Bank Robber Kills Cop In Court Room In Seeking Escape

Gunman Finally Shot And Is Probably Fatally Wounded By Another Policeman

CHICAGO, July 24.—(A. P.)—A desperate bank robber fought policemen with pistols in the criminal court room today killing policeman John Sevick before he probably fatally wounded himself. The gunman, who once before made a break from the defective bureau, was John Echeck, 21, facing trial for robbery of the National Bank at 1155 Center, Illinois.

Echeck suddenly made a dash for freedom from the bull pen of the building into the courtroom. The bullet struck a warning and Sevick drew his weapon, whereupon Echeck fired four times and the policeman dropped dead.

Running from the courtroom, Echeck went to the floor below where he was shot by another policeman.

Indian - Islander Game Is Loop Feature Of Sunday; Feds - Crackers To Battle

The feature game in the Central Florida Baseball League tomorrow afternoon is scheduled to be played in Cocoa between the league-leading Cocoa Indians and the Daytona Beach Islanders, now tied for third place in standings. This game is doubly interesting in that it will be the first this year that the Islanders have appeared at Cocoa with three former Indians in the lineup—Manager Johnnie Culbreth, Joiner, and Holton.

Added to that attraction, old George Cusack will be on the mound to try to score his third straight win as an Islander hurler. Jake Baker, the left-hander, is due to hurl for Cocoa. Jake already has won 12 games and lost six this year, making him the hardest working pitcher.

While the Indians and Islanders are at each other's throats, the Feds will be entertaining for the New Smyrna Crackers. Another 9 to 0 game is in prospect despite the fact that the Crackers took on old Bill O'Brien this week, as well as George Beck, University of Florida athlete, and Dick Brower, a left-hander who probably will hurl.

The Feds have taken the last three games from the Crackers by scores of 11 to 0, 9 to 0, and 7 to 0. Tomorrow the Feds may make it another shut-out although it is possible that the Crackers may spring another surprise as they did the day George Cusack beat them.

Cal Dennis will be the hurling choice of the Feds. The veteran is now in perfect condition, and he has every fan in the hall pulling for him every time he appears on the mound. Given a decent day and support at bat, Cal will hurl a victory at least two out of three times he faces the opposition.

Over in Orlando the Leesburg Bruins will attempt to climb from out of one of the two cellar positions in a battle with the Tigers. The Bruins have signed Jodie White, massive University of Georgia fullback who has been a star 400 batter in the Northeast Florida League for Palatka. The Bruins also have added Ed Hollis Koehster, a young right-hander from Georgia, and it is he who will see the hurling assignment.

The Tigers are going to start their freak delivering left-hander, Jack Baker again. Baker has appeared in two tilts and has lost both of them simply because his mates couldn't get hits against opposing pitchers. Baker has allowed only 11 hits in the two games he hurled, and is considered one of the better hurlers in the loop.

Jack Reed, the Orlando outer gardener, still tops the Central Florida League sluggers by a wide margin. In fact, he is 80 points higher in standings than the next nearest player who has appeared in as many games as he.

Wall, of Cocoa, has the most home runs, five; Wall, Reed, and McCully of Cocoa are tied for the most triples, each having four; Bonner of Sanford and Cupps of Orlando are tied with nine doubles each; McCully has batted in the most runs, 23; Eddie Moore at Sanford has stolen the most bases, 15, although Bonner of Sanford is close on his heels with 13, while Eddie Harrell at Cocoa has 12 sacrifice hits to 11 turned in by Charlie Abbott of Sanford.

Defenders of the law, led by Attorney General Cary D. To take advantage of the act, they said, he must meet current tax payments.

REPORT IS MADE ON FUNDS GIVEN FOR RELIEF WORK

Allotments A Ready Made Would Provide Week Work For All

WASHINGTON, July 22.—(P)—Funds already allotted by the public works administration were described yesterday as enough to give every unemployed man in the nation a week's direct employment.

The statement came from the administration at about the same time that Secretary Ickes was going to the White House to give President Roosevelt a report of the status of the work and plans before the Chief Executive his recommendations for regional advisers through whom the bulk of the $3,300,000,000 fund will be spent.

The administration announced the allotments of $754,276,187 were made for projects that would provide 13,670,788 man weeks of work, or give equivalent of a million men a full year's work directly.

This total probably will be swelled considerably by the program for construction of federal buildings now being considered. About $35,000,000 of these already have received tentative approval.

President Roosevelt's approval of the regional and state advisers submitted to him yesterday will expedite distribution of the public works fund as almost half of it will be distributed through them for state and local projects.

The President's approval within a few days was predicted by Ickes, though his failure to act yesterday, slowed down the program a little.

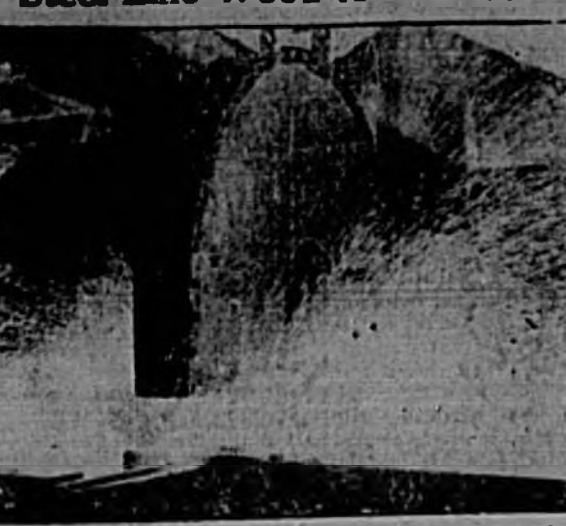

Ickes submitted recommendations for the 10 regional advisers who will supervise and coordinate the program and the advisory boards of three members which will be set up in each state. He withheld their names, however, pending approval by the Chief Executive.

The President went over with his public works administrator the progress of his job-giving program with particular reference to allocations for Federal construction. He was understood to have outlined his views with respect to the pending public building estimates and the dispersed proposals for Army housing and mechanization.

The cabinet board is expected to meet Monday on the budget bureau's report on the public building program.

Action at that time may also come on the revised estimates for river and harbor and flood control works. President Roosevelt returned a $90,000,000 program for further slashing.

Tennessee Dries Charge Fraud In Repeal Election

that 10,000 dry votes were cast in Memphis.

W. E. Norvell, Jr., secretary of the repeal forces, said, "We're very well satisfied, especially in view of the fact that so many of the Republicans lined up against us in the First and Second Districts." Both districts are in East Tennessee.

The balloting was on two states of 63 delegates to the state convention. The delegates were elected by the state-at-large.

In becoming the nineteenth state to vote for repeal Tennessee joined two other states of the South, supposed stronghold of the drys and where many leaders had predicted the Twentieth First Amendment would be defeated, in voting against prohibition.

Arkansas, where the vote yesterday stood at 62,176 for repeal and 41,232 against, and Alabama, where 93,679 votes had been counted for repeal and 61,918 against, voted last Tuesday.

When the wet trend first became apparent in Arkansas a movement was started to call a special session of the legislature to legalize beer and yesterday Governor Futrell said he would call the assembly when a majority of the members had agreed on a bill.

The repeals concluded the campaign in all three states largely on a plea for loyalty to the Democratic platform and support of the Roosevelt program.

The dries had asked for continued adherence to the traditional dryness of the South.

Purser's Safe On Sunken Steamship Is Reported Found

NORFOLK, Va., July 22.—(P)—Capt. H. L. Bowdoin's treasure hunting expedition off the Virginia coast yesterday reported to headquarters here that the purser's office safe of the long-submerged steamer Merida had been brought to the decks of the salvage ship Salvor.

This information was received by Bowdoin's associates in a wireless code message yesterday.

"We know nothing of what the safe contains," said one representative here.

"The purser's office adjoins the strong room, believed by the expedition leaders to contain more than $4,000,000 in gold bullion and 17 tons of silver valued at approximately $200,000.

Captain Bowdoin, master of the Salvor, has spent more than two years preparing to bring Merida's treasure from the bottom of the Atlantic. The ship was sunk 20 years ago in a collision with the steamer Admiral Farragut.

The Crime of Kidnaping

The abduction of an Oklahoma oil millionaire provides the latest sensation in the kidnaping epidemic which has been spreading over the country. Up to date practically every crime of this sort has centered around a family of the very rich or the politically and socially prominent. One is inclined to wonder how long it will be before the security of middle class citizens will be endangered as gangs of kidnapers increase their numbers and gradually reduce their ransom demands.

Kidnaping as a major crime of the country has gathered momentum during the past year in direct proportion to the efforts of the government in breaking up bootlegging rings and curbing the sale of illegal liquor. The legalization of beer has turned the attention of many racketeers from beer-running to kidnaping. As the gangs of the underworld found their most lucrative source of revenues being taken away from them, they turned to another easy method of maintaining themselves in the style to which they had become accustomed.

It has been argued somewhat at length that the repeal of prohibition would and racketeering. If now appears that the repeal movement is developing an even more serious offense against society than the gang slayings and bomb explosions of the past decade. At least the bootleggers confined their destructive activities rather largely to men of their own class. Kidnapers have no respect for law-abiding citizens, the men, women, or children of the most peaceful pursuits.

Their activities of the past few months constitute a defiant challenge to orderly government. If the strong arm of the law is not long enough to reach the master criminals who are plotting these most vicious crimes, and to put them securely behind the bars, then we can expect nothing from government. If the government cannot protect the innocent children of its most loyal and patriotic citizens, then not much can be expected from it in protecting them from foreign invasion, or internal strife and discord.

It is a challenge which should be met with every instrument at the command of government. Kidnaping should be ended if it is necessary to declare martial law, to call out the army and navy, and line up criminals by the scores before the firing squad. If it is not stopped with as vicious abruptness as the seriousness of the offense demands, the time will come when not a child in the country will be safe and not a mother or a father will breathe a breath with any sense of security whatever.

There should be no compromising with these criminals, and there should be no sympathy for them if their penalty is death.

More Leisure

With the 40-hour week already having been placed in effect for hundreds of thousands of workers, and with the prospect that in the very near future everyone will be spending no more than this amount of time at their jobs or probably less, the question arises as to what disposition will be made of the extra leisure which this radical innovation in our industrial life will bring.

The old truism that idleness begets mischief might be adopted as the pessimistic attitude in contemplating what will be the result of the new-found spare time which labor will obtain. One can visualize a very sordid picture of factory workers, unused to the short day's work with added energy due to less physical requirements, seeking a way to expend this energy in wayward channels. The probable return of easily accessible liquor adds not a little to the unpleasantness of the picture.

On the other hand it is not unreasonable to expect that the majority of people will take advantage of their added leisure to improve themselves by greater contact with literature, by increased participation in healthful sports, and by more frequent and extended excursions in the family automobile to camping sites and fishing grounds. Work around the home, such as repairing things, of painting, of keeping the lawn mowed, and of tending the vegetable and flower gardens could be another way in which the shorter week might be very beneficial.

There can be no mistaking it that labor and all other workers in general will have the chance of enjoying a much freer and easier life and of participating in the much desired fruits of leisure, if properly accepted. There will always be, however, the lurking menace of misused idleness, a problem which must be met by each individual. We are optimistic in the belief that the shorter hours of work will be a big boon in increasing the mental, physical, and moral character of our citizens.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. Deane Turner writes Sanford friends from the Thousand Isles in New York state that the weather is a cool day and she is forced to wear heavy clothing. The Clyde boat is bringing more people to Sanford this summer than ever before. Most of them are prospectors who are looking for places to locate. The Rev. Arthur Peck and his mother are now comfortably quartered in the Episcopal rectory at the corner of Fourth Street and Magnolia Avenue.

A. C. Appiah, who bought the C. W. house on Elm Avenue recently and expects to occupy it in August. Miss Daisy Bell will return from Winter Park the first of the week where she has been visiting relatives and having a fine time. Mrs. Nathan Garner and Miss Margaret returned Wednesday after a visit of a few months with relatives in Mead, Ga. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lord go to the good quarters of a new house, get that done, a few days ago.

THE OLD, OLD STORY

So long as the stock market keeps going up there is nothing any story about regulation. But the minute it slumps and speculators get frightened about the danger for high speculation in operations. And usually speculators in get on the already overvalued and overvalued securities in Washington to do the regulating.

Not all of those who seek regulation are demagogues. It is a long shot. The average business would like to see some of the obvious faults of the system removed. To often the side swing of prices has a disturbing influence on confidence and trade and the same thing is true of the commodity markets.

The temptation to gamble is ever present. If you are inclined to betting, you can legally get more action and on a larger scale than playing the horse races or shooting craps. The chance for "easy money" which lured all classes of society in the buoyant summer days of 1929, is an irresistible attraction for lots of folk who have no right to risk losing their savings.

Speculation, however, is not the real purpose of maintaining a stock exchange despite what seecfers say. There is a legitimate demand for a place where securities may be traded and the business of the country could not get along very handily without it. Unless there were

Atlanta Press And Public Cooperating In War On Racket

(Continued From Page One) to hit the right number, the chances are that he will not be paid off. We have received many complaints from persons who bet, only to be told that the "winner" who took their money "is not working for us." The companies frequently change management and if there are successive hits and the winners demand their prizes. The lottery game is all in favor of the banker, with nothing for the "winner." The usual form of the racket is to base the game on the daily bond sale, the first three eighths of the 100,000 columns being selected. If a person bets, for instance, he or she selects a number such as 987 and pays anything from a penny to a dollar. If the daily bond sale for the day total is 987,000 the better wins, but if there should be one figure difference, the better loses, as the exact number must be guessed in order to win anything.

There are other forms of the racket, such as the baseball or parlay game, in which the number of runs brought in by various baseball games are involved, and the horse racing gamble.

Statistics in criminal court at Atlanta show that 200 lottery cases have been tried in the last three months. There were fines imposed during the last 30 days amounting to approximately $7000, and a number of defendants drew chain gang sentences. The court has 180 cases pending, and most of these will be on the calendar for the week of July 31, although the court is in summer vacation.

It is understood, waiting no more over the responsibility, but enjoying in the affluence of our God" (p. 140).

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCH "Truth" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, July 23. The Golden Text was from Psalm 100:5, "The Lord is good, his mercy is everlasting, and his truth endureth to all generations." Among the citations which composed the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "And the Lord spake unto you out of the midst of the fire; ye heard the voice of the words, but saw no similitude; only ye heard a voice. Know therefore this day, that the Lord is in the midst of the fire, and upon the earth he is seen as fire." (Deut. 4:12, 15).

Adams said he found the weapon on Bowen's body with a string attached to the trigger in such fashion that the gun could have been discharged by pulling the string with a toe.

For several days, Adams said members of the family told him, Bowen had spoken of a plan to shoot a dog, and several times he had gone out of the house with his gun but always until last night returned without firing a shot.

Last night, Adams said members of the family told him, the farmer left them sitting on the front porch and went to bed. A short time later he was heard to rise and go out through the back of the house. An instant later the report of the gun was heard and members of the family ran to the back to find Bowen lying dead, in his night clothing.

One of Bowen's several sons told him Saturday, Adams said that his father was "mighty blue" over the kidnaping case and neighbors had been attempting to cheer him up.

Just now President Roosevelt is said to be hearing from many sections demanding heroic remedies. After his four years as Governor of New York the bewailers need not fear that he is unopposed on the situation. If he decided to act it will be because he has found some plan more likely to succeed than any heretofore presented.

Father Of Alleged Kidnaper Is Victim Of Suicide In Home

LAVONIA, Ga., July 24.—(P)—W. A. Bowen, 78-year-old father of Pryor Bowen, under indictment for the kidnaping of John K. Ottley, Sr., Atlanta banker shot himself to death at his farm home here last night, Police Chief D. W. Adams reported. The officer said the aged farmer had been despondent since his son was arrested last month. The charge from both barrels of a shotgun, Adams said, struck

THE ROMANS had a phrase for it. "CAVEAT EMPTOR," meaning "Let the buyer beware." This wasn't used as a bit of balm to ease the ancient conscience; nor, yet, was it placarded in the booths and stalls of the market-place. It was a piece of every-day knowledge, born of dear-bought experience. A shopkeeper knew little about the source of his merchandise. The tunic he bought from a trader, who said it came from Byzantium. So he sold it as the latest Byzantine style. The trader told him the dye was pure Tyrian—it wouldn't fade. So he sold it as Tyrian dye. But the buyer knew the responsibility was his own. If he guessed wrongly, or his judgment was poor, it was his hard luck. Today, fortunately, there are safer guides than the blanket-warding to "let your eyes be your market." These guides are the newspaper advertisements. In this newspaper, they are a daily catalog of the best values in town—signed by responsible firms. If the goods are not all that is claimed for them, these advertisers would need to "beware." For no business can thrive on a one-time sale, or on dissatisfied customers. A signed advertisement is, in a way, like a promissory note. The advertiser has made a statement, and affixed his signature as a sign of good faith. So, read the advertisements before you start on a buying trip. Make this a daily habit, and see how much you save... in time, in trouble, in money, in shoe-leather.

"For God's sake come over here," shouted Jim Mollison from out of the darkness.

The searchers quickly found him suffering from cuts and gashes.

His wife was lying about 15 feet away, also suffering cuts, but neither was seriously injured.

The searchers reached into the smashed plane and cut away enough fabric to fashion stretchers for both of the fliers.

Using these, they were rushed to conveyances and taken to the hospital.

Hasty examinations by physicians there showed Mollison had abrasions on his leg.

His 24-year-old wife, the former Amy Johnson, suffered a bruised chest and a lacerated right hand.

"I was so tired I didn't know where I was headed," said Mollison to hospital attendants.

"He couldn't see. He couldn't see," moaned his wife.

Captain Mollison told the doctor at the Bridgeport hospital that he had run short of fuel while coming down the coast.

He said that he saw the lights of the Bridgeport airport and decided to land there. He said he circled the field five times before he put the plane down.

Hospital authorities said the Mollisons would spend the night at the hospital.

"We will insist," Oliver H. Bartine, the superintendent, said.

and call a repeal election whenever it became necessary for Montana to be the thirty-sixth state to ratify repeal.

The Virginia legislature meets in special session Aug. 17 and is expected to set a vote for this year.

Governor Murray, of Oklahoma, who was authorized by the legislature to call a special election any time after Dec. 5 has announced he would not use the authority and Oklahoma would vote before the July, 1934 primary. Oklahoma in a recent referendum favored that beverage by nearly 100,000 majority.

Governor Lafont, of Kentucky, is considering calling a special session shortly. A special election in Mississippi is not considered a likely one in Louisiana is a matter of speculation.

Legislatures in Georgia, Kansas and North Dakota failed to set up prohibition voting machinery.

On the basis of partly official and slightly incomplete returns, the 20 states that have favored repeal did so with popular votes of 9,672,625 for repeal and 2,375,761 against repeal.

WORKERS TO BE BETTER FITTED TO JOBS, IS PLAN

Employment Service Is Working On System Of Classifying

WASHINGTON, July 24.—If plans now being studied by the new federal employment service are successful, American workers and their jobs will be better fitted to each other in the future, with a more content and stable laboring class envisaged as a result.

As a part of this organized service, states will be shown improved methods of classifying the jobs available within their borders and of finding capable men to fill these jobs.

The federal employment service plans to set up demonstration centers in various states where explanation will be given to local officials and industries of these novel steps which will give an immediate picture of the demand for and supply of jobs.

The research work of the service is in the charge of Dr. W. H. Stead, associate director, who has been experimenting along these lines at the University of Minnesota. Plans call for the assignment of federal funds to state offices for experiment for a while, until local organizations become interested in it and give financial support. Experts from the employment service will be "loaned" to aid in getting this research under way in the states.

This is the way this research problem of finding the right man for the right job is being worked out in Minnesota and the way that will be recommended for trial on a nation-wide scale. An intensive study is made of accounting records of various plants over a period of 10 years to find just what job each industry offers today.

Experts deduce from these records which industries are the up and coming ones and which appear to be on a down-grade. Profit-and-loss charts over 10 years give an approximate picture of what may be expected for the next few years. It is learned whether machines in the industry are decreasing the demand for labor and what effect seasonal changes have on the industry.

Balanced against this job supply picture is another which gives the workers who are looking for jobs. A group of tests is being devised which will give a clear picture of the ability of each worker, not only along general intelligence lines, but also in his chosen trade, if he is a factory worker, his finger dexterity, as well as his academic training, is subject to examination. The experts study the outcome, come to the conclusion that this man looks as if he would be a successful salesman, another looks as if he would make a competent file clerk and so on. The employment office as a result, has in its possession not only a picture of jobs which have a future, but also a list of men who show special aptitude for such jobs. All that remains to be done is to bring the two together.

Vigilantes Track Down Bank Bandit, Shoot Him To Death

YORKVILLE, Ill., July 24.—(AP)—An all night man hunt by vigilantes was climaxed yesterday with the slaying of a bank robber and imprisonment of his two companions.

The dead man was unidentified and his companions refused to give their names but Sheriff Martin Hextell said he was convinced the men were Chicago gangsters, as they asked for a Chicago lawyer to represent them.

Throughout the night, Kendall County's newly organized anti-bank robbery vigilantes trapped woods and cornfields following footprints under direction of the sheriff.

Within a half hour after the $300 robbery Saturday of the Millbrook State Bank, 150 of the vigilantes were scouring Kendall County highways by automobile and foot.

Two miles south of Millbrook they found the bandit car, overturned the foot intact. The trio had fled to nearby woods. The posse surrounded the place and a few minutes later captured one of the group. The others penetrated deeper into the woods.

The posse surrounded the thickets and maintained a vigil throughout the night.

At dawn the field was searched but again the pair had eluded the posse. During the night they had slipped out of the place. Their tracks were plainly visible however, and the posse followed the footprints for about seven miles before sighting the men.

When they failed to halt, Deputy Sheriff Louis Olson, of Hinkley, opened fire with a shotgun, killing one of the men. The other surrendered.

U. S. ATTITUDE ON LABOR REVIEWED AT GENEVA MEET

Conference In Favor Of Establishing 40-Hour Working Week

GENEVA—Speaking as the leader of the first American delegation to attend an International Labor Conference, Miss Mary Anderson, director of the women's bureau of the United States Department of Labor, has explained to the representatives of 49 countries the American attitude concerning the principal questions before the conference. Miss Anderson was one of the two women accredited by governments as delegates, the other being Mrs. Betty Kjelsberg, chief woman inspector of factories in Norway.

The three principal questions before the conference this year have been the reduction of working hours as a means of combating unemployment, unemployment insurance, and the suppression of fee-paying employment agencies. As American practice and tradition are different from those of most European countries in all three of these fields, the first report on these subjects ever submitted to a labor conference by an American delegates aroused more than passing interest.

The conference went on record in favor of proceeding to draft an international convention establishing a 40-hour week in industry. In this connection, Miss Anderson explained that the movement for shortened working time is now receiving great impetus in the United States, through the combined efforts of employers, workers and economists familiar with changing needs.

An international agreement tending to introduce uniformity into existing unemployment insurance systems is being prepared by the labor organization. In this connection, Miss Anderson explained that the systems of social insurance of various types which have been so effectively undertaken in many European countries have had practically no general development in the United States. In the last few years, however, much attention has been given to unemployment insurance. The schemes that have been undertaken have fallen into three classes: those operated by trade unions; those undertaken by joint agreement of employers and employees; and those operated by governments. Approximately 48 nations provide unemployment benefits, and are said to have paid their unemployed members more than $9,000,000 in 1931. Of the joint agreement plans, probably the most successful are those of the clothing trades.

The American Association for Labor Legislation is doing much to educate the public in the merits of this movement. Wisconsin in January, 1932, passed the first unemployment insurance law in the United States. Three or four other states are investigating its possibilities. A conference of governors of seven important industrial states held at Albany in 1931, at the invitation of Governor Roosevelt, discussed a possible plan for the creation of unemployment reserves, sometimes referred to as unemployment insurance. As a result of this work was created the Interstate Commission on Unemployment Insurance, whose findings and recommendations form one of the most important pronouncements on the subject.

This meeting, open to the public but particularly to celery growers, will be held at the Coast House tomorrow night at 8 o'clock.

Mr. Dornier expects a large attendance. All persons attending are invited to take a part in the discussion which will arise, for it is anticipated that the agreement will be well threshed out, and either rejected or accepted.

In his announcement of the meeting, Mr. Dornier said, "As in Sanford growers may already know, the celery shipping interests of the state are about to enter an agreement, to be submitted to the Secretary of Agriculture for his approval, containing certain important features that they believe will be of great benefit to the celery industry of this state, and of particular interest to our local growers. It is felt that certain of these features of the agreement should receive the endorsement of the growers. Therefore, I urge all growers to attend tomorrow night's meeting."

Officers of the Illinois national guard on duty in Christian county said it was possible the bombings were in retaliation for blasts at nearby Kincaid Friday night. A bomb was exploded in a conduit which conveyed electricity to Peabody mine No. 7, operated by labor from the United Miners organization.

The genesis of the coal miners difficulties—which has taken nearly a score of lives, resulted in injuries to hundreds, the arrest of nearly 1000 persons, and great property damage—was termination of the $6.10 basic wage scale in March, 1932.

Differences developed over negotiations and settlement of a new wage scale and as a result the state saw the miners tossed into a vortex of violence. The Progressive miners organized to absorb the disaffected members of the United group and other unorganized miners and since has been in strife with the other organization.

At dawn the field was searched but again the pair had eluded the posse. During the night they had slipped out of the place. Their tracks were plainly visible however, and the posse followed the footprints for about seven miles before sighting the men.

When they failed to halt, Deputy Sheriff Louis Olson, of Hinkley, opened fire with a shotgun, killing one of the men. The other surrendered.

"I WOULDN'T DRIVE A CAR WITHOUT Hydraulic Brakes!"
AN INTERVIEW WITH CAPT. FRANK DOUGHTY, 91 VESPER ST., PORTLAND, ME.
Look at the Brakes when you "look at All Three"
FOR 17 years, Capt. Doughty has called out of Portland harbor. Nowdays, you'll see him sailing around Portland streets in the Plymouth sedan that's pictured at the right.
Why a Plymouth? "Out at sea, a man has to be able to maneuver out of trouble," says the Captain. "On land... you have to be able to stop in your tracks!"
So hydraulic brakes win another friend. Because they "stop you on a dime." They are self-equalizing.
No other low-priced car offers you hydraulic brakes. No other low-priced car offers you the combination of Floating Power engine mountings, safety-steel bodies, rigid-X frame.
In short... no other low-priced car offers you the balance of comfort, safety, style and performance, and you have only so "look at all three" to find this out. Do that... before you buy.
"I know something about mechanics. And I'm proud to show my new Plymouth... because it's not only safe-looking but sturdy and dependable."
Standard: 2-door sedan $445; 4-door sedan $510; runabout coupe $465; land-rover coupe $445. De Luxe: 2-door sedan $525; 4-door sedan $595; runabout coupe $500; runabout coupe $475. All subject to change. See Plymouth at the Superior Motor Building, Chicago Country of Progress.
