OMAHA, Neb. - Aaron Carmichael has never read a Stephen King thriller but King has read one of the 11-year-old boy's chilling tales, and he liked it.

Aaron's story tells of a boy who wants to be puld for mowing his neighbor's lawn When ly visits the neighbor's house to collect his carnings, he makes a grim discovery.

The entries were judged on creativity, scariness and quality of writing. Many of them focused on "blood and guts." Harper said, but Aaron's story was suspenseful, chilling and ended with a surprise twist.

Aaron said he had not read any of King's spine-tingling novels. He also will be awarded a computer and printer, and three Disney movies on videotape.

Seminole County will be responsible for paying $230,507 of the amount, with Lake Mary paying the remaining $522,701.

SANFORD - With some encouragement from school board chairman Joe Williams, four members of the public stood up to ask questions before the district budget was tentatively approved for the 1991-92 fiscal year.

There were no hostile jabs and few protests. "I think that the public can see that we have been responsive to their objections and the needs of education in Seminole County.' Supt. Robert Hughes said following the public hearing.

The $312 million budget which was tentatively approved for advertising prior to the Sept. 11 final public hearing, calls for a slight decrease in taxes.

Homeowners with a $100,000 home with a $25,000 homestead exemption can expect to pay approximately $6 less on their tax bill in the upcoming year.

The 1990-91 millage rate for the sample home was 10.169 mills. The proposed millage for this year would be 10.089 mills, a decrease of .08 most outspoken of those who approached the lecturn to address the board. Speaking on behalf of those in the

The painful truth: a visit from tooth fairy costs $1

By CLIFF EDWARDS Associated Press Writer

DEERFIELD. III. - Brace yourself: Rosemary Wells has spent 20 years researching the tooth fairy, and among her findings - the going rate for a tooth under the pillow is one infla-tion-eroded dollar.

Wells, who runs a desktop publishing business at home, has assembled surveys, articles and some 500 tooth-fairy items including dolls, pillows, paintings, cartoons and stories - to understand the myth of the dental sprite who dispenses money for molars.

"It's a rite of passage, a very important time in a child's life," she said.

Wells found out through a survey of 2.324 dental patients across the nation that 88 percent of parents use or plan to use the tooth fairy concept with their children. She also found that the going rate is about $1.

Of course, inflation gums things up. A buck in 1991 is worth only 9 cents in 1930 dollars, when a kid got an average of 21 cents, Wells said. No one knows what the tooth fairy looks like, but almost everyone has ideas. "You've got your basic Tinkerbell-type tooth fairy with the wings, wand, a little older and whatnot." Wells said re-cently. "Then you have some people who think of the tooth fairy as a man, or a bunny rabbit or a mouse." The Chicago-based American Dental Association, after several hours of brushing up on the subject Monday, issued a nocomment.

The tooth fairy's origins are obscure. Wells said. As far as she can tell, tooth fairy lore really took flight around the turn of the century.

"It's tied to the right of passage, a stage in growth of the individual. The time when we mark off the child's first tooth. It's remembered in every culture and predates Christianity." Wells

DADE CITY — A man whose hand and leg were mangled by an alligator said from a hospital bed Tuesday he barely escaped with his life, but state game officials think it was the other way

Mark Allison, 25, said a state game officer served him with a $181 fine Tuesday, claiming Allison and his brother were really trying to take the gator.

It's illegal to capture alligators in Florida except during state-controlled hunts when trappers are permitted to take a certain limit and sell the meat and hides.

Allison and his brother Clay Allison, 27, spotted the 71/2-foot gator in the middle of a dirt road as they drove in the predawn hours Monday.

They stopped the pickup and the younger Allison got out, waving his arms to chase it away.

"I never thought he'd come at me," Mark said. "And I didn't think he was going to let go."

Tourism down from last year

TALLAHASSEE — Florida tourism in April failed to match last year's record high, partly because of a change in the Easter holiday, state officials said.

In April, fewer than 3.8 million visitors came to Florida, according to firgures released Tuesday by the state Department of Commerce. In April 1990, more than 4 million people came

So far this year, tourism figures are down 2.6 percent from the 1990 figures. Tourism in 1991, however, is still above the level set in 1989.

"Of course, it's one of the more outrageous myths," Goldenberg added. "That's why we have the expressions, 'She still believes in the tooth fairy' and 'lf you believe in that, you believe in the tooth fairy."

The other part of the tooth fairy's mission — the part that many dentists like — is promoting proper care of teeth.

The Kentucky Dental Association once set up a tooth fairy hotline that got so many calls that officials had to give her "laryngitis" before the campaign was over.

FORT LAUDERDALE - Fort Lauderdale's vice-mayor, a conservative crusader who campaigned against wild spring breakers, topless bars and adult bookstores, resigned after his name surfaced in a sex scandal.

Doug Danzinger issued a terse letter of resignation Tuesday after his name was linked in news reports to the wife of a Broward County deputy who surrendered Tuesday on four counts of prostitution.

Danzinger said in his letter that he was leaving "with deep emotion and dedication to a job not yet complete ... with the support of my family and for personal reasons."

Danziger's name was included in a list of Kathy Willets' alleged clients kept by her husband, Deputy Jeffrey Willets, the Sun-Sentinel of Fort Lauderdale reported Tuesday, quoting unidentified law enforcement and courthouse sources.

Danziger, a 50-year-old con-servative Republican, made no mention of the connection to Mrs. Willets in his four-line resignation letter. But he told the Sun-Sentinel

His 33-year-old wife faces four second-degree misdemeanor charges of prostitution, each punishable by up to 60 days in jail and fines of up to $500. She was released on a $2,000 bond.

Sanford receives report on latest comprehensive plan

By MICK PPENTAL Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The Florida Department of Community Affairs has analyzed Sanford's newest 5-year Comprehensive Plan. The DOC voiced no adverse comments or objections, but suggested certain rewording.

Cities are required, by law, to provide the state with five year projections on a large number of issues that affect the city and its people, and how they will be resolved. Sanford sent it's plan to Tallahassee on April 1 of this year.

The results of the department's review and suggested changes have now been sent back for further action. The changes were requested only in certain items and in most cases, it was a matter of the way in which they were worded rather than their intent.

As of the return of the objections, recommenda-tions and comments, dated July 12, the City of Sanford has 60 days in which to adopt the proposed plan or adopt the plan with changes.

Sanford City Planner Jay Marder said he will present the suggested changes to the city's Planning and Zoning commission, during a meeting scheduled for this Thursday. "P&Z has been working on the plan since the start. They will have to take a look at the overall objections. and make recommendations. From that point, it will be brought up for formal action by the City of revising were identified as the city's Traffic Circulation Plan, the treatment of environmentally sensitive lands, conservation areas and other natural resources, and the city's treatment of drainage improvements and stormwater management needs.

Space agency's 'midlife crisis' being examined

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON - Shortly before NASA launches its 42nd space shuttle flight in Florida on Thursday, a congressional panel will be asking witnesses in Washington why the agency has had so many failures.

The timing is coincidental and ironic, brought about by the fact that the shuttle Atlantis couldn't be launched last week because an engine computer did not work.

The House Science, Space and Technology investigations subcommittee will examine the National Aeronautics and Space Administration's "midlife crisis," said an announcement that referred to the agency's 'management failures' and "loss of leadership."

"There's a buildup of frustration among the members of the committee that NASA doesn't seem to be able to do simple management-type tasks," said James Paul, a committee staff member. "If you don't have confidence in management, you don't have confidence in the program.' The hearing follows a spate of bad news for NASA. The Hubble space telescope doesn't see well enough; the GOES weather satellite program is 143 percent over budget; the space shuttle has constant flight postponements: and the Galileo space probe's jammed antenna threatens to cripple its 1995-1997 exploration of Mars.

On top of that. The Washington Post reported in today's editions that NASA officials were considering an emergency shuttle mission to repair gyroscopes that control the Hubble telescope. But Janet Ruff. an agency spokeswoman, told The Associated Press she was unaware of such planning.

Worse for NASA, from the standpoint of space supporters.

Atlantis heads into final hours

By MARCIA DUNN AP Aerospace Writer

CAPE CANAVERAL -NASA headed into the final hours of the countdown for Thursday's launch of Atlantis with a shuttle communications satellite.

The countdown, begun Monday, is NASA's second attempt to get Atlantis off the ground. The first was halted hours before liftoff a week ago because of a bad engine computer. The unit was replaced.

Forecasters put the chances of favorable weather at 80 percent.

We're not tracking any problems," test director Mike Leinbach said. "The ship is clean. The crew is ready, and we're anxious to get on with this launch."

A major hurdle was cleared Tuesday when NASA gave the final go-ahead for an 11:01 a.m. Thursday liftoff.

Milking profit

The net worth of the average dairy farmer in the United States increased by 58 percent between 1967 and 1990. So why is Congress considering raising price supports for dairy products?

The powerful dairy lobby has prompted lawmakers to re-examine the minimum price that milk, cheese and butter commands at the local supermarket. If previous congressional deliberations on this subject are any guide, consumers should begin to guard their pocketbooks.

Under federal law, the government sets a price floor which guarantees dairy products will not fall below the level that Congress decrees. The U.S. Department of Agriculture currently buys surplus dry milk for 85 cents a pound, butter for 98 cents a pound, and cheese for $1.11 a pound. Once these products get to market, however, the prices are considerably higher because of processing

The federal dairy surplus program is costing consumers more than $5 billion a year. There are more than 600 federal employees who administer the voluminous rules on milk production and marketing.

Under the 1986-87 Dairy Termination Program, for instance, 114 farmers were paid more than $1 million each to take a five-year vacation from milk production. One central California dairy farmer received a whopping $20 million to send his herd to slaughter. Although the dairyman was making a good living, he couldn't afford to pass up this federal bonanza.

The average full-time dairy farmer is worth more than $500,000. In California, which may some irpass Wisconsin as the nation's leading dairy producer, the cash receipts for milk last year amounted to more than $1 million for each dairyman.

farmers stems in large part from their diminishing numbers. Since the 1930s, when the federal government got into the pricesupport business, the number of dairymen had decreased 95 percent.

Enhanced productivity has made it possible for far fewer dairy farmers to supply consumers. Yet these farmers are among the most protected of American producers. According to the International Trade Commission, the U.S. quota on whole dry milk is the equivalent of a 161 percent tariff, the butter equal to a 190 percent tariff and some cheese quotas are comparable to a 172 percent tariff.

Whenever Congress drives up the cost of milk, this inflates the dairy farmers' cost of production. Higher dairy prices not only hurt consumers but also reduce demand for dairy products.

The dairy lobby contends federal supports are needed to ensure the prompt distribution of these perishable products while preventing wild price fluctuations. It should be noted, however, that eggs share many of the same market characterisites of dairy products. Yet consumers have not suffered because there is no federal price support program for eggs. During the last 30 years, eggs have been readily available and their price adjusted for inflation has declined about 50 percent. Meanwhile the inflation-adjusted price of milk has changed little despite a sharp delcine in production costs.

increasing dairy price supports would not serve the long-term interests of consumers or farmers. President Bush should veto any congressional attempt to do so.

Bootstraps: myth and reality

BOSTON - I am not surprised to find that picking yourself up by your bootstraps is still the favorite American spectator sport. We have always cheered those who attempt this gravity-defying feat.

The image of the self-made man, the notion that talent, wile, energy, intelligence are more important than birth is what brought people to our country. Europe had its aristocracy. Asia its caste systems. But in America moral one-ups-manship went to the underdog. And it still does.

To this day, the mythic American story is about the trip from the bottom - the Illinois log cabn, the inner-city housing project, the China Seas boat - to the top of the class or the country. The prize goes to the ones who did it

This time the star in the tournament of the self-made is Clarence Thomas. From the very moment he stood on the president's lawn, the man who was born into Southern poverty and segregation presented a compelling version of the story.

The Thomas nomination has provoked a long and searing debate about racial politics. But it has also kindled a more subtle dialogue about helping hands and bootstraps, self-help and self-esteem.

Those who admire his life story talk of the distance the judge has come and the odds he's overcome. But even those who criticize him use the ideology of the self-made man.

Thomas, say some, suffers from the syndrome - amnesia about where he came from and those he left behind. It's a disease that afflicts many who make it.

Thomas, say some, is rather less the American archetype than meets the resume.

His law school admission may have come from an affirmative-action program. He didn't make Bush's list on merit but on race. He's not his own man, but the conservatives' kept man.

Ironically, proponents of affirmative action also chip away at Thomas' credibility by calling him a son of affirmative action. They offer unwitting evidence of the nominee's belief that such programs undermine the prizes that Americans award for individual success.

All of this has churned up dormant questions in our culture. Questions that we deal with as adults, children, parents, citizens. What part of our character and achievement do we owe to others? What is identifiably ours? What part of the self is manufactured by an assembly line of parents, teachers, friends, bosses and what part is indeed self-made?

When Thomas was introduced to the country, this believer in self-reliance thanked his grandparents and the nuns who were "adamant that I make something of myself."

His definition of self-help includes family but is wary of government. What of others who may have found less help at home and need more from the government? Why is one sort of help right and the other wrong?

All but the most narcissistic of us know that no one is truly self-made. And all but the most foolish know that everyone must make his or

So, we go on collectively nurturing people in the belief that they are self-reliant. As parents we sacrifice much to raise children who are told to be independent of us. As a group, we

Before he turned 40, he made his dream come true, but he took a strange route through the Environmental Protection Agency where he enforced clean-air laws during the Reagan administration. Now, as the owner of the Geneva Steel works in Provo. Utah, Cannon, a Republican, is thinking about going back to Washington, this time as a senator.

Some might consider working in the Reagan EPA as good training for the steel Industry, but Cannon is a certified environmentalist who, during his tenure a SPA; worked to clear up the air that steel mills pollute. As head of the EPA's air-quality division in the early 1960s, he is credited with getting the lead out of gasoline and tightening the rules on emissions from industrial smoke-economic bad news and environmental pessimism. We normally devote this space to delivering that bad news and pinpointing those who are responsible for it. Today we recognize someone who is going against the

As a steel magnate, Cannon is striving to remove the pollutants from his own smokestacks. His first move after taking over the Geneva furnaces was to appeal to his blue-collar workers to help him clean them up. They showed him how it could be done, and then helped him do it with an enthusiasm that he infused.

Not only has Cannon introduced environmentalism on the factory floor, he is installing equipment that will dramatically reduce the soot billowing out of the plant. These environmental accommodations will cost more than $80 million - almost double the original purchase price of the mill.

Yet, Cannon is transforming an old smoky plant into an environmental model without short-changing his stockholders. Not only has Geneva Steel generated a profit every month since he took over, it also is swimming against the tide of imports coming to the United States from Japan. Cannon sells steel to the Japanese at cheaper rates than they can produce it themselves.

The distinguished British publication The Economist wrote of Cannon's acquisition of the old mill, "America's Geneva Steel (is) one of the few steel makers in the world with a good environmental reputation - and one of the world's most profitable."

Cannon is nothing like the hard-eyed tycoon that one might expect to be sitting in the executive offices of a steel mill. He is an amiable fellow, round-faced, blinking through glasses, with the knowing look of an owl. There is also an unpretentious, next-door neighbor quality about him. He dropped by our office, unannounced, for a visit. Because all the chairs were taken, he sprawled on the floor while we talked politics for two hours.

He said he wouldn't mind returning to Washington as the next senator from Utah to fill the spot of retiring Republican Jake Garn. This summer he is testing the waters, not by polling, but by biking with his son from the top to the bottom of Utah, thus combining political probing with physical fitness and a father-son outing. Last week. Cannon announced he was stepping down from running the day to-day operations of Geneva while he explore the Senate race.

Greenway name

BANFORD — Central Florida environmentalista will stage a letter-writing campaign against a proposal to name the Eastern Beltway the

"Quite honestly, I'm insulted by It," said Allen Clark, chairman of Florida Audubon Society and of the Seminole County Expressway Authority environmental advisory group. "We need to at least go on record that we oppose this."

Members of the advisory group united Tuesday to oppose the name selected by Seminole and Orange expressivaly agencies and Osceola and Lake County officials to name the route that will eventually encircle the greater Orlando area.

"Greenways" are nationally-recognized trails and corridors that are given that name by a national organization in Virginia. The Wekiva River was citd as an example of a greenway in an edition of "National Geographic" last year.

Environmental committee members decided they will write members of the Oriando-Orange County Expressway Authority and the Florida Department of Transportation expressing their opposition to the name.

But another SCEA advisor suggested 'Greenway' was a picasant alternative in other, more realistic options.

"Do you want to call it a 'blackway?,' " asked Charles Brenner, a member of the SCEA citizens advisory committee.

"It's not important waht you call it until you get into this," Clark answered. "This name is part of a national program."

Road officials have decided that the commonly known name of the "Eastern Beltway," which includes the Seminole County Expressway, was easy to confuse with the East-West Beltway, the Eastern Extension of East-West Beltway, the Southern Connector and the Western Beltway, which are all part of the same toll road network. The expressway's official name is "State Road

SCEA director Gerald Brinton acid a committee of local officials, including SCEA chairman and Sanford mayor Bettye Smith, originally decided to recomment the name of "Greeneway" to honor former Orange County expressway chairman Bill Greene, who promoted the idea of a tollroad around Orlando from Sanford to what became

Although the expressway authority endorsed, and FDOT had budgeted, a $4 million landscaping scheme for the 12-mile expressway in Seminole County, group members said that falls short of qualifying the road as a greenway.

"It's still going to have fences on it," said Fred Hardin, president of Friends of the Wekiva River inc. "They're going to plant a few trees, sure. It's just unfortunate they chose this name. It means something else entirely."

Budget-

In an effort to balance the proposed budget the school district has, among other things, increased the teacher-to-student ratio by hiring no new teachers despite an increase of more than 2.000 students district-wide: deferred donations to outside organizations such as United Arts and Grove Counseling; reduced travel budgets by 20 percent: frozen all equipment purchases at the district level; reduced supplies inventories: deferred textbook supplements: cut back on writing and Saturday School programs; done away with the seventh period day and eliminated science festivals and academic tournaments.

This is as lean as we can get," Hughes said. Dan McAlarney of Casselberry asked why the board had not yet instituted impact fees, recently declared legal, in order to solve their budgetary woes Williams noted that the district is working with the municipalities in the county on drafting ordinances to make impact fees "truly legal."

The City of Oviedo is already collecting interim fees. Williams noted, however, that the collection of the fees will not solve all the budget problems.

"This only impacts new development," Williams said. "It is misleading to think that impact fees will be our Golden Egg."

Dana Rocca of Oviedo asked why the district did not show substantial savings due to the institution of year round school at Lawton Elementary School. It was explained that to show a substantial savings, a large number of schools must be used year round.

'We are working toward that," board member Sandy Robinson said.

As the meeting concluded, Hughes said that the biggest problem facing the distirct is the "antiquated, primitive tax laws" with too much emphasis placed on sales tax and property tax.

Showdown nears on unemployment aid

WASHINGTON - House Ways and Means Committee approval of a Democratic bill helping the long-term unem-ployed puts Congress one step closer to a showdown with President Bush.

In near party-line balloting, the panel voted 24-12 Tuesday to provide up to 20 weeks of additional unemployment checks to people who have exhausted the regular 26 weeks of benefits. The House may consider the bill Thursday.

A similar bill seemed unlikely to move in the Senate until at least Friday, and perhaps for even later because of procedural stalling by Republicans as Congress drives to begin its summer recess at week's end.

Democratic leaders said that with 1.6 million Americans having depleted their jobless benefits so far this year, they wanted to send the measure to Bush.

Base closings approved

WASHINGTON — The House approved a list of 34 military bases recommended for closure, effectively ending debate over an issue that forced lawmakers to throw thousands of people out of work in exchange for billions of dollars in cost savings.

By a vote of 364 to 60, lawmakers agreed late Tuesday to the cost-cutting recommendations made by the Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission. The panel also called for realigning 48 facilities.

A Senate vote is optional because both houses of Congress had to disapprove the package in order to kill it. Senate Majority Leader George Mitchell, D-Maine, has not decided whether to bring the issue to the floor for a symbolic vote, an aide said.

The House vote was on a motion to reject the package.

Iraq chemical stockpile larger

UNITED NATIONS - Iraq possesses 46,000 field chemical munitions - four times the amount it has voluntarily disclosed - and has stockpiled far more material to make the arms than it has acknowledged. U.N. experts say.

The announcement Tuesday on the findings of the latest U.N. inspection mission to Iraq provided further evidence that Baghdad is trying to thwart efforts to destroy its weapons capabilities.

The terms of the cease-fire in the Persian Gulf War demand that Iraq disclose all details of its nuclear, chemical, ballistic and biological weapons programs. The United States, Britain and France have threatened a military attack if Iraq does not cooperate more fully with the United Nations.

Mob fix in lottery win?

BOSTON - Some people around here can't help but think the fix was in when a reputed mobster hit a $14.3 million jackpot. Lottery officials say the win was strictly legit, but it's a sticky situation nonetheless.

"The only person that probably would have caused more trouble is if my mother had won," state Treasurer Joseph Malone said Tuesday.

Gorbachev, Bush sign arms accord

By BARRY SCHWEN AP Diplometic Writer

MOSCOW - Presidents Bush and Mikhail S. Gorbachev sign a historic arms reduction treaty today - the first time the two powers have committed themselves to cutting their most lethal weapons.

Yet U.S. and Soviet officials already are looking down the road to further weapons accords.

"The business is not finished," Soviet Foreign Minister Alexander A. Bessmertnykh said Tuesday. The United States agreed in principle, but White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater said any agenda for further talks would be "premature."

Both sides trumpeted today's presidential signing ceremony of a Strategic Arms Reduction Treaty, nine years in the mak-ing. It will confine thousands of the deadliest nuclear arms to the scrap heap and establish a comprehensive system of making sure neither side cheats on the treaty's terms.

In the end, Moscow will cut its stockpile by 35 percent and Washington by 28 percent.

Before signing the START accord. Bush and Gorbachev were discussing the future of arms control at the Soviet leader's dacha today. And Fitzwater said the two sides would have further discussions in the fall.

The START accord, to be implemented over seven years. sets an overall ceiling of 4.900 long-range ballistic missile warheads and requires the Sovi-ets to halve their stockpile of heavy ground-based SS-18 missiles from 308 to 154. No U.S. missiles are in the same category.

It requires that both sides destroy hundreds of missiles carrying thousands of nuclear warheads. The superpowers will be required to cut the number of their bomber aircraft and seaand land-based missile delivery systems to 1,600 each.

Yet, for all the reductions, the treaty leaves about 9,000 warheads on the U.S. side and about 7,000 for the Soviets. While the United States will have a numerical advantage, the Soviets will have an edge in the numbers of ground-based intercontinental ballistic missiles - the heavy blockbuster weapons. In 1987, the two sides banned intermediate-range nuclear missiles.

But there has been no comparable headway on chemical and biological weapons or on tactical arms in Europe. The United States has resisted imposing limits on chemical weapons or restricting space-based defenses.

It was Bessmertnykh and Gorbachev's spokesman, Vitaly Ignatenko, who have said the nations' other arsenals now deserve prompt attention. "I don't think the time is over for arms control," Bessmertnykh said.

"We should have a totally new pattern of mutual security." Ignatenko said. "...a new stage that will go beyond the framework of containment."

JACKSONVILLE - Rick Allen hit a solo home run in the eighth inning to break a 5.5 tie and lead Chattanooga to a 7-5 Southern League victory over Jacksonville Tuesday.

Jacksonville took a 2-0 lead in the fourth inning. But Chattanooga took the lead during a four-run seventh inning to take a 5-3 lead. The Suns tied the game in the bottom of the seventh when Jim Campanis hit a two-run home run. But Allen answered with his home run. Then Eddle Rush scored on Scott Pose's double to give the Lookouts their final 7-5 margin. Victor Garcia preserved the Chattanooga victory by striking out all three batters in the

Bucs make roster cuts

TAMPA - The Tampa Bay Buccancers reduced their active roster to 78 players on Tuesday, waiving rookie running back Hyland Hickson and placing defensive lineman Robert Martz on injured waivers.

Hickson was a 10th-round draft choice from Michigan State who had not practiced during training camp because of a viral infection. A few hours before he was released, he said he didn't fear getting cut before he could show the coaching staff what he could do.

"I haven't really thought about that," the 5-foot-9, 220-pound running back said. "I've been trying to do everything I can to get myself back on the field ... I feel I can compete with the other guys in camp."

Hickson rushed for 1,196 yards and scored 14 touchdowns as a senior at Michigan State.

The Bucs signed Martz on July 24 after a string of injuries depleted the team of depth on the defensive line. He hurt his knee in practice the next day.

CARROLLTON, Texas - That's more like it.

After scoring just two runs in their opening-game loss of the PONY Baseball Colt (15 and 16) League South Zone tournament Monday night, the Seminole All-Stars exploded for 16 runs, 10 in one inning, to defeat Irving, Texas 16-7 in an elimination game Tues-

Seminole benefitted from some sloppy play by the Irving squad Tuesday, taking advantage of five errors and four walks during the 10-run third inning alone.

NEW SMYRNA BEACH — Dick Anderson bested fastest qualifier Bruce Lawrence to win the PASCAR-sanctioned 50-lap Late Model End of the Month Championship event last Saturday night at the New Smyrna Speedway.

The field started straight up. Lawrence, with power by Midnight Express, got the "hole shot" at the green and grabbed the point.

Outside front row starter Anderson stayed right on the the leader's deck lid until lap 14, when Lawrence inadvertantly tagged and spun Wisconsin driver Andy Burgess.

Because the caution flag came out Lawrence was given back the top spot, but six laps later. Anderson was in the lead and had stretched his advantage to a full straightaway when the checkered flag flew. Pinishing third through fifth were Longwood's Ronnie Burkett, Ricky Marshall and Joe Middleton.

She taught mom how to cook

By Jean Kille Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — Missy Mullins, 24. born and raised in Sanford. said as one of 10 kids, she always cooked.

While busily preparing the family dinner, her own portichop casserole consisting of a layer of chops, a layer of sliced potato, a layer of sliced onion, another layer of chops etc. and topped with a mushroom cream sauce, she said, "Cooking runs in the family."

After placing her casserole in the oven at 350° for about one hour. Mullins explained that 'canned cream of mushroom soup may be used in place of your own sauce."

Our Cook of the Week said the kids in her family "always did the cooking. With 10 kids, we had to take turns cooking and cleaning so we just did it. We experimented a lot with each other. We would all get around the stove and taste whatever was being fixed for supper and offer helpful suggestions to the cook for the night. Sometimes it needed more spice or less of something else, but we helped each other to be better at it. We always take pride in our cooking. I think we taught mom how to

Although her mother didn't cook much, Mullins says it was understandable as she was sick a lot and still worked full time. "Mom had to rest up so she could work, that left a lot for all the kids to do. Dad doesn't cook. He probably doesn't know a frying pan from a casserole dish and he does miss my oldest sister who is a professional baker. He loves desect, anything baked such as homemade bread, pies, cakes and custards." Mullins smiled as she cut a sample of her homemade upside-down cake that was melt-in-your-mouth moist and delicious.

Mullins and all her brothers and sisters attended the old Sanford Middle School.

Our cook said, "All of the kids attended that school and it's hard to see it come down. We have memories of days that will never be again. My son, Chad is 7. but he won't be able to attend my old school. It's sad."

Mulline' sadness runs deep, not only for the old school but for her mom, Nancy Dukes, for whom she is caring. Mullins and her son are staying with her parents until Nancy has fully recovered from recent surgery. She is presently the chief cook and bottle washer for the familie.

Our cook said, "Everything doesn't always turn out perfect.
When I tried to teach myself to make biscuits, it was a horror story. The first batch was hard, the next batch was hollow, the next time they burned and then they wouldn't rise. My husband, Johnny, kept encouraging me to keep trying. His mother finally taught me how to do it right. I also learned to cook some from his younger sister. Actually she taught me a lot about cooking." she revealed.

Mullins greatest concern about cooking is writing her recipes down for the paper today as she said. "I never wrote a recipe before. When I cook I use the taste test method and a shake of this or that. Also, I'm used to cooking for 10 to 14 people and it's difficult to reduce the recipes and cook for 2."

A growing favorite, pickled peppers are a popular pick

By Alleen Claire NEA Food Editor

Americans may be slowly climbing out of their

"pickle rut." Even though pickles aren't as trendy as sun-dried tomatoes or radicchio, the pickle industry is keeping its eye on the pickled pepper. as it continues to grow in popularity.

Folks tend to stick with a favorite pickle year after year. Leading, in order of popularity, are dill pickles, sweet pickles, pickle relish and bread and butter pickles. But peppers have moved into fifth

The rising interest in foods from the Southwest is leading more and more shoppers to drop a jar of pickled peppers into their shopping carts. Delicious with tacos, burritos or other Mexican entrees, pickled peppers are perfect in omelettes or on top of bacon and avocado sandwiches.

The peppers come in many varieties, and there are both hot and mild to suit most palates. These include hot Mexican, tabasco and talapeno peppers and the milder banana, cherry and pimiento peppers.

My husband and I disagreed on too many things, so now we are getting a divorce. He doesn't want it, but he says if I pay for it, he will sign all the required papers. We have nothing to divide. No house, no car, no money and no kids. Nothing to fight over.

Now for my problem: I went to a legal clinic and they told me there wasn't any "no-fault divorce" in Cook County, Ill., which is were we live. This means I will have to go to court and claim "mental cruelty."

Abby, there was no mental cruelty, so why do I have to go to court and lie - especially since my husband agreed to cooperate? Isn't there some place that we could go and just sign some papers and be divorced? Why must I point a finger of blame at a perfectly nice man? The marriage was my mistake. Also, I would like to know why a divorce should cost so much? I was quoted a figure of $970. There is nothing to divide up, and my husband is not going to contest the divorce. Isn't there a SCRIPTION STATES ARTHRITIS medicines — such as aspirin, ibuprofen, Naprosyn, Voltaren, Feidene, Ansaid, Motrin, Anaprox., Indocin and others cause gastric irritation that sometimes leads to peptic ulcers. This complication of treatment exists irrespective of how the drugs are administered. Therefore, I do not believe that rectal suppositories are an answer to the problem; moreover, these prescription arthritis medicines are not available in this form. For patients unable to swallow pills, suppositories — such as aspirin — are available without a prescription.

However, patients with intestinal symptoms from these compounds may find relief from the prescription drug Cytotec, a new medicine that, when taken four times a day, will usually prevent the ulcers caused by anti-arthritis drugs.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I was pleased recently to read of your suggestion for TM to reduce stress. I've been practicing transcendental meditation for 18 years and can honestly say it has made my life healthier, happier, and more productive. Keep up the good work.

DEAR READER: Thank you for the compliment and for sharing your experiences with transcendental meditation.

No one really knows how TMworks, but it is helpful in relieving stress and anxiety. I take issue with proponents who claim they can levitate with TM. However, for the average person. who doesn't expect miracles

Early in 1970, Control and Kaos, those well-known spy organizations, had to forgo operations after financial cutbacks. instead of spying, they continued their fight - goodness and niceness vs. evil — at the with the ace and return a spade,

The first rubber began well for Control. Maxwell Smart, Agent 86, brought home a grand slam on deal two. Kaos had a chance to recover ground on hand three. Shtarker becoming the declarer in four hearts after a straightforward auction. (The positions have been shifted so declarer can be South.)

Max. West, led the spade queen. Shtarker won in hand and detached a low heart, but then he spotted the problem. If he led a trump immediately, the defense would win that trick and lead another spade. Then when he lost the lead in either minor.

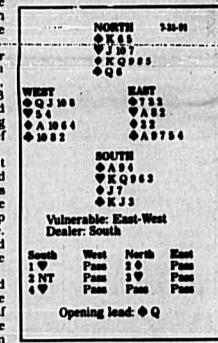

they would be able to cash a spade trick. Instead he led the club three. Max signaling with the two and dummy playing the The Chief pause to consider his play. It looked right to win but perhaps Shtarker had K-J-3 of clubs. In that case he would get a spade discard. Assessing the situation correctly, the Chief played the club four. Shtarker led another club, but the Chief won with the ace and returned a spade to dummy's king. Shtarker called for the heart jack, but the Chief put up his ace and led a third spade. Max won that trick and cashed the diamond ace to defeat the game.

'You idiot. Shtarker." cried Siegfried. "Eef only you vin zee first trick in zee dummy, you haf an entry to your hand viz zee spade ace to pitch your loser on zee zird club."
