BRIEFS

Number of smokers decline

ATLANTA — Smoking shortens the average person's life by two decades and is still the most preventable cause of death in the nation, federal health officials said.

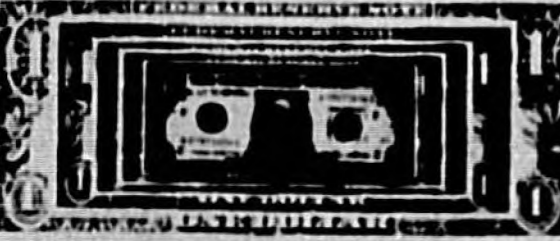

The number of Americans smoking has declined to less than 30 percent of the population from 40 percent in 1965, the Centers for Disease Control reported, but added more prevention programs are needed to decrease the number further.

The CDC, in a report that coincided with Thursday's "Great American Smokeout," calculated that smoking ended 3.6 million years of life prematurely in 1985.

Dollar rebounds in Tokyo

The U.S. dollar rebounded against the Japanese yen in Tokyo today, bolstered by continued intervention by the Bank of Japan, market sources said.

After opening higher at 122.15 yen, the U.S. unit closed 0.88 yen higher at 122.40 yen after fluctuating in a range of 122.07-60 yen, the Bank of Japan said.

Dealers said the Bank of Japan, the nation's central bank, carried out intermittent intervention today, but its action was smaller in scale than Thursday, involving an estimated $200-300 million.

The bank is believed to have purchased $1 billion to shore up the U.S. unit on Thursday, when the greenback plunged to a postwar low closing rate of 121.52 yen.

'Canes underdog to LSU?

BATON ROUGE, La. — It's a lot easier to believe Louisiana State Coach Mike Archer when he says his 12th-ranked Tigers are the underdogs in Saturday night's matchup against No. 3 Miami.

Although the Hurricanes are seven-point favorites, Miami Coach Jimmy Johnson also tried to sound like his 7-1 team was outmatched.

"I feel like we're probably the underdog, going into Baton Rouge and playing a top-notch football team like LSU," Johnson said.

"We graduated a lot of players, in fact almost our entire football team last year. So we've got a tremendous amount of inexperience and youth."

Testing plan criticized

Law professor says Gov. Martinez' anti-drug program might be voided

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A sweeping drug-testing program for state employees embraced by Gov. Bob Martinez is constitutionally suspect and may be rendered useless by a pending Supreme Court decision, a law professor said.

"If (the proposal) is very badly timed because we are expecting the Supreme Court to rule on this issue and give us some guidance. Why rush ahead with this plan?" Paul Joseph, a professor at Nova University said Thursday.

Martinez said Tuesday he wanted state agency heads to formulate drug-testing plans for their departments and submit initial proposals to him by Dec. 16.

Martinez said the testing program should cover "high-risk" employee categories and did not rule out random or blanket testing for all state employees or prospective employees.

The governor said while he knew of no areas in state government where drug abuse was causing a serious problem, he thought taxpayers deserved a state government that was drug-free.

But Joseph said federal courts have, as a rule, frowned on such testing by governmental entities and that decisions from the Supreme Court on two such cases are expected early next year.

The cases, involving federal transportation workers and U.S. Customs employees, are the first to reach the Supreme Court that address the issue of government-sanctioned testing, Joseph said, and are part of a federal drive to impose

Lake Mary board finally certifies election results

By SANDRA BOUCHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — A member of the canvassing board who contested Lake Mary's election results in the mayor's race and demanded a recount, decided to certify the votes last night, nine days after the election.

Commissioner Thomas Mahoney, at a meeting which was held before the regular commissioners meeting said, "As far as I'm concerned, it's over. The election is certified."

Mahoney had said he did not want to certify the results of the mayor's race in which Dick Fess beat Commissioner Randall Morris by a slim 37 votes because he said he felt the canvassing board did not follow the state's election laws.

The other two canvassing board members, City Clerk Carol Edwards and Commissioner George Durryea disagreed with Mahoney.

City Attorney Ned Julian was present at the public meeting as a legal advisor to the board. Fess sat quietly in the back of the room, however, Morris was not present.

Mahoney said he felt several things were wrong with the way the election was handled. He said that signatures on the back of the absentee ballot mailing envelopes were not checked and compared with the registration book to see that the elector is registered in the county as required by state law. He also said that the canvassing board did not watch the city ballot counting at the county supervisor of elections office.

Developer unveils plans for downtown restaurant

By BRAD CHURCH
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Planning and zoning commissioners heard about plans for a 400-500-seat restaurant-lounge in downtown Sanford Thursday night at city hall.

Darryl A. Barrs, 2528 El Portal Ave., developer of the restaurant, said it will be located in the vacant building bounded by Fulton and Commercial streets and Elm and Laurel avenues.

Barrs said he is in the process of buying the building from Irving Feinberg, but the sale hinges on Barr receiving a conditional use permit from the city, which is required for sale of liquor in that area. The commissioners unanimously recommended the city commission approve the permit.

Barrs earlier received approval from the city commission for a dance hall permit for the site.

Barrs told the planning and zoning commission he plans a "classy southern-style restaurant" with three dining areas. He described the dining areas as: (1) an informal area, which will include a lounge, and seating for 100-120 people; (2) a formal dining area, used mainly for lunches, with about the same capacity as the informal area; and (3) a "grand" dining area, with seating for 400 to 500 people, which will be used primarily on weekends. He said the facility would be available for small conventions and private

Plant owner plans move to Sanford

By BRAD CHURCH

SANFORD — A manufacturer of ambulances and mini-buses told Sanford Planning and Zoning commissioners Thursday that he wants to move his mini-bus manufacturing plant from Winter Park to Sanford.

Don Collins, president of Wheeled Coach Industries, Inc., said he plans to build a 60,000 to 75,000 square foot plant on Kennel Road a few hundred yards back from State Road 46 in west Sanford.

Collins said he is buying about 20 acres there and wanted the commission's opinion on whether his manufacturing plant would be allowed in the area, which is designated for light manufacturing. After questioning him about what type of activities would take place at the plant, the commissioners told Collins that the proposed site would be suitable for it.

Collins said Wheeled Coach Industries has plants in Indiana, Ohio and Texas, as well as the one in Winter Park. The Winter Park facility manufactures ambulances and mini-buses in plants on both sides of the 2700 block of N. Forsyth Road, he said.

Collins said the company wants to expand the mini-bus plant but there

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Official: Change election procedures

By ROCKY SCOTT
United Press International

200,000 more people voted in the presidential election than in the Senate election.

TALLAHASSEE — A 200,000-vote disparity in Florida's U.S. Senate race and confusion among local election officials show the need for changes in the electoral process, state elections supervisor Dot Joyce said.

"Before the 1988 season of the Legislature, we hope to have several suggestions ready" that would clarify and, to some extent, standardize election procedures across the state, Joyce said Thursday.

Joyce said her office already was considering asking state lawmakers for some changes when the controversy surfaced in the U.S. Senate race between Democrat Kenneth "Buddy" Mackay and Republican Connie Mack.

Mack won the contest by about 31,000 votes, but Mackay asked five counties to look at ballots to see if there were any irregularities. Mackay said the disparity in the number of votes cast in the presidential race and in the Senate race indicated there may have been problems.

Mackay finally conceded the race to Mack Wednesday, but said he remained concerned about the fact that 200,000 more people voted in the presidential election than in the Senate election.

Joyce agreed the difference was disturbing, but said it was due to ballot placement, not problems with voting machines or computerized counting procedures.

"I think, in looking over the ballots that we have, it was purely the placement on the ballot" that caused the difference in the number of votes cast, Joyce said.

In Dade, Hillsborough, Palm Beach and Broward counties, the U.S. Senate race was at the bottom of the first ballot page under the presidential race.

"People thought it was still in the president's race," Joyce said, and missed seeing the names of Mackay and Mack on the ballot.

She said the placement problem is her biggest concern, but that she is not sure there is a simple answer to the problem.

Joyce said she would like for Florida's 67 counties to use a standardized ballot that had races separated by more white space, color-coding or different type styles for different races.

The problem, according to Joyce, is that all counties do not use the same method to count votes, so a ballot that might work in Dade County could be useless in Escambia County.

Still, Joyce thinks some sort of standard could be used to at least reduce the level of voter confusion when residents are confronted with lengthy ballots that list a large number of races.

Joyce also said all counties will have computer counting abilities by 1990 and that those computers would be tied into a large system at the state Division of Elections office at the Capitol.

The system will expedite returns, she said, and already has been funded by the Legislature.

Joyce also wants to standardize procedures used by local canvassing boards in the way elections results are reported and post-election legal questions are dealt with.

She said a group of election officials is studying possible changes in state law aimed at improving standards applied by county election officials.

Joyce also said county canvassing boards that certify the results need to be given more specific directions about how to operate.

Joyce declined to discuss the measures in more detail, but did say she hoped staff members would have the plan completed before the Legislature convenes next spring.

Tropical depression to be checked

MIAMI — The 19th tropical depression of the 1988 Atlantic-Caribbean hurricane season developed southeast of Jamaica Thursday and drifted north with top winds of 35 mph, the National Hurricane Center said.

At 10:30 p.m. EST, the depression was located about 230 miles southeast of Kingston, Jamaica, moving north at about 5 mph, forecaster Gil Clark said.

He said it was expected to continue to drift along that track for the next 12 to 24 hours. Little significant change in strength was expected Thursday night, Clark said.

An Air Force reconnaissance aircraft was expected to investigate the storm system today.

If the depression becomes more organized and develops top sustained winds of 39 mph, it would become tropical storm Keith, the 11th named Atlantic-Caribbean storm this year.

TV stardom lands fugitive back in jail

TAMPA — Federal agents arrested James Allen Malloy, a fugitive featured on "America's Most Wanted" television show, in a Tampa shopping center Thursday.

Malloy, 32, of North Carolina, was arrested for fleeing after allegedly stealing a truck, credit cards and checkbook of Daniel Vallone of Atlanta in December 1987, FBI agents said.

Authorities found Vallone's burned pick-up truck near Gaffney, S.C. Vallone has not been seen since and the FBI believes he was murdered.

An officer with Atlanta Police Department's missing persons division late Thursday night said he could not say why authorities believe Vallone was murdered, nor how Malloy was involved, although the FBI said Atlanta police considered Malloy a "prime" suspect in Vallone's disappearance.

Legal moves to end DeSillers case

MIAMI — Maria DeSillers agreed to withdraw claims against the estate of her son, Ronnie, and a judge ordered a trust to pay $25,000 to the trust, ending legal battles that began after the boy's death last year.

After legal expenses are paid, the remaining money in the trust will be given to the Governor's Transplant Lifeline for Children fund, a clearinghouse for children who need transplants, the court-appointed curator of the Ronnie DeSillers trust, Karen Olevera, said Thursday.

"This brings an end into any litigation between Ms. DeSillers, the estate and the trust," Olevera said.

"The real winners are the sick children who need transplants and whose parents can't afford them and the indirect winners are the public," she said. "Somewhere in the 90 percent range of all the money donated by the public will go to benefit sick children."

Dade County Circuit Judge Francis Christie ordered Coral Gables Savings and Loan Association to pay $25,000 to the trust.

Gissendanner requests lighter sentence

MIAMI — Elton Gissendanner, the former head of the state Department of Natural Resources, has asked a federal judge to reduce his 18-month prison sentence from his perjury and bribery trial.

In a motion filed this week in Miami federal court, Gissendanner said his sentence should be reduced because he got a bad deal when he pleaded guilty to obstruction of justice. A spokeswoman in U.S. District Judge Stanley Aronovitz's office Thursday said no action had been taken on the request.

The motion said U.S. District Judge Luther Genge agreed to make no recommendations at the sentence hearing for Gissendanner, who is serving his sentence at the Eglin Air Force Base prison.

But when he tried to get an early release, Genge broke the deal by writing a strong objection to the parole board, the motion said.

Feds to seize accounts in 41 banks

TAMPA, Fla. (UPI) — Federal prosecutors have issued warrants to seize accounts at 41 banks in five states as part of the largest money-laundering investigation in U.S. Customs Service history.

Last month a federal grand jury in Tampa indicted 85 people and the Bank of Credit and Commerce International on charges of laundering more than $31 million in drug money as the result of an investigation dubbed "C-Chase."

So far the government has seized or tried to seize $4.23 million from banks in Florida, California, New York, Ohio and Pennsylvania. Most of the targeted accounts are in south Florida.

Investigators claim the money can be traced to a series of drug deals. They also have claimed dozens of other accounts are suspicious.

Not all banks have complied with seizure requests. Officials are going over records from banks that have complied with the requests and more arrests could result.

Floridian is oldest human

United Press International

PALATKA — A woman who spent most of her life in Florida's mental hospital will receive certification as the planet's oldest human from "The Guinness Book of World Records" on Friday, her 114th birthday.

Carrie White, born Nov. 18, 1874, in rural Gadsden County near Tallahassee, has lived the last 2 1/2 years at Putnam Memorial Nursing Center in Palatka, about 50 miles south of Jacksonville.

Diagnosed with post-typhoid psychosis, White was committed to Florida State Hospital at Chattahoochee the day after her 35th birthday and remained there 75 years, Marjorie Allen, White's legal guardian since 1984, said Thursday.

Allen has worked as a nursing home volunteer for years and met Carrie through a program to find guardians for the institutionalized elderly. She took on caring for Carrie when no guardian could be found and is just beginning to piece together the puzzle of her friend's life.

driven by Susan Ryal, 50, of Longwood, was charged with DUI and making an improper turn after Ryal's westbound car struck his. Ryal was hospitalized in Sanford and Semple jailed.

Audit: Court costs go uncollected

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's courts collected only 19 percent of the $54 million owed in court costs by criminal defendants in 1987, according to a state audit released Thursday.

Auditor General Ernest Ellison, in an audit of the Florida Supreme Court, said a little more than $10 million was actually collected from defendants who pleaded guilty or were convicted of felonies, misdemeanors or criminal traffic offenses for the year.

Chief Justice Raymond Ehrlich said in a written response that the situation was "regrettable."

"Clearly, a major reason is the indigency of many defendants. This is a problem that cannot be eliminated," he wrote.

Ehrlich added that, notwithstanding laws requiring payment of court costs, "it is long and well established that indigent defendants cannot be made to pay costs."

State law requires that convicted felons pay $200 in court costs, and that people convicted of misdemeanors and criminal traffic violations pay $50.

The money goes into a trust fund used mostly to help local governments cover costs for prosecutors and public defenders. County victim-witness payment programs also get a portion of the money.

Auditors reviewed 256 criminal cases for 1987 and found costs were assessed in only 107 cases. In 12 percent of the cases, judges waived the payment of costs in lieu of jail time served. In 18 percent of the cases, the defendant was deemed indigent. No reason was given in 57 percent of the cases.

The audit says the Supreme Court, which oversees all state courts, should develop procedures to ensure the state's lower courts assess costs on a uniform basis.

Ehrlich noted there is no state law requiring the high court to oversee the collection of fines.

"Moreover, the Florida statutes and the rules of court make provisions for a vast range of mandatory and discretionary fines and costs, for a variety of purposes," he wrote.

"It would be impossible for the court to catalogue all such fines and costs, establish uniform procedures for their assessment and monitor collections, without considerable additional resources."

OVIEDO — In two separate cases three Seminole County men have been charged in attacks on others. In one case an Oviedo man, whose intestines were cut out of his body, is in critical condition. In the other, a Sanford boy was shot in the thigh.

Oviedo police report charging Hayton O. Brathwaite, 33, of P.O. Box 125 China Berry Street, Oviedo, with attempted manslaughter. He is accused of slashing a 4-inch gash in the abdomen of George Gould, 21, with a pocket knife.

An argument over money between Brathwaite and Gould turned into a fight at the corner of Harrison Street and Wilson Avenue at about 10:15 p.m. Thursday, Lt. Jim Smeltzer said.

During the fight, Gould was slashed with a pocket knife. Police said Gould's intestines spilled out. He is in critical condition at Winter Park Memorial Hospital.

Brathwaite was arrested at the Oviedo police station following the incident. He is held without bond.

In the other case, Uirsey O'Neal, 17, of 2130 Sipes Ave., Sanford, reportedly identified two men who attacked him at about 8 p.m. Thursday. Both suspects are accused of shooting at O'Neal, and one is accused of wounding him in the left thigh.

Redrick Mills, 19, of Sanford, and Gregory Lenard Mills, 18, of 1264 Pomegranite Ave., Sanford, are charged with attempted murder. Redrick Mills is accused of firing the shot that wounded O'Neal. Gregory Mills is accused of firing at the wounded O'Neal as he ran from the attackers on 12th Street at Olive Avenue. The suspects were captured near the scene.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said the motive for the shooting is not known, but the three persons believed involved in the incident were fighting before the shots were fired. No guns have been recovered, but it is believed that O'Neal was shot with either a handgun or a rifle, police said.

The suspects in these two cases are held in the Seminole County jail without bond.

Lake Mary will not request cooling-off period

By SANDRA BOUGHANINE
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Lake Mary commissioners last evening denied a resolution to ask Seminole County to reconsider a three-day waiting period on handgun purchases. They also directed city staff to come back with a recommendation on the city's check-signing procedure.

Commissioners voted 3-2 against a resolution to urge Seminole County to reconsider its refusal of a three-day cooling off period for handgun purchases. The county voted 4-1 against the measure last month. The measure, however, has been enacted in neighboring Orange and Volusia counties.

Director of Public Safety and Police Chief Charles Lauderdale told the commissioners that the purpose of the law as interpreted by the Florida Police Chiefs' Association is to stop people in a "fit of emotion" from committing a rash action that would harm themselves or others by enforcing a three-day cooling off period.

The law requires a three-day wait for handgun purchases between the time someone applies for a handgun and when they pick it up. The law only applies to handgun purchases.

Several of the commissioners questioned the logic of the law. "The cooling-off period would mean my wife would have to shoot me with a shotgun rather than a handgun," Commissioner Paul Tremel said.

"The clear reason the board voted this down last time is that the legislation is not good," Commissioner Randall Morris said.

Tremel, along with commissioners Morris and John Percy, voted against the resolution. Commissioners George Duryea and Thomas Mahoney voted in favor of it.

"I'm willing to accept the chance this could save one life," Mahoney said.

A Winter Springs citizen, who said he had served as an official of the law, spoke during the meeting and cited statistics that showed the cooling-off periods do not work.

He said the state of California has imposed a 15-day cooling-off period and yet its crime rate has soared to 400 percent.

Commissioner Percy introduced the matter of the city's check-signing procedures.

"For some time, the mayor has been saddled with that burden," Percy said.

The mayor signs employees' checks after commission meetings.

Commissioner Mahoney said he disagreed with the procedure because he said the check becomes a "live asset" after the mayor signs them and sends them back to the finance director.

He said the greater good would be served if the commission made check-signing a staff function.

The commission made and approved a motion to have city staff come back with a recommendation on the check-signing procedure.

Biaggi to be sentenced in Wedtech bribery case

United Press International

NEW YORK — Mario Biaggi, a decorated policeman and influential 10-term congressman who left office to fight two corruption convictions, could be imprisoned for up to 146 years and fined $7.4 million.

The Bronx Democrat, who received 36,121 write-in votes for Congress on Election Day despite his Aug. 5 resignation, is to be sentenced today along with four others for their part in the Wedtech bribery scandal.

Judge Constance Baker Motley is to sentence the five, including Biaggi's son, Richard, in U.S. District Court in Manhattan.

Biaggi, 70, was convicted of receiving $1.8 million in stock in return for his help in getting Wedtech government defense contracts. He faces up to 146 years in prison and $7 million in fines for his conviction on 15 counts, including racketeering, extortion and taking bribes.

A seventh defendant was acquitted, and Biaggi's law partner, Bernard Ehrlich, is to be sentenced at a later date.

The six were convicted for transforming Wedtech, once a small South Bronx machine shop, into a million-dollar defense contractor by using stock in the company to bribe influential officials.

Justice flies away in California

The killing of elderly boarders allegedly committed by the landlady in Sacramento, California to secure social security and welfare checks has attracted nationwide attention in recent days. The bodies were buried in the yard of the house and the landlady disappeared after that discovery was made.

She was arrested in Los Angeles as the result of a tip from a man she had met in a bar. So far, she has been charged with one murder. Police are expected to file six additional murder charges today.

The landlady was arrested in her motel room, handcuffed, taken to the airport and returned to Sacramento where she was put in jail. These are the details and charges now known but they omit a very troublesome aspect - the role of a television station in the scenario.

When arrested in Los Angeles, the landlady was handcuffed and taken to a private jet that had been chartered by a television station in the extremely competitive local market. She was interviewed by the television reporter during the return flight to Sacramento. Police were present but not an attorney to represent her.

Upon arrival in Sacramento, the landlady refused all interviews and hid her head when attempts were made to take her picture. The opportunistic L.A. station had an exclusive interview in which the landlady denied harming anyone but admitted cashing the checks. It was a news coup.

In fairness, it should be known that the tipster at the bar called the television station, and the station actually set up the arrest.

Nevertheless, the circumstances raise profound concerns.

That station or, for that matter, any newspaper, that has knowledge of a felony or a fugitive, must conduct itself as a law abiding citizen. A tip should not be a guarantee of an exclusive news story that raises the specter of compromises in the defendant's rights.

An experienced reporter uses interview techniques that differ slightly from the police but those differences are primarily in the vernacular. The who, what, where, why and when remain important to both reporters and prosecutors.

It appears, from a perspective 3,000 miles away, that the use by the Los Angeles police of a television station's chartered jet to transport a handcuffed prisoner charged with murder, is a case of extremely poor judgement.

The next chapter probably will be written by the defense attorney who has been armed with a very unusual set of circumstances.

We feel that this is a case where a news operation forced justice into a back seat. Even the sweet smell of the exclusive may be overwhelmed by the stench in the results.

Soviets decimated and diminished!

As we approach the dawn of a new decade it is asked: What kind of shape is the world in?

We argue about that shape in political and economic terms. But you would think that we could agree about it geographically. We don't, although the National Geographic Society has just made a notable contribution that may move the argument partway toward consensus and, moreover, tells us something about the world of the future.

Maps tend to reflect not just land masses, but politics, culture and power. The earliest serious maps are of the Mediterranean; that's where the cartographers and navigators were. Early European maps don't show North America; it hadn't been "discovered," although folks lived here.

More recent maps have, but there is another problem. It is impossible to do an accurate flat rendition (a map) of a round object (the earth). The cartographer's "projection" must distort either shape or area. When that is done, someone complains.

Flemish geographer Gerardus Mercator's projection (1569) yielded what is still the most recognized world map. Africa and South America look like cute bunches of grapes, hanging from the main stem of life, which is the Eurasian land mass and North America. German historian Arno Peters said that's not fair;

Mercator shows the world as imperialists would see it. The Peters map (1973) shows Africa and South America as huge bunches of bananas, dwarfing their northern hemisphere stalks. (Peters is regarded by many cartographers as an ideological, pro-Third World promoter.)

Until now, National Geographic used a map of the earth based on a 1904 projection by Alphons van der Grinten. Like Mercator's projection, this one exaggerates northern latitudes. The Soviet Union appears 223 percent larger than life. It looks like a great thick dagger pointed at the United States.

Comes now the Geographic's centennial and a new world map, based on a 1983 projection by Professor Arthur Robinson. It's been used before, but now 10.5 million copies will be going out in the December edition of the magazine. John Garver, the Geographic's chief cartographer believes it will become the standard general reference map of the world because the compromises it makes between shape and area cannot be much improved.

Africa and South America look like cute bunches of grapes.

Surprise! It too reflects culture, politics and power. Robinson, 73, is a kind and crusty gentleman. His global projection has some comforting features to it. He says its northern "central meridian" (the one with no distortion at all) roughly tracks "the old U.S. 40," which traverses Columbus, Ohio.

The Soviet Union is the nation changed the most by Robinson's middle-latitude view. Robinson out-perestroika perestroika. His restructuring takes the Soviet Union's 223 percent distortion and reduces it to a mere 18 percent. Viewed another way: Mercator had the Soviet Union 332 percent bigger than the United States. Van der Grinten had it 250 percent bigger, and Robinson has it at 174 percent. The real difference is (only) 136 percent.

No longer will generations of American schoolchildren see the Soviet Union as a thick dagger pointed right at us. Neither will the secretary of state, the secretary of defense, nor the network anchors - all Mercator-users. (C) 1988 NEWSPAPER ENTERPRISE ASSN.

White House will be different

WASHINGTON-In the presidential campaign, George Bush essentially said he would continue the policies and directions of his predecessor, Ronald Reagan. But many close and longtime friends of the President-elect think the changes Bush will bring to the White House will be striking and significant. I strongly suspect they are right.

Clearly the political environment at the beginning of the Bush years is very different from the start of Reagan's ascendancy. Reagan campaigned in 1980 on a set of clear policy changes-sweeping tax reductions, a major military buildup, a skeptical re-evaluation of domestic programs and regulations. And he won not just a 44-state victory but a coalition Republican takeover of the Senate and working control of the House.

Bush has none of those advantages. His personal victory was modest by Reagan standards. The substantive policy proposals of his campaign were meager. And the Democrats in Congress strengthened their position. He has acknowledged those realities in his post-election comments and has signaled clearly that he intends to use the period from now until Inauguration Day in an effort, neglected during the campaign, to build support for his policies.

Rep. Jim Leach (R-Iowa), a longtime Bush ally, makes the valid observation that the agenda will be much tougher for Bush than for Reagan. Reagan started with tax cuts, something Congress loves to approve. The budget deficit must be Bush's priority. Having ruled out new taxes, Leach notes, Bush will have to try to discipline spending. And Congress will be much less eager to do that.

Bush's approach to the Democratic Congress was previewed in the good cop/bad cop duality of his presidential campaign. He will reach out for compromise, involving himself in personal negotiations with congressional leaders in a way that Reagan rarely did. But he will also brandish-and use-the veto power more frequently than Reagan, believing it an essential prerogative of the chief executive.

Bush's privately expressed confidence about his ability to cut a deal on the budget deficit faces obvious hurdles. Many congressional Democrats have expressed disdain for his campaign tactics-and for the "read my lips" pledge on taxes, which he cannot abandon without losing political credibility. But I think his longtime former aide, Pete Rousaeff, is correct in guessing that Bush will be assiduous in "reaching out to former adversaries...as a peacemaker and coalition-builder." He starts with many friends on Capitol Hill and his personality invites comradeship.

The Bush White House, almost everyone I interviewed said, will have a different feel to it. It will be an inviting family setting, filled with children and grandchildren. Barbara Bush, who held both her convictions and personality in check during the Reagan years, will, it's safe to predict, quickly emerge as the person of empathy and ebullience friends know her to be-a major asset to her husband in dealing with the public and with other politicians.

The Bush White House and administration will be staffed by people who match his recent description of the kind of judges he will appoint-"moderate people of conservative views."

The programs and policies will fit the Republican mainstream, which is clearly conservative. But crusaders for ideological causes-the James Watts and Ed Meeseas-will be few and far between. World Bank President Barber B. Conable, Jr., another old friend, says: "George lives in the real world. He views with considerable seriousness his responsibility to run the government. He will look for the best people he can get for government, rather than try to establish some kind of ideological pattern."

Edward J. Rollins, former political director of the Reagan White House, predicts that ardent conservatives will find more fault with his appointments than with his policies. But Bush is probably wise enough to elevate-rather than purge-some of the younger conservatives recruited for second- and third-tier jobs in the Reagan years.

Everyone who knows him expects Bush to be a more personally engaged President than Reagan has been. Robert Teeter, a political adviser and pollster, says people may be surprised to see how "activist" Bush is, not just in personal style but in prodding appointees to engage government in the problems of this society.

What he will do with some of those issues, like "keeping pressure on the Sandinistas," is a mystery even to old friends. But on the big one-the Russians-Sen. James McClure of Idaho is probably not exaggerating when he says Bush "understands the Soviet Union as well as anyone in politics. He'll negotiate with strength and toughness-and no stars in his eyes."

Judges he will appoint... moderate people of conservative views.

Illegal drugs pollute area

WASHINGTON - Chemists who cook up illegal drugs and "farmers" who grow marijuana have a new distinction: They are polluters too.

The Environmental Protection Agency has labeled them as a threat to the environment. And, in a twist of bureaucratic ingenuity, the EPA has lumped federal drug police into the same category. The EPA says the Drug Enforcement Administration is a "toxic waste generator" because it disposes of the chemicals from confiscated drug labs.

The environmental threat from drugs is no joke. One of the most serious problems is the proliferation of illegal methamphetamine labs on public and private land.

Cooking up the drugs means creating chemical waste that the crooks dump into streams, killing fish, endangering all wildlife that use the water and even threatening farm animals. Sometimes the drug makers simply dump the chemicals into the ground, where they leach into the soil and groundwater.

Sheriff Bill Arnado of Josephine County, Ore., says he has seen "the number of methamphetamine labs in our state grow at an alarming rate in the last few years." And the crooks couldn't care less about the environment.

In February, Arnado seized a lab in a remote section of federal land. The drug maker lived in one trailer and used a second trailer for his lab.

"We found that the suspect was dumping raw sewage from his living quarters into the creek running nearby and also dumping his toxic waste from the lab in the same creek," the sheriff reported. Other law enforcement sources say that's typical.

When DEA agents find the labs, they raid them and confiscate all the material there. That makes the DEA the owner of toxic chemicals and the dutiful EPA felt obliged to label the DEA as such.

It's not a tag the DEA thinks it deserves. "It's ridiculous," a high-level DEA official complained to us. The drug agents raised such a fuss that the EPA has been brought to the bargaining table. The two agencies have been secretly working out a compromise that includes congressional legislation and cooperation on the disposal of the waste.

The EPA has been pretty selective in pinning labels on polluters. The U.S. Forest Service has busted 80 methamphetamine labs in our nation's forests in the last year alone, but the EPA doesn't brand them as toxic waste generators.

Chemical labs are not the only polluters. We have reported in several columns about the organized bands of pot growers who plant marijuana in the national forests. They surround their crops with armed guards, attack dogs, rattle snakes and booby traps that threaten innocent hikers.

Now we have learned from internal Forest Service memos that the environment, as well as the hikers, is at risk:

- Pot growers use huge amounts of high-nitrogen chemical fertilizers. Their plots are near water sources and the chemicals leach into streams. Hundreds of pounds of fertilizer not used during the growing season are left behind.

- The pot growers don't want rats to eat their profits, so they engage in overkill with rodenticides, and the active ingredient is usually strychnine. In some areas, growers have used as much as 300 pounds per acre.

Market moderate, prices up

United Press International

NEW YORK — Prices opened higher today in moderate trading of New York Stock Exchange issues.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 13.87 Thursday, was up 6.94 to 2059.39 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 468-246 among the 1,127 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 5,809,000 shares.

Analysts said the market will be buffeted Friday by the expiration of November futures and options, which could affect market activity, but is expected to have little impact on prices.

Stock prices closed mixed Thursday in moderate trading as renewed worries about the dollar and other key economic issues limited gains mostly to the blue-chip sector.

Despite concerted central bank intervention in support of the dollar, the currency managed only a mixed performance in New York, losing further ground against the yen and edging higher against the mark and British pound.

Dollar rebounds higher; gold, silver ease down

United Press International

The dollar moved higher today in calm trading on major foreign currency markets. The price of gold eased.

In earlier trading in the Far East, the dollar rebounded against the Japanese yen in Tokyo as the Bank of Japan continued dollar-supporting intervention.

The dollar closed out the week at 122.40 yen, up 0.88 from 121.52 yen on Thursday.

Dealers said the central bank of Japan carried out intermittent intervention Friday but its action was smaller in scale than Thursday, involving an estimated $200 to $300 million, dealers said.

The bank was understood to have purchased an estimated $1 billion Thursday to shore up the dollar.

The dollar plunged Thursday under heavy selling pressure despite large-scale intervention by the central bank.

The dealers said the dollar's recovery was attributable to concerted intervention by central banks of Japan, the United States and European countries.

The dollar's fall Thursday was triggered by what was seen as a small size of improvement in the U.S. trade deficit in September.

The Commerce Department announced Wednesday the imbalance decreased about $2 billion to $10.46 billion in September.

Dollar rebounds in Tokyo

United Press International

The U.S. dollar rebounded against the Japanese yen in Tokyo today, bolstered by continued intervention by the Bank of Japan, market sources said.

After opening higher at 122.15 yen, the U.S. unit closed 0.88 yen higher at 122.40 yen after fluctuating in a range of 122.07-60 yen, the Bank of Japan said.

Dealers said the Bank of Japan, the nation's central bank, carried out intermittent intervention today, but its action was smaller in scale than Thursday, involving an estimated $200-300 million.

The bank is believed to have purchased $1 billion to shore up the U.S. unit on Thursday, when the greenback plunged to a postwar low closing rate of 121.52 yen.

Tokyo dealers said the dollar's recovery today was attributable to concerted intervention by the central banks of Japan, the United States and European countries.

of funds involved.

Miyazawa said the Western industrialized nations are determined to take concerted action to prevent disruption of foreign exchange markets.

Dealers at major foreign exchange banks in Tokyo said, however, that many market players viewed the joint action as half-hearted and sentiment remains bearish for the dollar.

"It may be an exaggeration to say that the agreement (of the Western industrialized nations) is intact," one dealer said.

The dealers said the dollar's weakness would continue unless the administration of President-elect George Hush succeeds in trimming the U.S. trade and budget deficits.

"Hush has not outlined concrete measures to combat the twin deficits," one dealer said.

In New York trading Thursday, the dollar was quoted at 122.05 yen, down from Wednesday's closing level of 122.20. The close was the lowest this year and not far from its postwar low in New York of 121 yen, set Dec. 31, 1987.

Despite the large-scale bank support, the dollar managed only slight gains against the mark, the British pound, Canadian dollar, and other European currencies Thursday in New York.

Against the West German mark in New York, the dollar moved to 1.7230 mark, up from 1.7160 Wednesday, but off from the day's high of around 1.73 mark.

"The dollar's modest recovery was a result of the central banks' intervention (in support of the dollar)," said Earl Johnson, vice president in foreign exchange at the Harris Bank in Chicago. "We have estimates that the total intervention was in excess of $1 billion."

Johnson said the central banks of the United States, Japan, West Germany, Britain, Italy, Canada, the Netherlands and France were represented "in a concerted intervention approaching levels we have not seen in a long, long time."

He said it was particularly noteworthy that the West German Bundesbank joined in the intervention because most of the recent defense of the dollar was shared by the Fed and the Bank of Japan alone.

"The intervention doesn't change the market's bearish sentiment toward the dollar," Johnson said. He said the market was "going to have to see some strong economic numbers or a budget (reduction) initiative that is meaningful before this downward pressure is relieved."

Johnson said the market believes the intervention represented an attempt to "smooth the dollar's decline" rather than an aggressive defense of any particular level against the other currencies.

Arkansas thrift declared insolvent

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Federal regulators have declared Central Arkansas Savings and Loan Association of Conway insolvent, closed it and sold its $11.7 million in deposits to First Federal Savings and Loan Association of Paragould, the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corp. reported.

The FSLIC said Thursday it will manage the failed thrift's $10.3 million in assets. David Colgren, a spokesman for the Federal Home Loan Bank Board in Washington, estimated the collapse would cost the FSLIC $3.2 million.

The FSLIC placed Central Arkansas in receivership and sold its deposits to First Federal at a discount of $269,000.

the bank board reported.

Depositors will have access to their money at Central's office, which First Federal plans to reopen as a branch office on Monday, said Colgren.

Central Arkansas was the 143rd thrift to fail in the United States this year.

On Sept. 30, Central had assets of $10.3 million, liabilities of $12.5 million and regulatory capital of minus $2.2 million, the bank board says.

Bush to speak to governors

United Press International

WASHINGTON — President-elect George Bush, having named his White House chief of staff and a new GOP chairman, headed for a national governors meeting in Virginia today where it was likely he would hear how his choices went over.

One of the governors' own, John Sununu of New Hampshire, is Bush's selection for chief of staff, so he is known to all but the newly elected state leaders invited to today's National Governors Association executive committee meeting at the University of Virginia in Charlottesville.

Along with the announcement of Sununu's new job Thursday, Bush also chose his feisty campaign manager, Lee Atwater, to become the next Republican National Committee chairman. Atwater, 37, is certain to be elected when the RNC meets Jan. 18. He will replace Frankahrenkopf, who has held the position for six years and who said he plans to return to his law practice in Washington.

Joined at a news conference

Thursday by Sununu, Atwater and Fahrenkopf, Bush highlighted the governor's experience as a teacher, businessman and politician and said he will be able to "build a constructive relationship" with Congress.

Sununu, 49, a portly ex-professor with a doctorate in mechanical engineering, is a staunch conservative regarded as tough and intelligent but also brusque and aggressive. He won the key White House post despite complaints of his lack of Washington experience and some concerns expressed by Jewish leaders.

signatures on envelopes? We did not take the voter's signature and compare it to the record," Mahoney said.

"I checked to see if they were registered voters. I don't have means to compare signatures," Edwards responded.

"There were 57 ballots that came back that signatures weren't checked. It's enough to stop certification of election," Mahoney said referring to the election laws.

The law to which Mahoney referred deals with a challenge of votes. It states that if an elector present for the canvass of votes believes any ballot is illegal, he may file a protest against the canvass of such a ballot before it is removed from the envelope.

Mahoney said he was being asked to certify something which he didn't feel he could.

"Then don't sign the damn thing," Duryea said. "I'm willing to sign. The rest is frivolous."

Mahoney also said he didn't have a "high level of comfort with the reliability" of the county's election computers which went down for a brief period that evening due to a power surge. He said the tallies were slightly different from when the computers came back online.

Duryea argued that it was not the canvassing board's authority to say the numbers were correct, but the running candidates' who must agree with or dispute them.

"The question is, do you really believe there was an error?" Julian questioned.

Several Lake Mary citizens expressed their ideas.

"It appears he's questioning the honesty of the poll workers. All the races should be counted in that case," Harry Beckham suggested.

"If you didn't know what your duties were, that's your problem, not the City of Lake Mary," Ray Fox, a resident, said. Fox also said that an article in a newspaper inferred that Edwards and Duryea did not know what was happening which was a "gross injustice to them."

Edwards said that she had been through many elections and that the only difference this year is that the canvassing board was not in the room when the ballots were counted.

Mahoney agreed to certify the election. After the meeting was over he said that this needed to be considered so that "two years from now, this cannot possibly be an issue again."

When asked whether he would have contested the results if Morris had won, Mahoney said he would have.

Mahoney actively participated in Morris' campaign. The election laws state an active participant in the campaign or candidacy of any candidate shall be replaced by someone who can serve on the canvassing board.

Before recommending approval of the permit the commission heard a complaint from William Royster, who said his business across the street from the Frinberg building. He said he is concerned that patrons will park on his property and possibly damage the landscaping.

drug testing in certain employees.

Peter Dunbar, Martinez' legal counsel, said the constitutional issues involved in drug testing were discussed before he recommended Martinez proceed with the program.

Dunbar said waiting for a Supreme Court decision might have delayed implementing the program by at least a year.

"What we're trying to do is not to create an unnecessary delay," Dunbar said, adding "portions of it (the program) can be done" even if the Supreme Court rules against such tests.

"There are parts of it that we don't think are going to be affected" by an adverse court ruling, Dunbar said.

Joseph said constitutional guidelines for drug testing in the private sector are less stringent than for governmental entities because constitutional restraints against unlawful search and seizure apply squarely to the government, not the individual.

"When the government wants to search or seize you," he said, "the question you have to ask is 'why?' Unless they have a good reason, the answer generally is they can't."

For example, Joseph said, the government could search every house in the United States and probably find illegal handguns, but the search would not be constitutionally permissible because there was no cause to believe an illegal handgun could be found in every home.

"It seems to me if your government employer cannot go through your desk drawer without reason to do so, it cannot go through your body," he said.

Joseph said the problem with random drug testing is "you have no reason to believe there is a problem. You are making them (employees) demonstrate they are not criminals."

is no room at the site for expansion.

"About 70 percent of my employees, from middle level management to line workers, live in north Seminole County, so Sanford is a logical place to locate," he said. Collins also said he wanted a site for the plant that is easy to find, and the land just off S.R. 48 fits that requirement.

Collins said the plant now employs about 140 people and will eventually employ about 200.

He said the company receives assembled chassis and drive trains from automobile manufacturing companies and the bus bodies from body manufacturing companies and assembles the vehicles at the plant. Only minor basic manufacturing is done at the plants, he said.

Sanford Centre Associates, Ltd., owner of the shopping center, did not appear and the request was tabled.

Commissioners also recommended approval to rezone six lots on Sanford Avenue between 24th and 25th street.

Bush is tougher than Reagan on AIDS

WASHINGTON — President-elect George Bush will likely take stronger steps to end discrimination against people infected with the AIDS virus than did the Reagan administration, a Bush associate said Thursday.

In remarks approved by the Bush campaign, Dr. Burton Lee III, a member of the Presidential Commission on the Human Immunodeficiency Virus Epidemic, also said the president-elect should name an advisor to handle AIDS issues.

"It would be a big mistake if he (Bush) didn't put some one in the White House that can be identified as an 'AIDS person,'" said Lee, after addressing the National Leadership Coalition on AIDS.

Lee was one of the AIDS commission's most vocal advocates of efforts to protect people infected with HIV — the virus that causes the deadly acquired immune deficiency syndrome — from discrimination.

Maribel Cubans cleared for deportation

WASHINGTON — Fifteen Maribel Cuban prisoners, the first to exhaust administrative appeals in the wake of rioting a year ago at two federal prisons, have been cleared for deportation to Cuba, the Justice Department said Thursday.

Justice Department officials said the Maribel Cuban Repatriation Review Panels have studied 28 cases and determined 15 detainees will be "repatriated to Cuba in the near future" while the remaining 13 cases will be given further review.

The department said the prisoners to be deported have committed serious crimes in the United States, including murder, attempted murder, armed robbery, physical assaults, arson, rape and illegal drug use and sales. They have been in federal custody since completing prison sentences.

The expected deportations will mark the first time Cubans have been deported since May 1985. The return of the prisoners to Cuba's communist regime under Fidel Castro has sparked controversy within the Cuban-American community in Miami and court challenges to the deportations are expected.

Judge may order PTL sold in pieces

COLUMBIA, S.C. — A federal bankruptcy judge, exasperated by the lack of qualified bidders for the scandal-racked PTL ministry, said he will put out the call for one more round of buyers, then order it sold piece-by-piece if an adequate offer does not materialize.

U.S. Bankruptcy Judge Rufus Reynolds on Thursday rejected bids from two wealthy Canadian businessmen — Toronto entrepreneur Stephen Mernick and Vancouver real estate executive Peter Thomas — and set a new auction date of Dec. 12 for the sale of PTL, now protected from its creditors under Chapter 11 of the federal bankruptcy statute.

Reynolds said neither proposal met all the criteria the judge required for a sale. He said if a qualified buyer does not come forward at the Dec. 12 auction, he will be forced to order the piecemeal liquidation of the now-reeling religious empire founded by disgraced evangelist Jim Bakker.

Four escape B-1B bomber crash

United Press International

ELLSWORTH AIR FORCE BASE, S.D. — The four-member crew of a B-1B bomber parachuted to safety as their plane crashed while on a training mission in western South Dakota. The cause of the crash was under investigation, the Air Force said.

The bomber crashed at 10:40 p.m. MST Thursday as it attempted to land at the air base 5 miles northeast of Rapid City. The aircraft was on fire, and the extent of damage was being determined, said Maj. Joseph Saxon, public affairs officer at Ellsworth.

A board of military officers was convening to investigate the crash, officials said.

Lt. Fred Brown with the Henningson County sheriff's office took calls from people living near the air base. "They say they saw the plane hit something and veer off to the right and crash," he said.

Air Force investigators sealed off the base and were combing the wreckage to remove any classified material on board. The plane was carrying no weapons, Saxon said.

All four crew members aboard the aircraft managed to get out safely.

"They did eject," said Capt. Julie Holland with the Strategic Air Command in Omaha, Neb. "There were no fatalities, no serious injuries. They were taken to the hospital, which is standard procedure for ejections."

It was foggy when the plane went down, but investigators were not speculating about the cause of the crash, said Sgt.

Tony Evans at Ellsworth Air Force Base.

"It's a little bit foggy, but we really haven't got any snow and we really can't speculate if weather was a cause," Evans said.

The crash occurred one week after the Air Force cleared 25 of the B-1B bombers for flight in an inspection program begun when one of the planes crashed days earlier. It was the third crash of a B-1B bomber.

Four crew members of a B-1B were able to eject safely Nov. 8 when their plane crashed.

Four missing graduates found dead under water

United Press International

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — The town of East Lyme offered counseling today to those needing to talk out their grief over the apparent deaths of four high school graduates whose bodies, still in a car, were pulled from a muddy river while friends and relatives watched in silence.

The bodies had not been positively identified, but police and friends said they were almost certain they were the missing high school graduates whose four-day disappearance sparked a nationwide alert.

Police divers found the bodies inside a car stuck in the muddy bottom of the Mill River Thursday morning just several blocks from a bar where the four friends — all from the small coastal town of East Lyme — were last seen early Sunday.

East Lyme leaders opened Youth Services offices to people wishing to discuss the deaths with counselors.

Investigators said it appeared the car had veered off a road near an abandoned bridge, where several other accidents had happened recently, and plunged into about 15 feet of water.

The chief state medical examiner's office in Farmington said autopsies on the four would be performed today in hopes of positively identifying the victims and determining the causes of death.

But a New Haven police spokesman said "in all likelihood" the bodies were those of the missing youths.

Jill Sawyer, Laura Lagrotteria, Christy Stevens, all 19, and Michael Gallo, 20, left the small, affluent community of East Lyme on Long Island Sound, about 40 miles east of New Haven, about 8 p.m. Saturday in a 1985 tan Plymouth Reliant. All were 1987 graduates of East Lyme High School.

Friends and relatives also expected their worst fears would be realized.

"What has happened is a tragedy," Scott Sawyer, the older brother of Jill Sawyer, said while waiting on the banks of the river. "It is terrible. We are not looking to blame anyone."

Sawyer was a student at the University of Rhode Island. Stevens at Mohegan Community College in Norwich and Gallo at Southern Connecticut State University in New Haven. Lagrotteria worked at a mall in Waterford.

Police said the four were last seen leaving a bar in New Haven about 3 a.m. Sunday, three blocks from the accident scene.

The car apparently went off a roadway that leads to open water. To do so, they either had to go over or through concrete barriers blocking access to the old Chapel Street swing bridge.

Police criticized for using TV jet to move murder suspect

United Press International

See Editorial, Page 4A

SACRAMENTO, Calif. — Defense attorneys for the boarding house landlady suspected of killing seven tenants for their assistance checks criticized police for creating "a circus atmosphere" by returning her to Sacramento in a jet chartered by a TV station.

"It's unheard of for the police, with the aid of the news media, to transport a defendant to jail," court-appointed attorney Peter Vlautin said Thursday after multiple murder suspect Dorothea Montalvo Puente was flown to Sacramento in the middle of the night on a chartered jet with a reporter aboard after her arrest in Los Angeles.

"Here we have the Sacramento Police Department enlisting the aid of the media in order to create a circus atmosphere," Vlautin said.

Vice-mayor David Shore said the incident needs to be investigated.

"I'm disappointed with the most recent incident," Shore said. "I think it's something we have to look into."

Police Chief John Kearns said he had not been aware of the controversial arrangement to transport Puente aboard the chartered plane, and that the matter was under investigation.

Police were still stinging from criticism that they allowed Puente, 59, to stroll away from the boarding house last Saturday after police had dug up the first of seven bodies found in her yard.

Kearns agreed that his officers "blew it" by letting her go. Police believe Puente took a cab to Stockton and boarded a bus for Los Angeles, checking into a mid-town motel on Sunday.

KCRA-TV reporter Mike Boyd, who interviewed Puente aboard the jet, insisted he asked "only generic questions," and said Puente had been read her rights by Sacramento detectives before boarding the jet in the pre-dawn hours.

Puente denied in the airborne interview that she had killed anyone, but admitted to cashing checks, presumably the Social Security benefits of victims she is accused of killing.

"Thanks for believing in me," she said, in response to a question about what she had to say to friends in Sacramento. "I have not killed anyone. The checks I cashed, yes."

Canadians criticize U.S. acid rain plan

United Press International

WASHINGTON — Canadian officials have "serious reservations" about plans for the final two years of a major American acid rain study, saying it appears researchers already have concluded immediate cuts in pollution are not needed.

At a public hearing about the study outline Thursday, a top environmental official from Canada criticized what he called "a priori conclusions and biases" in the 1989-1990 plan for the 10-year National Acid Precipitation Assessment Program, which is expected to issue a final report in September 1990 containing recommendations for Congress.

Dr. Hans Martin, senior acid rain researcher with the Atmospheric Environment Service of Environment Canada, also charged the planning document placed too much importance on technical uncertainties and "information gaps," distorting the overall picture presented by most data.

Martin said the planning document was an improvement over the 1987 interim report by the NAPAP, which was criticized by scientists for unduly discounting the environmental threat posed by acid rain. However, Martin stressed, "Canada still has serious reservations."

In his view, "Without substantial changes in the plan's approach, NAPAP will not be able to provide decision-makers with complete, comprehensive and sound information."

Paul Heinbecker, political minister at the Canadian embassy, said Canadians were encouraged by Vice President George Bush's statements during his White House campaign in support of acid rain control.

But Heinbecker said Canadian officials were dismayed by the planning paper's repeated statements that major information gaps likely would remain after the study is concluded.

"Policy cannot be held hostage to gaps in our knowledge when there is a public consensus that action is needed," Heinbecker said.

President Reagan's administration has opposed acid rain control measures for eight years, insisting more research is needed to resolve uncertainties about the link between the product of industrial emission and environmental damage.

WORLD BRIEFS

U.S. serviceman shot

MANILA, Philippines — Authorities Friday were investigating why a Filipino security guard shot and seriously wounded an American serviceman at the U.S. Subic Bay Naval Base.

Petty Officer 3rd Class David Schaeffer, 32, of McClure, Ill., was shot in the head Thursday by Eduardo Rodriguez, a Filipino security guard at the base, police said. The victim was listed in guarded condition at the Clark Air Base hospital, a Subic base spokesman said.

Police said Rodriguez was at his post in a navy base high school when he shot Schaeffer with his .38-caliber pistol. Authorities had not determined why the shooting occurred. Rodriguez was immediately placed under arrest.

Plane crash kills four

MONTLUCON, France — A small commuter plane crashed in central France Friday, killing all four people aboard in the nation's second fatal airplane crash in two days, police said.

The 18-seat airplane took off for Paris Friday morning and crashed about a mile from the runway at 6:30 a.m., killing both crew members and two passengers, police said.

Witnesses said the Air Littoral plane, which made daily runs to the French capital, appeared to catch fire during takeoff.

Air Littoral operates 27 planes and employs about 500 people, a company spokesman said.

On Thursday, a privately chartered Cessna-441 headed to Montlucon crashed in fog shortly after takeoff from a small airport in Tousseus le Noble, 13 miles southwest of Paris, killing all seven people aboard.

Police said the pilot of the Cessna-441 lost radio contact with the airport control tower 10 minutes after takeoff.

The flight had been chartered by La Compagnie de Garage du Bac, a license-holder for sales of German BMWs in France, and was carrying the pilot, a Garage du Bac official and five journalists to a BMW test site.

Bomb kills three suspected terrorists

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Three suspected terrorists were killed Friday when a bomb exploded as they apparently were preparing to plant the device on train tracks near Durban, police said.

The early morning blast occurred about 300 yards from the Phoenix railway station, which is used by thousands of commuters daily.

A witness said the victims were "totally unidentifiable," as parts of their bodies were strewn throughout a 50-yard area.

Police said the device was believed to have been a limpet mine. Officers inched their way through thick brush looking for more explosives or a possible arms cache.

Protesters clash with police

HAMBURG, West Germany — Leftists protesting a NATO agency meeting hurled rocks at police outside city hall in a disturbance that left more than 50 police officers wounded, authorities said Friday.

The melee erupted late Thursday during a rally of about 7,000 people organized by the Social Democratic Party, the Greens party and the Communist Party to protest a five-day conference of the North Atlantic Assembly, an independent body of European and North American lawmakers that advises NATO.

Authorities said some of the demonstrators began hurling paving stones, eggs and firecrackers at several hundred police who guarded city hall, where the meeting was held. Police said 51 officers were wounded and two demonstrators arrested.

The rally's organizers blamed the disturbance on left-wing extremist groups.

Earlier Thursday, West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl told the conference the Soviet Union should back up its words about arms cuts with deeds.

Kohl welcomed the current thaw in East-West relations but warned that Western security can not be based on arms control and disarmament alone. He said appropriate defense efforts were "necessary and indispensable."

Red Cross appeals for hostage release

SIDON, Lebanon — The International Red Cross hinted it may suspend operations in Lebanon unless a kidnapped Swiss employee is released, and Palestinian groups vowed to "exert all kinds of pressure" against the abductors.

Peter Winkler, 32, a Red Cross director in southern Lebanon, was snatched from his chauffeured car by three gunmen early Thursday near the Palestinian Ain El Helweh refugee camp in southern Lebanon.

"We call on the persons holding Peter Winkler to free him immediately so that he can continue his relief mission," the International Committee of the Red Cross said in a statement late Thursday.

"Our neutral and independent organization can continue its duties only if it is not exposed to pressures," the statement said. "Only under this condition, the Red Cross can continue its services to all parties."

Security sources said the three kidnappers, brandishing automatic rifles and pistols, intercepted Winkler's car in broad daylight in an area controlled by pro-Iranian Lebanese zealots.

The sources said Winkler, who directed Red Cross operations in the Zahrani and Nabatieh districts in the south, had been traveling toward the Shiite village of Zelta, 8 miles southeast of the port city of Sidon, 24 miles south of Beirut.

No group immediately claimed responsibility, but sources close to the Palestine Liberation Organization Fatah group of Yasser Arafat in Sidon blamed the Fatah Revolutionary Council, a radical group led by the notorious Sabri Al Banna, better known as Abu Nidal.

Gorbachev arrives in India

NEW DELHI, India — A ceremony of pomp and pageantry greeted Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev today upon his arrival in India for a three-day summit between the communist superpower and the world's most populous democracy.

Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi changed his schedule and showed up unexpectedly at the airport for the noon landing of Gorbachev, who was accompanied by his wife Raisa and a delegation that included Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze.

The two leaders then boarded limousines and sped toward the British-built presidential palace along a 12-mile-long route lined with gun-toting guards as well as banners, flowers, dancers, musicians and about 100,000 school children who waved Indian and Soviet flags.

Soviets recognize Palestinian state

United Press International

MOSCOW — The Kremlin today announced it recognizes the proclamation of a Palestinian state in Israel's occupied territories, government spokesman Alexander Beasmertnykh told a news conference.

"Faithful to the fundamental principle of the freedom of choice, the Soviet Union recognizes the proclamation of the Palestinian state, being guided by the realization that a comprehensive settlement will lead also to the practical completion of the historic process of creating this state," he said.

The proclamation of an independent Palestinian state was announced in Algiers Tuesday by Palestine Liberation Organization chief Yasser Arafat, and about 20 nations have already recognized the new nation.

A statement read by Beasmertnykh, first deputy minister of foreign affairs, said the Soviets "received with interest and approval the decisions taken by the extraordinary session of the Palestine National Council."

"The declarations, characterized by a high sense of realism and responsibility shown by the leaders of the Palestine Liberation Organization, are an important contribution in the process of a just political settlement in the Middle East," the statement said.

Beasmertnykh said the Soviet Union felt the declaration had opened the way for an international conference on the Middle East — a region he described as one of the "most dangerous hotbeds of tension" in the world.

"As a result, we have a situation where all the parties involved in the conflict proceed from the admission of the fact that the road to peace and peaceful coexistence between the Arabs and Israel lies in negotiations on the basis of U.N. Security Council resolutions 242 and 338," he said.

"It is important that the highest representative body of the Palestinian people proclaimed its adherence to the generally recognized principles of international relations."

"The Soviet Union undeviatingly supports the Palestinian people in their striving to realize their inalienable national rights, including the right to establish their own independent state," he said.

20,000 Albanians march in Yugoslavia

United Press International

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia — Authorities threatened to declare a state of emergency after an estimated 20,000 ethnic Albanians marched through the capital of Kosovo province protesting the forced resignations of several regional leaders.

The demonstrators, chanting "Let's protect our leaders," marched Thursday through the city of Pristina in southwestern Yugoslavia, official radio and television stations reported.

Remzi Koljetic, president of the province, interrupted regular programming on the capital's state-run television station and urged residents to "stay at home" or face "measures in line with the constitution."

Koljetic warned that he will declare a state of emergency if ethnic Albanians hold more demonstrations, official Yugoslav news agencies reported.

The protesters bore Albanian, Yugoslav and Communist Party flags and posters with photographs of the late Yugoslav leader Josip Broz Tito.

Several windows were broken as the estimated 20,000 protesters marched through Pristina, according to accounts from the city. There were no reports of casualties.

The rally was the most recent sign of ethnic strife among Serbs, Croats, Montenegrins, Albanians and other groups in Yugoslavia.

In Kosovo, one of only two autonomous provinces in the Eastern European country, Serbian officials have demanded the resignations of two popular Albanian leaders — provincial party chief Kacusa Jasari and Azem Vlasi, who serves under Jasari in the party apparatus.

The Serbian officials say only a new leadership backed by Serbs as well as Albanians can begin to solve the ethnic unrest in the embattled province.

Vlasi and Jasari submitted their resignations Thursday to pave the way for the election of new party leaders, but they refused to accept responsibility for the upheaval in the province. The two Albanian leaders resigned as supporters gathered outside the provincial party headquarters.

More than one-third of Yugoslavia's 23.3 million people are Serbian — making it the nation's largest single ethnic group — but Serbs are a minority in Kosovo, where ethnic Albanians comprise more than three-quarters of the population of 1.9 million in the province bordering the country of Albania.

Both of the country's two autonomous provinces are in Serbia, the largest of its six republics. Under constitutional changes expected to be adopted later this month, Serbia would cede greater autonomy to the two provinces.

Thursday's protest marked the first major demonstration by ethnic Albanians in Kosovo since bloody anti-Yugoslav riots in 1981 left at least 10 dead and 250 injured.

Blues end Philadelphia futility

The current St. Louis Blues had convinced themselves they were not to blame for the franchise's record of futility at the Spectrum. They can take the credit, however, for the organization's first win on the Philadelphia Flyers' home ice in nearly 17 years.

"The team changes from year to year," Bernie Federko said after he scored two goals Thursday night to give St. Louis a 3-1 victory over the Flyers, breaking the Blues' 34-game Spectrum winless streak.

The Blues had gone 0-31-3 in Philadelphia since a 3-2 victory Jan. 6, 1972.

In other games, Montreal whipped Boston 5-2, Calgary dumped New Jersey 5-3, Minnesota nipped Vancouver 7-6, and the New York Rangers clipped Los Angeles 6-5.

Shriver upsets Evert

NEW YORK — Chris Evert, attacking at every opportunity, upset Chris Shriver 7-5, 6-4 Thursday night to gain the semifinals of the $1 million Virginia Slims Championships against defending champion Steffi Graf.

Graf, suffering from the flu and playing against the advice of her doctor, ran off seven consecutive games earlier to crush Manuela Maleeva 6-1, 6-3. Graf's 46th successive victory stretched her 1988 record to 73-2.

Shriver, after losing her first 18 career meetings against Evert, has won three of their last four.

"My attitude was 'get to the net, get to the net,'" said Shriver, the fifth seed. "Tonight she didn't play as well as she can."

After Evert saved one set point in the 10th game, Shriver won the opening set with a service break in the 12th game with a forehand volley. This was only the seventh set Shriver won from Evert in a rivalry that started in 1978.

Evert failed to capitalize on two break points in the opening game of the second set, but did break in the third. Shriver, though, got it back on her seventh break point of the eighth game when Evert sent a forehand long.

Shriver then ended the match with another break in the 10th game as Evert netted a forehand.

SHS looks to collar Dogs

By CHRIS FISTER
Herald sports editor

While it is a special night, coach Emory Blake's team won't get too caught up in the festivities and the majesty that is homecoming at Seminole High School.

The Fighting Seminoles will first concentrate on the task at hand — beating DeLand's Bulldogs and building momentum for Monday's 4A-7 District tiebreaker.

"We had a lot of adversity in the early going, but we have improved significantly the past few weeks," Blake said. "This is a big game for us. We have a chance to work on some things before the district playoff and we would also like to win our homecoming game."

Kickoff tonight is 7:30 p.m. with the homecoming queen to be crowned at halftime. The 'Noles take a 3-6 overall record into the contest while DeLand also comes in at 3-6.

Both teams are coming off tough Seminole Athletic Conference losses. The 'Noles were beaten by the red-hot Silver Hawks of Lake Howell, 49-27, while the Dogs were edged by Lyman High, 10-7.

While looking to build momentum, Seminole also hopes to stay injury-free. The 'Noles will play in a three-way tiebreaker for the district title on Monday night at Oviedo High and can't afford to go in banged up.

In tonight's game, DeLand will have the task of containing one of the up and coming quarterbacks in the area in SHS sophomore Kerry Wiggins. Wiggins went over the 1,000 yard mark last week against Lake Howell and has a shot at breaking the Seminole single-season passing record tonight.

"Kerry has really come a long way," Blake said. "Our offense has improved every week. The line has been giving Kerry great protection for the most part and the receivers are coming through with the catches."

The two receivers who have come through the most are Brandon Cash and Bernard Eddy. Cash has four touchdown receptions since being switched from tight end to wideout while Eddy had a pair of TD catches last week.

SHS also hopes sophomore running back Henry Williams will continue to run like he did last week when he gained over 120 yards against a tough Lake Howell rush defense.

If the 'Noles can keep the passing attack revving and get production from the running attack, the only thing left will be getting the defense to play up to its potential.

"In the first two weeks of the season (wins over Titusville Astronaut and Edgewater) the defense carried us," Blake said. "Now that the offense has come around, we're looking for the defense to rise to the occasion. We have the potential to have a very good defensive unit. They just have JoDee Lake goes after state titles in the 50 and 100 freestyle Saturday night.

Lake: Sprinter extraordinaire

By CHUCK BURGESS
Herald correspondent

Imagine racing down I-4 in a red Porsche 911 going about 110 miles an hour, passing cars left and right with all the power and speed in the world right at your fingertips.

That's the feeling that Lake Brantley's star swimmer, JoDee Lake gets every time she hits the water for competition. When Lake explodes from the blocks to take on her fellow competitors, the pool is her speedway and she is the Porsche that races past her foes with blinding velocity. To Lake's opposition, it should be illegal to go that fast, but the powerful Lady Patriot keeps her foot on the gas and the rpm's revved up all the way to victory.

"I like more exciting things, especially speed," Lake, who has yet to be defeated this year, said. "That's why I'm a sprinter. I'm explosive and I love quick power.

Speed and power are like a physical high."

Power doesn't begin to describe the muscular junior who has an intense attitude about her swimming. While some may be in the sport for the social aspect or even to keep in shape, Lake has one reason and one reason only for swimming — winning.

"The one thing I love about swimming is the winning," Lake said. "It's fun to win. I'm the kind of person that likes to be the center of attention. When I don't win and swim a good time I'm still happy, but all that makes me do is want to win even more. Winning is my drug."

If winning is Lake's drug, then she must be highly addicted to it. In the past two years Lake has lost only two races, both coming in the state finals last year. Lake was crushed after losing by the narrowest of margins in both of her specialties. In the 50 free, Lake lost by .01 seconds and got nipped by .02 seconds in the 100.

"Last year was a turning point for me," Lake said of the defeats. "I'm a lot better this year and unless there's some new sensation at Spanish River (last year's state champion), things should go as planned. I'm really looking forward to the competition."

To appreciate what a tremendous force Lake has become to Brantley and Florida swimming, a little of her background must be looked at. Lake started swimming in her freshman year, but didn't quite know what to expect from her coach, Clay Parnell, or her teammates, who at that time were on the verge of becoming one of the state's elite swim programs. It was this insecurity that caused Lake to take a lackadaisical approach to the sport and not fully put forth the effort she was capable of.

"When I first started swimming I was in a lazy stage," Lake said. □ See Lake, Page 4B

Raiders rip Embry SCC, 5-1, at Indian River Saturday

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Seminole Community College built up a big lead early, then went on cruise control in a 98-56 victory over Embry Riddle Aeronautical University Thursday night before 151 fans at the Health Center at Seminole Community College.

The Raiders improved to 5-1 and will return to action this Saturday at Indian River Community College. Embry Riddle fell to 0-6 on the season.

"We were lazy tonight," Seminole coach Bill Payne said. "We didn't keep hustling. This team lacks the character we've had in the past, they don't keep after a team, they quit when they get a lead."

The Raiders placed five players in double digits. Tom Logan and Richard Brown, both Klammer-Osceola graduates, led the way with 11 points each. Robert Thomas, Terrell Barnes and Stephen Blackmon all chipped in 10 points. Mike Gaskill contributed nine points with T.J. Sealetta and William Woods each netting eight.

Al Jackson led Embry Riddle with a game-high 12 points with Jesse James and Dave Salvi each adding nine points.

Seminole pulled away after Embry managed to stay close early with a six point run. Robert Ricciardelli started the run with an inside bucket followed by a Thomas jumper. Woods then came up with a steal and a layup to give the Raiders an 18-10 advantage.

After trading buckets Seminole put together another run and built a 32-12 lead with 7:12 remaining. The Raiders continued to dominate, hitting 9 of 10 free throws in the final three minutes to build a 49-26 lead at the intermission.

Seminole came out strong in the second half and quickly re-established control with Barnes connecting on a layup with 18:40 □ See Raiders, Page 4B

Lyman-Pats duel for 5A-4 crown

By TONY DEBORNIA
Herald sports writer

When two teams who excel with different styles go head-to-head in a contest that will decide the district champion, you have the makings of a classic confrontation.

That's what we have on tap for tonight at Lyman High School Stadium, where the host Greyhounds will take on the Lake Brantley Patriots. Since both teams are 4-1 in District 5A-4, the victor claims the district crown.

And tonight would be just the beginning for the winner, who will advance to play Lake City-Columbia (which has already won the 5A-3 District title) in the Region 2 championship game next week at either Lyman or Brantley.

The key to deciding tonight's game will be which team can execute its offense best. Both coaches agree that the best defense tonight will be a good offense.

"That's been our philosophy all year," said Fred Almon, coach of the 5-4 Patriots. "We want to control the clock and keep their offense off the field. We want to keep the ball away from them."

The "them" that Almon could be referring to are Cedrick Bouey and Steve Jerry, who lead Lyman's explosive attack. Bouey is second in the county in rushing (1,115 yards, 6.6 yards per carry) and scoring (15 touchdowns) while Jerry has rushed for 547 yards (seventh best in the county) and passed for 398 more.

The only thing is, Jerry was injured last week against DeLand, suffering an ankle injury.

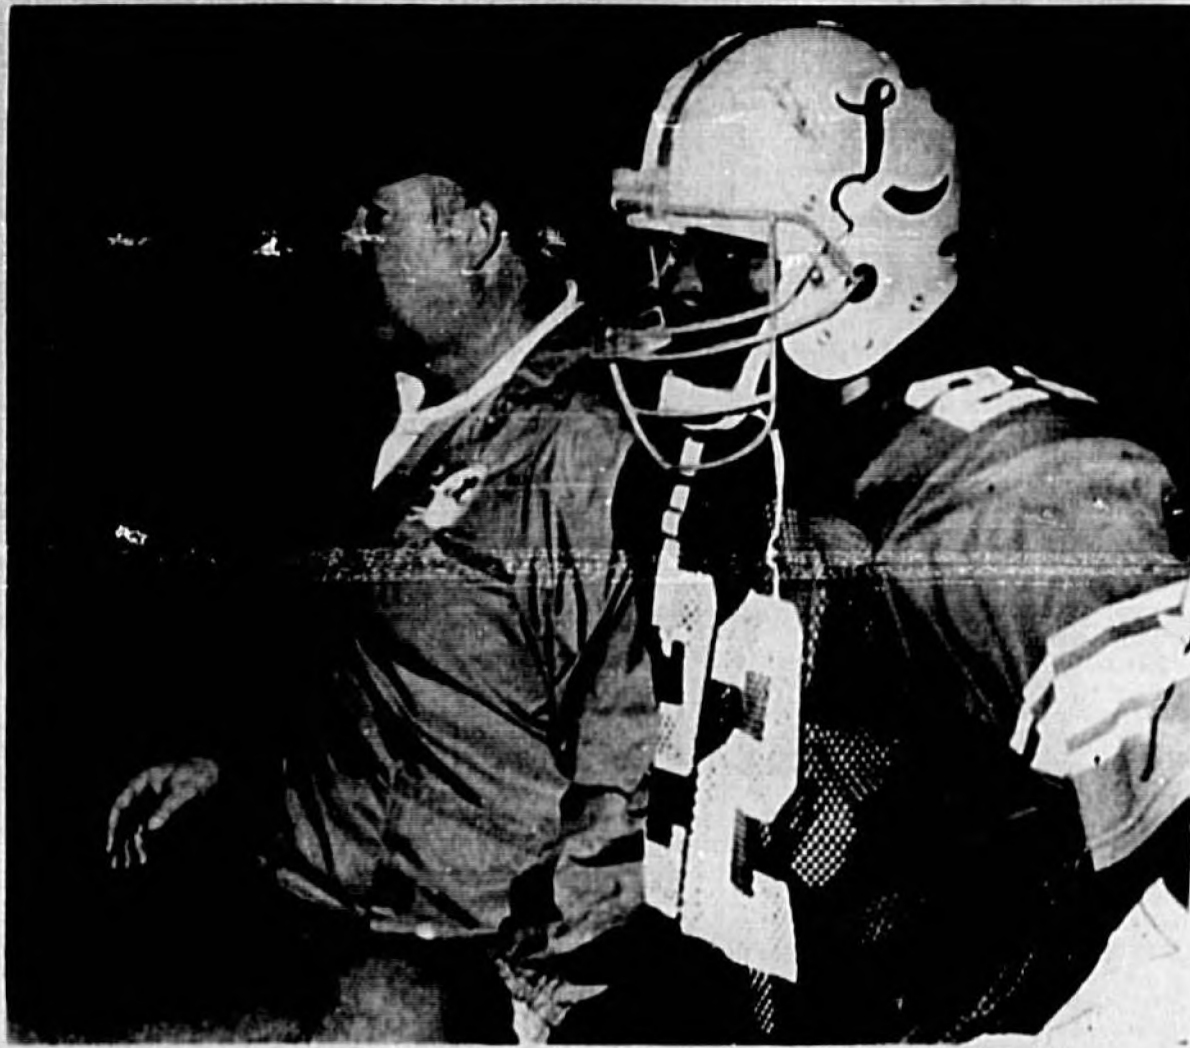

"Steve Jerry has been on crutches since Friday night," said Coach Bill Scott of the 7-2 Greyhounds on Wednesday. "He has been to the doctor yesterday (Tuesday) and will go again tomorrow (Thursday). He hasn't been to practice, but there is a chance he'll play."

"Right now we're going with Mike McNamee and Paul Bowen (Lyman's No. 1 three-quarterback). Paul runs the option well, then Mike comes in and all we lose is a little mobility. We have confidence in him."

Whoever is at the controls will have to keep the Lyman attack on track and keep the Patriot offense cooling its heels on the sidelines. With the brother combination of Elroy (927 yards and 10 touchdowns rushing) and Mike (660 yards and seven touchdowns rushing) Dantzier in the backfield, Lake Brantley has the ability to take the ball and hold it for a quarter.

"The first thing we have to do is contain Brantley's explosive offense," said Scott. "No one has been able to totally shut them down, but we like to think that we can slow them down. They beat us last year throwing the ball, but they don't need to throw the ball much. I've seen them run on fourth and long yardage early this season."

"Both Dantzier boys are exceptional runners. The Lyman coach Bill Scott talks with quarterback Steve Jerry during a timeout. Jerry injured an ankle in last week's game vs. DeLand, but Scott hopes to have him ready tonight in the 5A-4 District title game against Lake Brantley.

fullback just explodes, he gets to the hole so quick that he doesn't need much of a block. Our runners need to see a block develop rather than slipping into a hole."

Like Jerry, Lake Brantley quarterback Clint Johnson is also a threat to run, having picked up 528 yards on 101 carries. Johnson also has passed for 298 yards and one touchdown.

The big intangible tonight will be which team can handle the emotional intensity of this game. Lyman has won district titles before, but this would be a first for the Patriots.

"Lake Brantley never has had a chance to win the district before," said Almon. "We need to shine one more time."

"Everything's looking good. It's been a long time coming. I just wish it would get underway. It's been a long week."

Oviedo seeks SAC title

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

The southwest Seminole County version of the civil war takes place Friday night when the Lions of Oviedo High School visit the Silver Hawks of Lake Howell High School at Silver Hawk Field on the campus of Lake Howell. Game time is 8 p.m.

Oviedo can clinch the Seminole Athletic Conference Championship with a victory while Lake Howell can claim a tie for the SAC title with Oviedo with a victory.

Oviedo, under Coach Jack Blanton, is 8-1 on the season and coming off a 21-12 victory over Orlando Edgewater in which the Lions clinched a tie for the District 4A-7 championship. They will play for the District Title Monday night at 7:30 p.m. at John Courier Field on the campus of Oviedo High School.

Lake Howell, under Coach Mike Biscaglia, has been on a roll lately winning four in a row, to improve its record to 6-3 and finish in a tie for second in District 5A-4 at 4-2. They defeated Sanford Seminole last Friday by a score of 49-27.

In the victory over Edgewater Oviedo junior fullback Frank Diaz went over the 1,000 yard mark in rushing while amassing 148 yards on 29 carries and scored two touchdowns. On the season he has rushed for 1,100 yards on 245 carries which makes him the number three rusher in the county. He is also the number three scorer with 12 touchdowns scored.

In the victory over Seminole Lake Howell super sophomore running back Marquette Smith continued his unbelievable play of late as he rushed for 182 yards on 18 carries and scored two rushing touchdowns. He also returned a kickoff for a touchdown for the second week in a row, for 86 yards, and caught a pass for 14 yards. He now leads the County in rushing with 1,237 yards on 179 carries and also leads in rushing touchdowns with 16. Also running well in the victory over Seminole was junior fullback Cortez Graves who carried the ball 15 times for 128 yards.

In addition to Diaz the Lion offense is led by Senior quarterback Matt Blanton who has thrown for 771 yards and four touchdowns. His main targets have been Senior running back Chad Duncan who has caught 21 passes for 360 yards and three touchdowns, and Senior split end Charles Warner who has caught 13 passes for 201 yards. Duncan has also rushed for 241 yards. The other running back is Senior Preston Dames who has carried the ball for 361 yards and three touchdowns. The Lion defense is led by Senior middle linebacker Willie Pauldo who leads the County in tackles with 128, an average of 14.2 per game. Sophomore linebacker Barry Coleman is averaging eight tackles per game, while the defensive line of Seniors John Black and Hubert Jones, Junior John Knutson, and sophomore Chris Tabcott, have combined for 12 quarterback sacks. Junior safety Hector Diaz leads the County with six pass interceptions.

The starting quarterback for the Silver Hawks is Junior Dan Vercek who has thrown for 578 yards and five touchdowns on the season. His main targets have been Seniors Bob Lieflander and Brian Witherington, and juniors Ryan Webster and Graves, Witherington and Webster have caught two touchdown passes each. Defensively Lake Howell is led by Senior linebacker Greg Astle who has 118 tackles for an average of 13.1 per game and also has two quarterback sacks, freshman defensive lineman Ken Times who is averaging 10.3 tackles per game and has five quarterback sacks.

Pride on the line as Rams host Apopka

By DAVID CONCORAN
Herald correspondent

Before the 1988 high school season started, the Apopka Blue Darters and the Lake Mary Rams were considered among the favorites to win their district titles.

But football is a funny game, and a lot of things can happen to change the outcome of a team's fortunes. And that's been the case with these two teams.

When the two teams face each other Friday night at Lake Mary, there will only be pride at stake with the winner having a .500 record, and the other a losing record.

Both Apopka and Lake Mary go in the game with 4-5 records, but don't tell Chip Gierke and Harry Nelson that.

Gierke and Nelson, the head coaches of both schools feel that this has all the makings of an outstanding game, and on top of that, both don't want to end the season on a losing note as Gierke has never had back to back losing seasons (5-6 in '87) with the Darters, and Nelson has never had a losing season in his career at Lake Mary.

And on top of that, the game will mark the final game for the seniors on both teams, some of the finest football talent in the Central Florida area.

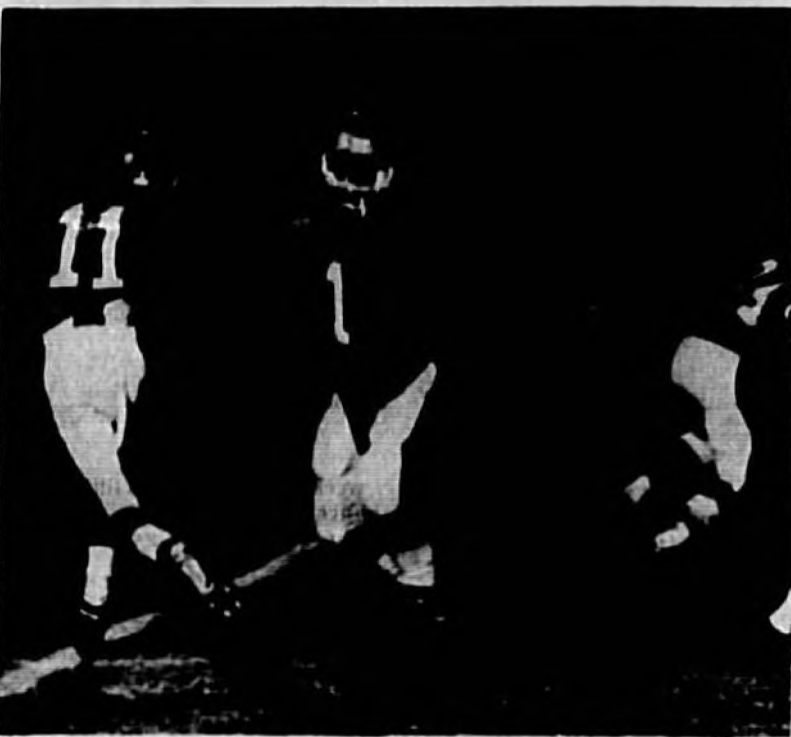

For Apopka, quarterback Joey Hunt, wide receiver Gavin Jones, and kicker Mike Tully are some of the Blue Darter players who have had all-star years, despite the Blue Darters record, but the one who stood out the most has to be Derrick Clark.

Clark, who in the words of Gierke "has had one of the best seasons in Blue Darter history, and has proven without a doubt that he is one of the top players in the state of Florida. In short, Derrick can start for any major college program in the country."

And for the Rams, quarterback Carlos Hartafield, running back Ray Williams and wide receiver Calvin Davis are some who had all-star years for Lake Mary.

And what do each coach feel about the game?

Gierke: "It's going to be tough to end the season on a down note, but we'll be ready to play Lake Mary. Harry (Nelson) and I are close friends, and we have great respect for each other."

Nelson: "I'm glad it's over. We did the best we could, and my kids never quit. I'm proud of them, they played with alot of class, especially Carlos (Hartafield), Ray (Williams) and Calvin (Davis). It's a very special group of kids."

Seminole

to believe in themselves." Defensively, Seminole has had its problems against the bigger offensive lines of the Class 5A schools such as Lake Mary (35-6 loss), Lake Brantley (30-0), Lyman (40-14) and Lake Howell (49-27). But when the 'Noles go up against a 4A foe, the defense has held its own.

SHS' only shutout of the season came against district opponent Edgewater (3-0) and the Tribe's best all-around defensive effort came in a 10-6 victory over previously unbeaten Oviedo. That performance made it possible for SHS to be in this Monday's three-way tiebreaker.

DeLand was once in contention for the 5A-4 crown, but the Bulldogs have had some tough losses in the last few weeks including last week's 10-6 defeat to Lyman, a 20-13 loss to Spruce Creek and a 14-6 setback against Lake Mary, all district games.

The Bulldogs of coach Dave Hiss have a very tough defense against the run, but their pass defense has not been tested that much. Wiggins is sure to test the DeLand secondary tonight as he has thrown the ball an average of about 25 times the past few games.

Offensively, DeLand has struggled with its most productive game being a 27-23 victory over Lake Brantley. The Bulldogs are best on the ground and that is where Seminole's defense must rise to the occasion.

SHS grads doing well in Sioux Falls

By DAVID CONCORAN
Herald correspondent

You wouldn't expect a bunch of Florida boys to be walking around on the frozen tundra in South Dakota, but that's exactly where three former Seminole High standouts are.

Bernard Burke, Benji Futrell and Nick Casello are all seeing plenty of playing time this season for the Sioux Falls (South Dakota) College Cougars.

The Cougars, who went through their regular season undefeated with a 10-0 record, are No. 8 in the NAIA Division II polls going into their first round playoff game with Northwestern College of Iowa at Orange City, Iowa.

For Burke, Futrell and Casello, it is their second consecutive championship season. A year ago, they helped SHS to a berth in the Final Four in the Class 4A state playoffs.

"All three are going to have a fine career here," said Dave Anderson, the Cougars' offensive coordinator, when reached at his office Thursday night. "In fact, since 1980, we have had a Florida connection with quite a few players from Seminole, including Butch Carter and Tracy Holloman."

Burke, a defensive back hasn't seen a lot of playing time this year, according to Anderson, "but, we're looking for him to do great things for this program."

Casello, also a defensive back, has already made an impact on the Sioux Falls program. "He plays nickel back for us," Anderson said. "He had a big interception in last week's game to prevent the other team from scoring. He really has a bright future."

Futrell, a defensive tackle has had a lot of injuries (ankle and groin) that has hampered his progress, but Anderson said he is very strong and is a player Sioux Falls is looking for big things from in the future.

"The Seminole Three" had to go through quite a culture shock when they journeyed to South Dakota. They have had the typical freshman problems that all new students have. They have had to experience cold weather and snow, plus a lot of different priorities, compared to what they had in the past.

But they have done well, with Burke and Casello living in the players' dorm, and Futrell living with his brother Mike (a former Seminole High player, and graduate of Sioux Falls in 1986) who lives there full time.

Emory Blake, the Seminole High head coach, feels that "all three players did a great job for us here, and I'm proud of all of them. And I will be happy to see all of them when they come back home for the holidays."

Lyman High wants one more victory

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Lyman High School will try to make its five consecutive victories this Saturday when it lines up for the State 4A cross country championships at Osceola High School in Pinellas County.

The Greyhounds have won the Seminole County Postal Run, the Seminole Athletic Conference, the District 4A-2 race and the Region 4A-3 meet last Saturday at the University of Central Florida.

Lyman has one of the most talented teams in the history of Seminole County cross country as they have the state's top ranked runner, the top ranked senior and one of the top sophomores in the state.

Teddy Mitchell is the top ranked runner in the state and has a personal best clocking of 14:38 run at mid-season at Lyman High School. Mitchell has not been defeated this season and would like to remain that way this Saturday.

"The team wants to make it five in a row," Mitchell said.

"We've been running well and have confidence going into the state meet."

Mitchell won the Regional meet with a 15:19 clocking and looked strong over the final mile. Mitchell will now be on one of the fastest courses in the state and is expected to drop back down to the mid 14's, if not faster.

Senior Nick Radkewich has been the in the state's top ten runners all season and has a personal best time of 14:59. Radkewich, who will also be competing in the swimming state finals as a member of 400 free relay, has been right with Mitchell in the past five races placing second in every one.

Radkewich will look to be right with his teammate again and give the Greyhounds a strong tandem at the front of the race. If Lyman can go 1-2 in the state meet it will be the first time in the history that one school has had the state's top two runners.

Lyman's Kevin Padgett will play a key role as the team's third runner. Padgett finished 12th in the regional and will be shooting for a top ten finish at the state meet. If Padgett can run strong enough to finish in the top ten Lyman will have a real good chance of taking the team title.

Fourth and fifth runners, Darren Marshall and James Flint will be extremely important to the Greyhounds attack. Marshall and Flint are both veteran runners and will be more than ready to run on Saturday.

Marshall finished 21st in the regional meet with Flint placing 23rd. Lyman coach Fred Fink would like those two to be around the same place in the state meet.

Tony Losey and Gabe Rhodes round off the Lyman team and both will be important in the state meet. Both will be used to back up other teams runners and help Lyman put distance between it and its opponents.

Losey placed 32nd in the region with Rhodes taking 63rd. The Greyhounds hope to move all top seven runners into the top 50 and have their top five finish in the 25.

Attack is the key at state volleyball

Free ball will be the same thing as a four-letter word to the right teams competing at Orlando Dr. Phillips High School tonight in the 3A and 4A state volleyball tournaments.

Attack will be the key for the teams that make it to Saturday night's finals. At this level of the game, if you give up too many free balls, you're in for a quick and painful exit.

The state tournaments kickoff at 2 p.m. with a Class 3A confrontation between Middleburg (18-14) and Port Charlotte (30-5).

Middleburg is the Cinderella team of the tournament, having never gotten past the district prior to this season. The Lady Broncos have used a steady defense and good serving to get this far, but coach Carrie Prewitt knows they must attack to be successful at state.

Port Charlotte is making its second consecutive trip to state and coach Don Wendell believes the Lady Pirates have a good shot at going all the way.

In the second game today, starting at 4 p.m., Class 4A

Osborne, Seminole blank DeLand, 2-0

Converted goalie Bobbie Osborne made five saves to post a shutout in Seminole High School's 2-0 win over DeLand in Seminole Athletic Conference girls soccer action Thursday night.

With eight minutes gone in the first half, Shannon Sundvall took a pass from Jennifer Lindamood and beat DeLand keeper Deena Pelland to put the Tribe up 1-0.

"It was a very physical game like it was at the jamboree," said Seminole coach Susy Reno, referring to Seminole's foul-marred 0-0 tie against the Lady Bulldogs in the preseason jamboree at Lake Mary last Saturday.

As a result, the 'Notes were somewhat lethargic in the first half, but still managed 15 shots on goal to DeLand's two. But after the halftime break, Seminole started to come alive.

The extra effort paid off with about seven minutes left in the game when Lindamood scored to put Seminole up 2-0.

Lindamood worked her way in on Pelland and shot. Pelland made the save but couldn't grab the rebound and Lindamood shot again. Once more, Pelland made the save but couldn't control the ball. The third time was the charm as Lindamood lifted her third attempt over Pelland and into the net.

"She finally did what I told her," Reno said. "I tell them, 'Never give up.' She didn't stand there, looking at it."

DeLand had a chance to avoid the shutout when Caryn Fennell got behind the Seminole defense and came at Osborne. But Osborne charged out at Fennell, forcing her to shoot early. Osborne managed to knock the ball down with her arm, then smothered the ball.

CCC nips Lyman, 2-1

By DAVID CONCORAN
Herald correspondent

LONGWOOD— The Lyman girls soccer team had their season opener Thursday night, and the young Lady Hounds had to go against one of the strongest teams in the state, the Clearwater Central Catholic Marauders.

The Lady Greyhounds gave CCC all they could handle before falling to the Marauders, 2-1, before 101 fans at Lyman High.

And afterwards, both coaches had nothing but high praise and respect for the other team.

CCC's Ellis Sabol: "This was an excellent soccer game played here tonight. You have to give the Lyman players a lot of credit. They seemed to rise each time we put the pressure on them."

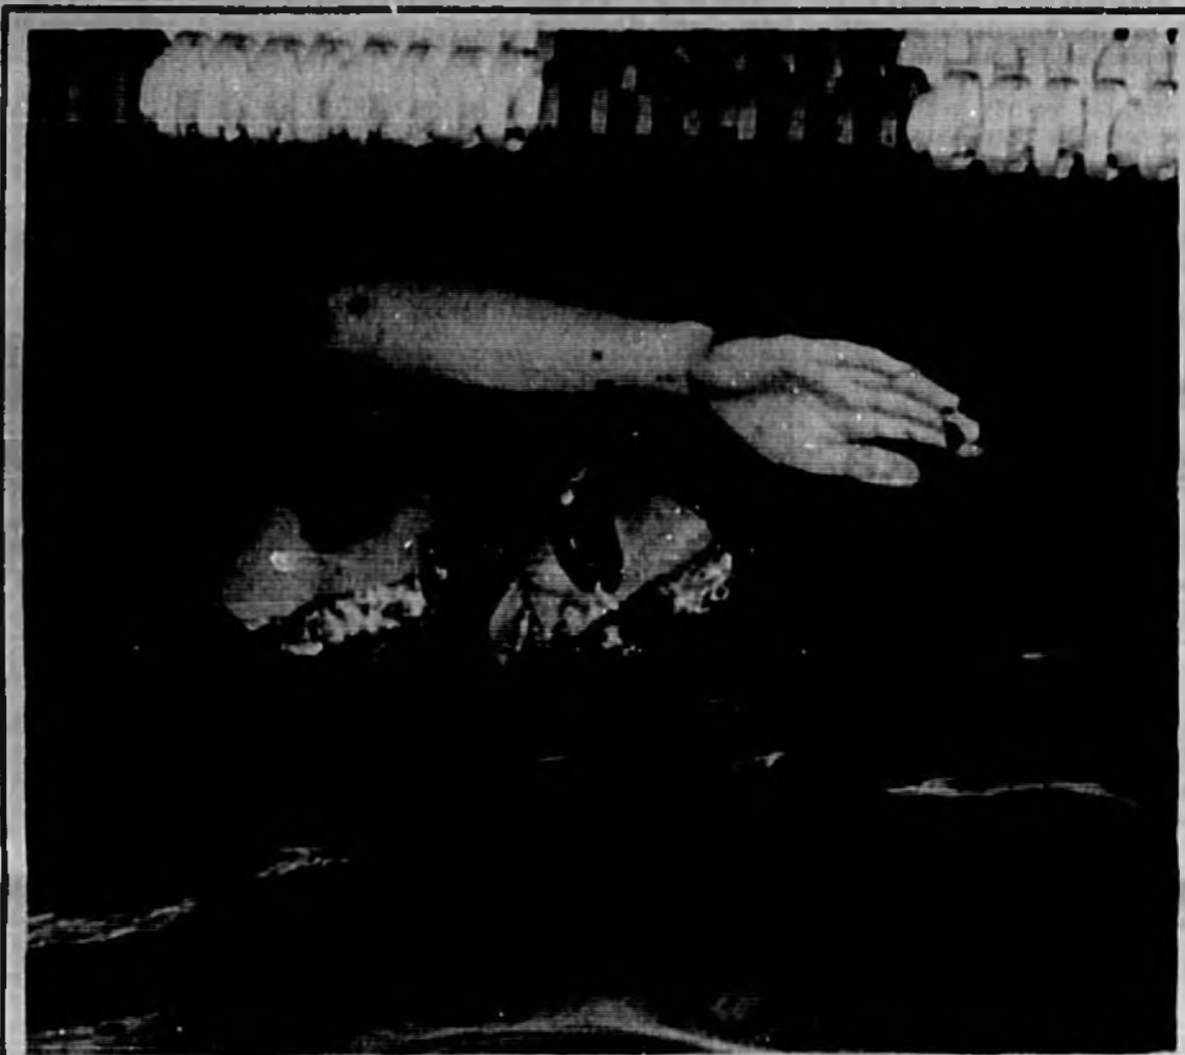

Lyman's Laura Roundtree: "My players just seemed to come to life right after CCC scored first in the second half. After we tied it (1-1), we had the momentum, but we didn't capitalize on our opportunities. CCC's a fine team. I have great respect for them."

After a scoreless first half, the Marauders struck first as senior forward Julie Lannon scored at the 24:54 mark to make it 1-0 CCC with an assist from Julie Krauss and Patty Bacon. Lannon took a pass 35 yards out and fired a shot past Lyman goalkeeper Becky Carr inside the right post.

Five minutes later, Lyman tied it when Tammy Fulsang stole the ball, dribbled to within 15 yards and drilled a shot past goalkeeper Melissa Welch.

For the next 15 minutes, the Lady Hounds continued to put the pressure on, but couldn't put the nail in CCC's coffin. Then, with 2:25 left in the match, senior forward Bridget O'Leary stole a Lyman pass intended for midfielder Kerry Musanie and blasted a shot past Carr.

JoDee Lake, a junior at Lake Brantley High, has worked hard to become one of the best sprinters on the state swimming scene. She hopes to help Lake Brantley to a team championship Saturday.

Lake

"I didn't like to come to practice, and when I did I really didn't work as hard as I could. I'm still inexperienced though. I don't know why we do some of the things we do or how much yardage we should go, but it must work or else we wouldn't be swimming as fast as we are."

After last year's heart-breaking loss in the state finals in her specialties, Lake has come back even stronger this year. Lake now has an even more determined spirit to capture those elusive state titles that she wants so dearly. So dearly that she sometimes loses sleep thinking about the next day's competition.

"I want to win state really bad," Lake said, looking like a tiger who hadn't eaten for two weeks and someone just threw him a piece of raw meat. "Sometimes at night before I go to bed I think about it so bad that I can't sleep because I'm so nervous about winning."

Even though Lake has gotten out of her lazy stage by working to achieve her goals, she still has reservations about increasing the yardage of her events.

"I like the 50 and the 100 (freestyles) because they're bursts of energy and I can explode at any point during the race," Lake said. "I think the farthest I'll go is 200 yards. I can't get into the 200 though. I feel that you have to mentally like it before you can physically do it."

"There is still so much for me to learn," Lake said of her inexperience.

Fishermen: Relax and enjoy nature

Fishermen are sometimes guilty of losing sight of one of the true purposes of fishing — relaxation and the sheer enjoyment of nature. I am not writing to moralize, for I also have been guilty at times of being wrapped up in the "catching" aspect of the sport. Often I have judged the success of a fishing trip based upon the number of fish caught.

No one hated to get skunked worse than myself. It left a bitter taste in my mouth and the trip home seemed to be at least an hour longer. Then came the embarrassing questions...What did you catch? How big?

People expected me to catch fish and to be successful, and I used to fine such probing questions hard to deal with on a "bad" day. Over the years the aging and maturation process has changed my outlook significantly. I still fish hard and give it 110% when I am on the water. I still maintain all of my tackle and equipment in perfect working order. I still like to catch a lot of fish when conditions are right.

What has changed over the years is my enjoyment of the sport and the ability to revel in the wonders of nature. When the fish aren't biting, which is more often than not, it is nice to simply look around and soak in the beauties of nature—the sky, the fresh air and the wildlife. It is a simple matter to let your mind float with the air currents and to become one in spirit with the forces of nature.

FISHING

Getting "skunked" is not as painful as it used to be. I may not always catch fish, but I can always observe and learn something new about nature or even about life itself. More often than not, what I have seen or learned is much more valuable than an ice chest bulging with fish.

Take time to "smell the roses" on your fishing trips. You will be rewarded with gifts more permanent and more worthwhile than any good catch of fish.

SHUPE'S SCOOP
With the growing popularity of bass tournaments and offshore tournaments, the pendulum is swinging more and more to the competitive aspect of fishing. If you must compete, remember to keep the proper perspective while doing so. Today's society offers enough pressures already without compounding the problem by adding additional pressure to your recreational activities.

FISHING FORECAST
Lemon Bluff Fish Camp reports plenty of specks in Lake Harney. Bass fishing is picked up in Pease Lake with dropping water levels. Bream and catfish are holding steady in the river.

Steve Gard at the Osteen Bridge Fish Camp said that the specks are mainly in the Lake by the I-4 bridge and around Stone Island. Specks are also hitting around the pilings of the new bridge. Steve reported that bass fishing is still a little on the slow side. Bream and catfish still continue to round out the fishing action in this part of the river.

Snook fishing continues to be hot at Sebastian, with most of the fish running under 15 pounds. Most anglers who fish hard will usually connect with at least one linerider in an outing. One-ounce jigs are still the most consistent lure, with crankbaits running a close second. Look for fishing to improve with the upcoming full moon.

Captain Jack at Port Canaveral reports good offshore fishing with the recent calmer weather. Trollers who made it out caught mainly dolphin and wahoo, with a few kingfish caught over reef areas. Bottom fishing has improved as these fish move into shallower rock piles and reefs. Good catches of red snapper have been made at Pelican Flats. Inside the Port, look for flounder and bluefish to provide good action. Trout and reds are very good on the flats of the Banana and Indian Rivers and anglers can have a ball with topwater plugs.

Look for steady action with bluefish, sheepshead, drum, flounder, whiting, and redfish around the New Smyrna jetties.

remaining to play. Vincent Emerson added a three point play with 17:32 remaining to up the lead 52-28.

The Raiders continued to take advantage of their opponents mistakes as their lead scorers came off the bench to lead them. Seminole's five starters did not play exceptional but were able to control the game and let its bench players come in and do a fine job.

Guards Scaletta and Gaskill played strong in the second half with Blackmon and Brown playing strong on the boards and scoring at will in the opening half.

The girls meet will be the most exciting for the Central Florida area when the Lady Pats of Lake Brantley try to ditch their bridesmaids' dresses and walk down the state championship aisle by themselves.

With a list of speedsters any coach would cut his right arm off for, the Lady Patriots will try and give coach Clay Parnell something he has always dreamed of—a state title.

Jetting junior JoDee Lake leads the way, but senior captain Kristen Pauley and her flashy freshman sister Ryann will also be in the fast lane for Lake Brantley. Jennifer Moon, Beth Rosenbluth, Dani Ohnman, Jill Spiller, Kristen Camino, and Manda Davis will all have to dig down deep, pull their resources together, and show what they're made of for any shot at claiming the title.

Lake Howell looks for good performances from Lora Cotter who received an at large bid in the 50 free, and Tricia DeFrates who qualified in the 500 free. The Lady Silver Ducks also have two relays which qualified and hope to put Lake Howell on the state scoreboard.

Lake Mary's chances rest on the lone shoulders of senior Stasi Bojanowski who also qualified for an at large berth in the 100 butterfly. Bojanowski will also participate in the 400 free relay along with teammates Helen Padgett-Wilkes, Alyson Cook, and Aleisha Dowson.

Two lauded for quick rescue

Horner is up, walking after foot first-aid

SANFORD — Two young men credited with rescuing Jack Horner after he was injured in a lawnmower accident this past summer were honored for their action by the Red Cross Wednesday.

Ronald R. Jernigan Jr. and Michael Maxwell received the Red Cross Lifesaving Award for coming to the aid of Horner, former executive director of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

Horner was mowing his daughter's lawn when his foot was hit by the whirling blade. He says he fell to the ground and was unable to get up, and Jernigan and Maxwell heard his cries for help from across the street.

"They did all the right things," Horner said. "They applied a pressure bandage to stop the bleeding and got me into the shade and called 911."

Horner spent a month in the hospital recovering from the injury and just recently was able to walk without crutches. "I still carry a cane in the car, but am becoming less dependant on it. The doctors tell me my foot will recover completely and I will be able to walk normally," Horner said.

He said the award presentation was his first opportunity to thank the men since the accident. "Roland had first-aid training in high school and in the military and Mike had worked as a nurse's aide, so I couldn't have been in better hands," said Horner, who himself taught first aid for the Red Cross for about 20 years.

Ligustrum hedges are a Florida favorite

You'll see evergreen ligustrum shrubs and trees thrive throughout the state. They are widely used as landscape shrubs, hedges, and specimen trees.

Many species and cultivars are available with a diversity of leaf colors, leaf forms, and growth habits. All selections are tolerant of heavy pruning, which makes them suited for clipped hedges. Because of rapid growth rate, many require pruning to maintain them within bounds.

The white flowers are attractive during late spring and early summer. However, the pungent odor may be objectionable.

The most common ligustrums grown in Florida are Japanese or wax privet (Ligustrum japonicum), glossy privet (L. lucidum) and Chinese privet (L. sinense).

Ligustrums are one of the most commonly used landscape plants. Their low cost, availability, rapid growth and wide adaptability to most habitats contribute to their overuse. Ligustrums are used as foundation plantings, hedges, shrub borders, accent shrubs, specimen and patio trees. Most ligustrums are not well suited for home foundation plantings because of their rapid growth and large ultimate size. Frequent and severe pruning is necessary to prevent these shrubs from obscuring windows and overgrowing allotted areas.

Ligustrums are ideally suited for formal or informal hedges because of their large mass of foliage and ability to tolerate heavy shearing as well as neglect. These variegated forms can be used as accents when planted singly or as small groups. Japanese and glossy privet are prized as multiple stemmed patio and specimen trees. Specimen trees can be maintained in large containers with dramatic effects.

Privets can be planted throughout Florida with little fear of cold injury. They are tolerant of the wide diversity of Florida's native soils and can be grown in full sun to partial shade.

Selection of healthy vigorous plants and proper installation are the first steps in minimizing maintenance requirements. Regular pruning is required to promote desired growth and maintain desired size.

Fertilization of ligustrum depends upon plant size and desired rate of growth. Established plants should be fertilized two to four times a year. Early spring and mid-summer would be best for two fertilizations. Additional applications would be applied in late spring and early fall for more rapid growth or for unhealthy plants. A 6-6-6 similar fertilizer can be broadcasted in shrub beds at 2-4 cups per 100 square feet.

Ligustrums can be propagated by cuttings, grafting and seed. Selections must be propagated by cuttings or grafting to maintain the desired leaf and growth characteristics. Softwood and spring hardwood cuttings of most ligustrums root easily. About eight weeks are required for rooting. Glossy privet may be difficult to root at times; however, actively growing terminal cuttings root best. Japanese privet and glossy privet are sometimes grafted on Quzhou privet to gain nematode resistance.

Japanese and glossy privet can be propagated from seed. They flower in late spring or summer, with the fruit ripening in September or October. The pulp should be removed and the seed planted without allowing complete drying.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Here is another interesting card combination — one that is not often seen. It is normal for South to arrive at three no-trump and to receive the queen of spades lead. If declarer follows basic technique, he will count his tricks and find that he needs one more. Since the only possibility of a ninth trick is in the heart suit, it is not surprising that declarer will take a finesse. Since the heart finesse loses, the deal is over and the contract is down one. Or is there more to it?

In fact, if you look a little deeper into the heart holding between dummy and declarer's hand, you will find an extra option. South does not really need to play to the jack of hearts. Instead declarer can lead the eight of hearts and play low from dummy. If that loses to the 10 in the East hand, the remaining heart can later be played to the jack. The contract will be made if either the 10 or the queen is in the West hand. If not, you may be down three, but the extra chance is worth taking when you're not doubled.

Why lead the eight? Because you don't really want West to cover, but if he does put the 10 on declarer's eight, the safe sure play for nine tricks is to go up with the ace in dummy and then lead low to the nine in the South hand. (The heart suit would be blocked if the play went eight, 10, jack, and East won the queen and returned a spade.)

Heating up one's bod won't kill one's bug

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've read that viruses die in the body if the body temperature rises above a certain degree. Wouldn't it be possible to heat the body to, say, 110 degrees, while keeping the brain cool, to kill viruses?

DEAR READER: In theory, such a scheme makes good sense. If, somehow, the body could be heated — while preserving delicate organs such as the brain — a form of pasteurization could take place. Viruses, bacteria — even cancer cells — could be cooked.

However, from a practical standpoint, body-heating is not technologically possible — it's simply too hazardous. For a time, a similar technique enjoyed some popularity. Coley's toxin, an unfiltered mixture of certain bacteria, caused high fever when injected into the body. It was used to treat selected cases of inoperable cancer. Some people were cured by this method. However, other more effective methods came into vogue and Coley's toxin is no longer used.

The theory of body-heating is attractive, but, to my knowledge, it is technically not feasible.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have migraines. My daughter, now 20, has been having headaches since age 4. She also has black-

MEDICINE

PETER GOTT, M.D.

outs. My son has epilepsy. One doctor said my daughter had seizures, one doctor said no. Two other doctors disagree over the results of her glucose tolerance test, but a strict diet that we initiated has certainly helped her. What can we do to sort out this confusion?

DEAR READER: You raise three possible diagnoses for your daughter: Migraine headaches or migraine equivalents, seizure disorder and hypoglycemia. Ordinarily these conditions are easily separated by medical tests.

Migraine equivalents (visual symptoms and irritability without headache) are diagnosed by the exclusion of other diseases; they often respond to the administration of ergo derivatives, drugs that constrict arteries.

Seizure disorders, such as epilepsy, can usually be diagnosed by an electroencephalogram (brain wave test or EEG).

Hypoglycemia is diagnosed when the symptoms are present during periods of low blood sugar (less than 45 milligrams of glucose per deciliter of blood).

I'm not sure why your daughter's doctors are in disagreement. To resolve the issue, I suggest that you request a referral to a neurological or diagnostic clinic of a teaching hospital. In such an environment, the specialists should be able to put everything together and solve the problem.

You should realize that a hypoglycemic diet (no alcohol or sweets; frequent high protein meals) will help many medical conditions. Therefore, a favorable response to these restrictions is not proof that hypoglycemia caused the symptoms.

For more information I am sending you copies of my Health Reports "Hypoglycemia," "Epilepsy: The Falling Sickness" and "Headaches." Other readers who would like a copy of any of these should send $1 and for each one and their name and address to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title you want.

Mother gave up her daughter, but now longs for reunion

DEAR ABBY: The letter signed "Adopted in Illinois" (and your reply) prompts me to write to you for the first time since I started reading your column approximately 30 years ago.

The author of that letter could very well be my daughter. I gave up an absolutely gorgeous baby girl for adoption 27 years ago in the state of Indiana. It was the most painful and unselfish thing I have ever done. If there was any way I could have kept her and given her a life even close to normal or good, I would have. I was trapped in an impossible situation and had no other choice.

All these years, I have hoped and prayed that maybe someday I would get to see her. I am married now with two grown sons, but I never had another daughter. I have my name on file in Nevada with an agency that unites adoptees and biological parents—but only if it is mutually agreeable.

If my daughter's attitude is anything like the person who wrote that letter, I'll never get to see her. (She wrote: "Why should I go searching for my 'real' parents? I found them the day they found me.")

Just because I gave her up does not mean I did not love her—it meant I loved her enough to care about the kind of life she would have.

Abby, how could you call that letter a "beautiful and generous attitude"? I disagree completely. It's a narrow minded, misunderstanding attitude. There, I've said it, and now it's off my chest!

HEARTSICK IN WASHINGTON

DEAR HEARTSICK: I owe you—and other mothers who unselfishly gave their babies up for adoption—an apology. And here it is.

DEAR ABBY: Several years ago you had a letter in your column from a man who wanted to go to medical school but hesitated because he would be "X" years old after 10 years of schooling. You asked him, "And how old will you be in 10 years if you don't go to medical school?"

Abby, I have always wanted to go to law school, but my then-husband discouraged me. So after we were divorced, I promised myself that as soon as I got on my feet again, I'd go back to school. The months, then the years, began slipping away, and I began to think that I was too old (early 30s) to pursue a law career. Your answer to the potential medical student was just what I needed to jolt me to my senses. I immediately enrolled in college part time so I could continue to work. I attended classes evenings and summers. When I graduated (magnum cum laude, Phi Beta Kappa) I was able to quit my job and attend law school full time.

Next May I will graduate and although I am a bit older than my classmates, there are several who are even older than I am.

Thank you, Abby. You made my career!

BARBARA J. CLAIRE, WATERFORD, CONN.

DEAR BARBARA: Thank you. Your letter made my day.

DEAR ABBY: I can't speak for all the teenagers in the world, but I can speak for myself. When adults call me "Honey" or "Dear," I feel like they are trying to put me in my place—like they are talking to some little kid. But I don't mind being called "Honey" or any other pet name when the person is my age.

I'M NOT EVERYBODY'S HONEY

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You might buy items for the house today simply because you believe them to be good buys. However, it's unlikely you'll ever use or need them.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) If you tell someone who comes to you for advice today what you think he/she would like to hear rather than the truth, you could be doing this person a great disservice.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) In group activities today it's best you don't lead the finance committee. There are strong indications you may be careless with your resources as well as those of others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Your plans are likely to be sound today, but your methods of execution could leave something to be desired. Do not depart from your blueprint once you've thought things through.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) If you're reluctant to take the initiative today, be careful to whom you delegate assignments. An ineffective alternate won't get the job done either.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)

Should you make a loan to a friend today, establish that you expect to be paid back, or else it might be treated as a gift.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Don't make commitments to your mate today that you feel you might have to renege on later. Being honest and up front will avert problems down the line.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Miscalculations are likely today if you take things for granted. Be optimistic and hopeful, but don't let it overshadow your common sense.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be extra careful today if you are in the market for a big-ticket item. If the price you are given seems "off" or fine, do some comparison shopping before buying.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You might find yourself in a position today where you'll feel a little white lie can slip by unnoticed. Unfortunately, it will stand out like a sore thumb.

Catholic bishops reject Vatican document

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Roman Catholic bishops conference, a unified voice for more than a decade on secular and internal church matters, has shown signs of fraying around the edges at its annual convention this week as they rejected a document issued by the Vatican and sent it back to Rome urging that it be rewritten.

The 300-member National Conference of Catholic Bishops (NCCB) walked on eggs in the opening round of the convention as leaders sought to explain the Vatican intervention into proposed guidelines to defuse problems between theologians and bishops.

A statement of much controversy emerged from the meetings Wednesday as the bishops approved a softened but still strong response to the Vatican proposal for a narrowed understanding of the power of national episcopal bodies such as NCCB.

The Vatican document, released last year for comment, weeks to give a theological definition of episcopal conferences, to check their role as independent powers centers outside Rome, and to limit teaching authority.

Leaders of the U.S. body found the statement completely unacceptable and drafted a reply urging the Vatican to scrap it and begin again.

But the first version of the reply, written by a panel of past presidents of the conference, was deemed too strident during public debate on the response. It was softened with some closed-door rewriting, though the conclusion remained the same.

Finally the response was approved Wednesday, but the 205-59 vote was just two bishops more than the minimum necessary, suggesting conservatives in the conference are growing in number.

The conservative prelates argued that a stern rejection would be too strong and the bishops should be more conciliatory and positive.

According to conference officials, the tough response could be rejected by a membership that always seems to keep one eye over its shoulder as it struggles to assert itself to the Vatican.

The Vatican's power was unmistakable Monday as it intervened in the proposed statement addressing "doctrinal responsibilities" of theologians and bishops.

Development of the 57-page document, almost a decade of work, had been given particular emphasis by the Vatican's recent censuring of theologian Charles Curran, an instructor at the Catholic University of America who has dissented from church teaching on sexual questions such as abortion and homosexuality.

A draft of the document — which sat in Rome for 13 months, according to U.S. church officials — was to be presented Monday, setting out new guidelines for dialogue between bishops and theologians aimed at minimizing disputes between the administrative and ideological elements of the church.

But in a last-minute intervention, dated Nov. 10 and passed on to the bishops just this weekend, the Vatican alleged that the document treated bishops and theologians as equals and therefore was unacceptable — a characterization that frustrated American church leaders.

Bishop Raymond Lessard of Savannah, Ga., bowing to the sudden pressure from Rome, told colleagues that his drafting committee believed "the wisest course at present" would be to withdraw the document and to have a delegation meet with Roman Curia officials "to explain the intent as well as the content."

Lessard said despite his committee's belief that it had taken a "reasonable and fair approach," the Vatican apparently feared a threat to the instruction authority of bishops, through the perceived equality with theologians.

Thanksgiving reminder: 'The sun also rises'

A current writer says the 1930s were a good time to be alive. We may not have had as long a list of things to be thankful for as people today, but we were happier.

We didn't have much (it was the Depression) but neither did anybody else (it was the Depression for them too), so we weren't aware we were living in "bad times." We did without — without knowing we were doing without.

It was easier in those days to satisfy us. We went to the "picture show" on Saturday night and looked forward to our children's birthdays. Bowling was 28 cents per game; draft beer, a nickel. We enjoyed ourselves and never bothered to look back to see who might be gaining on us.

Beyond that, families were together more in those days. The Wall Street Journal cites a survey which found that only 11 percent of families today have wives who are at home full time.

RELIGION

GEORGE PLAGENZ

Fifty percent of young working mothers say they are experiencing stress because they don't have enough time for their families.

Wages may be higher than ever but, strangely, this isn't lifting our spirits. Career offices at Barnard College and the Wharton School at the University of Pennsylvania report that job-seekers today are beginning to look at job compensation and not just job compensation and other external status symbols.

Investment banking, where salaries can begin at $97,000 and go as high as $250,000 after five years, has fallen off sharply in popularity in the last five years with Wharton School students.

We may be realizing that, although we are "better off today," as a Republican campaign commercial reminded voters before this month's election, we are also more dissatisfied. Which may account for the fact that, on Thanksgiving Day this year when the gross national product is rising and the nuclear threat declining, we are not feeling as thankful as the signs would indicate we should.

But if the good yesterday is gone and today is far-spent and beyond memory, there is tomorrow. No matter how unsatisfying our situation is today, we can give thanks for the satisfaction tomorrow may bring.

When the sun appears to be setting on our dreams, we are likely to forget Hemingway's reminder that "the sun also rises." When the inevitable hardships come, we lose sight of Albert Camus' assurance that "good too is inevitable." We can give thanks in advance for these certainties.

Giving thanks beforehand was also one of Jesus' secrets for making miracles happen. Jesus didn't give thanks after the 500 had been fed — but before. In the case of Lazarus' return from the dead, when Jesus said, "I thank thee, Father, that thou hast heard me," it was before Lazarus came forth from the tomb — not after.

Let's try it this Thanksgiving. Let's give thanks in advance for a miracle in our lives. Not a miracle of things but a miracle of happiness. For that is the miracle we need. Things have let us down.

This does not mean we must give up things. But we must give up our thought of things. When we give thanks for the happiness God has in mind for us, we find that the good things necessary for our happiness are provided.

So let this be our prayer of thanksgiving this year: "Thank you, Father, for a great tomorrow!"

Catholic, Lutheran dialogue is active

United Press International

Can Lutherans and Roman Catholics both pray to Mary?

Does Christian tradition ever allow the direct intentional termination of one's own life or the life of another?

Should non-Christians play a role in setting the theme for the World Council of Churches next assembly?

These are just some of the issues on the various ecumenical agendas as churches seek to fashion a vision of Christian unity in the next decade amid troubled times for some leading inter-religious agencies, such as the National Council of Churches.

While the National Council, beset by internal strife and declining financial support, works to figure out its own identity and role, many of its members are pursuing their own ecumenical agendas.

Among the most active of the bilateral dialogues — theological discussions between two churches — is that of the Roman Catholic and Lutherans.

The most recent round of discussions have focused on the role Mary, the mother of Jesus, plays in the two churches.

Lutherans, in practice, ascribe little importance to Mary and reject the veneration she receives in Roman Catholic worship and spiritual life.

In a statement issued after the most current round of discussions, the theologians said they are making progress toward a final statement, which they expect to issue next September. But they warned differences continue to exist.
