School bus stop action OK in Longwood

By GEORGE DUNCAN Herald Staff Writer

Longwood City Commissioners said Monday they will probably notpursue any more legal steps in regard to moving school bus stops because their safety goals have been accomplished.

"If we had not had the guts to do what we did, nothing would have been moved," said Commissoner Fred Pearl. "We accomplished something."

Commissioners said the meetings between representatives of the Seminole County School Board and area cities resulted in a scrutiny of the bus stops and safer procedures from the system.

After an accident last month that took the life of a Lake Mary child. the city commission adopted an emergency ordinance ordering bus stops off of arterial streets. The school board challenged the ordinance and won a restraining order against it from a local judge.

At the Monday night meeting of the commission, City Attorney Becky Vose pointed out the emergency ordinance had been established for only 60 days and

LONGWOOD - Local auto dealer Bob Dance has paid $1,200 in fines for Seminole County sign code violations from 1991 and 1992, the first auto dealer in the county to accept the county sign code.

"What am I going to do?" said
Scott Dance last week. "Have liens on my property and go to court and fight it and all that crap? I don't like the ordinance, but what can I do?"

Dance hung up before re-sponding to more questions. Auto dealers packed county commission meetings in 1200 and 1900 to protest changes to the county sign ordinance which eliminated banners and many other displays regularly seen along U.S. Highway 17-92.

Since then, three dealers have been cited for violations. In January, the county code board fined Baird-Ray Nissan owners R&R Investments Ltd. $1,300 for sign code violations. R&R has appealed the decision to Semi-nole County circuit court.

Another sign code case against Magic Isusu was dropped after the dealer's owners changed. The $1,200 in Bob Dance fines

On April 25, the Code Enforcement Board issued a warning: there would be a $250 for each day the violation was repeated. On April 26, the balloons were gone. ## Homeowner groups now regulated

by The Accordated Press

TALLAHASSEE - New state rules have brought greater openness to homeowners' asso-ciations, all of whose members can now attend meetings and peruse accounting records of the groups.

The rules, which went into clear that directors have a fiduciary duty to association members. But they exempt associations serving fewer than 50 parcels and those still controlled by developers.

"It's a big, big step in the right direction," said Jess McBride, executive director of the Suncoast Chapter of the Community Associations Institute in St. Petersburg. The institute has been pushing for increased regu-lations for homeowners' groups for years.

Homeowners associations typically are volunteer groups of property owners in a development. They work as liaisons between home buyers and de-velopers. After developers leave projects, homeowners associa-tions are usually charged with

Electronic bracelets hold 2,500 felons

TALLAHASSEE, Fia — Some 2,500 Flor-ida felons are put under electronic house arrest annually. An estimated 12.5 percent commit new crimes, which is pretty much on par with rates elsewhere and stats for probation and

When a judge sentences a criminal to electronic monitoring, the criminal is fitted with an ankle bracelet containing a battery-operated transmitter that communi-cates continuously with a monitoring device attached to the telephone.

If the prisoner wanders more than 150 feet away from the telephone, fails to return home at a prearranged time or tampers with the equipment, the monitoring device alerts a computer operator, who in turn alerts authorities.

The prisoner has to wear the bracelet 24 hours a day, seven days a week, and submit to weekly visits from the community control officer, drug testing and other restrictions. Violating house arrest can land the prisoner in a cell.

In addition to non-violent offenders, corrections officials let some sex offenders participate. But in most cases, if a prisoner sets off an alarm at night by wandering outside the limit, the probation officer won't respond until the following morning.

Opponents say electronic monitoring places dangerous felons in neighborhoods with little oversight. Supporters say it eases the burden on the prison system and lets offenders work, provide for their families

According to the Criminal Justice Institute, more than 13,000 electronic monitoring devices are in use in 33 states.

Across the country, criminals are breaking free of their electronic shackles and committing new crimes, prompting one state, New Jersey, to abandon its monitoring program. In Florida, the head of the state Senate Corrections Committee said a more exhaustive study is needed before the

And as technology becomes better and cheaper, electronic monitoring likely will play a pivotal role. Improvements such as using satellites to track prisoners' every

But even those who administer the electronic monitoring program concede they can do better.

"I hate to use words like good and bad." said Richard Nimer, corrections program administrator. "If almost nine out of 10 people don't commit a new offense, that's not great. It is what it is."

People expect too much from electronic monitoring, according to Joseph Vaughn, an associate professor of criminal justice at Central Missouri State University.

"The monitoring doesn't do anything to prevent people from committing crimes. ...
It's a tool that allows you to have closer surveillance," Vaughn said. "The idea that the alarm goes off and that the Lone Ranger and Tonto jump out and catch the guy is unrealistic."

Parents speak about neighborhood molester

By The Associated Press

MAITLAND - Victims and families of sexual molestation usually have little to say publicly about such abuse. But this case is different.

The parents of a handful of boys who say they were molested by a neighborhood friend have gone public, hoping to spread the word to encourage other victims to speak up and prevent similar cases.

The parents were shocked by their sons' disclosures, which resulted in the jailing of 31-year-old Julian Velasquez on 16 charges of sex crimes against eight children.

Velasquez, known as Max to the youngsters, was arrested in June and is being held in jail without bond. Detectives believe the number of abused children is bisher.

Most parents reacted with care and counseling. Others re-sponded with denial, virtually ordering their children to keep quiet.

"It's totally devastating," said Diane McKeever, whose 8-yearold son is one of Max's accusers.

Investigators said Max lived in the Park Lake Townhouse neighborhood, let the boys play his Nintendo games, paid them to cut his grass or paint his sence and let them smoke cigarettes or even drink alcohol. Diana Walley's attention was spurred by a burn on her 12-year-old son's leg. Reluctantly, the boy told her it had come from the muffler of Max's motorcycle. Questioned further, the boy admitted to his mother that Max had molested him sexually.

The news rocked the Maitland neighborhood, and the McKeever boy and several other children stepped forward to accuse Max. He threatened some of the children to keep them quiet, investigataors said, and told others that he had their parents' permission to have sex with

Worker charged with hammer slaying

PENSACOLA — A Pensacola construction worker was jailed without bond Monday, charged with beating a man to death with a hammer after they smoked crack cocaine together.

Biteven Joseph Gibout, 32, turned himself in Seturday and was charged with an open count of marder for the slaying of Bobby Earl Montgomery, 26, also of Pensacola, said police investigator Rodney Eagerton.

Police found the victim's body, wrapped in lastic. Friday night in the bathtub of Olbout's Officers went to the apartment after a friend of Oibout reported the slaving. The friend, who worked with Gibout, said he told of the killing Friday as she drove him home from work.

The friend said Gibout told her he was smoking crack with the victim about midnight Thursday when the man threatened Gibout after alleging he owed him money, according to police reports.

She said Gibout told her he picked up a hammer and repeatedly hit the man in the head. covered the victim's head in plastic and put him in the tub.

Eagerton said Gibout made no statement to police and was charged on the basis of the triend's statement and evidence at the acene. More than one hammer was found at the apartment, but police were unsure whether they include the one allegedly used in the slaying.

Does Sanford need more land?

It's foolish to buy an additional car unless you plan to use it. Especially if you don't have the money, and already own several others that you don't use.

The City of Sanford may be about to launch into a similar situation. It wants to buy approximately nine acres of land across from Sanford Middle School. It doesn't have any plans to use it, and doesn't have the asking price of $590,000.

The land is located across French Avenue from the Sanford Middle School, between W. 15th and W. 18th Streets. It is presently owned by the Seminole County School Board.
Several weeks ago, Commissioner A.A.
McClanahan suggested some of the unimproved land now owned by the city could be sold to help pay for the new purchase.

He suggested property on Upsala Road and near Geneva. He admitted however that both of them together, might be worth only $300,000, far less than needed to buy the property on French Avenue.

The commission has already given a concensus vote to have City Manager Bill Simmons investigate methods of financing the purchase. With nothing allocated in the present fiscal year budget, Simmons may have to dig deep for the money from some other source.

Simmons has obtained an agreement from Rick Hardwick. who had attempted to purchase the land from the School Board and purchase the land from the School Board and build a strip-mall. Hardwick has agreed to allow the city to take over purchase negotiations, rather than pursue the resoning that would have been required before he completed the purchase agreement.

Duiring purchase agreement.

Duiring purchase agreement.

Duiring purchase agreement.

School of the School

He also suggested the land could be developed into a nice park. But parks cost money to build and maintain. Again, no specific proposal for financing was presented. School as well as city officials agreed the property has served well for overflow parking during major events at the middle school. If that is the proposed use, the school board, not the city should own the land.

City this laceme should be used for city, purposes, not to provide school parking lots, we are not suggesting the land be resoned for Mr. Hardwick's strip mall, nor are we directly opposing the city's purchase of the land.

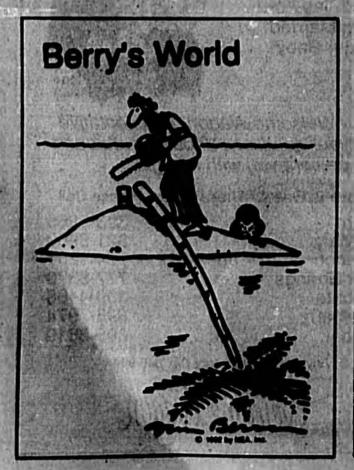

Before any agreements are made however, we believe the city abould clearly determine why it needs the land, what purpose it will serve, and where the money will come from for the purchase and upkeep.

Citizens deserve an explanation of how this will be of benefit to the total city, before papers are signed and $000,000 is spent. One way or another, the money will come from taxpayers. They deserve to know.

California Senate race is a humdinger

if George Bush goes down to defeat tonight, will cast most of their ballots for Bill Clinton in emocrats, and even some apostate Re-ublicans, will attribute his fate to the elector-voters who likely will Democrats, and even some apostate Republicans, will attribute his fate to the electorate's repudiation of conservative politics. Nothing could be further from the truth. The battle for the presidency in 1992 simply has not been waged on ideological grounds as it was during the three previous presidential elections.

There is, however, one nationally prominent race being fought on ideology this year. It pits conservative Republican Bruce Herschensohn against liberal Democrat Barbara Boxer in a contest for one of California's two U.S. Senate seats. If conservatism truly is in decline, and liberalism suddenly resurgent, Boxer should be blowing Herschensohn out of the water. But that hardly is the case.

Boxer, a five-term member of Congress from Marin County, held a comfortable 20-point lead in the polls as recently as a month ago. But in the latest tracking polls. Herschensohn, a former Los Angeles television commentator, has pulled into a virtual dead heat. Indeed, as California voters have become more acquainted with where the two candidates stand on the range of issues. the two candidates stand on the range of issues. they show a decided preference for the con-

It should be noted that Herschensohn actually is winning support from the same voters who send former San Francisco Mayor Dianne Feinstein to the U.S. Senate in place of the incumbent, Republican John Seymour (who has conducted a failing, non-ideological camplings much like President Bush).

Herschensohn has campaigned as an unabashed conservative from the start. In the Republican primary, he was matched against Rep. Tom Campbell, a squishy moderate like Seymour. Al-

The battle for

Now Herschensohn has become the last best hope of the California GOP. In Boxer, he goes against one of the most liberal members of the entire U.S. Congress. She first gained national attention in 1984 by raising questions about the prices the Pentagon was paying for spare parts. She gained unwanted attention last year for the 143 bad checks she wrote on the House bank. Interestingly, Herschensohn has said nothing about his opponent's involvement in the House check-kiting scandal. He has chosen instead to stick strictly, to, the leaves to delineate for voters the differences between his conservative philosophy of governance and Boxer's adherence to traditional liberal thinking. The two candidates could not be further apart. Boxer favors abortion on demand, federally subsidized if need be. She favors racial and sexual preferences (otherwise known as quotas) in education and employment. She stands foursquare against school choice. She opposes virtually any U.S. military intervention, from the Vietnam War to the Persian Gulf War. And she wants to reduce defense spending to bare minimum.

Herschensohn, on the other hand, philosophically opposes abortion, excepting cases of rape or incest or those in which a mother's life is in

LETTERS

Response to letter published Sunday

I am writing in response to a letter to the editor you printed Sunday. The letter basically questioned the facts surrounding the candidacy of Mr. James Lormann for city commission. It questioned the integrity of the charitable Lake Mary Community Improvement Association (CIA), the integrity of a fine citizen, a county commissioner, and myself.

I have never chosen to respond to a letter to the editor while I have held public office. Since the editor while I have held public office. Since I am not seeking re-election and this letter bordered on libel, I feel compelled to respond.

At the outset, let me state that both candidates Mr. Gary Brender and Mr. Jim Lormann in the race of Seat One have conducted their campaigns above board. I ect both candidates and am pleased they both have publicly stated they like the direction the city has taken the last few years. Both appear to be men of character with conservative views on government. Both may bave Alleagreements with a lew thinvidual policies of the city commission and that's to be expensed.

Over the past few years, about every couple of months, targeted political letters have appeared in your newspaper that have had unsubstantiated statements, half-truths and innuendo. The letters after distorting the facts—make personal attacks.

Mr. Don Haun's letter would normally be viewed as allly—but it is a case in point. Mr. Haun attempts to defend candidate Lormann's forced removal earlier this year from the Community Improvement Association board of directors as some kind of political plot engineered by a citisen, Mr. John Hauck. I don't (know) how it could be political— Lermann wasn't even a candidate and Hauck wasn't on the board.

Mr. Haun incorrectly stated that Mr. Hauck as an officer in the CIA. Hauck was not a board member earlier this year and did not participate in any vote of removal by the board of directors. Mr. Lormann was removed from the board for lack of attendance as the organization's by-laws require. Mr. Haun also was incorrect when he stated the office Mr. Lormann accepted to serve for was an insignificant position. Mr. Haun should know insignificant position. Mr. Haun should know that all volunteers are valuable and significant in charitable organisations. Mr. Haun was again incorrect when he stated Lormann offered to serve only because no one else would come forward. The CIA board unanimously voted Mr. Lormann's removal and immediately filled the polition with someone waiting to serve on the board. Many of those voting Mr. Lormann's removal are supporters. The point is Mr. Lormann was removed because he was not able to fulfill a commitment — not because of some bizarre conspiracy.

On credibility, Mr. Hauck as a citizen, wrote a letter to the Banford Herald stating that your paper had not done its homework on the candidates and had erred. Mr. Hauck is a retired, honored military veteran who has retired, honored military veteran who has volunteered for numerous boards and activities for the city since before I moved here. Mr. Hauck was selected as Lake Mary Citizen of the Year last year for his volunteer activities by the Lake Mary Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. Haun, his accuser, has not been active in government or community organizations. He has not volunteered for local community activities. To date in Lake Mary this gentleman's most notable activity was being a campaign manager for a fourth place finisher for Lake Mary mayor two years ago. And now for Lake Mary mayor two years ago. And now he is actively supporting Mr. Lormann. Mr. Haun also tries to tie last year's charter petition: court case into his attack argument.

The argument is restated that the court challenge was orchestrated by myself to stop the petition. The issue was actiled before trial the petition. The issue was settled before trial with the petitioners account to a compromise that the majority of the city commission beleived was legally access.

Indeed, another compromise of that sme charter change is on the ballot this year for voter approval. The same of going to court was recommended by the Lake Mary city attorney. That city attorney was appointed by Defracting the former mayor, and someone who Mr. Haun is vocally supporting this year. The city commission responsibly chose not to ignore legal advice.

I appreciate your newspaper policy of printing letters to the editor. It allows for opposing points of view. However, your newspaper has a propensity to print whatever is written, whatever the source, and whatever claims are made. A modicum of effort should be made to ascertain if the claims in a letter are correct. Let someone state their opinions unimpinged — but character assassination and statements of fact should be substantiated or edited out. Edit this letter if it is factually

'Additionally, a writer is not always some 'concerned citizen." It is possible, indeed likely, that a writer is politically aligned or has some personal axe to grind. The character assassination and blatant misrepresentation of the facts is something unfortunately an elected official has to take "as part of politics." Citizens should not be exposed to this form of tabloid journalism.

Perhaps the saddest fact of politics today is that individual citizens cannot speak out without being slammed by a few organized malcontents. When the uninformed can't accurately challenge a person's argument—they go after the person's character. Mr. Haun completes his letter with "...it is time, we, as voters, start to question the true motives of people like Mr. Hauck.... Mr. Haun, I can understand your enthusiasm for your candidate Mr. Lormann, but, your letter smacks of McCarthylam regarding Mr. Hauck. You owe an apology to Mr. and Mrs. Hauck and also one to the Community Improvement Association.

The voters should make an informed decision based on the candidates' experience, views and deportment. Even if national politics can't stick to the issues must we be condemned to make their mistakes at the local level? Let's engage in open, fair and spirited dialogue on the challenges our community

More response

f don't know Mr. Don Haun, and quite obviously he doesn't know me. I am writing to comment on his letter to the editor which appeared in the Nov. 1 edition of your paper. First, I would like to compliment him on those portions of the letter which I consider to be accurate. He repeated my name ten times during the course of his letter and he spelled it correctly every time. So much for accuracy.

To correct some misstatements made in the letter: I was not an officer in the CIA when Mr. Lormann was appointed as a vice president of that organization, nor was I an officer when he was removed from that position. I was therefore non instrumental in either his appointment or his removal, and a call to the officers of the organization will confirm that fact for anyone who is interested in the truth:

I deeply resent the references to my dealing in half-truths. I do not deal in them, or in lies, and I note that the letter carefully avoided referring to the documented corrections to Mr. Lormann's record of public service which my letter contained.

As for my "true motives", they are very simple. I want to see the best, most highly qualified persons available serving in our City Government. And I don't take the attitude that anyone who disagrees with my choices is an enemy. I have had quite a laugh at your calling me "the self-appointed guardian of the Morris-Sturm camp." I wonder if Bol: Sturm and Randy Morris know this, and also, what it is that I am supposedly quarding? that I am supposedly guarding?

Mr. Haun gave me too much credit in the matter of the lawouit he refers to. I did not speak either for it or against it. And he gave the citizens of Lake Mary too little credit. After all. It was they, in their wiedom, who elected Randy Morris (and Paul Tremel) as mayor and commissioner.

Commissioner.
One last comment: the reference to me as the political guru of The Forrest" caught my eye.
My American Heritage dictionary says that a guru is: "a spiritual teacher" and "a charismatic leader or guide". I don't suppose the compliment was intentional, but thanks anyway. My wife is now referring to me as "the Guru" which I suppose she means as a compliment.

Sincerely, John A. Hauck

SARAH OVERSTREET

Every dog has his day (and night)

Just when I think I've had it with the rustic life, I go visit friends in the city, as I did recently. Dogs in the country may bark, but by darn when they do, they're a good 20 acres away from your eardrums. In the city they're only a backyard fence away, right under your bedroom window.

I can empathize with the citizens of Smithtown, N.Y., who enacted a law a few years back making it illegal to let a dog bark more than 15 minutes. I don't know how they enforce it, but I concur wholeheartedly. If Lassie can't convince Timmy that something's awry in less than 15 minutes, it's time to shut up. By that time, the silver's gone and the house has burned down.

In my city we don't have a limit on how long a dog can bark, but we do have a lawthat stipulates. "No person shall keep any dog or cat which by frequent howling.

However, we don't enforce it. Since the ordinance reads "neighborhood" instead of "individual," a wronged citizen has to go down to the city prosecutor's office as part of a group of injured parties to get any redress.

Such is the case of a hapless friend who was the only one in his neighborhood this summer who left his windows open instead of letting his central air conditioning mask the sound of a neighbor's dog.

"Ten feet outside my bedroom window is this big dog, which the lady keeps inside all day, and every night he tries to make up for the barking he missed all day," my friend told me. "Then the other night, I hear a little dog barking along with the big one, and I look outside and there's this man out walking the little dog and I look at the clock and it's 1:30 in the morning!".

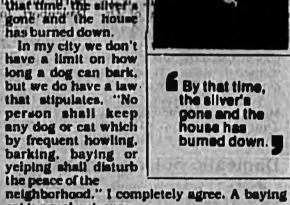

The guy has spoken to his neighbors and they're always apologetic. But after a few days histus the dog is always back to his old tricks with a renewed gusto born of bark

So what's a poor, alcepless citizen to do? Being a Barbara Woodhouse devotee who believes that while there may not be any bad dogs there is definitely a surplus of bad owners, my inclination would be to go have a heart-to-heart with the poor misunderstood pup. I'd go over to the fence, switch on a builhorn so he'd be sure to get every word over the din of his own yelping, and counsel with the canine.

"Oh, dear doggie," I'd shout into the bullhorn, aiming at his owner's bedroom window, "I know you just don't realize I'm trying to sleep over here, and when you go, 'YIP, YIP, YIP, AHROO-HOO-O-O, YARK, YIKE, YEEEEE-LLLLLLPP, that it could possibly sound as loud as it does. What? You didn't get all of that? Sure, I'll be happy to repeat it, I said, 'YIP, YIP, YIP...'"

A couple of guys I know who play in a band had an idea I like even better. They plan to use their own PA system. But they assure me use their own PA system. But they assure me that my own portable boombox will do an adequate job. They suggested placing the sound system as close to the neighbor's bedroom as possible, and when the dog starts barking, put on tapes of wild jungle animals, heavy on the trumpeting elephants, snarling lions and screaming hyenas. Or save the cost of the wild jungle animal tape and just record the neighbor's own dog and play it back with the volume at 10. the volume at 10.

The police may pick you up for disturbing the peace, but there's not a jail in the land where barking dogs are a problem for sleeping inmates.

Sewage

Sellers said the county is now in the planning stages of devel-oping a portion of a disposal system plan scrapped four years ago to provide an alternative disposal method in case pro-blems continue. Sellers said the backup rapid inflitration basin (RIB) method simply calls for pumping the highly-treated sewage into a pit and allowing it to soak into the ground.

Sellers hald permitting and construction of two or three RiBs could take six months or more. Until then, the plant will be idle.

Also, the county is now taking a close look at developing a reuse system to pump treated sewage to golf courses and developments for irrigation. Sellers said Yankee Lake is equipped for a reuse system, but no lines have been laid in the ground from the facility to State Road 48 or beyond.

Seliers had no estimates for either the RIB system nor the reuse system.

The whole altuation angers county critic Art Davis, who was the sole member of the public present at the county's infamous 2 a.m., Nov. 5, 1985 decision to purchase the 2.867 Yankee Lake

Sanford had been negotiating for the site to build its own sewage treatment facility but the county reached a $7.5 million purchase agreement with Heathrow developer Jeno Paulucci first. A grand jury concluded no wrongdoing had occured in the negotiations and decision.

"We're guessing again; that's what we're doing," said Davis, who lives within a quarter mile from the site. "It's pathetic. Their theory is if you have enough money and you throw enough money at a problem, you can keep guessing."

Davis and several environmental organizations had appealed the Yankee Lake design plans in 1988. They questioned the envi-ronmental safety and functioning of both the RIB system and the wetlands disposal system, but later dropped the appeal.

Davis said he dropped his appeal with the county assurance if a reuse system would be constructed by the time the plant reached its cur-rent design capacity of 2.5 million god.

"if they had gone ahead and put in reuse, they wouldn't have this problem," said Davis. "They could just pump it back to golf courses or wherever and would only have to use the wetlands during wet times."

The sewage treatment plant west of interstate 4 has been operable since mid-1990, but the county decided to wait until this summer to start it up because there was too little sewage available being generated in the northwest area of the county to operate the plant. Also, county officials changed from the RIB system to the wetlands disposal method. The over-the-ground method should "scrub" the water to a point cleaner than the river water, designers believed. But they haven't had the opportunity to

There were delays in obtaining the necessary permits for the $3.2 million wetlands disposal system and it was not completed until Sept. 1991. There were more state permitting delays and the county didn't get the OK to begin a test run of the plant until

In March, the county diverted some of the sewage being treated at their Greenwood Lakes facility near Lake Mary to give the new facility a test run, said Sellers. While the plant functioned properly, the flow was apparently too low at times to allow the bacteria in the system to adequately digest sewage nutrients to required levels, said Sellers.

"There wasn't enough nutrient loading to generate enough bacteria on the nitrogen filters," said Sellers.

Hugh Sipes, manager of the county utilities division, said Yankee Lake met two of the three requirements for discharge contamination but was unable to meet minimum levels for nitrogen, a nutrient. Sipes said the state required Yankee Lake to put out no more than 3 milligrams per liter (mgl.) of nitrogen in the treated sewage, but the county could produce no less than 5 mgl.

Unable to meet federal standards, the county pumped the treated sewage in a pit designed to hold 2.5 million gpd throughout the summer.

The original dedication plaque for the Yankee Lake facility.

Christianne Ferraro, manager of the domestic waste section of the Florida Department of Environmental Regulation in Orlando, said the county was never cited for the excessive discharge because it was never pumped to the wetlands. 'They have not been cited," said Ferraro. "We're not very happy with the situation, but it's not really our problem."

tions, and usually, it's not the opponent who does this, but well-meaning supporters of the opponent, who believe they are doing their candidate a favor by tearing down the signs."

"It was difficult to obtain finger prints from the signs we recovered," Yelvington said. "but we did manage to get a few smears, and we have sent them chief Sam Belflore said he was investigating the complaints from Brender. "We are following some leads," he said, "and we have some people to question before our investigation can be considered completed at this

"If it proves to be a definite crime." he added, "we will be filing papers with the state attorney within a few more days."

In a written statement, Brender said, "I take this matter seriously as both a personal attack as well as a political one. It is time a harsh political lesson is learned and the lesson will begin with the prosecution of those involved to the fullest extent possible."

Brender said he intends to pursue his charges regardless of the outcome of today's election.

Goard predicts 82 percent of the county's 139,451 registered voters will cast ballots today, representing more than 114,000 people. Goard said that would be a record number of voters in the county, but a turnout far below the days when more people believed in the importance of voting, such as the $7.8 percent that turned out here in 1980.

Statewide, Secretary of State Jim Smith predicted 75 percent of Florida's 6.5 million registered voters will participate.

Goard said the estimate was based on presidential year voting in 1984 and 1988, which were 78.3, percent and 78.2 percent. respectively. Goard said the prediction was also based on the record number of 10,000 absentee ballots that were issued.

"When I was a teenager, I learned to play at the Baltimore, Maryland YMCA." George said.

"I've enjoyed playing, but I'm no expert."

George said he has always been involved in athletics in one way or another. In high school and in college at Johns Hopkins University, he played baseball at various positions.

"I've always been setive," he said.

He said that he wished there would be baseball at the Golden Age Games because he would

George said he worked as a manufacturing manager at Martin Marietta for 50 years, one America votes today in a presidential battle of the generations, World War II filer George Bush against baby boomer Bill Clinton. Out with the old, in with the new was the chorus of this campaign, and in all 80 states voters decided just how much change to deliver.

Rose Perot hoped for the most improbable change of all — that a billionaire independent could win a White House context he joined, then guit, then rejoined in the final month.

"It's a race of the courage to change against the compet of the same old failed ideas," Clinton said late Monday in McAllen, Texas. That was stopaix on an nine-city, sight-state, 4,100-mile finale of a Democratic Bush at first resisted, then as he fell behind, relented. Even MTV interviewed the president in the final week.

"People get familiar with the candidates," Texas Secretary of State John Hannah said of the TV campaign, "That has inspired a lot of enthusiasm."

On the final day of their long march, candidates for every office tried to steer that en-

Voters tired of politics as usual as campaign ends

By GEORGE ESPER

MILTON, Mass. - George Bush was born in this town a couple years.' miles south of Boston 68 years ago, but he's no favorite son among some voters.

"I am a Perotist," proclaimed Stanley Manin, a Jeweler. "I'm tired of politics as usual.. Give a man like Bush four years and if he hasn't proved himself, why give him four more just because he was born locally? He's not a hometown guy. He hasn't lived

Like Manin, other voters across the country are disenchanted with the dirty campaigns run by Bush and Bill Clinton and are skeptical about

Some were leaning toward Ross Perot, waiting to hear what he had to say in an election eve TV message Monday night before deciding.

Voters backed their candidate for a variety of reasons: Party lovalty and tradition, the economy, the environment.

Janice Gilbert, a Boston legal secretary, said she always votes for the Democrat.

Clinton is no exception, although there was a time she wasn't happy with him because he tried to wriggle out of questions about his character and his draft status.

Bush, she said, ran an undignified campaign. "I didn't think they could get any dirtier than they did in '88, but they did," she said.

John Mingolelli, a Boston banker whose industry was hard hit by the recession and who lost money himself in investment property, was drawn to the Clinton ticket because of running mate Al Gore's environmental stance.

"I don't know if I'm crazy about any candidate," Mingolelli said. "Everything was rehashed over and over again. They don't really get to the point. They just tell you what you want to hear."

In the Milton home where Bush lived for only six months after his birth, the current occupant, Nina Graves, couldn't be counted on to vote for him, although her husband, Dean, is a staunch Bush supporter.

"I was definitely for Bush before the debates," she said. "I was pretty impressed with Mr. Perot. I guess I really don't know."

From Massachusetts to Georgia to New Mexico, voters lamented the weak economy and expressed relief the campaign was over and the time had come to cast their ballots.

On Auburn Avenue in Atlanta, historic heart of the black business district, florist Dorothy Mitchell said, "I'm tired of them calling each other names."

She said she hopes the economy will pick up if Clinton is elected. "We've been in a rut, and getting worse." she said. Business is off at the flower shop she owns.

Down the street, Arthur Lampkin also hopes for a change. He has run a dry cleaner for 45 years and has watched the INGLEWOOD, Calif. - Magic Johnson retired again, this time for good, not because the AIDS virus sapped his strength, but because it struck fear among other players.

Johnson said he would not play because of the "controversies" surrounding his return. His agent, Lon Rosen, sald: "His feeling was, if people were afraid to play against him, that could affect the outcome of the game, and Earvin didn't want that."

Jason Possehl (6-foot-7) and Fred Brown (6-foot) as well as four others over 6-foot-5.

Special to the Herald

TAMPA — The Level VI girls team from Brown's Gymnastics-Central of Altamonte Springs were suffering from 'success-lag' and finshed an uncharacteristic runner-up in the LaFleur's Invitational this past Saturday in Tampa.

After thoroughly dominating last weekend's Orlando Invitational the Level VI girls could not quite get up for the event and finished second to the American Twisters by a score of 189.80 to 185.55. Tallahassee Gymnastics Center finished a distant third with 176.70 points, while LaFleur's-St. Petersburg (176.25). LaFleur's-Tampa (175.50) and MTC (143.85) rounded out the top six.

The slight let down can be seen in the individual results. The team still placed 12 of its 19 competitors in the top 10 All-Around, but the best individual finish was a pair of thirds, by Heather Wolken in the Coast Gymnastics in Rockledge. 9-11 year olds and Aaryn Munson in ther 12-and-Up age group. In fact the team only earned three individual first places in any event on the afternoon.

Also finishing in the top 10 overall were, Cassle Anthony in the 6-8 Age Group, Samantha Hinson, Jeana Rice, Kristen Wood, Amy Callan and Hope Hollkamp in the 9-11 Age Group and Lisa Whitlow, Reyna Glibert, Beth Ann Crow and Brandy Oglesby in the 12-and-Up Age Group.

businesswomen do not stray on road DEAR ABBY: Your advice to wife who travels for business reasons, was a bit naive.

My wife and I were happily married until she took a job that required a significant amount of travel. She also told me about the "innocent" cocktail parties, dinners, and the necessity to travel with male colleagues for business reasons. I believed her.

Eventually, she missed too many return flights, and I became suspicious.

Abby, as more women gain equality in the workplace, you can be sure that they are enjoying the same extracur-ricular activities that men have enjoyed for years.

I would advise "Jealous" to relax, be vigilant, and also make sure that when his wife is home, their time together is well spent. SADDER BUT WISER

IN ELMHURST, ILL. DEAR SADDER: It's regrettable that your traveling wife detoured from the straight and narrow, but do not assume that all businesswomen who travel "party" on the road, because the majority of them are either too faithful — or too tired — to frolic.

DEAR ABBY: My flance and I clean house together. One of us says that a person should dust first and vacuum second. The other one insists a person should vacuum first and dust second. Is there a right way to clean house? If you dust first the vacuum sweeper creates dust while you're vacuuming. If you vacuum first, you're putting dust on the floor from dusting the furniture, and leaving footprints on the carpet.

I took a poll at work and found that 75 percent of the people dust first and the remaining 25 percent vacuum first. Now everyone at work wants to know if there is a proper - or more efficient - way to do the housecleaning. Thanks for any help you can give me. CHRIS IN EL CAJON, CALIF.

DEAR CHRIS: There is no right - or wrong - order when it comes to vacuuming and dusting. The last time I cleaned house I believe I vacuumed last. (What a memory!)

Board: Women shouldn't have option on combat

By MATT YANCEY Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Female soldiers should not be given the option of volunteering for front-line duty if men don't have the same choice, says a presidential commission that is considering relaxing the military's ban on women in direct

The 15-member Commission on the Assignment of Women in the Armed Forces on Monday rejected the notion of a so-called dual standard that would let women volunteer for combat while men are assigned to it involuntarily.

"The services should adopt gender-neutral assignment policies, providing for the possibility of involuntary assignment of any qualified personnel to any position open to them," the panel said.

But the sharply divided commission postponed until today votes on just how much the prohibitions on women in combat should be

The Pentagon's policy now is to keep all women, who comprise about 11 percent of the uniformed services, out of direct combat. A poll the panel commissioned from the Roper organization found that 57 percent of the military favors continuing that policy, while 42 percent oppose Nonetheless, a narrow majority of commission members appeared headed toward endorsing an expanded role for women in air and sea combat missions, while continuing to keep them out of ground fighting situations.

Women would still be banned from front-line infantry, armor and artillery assignments but could get combat roles as part of fixed-wing and helicopter aircraft crews or on surface ships under proposals up for votes today.

Congress last year repealed legal restrictions on assigning women to combat aircraft, but it established the commission to examine the impact of assigning them to combat roles there and at sea and on the ground as well.

After holding hearings for seven months and spending some $4 million, the panel is drafting its final, non-binding recommendations for sub-mission to President Bush on Nov. 15.

The panel on Monday also rejected proposals to establish military-wide, gender-related quotas and goals for recruiting, promotions and. assignments.

Instead, it said the secretary of defense should have discretion to set goals to optimize the use of women while ensuring that positions open to both sexes are filled by the best qualified people regardless of gender.

But that recommendation got only eight votes among the 15 commission members, reflecting the nearly equal division among them on how much bigger a role women should have in "Equal opportunity is not the primary goal of the military. Defending the country is;" said Elaine Donnelly, a panel member. The commission also endorsed applying dif-ferent strength, endurance and cardiovascular standards for men and women in basic training. at the service academies and in Reserve Officers, Training Corps programs.
