Three Axis Subs and British Cruiser Go Down in Sea Battle

One London Destroyer Is Sunk While On Convoy Duty As Another Hits Mine

Russians Imperil German Positions

English Capture Over 5,000 Prisoners in Victory At Bardia

The British today admit the loss of the cruiser, Neptune, and the destroyer, Kandahar, by mines in the Mediterranean, but claim the destruction of at least three submarines and two bombers in the Atlantic after a four day running battle. They admit the loss of two ships from a 30-ship convoy, plus the destroyer, J. Stanley, and the auxiliary, Audacity.

The Russians regained Malaya in the Central front offensive, imperiling the German position at Moscow. It was officially announced from Cairo today that more than 5,000 Axis prisoners, including German Major Gen. Schmidt, chief of a administrative staff officer of the Nazi "Pan-Africa" group in Africa, was captured at Bardia.

British losses in the occupation of the port were slight. Only 50 killed and 300 wounded, only 50 British planes held by the Axis were lost.

Newly discovered immediately after the German retreat. An army force reconquered Malaya in the south, tightening a cruel pincer fashion from the Nile's west bank.

The Soviet thrust to Malaya, 30 miles south of the German advance positions and a companion Red army drive from the Nile's north bank, left the Germans facing the prospect of retreat of more than 80 miles from Khazak to Yvanna.

The westward push of the Russian army to Starita and Kanya had thrust deep salients into the Nazi lines both above and below Moscow, menacing the rear of their positions. Moschak itself is under the fire of Russian artillery and seems about to collapse.

As the southern claw of the Red army shaped up, the Red drive was swinging around the Khazak, barn-door fashion.

British Imperial airmen set fire to a gasoline carrier west of El Achaia on the Gulf of Sirte, attacked nearby air fields, and also a small ship off the coast.

The British said they lost only two planes in all these operations. Official war-end figures released today said that 2000 German and Italian planes were destroyed throughout the Middle East during 1941.

The fall of the stronghold of Bardia, 15 miles from the Egyptian border, removed a serious neck-line threat, and released the British from the 300 mile march to the west where Gen. Erwin Rommel's remainder Nazi armies were bottled out at Agadaba.

Representative John M. Hays of Kentucky, Republican, said today that the real danger to our country does not come from Japan...

Something To Fight About

When some isolationist senator said a few months ago that American youth would never "fight or die for dear old Dong Dang," he reckoned without the automobile. If there is anything contemplated to make American youth fighting mad, it is to deprive them of their most common means of locomotion.

It isn't so much that automobile production has been stopped almost altogether as the great auto industry swings into full defense production. Almost everyone had anticipated this and discounted it in advance, reconciling himself to getting along somehow with the same old car for the "duration," no matter how long that might be.

But what most of us had failed to realize, and to believe when we were told, is that the great bulk of our rubber comes from Malaya and the Dutch East Indies and that with these Far Eastern points either captured or blockaded by the Japanese, we cannot make automobile tires.

Consequently, tire sales have been limited to 357,000 for the entire United States during the month of January, as compared with a normal consumption of approximately four million. It does not take a crystal gazer, or a rabid interventionist to convince us now that this number will supply but an insignificant number of motorists with their necessary tires, or that the situation will probably get worse before it gets better.

And so we wonder what will become of our public revenues which have been derived from gasoline taxes and the sale of license tags. The State of Florida receives about $28,000,000 a year from gas taxes alone and most of this money goes either to the schools or is used in the construction of new roads.

Whoever thought that a Japanese conquest of Singapore or Manila could cause so much trouble in this country?

Southern Books

For the first time since the Civil War, the South is gaining nationwide recognition as a center of culture. The recent publication of a number of outstanding books by Southern authors has served to put the nation on notice that the South will continue to be heard from as long as books are written and men continue to read them.

"Unfortunately many of the best Southern writers—including Thomas Wolfe before his death—were not 'typical' Southerners and are too frequently spoken of with contempt, or not at all, in the South," says the St. Petersburg Independent. "Even heard so inoffensive a writer as Florida's Marjorie Rawlings ('The Yearling') has been criticized on the ground that she neglected to tell her readers that there are many well-bred people in this state!"

"I have before me a list of 69 books by Southern writers on Southern themes of which 36 are of an unusually high order of merit, such as Ellen Glasgow's 'In This Our Life,' Hoyt's 'The Array of Tennessee,' William Alexander Percy's 'Lanterns on the Levee,' the late Elizabeth Roberts' 'Not by Strange Gods,' James Street's 'In My Father's House,' Minnie Hite Moody's 'Long Meadows,' Jonathan Daniels' 'Tar Heels,' E. P. O'Donnell's 'The Great Doorstep,' Eloise Liddon's 'Some Lose Their Way.'"

"The South is becoming articulate again, and high time, too. Too long has this section been represented in the public mind by bigoted congressional orators of marked eccentricity, while its literary voices have gone without honor in their own country."

Cockney Come-Back

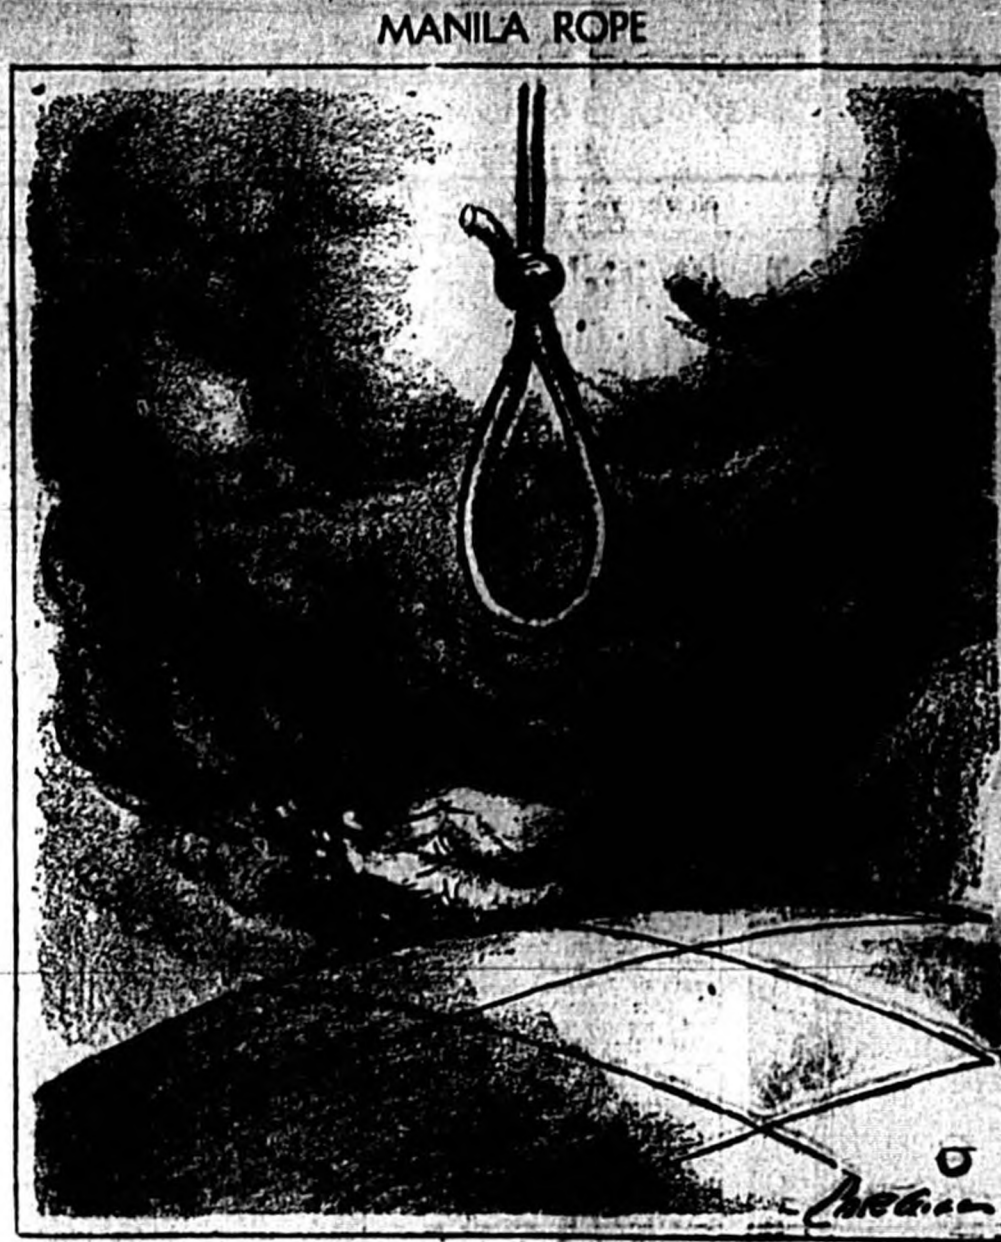

A cockney tar and a Brooklyn gob were fraternizing in a local pub, and presently after a few drinks they began to argue over the virtues of their respective navies. One thing led to another, as usual, and finally the American, with a tactless allusion to 1776 said: "Ay, the hell with King George."

The Britisher's jaw dropped; the shocking words had him completely dumfounded. When articulation returned to him, he cried in a furious counterblast: "And to 'ell with Bybe Ruth."—The Bermudian.

U. S. Forces Repulse Japs Killing 700

War Department Says It Is One Of Most Serious Reverses Suffered By Enemy

WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—(AP)—President Roosevelt today said Feb. 16 is the day for registration of all male citizens of the United States between the ages of 18 and 44 who have not registered previously.

Men in this age group will be subject to military service. The President's proclamation made no mention of the registration of men between 45 through 64 who are to be registered later but who will be exempt from service with the armed forces under the present legislation.

The War Department today announced Gen. Douglas MacArthur's Philippine Army repulsed a Japanese attack with heavy enemy losses, estimating at least 700 of the enemy were killed. American—Filipino losses were described as relatively small. The War Department stated this is one of the most serious reverses suffered by the invaders since the war began.

All along the line the guerrillas of the Philippine army shot down four major Japanese bombers raising the official tally of Japanese planes destroyed to 15.

Washington reported the Japanese are increasing pressure on American and Filipino defenses north and northwest of Manila. The Japanese reported from Tokyo that large fleet transports, presumably carrying reinforcements for the Philippine invasion, are moving southwest toward Luzon Island.

Gen. MacArthur's report of conditions in the city of Manila, into which Japanese troops entered last night, stated that in addition to putting up a vigorous defense of the Philippine area still under his control the General had information reaching into the enemy-occupied territory.

Chairman States 141 County Pioneers Attend Annual New Year's Celebration

Statistics Show 274 Cases In Florida During Last Year

A canvass showed 274 cases of poliomyelitis in Florida last year, an increase of 800 percent over the 34 cases in 1940.

Ned Smith, chairman of the Seminole County committee for the celebration of the Pioneer's birthday, said this morning at an introductory statement in the annual campaign for funds to prevent and to cure infantile paralysis, adding that the general program has been planned, but a number of detailed activities are in the hands of chairmen of various sub-committees.

Mr. Smith's assistants are: Mrs. Maxwell Stewart and Mrs. Maud Coates of Ovidio, co-chairmen of Sanford and the county at large, respectively; Mrs. John Galloway and T. W. Lawton, school activities; Earl Kipp, a collector and tag day; Mrs. Roby Laing, women's activities; Dr. L. T. Doss, parties and social activities; T. Bradford Byrd, publicity; G. W. Spencer, sports; and Hobart Hynes, special gifts.

In a letter to Mr. Smith, Governor Spessard L. Holland wrote, "The present war emergency has added new importance to our nation-wide fight against infantile paralysis, for in this crisis we must move than ever to be on guard against the attack of this dread disease which threatens the health, welfare and efficiency of our people."

British Admit New Defeats In Singapore Area

The British today acknowledged a fresh threat to their left flank in the vital Malayan sector of the Pacific war as the Japanese drove southward toward Singapore and forced new landings at the mouth of the Perak and Barnam Rivers.

The Japanese claimed the broadening of their invasion of Borneo with the occupation of Brunei, between Sarawak and British North Borneo. The Japanese also claimed the occupation of the strategic island of Labuan, off British North Borneo, since Jan. 1.

Now, definite for the defenders of Singapore and Borneo were admitted by the British yesterday. Unable to stop the Japanese in heavy fighting in the tropical jungles bordering the Perak River some 200 miles north of Singapore, the British withdrew their forces to new positions a communication announced.

Owner Talks To Rotary Club On Seeing Eye Dogs

Describes Training, Work Of Animals That Help Masters

The work and training of "seeing eye" dogs were graphically described for Rotarians today by Robert Barnett, and his Belgian police dog, "Katie".

Mr. Barnett was introduced by Gordon Britton, an owner who had lost his sight at the age of 16 and who after graduation from the St. Augustine School for Blind and Stetson University is now director of publicity at Stetson.

"Seeing eye" dogs cost 500 to produce and train. Mr. Barnett said, but are sold to the blind for $150 on a monthly payment plan. Before being able to buy one of these dogs, however, a person has to go through a month's training course at the "Seeing Eye" School in Morristown, N. J.

At this school, Mr. Barnett explained, a person learns more than his dog. He is given a short course in the rehabilitation of the blind. It takes seven months to train one dog and training does not begin until the dog is 14 months old.

The master is taught to obey the dog's command as well as to teach the dog to obey the master.

The method used in training the dog, Mr. Barnett said, is one of praise and correction, or reward and punishment. The dogs are never whipped no matter what they do. Scolding is usually sufficient, but in cases of emergency a slight tug on a choke collar is all the correction necessary.

"After correcting my dog," Mr. Barnett said, "I always..." (Continued on Page Three)

The influential Helsinki newspaper today hinted Finland might withdraw from the war. The paper said it now "seems to be a suitable opportunity to break off military operations at this point."

The Soviets announced the recapture today of Belov in the area west of the Oka river, forcing the Germans back 100 miles from the high water mark of the thrust south of Moscow, and the Russians claimed German casualties numbered 2,000 in the fierce fighting for the town 50 miles south of Kaluga, half way from Tula.

The R. A. F. pounded Italian forces near the Egyptian Libyan border today opening a heavy British drive aimed at clearing out German-Italian Axis opposition in the Libyan frontier zone.

An official report from Vichy which was broadcast by the Germans said today the battered body of Yves Perrier, chief secretary to Interior Minister Pierre Luchaire, was found dead in Nazi-occupied France, probably the victim of an assassin.

Royal Air Force bombers, striking at both sides of the Mediterranean, blasted Tunis and Tripoli in several attacks while fighters planes and bombers swept over the chief Libyan battleground and harried the Axis supply routes. It was announced Sunday.

British headquarters reported that fighting on the Agdele front was restricted chiefly to artillery fire and lightning thrusts by mobile columns against German General Rommel's Axis army on a wide front.

The town of Borovsk, an important position for the security of German-held Moshansk, was captured yesterday by the Red Army in a new onslaught against the Nazi forces before Moscow. It was announced officially.
