Moldy bread and the speed of marbles: Student science fair

By SHARI BRODIE
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Which soil is best for water retention? Which bread grows the most mold? At what angle will a dice and a marble go down a slope and how does shape affect their speed? These are just some of the questions asked and answered by students participating in the Seminole County Regional Science, Math and Engineering Fair held Saturday at Seminole Community College.

More than 250 student projects picked from over 3,000 entered throughout the district and judged on the high school and middle school level first qualified to compete at the regional level.

Students were given their choice of subject to research by their science teachers. Categories available included behavioral and social sciences, biochemistry, botany, chemistry, computer science, earth and space science, engineering, environmental science, mathematics, medicine and health, microbiology, physics and zoology. Students could participate individually or in teams. Students could also create an invention.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Office has identified several hundred career criminals in the county. Many more make some sort of living from burglarizing businesses, cars and homes. What burden does the public, law enforcement, and lawmakers bear? What can be done to change the cycle of crime? See Page 4A.

Crime's two avenues of harm: Physical, financial

Sanford Police Officer Kris Ziegler simulates an arrest, using a volunteer actor.

Fighting back after losing to thieves

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — Wendel R. Wendel, president of StarNet International in Longwood, has been on a personal crusade against crime the last few months.

Having had his Longwood plant burglarized several times to the tune of some $35,000, Wendel set out to find the perpetrators and to make sure they were prosecuted to the fullest extent of the law.

Thieves have found that aluminum, copper and other metal sold as scrap can command a good price. Police say construction job sites and plants are often targets for burglars because of the large amount of metal left virtually unattended at night and on Sunday.

Armed with a cellular telephone and an automatic focus camera, Wendel recently alerted police when he found two men removing sheets of aluminum from the plant's yard on a Sunday afternoon.

While police caught and arrested one of the men Raymond Beauchesne, the other escaped. Wendel took photos of the car as it sped away and tried to get the license plate number.

Since that time, he has been tracking the driver through the county court records, the state department of motor vehicles, the post office, and a number of See Wendel, Page 7A

Violence: It's a living

By VICKI DeSORMIER
Herald Senior Staff Writer

SANFORD — There are more than 500 adults and 163 young people in Seminole County who make their living in a life of violent crime.

Still others make their living at the exprise of others, doing harm to others, not physically but financially.

According to Seminole County Sheriff Don Estinger, law enforcement will be concentrating on getting the violent offenders off the streets. To that end, the sheriff's office has established a career criminal unit as part of the special investigations unit.

Other police departments in the county are also gathering information on career criminals and using that information when making arrests to record on their reports regarding criminal history.

Lake Mary OKs new Holiday Inn near I-4

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald Staff Writer

LAKE MARY — After assurances that no precedents were being set, the Lake Mary City Commission approved a conditional use for a new Holiday Inn Express Thursday.

The hotel is to be located on Lake Emma Road in North Point. Another description says it would be at the east side of Interstate 4 fronting on I-4 and west of Greenwood Blvd.

The special conditions for the development which had been submitted first to the city's Planning and Zoning Board then to the city commission requested a building height of 40 feet. The city's present codes restrict buildings to a maximum height of 40 feet. In order to bypass the codes, approval of conditional uses are required.

City Planner Matt West explained that the proposed Holiday Inn Express was a DRI development of regional importance which had been approved for the property 10 years earlier. He said the 40-foot limit only applied to a FID (planned urban development) and that it would not be setting a precedent if they approved requests for extra height would also have to be brought before the P&Z and city to obtain approval based on their own merits.

West noted that, although not within the actual city limits, there are other structures in the nearby area which are over the city's current 40-foot height limit.

Another question raised by members of the commission during discussion of the conditional use request centered on the actual number of hotel rooms, and the number of buildings.

The request presented to the commission was for a 400-room hotel, which in fact, the proposal was for an initial 104 rooms.

Mayor Lowry Rockett explained that the confusing situation was whether we are talking about approval of a hotel with 400 rooms or a 100-room hotel.

He explained the difference was recognizing how many structures may eventually be placed on the property. He said he had a 400-room hotel in the present time, the applicants have only requested one structure with 104 rooms, but with the possibility of adding additional buildings at some See Inn, Page 7A

LAKE MARY — I don't know what the fuss is all about. I guess to humans, a birthday is a big deal, but to me it's just another day.

My owners say I'm 2 years old. I wouldn't swear to it, but then again, I am a female. In all of the books I've read, it is said cats have nine lives. I think I spent several of mine my first year. It was tough and go for a while.

My name is Lili and I am a Siamese-Burmese mix. I came to live at Little Wing Books about a year ago. Most of the time before that is a dark memory.

I remember only bits and pieces about my early life. When I first saw my owners, it was through the wires of a cage. I was in a pleasant place, but I was happy to leave that. I later learned it was the See Lili, Page 5A

IN BRIEF

Board of Adjustment

LAKE MARY — The City of Lake Mary Board of Adjustment will meet Wednesday, Feb. 7, beginning at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers. Items on the agenda include a request for a variance regarding a side yard setback on property at 113 Willow Drive.

Other business may be brought up during the meeting. The Lake Mary City Hall is located at 100 N. Country Club Road.

Historic meeting

SANFORD — The Sanford Historic Preservation Board will meet Thursday, Feb. 8, 1996 in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, beginning at 4:30 p.m.

A number of requests are scheduled to be heard regarding residences in the city. Other business is also scheduled for discussion.

Sanford City Hall is located at 300 N. Park Avenue.

Recreation money

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — State Representative Lee Constantine (R-37) is to present a check for $100,000 to the City of Altamonte Springs Friday, Feb. 9, at 10 a.m., at Lake Lotus Park.

The money was awarded from the Department of Environmental Protection's Florida Recreation Development Assistance Program, and is slated to be used for Lake Lotus Park.

"I'm proud to have been able to assist Altamonte Springs in this endeavor," Constantine said. "These funds enhance the passive recreation facilities of Lake Lotus and will create a place where families can enjoy the natural environment of Central Florida."

Constantine said he can't wait to see the end results.

Toll expands

Florida Department of Transportation Secretary Ben G. Watts has announced the signing of an agreement between FDOT and the Orlando-Orange County Expressway Authority, to provide E-Pass on DOT operated portions of toll road 417 (Central Florida GreeneWay). The area is a 12-mile stretch in Seminole County.

Employment of the E-Pass system is expected to be available for patron use by this summer.

Redevelopment

SANFORD — The City of Sanford Community Redevelopment Agency (CRA) will meet Tuesday, Feb. 6, beginning at 4 p.m., in the city manager's conference room of Sanford City Hall.

Featured will be introduction of members and staff, as well as a report on the responsibilities and mission of the CRA organization.

William T. Royster serves as chairman of the CRA, with Larry Strickler as vice-chairman.

Deliverance consecration service

The public is invited to hear guest speaker The Rev. Edity Iloh from Nigeria at the Deliverance Consecration Service at Shower Down of Blessings, 201 Elm St., Sanford, on Feb. 7, 8, 9 from 7 to 9 p.m. daily.

Fewer students prepared for college

By ADAM YEMANS
Associated Press Writer

TALLAHASSEE — Florida high school graduates were better prepared for entering community colleges last year, but they still lagged far behind their university counterparts, a new report shows.

The percentage of community college students ready for postsecondary education increased from 41 percent in 1993-94 to 42.6 percent last year, according to the Readiness for College Report released Friday.

At state universities, the percentage of students prepared to pursue four-year degrees decreased from 92 percent two years ago to 90.4 percent last year, said the report released by Education Commissioner

Frank Brogan.

"Any increase in the community colleges is positive," Brogan said. "We continue to turn out too many youngsters who can't access college without remediation."

The results come as lawmakers and education officials prepare to push tougher standards for high school students to get more of them ready to handle university and college courses.

Students who don't score high enough in reading, writing or arithmetic must first take preparatory courses in those areas. The state spends about $15 million a year on remedial courses, Brogan said.

The report was gleaned from college entry-level placement tests taken by almost 40,000 first-time college students in Florida community colleges and state universities who graduated from public high school in the previous year.

A gulf exists between the performance of university and community college students, primarily because of the open-door policy at two-year schools and tighter admissions standards at four-year institutions.

The percentage of community college students prepared for math courses increased from 66.8 percent in 1993-94 to 69.3 percent last year. But the percentage ready for writing and reading declined slightly to 68 percent.

Community college students ready in all three areas rose from 41.1 percent to 42.6 percent last year, still down from 45.6 percent in 1991-92.

The way we were: Farming in 1910

I am taking you back to 1910 again today, giving you information, mainly of farming, of that period.

Achievements of a bankrupt people

According to Mr. J.N. Whitner, the most remarkable feature of the Sanford development was that it was conceived and accomplished by people without money, some of them heavily in debt. For the development of the Sanford Celery Delta was the direct result of the freeze of 1895 which destroyed the orange groves. Those who were too poor to leave or loved Florida too well to desert her, had to turn to new ways of earning a living.

The land where the dead groves stood was practically all the cleared land there was. On it was grown corn, potatoes, peas, beans and hay. The trucking lands were in the woods, but after about five years these had been cleared and the Sanford system of irrigation had been perfected. These trucking lands then became the most productive in both crops and revenue.

In the winter of 1898-97, J.E. Pace shipped the first head of lettuce from Sanford, and the first celery was shipped by J.N. Whitner, B.F. Whitner, J.E. Pace and E.S. Harrell.

The Sanford flat celery system was adopted and used that winter, the length of which was determined by the old orange sides these farmers had on hand.

In the spring of 1898, four carloads of celery were shipped under refrigeration by these farmers, assisted by Mr. S.O. Chase. Even though there was a hard freeze in February 1899, fine celery was made which brought good prices.

The problem of litigation having been solved and with progress being made on growing crops, several others began farming. One of these was I.H. Terwilliger who had previously been growing tobacco. He was perhaps the one who did the most to perfect the irrigation system. Others who began farming were A. Robbins, A. McDonald, A.B. Cameron, H.H. Chappell, C.F. Williams, and R.J. King. Mr. Whitner states that all except one of these started without any money.

Celery Avenue from Sanford to the St. Johns was developed by poor men, most of whom had lost everything in the 1895 freeze. In 1910, as a result of their hard work, this was the most famous section of the fabulous Celery Delta.

GRACE M. STINE-CIPHER

The traffic on Celery Avenue was so great that it became necessary to parallel it with both a railroad and a street car line.

Mr. Whitner believed that these lands were the best trucking lands in Florida and were valued accordingly. For trucking purposes, they were used only in the winter; during the other seasons, the same land was used for farm crops. Thus, each acre was worth the price of both farm and truck lands. Add in a climate where men could live out of doors every day and have the conveniences of city life in the country and you had an ideal life in the Sanford Celery Delta.

Beck Hammock

According to its advertisement, Beck Hammock was touted to be in the very center of the Sanford Celery Delta. It was located at that point in the peninsula between the two lakes which gave it good climate protection and made it almost frostproof. This section was about four miles from Sanford on the south side of Geneva Avenue, less than one-half mile east of the new S & E Railroad depot.

Beck Hammock had the reputation for years of being the richest 250-acre tract of land in this part of the state, having been covered for years with a heavy native growth of dense forest. It had the advantage of nature's own best methods of fertilization. This soil, already rich in humus, was promised to save the owner huge sums in the purchase of fertilizer.

The entire tract had been subdivided into five and 10-acre farms, half of which had been sold. About 25 lots, some under cultivation, some partly cleared, and some still in the rough were

Honored for service

The Lake Mary City Commission presented Terry Salsbury with a 10-year service award Thursday. Salsbury was honored for 10 years of dedicated service, in the tradition initiated by the late City Commissioner "Doc" Jore. Salsbury was one of the original members of the department to be appointed to a fulltime position when the city adopted the policy of career firefighters. He was one of the department's first shift commanders and was promoted to lieutenant in January, 1992. On hand for the presentation were Salsbury's daughters Melissa and Kimberly, and wife, Sheila.

Two true sisters retire from religious service

By The Associated Press

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — They are sisters who traveled the same path.

Siblings by birth, the two entered religious life together. And now, after a combined century of service, the two Roman Catholic nuns are retiring from daily duties.

And they are retiring at the same diocese.

"Finally, we'll have more time to pray," says Sister Martinus. "And travel," adds Sister Georganne.

For the last seven years, the sisters — Theresa and Mary Kullowitsch — worked for the Diocese of St. Petersburg, which oversees 335,000 Catholics in a five county area on Central Florida's Gulf Coast.

One of their last projects was to help with the Jan. 26 ordination and installation of Bishop Robert N. Lynch.

It was wartime, Aug. 28, 1942, when the two sisters from Chicago answered a calling and entered the convent run by the Sisters of St. Francis in Milwaukee.

It was Sister Martinus' idea. She wanted to teach, and combining that with religious life "seemed like the epitome of happiness."

She sensed her 16-year-old sibling also wanted to serve God and asked her to come along.

They left their oldest sister, Anne, behind. At the time, they didn't realize how hard it would be for their parents to lose two daughters at once. Five other siblings already had died at birth or as infants.

With two years of business school to her credit, Sister

Georganne was received into the religious community in 1944. Her younger sister followed the next year.

They worked apart for 20 years but stayed close.

Sister Georganne became a business administrator, working at a Catholic-run sanitarium and hospital in Wisconsin and then at a Chicago high school.

Sister Martinus became a teacher, eventually heading the English department at St. Benedict's in Chicago.

When Rome relaxed some rules governing religious orders, the nuns were allowed to trade their long, hot habits for street clothes and move out of the convent for a good reason.

The sisters moved in with their father to help him. Their mother had died in 1966.

George Kullowitsch, thrilled

his daughters were home, took them to visit his native Austria and meet relatives.

Sister Martinus, 68, says he was proud they became nuns, but it wasn't something he had expected.

The third sister, who didn't become a nun, lives in Illinois. She has eight children, 17 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren, says Sister Georganne, 69. "She's doing the job for all three of us," she says.

The sisters moved here in 1988 for health reasons: Both had cancer, and both overcame it. They say that is just one chapter of a life filled with faith and good blessings.

"It's like what Robert Frost wrote. We chose the path less traveled," says Sister Martinus. "We're lucky we get along so well, because we've been able to travel it together."

POLICE BRIEFS

Stabbing

Richard Paul Koehrsen, 36, of Council Bluff, Iowa, was arrested by Sanford police Wednesday. Officers said Koehrsen reportedly stabbed a man in the neck while the two were out walking in the 2400 block of Sanford Avenue. The report stated the victim told police the stabbing resulted when Koehrsen attempted to take food stamps from him.

The injured man was taken to Orlando Regional Medical Center for treatment of his stab wounds. Police said ORMC has reported the man may be suffering from spinal damage. Koehrsen was located by police in the 2800 block of Sanford Avenue and arrested on charges of aggravated battery and attempted robbery.

Forgery

Sanford police arrested Thomas Maner, 41, of 1811 W. 16th Street Thursday following a traffic stop at 13th Street and Oleander Avenue. Officers said he was found to be wanted for failing to appear on charges of having a suspended license, and wanted on a warrant for robbery.

During a search, officers said they discovered six $5 bills, with four of them having identical serial numbers. Maner was subsequently charged with forgery. Police said secret service officers have been notified regarding the suspected forgery.

Traffic stops

John N. Wallis, 31, of Daytona Beach, was stopped by Lake Mary police on Interstate-4 Wednesday. He was charged with driving under the influence.

Timothy Otis Presley, 38, 3711 Wimbledon Drive, Lake Mary, was stopped near Lake Mary Boulevard by Lake Mary police Wednesday. He was charged with driving under the influence.

Lewd arrest

David E. Scott, 32, 114 Heron Bay Circle, Lake Mary, was added to the list of persons arrested Wednesday in a park near the Seminole County Environmental Center. He was charged with assualt to commit a lewd act. Three others were arrested by deputies on similar charges at the Environmental Center and Oprey Trail on that same date.

Sheriff report

A clarinet, said to be valued at $800, was reported stolen to the sheriff's department Wednesday. The theft reportedly occurred at Lake Mary High School, on Longwood/Lake Mary Road.

Sanford police reports

Police were informed that a person attempted to cash a check for $644 at a local bank Thursday. The check was proven to have been one of 100 checks reported stolen from a business in Orlando.

An estimated $1,416.23 in receipts were reported missing Thursday from a business in the 2900 block of S. Orlando Drive.

An estimated $271 in receipts were reported missing Thursday from a drop box at the Seminole Towne Center food court.

Tools reportedly valued at $670 were reported stolen Thursday from a shed at Hillhaven Health Care Center, 950 Mellonville Avenue.

An AM/FM stereo and speakers were reportedly stolen Thursday during a vehicle burglary in the 4200 block of Orlando Drive.

A radar detector, CDs and other items were reported stolen Thursday as the result of a vehicular burglary in the 3500 block of Orlando Drive.

Drug-busting police still nabbing suspects

From staff reports

SANFORD - Although consisting of only four officers, the Sanford police department QUAD-Squad has been extremely busy. One of its main goals is to combat street-level drug sales.

Depending on the need, officers may patrol on foot, on bicycles, or in vehicles. They are specially repondent to phone calls regarding suspected drug activities and other possible criminal activities.

Such was the case in most instances this past Wednesday and Thursday, when several calls resulted in a number of arrests.

The following were reported:
 ● Beverly Ann Lewis, 36, 401 Palmetto Avenue, was arrested as the result of a traffic stop Thursday at Fourth Street and Palmetto Avenue. Police said she attempted to run from the vehicle. She was charged with resisting an officer without violence, and possession of drug paraphernalia.

● Willie Williams Sr., 44, Ridgewood Avenue, was stopped by QUAD officers in the 1100 block of Hickory Avenue. He was charged with resisting an officer without violence.

● Doris J. Hamlin, 35, and Harold L. Smith, 33, both of 1905 Maple Avenue, Sanford, were arrested at their residence Wednesday by QUAD officers. Police said they discovered quantities of drugs in the house. Smith was charged with possession of approximately 110 grams of marijuana with intent to distribute. Hamlin was charged with possession of over 20 grams of cannabis with intent to distribute.

● Michael Cleve Johnson, 25, 1819 Summerlin Avenue, was arrested Wednesday during drug surveillance at Geneva Gardens. Johnson was arrested on a charge of having an open container.

● Bertha Ann Hall, 30, 1303 E. Fourth Street, was arrested in the 500 block of Sanford Avenue. She was charged with possession of crack cocaine.

According to recent reports, the QUAD-Squad was responsible for over 200 arrests in Sanford between the organization of the squad in September of last year and the end of December. Police Chief Ralph Russell said most of the arrests were as the result of 352 phone calls made to the police station or to the QUAD-Squad officers.

Crimeline offer rewards for tips

From staff reports

Central Florida Crimeline, operating out of Orlando, keeps track of all crime situations, especially where victims or suspected criminals are being sought. In most cases, Crimeline offers rewards for information leading to the arrest of certain individuals.

According to the latest report, the following cases have been cited.

● A 68-year-old bank security guard was fatally wounded during a robbery in Orlando in January, 1991. The killers got away empty handed. Two Hispanic men, between ages 18 and 25 are being sought. The shooter was between five-foot six-inches and five-foot eight tall and slim. The reward, originally $1,000 was recently raised to $5,000, as well as additional rewards offered by SunBank, now SunTrust, and Pinkerton.

● Seminole County homicide investigators are still trying to solve the 1992 killing of Perry Cornelia, the owner of House of Babes on U.S. Highway 17-92.

He was gunned down in his driveway at 2580 Sweetwater Trail in Maitland on Sept. 27, 1992. Anyone with information pertaining to who may have killed Perry Cornelia is urged to phone Crimeline. The reward has been set at $1,000.

● Betty Clair Foster, 50, had just started her job at the My Comp Computer Services on SR-438 in Fern Park, in December, 1990. A little over a month later, the woman was found, January 31, stabbed to death. Police believe robbery was not the motive and a violent struggle occurred before the death. She was divorced for 15 years, and is survived by her son, now 22 years old.

At one time, a suspect had been taken in for interrogation, but Crimeline officials say he was not immediately connected with the case, and police have requested Crimeline reinstate the wanted information in its reports.

Police are seeking information regarding a possible car seen near the My Comp Computer Store on the afternoon of January 31, 1991; or any other information. The reward is $1,000 for information leading to an arrest and conviction.

In each of these situations, persons phoning Crimeline are not required to give their name, only the information.

The fight against crime

As far as we are concerned, the only "benefit" we get out of crime these days is more copy space in the newspaper, and more time on television. Some people say that the human curiosity about crime is what draws TV news viewers and sells newspapers.

But news is presented to the public by people, either through the spoken or written word. And as such, we, the people who do this, would be much happier if crime took such a drastic nosedive, that there would no longer be a need to report on it.

We must wonder however, what can be done about this problem. Hiring more law enforcement officers is usually the result of increased crime, and not done in advance to prevent crime from increasing.

But people often object to this because law enforcement is financed through tax dollars, and people simple do not want any tax increase whatsoever, no matter what the purpose.

Enactment of more and more laws, some which are considered frivolous, turn more and more people into criminals. In order to protect just a few, we often end up punishing many.

Then there is the matter of arresting criminals. Regardless of how many criminals are charged and placed in jail, we have other laws, again to protect just a few, which allow them to get out on bond, often within hours. In this case, we can't place the blame on our law enforcement officers.

Then, in court, if they don't jump bond, they are given what many perceive as sentences which are much to lenient. Of course, unless local warrant arrest list proves the same people are arrested time and time again for violation of probation or failing to appear in court.

Again, we cannot blame our judicial system because they are generally governed by what our laws say they can give out as punishment. A judge may want to give a more severe sentence to a repeat criminal, but our laws say this is a no-no. Even if the judge tries to be strict, our laws allow appeals, and very often, severe sentences, even death penalties, are overturned. We might add, that much of this is done at, again, the expense of the taxpayers.

As we see the problem, changing the people who handle law enforcement or those who sit on judicial benches, is not the answer.

First of all, we must change the attitude of the general public. Not just a few, but an overwhelming majority of people. Everyone must get concerned and get active.

Secondly, we need to bring about a change in the laws that tie the hands of our police officers and judicial officials.

Nowadays, there appears to be such little punishment, people with criminal tendencies do not fear arrest or trials. With this in mind, we suggest let punishment fit the crime, and let the career criminals be put in jail, and kept there.

Only our state and federal legislators can change the laws. While they may not be directly responsible for Florida's high crime rate, we see them, (and the people who elected them), as having to accept the largest amount of blame.

Politics

Bill Clinton is often accused by Republicans of trying to be all things to all people. So to distinguish himself from President Clinton, Bob Dole showed that he wasn't going to be anything to anybody. That Bob Dole - he sure is smart.

Taxes are investment in our future

You get what you pay for. That axiom holds as true with government as with any other service or product. Taxes paid represent the financial investment we as citizens make in our government. As with any investment, the more we expect in return, the more we should expect to pay.

Since the election of Ronald Reagan in 1980, and even before with Proposition 13 in California, limiting the ability of that state to impose property taxes, there has been significant agitation to modify, limit and change the way the tax system is applied in this country.

The election of President Reagan serves as a useful benchmark because it illustrates two fundamental principals: 1) you can't loot the treasury without replenishing the money taken and, 2) you cannot have your cake and eat it too.

Despite all of the talk of fiscal conservatism, Ronald Reagan and his successor George Bush were fiscally irresponsible. They presided over a geometric increase in our national debt. This occurred because they gave (opened the treasury) government services and monies to a lot of people and corporations who had not previously indulged as liberally at the public trough. This money was given in support of projects both profound and dubious, and some of it was just outright stolen: i.e., the savings and loan debacle.

This governmental largesse was not accompanied by an increase in monies received from the new found governmental benefactors. There was no quid pro quo. It was all take and no give and therefore not a balanced situation. Further, balance cannot be achieved by indulging in these payoffs and rewarding these constituents without an equivalent taking from somebody else. To lose weight you have to both diet and exercise. As a nation we have proven unwilling to do either.

Seminole Opinion

One cannot blame Ronald Reagan or George Bush for this fiasco. They gave their constituents what they wanted: as politicians that is what they were supposed to do, and if Bush had been as good at it as Reagan, he would have been president to this day. The problem is not with the leadership but with the constituents. You cannot both want to have a strong and vibrant nation, national defense, space program, veterans' hospital, etc. and not be willing to pay for it. For the last 20 years we have been unwilling to make such a commitment. Being a citizen of this country is not the equivalent of winning a lottery. Being a citizen means accepting both the rights and the obligations, the benefits and the taxes; we should not expect a free ride.

Under the present circumstances, no matter how great Ronald Reagan, George Bush, Bill Clinton or any other politician may have the capacity to be or may have been, or desire to be, they are hamstrung by an electorate that wants favors and not statesmen. We cannot expect our government and elected officials to be any better than we as constituents are. To send statesmen to Washington we have to begin by being statesmen at home.

Voodoo economics aside, the economic advisors to Reagan and Bush were correct in the perception that through investment the economy can be positioned so that growth can occur and jobs created. Where they misjudged was with the belief that all private investment was good and all public investment was bad.

Taxes are an investment in our future. Several fundamental changes are proposed this year in our taxing structure. These proposed changes are not superficial. Before we embrace these proposals we need to look at the big picture, and not just how we may benefit at the expense of our fellow citizens. Our children's future is not as much jeopardized by the size of the budget deficit as it is in our unwillingness to work together as citizens for the common good.

Listening for the right message

PALO ALTO, Calif. - I don't believe that Republicans are from Mars and Democrats are from Venus. But when I focus my telescope on the presidential campaign, there's enough of a gender gap to make anyone wonder whether men and women inhabit the same political planet.

The respective stars in the party firmaments seem to be beaming their message at one sex or the other. The Democrats are wishing for a rerun of The Year of The Woman, while the Republicans want a sequel to The Year of the Angry White Man.

The first suggestions that we could be facing a gender gap of, well, cosmic proportions in 1996 started appearing last fall when the Times Mirror Center for the People and the Press reported "extraordinary" differences between how men and women evaluated the issues. The men were more attentive to GOP budget cutting plans. The women were more concerned about Medicare and education. As the center's Andrew Kohut said, "It was almost as if men and women were choosing sides between financial issues versus caring issues."

At the widest point in the gap last month, The Wall Street Journal/NBC polls found support for Clinton and Dole equally divided among men. But women favored Clinton 54 percent to 36 percent. Again the men were thinking about cutting government spending, while the women were thinking about social problems.

Now, as if following some extraterrestrial plan, we have the president talking about teen-age pregnancy this week while the furor over Republican candidates in New Hampshire is about taxes - flat and otherwise.

Maybe the most vivid moment for gap-watchers was the night of the State of the Union address. A careful Clinton tempered his message that "The era of big government is over" with the caveat "but we cannot go back to the time when our citizens were left to fend for themselves." A dour Dole countered with a 10-minute Republican rejoinder using the word "self-reliance" four times. Self-reliance was his all-purpose antidote to the evils of dependence, especially on government.

I have been suspicious of men who extol pure self-reliance ever since I discovered that Henry David Thoreau brought his dirty laundry home from Walden Pond to mom. Now I wonder if it's a girl thing. Or perhaps a Venus thing.

"Self-reliance" resonates just a bit differently in the female ear. It often sounds like "fending for yourself." Self-reliance is what you get when your husband walks out the door. It's what you might trade a little of for a good day-care center.

Americans of both genders who walk this planet together share the age-old tension between the values of individualism and community. We pride ourselves on independence and connection. We believe in bootstraps and helping hands. We believe in personal responsibility and mutual responsibility.

But men who are (still) raised to cut the apron strings may balance these values a bit differently from women who are (still) raised to be caretakers. Women are more likely to see government as necessary than as evil, especially for helping the poor, the young, the old.

This may be particularly true for the people that the political astronomers identify as this year's "swing voters" - a group the Times Mirror Center called the New Economy Independents. Mostly white and female, underemployed and middle-aged, these are high school graduates frustrated with both parties.

These swing voters - much too zippy a phrase for this struggling population - were down on Clinton in 1994 and down on Gingrich in 1995. And they are still up for grabs in 1996.

In the end, this campaign may rise and fall on an issue or sound bite yet to be heard. But there is chance that it will be about big questions. How much must we rely on ourselves and how much on each other? What is the role of government in breeding dependency or providing support?

In the universe of politics, women won't gravitate to some distant planet but into the orbit of the candidate who speaks their language. They are listening for a message that's down to earth.

Media blasts Dole, as usual

So Bob Dole gave the Republican response to Bill Clinton's State of the Union speech and they say he fell on his face.

So he was brooding, dour, negative, stale. So he looked like a cadaver and sounded like a scorpian. So now he is seen as a struggling old pol making one last lunge for the brass ring.

So here we go again.

The pattern is utterly predictable. A candidate rises to the top and becomes an inviting target. For a while, only his opponents shoot at him, but a bad-hair day triggers a missile barrage from the press. The candidate throws up his hands. It's not his fault, he says, it's the damn "liberal media."

He's half right. It's not all his fault. A lot of it is the media, and the "liberal" business is irrelevant.

The conservative Center for Media and Public Affairs specializes in counting and weighing the things said on network news shows about political figures. In 1992, the co-director of the organization, Robert Lichter, wrote in the Washington Post that he had found a thread running through his research. "It is not liberal bias," he said, but a broad trend toward "compensatory" reporting. We suggest a general rule: The stronger a candidate, the greater the media scrutiny."

Take a look at recent history. The 1960 election was Richard Nixon's to lose. He was a sitting vice president, running against a rich, Catholic senator. But then the nervous, taut Nixon debated the urbane, cocksure John Kennedy and got stomped. The media piled on, and Nixon disappeared into a political swamp for eight years.

In 1972, Senator Edmund Muskie of Maine was thought to have the Democratic nomination wrapped up. But in February, the bone-weary candidate stood in the swirling snows of New Hampshire and cried as he angrily denounced a newspaper publisher for disparaging his wife. The media began asking questions about his emotional stability. His campaign crashed.

In 1979, Sen. Ted Kennedy of Massachusetts was all set to be nominated by acclamation when he sat down for a couple of interviews with CBS newsmen Roger Mudd. The reporter asked Kennedy why he wanted to be president. Kennedy slipped, slid, glided, waffled, wiggled. The media began to portray Kennedy as insincere, and his campaign fizzled.

Does a similar fate await Bob Dole? We'll have the answer around April 1, by which time the big primaries will be history. But the more interesting question, it seems to me, is why we're asking the question in the first place.

What we saw when the Senate Majority Leader spoke the other night was Dole being Dole. He was the same warrior who has been scowling at us for 35 years. He was more intense, perhaps, but that was because he was directing his words at the right-wingers who will be doing most of the voting in the Republican primaries. Beneath that crust, there beats the heart of a decent man with decent values - a stay-at-home, actually, when he isn't campaigning. If you feel the need to typecast, call him a compassionate Republican - which means he has the soul of a humanitarian but must be careful not to show it.

Is Dole getting too old? The lighting for his speech may have made him look like an ancient, but logic swiftly dispels that notion. A failing man could not possibly keep up Bob Dole's grueling schedule. Before most of us turned over the morning after his speech, Dole was on his way to Iowa.

The pattern is utterly predictable. A candidate rises to the top and becomes an inviting target.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

It was so cold in Peoria

It was so cold in Peoria they brought the igloo inside. Temperatures that had stood for a century tumbled as a deadly Arctic cold front refused to budge — forcing mercury readings well below zero for days at a stretch.

"It's so cold, my eyelashes were freezing to my cap," said bicycle messenger Dean Davidson in Chicago, which this morning set a record low for the date of minus 18.

A banana froze hard enough to pound nails in Minnesota, criminals stayed inside in Kansas City, and students at Richwoods High School in Peoria, Ill., moved their igloo-building science project into the cafeteria to avoid frostbite.

Making the case for the presidency

MANCHESTER, N.H. — Four years ago, Bill Clinton stood in the tiny Salem High School gym, looked out over the nearly empty bleachers and made his case for the presidency to an audience that numbered in the tens.

"We spoke to about 120 people," Clinton recalled with a chuckle Friday night. "I thought I had a crowd."

Four years later, he stood in the same overheated gym as president of the United States and made his case for a second term to 2,000 rowdy, pompon-waving Democrats whose shouts of "Four more years!" rang down from the rafters with campaign-issued balloons.

"This country needs the right president," he declared. "I'm glad you think I am the right president."

Humane Society of Seminole County, a place where abandoned and abused dogs and cats come to live until they are adopted by loving families. I don't remember why or how I got there, I just know that for my age I was smaller and lighter than my companions. That could have been because I was very sick.

Soon after I came to live with Gary and Kathy, I became very ill. They took me to a veterinarian who gave me a thorough examination. I had an upper respiratory infection and he found two lumps in my stomach. I was given some medicine and a nice place to sleep overnight at the animal hospital. The next morning, the doctor found the two dead fetuses of kittens I had delivered during the night. After that, I recovered rapidly. Of course, I was much too young to have kittens. Now, I am "fixed" so I can not have anymore. That is unlikely anyway because of the nice place I now live.

Animals of my species are rare visitors to my bookstore. I actually prefer it that way. Don't think that I am lonely living in a bookstore. Gary, Kathy and Mary come here everyday, and with them come many visitors who buy books or just stop by to see me. My favorite visitors are the children, who love to stroke my thick coat. When I am really happy, you can tell because I raise my paw and flex my claws in a kneading motion. For the most part the children are gentle with me, but if they get too rambunctious, I have plenty of nooks and crannies in which to hide. One of my favorites is between two wooden bookracks. The racks come together to make a long, dark cave, too narrow for most children. The entrance is guarded by another wire rack of paperback books. No one can get to me until I'm ready to come out.

Sometimes I like to try to fool the people who come into the store. There are many stuffed animals in the store, characters from the books that the children read. At night they are my companions in nocturnal adventure, but during the day, I become more like them, still and quiet. If I curl up for a nap between a couple of bears, you have to look very close to see who is real and who is stuffed!

You might think it unusual to find a cat in a bookstore but I am told that it is quite common in places where the owners want their patrons to feel comfortable and at-home. It has given me quite an advantage over other cats. At night, when everyone has gone home, I am free to explore any and all of the books and other materials stocked in the store. I try to be very careful and not leave any paw prints on the covers of the books that I read.

I do get to go outside from time to time. When Gary opens the store in the morning, I walk with him out back as he discards the trash from the day before. It is nice to get out and enjoy the air, but I am quite happy to go back inside where more adventures than you can imagine await me.

I suppose it is quite nice to have all of this fuss made over me, but it is the inborn trait of a feline to remain unaffected by the attention paid to me. The cake, ice cream and balloons are OK for humans. Just give me a nice saucer of milk and take this silly party hat off of my head!

David L. Thrasher

One of Sanford's sterling and popular public men in 1910 was Mr. David L. Thrasher, proprietor of the D.L. Thrasher Clothing House. He was prominent in social circles, active in church work; he was public spirited and his character and reputation were most enviable. A charming wife and daughter (May) constituted the members of his household.

David Thrasher was a native of Georgia, but had moved with his family to southern Florida when he was 10 years old. At age 20, he entered Stetson University where he took a five-year course. He came to Sanford in 1897 and began a clerkship with E.L. Ferran and Company. He later became a partner in the business, assuming its management. In 1906, he purchased the other interests and began trade on his own account. His store in 1910 was one of the best stocked and most liberally patronized of any in the city or county.

Mr. Thrasher was a member of the Orange County school board, chairman of the Sanford City Council and held other positions of responsibility.

Home building

● SANFORD — Masterpiece Homes, Inc., of Orange City, has begun construction of two new models at Country Club Park, their newest development, on Upsala Road in Sanford, near Seminole Towne Center. The planned community has 201 homesites. The models are expected to be completed in mid-March.

● ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Callon Homes of Altamonte Springs, will be opening two new communities within the next 60 days according to Marketing and Sales Director Leigh Tarullo. One is Crescent Lake at Westmere in West Orlando with 23 homesites. The other, set to open in March is Sand Lake Cove in southwest Orlando with 97 homesites.

Home sales

The Florida Association of Realtors (FAR) has reported state sales of single-family, existing homes, rose eight percent in December 1995, compared to December of 1994.

While sales of homes generally tapered off during the holidays, it was not the case this year. "We continued writing new business throughout the month," explained Thomas McIntosh, president of Gainesville Association of Realtors.

The largest percentage increase in resales occurred in the Orlando Metropolitan Statistical Area (MSA) of which Seminole County is a part. In this area, December 1995 sales reportedly rose by 34 percent over the previous December. In comparison, some areas in the state, went down, including Naples, down 22 percent, Tallahassee down 16 percent and Daytona Beach down 15 percent.

Performance Award

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Roger Kennedy Construction, Inc., has announced the appointment of Charles W. McFarland to the position of Chief Financial Officer/Treasurer. McFarland comes from Florence, Ky., where he held a similar position. Tri-City, headquartered in Altamonte Springs, has offices in Boynton Beach, Tampa, Fort Myers and Tallahassee.

Meeting set

The National Association of Purchasing Management - Central Florida (NAPM-CF) will hold its monthly dinner meeting February 7, at Lees Lakeside in Orlando. The event begins at 5:30 with dinner at 6:30. The program will be on contract law. Cost is $20.

For additional information, phone Maria Bivens at 824-6014.

Appointment made

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Tri-City Electrical Contractors, Inc., has announced the appointment of Charles W. McFarland to the position of Chief Financial Officer/Treasurer. McFarland comes from Florence, Ky., where he held a similar position. Tri-City, headquartered in Altamonte Springs, has offices in Boynton Beach, Tampa, Fort Myers and Tallahassee.

It's a woman's world in business

By NOEL PFEIFFER
Herald Staff Writer

It should become evident to any business customer, that the number of women managing and owning businesses has been increasing by leaps and bounds during the past years.

As a case in point, much of the management and a large portion of ownership of stores at the Seminole Towne Center is being handled by women. Sarah Goodrich is the overall mall manager, and Martha Mannarino serves as marketing director.

In the downtown Sanford area, many of the antique shops are female owned and operated, as are many of the general retail businesses.

Now, word from the U.S.

Census Bureau in Washington confirms this. A recent study has revealed that the number of women-owned businesses in the United States reached 6.4 million in 1992, representing one-third of all domestic firms, and 40 percent of all retail and service firms.

The study says businesses owned by women generated $1.8 trillion in business revenues and employed 13.2 million people.

Even more recent statistics, although not fully compiled for issuance at the present time, show that the numbers have increased, not just somewhat, but rather drastically.

The Census Bureau said these figures for 1992 were only a sample survey, and subject to variability as well as reporting and coverage errors. It believes, however, that their sample can be judged to be approximately 90 percent accurate.

Meanwhile, during the past six months, the bureau has announced that it is continuing to contact individuals, families and businesses in the Central Florida area. In preparation for issuance of additional information in the near future. There are indications that more figures can be released regarding women-owned and/or managed businesses.

On Monday of this past week, the National Women's Business Council, (NWBC) presented President Bill Clinton with their own report on the contributions of women-owned businesses.

The report was partially based on census figures stressing the $1.8 trillion in contributions to the nation's economy. Included in the report was a breakdown of women-owned firms by state.

Florida statistics revealed 352,048 women-owned firms, which registered at 35.2 percent of all firms in the state, and two percent above the national average.

Sales receipts show a total of $39.485 billion in Florida, 22.9 percent of the total amount from all businesses.

Nationally, only 14 states show a larger percentage of women-owned businesses, with Michigan being on an equal percentage with Florida.

Even so, Michigan showed less than half in the number of individual firms owned by females in comparison to the total numbers.

Gates add security and privacy to local housing communities

From staff reports

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Gated communities are considered as one of the important elements in home buying considerations these days. The observation is from David Byrnes, president of M/I Homes division in Altamonte Springs.

M/I is presently building in four gated communities; Brantley Estates in Altamonte Springs, University Acres in East Orlando, Devlin Green at Hunter's Creek, and Ekana Green in Riverside.

"One of the things we have learned from focus group participants," Byrnes said, "is that if the buyer can afford it, the added privacy and security of a gated entryway is an important element."

Byrnes said M/I Homes will be adding a fifth gated community as soon as Brantley Estates closes out. The area presently has only 20 homesites remaining. Later in the fall, M/I plans to start construction of the fifth gated community in west Orlando, on Apopka Vineland Road.

M/I Homes has had an excellent year in 1995 with 250 sales posted. But Byrnes said 1996 may be even better, with the expectation of 350 home sales during this new 12 month cycle.

M/I Homes, headquartered in Altamonte Springs, is considered one of the area's largest home builders, specializing in customized designs.

Business women to meet

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The American Business Women's Association, Seminole Sunrise Chapter, will hold its annual business associate night Tuesday, Feb. 13, beginning at 6 p.m., at Holiday Inn, Wymore Road, Altamonte Springs.

Guest speaker will be Triha Boas, spiritual advisor, who will discuss "Building a Bridge Towards Love."

Cost for the event is $20, with reservations required.

New lease signed

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Faison Orlando leasing specialist Phillip Carter concluded a new five-year lease for 4,000 square feet of retail space at Palm Springs Shopping Center in Altamonte Springs.

Catherine's Inc., of Memphis, retailers of women's ready-to-wear will open in March at the center on SR-436, across from the Altamonte Mall.

IN BRIEF

The heart of rock 'n' roll

ORLANDO — The party has arrived just in time to celebrate with one's Valentine sweetheart. Come dressed in the duds from one's favorite era and put on those dancing shoes. The Heart of Rock 'n' Roll event is one of the largest fund-raisers for the American Heart Association in Metro Orlando, allowing the medical and corporate community to come together to serve the communities they encompass. The event, sponsored by Orlando Regional Healthcare System, combines dinner, dancing and auctions to create an unforgettable evening.

The Heart of Rock 'n' Roll Affair of the Heart is Saturday, Feb. 17. The festivities will begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Peabody Orlando Hotel. For tickets and further information, call 843-1330.

Paging Dr. Bozo, paging Dr. Bozo

By LARRY McSHANE
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — A new study is focusing on an unexplored avenue of health care: the curative power of greasepaint.

The yearlong investigation of clowns visiting children in hospitals aims to find out if laughter really is the best medicine.

The study, to begin within weeks, is believed to be the first to assess "the medical impact of clowns," according to a news release announcing the research.

No joke. "We have plenty of anecdotal evidence that our work has positive effects, but now the scientists will objectively measure it," Michael Christensen, founder of the Big Apple Circus Clown Care Unit, said Wednesday.

The $150,000 study, financed by the Richard and Hilda Rosenthal Center for Alternative-Complementary Medicine, will monitor the clowns' regular visits to six metropolitan hospitals.

Seriously. The 35-member group heads out in its painted faces and size 18-EEE shoes three times a week, 50 weeks a year. The troupe — founded in 1988 — tries to make light of the kids' medical problems, conducting "clown rounds" of all patients and providing red nose transplants and chocolate milk transfusions.

The group works with many seriously ill patients, stopping by intensive care units and AIDS clinics. Clown doctors are selected after intensive auditions and undergo six months of training — not quite medical school, but the closest a clown can get.

For Christensen, the uplifting work has special resonance: His brother died of pancreatic cancer, inspiring him to create the Clown Care Unit. His character, Dr. Stubbs, is a staple of the group.

An actual doctor — Dr. John M. Driscoll Jr. of Babies & Children's Hospital at Columbia-Presbyterian Medical Center — expects the study to turn up evidence that the clowns do help cure kids.

"When a child begins to laugh, it means he's probably beginning to feel better," Driscoll said. "I see the clowns as healers."

Are there any concerns that people might take this lightly or wonder if the money might be better spent elsewhere?

"Sure," said Big Apple spokesman Brian Worthy. "People think, 'It's clowns.' But we like to think we provide real medical value. People can get so focused on the high technology and drugs, they miss out on the human touch."

Volunteers do lots of giving, little getting

DEAR ABBY: A heartfelt thanks for mentioning the Peace Corps volunteers in your New Year's Day blessings. This is something I have never heard before, and I was in the first Peace Corps group in Honduras in 1962.

Those of my peers who are trained to go to other nations and subjugate or kill the inhabitants there are offered many inducements or rewards, such as government assistance in schooling, home loans, health insurance and care, Veterans Administration hospitals and point preference on tests for government jobs.

I have no problem with this. However, to my knowledge, none of these rewards are offered to returning Peace Corps volunteers, those of us who were trained to understand and love the people of other lands and to offer them our friendship.

In a Christian country that supposedly espouses love for all mankind, what kind of statement does this make about our true attitude toward others?

KENT D. MYRICK, PHOENIX

DEAR KENT MYRICK: It's shameful. A brief history of the Peace Corps:

In January 1960, Sen. Richard L. Neuberger of Oregon and Congressman Henry S. Reuss of Wisconsin asked Congress to study the possibilities of a youth corps program. Later that year, Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota proposed that Congress create a Peace Corps.

Sen. John F. Kennedy of Massachusetts used the propos-

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

I have had it for as long as I can remember. I'm a schoolteacher, and my friends make fun of me, saying things like, "I can't believe you went to college." They don't realize that lacking a sense of direction has nothing to do with intelligence or education.

It is frightening to have no idea which direction is correct. I have gone to the same mall for 20 years and still can't pinpoint where a particular department store is. I can drive the same route many times and never know whether to turn left or right.

My solution is to always have my cellular phone with me. It has come in handy many times. I have one very understanding friend I call. She stays on the line and gives me directions until I arrive at my destination.

Please, Abby, urge your readers to have a little compassion for those of us with no sense of direction.

NO LAUGHING MATTER,
FORT LAUDERDALE

DEAR NO LAUGHING MATTER: Your suggestion to carry a cellular phone so you can get directions is a good one. If your Good Samaritan's line is busy, you could also call the business you're trying to find. Some enterprising salesperson may be willing to guide you to your destination. Also, a compass for your dashboard may be helpful.

although this category would not be eligible for competition on the state level.

Danielle Smalley, from Greenwood Lakes Middle School, received a second place award for her project, "Which Meat Has the Most Fat Grams?" She found her hypothesis to be true, that ground beef contained the most fat. Smalley boiled one ounce of beef for 10 minutes, skimmed the fat from the top of the water and weighed it to get her results. Also awarded a second place in the same category, biochemistry, was Nathan Ehlers, of Lakeview Middle School, for "Living Dyes."

Under the botany category, Jay Johnson, from Lakeview Middle School, won an honorable mention for his project, "Plants and Music." Johnson learned that lima bean plants prefer country music to classical. Johnson subjected the seedlings to one hour of music a day and the plants that "listened" to country music grew better.

Christy Moore, of Lakeview, had a "DYE-NA-MITE" time learning about the effect of natural dyes. She used cranberries and beets to dye fabric and found that the fabric turned light brown instead of the anticipated reddish color. Moore said this was because of the presence of a mordant, a chemical that fixes a dye. "I learned a lot that I didn't know about dye," Moore said.

Lakeview science teacher John MacClary said he learned a lot about his students. This was the first time MacClary had participated in a science fair, having recently come to Lakeview from a background in adult education. MacClary said all of the students "should be given credit for their individual efforts." For the most part, participation in the science fair was voluntary and the work was completed at home. He said it is amazing what the students were capable of doing when working on their own. "Sometimes you don't see that in the classroom," Seminole High School made a clean sweep in the mathematics, senior division. Chris Dvornick placed first, Amber Parker placed second and Lauren Seydlo placed third in the category. The physical sciences team senior division second place award went to Stephanie Jackson and Jeremy Kaplan, also of Seminole.

From Lakeview Middle School, Christopher Beauchim placed second in botany. Erin Brender placed second and William Trautman received an honorable mention in medicine and health. Steven Michael Simpson placed second and Richard Rabner received an honorable mention in physics and Rebecca VanDerworp placed second in zoology.

Also participating from Lakeview Middle School were: Christina Gatlin and Jana Jeffcoat, in biochemistry; Janine Fisher and Evie Cepuran, in botany; Kristin Lightfoot, Eric Olson, Shannon Maquire, Sarah Ganas, Jaime Brodie and Eric Horbal, in Chemistry; Shawnli Gatlin, in earth and space science; Joel Schuh and Isalah Schuh, in environmental science; Jessica Lee Rahuba and James Soydara, in medicine and health; Leslie Charles, in microbiology; Paul Alan Hughes, Benjamin Baker, Kim Nelson and Joshua Rabum, in physics and Christopher Haskell, in zoology.

Receiving awards, from Greenwood Lakes Middle School, were: Maren Cyman, third place in chemistry; Matthew Todd Hindia and Kevin Crews, both placing second in earth and space science; Matthew Howarth, third place in physics and Emma Liggett and Jared Withrow, who took second and third, respectively in zoology.

Also participating from Greenwood Lakes Middle School were: Sarah Huff, in chemistry and Anna Biggerstaff, in microbiology.

The top 20 student projects will be submitted for state consideration. State competition will be held at the University of Central Florida on April 10-13.

other agencies.

He has offered a cash reward for information that might lead him to the owner of the concord gray 1995 Nissan 240 SX.

Wendel has followed Beauchesne through the courts and was pleased that Judge Fredric Hitt "imposed the maximum sentence allowed by the law," after Beauchesne pled no contest. Beauchesne is now serving a 60-day jail sentence.

Beauchesne was free on bond after sentencing and prior to entering the county jail last week to serve his sentence.

"I have run into him five times just by chance...it's fate or something...since the sentencing," Wendel said.

Wendel alleges that several organized, area people actively burglarize businesses. The "Sanford Festival of Thieves" is Wendel's term for the group of alleged criminals, all of whom he says are based in Sanford.

Wendel has enlisted the assistance of neighbors of suspected burglars to keep tabs on the comings and goings at their residences. He has collected photos of aluminum and glass products that are piled into the backyards of some of the houses. He has tracked down the owners of cars that park in front of the homes.

"There's a whole network

here," he said. "They are all connected in some way."

Wendel said he will do whatever it takes to make sure the alleged burglars are put out of business.

"They have cost me and other people too much," he said. "This is their business and I want to put them out of business."

a regular basis," said Cmdr. Dennis Whitmire of the Sanford Police Department. "We arrest them and they're back out there doing the crime again."

The state legislature has strengthened the penalties for violent career criminals, especially those convicted repeatedly for the crimes of arson; sexual battery; robbery; kidnapping; aggravated child abuse; aggravated assault; murder; manslaughter; unlawful throwing, placing, or discharging of a destructive device or bomb; armed burglary; aggravated battery; or aggravated stalking.

Such criminals are not eligible for gain time in prison and each successive conviction brings a longer sentence.

"These people are a threat to the safety of society," said Sgt. Brent Davidson, head of the special investigations unit at the Seminole County sheriff's office.

While most people are more likely to be victimized in a home or business burglary, law enforcement and the criminal justice system are more interested in getting the violent offenders off the street.

"We have to make society safer from violent criminals before we can be as concerned with imposing the tougher sentences on the others," Davidson said.

Davidson and his staff have compiled a list of 500 adult and 163 juvenile career violent felony offenders.

"I expect the size of that list may triple by the time we're done," he said.

Whitmire did not have a specific count for the number of career criminals in Sanford, but did say the Sanford Police used the Florida statutes as the basis for their definition of a career criminal, just as the sheriff's office did.

Davidson said the public sometimes does not always understand that just because someone seems to make their living by illegal means, they are not, under state law, considered career criminals since they are not considered violent offenders.

"It's hard for a lot of people to understand," he noted. "But we can not let this get too broad at this time. We have to take this a little at a time."

Ealinger said that the fight to get career criminals off the streets is going well, but the legislature has to vote to impose longer sentences to keep violent criminals in jail for a longer time.

Davidson agreed. "We've acted on the problem with what we have at our disposal," he said. "We need to get the legislature to vote for stiffer sentences."

Persons are advised that if they decide to appeal any decisions made at this hearing, they will need a record of the proceedings, and for such purpose, they may need to ensure a verbatim record of the proceedings is made, which record includes the testimony and evidence upon which the appeal is based, Section 286.0105, Florida Statutes.

Talented Sanford Middle students show writing style

Students at Sanford Middle School take a great deal of pride in their writing skills and they have a lot of fun creating with words.

The school has a weekly competition to honor their Writers of the Week.

The most recent winner was Jaira Cuthbert who wrote a poetic salute to Dr. Martin Luther King.

The other writers were also honored by the school for their creative efforts.

Here are the top works written by the Sanford Middle School writers:

The Dream Came True

The dream came true when the blacks were freed for a smart young man who made history.

He died for what he did. He never fought. Both colors are together for what he has brought.

I can't say I don't love you because it's not true. Because there's no one else, I swear, holds a candle anywhere next to you!

I guess we let our last chance pass us by because now I can feel it every night when I sigh.

Whenever you reached for me, I did everything I could. Because when people love each other, they should!

I will always remember the way we loved each other. Because I loved you more than any other!

Every time we were together you made my heart stand still. You showed me how you could really make me feel.

I know my heart will soon mend and I hope we can still be the best of friends.

I know our feelings will never grow apart. Because that's when you know you were someone special to my heart!

Let me tell you about Shaquita Shavonte Lamore. She was a big girl. Weighed almost 100 pounds. Blacker than the blackest thing with her bald-headed self. Let me tell you, homegirl was oogy. Well, let me tell you how it all started.

Shaquita Shavonte Lamore was always messing with people, taking their lunch and money. One day, me, Naomi and Sadorah were in the schoolyard, and just our luck, Shaquita was walking past when we said, "That ole big Shaquita! Lookin' like a burnt overweight Pillsbury doughgirl, always messing with somebody!"

After school everybody was telling us she wanted to fight us. They say she say she was gonna do anything anyways. Besides, a whole week had passed.

Well, it was Friday and we was walking from home, right there at the corner was Shaquita Shavonte blocking the way. "I heard you poppin' all that junk! So what's up now?" she said.

So, we threw down our book bags, got our hands ready, and then ... then we ran. Fast as we could. Yes sir! Yes sirree!

Guess what? That big ole Shaquita started running after us. She fell in a ditch and started screaming, "Help! Help!"

We got some rope and helped her up (what a struggle!). She apologized and we all went home.

That Monday when we went back to school, Shaquita Shavonte Lamore hung out with us. We helped her dress, do her hair, even lose some weight and stop bothering people.

Now we're all best friends - Naomi, Sadorah, Shaquita Shavonte Lamore and I. Yes sir! Yes sirree!

My Day in the Life of a Pillsbury Chocolate Chip Cookie

Well, it's 9 a.m. I've just been put on a shelf in the grocery store. Ouch! Never mind. Someone moved me over. Well, I just have to wait until someone buys me. Hmmm ... Weeillll ... Oh ... Hum-de-dum ... (this is so boring!) Oh, no! Here comes someone! I've gotta look my best.

Man! She passed me by! Oh well.

At 10:30 I'm awakened. Wow! Someone's looking at me! They're gonna pick me up! Yea! I'm as good as bought!

Ouch! They just put milk on top of me! Now cheese! Man, that hurts! Finally we're at the checkout line. It's my turn to go on the table-thing. Beep! I've been scanned. Now I'm in a paper bag. Well, I just have to wait.

Crash! What was that? Oh, I've just been unpacked. Oh no! I'm melting. Hurry! Get me in the fridge! What? Oh no! Not me! Please! Don't! She's opening me. Well, here goes.

Owww! Boy, it's hot! Duh! I'm in the oven and I'm burning! Ouch! Help! Get me out! Oh no! I'm totally black! Finally! She's opening the oven. Phew!

What is she doing? Why is she throwing ... AAUUGGHH!

Splat! I've landed. Well, she burnt me and she threw me out. I guess I'm in the garden. Well, this world is big with ... WHAT? What is that slobbering, fat, ugly, hairy creature that is heading this way? Oh no! Is he going to eat me? I guess! AH!!!

This is my typical day as a Pillsbury Doughboy Chocolate Chip Cookie. Woo-hoo!

Dino-Speaks
When dinosaurs ruled the earth, aliens used to come down to have vacations. (They came from Lyrates. They don't come anymore because they don't like all the bright lights.) A few got eaten, but that's OK.

When they came down, they used to have rodeos. They would get on the dinosaurs (favorites were T-Rexes) and ride around till one got bitten. Whoever won got a baby brontosaurus as a prize.

Eventually the babies would become bigger when they got back to Lyrates. All the big dinos, despite the vacationers' protests, would become gods. The aliens would try to sacrifice their lives by trying to get the brontos to eat them. Of course, that didn't work because the brontosaurus was a herbivore.

Now, the aliens didn't know this. They just thought they weren't good enough for the brontos, so they would go and jump into a fire till their first layer of skin burned off. (Under the first layer was a second green layer.) They had noticed the brontos ate green things. This worked for awhile but then the brontos caught on.

After a few years of this, the aliens gave up altogether and took the brontos back to earth. Now, when scientists look at the planet Lyrates closely, they see little green specks moving around.

Revenge
Once, when I was about 3, I had a very bad accident. I was playing in my grassy front yard. There was an old stump where ants had made a huge nest. I didn't know what it was, so running over to it, I started playing in the sand.

I was sadly mistaken. I was covered in ants and bites, and screaming at the top of my lungs. My parents took me to the hospital and got some medicinal salve put on it.

So, any time I have fireworks and see an ant pile, I shove them down the holes and have my revenge. Sparklers and ants don't go together.

Pain
One day I was sitting down doing my homework when my head started hurting, then my sides. After that, my whole body was pounding with pain. It wouldn't stop. Then I felt something like two knives piercing out of my shoulders! Oh my goah! My arms were turning into wings!

"What's happening to me? My face! Thorns and blisters are coming out of my face! My legs are turning into a fin! Claws! My hands and feet are claws! I'm turning into a monster. This can't be happening to me. Why? How? Heellllllll!"

I'm in a cold sweat and tingling and trembling all over. And I just woke up.

What happened was that I was working so hard that I passed out and inside my brain I kind of had a "spasm" that made my circulation go low so that my skin tingled and the rest of it was just a dream!

I Am
I like ice cream and swimming on hot days. Honest, creative and not being a bigot are important to me.

I'm always happy. I curse too much, but I'm trying not to. I don't want to be friends with bigots.

I am not disrespectful to elders. I don't like people with bad attitudes.

This is me. I am!

A recipe for education

By: Hollie Cowan
Special to the Herald

- Ingredients:
- 2 gal. writing skills
  - 2 cups listening skills
  - 4 lbs. thinking skills
  - 5 quarts class participation
  - 6 lbs. paying attention
  - 13 years following directions
  - 3 cups curiosity
  - 6 cups being drug free
  - 5 lbs. study skills
  - 13 years personal best
  - 13 lbs. working skills
  - 2 quarts lifetime of books

Hollie Cowan
Directions:
Mix the 4 lbs. thinking skills with the 2 cups listening skills.

Then take the 5 quarts class participation and sprinkle some 3 cups curiosity on it. Then combine those together and bake them at 350°F for 6 hours. Let cool. Next, take the 6 cups being drug free and blend the 2 gal. writing skills in with it. Then take the 7 quarts lifetime of books and pour some 6 lbs. paying attention on it. After that is done, take the 13 years following directions and the 13 lbs. working skills and mix them together. When all of this is completed, take all the stuff and whip it together.

Serves 1 student and 1 teacher.

IN BRIEF

LOCALLY

Dee/Danny's Softball

SANFORD — Dee & Danny's Concession ASA Men's Class C slowpitch softball tournament will be the weekend of February 9-11. Cost for the double elimination event to be held in Sanford will be $125 per team with a deadline for entry, February 9 at 5 p.m. First, 2nd and 3rd place sponsor and 1st (bat bags) and 2nd place (batting gloves) individual awards (minimum of 10 teams) will be given. For more information please call 323-1080.

Sanford Youth Baseball tryouts

SANFORD — The Sanford Recreation Department is now registering for its upcoming youth baseball season. Kids ages 5 to 15 can sign up at the Downtown Youth Center located in the lower level of City Hall or players may register the day of tryouts. Your age on August 1, 1996 will determine which league you play in. The Sanford league's are: TEE-Ball (5-6), PEE-WEE (7-9), Little Major League (10-12) and Babe Ruth League (13-15). All participants must pay a $15 registration fee and non-Sanford residents must also pay an additional $10 fee ($15 for a family). Everyone needs to register but only those new to the program or moving up to a new league will have to tryout. All returning players will be on the same team as they were last season. Babe Ruth League tryouts will be Saturday, Feb. 10 at 9 a.m. at Sanford Memorial Stadium. For additional information call: Sanford Recreation Department at 330-5697.

Spring softball offered

CASSELBERRY — Seminole County Parks & Recreation will offer Spring Softball Leagues at its Seminole County Softball Complex and Red Bug Lake Park starting on February 19. Signups will continue until February 9. Cost for the 10-week season is $325 ($260 for league fee, $40 for a dozen Worth Blue Dot softballs, and $25 for ASA and trophy fee). For further information, call the Seminole County Softball Complex at 788-0609 or Red Bug Lake Park at 695-7113.

Magic back on track

ORLANDO — Shaquille O'Neal and Anfernee Hardaway played like All-Stars and Orlando reverted to its winning ways Friday night with a 108-95 victory over Atlanta that kept the Magic unbeaten at home. Bouncing back from subpar performances in a road loss to the New York Knicks, O'Neal had 25 points and 16 rebounds and Hardaway finished with 14 points and 13 assists. The Atlantic Division leaders improved to 23-0 at Orlando Arena where they've won 30 consecutive regular-season games.

AROUND THE STATE

Eckstein Leads Florida

CORAL GABLES — Sanford's David Eckstein led off the game with a homer and drove in another run in the second inning as Florida won its season opener 7-4 Friday against Miami. Florida (1-0) used a 13-hit attack, including multi-hit games by five players and a strong outing by John Kaufman to upset their in-state rivals. Eight of nine Florida starters recorded a hit with every player reaching base safely to overcome three Miami solo home runs.

Panthers trip Lightning

ST. PETERSBURG — Geoff Smith and Stu Barnes scored second-period power-play goals, leading the Florida Panthers past the Tampa Bay Lightning 5-3 Saturday. Smith's goal tied the game at 2-2 nine minutes into the period and Barnes scored at 11:50, wiping out a 2-1 deficit. The victory continued Florida's mastery of in-state rival Tampa Bay, with the Panthers leading the all-time series 9-1-2. With the New York Rangers losing 7-1 to Colorado, Florida (32-14-6) pulled into a tie for the Atlantic Division lead with 70 points.

ELSEWHERE

Knights win on road

HUIES CREEK, N.C. — Central Florida used 55-percent shooting from 3-point range — hitting eight of their first 10 from beyond the arc — as the Golden Knights never trailed in a 79-58 victory Saturday over Campbell. Eric Riggs hit four 3-pointers and led Central Florida (6-14, 4-6 Trans-America Athletic Conference) with 19 points. Harry Kennedy was 5-of-9 on 3-pointers and finished with 17 points.

Wesley Jackson (white uniform) teamed with Jason Junker to score 54 points as the Lake Mary Rams came from behind to defeat the Wymore Career Bobcats 94-91 in a boys' basketball game Friday night.

Rams outgun Bobcats

From Staff Reports

LAKE MARY — Jason Junker and Wesley Jackson combined for 53 points as the Lake Mary Rams overcame a 30-21 first quarter deficit to outscore the visiting Wymore Career Bobcats 94-91 in boys' basketball action Friday night. Junker pumped in a game-high 29 points, while Jackson was close behind with 24. Sophomore Paul Beik chipped in with 16 and Matt Townsley added 10 as the Rams improved to 19-4 on the season. The Lake Mary junior varsity also won by the score of 78-51. The Rams will host the tough Haines City squad on Tuesday night.

GOOD LUCK JEFF

Sanford's Jeff Blake, from the Cincinnati Bengals, will be the starting quarterback for the AFC squad in today's NFL Pro Bowl game in Hawaii. Blake got the nod after Miami's Dan Marino dropped out to have surgery. The game can be seen on WFTV, Channel 9 at 6 p.m.

Alaqua's Svantesson builds tennis program

Special to the Herald

LONGWOOD — After eight years on the pro tour, tennis ace Tobias Svantesson says it was his legs, not his age, that forced him into retirement. And what a retirement it is. As Club Pro at Alaqua Country Club, Svantesson is master of Alaqua's five pro-ranked clay courts and he's having the time of his life. Svantesson, a former All-American and National Champion singles player at both Seminole Community College and Flagler College in St. Augustine, teaches six clinics a week, but that number is increasing. "We've been building our program for about a year and it's beginning to grow quickly now," he said. His students range from four years of age to middle age and his message is the same to all. "Many instructors work on the serve," Svantesson said. "In a singles game, you return the opponent's serve half the time and when you're playing doubles, which is most common, you only serve one-fourth of the time. The key is to tennis is movement — getting into position so you can address the ball properly. Next it's mastering the stroke." The 32-year-old Svantesson, a native of Malmo, Sweden, is a 25-year tennis veteran. At the height of his pro tour career he was seeded 89th in the world as a singles player and 6-4th as a doubles player. And he has beaten some of the best in the sport in tournament play — Ivan Lendl, Boris Becker and Karel Novacek, to name a few. Svantesson played in the U.S. Open, Wimbledon, the French Open and the Australian Open from 1988-1993. He was named Club Pro at Alaqua earlier this year. "This is an exceptional tennis community," Svantesson said. "I am especially excited about our prospects for developing our program to reach more people and that membership is available to people living outside Alaqua as well." For more information, contact: Tina Leger, Alaqua Country Club, (407) 333-2582.

"This team had a great run, and this was a really good season for us," Brody said. "Our team worked their butts off, and it's a shame this season had to end. I will remember this year's team for a long time."

The Trojans missed three shots on the Patriots' goal in the first 13 minutes of the game. Lake Brantley managed two long shots on the Lincoln goal, but the shots were fielded cleanly by Trojans goalie Mark Mariscal.

Muhassan Darby gave Lincoln a 1-0 lead on an assist from Thomas Zuehke with 12:57 remaining in the first half. Zuehke had a shot on the Lake Brantley goal, but the ball hit the right post. Darby then took a follow-up shot to give the Trojans the lead.

Lake Brantley's Shawn Phillips missed a head-in attempt on the Lincoln goal at the 11:40 mark of the first half. Damon Cottingham then missed two shots for the Patriots in the final 3:19 of the half. Cottingham missed a shot on goal high to open the second half, and later pulled the Patriots even at 1-1 with an unassisted goal at the 30:41 mark of the second half.

Brian Foster put the Trojans ahead for good at 2-1 with 26:12 remaining on an unassisted goal. Patriots forward James Russ then sent a shot off the left post of the Trojans' goal, and Phillip Clancuelli sent a free kick sailing over the goal.

"I knew this game would be tough going in,"

After 80 minutes of well-contested soccer, the Raiders ached tears of joy over their 1-0 victory.

For the Rams, who ended the year 10-7-3, the tears were born in frustration and anger, not so much at the fact that they had lost, but the feeling that the game had been taken from them.

The only goal of the game came with just over 10 minutes left in the game, when senior Jana Stultz converted a penalty kick for the Raiders.

To begin with, the Rams thought the play that set up the penalty kick - Kristin Joaquin going down in the box after she and a Lake Mary defender tangled chasing a loose ball - shouldn't have been called a foul.

Then, after Stultz had positioned the ball for the penalty, the referee never bothered to check to see if Lake Mary goalkeeper Jordan Kelgren was ready and whistled for Stultz to take her shot.

Kelgren, who was still setting herself for the shot, never had a chance.

"In a game this close, the smallest mistake is magnified," said Lake Mary coach Bill Eisele, who could not comment on the officiating without ridding a possible fine. "What can you do?"

In spite of the ragged officiating - the result of a crew that seemed unable to keep pace with the high level of play - the game was an exceptional exhibition of high school soccer.

Each team had several brilliant chances in the first half, but Kelgren and Orange Park keeper Amoli Shah were equal to the task.

In the 24th minute of play, Orange Park striker Devon Rosal broke in on a counter and let fly a quick right-footed shot. Kelgren dove and got a hand to the shot, then scrambled to cover the loose ball.

Six minutes later, Karen Glade sliced a shot to the far post. Once again, Kelgren dove back and pulled in the shot.

Lake Mary's best opportunities came in the final five minutes of the first half.

At 35:21, Orange Park was called for a handball in the goal mouth, setting up a Lake Mary penalty kick. Angie Olson took the shot for the Rams, but was denied by Shah, who pushed the ball off the right goal post and covered the rebound.

The Raiders couldn't clear the zone, leading to several more Lake Mary scoring opportunities. Elizabeth Morris had a shot glance off the cross bar while Olson beat Shah with a shot, only to have the ball cleared off the goal line by an Orange Park defender.

"I thought we were going to break open eventually," said Eisele. "We had a lot of opportunities, we just didn't finish them. We created some fine chances, their goalkeeper just did a nice job."

As painful as the loss was for the Rams, Eisele took some solace in the level of skill and effort his team showed.

"All year long, I said that I wanted us to play our best game last," he said. "I think we did that. The girls played a wonderful match.

"It just wasn't meant to be."

LIONS STAY ALIVE

LYNN HAVEN - Kristal Waits scored two goals and Ashley Radkevich and Karyn Hall added on score each as the Oviedo Lions advanced to the final eight with a 4-1 victory over homestanding Mostey in the Class 6A North 1 Regional Semifinals Friday night.

Hall added a pair of assists on the night as the Lions broke away from a 1-1 halftime tie with three goals. Asby also had an assist.

Oviedo (24-8-1) will travel to Clearwater on Tuesday to take on District 5 champion Countryside (15-5-2) for the Regional Championship and a spot in the state championships in Tallahassee on February 18-17. The Cougars ousted Apopka 5-0 Friday night.

Surprise for Miss Kitty; dancers to dish up chili

"They got me," Kitty West sneezed the day after she was honored at a surprise retirement party. "They sprung one on me...it was very nice," she continued to chuckle.

Miss Kitty was talking about a party given in her honor at the East Ocean in Sanford. Hostesses for the lively gathering were Jan Cara and Ann Hoolehan. "It was great," Jan said. "We had such a good time. It was a complete surprise."

It seems that Kitty's boss, Attorney Rick Colegrove Jr., kept her at work a little longer than usual Wednesday while the conviving party hosts set up the party scene at East Ocean. When the bewildered Kitty arrived on the scene, she was gently ushered to a rocking chair and given a wide-brimmed bonnet, a crocheted shawl, a large handbag and oversize pig slippers. All Kitty could do was laugh riotously.

She was also presented a monetary gift toward the purchase of a computer and equipment and a number of humorous gag gifts.

About 45 attended the fun event which also called for lots of good food. Jan summed it up with, "A good time was had by all."

Kitty, a legal secretary, has been employed in the Colegrove law offices for about five years. She moved to Sanford in 1970 and is the former owner of Sanford Trophy. When she gets the wanderlust out of her system, Kitty said she will probably work parttime.

Historical society installs officers

At a recent meeting of the Sanford Historical Society, Grace Marie Silncepber, re-elected president, announced in her annual report that membership into the society nearly tripled during the past year.

During the meeting, Allela Clarke, Sanford Museum curator, installed Grace Marie, along with other officers for the coming year: Dr. Vann Parker, vice president; Josephine Roath, secretary; Walt Smith, treasurer; Doris Gornly, corresponding secretary; and Kenneth Lefler and Donald Vincent, directors. Remaining as directors are: Myra Bales and Paul Biggers.

Ballet Guild sets cookoff, auction

Ballet Guild of Sanford-Seminole, now in its 28th year, will present the annual performance, "Mother Goose Breaks Loose, a Rock 'N' Roll Fairy Tale" 1/2 in March at the Sanford Civic Center.

Productions staged by the dance company don't come cheap so raising funds to keep Sanford's own dance company on its toes has been a community involvement.

For the past several years, the guild has had only one annual fund-raiser, a Chili-Cookoff Contest and Auction, according to Sally Sawczuk. She says this event generates a lot of interest and is a lot of fun.

Contestants sign in and prepare their favorite chili recipe, some with wild and unorthodox titles. Last year, Sally said 13 tables of chili were set up. Patrons go from table to table and sample the chili, and in the meantime vote on their favorite. They also get to eat all they desire for a flat price of $3.00 for adults and $2.00 for children.

This year's event will be held in the social hall of All Souls Catholic Church in Sanford, on Saturday, Feb. 10, at 6 p.m. Tickets are available at the door. Along with the chili will be served salad, rolls, dessert and beverages. For information, call Sally, at 323-1768.

George Silfley will serve as the auctioneer. An abundance of great items, including trips etc., are up for grabs. Also on the auction block are memorabilia from Sanford sports greats, Tim Raines, New York Yankees outfielder, and Jeff Blake, quarterback for the Cincinnati Bengals.

Party of the year

Christine and Walt Bohannon recently entertained at what could be called the party of the year. Thirty-three children and 22 adults enjoyed the lovely, lavish party honoring the Bohannons' daughter, Savannah, on her fourth birthday.

"Boy, it was elaborate," Herman Schroeder extolled. In addition to a Moowalk Tent, there was a cotton candy machine and a popcorn machine. Herman said, "After all the activities, the children received a bag of goodies to take home. Tables of food were served...all varieties of food imaginable. Everybody enjoyed it."

The activities included an appearance of Tom Brackney and his famous Mad Cap Mutts which the guests just loved. Tom, who has appeared on Broadway in "Will Rogers Follies," put on a show with his doggies from several states and abroad. He recently appeared at the Mark Two Theatre in Orlando.

Savannah's grandmother attended from Ohio and other guests arrived bearing gifts from Lake Mary, Orlando and Longwood.

Herman said it was a great party. He also commented on the lovely party the Bohannons hosted for Bram Towers during the holidays.

Federation to meet

The Sanford Junior Woman's Club will host the regularly scheduled meeting of the Seminole County Federation of Woman's Clubs on Monday, Feb. 26, at 10 a.m., at the Sanford Woman's Club, 309 S. Oak Ave.

All member clubs of the federation are invited to attend the event and bring a dish to share.

Academy of arts to present 'Jagged Pieces of Black History'

The Seminole African American Academy of Arts, 1017 W. 13th St., presents the award winning production of "Jagged Pieces of Black History," Folklore: "The African American" directed by Joseph Pinckney. Pinckney is an actor and director who has moved from Washington, D.C. offering his unique talents to Sanford and the Central Florida area.

He recently mounted this production at the 7th Annual Zora Neale Hurston Festival where it was presented to over 1,000 attendees who thoroughly enjoyed the cast of five great actors and actresses.

Pinckney brings to the stage a great deal of professionalism. His directing and acting abilities come highly recommended by greats like Ossie Davis and the National Educational Television Network. He has appeared in several productions, namely, "All About Zora, Zora is My Name!" which received two Emmy's at the Howard University, Washington, D.C. chapter awards ceremony of theatrical productions. He has worked with several prominent theater production companies, major broadcasting networks, motion picture companies, and in making advertisements for commercial television stations.

His versatility in the performing arts make him a sought after artist whose outstanding professional accomplishments have engendered the respect of his peers and endeared him to audiences. He is indeed dedicated to the performing arts.

The spectacular performances of the local cast members begins with Sanford's own Latressa Haws, an eighth grader at Sanford Middle School. She is currently a student of Tajiri Arts, International. She is an honor student whose talents enable her to be an artist of voice, piano and drama. Her activities in teen groups do not keep her from youth activities at Mt. Sinai Missionary Baptist Church.

Latressa is the daughter of Lee and Polly Haws.

Linda McNear has been acting for over six years. She has studied English and voice at Alabama State College. Having from Montgomery, Linda taught in Jacksonville before moving to the Orlando area where she is continuing her acting career. She has starred in "Colored Girls," "Before It Hits Home," "A Raisin in the Sun," "Brown Silk Magenta Sunset," and "The King and I" at Civic Theater.

Roneasha Bell's talents have been seen in various productions as "A Raisin in the Sun," "From Sun to Sun," "Medea," and "Oedipus." She has displayed her vocal talents in the musical "Little Shop of Horrors." Roneasha has studied classical music in London and has sung with the London Youth Orchestra.

Barbara Lewis has appeared in local productions of "The Wiz" and "Purlie." Barbara is an educator and volunteers her services to the UCF McKnight Achievers, the Zora Neale Hurston Festival, and Seminole County Parent-Teacher

Mr. and Mrs. Blake Timothy Smith

Melissa Tyre weds Blake T. Smith in Georgia ceremony

BLACKSHEAR, Ga. — Melissa Tyre and Blake Timothy Smith are announcing their marriage today. They were married Saturday, July 15, 1995 in a candlelight ceremony at the First Baptist Church of Blackshear. The Rev. Freddie Smith, father of the groom and pastor of Sweet Memorial Baptist Church, Waycross, Ga., officiated as the couple exchanged their vows. About 1,000 guests attended the wedding.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glennis Tyre of Blackshear.

The groom is the son of the Rev. and Mrs. Freddie Smith of Waycross. The groom was reared in Sanford and is a graduate of Seminole High School. His father is the former pastor of Central Baptist Church, Sanford.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride chose for her vows an original bridal gown in white satin from the Jacqueline Collection. The elegant design was fashioned with a sweetheart neckline, scalloped and ornamented with tiny seed pearls.

The Basque waistline descended to a bouffant skirt which featured motifs of Alencon lace. The train was highlighted with inserts of Alencon lace. Tiny clusters of pearls formed flowers of pearls scattered throughout the train.

She wore a two-tiered Austrian crystal crown which held a bouffant poof and two tiers of bridal illusion. She carried a cascading bouquet of dendrobium orchids, roses and stephanotis in bridal white with pink lilya roses.

Kristi Tyre, the bride's sister, served as maid of honor. She wore a fuchsia crepe gown from the Bill LevKoff Collection. She carried a clutch of roses, rubrum lilies, culcena and statice in hues of white, fuchsia, pink and purple, tied with sheer wired ribbon.

The bridesmaids were Mrs. Mark Wolfgang, Jacksonville, Fla., the bridegroom's sister; Mrs. Scott Smith of Sanford, and Mrs. Steve Smith of Nashville, Tenn., the groom's sisters-in-law; Ellen Blocker of Glenville, Ga., Mrs. John Mark Butler of Lawrenceville, Ga., and Mrs. Rhon Carter of Middleburg, Fla., Alpha Delta Pi Sorority sisters of the bride.

Milton Smith of Sanford, the groom's grandfather and a former Sanford City Commissioner, served as best man.

Groomsmen included the bridegroom's brothers, Scott Smith of Sanford, and Steve Smith of Nashville; also Erik Luce, Mike Edwards and Tim Rabun of Sanford, and cousin of the groom, Todd Christensen of Hilton, Head, S.C.

Amanda Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Scott Smith of Sanford and niece of the bridegroom, served as flower girl.

Ring bearer was Steven Rabun, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tim Rabun of Nashville.

Many best wishes greeted the newlyweds during a reception in the church social hall, given by her parents.

Mrs. Jeffrey Parr and Mrs. Chris Jorishie of Blackshear, cousin of the bride, kept the guest book.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith are now at home in Blackshear. The bride, graduate of Georgia Southern University, is a junior high math teacher employed by Pierce County Board of Education. The bridegroom, graduate of Gup-ton-Jones College, Atlanta, is employed by Miles-Odum Funeral Home.

Mr. and Mrs. Victor Martinez their wedding vows in a religious ceremony later in Santiago.

Dino Rubio, V. Martinez married in civil rites

SANFORD — Dina Soto Rubio of Santiago, Chile, and Victor Martinez, 1801 Cedar Ave., Sanford, are announcing their marriage today. They were married Jan. 11, 1996 in a civil ceremony at the Seminole County Courthouse in Sanford.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held honoring the newlyweds who are making their home at 1801 Cedar Ave. The couple will solemnize

WEDDINGS

Joyette Turner, Phillip B. Master exchange vows

SANFORD — Joyette DeShawn Burma Turner and Phillip Bernard Master are announcing their marriage today. They were married Dec. 23, 1995, at 2 p.m., at Second Shiloh Missionary Baptist Church, Sanford. The Rev. R. T. Davis and Rev. Dr. Ralph Aker, pastor of Washington Shores Presbyterian Church, Orlando, officiated at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Daniel and Evelyn McElvin of Orlando. The groom is the son of the Rev. Jerome and Rev. Viola Graham of Sanford.

The bride's grandparents are Mr. William and Mrs. Rose Robinson. The groom's grandmother is Mrs. Lee Anna Kilgore.

Given in marriage by her grandfather, the bride chose for her vows a formal, chapel-length, white taffeta gown. A large bow accented the chapel-length train. The gown featured a round neckline and the fitted bodice was decorated with embroidered lace. The fitted wrist-length sleeves were puffed at the shoulder. Her chapel-length illusion veil was held by a Victorian wreath headpiece accented with white roses. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses interspersed with ivy and gold streamers.

Vanessa Adams, Byron Chambers and Selina Stafford were vocalists at the ceremony.

Serving the bride as maid of honor was Tamara Toomer.

Bridesmaids were Alycia Dean, Veronica Graham and Tamara River.

Nikia Sapp served the groom as best man.

Groomsmen were Torin T. Turner, Marcus L. Clark and Frederick Sims.

Aaron Allen served as usher.

Serving as ringbearer was Alden Jemison. Flower girls were Tamela

McElvin and Lakisha Castillo.

Following the ceremony, a dinner reception was held at the Budget Inn. Flowers were provided by Eleanor Fitch. Consultants was Yomi Clark and reception hostesses were Charlene Kce, Linda Walker, Elaine Wise and Sandra Sims, Marlon Calson, Cathleen Atkins and Russell Kilgore. A video was made by William Adams and Marcus Clark performed as deejay assisted by Rita Kropf.

Proposed construction petitioned Businesswoman wants road work done after hours

LOWWOOD SHAY KOEGEL

Cheri Krewson, owner and proprietor of Cheri's Hair Port, located at 460 N. County Road 427, is just trying to protect her business. She has traveled on foot door to door, up and down C.R. 427 requesting that her fellow entrepreneurs sign her petition which would require that the scheduled construction to widen C.R. 427 affecting lane restriction be accomplished after 8 or 9 p.m.

"Everyday of the work week, at 5 p.m., the traffic is stopped dead in front of my business; there is no question that the road needs to be widened," says Krewson, "but the goal is to protect these businesses while progress is being made." What motivated Krewson to take on this crusade was two-fold: she cares about her business and no one else was doing anything about it.

Three years ago, there was discussion of widening C.R. 427 and Krewson refused to sign a lease that year, not knowing what would happen. The same news was widespread two years ago. This year, the news is that the construction will begin in May and it has been reported that construction will begin in October. According to Seminole County Road Division, they know nothing about it.

Also, according to the road inspector, the plans have not been released for construction which means they have not gone to bid which means they will not begin construction for at least six to nine months.

According to the County Engineering Department, if the plans have right-of-way acquisition secured, "Phase 3" of the C.R. 427 (includes the road from State Road 434 and north) will not be open to bids until May of 1996 which will probably allow for construction (turning over of dirt) to begin by the end of the year.

their monthly meeting with a discussion of legislative issues on Wednesday, Feb. 7, at 6 p.m. at Stacy's Buffet, 5566 Lake Howell Road, Winter Park. Cost is $7.50 per person. Reservations are required by calling Lea at 366-6516 and please note that reservations are binding.

The League of Women Voters of Florida have announced that 27 leagues across the state have reached a consensus on the citizen petition drives on both constitutional and statutory initiatives. The 12-point positions include supporting financial contributions made by all persons including business/industries, and political action committees.

University of Central Florida elections will be held Feb. 20 and 21 with the run-offs on Feb. 27 and 28. The League of Women Voters of Seminole County monitor these elections annually for the UCF Student Government. organization formulated to protect and enhance the quality of life and property values in the Markham Woods Road area. Dues of $10 are now being collected for the 1996 year and may be sent to P.O. Box 520184, Longwood, FL 32752.

At present, the Markham Woods Association is currently opposing the development and construction of a golf school and double driving range proposed to be built north of Wekiva Assembly Church between Mandarin and I-4. The property has about 20 acres of which three will be taken by the Florida Department of Transportation for a retention pond when I-4 is expanded to six lanes, construction beginning this spring. The board of directors voted unanimously, consistent with the bylaws, to oppose any commercial development between State Road 434 and Lake Mary Boulevard. Specifically, the area is opposed to night lighting, traffic, noise, intrusion by outsiders, operation seven days per week until 10 p.m. and the incompatibility with surrounding residential areas.

Despite opposition by the Markham Woods Association, an animal hospital/boarding kennel was approved on E.E. Williamson Road. County Commissioner Daryl McLain refused to support the Markham Woods Association in denying the proposed veterinary hospital. At the appeal hearing before the county commissioners on May 23, 1995, the board, based on the recommendation of McLain, unanimously reversed their Board of Adjustment's decision and approved the veterinary hospital/boarding kennel.

Hobbyist of the Week

Darlene Carlton is surrounded by elegant Victorian lamp shades she created.

Victorian charm reflected in elegant lamp shades

By Susan Wenner
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Returning to the Victorian era is what Darlene Carlton finds herself doing each time she works on her hobby. Creating lamp shades with a Victorian flair has occupied the last five years of her life.

Although Carlton and her husband of 26 years, Hugh, find numerous occasions to hunt and fish together the couple make time for her hobby and making a bit of money in the process.

Her husband is the former principal of Sanford Middle School and served as a director with the Seminole County School Board until his retirement several years ago.

"I come from a family of reupholsterers," she said. "My parents owned Adams Decorative Service. I have that long line of upholstery people to follow. I guess that's where I got this interest."

Carlton has definitely found her creative niche. She has transformed her own Sanford home into the elegance and grace of Victorian charm.

"I've restored 15 lamps in my own home," she said. "I've redone my drapes in every window."

Materials from silk, chintz, linen, polyester, velvet, Italian tapestry, taffeta, satin, rayon and brocade have been used. Some glass, hand-strung beads and cotton or rayon fringe accent the lampshades.

This self-taught lady begins with a wire frame and builds to suit the desires of the customer. "I hand-wrap the wire frame," she said. "I stretch the fabric over that. It's all lined. Fringe, fan pleats, rosettes, dyed beads or plain beads along with an assortment of delicate and decorative trims or whatever desired can be added then."

Prices for materials range anywhere from $75 and up depending on the accessories used. According to Carlton, shades can also sell from $75 and up. From 10 to 20 hours are also invested in each of her creations.

Many friends, family and customers rave about Carlton's work. Those with antiques in their home choose to accent with the Victorian shades.

Lamp shades with which Carlton has worked range in size from boudoir lamps to floor and table lamps. They measure from six to 18 inches.

Carlton and her husband share six children, Lorie, Allen, George, Patty, Judy and Suzy, and six grandchildren. They attend First United Methodist Church in Sanford.

want the elegant designs to retain a full authentic flavor of the past. I try to use materials and methods that compensate for light reflection."

One such touch of class was mentioned as a "sugaring method" which is achieved by sprinkling ground glass that is the consistency of sugar to the fabric of the lampshade. "It has a sugar texture," she said. "You actually sprinkle it on the cloth itself. It gives a shimmering look. It's beautiful. It's an early 1900's technique."

Prices for materials range anywhere from $75 and up depending on the accessories used. According to Carlton, shades can also sell from $75 and up. From 10 to 20 hours are also invested in each of her creations.
