered members of the Business Council, which include the likes of General Motors chairman Roger Smith and General Electric chief Jack Welch, expressed guarded optimism at the forecast — and agreed the economy is fragile.

"I'm certainly not as sanguine as the economists," said Lewis Preston, chairman of banking giant J.P. Morgan and Co. "When I get 19 economists agreeing there's going to be 2 percent growth, there's one thing I can guarantee: There won't be 2 percent growth."

The panel of corporate analysts that compiled the report also called for a 2.6 percent growth rate in 1991 and believe the probability of a recession by the end of the year has declined to 22 percent from 32 percent, and to 36 percent from 40 percent at the end of 1991.

"Things are pretty good," Welch said. "Added Smith: 'The automobile business has continued to surprise people.'"

"But trouble is brewing in the banking industry."

"The banking business in the U.S. is going to be difficult, tough," said John Reed, chairman of Citicorp. "Real estate is obviously weak. I don't think they have found a bottom yet."

But, on the other side of the coin, Reed said overseas banking is "quite strong."

The Business Council, founded in 1933, is a private organization that brings together corporate chieftains several times a year to discuss the economy and other issues of the day.

House passes work leave legislation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The House passed a family and medical leave bill that supporters called pro-family and an economic necessity for workers, but opponents argued takes away the right of businesses to choose worker benefits.

Rep. Henry Hyde, R-Ill., separated himself from fellow conservatives and President Bush, who has threatened a veto, by supporting the bill. He said a pregnant working woman "needs to have job security and have an incentive to have that child, not exterminate that child, so she doesn't lose her job."

The House passed the bill Thursday on a 237-187 vote.

Senate approves Hatch Act reforms

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Senate voted to allow more partisan political activity by federal employees and postal workers — the first reforms of the 51-year-old Hatch Act — despite a veto threat by President Bush.

The Senate approved the legislation Thursday on a 67-30 vote, setting up a conference with the House, which last year virtually repealed the Hatch Act.

After defeating every Republican proposal during eight days of deliberations, the Senate approved on a 97-0 vote an amendment by Senate Republican leader Robert Dole of Kansas to exclude from the more liberal rules the 240 employees of the Federal Election Commission.

But the Senate rejected on a 58-39 vote an amendment by Sen. Pete Domenici, R-N.M., to exempt the Justice Department and 11 agencies and to prohibit solicitation of campaign contributions by federal employees and postal workers.

IN BRIEF

AMERICAN LEAGUE

Felder puts on show for Jays

Cecil Felder, who rarely got to show what he could do in Toronto, is giving the Blue Jays a belated performance that's drawing rave reviews.

Felder collected three hits, including his major league-leading 13th home run, and drove in three runs Thursday night to lead the Detroit Tigers to a 10-5 victory over the Blue Jays.

Felder, who homered to lead off the second inning and triggered the Tigers' six-run third with an RBI single, has nine hits in three games against his former Toronto teammates, including three doubles and four home runs. Nine of Felder's league-leading 31 RBIs have come against the Blue Jays.

Elsewhere Thursday night in the American League, Minnesota edged Cleveland 3-2, Kansas City overtook Texas 6-2 and Seattle topped California 5-2.

Clinic set for parents

The Oviedo Little League has scheduled a clinic for Saturday to help parents of handicapped children find out what the new Challenger League can offer them.

Players may register at the Little League complex, located on King Street next to Oviedo High School, at 9:30 a.m. on Saturday. The clinic will begin at 10 a.m. and should be over by noon. All participants will receive a free Little League hat.

For more information, call Donna Walton at 365-8216 during the day or evening or Paula Church at 365-7063 in the evening.

Lakeview presented trophy

On May 1, coaches Bernard Eady and Kevin Brooks presented Lakeview Middle School with the trophy the Lakeview Mustangs earned by winning the Inter-County Basketball Association championship for middle school boys.

The trophy was placed on permanent display in the school trophy case in front of the main office.

The Lakeview Mustangs won the championship by completing the winter season with a 16-0 record against other Seminole County public and private middle schools.

Alzado to attempt comeback

LOS ANGELES — Lyle Alzado announced Thursday he will attempt a comeback next season with the Los Angeles Raiders, the team the 41-year-old defensive end retired from after the 1985 season.

A published report said Alzado has agreed to a series of three 1-year contracts, none of which offer guaranteed money.

"I decided to come out of retirement to help (the Raiders) come back to dominance," Alzado said during a news conference at his restaurant. "It was hard to watch the team dismantle itself and not be what it once was."

Alzado, who became an actor after his retirement, played 15 NFL seasons and was named to the Pro Bowl in 1977 and 1978. One of the game's most colorful players, he spent seven years with Denver and three with Cleveland before joining the Raiders in 1982.

Alzado, who said he first spoke to Raiders owner Al Davis about returning about a year ago, said personal trainers "have taken my body and pulled it back in time."

NATIONAL LEAGUE

Eights catch up with Pirates

Eight proved an unlucky number for the National League East-leading Pittsburgh Pirates.

Cincinnati scored eight runs in the eighth inning Thursday night for a 10-4 victory at Pittsburgh's Three Rivers Stadium.

The Reds sent 13 batters to the plate in the inning, sinking the last undefeated bullpen in the league.

"It felt great to do something against the best bullpen like we did," said Todd Benzinger, who tripled home the go-ahead run. "But I had a feeling we were going to do what we did tonight. I couldn't see Pittsburgh beating us two times in a row."

In other National League games, San Diego pounded St. Louis 9-1, and Montreal pummeled Los Angeles 8-2.

Rams aiming at top 10

Lake Mary sending seven to Class 4A state meet

By TONY DESORMIER
 Herald Sports Editor

Both the Lake Mary High School girls' and boys' track teams will be shooting for a top 10 finish at the Class 4A state track meet Saturday night at Winter Park's Showalter Field and Bob Mosher Track.

Lake Mary will be represented by three athletes in four events of the girls' meet and four athletes in four events of the boys' competition.

"We could place in the top 10," said Lake Mary girls' coach Mike Gibson. "The girls had their best finish ever at the state meet last year when they finished 10th. Last year, we were district runners-up, fifth at the region and 10th at state. This year, we were district champs and ninth at the region."

To break into the top 10, the Rams will need top performances out of all three girls, Vivian Jones, a junior, will compete in the shot and discus while seniors Allison Snell and Haydee Rohlehr both qualified in the 880-yard run.

If Jones wins both her events and Snell and Rohlehr finish first and second in the 880, the Rams would score 26 points, which ought to put Lake Mary near the top. While that is a tall order, it's not completely out of the realm of possibility.

"Vivian's more competitive in the discus," said Gibson. "The top three girls in the state finished ahead of Vivian at regional meet. She's in very elite company."

"The main thing is, to get out of preliminaries first. You have to have a good throw in your first three attempts or it's all over."

Jones, who works out under the guidance of shot and discus coach Henry Sheppard, has improved from 95-11 to 123-1 in the discus the last five weeks. She has thrown 130 in practice. But at the same time, her efforts in the shot have dropped from 36-6 to 35-5 over the same time frame.

"Vivian's going to throw with no expectation other than to finish in the top six and be named All-State," said Gibson. "She has a good chance to do that."

Snell will be making her second consecutive appearance in the 880-yard run at the state meet, having finished third last year. This

Lake Brantley ready to get it on

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

BASEBALL CITY — The Lake Brantley High School baseball team can't wait for its first shot at a state championship as the Class 4A tournament gets underway at Baseball City Friday.

"We've had just a terrible week of practice," said Lake Brantley coach Mike Smith. "The kids are tired of practicing, they just want to get it on."

The Patriots, 24-3 on the season and ranked No. 3 in the state, will play Miami-Killian, 25-6, in the opening round.

Lake Brantley will go with ace right-hander Brad

Rigby, a 6-6 junior who is 11-0 this season with an 0.76 ERA. He also struck out 95 batters this season.

Dodgers, Cubs post easy wins

From staff reports

SANFORD — The leaders in the National Division of the Sanford Recreation Department Little Major Baseball League — the Rinker Dodgers and the Railroaders Cubs — kept pace with easy victories at Ft. Mellon Park's Roy Holler Field Thursday night.

Terrell Jackson hurled a two-hitter as the Dodgers won the first game of the evening 10-0 over the First Federal of Seminole Cardinals. Robert Dickerson and Cedric Williams then combined on a three-hitter as the Cubs took the measure of the Sunniland Pirates 15-3 in the nightcap.

With three games remaining in the regular season, the Dodgers own the best record in the city with a 12-1 mark followed by the Cubs (10-3), the Cardinals (4-9) and the Pirates (2-11).

This Saturday, the First Union A's will take on the Seminole Ford Red Sox at 8 a.m. and the Disabled American Veterans Royals will face the SunBank Orioles at 10 a.m. in American Division action. At noon, the Cardinals challenge the Cubs and the Dodgers tangle with the Pirates at 2 p.m. in National Division action.

In the first game of the evening, Jackson allowed only five base runners and got all 12 outs on strike outs as the game was called by the mercy rule.

After a walk to Joshua Watson and a double by Jackson scored a run for the Dodgers in the first inning, they put the game away with a six-run second. Three walks, singles by Lorenzo Robinson and Watson and a Jackson home run accounted for the six runs.

Knicks hurt by Edwards inside and Thomas outside

United Press International

The New York Knicks figured James Edwards wouldn't hurt them from the inside, nor could Isiah Thomas do any outside damage.

Back to the drawing board.

Edwards scored a career playoff-high 32 points and Thomas tossed in five three-pointers — three in the final 6:13 — and the Pistons took a 2-0 lead over New York in their Eastern Division semifinal series with a 104-97 victory over the Knicks.

The best-of-seven series moves to New York for Games 3 and 4 on Saturday and Sunday afternoons.

Game 2 was a big improvement for the Knicks, who were demolished in Game 1 112-77. They played well Thursday night, but were unable to stop the Pistons down the stretch.

The Pistons have now won 12 straight postseason games and can tie the NBA record with a victory in Game 3. The Los Angeles Lakers set the record for consecutive playoff

Kurri's record-tying goal gives Oilers a 3-2 advantage over Blackhawks

Neither team scored in the final period. The series resumes with Game Six Saturday in Chicago. Game Seven, if necessary, will be played Monday in Edmonton. The series winner plays Wales champion Boston in the Stanley Cup finals.

Chicago tied the score 3-3 on a power play at 12:45 when Denis Savard's long slap shot deflected in off Edmonton defenseman Kevin Lowe, who fell attempting to block the shot.

The Oilers took the Chicago 16-4 in the opening period to take a 3-1 lead. The Oilers attacked with all guns as their defensemen penetrated in the offensive zone.

Chicago rebounded when defenseman Steve Konroyd directed in a Steve Larmer pass off a 3-on-2 break at 14:14. However, the Oilers needed only 18 seconds to regain their two-goal advantage when Adam Graves emerged from the corner with the puck, wheeled around the net and scored on a wraparound shot.

Sociopathic tendencies need to be treated

DEAR DR. GOTT: Are sociopathic tendencies genetic? Can you discuss the causes and possible remedies for such behavior?

DEAR READER: I assume by "sociopathic tendencies" you mean attitudes and behavior that run counter to the customs, standards and morals accepted by society. The sociopath engages in repeated behavior patterns — such as criminal activity, impulsivity, irresponsibility, hostility and poor judgment — that bring him or her into conflict with society.

Around the turn of the century, several authorities hypothesized that sociopathic behavior was inherited. These academics postulated a genetic "criminal" type. To my knowledge, this theory was never proved and was eventually rejected by responsible experts.

Sociopathic behavior is now believed to be the result of emotional/mental instability. Such behavior is learned, usually at a young age. Because sociopaths are maladapted (their acts and beliefs are not appropriate in an ordered, stable society), counseling and psychiatric intervention are often employed to re-orient them to more healthful attitudes.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

Conservative players might suspect that West was afflicted with a touch of moon madness when he made a major-suit takeout over South's opening no-trump. No argument here, except to say that some very successful players stick their necks out in the bidding. Perhaps North-South could have stopped off to double whatever contract East-West got to, but North wasn't sure East-West would fall by four tricks wherever they landed, so he simply bid game in no-trump, that allowed New York expert Dave Berkowitz to put a little shine on his declarer shoes. With some trepidation, declarer played dummy's jack of hearts on the opening lead. When that held, he was off to the races. He played queen of clubs from dummy. East played low, usually the right play. Next a diamond to the jack, followed by a low spade. West rose with the king and continued with the king of hearts, taken by the ace. Declarer cashed Q-J of spades in dummy and took another diamond finesse. Meanwhile East had thrown a diamond on the third spade. Declarer now cashed the ace of spades. East could not let go a diamond or a club, so he threw his last heart. Berkowitz cashed the ace of diamonds and put East on lead with the last diamond. East had to lead away from the king of clubs to let declarer score 11 tricks. Footnote: Although it's not usually right, East could have done better by covering the queen of clubs with his king.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 12, 1990

There are indications you may enter into a productive arrangement with two associates in the year ahead. Once you deal with the other, the other could be someone new.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)
Today after giving ample time to evaluate a hunch, you may see an effective course of action you can take on it, knowing full well the efforts and risks involved. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail S2 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
A material aspiration you've been nurturing can be realized at this time, but it's going to take a concerted effort on your behalf to bring it about.

CANCER (June 21-July 22)
Do not be reluctant today to call on certain contacts you've established who have promised they would be willing to lend you a helping hand when and if they are needed.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
A bright idea you have could work out if you're assertive enough to take action on it promptly. Waiting might lessen your chances considerably.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
Advantages aren't likely to develop for you today through singular effort, but they could transpire if you are allied with industrious teammates who can offer what you lack.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)
Services you render for another today will not go unacknowledged or unrewarded, although the returns for your efforts might come back to you in bits and pieces instead of all at once.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22)
Your organizational and managerial abilities will be very pronounced today. If you see associates fumbling, move in and take over matters, so that your interests are protected.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
Persistence is of extreme importance today if you hope to be successful. However, you must be prepared to see things through to a final conclusion and not leave anything up to chance.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
Companions will sit up and take notice when you speak today. This is a good time to express your opinions regarding an issue about which you feel strongly.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
An ambitious venture in which you're presently involved is beginning to take root. This is the time to start increasing your efforts instead of slacking off on them.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
An old interest can be resurrected in this cycle, provided you start figuring out ways to put it to a profitable use by adding a few new twists.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Don't be timid today in developments where bold measures are required. It will enhance your feelings of self-esteem if you are courageous and if you also win the admiration of associates.

Old cars put in limelight

The Antique and Classic Automobile Club of Seminole County sponsors a display of old cars each Saturday from 7-10 p.m. in the Wal-Mart parking lot behind Wendy's on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford. Non-members are welcome to bring their old cars or browse. For more information, call Herbert Partridge at 322-3687.

Nar-Anon to offer help

Nar-Anon, a self-help group for relatives and friends of addicts, meets at 8 p.m. Wednesdays and Saturdays at West Lake Hospital, State Road 434, Longwood, and on Fridays, at 8 p.m., at Grove Counseling Center, Third Street and Oak Avenue, Sanford. For more information, call 869-8364.

Alanon members to congregate

Alanon will meet at 8 p.m. Sunday at Christ United Methodist Church, at County Road 427 and Tucker Drive, Sanford.

Ship's ahoy!

Riverboat Princess cruise fit for royalty

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — If it truly is every sailor's wish to have his own ship with a few fathoms of water under it for smooth sailing, then Captain Harley Hoy has his wish with the Riverboat Princess, on which area residents can embark on specialty cruises.

Hoy searched rivers and oceans for his Princess.

"I found my boat in a Bismark, North Dakota trade paper. The boat was on the Missouri River," Hoy says.

To get his boat from the Missouri River to Sanford was a major undertaking. Hoy cut his boat into transportable pieces by himself and hauled it to Sanford, his adopted home.

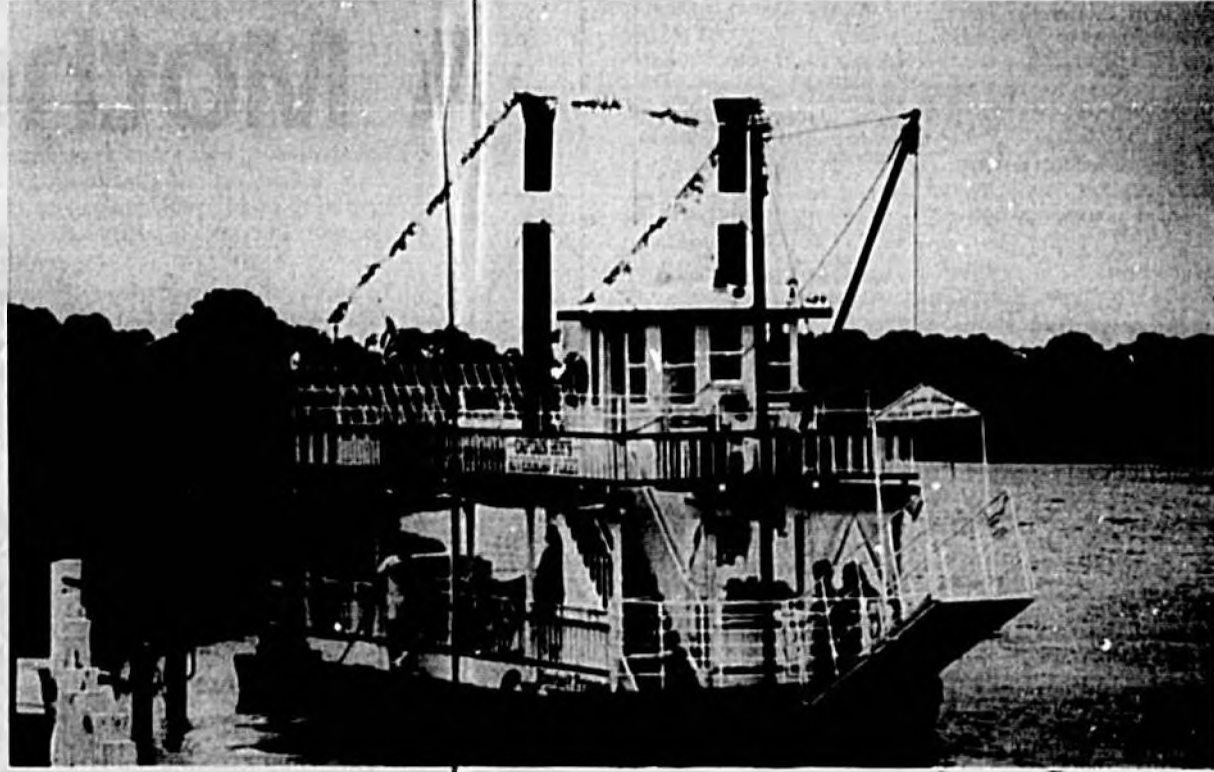

For the tedious task of reassembling his boat, Hoy called upon his friend, a certified welder who came to Sanford to help. Together, Hoy and his friend put the boat back in shape. When it was afloat, Hoy was in business and has been for over two years.

The Riverboat Princess is a spectacular sight as she rounds the bend upriver and comes into view, ready to take her passengers on a specialty cruise.

Specialty cruises include a New England style, down east, lobster and clam bake. On this particular cruise, passengers enjoy a leisure ride up the St. John's River. At a predetermined location along the banks of the river, Hoy unloads his passengers who are greeted by a crew dressed as lobster fishermen. They feast on lobster, clams and all of the amenities that go with the outing. Everything is cooked at the site over an open pit fire.

Other specialty cruises consist of a Florida cracker-style catfish fry and a riverboat barbecue of chicken and ribs. These cruises are creatively orchestrated with costumes reflecting the custom of the feast prepared on the river's banks.

figure in his natty-looking white uniform with gold captain's bars on his shoulders. He speaks and maneuvers his boat with confidence, very aware of his surroundings. His concentration on his job reflects the fine tradition of American seamen ashore or afloat.

Hoy is married to Sandy Foster of Sanford.

In the busy season Sandy and her daughter, Kelly, become the crew. Off season, Scottie Whigham is the crew.

Hoy started his career seventeen years ago on the Great Laker and originally worked The Bay Queen. The Queen, owned by the Star Line, was leased out to Freedom Cruise Ships. The Star Line also owned The Star of Sanford.

An added feature to the Hoy business is a completely furnished bus. The bus belonged to the late Janis Joplin, a rock star of the 70's. She used it as her personal touring vehicle.

well known artist and Sanford native, Birum Webb, painted scenic murals around the outside of the bus. Her free-hand style depicts scenes of the St. John's wildlife with the Riverboat Princess cruising the river.

Hoy confirms that Webb's brilliant artistic ability is well appreciated by those who view it.

Viewing his bus is a god but it does have its season. Presently, it's slow due to the afternoon heat and threat of showers. For these reasons we cruise once a day for the summer, from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Hoy explains that bookings are always accepted from large groups and organizations and of course they get a special consideration, including weddings parties. Hoy is authorized to perform marriage ceremonies. Every Spring, Hoy runs a kiddy cruise. Elementary school children board the Princess for an educational excursion up the river. They learn about the environment, the wildlife and can even recite at the cruise end, when an eagle gets its flying feathers.

"It's a learning experience that they remember all of their lives," Hoy says as he smiles. He has hosted the Audubon Club and the Sierra Club whose members have come aboard to listen to his live commentary while cruising.

Hoy says, "If people here have friends and relatives visiting, then bring them out on the Riverboat Princess. I guarantee they'll talk about the Princess and the way I showed them the real Florida."

For reservations or information, call Captain Harley Hoy at the Osteen Bridge (407) 330-1612.

Doctors speak in tongues

DEAR ABBY: So many physicians today seem to be of foreign extraction. I have no problem with that, if one can understand them. However, my gynecologist's new partner is Asian, and I often leave his office wondering what he has told me.

I shudder to think that one day I might need surgery. How can the operating nurses understand the surgeon's orders when the surgeon's incomprehensible speech is further muffled by a surgical face mask?

Since these physicians (and other professionals who deal with the public) apparently intend to stay in the United States, would they please consider some diction lessons? They all seem to be taking golf, tennis, music and computer lessons. And skiing lessons are a family "must" for them, so please ask them to consider some kind of speech lessons.

BEWILDERED PATIENT
DEAR PATIENT: Please be a little more patient. Those foreign-born physicians must be exceptionally bright and motivated to pass our boards. If you have difficulty understanding what the doctor has told you, ask him or her to please repeat it. Be gentle and generous. You cannot know how rough a road the doctor had to travel to get from there to here.

DEAR ABBY: We are writing, hoping you will pass on our story as a safety warning to others.

Our daughter was married recently and all the bouquets held hurricane globes with lighted candles. Our daughter visualized how she wanted the flowers to be done, and they were lovely. However, what happened could have been the most tragic thing anyone could imagine.

Her long hair fell into the candle in her bouquet, and the flame instantly went right up the side of her head! Her husband immediately put out the fire with his bare hands, and thank God no one was hurt.

We are telling everyone we know never to use candles in the bridal bouquets. We hope that your wide circulation will prevent a tragedy from happening.

Competition winners

Kneeling: Bonna Fitzgerald, owner of Hairbiz in Sanford, and Terri Oglesby, hairdresser and nail technician, display the trophies they won in the Florida Cosmetology Association Spring Competition, held recently in Orlando. Fitzgerald captured the President's Trophy for most accumulated points during the three day competition. No Sanford salon has ever held this trophy. She placed first in Clowns and Harlequins and second in Ladies of the Cinema. Oglesby was awarded her trophy for her creation of fantasy nails. The salon took second place in Trend Makeup and fifth place in Gentlemen over 40. Standing behind Fitzgerald and Oglesby are Casey Stead, who modeled in the competition; Polly Smith, who placed fifth in student competition out of 36 students; Sandy Swain and Patty Voltoline, who both assisted in preparing for the event.
