Fight To See 38 Rounds At Ormory Tonight

Sanford will have its first taste of professional flatcuffs since last winter, at 8 o'clock tonight at the Ormory when 38 rounds, comprising four bouts, will be held. A ring has been installed and seats for more than 200 persons have been arranged for the evening.

The main bout will consist of a set-to between Tony Blanco and Young Ketchell, both of whom at the present are from Jacksonville. In the semi-final Tony Leto tackles Kid Tony and in the prefinal naris, which are to be six rounds each, Marion Gordon, of Columbus, will tackle Joe Young, Sanford middleweight, and Kid Earnest of Norfolk, Va., will swap leather with Dick Fleming, of New Orleans.

The two principals of the evening Ketchell and Blanco, are well known to followers of the squared circle in this section. Ketchell has been fighting in the south for some time and numbers among his victims such matadors as Battling Barnett, of Atlanta; Kid Williams, of Baltimore, former bantamweight champion. Ketchell will take on Boothe Antley, Columbus Ga., scrapper who has been cutting a wide swath through boys of the featherweight class during the recent months. Blanco has fought Young Wallace, Franksi Moran and Ben Ray, coming off creditably in each of his starts.

Ketchell, who is promoting the scrap, is not seeking to make a "killing" this evening but is making an effort towards building up a boxing public in Sanford. If the Sanford fight follows turn out in sufficient force to warrant doing so, a number of good scrappers will be brought here in the near future, he says.

If I live a life that is clean and square,
And I love my fellow-man,
And I lend him a hand to help him bear
His burden whenever I can,
I need not fear what the future holds,
Nor what the reward shall be,
For the mighty love that all enfolds
Will most surely care for me.

If I speak a good word of cheer to one,
Whose sorrows have borne him down,
And I give him new hope to journey on
And change to a smile his frown,
I shall not dread when the shadows fall
And the end of life draws near,
For that wondrous love that shelters all
Will drive away my fear.

For my life is measured by what I meet,
And I earn my own reward,
So the love I give makes my heart complete,
And through it I gain the reward,
For whether I dwell in a house by the road
Or far from the haunts of men,
If only my love makes bright the abode,
No fear shall enter it then.

The great thing in the world is not so much where we stand as in what direction we are moving.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Man climbed up Washington monument the other day and threw a dollar far out into the ozone. It was his only chance for making money go a long way.

That editorial writer of the Tampa Times who exhausted himself so artistically on the wonderful beauty and perfection of "Yesterday," must have just come in from a very splendid golf game.

A young man, applying for a marriage license the other day, blushed. When he came to, he blushed it on a bad lunch. What chance will the man have after he gets married?

Benny Leonard has signed a contract for a three thousand dollar week vaudeville engagement and it is rumored that he has left the ring for good. He better leave the ring, vaudeville and prize rings don't mix very well.

The Western Union Telegraph Company enjoyed an unusually successful year in 1924, the net income exceeding by $75,000 that of the year before. This was probably due to the fact that it was a leap year.

Man in Miami the other day made a terrible mistake by not reading the papers. He wanted a piece of property and offered the agent fifteen thousand for it. The agent accepted. He had advertised it for twelve thousand in the paper.

Folks who have been worrying out whether Andrew Mellon is going to remain as secretary of the treasury, should take heart from a statement of his: "I will stay all you all become an accused man by my being here that it will occur to you to ask the question."

The Sanford Herald says when woman is seen holding a baby darning a cigarette, the world is slipping a cog. Yip, her mother probably smoked a pipe.—Greenlee Piedmont. More likely true in the past. Many grandmothers darning their pipes now—and why not?—Times-Union.

The Sanford Herald wants to know what has become of the old blind girl who didn't mind rising darned stockings. She's old lady we know whose grandmother has been to see her in her onion skin hose. She can go out joy riding.—Citty Banner.

Oh a lotta the grandmas we are wearing onion skins ourselves.—Ocala Star.

Help Save Golf For Sanford

Several years ago a few of Sanford's most progressive citizens began to realize the advantages this city would gain from a well appointed golf course and so "chipping in" together they purchased a site and laid out a course. After a while the costly upkeep of such a proposition proved too much for any club in a city the size of Sanford and it became necessary to sell the golf links to the city.

Since that time the city commission has made many, greatly needed improvements and has spent considerable money in developing one of the finest courses in the state. Every feature of the country club from the first tee to the club house itself has undergone vast improvements in the past year and the city is now offering to the people of Sanford an amusement plant conservatively valued at sixty thousand dollars.

But it seems that very few indeed appreciate the unusual opportunity which has been placed before them. Nowhere else in Florida, perhaps in the whole country, is there a golf course where the ancient Scottish game can be played over such beautiful greens among such hazardous traps and lakes at so low a cost to the player as fifty cents a round. In most places men delight at paying three dollars to play over not nearly so good a course as ours, and sometimes are lucky to be able to play even then, so crowded are the courses.

Yet here in Sanford, we are informed, so few people are playing golf that during the past month little over one hundred dollars was realized from the green fees, and of course, the expenses for the upkeep of the course were considerably in excess of this. The answer can be only one: either the people of Sanford must show their appreciation for the splendid opportunity afforded them and take an active interest in the game, or the city must withdraw its support and the course allowed to deteriorate.

For the purpose of stimulating interest in golf and rescuing the course from almost certain disrepair if existing conditions continue, a group of enthusiastic golfers met at the County Club Tuesday night and organized a golf club. It will be the primary object of this club to see that local interest in golf be thoroughly revived, that the game be placed on as high a plane as it is in any other community and that those who can and should play golf be strongly encouraged to do so.

But the club cannot do it all. The club cannot force people to play, or force the city commission to make further expenditures when there is no income from the greens. The club can only urge. It is up to the people of Sanford to do the rest. The Herald cannot believe that the people of Sanford do not readily recognize the value to the city of an excellent golf course. The Herald can only believe that the people of Sanford will rally to the support of the club and lend their best efforts toward saving the course from its present predicament.

Death of a Good Thing

Sometimes Florida does something that makes one think it the most progressive of states, and then the next day it may commit the most retrogressive act. There must be some peculiar mental reactions in us Florida people. We voted only recently to abolish forever in Florida income and inheritance taxes, a most far-sighted act, and then almost before we have quite congratulated ourselves on that, we decide, almost like old fossils, not to hold the big Florida fair at Madison Square Garden this winter.

It is indeed gratifying to The Herald to know that Seminole county was not among those which could not see ample compensation for the expense involved in such a fair. Seminole county was among those ten counties, and only ten counties, which could be counted upon to participate actively in the fair. And that is greatly to Seminole's credit.

As for those other counties, poor backward counties, which either lacked that spirit of co-operation which makes for greatness, or could not see the advantages of such valuable advertising, are concerned, it is not for The Herald to criticize them. They are other counties and probably know their own needs and desires better than The Herald does. But as far as the state as a whole is concerned it is very unfortunate that enough counties were not sufficiently interested to warrant holding the fair.

BEATTY AND JUTLAND
NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

Admiral Sir Reginald Bacon's attack on Earl Beatty, in a volume entitled "The Jutland Scandal," has a personal vehemence which sets it quite apart from dispassionate military criticism. Admiral Bacon views Beatty as the undeserved beneficiary of the many mistakes made at the battle of Jutland and contends that Beatty's mistakes were greater than those of any other British commander.

To sustain this charge he asserts that Jellie could not have effectively taken the offensive against the German High Seas Fleet when he arrived on the scene because Beatty had not given him adequate information about the enemy's position. But the German fleet was there and the British Grand Fleet was there, Beatty having drawn it on in a retreating advance-squadron fight. In doing so he had accomplished his tactical mission, although at a considerable cost.

Jellie had to decide a little after 6 p. m. on May 31, 1916, whether to deploy toward the Germans or away from them. He said in his book that he thought the High Seas Fleet was too close to justify the risk of deploying to starboard (toward Scheer). He deployed to port and carried his ship away from the Germans.

The information which Beatty gave him could have had little to do with this decision. It was a decision of policy, in keeping with Jellie's theories and temperament. As it turned out, the chance of a great British victory vanished with the turning away movement. The Germans also turned away, but in the opposite direction, and the two fleets lost contact. Scheer eventually extricated himself by daring tactics from a very perilous position, the British fleet having interposed itself between him and his base. It is difficult to see how Beatty can be charged with the failure of the British operations after Jellie's arrival. Jellie's force was greatly superior in armor, armament and numbers. Yet the opportunity to destroy the German fleet was lost through excess caution or unlucky management.

Jutland was a paradoxical naval battle in that the weaker fleet escaped and also suffered relatively smaller losses than the stronger. It is useless to hunt for a new scapegoat. Jellie accepted responsibility for the failure to bring on a fleet engagement. Beatty had already fought a long squad-ron engagement, and nothing he did or neglected to do on the afternoon of May 31 can be held to have seriously hampered Jellie in continuing the fight.

A DAWES PLAN FOR FRANCE
ST. PETERSBURG INDEPENDENT

If it is true that Great Britain acquiesces in a plan to fund the French debt to the United States on terms less severe than the basis of settlement of England's debt to this country, the way has been cleared for the solution of a problem that threatened to give Uncle Sam a good deal of embarrassment. But for this attitude on the part of the British, the United States could not have granted special terms to the French without offending the British.

France's plea for leniency, made through the budget statement of Finance Clementel several days ago, was not a gesture of repudiation. It was a request for favored terms under which to settle her obligation to this country.

The reason for the attitude of the British is apparent. If France is to make substantial payments to either country she can do so best if the United States and England co-operate in a plan of settlement. This was done in the Dawes plan, under which Germany is to settle. France, in effect, now wants a Dawes plan worked out for her. The two creditor nations of France will have to work out an agreement on her capacity to pay just as they have done for Germany. France has dropped the hint that she would welcome such an arrangement, provided no element of coercion exists, such as foreign control of the reparations under the Dawes plan in Germany.

In the end, France's ability to pay will depend somewhat upon what she gets from Germany under the Dawes plan. If this works out as well as expected, the French will be able to repay the loans advanced by Great Britain and the United States. If Germany defaults any financial agreement made by France may not amount to much for many years.

What Women Teach.
Wall Street's Maelstrom.
He's Really President.
The Kansas Mr. Davis.
BY ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright 1924)

H. G. WELLS worries about the American system of public school education. He is much afraid that our manhood will be damaged because our school boys are educated largely by women, whereas British boys are educated by men.

IT IS KIND of Mr. Wells to worry, but he is wasting time and energy in this case.

If he will look into his own book of history at one of his ancestors with the big teeth, low forehead and heavy jaw, he will find that human beings have changed. And he ought to know that they have changed, thanks to the fact that men have been educated by their MOTHERS.

WOMEN have educated not only the boys but also the men, gradually taking the brutality out of them. And that's what they need. On the lap of his mother, and at her knee, man has been changed from the troglodyte that used to crack his neighbors' thigh bone to get at the marrow, into our present imitation of civilization.

WOMEN can teach the school-boy justice, kindness, courage, patience and concentration. What other manly characteristics does the man teach?

THE ONLY teacher that Abraham Lincoln ever had was a woman, his stepmother. She did pretty well. The right woman for a mother, and the right woman for a teacher, will turn out men sufficiently manly, as Wells will learn from Lincoln's history.

WHEAT went to a new high price again yesterday. Its upward climb was not merely a "temporary feature of the Coolidge campaign."

Conservative gentlemen, powerful in politics, welcome the higher wheat prices. Radicalism among farmers goes DOWN while wheat goes UP.

By and by, however, of course, something will happen. Then wheat will come down, and radicalism will go up again.

STOCKS were cheerful yesterday also. The predicted 1925 drop is still missing.

If you have good nerves, you can last a long while in Wall Street's maelstrom of finance. Last night New York bankers gave a dinner in honor of George F. Baker. That gentleman, who is the third or fourth, possibly the second richest man in the world, is hard at work and eighty-five years old. But it takes strength to keep going in that game.

Jay Gould, E. H. Harriman and dozens of others have died young because they got rich very fast.

IN KANSAS there is excitement about Governor Davis, accused of selling pardons and paroles to prisoners. The Governor's son, accused with him, confessed to accepting twelve hundred and fifty dollars as a bribe, after detectives trapped and caught him.

GOVERNOR DAVIS, who now leaves the governorship, has an unusual record in the way of pardons, including murderers, bank thieves and others. The charge is made by the local officials that such pardons were bought and paid for. Proof, of course, has not been given.

THIS INTERESTS people outside of Kansas. You will remember that Governor Davis was a very prominent candidate for the Democratic nomination for President last time. He ran about of John W. Davis for fifty ballots.

You realize how well our great democracy works, when you see that, instead of Mr. Davis, who will be arrested, charged with taking bribes, as soon as he leaves office, the Democratic candidate for his candidate Mr. John W. Davis, a lawyer of the Standard Oil Company, the telephone company, and J. P. Morgan & Co.

WHATEVER the cause for Mr. Hughes' resignation, this is certain: President Coolidge intends to take care of the entire job to which the people elected him, not merely one small end of it.

HE STUDIED the American Constitution inside a New England farmhouse long, and knows that he is the man in charge. He is head of the Army and Navy, and proposes to have that understood.

HE IS responsible for United States dealings with foreign nations and intends to carry the responsibility.

There is no doubt that up to this moment an enormous majority of the people of the United States believe they were fortunate when they elected Mr. Coolidge Vice-President in 1920, and thus got him for President in 1924.

POLITICIANS are busy "explaining" the resignation of Mr. Hughes as Secretary of State. One guess says, "He intends to run for President next time and feels that he ought to retire well in advance from President Coolidge's Cabinet."

Another guess by "Chief Justice Taft," whose health is not good, intends to retire, and Mr. Hughes is to be appointed to the Supreme Bench, which he left to run against Woodrow Wilson." As usual, probably both guesses will prove to be wrong.

THE ONLY SAFE ROUTE TO A COMFORTABLE FUTURE

TRULY SOUTHERN AND CONGENIAL
LIBERTY MAGAZINE

About this time of the year the lucky Northerner looks South for a winter garden. His own are under the snow drifts. Every year America becomes more of an out-of-door nation, with all the attendant benefits of such a life, and it is its great fortune that some, where along its coasts at every season there is warm water, rivers are free of ice and fields are open and sunny. The northern winter is making the north acquainted with an ideal winter land in the South.

While the North was receiving the current of immigration through its ports and trying the vast experiment of taking the alien by millions into the common language, institutions and culture, the South was receiving the old breed from admixture. The South is a reservoir of the old stock which founded the republic. The stock of the tidewater, the piedmont, the mountains, the plantations, the valleys, is still there and virtually undiluted.

The North found that in the receiving of new blood it had about reached the saturation point and unless there was to be a perceptible and possibly a fundamental change in kind it must stop, and the nation did stop. In this respect it has the South as an untouched social stream. The solid South will do something for the solid American nation.

Our first development was a long parallel of latitude. Now we are shifting by parallels of longitude.

A man up by the lakes or the northern seaboard packs his golf sticks and his pole and tackle and goes to Florida or the gulf ports. When the out-of-doors freezes up about him he goes where it is open. He exchanges the snow-filled air for the palm.

It is a national good fortune that a great nation should contain such a range of climate and opportunities all within its continental boundaries and offer such diversity under its own flag. The growing attraction of the South is set forth in the rapid development of its beauty spots.

Road building is being carried ahead and the modern gipsy with his car can take the mountain trails of the South in the spring when the dogwood and flame azaleas, the rhododendron and laurel are in bloom, and penetrate into a land of the sky where the American highlanders live.

The travel by north and south lines will tighten the national web which holds the states together. Communication is what makes the national life possible. If it were only east and west there would be a dividing line somewhere on each side of it and the tendency would be to separate and fall apart. There would be an alienation which would send part of the people one way and part another, with developing points of difference instead of the trend toward unity and cohesion. Travel north and south is good and there are a thousand pleasant objectives at the southern end.

New Era of Shopping and Marketing
FT. MYERS PRESS

One of the most radical changes which has taken place in the commercial world during the past few years is the change in the way women attend to their shopping and do their marketing.

Time was, and not so long ago either, when lady drove to the store and then staid to look at and price meats, fruits, vegetables, etc. Then she retraced her steps buying what she had proven by her own eyes to be the best and the cheapest.

A shopping tour was similarly conducted, and entailed visits to any number of stores or shops where garments and materials were inspected and priced before a final decision was reached. Only after a careful mental comparison of goods and prices was a purchase made.

Those old methods were tests of physical strength as well as consumers of time.

Today, mildly sits down quietly at home and looks over the advertisements in the newspaper. Those in which prices and descriptions are definite appeal to her with the greatest strength.

The compares makes or brands, qualities, descriptions and prices. Of the advertised goods, juts down her decisions, goes to the telephone and gives her order, or goes directly to the store which has advertised what she wants at a satisfactory price and makes her purchase without any of the old time "looking around." She can do this because she feels every confidence in the store whose advertisements she has proven to be trustworthy; because she knows the merits of the advertised goods through other advertisements, and because she feels that back of all this is her newspaper, which would not accept advertising that it had any reason to believe was not reliable.

Newspaper advertising has certainly revolutionized shopping and marketing; and lifted them out of the "drudgery" class.

500 YEARS AGO AND NOW
ST. AUGUSTINE RECORD

If we lived in an era of civilization similar to that which prevailed 500 years ago, the 24th day of the present month would be a dread occasion. Fear would sweep through the eastern section of the United States and citizens would pour out by the thousands in church processions, while hundreds of magicians and sorcerers would delve deep into the secrets of wizardry to attempt to solve the meaning of the ominous sign.

During the early hours of the morning on that day, Buffalo, N. Y., and New Haven, Conn., will be in almost total darkness, according to astronomers, as a dark surface passes over the face of the sun. Other cities in the direct line of these cities will have a similar experience, an ordeal which never failed to frighten the ancients out of their wits. Atlanta, Georgia will see about one-fourth of the sun on that morning, according to the scientists there, and the phenomenon will be viewed in St. Augustine in corresponding degree. Fans of the smoked glass are warned to begin preparing their glasses for the marvel well in advance.

In the region of the Hudson River Valley, the path of the eclipse will be 110 miles wide, and some interesting developments are expected in that belt. The animals will become perplexed, scientists say, and birds and chickens probably will go to roost after they have waked up for the day—they they thought.

The sun has just passed its period of minimum spots, and will probably have some spots in January when the eclipse will take place, causing some disturbance at the corona, which can be seen at eclipse time.

Famous Fighter Of 25 Years Ago Now Tailor

COLUSA, Cal., Jan. 16.—George La Blanche, who in 1889 knocked out Jack Dempsey, the Nonpareil, with the famous pivot punch, and surprised the pugilistic world, has been working here as a tailor, for more than a year. It was not learned until recently that he was the fighting marine of the eighties who was accorded the honors of a champion.

He is known in Colusa as George Ferguson, his real name. He is 74 now and looks hearty.

After his victory over the Nonpareil he joined a party headed by John L. Sullivan and toured Australia. In his late years he reverted to the occupation his father taught him.

A person could travel around the world on a milk diet, health authorities say.

Spring Suit

The combination of plain and figured materials is one frequently met with in spring fashions. Here is a typical spring suit with striped skirt and plain coat trimmed with the plaid. The coat could be worn very nicely with a white silk skirt while the skirt would look very attractive with a sweater jacket. So it is a valuable addition to any wardrobe.

A WORD FOR BEGINNERS.

The best way to solve a cross-word puzzle is to run quickly over the list of horizontal and vertical synonyms and compare them to the spaces in the puzzle extending cross-wise or downward from the number of the synonym. Some word which will just fit in the number of space available will quickly occur to you in some instances, giving you a foundation from which to solve the more difficult words. The words must interlock perfectly.

We Can Prove It with a dozen NEW EDISONS

We did prove it—absolutely and conclusively—with a single New Edison. You know we did—from the results of the test made last week at High School Auditorium, when Elizabeth Spencer compared her voice with its RE-CREATION by the New Edison.

We can prove it again—with another New Edison Phonograph in our store.

Last week's marvelous exhibition was not the achievement of a special New Edison. It was simply a regular New Edison Phonograph.

The New Edison PHONOGRAPH

Buy one of these New Edison Phonographs on our easy payment Budget Plan. Then you have the one phonograph that sustains the one vital phonograph test. Then you have music so perfectly RE-CREATED that you feel that you are listening to living artists.

We guarantee that any New Edison which you select from our stock, will do everything which was done by the instrument used in last week's test.
