Soyuz Soars Weather Eye
MOSCOW (UPI) — The Soyuz 29 spacecraft today sped toward a rendezvous with the Soyuz 6 orbital lab, carrying two Soviet cosmonauts launched into space three months after their colleagues returned from a record-breaking mission.

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — A three-stage Delta rocket today launched GOES-C, a satellite designed to anticipate and chart world-wide weather conditions, toward an orbit 22,300 miles above the earth.

Weather satellite now at that position can then be shifted over the Indian Ocean to replace a malfunctioning Russian spacecraft.

Scientists say GOES-C (Geostationary Operational Environmental Satellite) will beam back information about the probable path of hurricanes, tidal waves and land slides.

Pair Robs $60 From Food Store

The Shop & Go convenience store in Sanford was robbed by two men Thursday night who got away with $60.

The robbery occurred at 10:25 at 1803 County Club Road. A 28-year-old Winter Springs man was attending the store and a 13-year-old Sanford youth was in the store when two men entered—one carrying a .38 caliber revolver, according to records.

The man with the gun, wearing a yellow ski mask, ordered the two to lie down in the back of the store while he ordered his partner to get the cash drawer.

The man got out of the first car yelling, "He shot at me." A man got out of the second car yelling, "He hit my car."

Strobridge reported when he got everyone calmed down the men explained there had been an accident between the two cars at State Road 17-92 and State Road 43E.

Alfred Watts, 36, of Orlando, said David Goodson, 41, of Jacksonville, refused to stop after the accident so he fired his .38 caliber revolver at the car in an attempt to stop him.

Goodson said he didn't stop because he was afraid of being killed.

Watts was charged with aggravated assault and carrying a concealed weapon and has since been freed on bond from the Seminole County jail.

Literacy Test Score Rules Stir Furor

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — A state hearing examiner ruled today the passing scores on the functional literacy and basic skills tests were selected illegally, but officials said the ruling is technical and "the tests are still on."

The decision came in a challenge filed by John Brady of St. Petersburg, whose son, John G. Brady, failed portions of the basic skills test — given to 8rd, 9th, 10th and 11th graders to help determine if they should be advanced to the next grade.

It also applies to the functional literacy test which students must pass to receive a regular high school diploma beginning in June 1979. The minimum passing grade also was selected without a public hearing, Young Brady passed the literacy test.

DOE could appeal Mrs. Tremor's decision if the Brady challenge is the first.

Red Eye Reflections

The crippling of the FBI and CIA by post-Watergate revelations and restrictions seems to have encouraged the Russians to step up their spying activities against this country, as many of us feared it would.

The recent discovery of an electronic eavesdropping device in the chimney of the U.S. Embassy in Moscow is the latest in a rash of Soviet espionage efforts to be uncovered.

U.S. officials recently warned of an elaborate electronic installation at the Soviet consulate in San Francisco, which, it is feared, monitors international telephone traffic going out from microwave broadcasting towers atop an Oakland building.

Similar concerns have been voiced about microwave monitoring by Soviet Consulates on the East Coast.

In New York, two Soviet citizens employed by the United Nations were arrested recently for allegedly receiving classified information on U.S. anti-submarine warfare systems.

In Washington, there are more Communist spies at work than there are counter-intelligence agents available to watch them, according to John Barron, an authority on Soviet intelligence-gathering operations.

The number of Soviet and other Communist-bloc intelligence agents in the United States is reliably reported to have increased 50 percent since 1972 and is now estimated to be 800 in number.

And now there has been the Soviet counter-attack where a U.S. businessman has been arrested and others fear the same.

And speculation that Soviet authorities have made at least three attempts to compromise or threaten members of the U.S. business community in the past couple of years.

The Soviets have reminded the world that the spy game is a two-way game and political strength which is surely.

But, aside from the FBI-CIA convulsions, the United States is at an intelligence-gathering disadvantage because it is an open society in contrast with much more closed Communist nations that keep up with every foreign visitor.

Detente has increased the opportunity for surveillance of this country by Communist agents entering as diplomats, businessmen, journalists, students or tourists; 40 U.S. ports are open to Soviet ships, which bring 26,000 Russian crewmen ashore each year.

Inasmuch as the Soviet Union never ceases to regard the United States as its greatest antagonist, it is only natural that this country should be the chief target of its vast espionage system. And it is only natural that our instinct for self-preservation should call for more effective countermeasures than those we now perceive.

Mathews Vs. Siegel At White House

WASHINGTON - The story can now be told of the blow-up inside the White House over the sale of our hottest military jets to Saudi Arabia. It was ignited by Jessica Tuchman Mathews, a senior strategist, who gave other White House insiders a secret briefing last February on the military implications of the sale of F-15 fighters to the Saudis.

Speaking for the policy-making National Security Council, she assured the group that the F-15s were "defensive aircraft with very little offensive capability." She also described Tabuk, a Saudi Arabian airbase only 125 miles from Israel, as a civilian installation.

No one was listening more intently than President Carter's liaison adviser on Jewish affairs, Mark Siegel. He subsequently learned from the Pentagon, however, that the F-15s are considered the best fighter-bombers in the world and that the U.S. was helping develop Tabuk into a major military base.

Outraged, Siegel resigned in protest. He charged that he had been fed inaccurate information by National Council officials. Eventually, Jessica Mathews' name slipped into some news accounts as the official who had misled Siegel. On April 30, she complained in a "Dear Madam" letter that she had become "increasingly distressed" that she was named as the "source of information which led to your troubles."

She denied calling the F-15 a "defensive weapon" and insisted she had referred to Tabuk as "originally a civilian airfield that has been upgraded." She added acidly: "An adequate understanding of the technical issues involved here requires more than a passing acquaintance with the subject."

Siegel fired back a scathing letter marked "personal and confidential." It began "Dear Jessica" but quickly exploded: "I have read and reread your letter and find its contents inaccurate and its tone insulting. I find it additionally objectionable that, unknown to me, you have apparently circulated copies of the letter around the White House."

"I do not know what motivates a person to retroactively distort facts and redefine truth. I may surmise that it is your own attempt to justify your behavior and capability for dissemination of inaccurate information to the public and to the Hill."

Siegel said four others at the Mathews briefing upheld his version of what she said and contended that a subsequent briefing paper was heavily edited. "You did not tell us then, nor mention in your letter to me," he scathingly added, "what Tabuk is heavily protected by American Hawk instructors' missiles and that Hawk trials are currently being installed. Nor did you indicate that the United States is helping the Saudis to construct... a modern paratroop training installation and barracks for several thousand paratroopers. Your description of Tabuk as an installation valuable only to economic trade, and for its proximity to the pilgrimage city of Medina, is totally inaccurate and is inconsistent with assessments by our own Defense Department."

"Turning to the military capabilities of the F-15, which are going into the Saudi arsenal, Siegel declared that as advertised by its maker, McDonnell-Douglas, it is a potent and lethal strike plane, as well as an air superior interceptor."

The discredited former Carter aide concluded on this note: "I suggest you learn more about this weapon system before you continue to mislead and misinform others."

HEADLINES AND FOOTNOTES: Reporting to the Cabinet on high food prices, Agriculture Secretary Bob Bergland explained that the main cause was "the increase in the price of feed." He blamed this on "three years of drought." Now that the rains have returned, he said, "cows are being held back to increase the breeding herd." The confidential minutes record that he also stated: "Reports of (my) intention to leave the Administration are inaccurate."

ANGLE-WALTERS

Cotton Dust Cripples

WASHINGTON - The first indication of trouble came in mid-April, when Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., called Stuart E. Eizenstat, President Carter's senior aide in charge of domestic policy.

Eastland, one of the more powerful members of the Senate, was seeking a meeting on behalf of friends in the cotton industry who were upset about a new government program aimed at reducing disease known as byssinosis or "brown lung."

The timing of the senator's call was unusual because it came very late in a prolonged regulatory proceeding that began in September 1974, more than three and one-half years earlier. By December 1978, the Labor Department's Occupational Health and Safety Administration (OSHA) had published proposed new standards in its campaign to reduce byssinosis, a crippling disease unique to cotton industry workers.

The affliction is caused by the inhalation of cotton dust, and its most acute form leaves men and women wheezing, choking, coughing and gasping for breath because of permanent, dust-induced deterioration of their lungs.

Last spring, OSHA conducted more than 30 days of public hearings in Washington, Greenville, Miss., and Lubbock, Tex., to give both employees and industry officials an opportunity to comment on the proposed regulations.

The official hearing record was closed many months ago but, at Eizenstat's suggestion, Eastland took his last-minute appeal to the Labor Dept. On May 4, representatives of the National Cotton Council were granted a special meeting with Labor Secretary Ray Marshall and OSHA Administrator Eula Hingham.

Two days earlier, on May 2, Charles L. Schultze, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisors, wrote a memo acknowledging that 11½-hour intervention in the cotton dust issue was contrary to "normal procedures" because the final regulations were about to be issued.

Nevertheless, Schultze called for a full-scale review of the proposed OSHA standards "as part of the president's anti-inflation program."

On May 11, Barry Bosworth, head of the president's Council on Wage and Price Stability, wrote a memo acknowledging that "byssinosis is a definite health problem" but arguing that the OSHA program should be scaled down.

Marshall and Hingham stood by their proposal. They planned to begin briefing industry officials about their decision on May 24 and to formally issue the final standards on May 31.

On the evening of May 21, only two days before the briefings were to begin, Schultze, Eizenstat and Robert S. Strauss, in charge of Carter's anti-inflation program, met privately to discuss the issue.

Immediately after that meeting, Eizenstat called Marshall and asked for an indefinite postponement of the briefings and regulations.

VIEWPOINT

The Answer: Reform Taxes

By DON GRAFF

Well, we've certainly ended up getting some of what we were demanding back in 1976 - no taxation without representation. We have plenty of representation. Now those of us in California are going to have considerably less taxation.

Admit it. While most of us may be committed in principle to good schools and community services, these not drawing paychecks from some level of government probably sympathize to a degree with the Californians who voted so overwhelmingly to slash their taxes and limit state powers of taxation.

The California situation, with instances of tax rates jumping several hundred percent in a single year while the state treasury overflows with a $6 billion surplus, may appear particularly outrageous. But inequities in public financing are common to most states.

While there are probably almost as many reasons as there are examples, a basic cause is the growth of local government.

State and local employment, expanding much more rapidly than the federal bureaucracy which President Carter is seeking to trim, has risen from 281 public employees per 10,000 population in 1961 to 475 in 1976, according to figures from the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

Many of these employees, and a good deal of tax money, have been necessitated by state and local obligations in federally initiated programs. That, however, is another distressing story.

Whatever the reasons for the burgeoning of local government, it has not adapted revenue raising accordingly. This remains rooted in the property tax, with built-in inequities compounded as rates escalate.

California is neither the first nor the last to be heard on the subject. Several states - Colorado and Tennessee, to name two - have mandated much less publicized limitations on taxing and spending. Another ballot test should be coming up in Massachusetts in 1980, and a dozen or more states are in the throes of comprehensive tax reform.

It all points up the need for comprehensive tax reform. The Carter plan may be all right as far as it goes (although it might be asked at this point precisely where it is going) but at best it can be only a half measure in dealing with the national problem of public financing so long as it affects only federal revenues.

Lighter Side

The Cowlick Curse

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) - One of the worst curses that could befall a boy child of my generation was being born with a cowlick. Some girls had cowlicks, too, I suppose, but in their case it didn't much matter.

Girls that day wore their hair either long or frizzed. If long, the strands were heavy enough to overcome the upward and outward thrust of the cowlick. If frizzed, the cowlick was incorporated into the overall convolutions.

Boys were not so lucky. The style of that period required that small boys have short, slicked-down hair. With a cowlick, those terms are mutually contradictory. There was no way in God's world a closely cropped cowlick could be slicked down. No amount of water, oil, adhesives or coagulants would urge a cowlick to follow the contours of the scalp.

It takes, as a matter of fact, two dictionaries just to define cowlick. And even the combined meaning doesn't quite catch it. One dictionary rendered it thusly: "a projecting tuft of hair which will not lie flat." The other construed it to be "a lock or tuft growing in a different direction from the rest of the hair and usually turned up or away as if by a cow."

The classic cowlick does indeed project, refuse to lie flat and turn up or away. But the part about it growing in a different direction from the rest of the hair is woefully singular. A cowlick does not grow in a different direction. It grows in different directions. It takes at least three tangential routes from the thatch's main stream.

All of which mean, in the case of small boys, that the victims of cowlicks were forced to spend miserable hours enduring the rigors of their mothers' determined but vain attempts to brush their hair down in the back.

Some mothers, in fits of desperation, even applied dabs of spit to the wayward locks. We now know, perhaps, why these anguishing exercises were foredoomed.

According to the Agriculture Department, two veterinarians recently have established the cowlicks on horses are both highly individualist and apparently permanent.

The department says equine cowlicks, called whorls, are like human cowlicks in that no two are alike. It says the whorls form a trichoglyph, or hair picture, that holds promise of becoming a new identification technique.

A press release containing this information does not mention human cowlicks. Obviously, however, that is something the FBI may want to look into.

It may be that a child born with his head in a whorl is exhibiting a uniqueness that no amount of material brushing can eradicate. If so, a criminal will need to wear goggles to avoid leaving hairprints.

State and local employment, expanding much more rapidly than the federal bureaucracy which President Carter is seeking to trim, has risen from 281 public employees per 10,000 population in 1961 to 475 in 1976, according to figures from the Advisory Commission on Intergovernmental Relations.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An unexplained loss of $308,271 in President Carter's blind trust allowed Carter to pay only $48,152 in income taxes on earnings of about $495,000 in 1977, according to his financial statements. Carter paid $83,313 in income taxes during 1977, but as a result of the huge loss in his trust, he will get a refund of $35,161. His return showed an adjusted gross income of $189,160.

WASHINGTON (UPI) - Attorney General Robert Shubin recommended today creation of a Community Care for the Elderly program and stiffer penalties for crimes against the elderly.

The Democratic gubernatorial candidate outlined an eight-point program aimed at helping the elderly during a campaign appearance before about 100 Pinellas County senior citizens.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) - A judge has set aside Sen. Edward W. Brooke's divorce settlement because he did not make a "true and complete disclosure" of his finances, but ruled out criminal contempt charges against the nation's only black senator.

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Reubin Askew has vetoed two more bills but signed a host of others, including proposals making it illegal to steal electricity and changing the date of the second primary to avoid a conflict with Yom Kippur.

Askew vetoed legislation Thursday exempting apartments costing $190 or more a month from rent controls and letting the city of Sunrise in Broward County float bonds to finance construction of recreational facilities.

The vetoes were his fifth and sixth of legislation approved during the 1978 session. The Sunrise bill is not necessary, Askew said, because the city would get the same power from another bill he signed into law earlier this week. The housing proposal would have treated big and small counties differently and that probably isn't "constitutionally permissible."

A 1977 law allows local governments, when a circuit judge declares a housing emergency, to impose rent controls on apartments going for $250 or over a month. Bradenton Sen. Tom Galten's bill would have limited the controls to $190 or less apartments, except in counties with at least a 600,000 population where the $250 provision would remain in effect.

Askew signed Senate Republican Leader Ken Plante's bill defining as trespass and larceny tampering with electricity meters, telephone equipment or cable television equipment to avoid paying for the services.

The Florida Supreme Court struck down a similar law recently and utilities appealed to the Legislature to reinstate it. Electric companies are losing millions of dollars a year.

Askew signed a bill giving the Parole and Probation Commission two years' jurisdiction over inmates who get out of prison during "time off for good behavior" for two years. The inmates would be supervised as if they were released on parole.

A measure providing that a judge seeking re-election under merit retention does not have to pay a qualifying fee. Supreme Court and district appeal court judges are on merit retention now. The voters consider a constitutional amendment in November extending it to circuit and county court judges.

A Sunset Law bill, reestablishing the state Board of Cosmetology.

A bill allowing local governments to take over enforcement of coastal construction setback lines with Department of Natural Resources approval; changing the term, setback line, to control line.

A measure prohibiting people from willfully opening fences and gates on private property to trespass while hunting.

POLITICS IN BRIEF

Gun Control Letters: Ecker 'Dirty Tricks?'

CLEARWATER (UPI) - Jack Ecker's state campaign director today defended the practice of sending opposing letters on gun control to Democratic gubernatorial candidates and asking the candidate's position.

The two letters, one strongly favoring gun control and signed by Gigi-Monique Sapphire of Clearwater, and the other strongly in opposition and signed on behalf of William F. Boutwell of Largo, a retired Army major, were mailed from Ecker headquarters, using a postage meter registered to Ecker.

Aides to Democratic candidate Attorney General Robert Shevin said the letters apparently were an attempt to lure the candidates into conflicting statements and branded the action a dirty trick.

But campaign director Jim Swann called the accusation silly. "I don't see anything wrong with anyone in our campaign writing other candidates to find out their positions on issues," Swann said. "We're just acquiring information. There would be something wrong if we abused that information."

Frey Taps Gapua For Ticket

Rep. Lou Frey, of Winter Park, vying for the Republican nomination for governor, has selected Peter Gapua, a Miami lawyer and former industrial claims judge, as his lieutenant-governor running mate.

Ecker: Campaign Sign-ups

Jack Ecker, in his bid for the gubernatorial nomination, reported the number of contributors to his campaign is approaching the 10,000 mark and nearly 12,000 more have signed to do volunteer work in his campaign. He predicted victory because the broadcast base of grassroots support will decide the winner in November.

Greene: 'Against Spending'

The people "are uniformly dead-set further and further government spending," claimed Raleigh Greene, Democratic gubernatorial hopeful, during a campaign stop in South Daytona.

Kirk: Mum On Party Label

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Former Gov. Claude Kirk says he'll run for governor as either a Democrat or Republican but he won't say which.

Kirk's gubernatorial campaign changed directions Thursday when he announced he is dropping his attempt to get on the gubernatorial ballot as an independent through a petition drive.

Kirk gathered about 90,000 of the needed 122,000 signatures he needed by July 25 to win a spot on the ballot as an independent while not paying a $2,500 qualifying fee and designating a political party.

Carter: Paid $48,152 Tax

WASHINGTON (UPI) - An unexplained loss of $308,271 in President Carter's blind trust allowed Carter to pay only $48,152 in income taxes on earnings of about $495,000 in 1977, according to his financial statements. Carter paid $83,313 in income taxes during 1977, but as a result of the huge loss in his trust, he will get a refund of $35,161. His return showed an adjusted gross income of $189,160.

PINELLAS PARK (UPI) - Attorney General Robert Shubin recommended today creation of a Community Care for the Elderly program and stiffer penalties for crimes against the elderly.

No Contempt For Brooke

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (UPI) - A judge has set aside Sen. Edward W. Brooke's divorce settlement because he did not make a "true and complete disclosure" of his finances, but ruled out criminal contempt charges against the nation's only black senator.

Bills Signed, Vetoed By Gov. Askew

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) - Gov. Reubin Askew has vetoed two more bills but signed a host of others, including proposals making it illegal to steal electricity and changing the date of the second primary to avoid a conflict with Yom Kippur.

Askew vetoed legislation Thursday exempting apartments costing $190 or more a month from rent controls and letting the city of Sunrise in Broward County float bonds to finance construction of recreational facilities.

The vetoes were his fifth and sixth of legislation approved during the 1978 session. The Sunrise bill is not necessary, Askew said, because the city would get the same power from another bill he signed into law earlier this week. The housing proposal would have treated big and small counties differently and that probably isn't "constitutionally permissible."

A 1977 law allows local governments, when a circuit judge declares a housing emergency, to impose rent controls on apartments going for $250 or over a month. Bradenton Sen. Tom Galten's bill would have limited the controls to $190 or less apartments, except in counties with at least a 600,000 population where the $250 provision would remain in effect.

Askew signed Senate Republican Leader Ken Plante's bill defining as trespass and larceny tampering with electricity meters, telephone equipment or cable television equipment to avoid paying for the services.

The Florida Supreme Court struck down a similar law recently and utilities appealed to the Legislature to reinstate it. Electric companies are losing millions of dollars a year.

Askew signed a bill giving the Parole and Probation Commission two years' jurisdiction over inmates who get out of prison during "time off for good behavior" for two years. The inmates would be supervised as if they were released on parole.

A measure providing that a judge seeking re-election under merit retention does not have to pay a qualifying fee. Supreme Court and district appeal court judges are on merit retention now. The voters consider a constitutional amendment in November extending it to circuit and county court judges.

A Sunset Law bill, reestablishing the state Board of Cosmetology.

A bill allowing local governments to take over enforcement of coastal construction setback lines with Department of Natural Resources approval; changing the term, setback line, to control line.

A bill requiring the Department of Health and Rehabilitative Services to screen infants for metabolic and other hereditary and congenital disorders.

A measure prohibiting people from willfully opening fences and gates on private property to trespass while hunting.

Briefly

NBA Okays Three-Pointers

For Exhibition Contests

COCONADO, Calif. (UPI) — The NBA's long-range gunners received some great news Thursday when the league announced it will initiate a three-point field goal in exhibition games and will consider the new rule for the regular season.

A shot made from more than 25 feet from the basket will count three points instead of the traditional two.

Another action taken at the annual meeting was to provide three referees for games instead of two. Coaches have sought such a change in the past, O'Brien said, "and it has been an item of discussion and debate for a number of years in this league."

Lopez Seeks 5th in Row

PITTSFORD, N.Y. (UPI) — Nancy Lopez isn't trying to hide the fact that she wants to see her name in the golfing record books.

The 21-year-old rookie sensation of the women's pro tour will get her shot at golfing fame as she goes after a record-breaking fifth straight tournament victory in the first round of the 54-hole, $75,000 Bankers Trust LPGA Classic begins today at Locust Hill Country Club in this Rochester suburb.

Ross Hits Big Homer

Roselynn Ross hit a game-winning homer in the eighth inning Thursday to give CBS Squares an 8-7 Women's Softball League victory over Hamp's Angels. Estelle Hays had three hits for the winners while Jackie Alexander had two for the losers.

Judy Carlton, Judy Eller and Becky Simpson hit homers to spark Wilson-Maier to a 23-1 win over Burch and Spink.

Civilians Wins Crown

Civitan put a 9-8 wrapper on the Lassie League championship Thursday in a win over Kiwanis, the team's 12th in 18 games, closing out the softball season. Joetta West had two hits for the winners while Katherine Barber and Gwenn McKinney homered for the losers.

Bowl America stopped Western Sizzlin' by 15-1 as Traci Brown hit a grand slam homer and Sonia Jenkins pitched a no-hitter.

Only Four Below Par As Irwin Leads

CONVER (UPI) — For the better part of a week, it had been whispered in corners of the Cherry Hills Country Club higher room.

The feeling among some of the club's most prestigious practitioners as the U.S. Open approached was that "this course can be had."

So much for that theory.

Just as it almost always does, the course prepared by the San Diego Golf Association for its once-a-year moment in the spotlight had something in reserve Thursday. And man, of the golf's household names could not cope. Thirty-four of those in the field — 22 per cent — failed to break 80.

Only four men could break par and one of them, local favorite Hale Irwin, put together a 2-under par 69 in the 90-degree heat Thursday for a one-stroke lead going into today's second round.

"I am very pleased with this round," said Irwin, who bogeyed the opening hole and promptly abandoned his aggressive tactics.

Carew, Ryan Off A.L. Trade Block

By United Press International

The trading deadline passed Thursday night without the kind of major deals that rocked baseball the last two years.

Minnesota's Rod Carew, baseball's best hitter, and California's Nolan Ryan, one of the game's premier power pitchers, stirred the most trade speculation, but both players were taken off the block as the June 30 deadline neared.

The two most significant deals involved the world champion New York Yankees and the Boston Red Sox, who are fighting for the top spot in the American League East.

New York sent two of its most promising farmhands, infielder Mickey Klotz and outfielder Dell Alton, to the Oakland A's for outfielder Gary Thomsen.

And Boston sold outfielder Bernie Carbo to the Cleveland Indians for an undisclosed sum just before the midnight deadline.

Thomsen was the second left-handed hitting outfielder acquired by the Yankees in as many days. On Wednesday, they picked up Jay Johnson and minor leaguer Bob Brown from the Phillies for relief pitcher Hawley Eastwick.

Playing out his option this year, it marked the second time Carbo, 30, was traded by the Red Sox. He was dealt to Milwaukee in June 1976.

The Phillies, meanwhile, did some more shuffling of their pitching staff, sending the big-league reliever Gene Garber to the Atlanta Braves for right-hander Dick Ruthven. Eastwick unquestionably will replace Garber in the Phillies' bullpen, while Ruthven had asked the Braves to be traded.

The San Francisco Giants were the busiest traders, swinging a trio of deals to strengthen their bench. The Giants acquired veteran shortstop Roger Metzger from Houston for a player to be decided by Nov. 1, then shipped right-hander Lynn McLitton to the Chicago Cubs for third baseman-outfielder Heity Cruz.

Summer Program Launched

An eight-week summer youth program sponsored by the Seminole County Parks and Recreation Department begins Monday at five locations—Eastbrook, Longwood, Idylwild, Forest City and Woodlands Elementary Schools.

The noon to 4 p.m. program carries a cost of $20 and features daily activities, organized team sports and arts and crafts.

The department is also sponsoring a men's and women's doubles tennis tournament July 20-23 at Red Bug Lake Park. Entry fee is $12 per team, with deadline for entries July 17.

Basketball and volleyball teams are forming for men and women competition. Leagues start July 10.

Adult beginner and advanced beginner tennis lessons will be offered starting July 10. The one hour per week (10-week course) program carries a $15 registration fee. Junior lessons for a player to be decided by Nov. 1, then shipped right-hander Lynn McLitton to the Chicago Cubs for third baseman-outfielder Heity Cruz.

Podolak Retires

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Running back Ed Podolak announced his retirement from the Kansas City Chiefs Thursday, indicating he will go into broadcasting, NFL games on television for the NBC network.

Podolak, 30, closed his 9-year career as the Chiefs' all-time leading rusher with 4,451 yards. He is the only back in Kansas City history to top the 4,000-yard mark.

"I thought mentally and physically it was time for me to retire," Podolak said. "I've been very lucky in this game. I can leave this game in the same state of health in which I came in. That's luck."

Panthers, Cards Win In Pee Wee

Chris Smith scored the winning run and Terry Miller and Oscar Merthe had two hits each Thursday to lead the Panthers to a 9-8 victory over the Tigers. Miller had a home run.

The Cards defeated the Twins, 12-4, as Jeff Welch had three hits. The Rebels also won via forfeit over the Yankees.

They'll Be Flying High In Sanford

A new club has just debuted on the Sanford scene.

The Model Airplane Flying Club attracted 17 would-be pilots to its maiden meeting at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce.

The club is open to anyone interested in flying radio-controlled or control-line model planes.

Club sponsor Forrest Foggin said the club will be chartered, have by-laws, and will be affiliated with the American Model Association. Meetings are to be the first and third Tuesdays of each month, 7:30 p.m. at the chamber.

"We're looking for 5 to 10 acres of land for a flying field," said Foggin, and the club eventually hopes to have a runway and bleachers with facilities enough to host model airplane competition.

Foggin, a long time model enthusiast who owns the Hobby Depot in Sanford, hopes to get youngsters into the club and give them proper instruction.

"I'm interested in young people and I want them to get into something they can really get interested in during the summer and throughout the whole year," he explained.

He also added that many thousands of model-plane kits are given at Christmas and most all of these can be good flying models.

But without proper instruction the young flier runs into problems, gets discouraged, and the model gets dumped in the garbage, he says.

A Look At The 'Gypsy' & 'Command Performance'

Two musical specials will sparkle on CBS this week. On Sunday, June 18, "Gypsy in My Soul" features Shirley MacLaine in a look at the "gypsies," or chorus liners, of show business. Then, on Thursday the 22nd, "People's Command Performance" showcases leading performers from all facets of the show business world as they demonstrate their talents.

The first special, "Gypsy in My Soul," won an Emmy Award for outstanding musical special when it was first broadcast in January, 1975.

The musical-comedy dramatic hour celebrates the theatrical chorus, whose members are representative of people in all walks of life. Lucille Ball guest stars in "Gypsy in My Soul." Like Miss MacLaine, who recently received her fourth Oscar nomination for her role in "The Turning Point," Miss Ball also began her career in a chorus.

Barbara Stanwyck, Joan Crawford, Gene Kelly, June Allyson, Goldie Hawn, Valerie Harper, Carol Lawrence, Ben Vereen, Bette Midler, Chita Rivera and Gwen Verdon are just a few of the many many others who started their careers with a chorus line kick. The word "gypsy" is an affectionate, theatrical term for men and women of the chorus. As the production opens, Miss MacLaine and Miss Ball and their gypsies are rehearsing for the special. In the performance that follows, the show expands the concept to include all of us who may one day step out of our particular "chorus" and into a starring role. Whatever our inspiration, it is the hope of achievement that is the common bond between all of us.

As Fred Ebb, the lyricist for the special and for the current Broadway hit, "The Act," explains:

"When you think about it, a gypsy is an impractical thing to be. Firstly, you have no guarantee that your body or your tones are going to hold out. You're aware that you can't stay a wage earner forever. Like an athlete, your days as a viable commodity may be clearly limited. But recipient of an Emmy Award the second special, "People's Command Performance," displays a bevy of talent. Chosen by the public through a national survey, they demonstrate the talents that have made them so popular with the audiences who selected them.

Buddy Ebsen, who stars in "Barnaby Rudge" on CBS, acts as host for the event and also performs songs and dances he made popular.

Also starring in the special, who was taped in various locations, including Hollywood, Hono (Hawaii), New York City and Paris, are, in alphabetical order, Lynn Anderson, Hollywood columnist Archeder, Jim Bailey, Victor Borge, Richard Burton, Ned Butler, Charlie Callas, Bob Crosby, Phyllis Diller, Buddy Hackett, Elaine Joyce, Frankie Laine, Peggy Lee, Ethel Merman, Jan Murray, Ginger Rogers, Neil Sedaka, Bobby Short, Bobby Van and Senor Wences.

Among the many highlights of the fast-paced, music, comedy and variety special are Miss Anderson singing a selection of her most popular hit records, impersonator Bailey "recreating" a Judy Garland performance, Borge presenting one of his famous piano comedy routines, and Burton singing the title song from the Broadway musical "Camelot," in which he starred.

She's Lou's Boss

As publisher Margaret Pynchon, Nancy Marchand rules the roost at the Los Angeles Tribune each Monday night on CBS' "Lou Grant."

Nancy Marchand was born on June 13, in Buffalo, N.Y.

She attended the Buffalo Studio Theater School, performed on local radio dramas, and had no career thought other than going to Carnegie Tech and then entering the theater.

After graduating from Carnegie Tech, she went to New York City, becoming a volunteer actress for the American Theater Wing.

The Wing's school consisted mainly of returning male GI's therefore actresses were at a premium.

Miss Marchand got her big television break the following year, when "Studio One" needed an actress to portray Jo "Little Women," and she continued to work extensively in the days of live television dramas.

Her more recent roles include those of Mrs. Phillips on the CBS daytime drama "Love of Life," and a judge on "The Edge of Night."

She has also appeared on "Another World," "Lovers and Friends," and "Search for Tomorrow."

Her other television credits include "Look Homeward Angel," "After the Fall" and "Touch of the Poet." She was also a series regular in "Beacon Hill."

Miss Marchand's theater credits include engagements at the Circle in the Square, the Los Angeles Music Center, New York's Lincoln Center, the American Shakespeare Theater and Chicago's Goodman Theater.

Her most recent stage performances were in "Heartbreak House" and in "Children" off Broadway.

Miss Marchand is 5'8" tall, weighs 130 pounds, and has light brown hair and blue eyes.

She enjoys doing needlepoint, and loves to gossip. She and her husband, Paul Sparer, an actor, have three children: David (16), Kathryn (11) and Rachel (14).

Crazies Bring Us 'The Cheap Show'

A funny brown paper bag came across the desk the other day from the same crazies that brought viewers "The Gong Show."

But the bag said it all much better, so we'll just reprint a few of their introductory scribbles.

"Our urbane host Dick Martin assisted by his faithful sidekick Wanda asks the finest panel of famous people dumb questions from categories such as 'Short Dictators,' 'Famous of John Ireland,' '17th Century Trivia,' etc. Then our contestants get to answer which of our star panelists answered correctly.

Now Wanda uses the Fickle Finger to show who has the right answer. Contestants can win a wild prize such as used lawnmowers, cardboard luggage, etc. (average value $4.73).

"But what if you lose? The celebrated run punper and former Mr. America, Alan the Lord-Clad Executive Prize Consultant, does out the consequences-torture (The Great Spaghetti Slide, The Angry Midget Attack, Outmeal Torture) to the losing contestant's loved one (wife, husband, former teacher, parent, etc.). Losers can compete again and winners may be punished also because who follows rules?"

That's show business, too.

ENZO

His Garage Carpet Same As His Rolls

Enzo Stuarti, still perhaps the finest big-voiced pop singer around, has made the move. He's now living in California, out near Palm Springs, and typically his new home is hard by golf course and has room for some of his collection of vintage cars.

His wife, Thelma, even carpeted the garage to match his Rolls. It isn't a hard life. Enzo says he still goes out on tour—300,000 miles a year—and sings in some clubs but mostly concerts at colleges. The new generation of fans have discovered him.

He says he does medleys in his act—such as an eight and one-half minute "Man of La Mancha" medley—and also has a lengthy medley of current hits, which always sound new and different when he wraps his glorious tenor voice around them.

He hopes, now that he's here, that he gets a chance to act. John Casavetes once told him that he was "an actor who sang, not just a singer," and he treasures that remark. Casavetes told him he'd find him a part, and Stuarti is sure he meant it.

So life is still good for Enzo Stuarti. With his talent, he's always in demand. Not long ago, he was asked to do one night for a big convention. The convention turned out to be in Hong Kong. He flew over, sang, flew back. That's show business, too.

THE SURE CURE FOR TV VIOLENCE

Tired Of TV Sex, Violence? Tell Sponsors, He Urges

ATLANTA (UPI)—The wallet power of the American public can bring an end to sex exploitation and violence on television is to pressure advertisers and sponsors by boycotting their products, a Baptist leader said Thursday.

The key to changing television programming is the communication with the sponsors," said Harry N. Hollis, director of the family and special moral concerns of the Christian Life Commission. "They understand and will respond to the pocketbook power and the power of the American people." Hollis criticized the popular "Soap" and "Charlie's Angels." "ABC is showing reruns of 'Soap' on television this summer," said Hollis. "It is a bad way to demonstrate energy consciousness—by recycling garbage."

"Women are routinely treated as bedroom objects or laundry room domestic slaves," Hollis said. "Advertisers are becoming more and more aware of the problem. We contacted many of them and they said they were not aware they were advertising on many of the questionable programs." "What television is doing to the public is a prime time crime."

Television executives tell the public that TV is solely entertainment on one hand and at the same time tout the influence of the medium to prospective advertisers, Hollis said.

Referendum Move: Peril To Our System?

...Proposition 13 Or Not, Area Experts Don't Think So

LENORE HOLMES

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
 Herald Staff Writer

What does passage of Proposition 13 mean to our system of government?

While most of the talk has been centered on the so-called "taxpayer revolt" over increasing property taxes, symbolized by California's passage of Proposition 13, some observers are wondering about the overall effect of the use of initiative and referendum.

The initiative approved by voters would restrict property taxes to one percent of 1975 valuation and freeze future increases to two percent a year.

Will it change our system of government?

If three political scientists interviewed here — at Seminole Community College and Florida Technological University — are an indication, the answer is "no."

They agreed that such a tax initiative referendum would probably not snowball in Florida as it did in California.

"You have to remember that the California issue has been brewing for some time. Additionally, Florida has a 10-mill cap and that we have no personal income tax," said Lenore Jones, a political science teacher at SCU.

"I think it will have a temporary effect," added Mrs. Jones in referring to the general use of initiative.

Mrs. Jones notes that the main obstacle to widespread use of referendum is the people.

"I just don't think people will do their homework on the vital issues," she says, "especially since more than a few people don't even know who their Congressmen are."

Another SCU professor, Harry Stafford, believes that one effect will be on state legislatures across the country.

"I do think you will find that the success of the California vote is going to force legislatures to be more responsive," he said.

Stafford noted that "it will be quite clear to the individual legislators that such a move takes power away from them and so they will be forced to act quicker."

Stafford added that such a grass-roots movement like California does have its drawbacks.

"If you look at just the California vote, you will see, while two-thirds of the people voted for it, about 40 percent didn't vote," Stafford said.

He added that this shows "at times the grass-roots movement type of government doesn't express the total public opinion."

In agreement with the two SCU professors is Dr. Mark Stern, associate professor of political science at FTU.

"I think in a year or two the idea of using the referendum or initiative is going to come to a dead halt," he said.

Dr. Stern cited the main reason will be that "people will find that it to be a very cumbersome approach to government."

He added that "citizens will also realize how blunt the idea is in that you can't modify or amend an issue."

SCU's Dr. Stafford noted that if the referendum idea does stay around for awhile "the democratic system will ultimately be in shambles."

He added that continued use of the system will result in "going back to a highly decentralized system and away from the representative democratic system."

Added SCU's Mrs. Jones: "I certainly think that if it is used a lot, any particular issue will be decided by small groups. I think the particular issue should be left to the elected representatives, because we elect them as trustees and not as delegates."

She added that in most cases such an idea does not get off the ground unless a group has "unity, organization, money and prestige."

Woman In Lake: Was She Slain?

"It looks like a violent death," Dr. G.V. Garay, Seminole County Medical Examiner, said Saturday of the death of an 84-year-old Oviedo woman whose body was found Thursday in a lake near Oviedo.

Mrs. Iona Miller was first reported missing shortly after noon, according to a sheriff's department spokesman. Her body was found about seven hours later.

The preliminary results of an autopsy performed on Friday indicated Mrs. Miller died of drowning, according to Dr. Garay. However, she had suffered a broken jaw shortly before she died, according to Garay.

"There probably was foul play involved," said Garay, "because of the fractured jaw." Mrs. Miller also suffered several facial cuts and bruises, according to Garay.

"It looked like a violent death to me, because she was apparently beaten in the face," said the examiner.

Mrs. Miller was probably struck with a fist or some sort of blunt instrument several times before she wound up in the lake, said Garay.

"I would say it was a fist, but it could have been the blunt instrument," commented Garay. Garay said evidence indicates the woman died around 1 p.m. Thursday.

The body had been in the water about six hours, he said. Final results of the autopsy, which was performed at Seminole Memorial Hospital, Sanford, will be released Tuesday, according to Garay. Garay ruled Mrs. Miller dead at the scene.

Oviedo police and several Seminole County Sheriff's deputies took part in the search for Mrs. Miller. No arrests have been made in connection with the case. MAX ERKLETTIAN

'Dusty': All 'Tuckered-Out'

"Dusty" will be 33 Sunday, Father's Day. And he's all "Tuckered-out."

Having been ridden by three generations of Tuckers, he was introduced recently to the fourth: 8-month-old Drew Marshall Tucker.

Dusty, retired for several years, had not been saddled nor bridled for 10-15 years, according to Mrs. Cecil Tucker II.

But, on this special occasion — his Father's Day birthday — he was standing by the newest mount, Drew's father, John, grandfather, Cecil II, and great-grandfather, Cecil I, of Christmas.

Dusty, it is reported, kicked up his heels like a young colt when he was freed to go back to the pasture.

Soviets Levy Currency Rap On Jailed Yank

MOSCOW (UPI) — Soviet news today formally accused American businessman J. Jay Crawford of selling large sums of foreign currency to Soviet citizens at speculative prices, the Tass news agency reported.

It was the first word of the specific charges against a 37-year-old International Harvester representative since he was taken from his car last Monday and arrested by Soviet police.

Crawford, of Mobile, Ala., has been held since in Moscow's Lefortovo prison.

The brief Tass brief report said that "criminal proceedings were started" against Crawford last Monday "for violating Soviet laws."

"Crawford systematically sold to individual Soviet citizens large amounts of foreign currency at speculative prices, that is committed a crime stipulated in article 88 of the penal code of the Russian Federation," Tass said.

"Criminal proceedings were also instituted against three Soviet citizens, Crawford's accomplices in the criminal activity," Tass said.

The penalty for conviction of such a crime is eight years in prison, followed by internal exile in Siberia.

Earlier, the Soviet Foreign Ministry reported Crawford was being investigated under a section of the criminal code covering smuggling. But it later said its information was incorrect.

There was no immediate response from the U.S. Embassy, which has had several meetings with Crawford at the consular level during which he proclaimed his innocence, according to reliable non-embassy sources.

Crawford was arrested Monday evening as he drove through central Moscow with his fiancée, U.S. Embassy employee Virginia Oberush of Philadelphia. Ms. Oberush was arrested in a scuffle with the arresting militiamen who, she said, tried to take the keys to their car.

Meanwhile in Moscow the Soviet Union warned today that American hard-liners seeking to return Soviet-U.S. relations to Cold War enmity are gaining the upper hand in the Carter administration.

The major foreign policy statement blamed the deterioration in Soviet-U.S. relations on the Carter administration and said the Soviet Union would not accept its "invitation to join the funeral of détente."

The statement attacked national security adviser Zbigniew Brzezinski for "grossly and clumsily" exaggerating elements of rivalry and belittling the cooperation between the two superpowers.

It implied President Carter was going along with Brzezinski's anti-Soviet line to divert attention from domestic and other foreign problems and to increase his own popularity.

The statement appeared in the Communist Party newspaper Pravda and other central papers at the end of a week in which Moscow accused a U.S. woman diplomat of espionage and arrested a U.S. businessman on currency charges.

Replying to Carter's speech on U.S. Soviet relations in Annapolis June 7, the article described as its balanced approach.

Two 'Separate Communities' Bugged Him, So...

JOHN BAENAN (LEFT), AZEL LESTER REVIEW PLANS FOR WINWOOD PARK EXPANSION

By JOAN MADISON
 Herald Correspondent

John Baenan lives with his wife, Joyce, in a comfortable home in Altamonte Springs. His children attend a parochial school where they excel in academics and sports.

But Baenan knows that less than a mile away, members of the black community don't have it so good. And that bothers him.

Consequently, for the past seven years, he's been unrelenting in helping the black community improve its conditions.

But he wants more than that. It pains him to see the hostility and indifference of the white community toward their black neighbors.

"It surely is very obvious to everyone that we still have two societies, separate and unequal," he says. "Why does that situation continue to exist?"

"Many of our national leaders pontificate racism as our most serious social problem, the shame of the nation," he says.

Baenan became involved in the black community in the fall of 1971 when he saw an opportunity for the black and white communities to work together.

A house had been donated to the black community to be converted into a community center. It was a Godsend to the community, which had no recreational facilities or community meeting center.

When the house was moved to the two acres just outside the borders of the city of Altamonte Springs — Winwood Park — the situation looked bleak.

In dilapidated condition, the house needed new windows, doors, ceiling, flooring, insulation, wiring, and paint.

Baenan worked through his church — St. Mary Magdalen Catholic. His first appeal — the first of many successful appeals — resulted in a new roof. But he appealed for more than monetary help. He urged his fellow parishioners to help physically — to really become involved.

But it seemed easier for most to give money than to become actively involved.

Baenan was persistent. As the black community raised small sums of money through rummage sales, donut sales, and sales of old newspapers, Baenan provided an integrated talent show that not only brought in $27, but brought the two communities together.

Another church, St. Marks Presbyterian, became involved. And to facilitate progress inside the Winwood Park facility — a new idea — volunteer work parties, every Thursday night.

While they continued, Baenan was usually there — frequently the only white person. "I almost never see whites in the black community except vendors and politicians," he says.

Then the black community reached out, an ecumenical prayer meeting was held. Baenan encouraged members of his church to attend.

"Jesus tells us that we cannot love God if we do not love our neighbor," he would tell them.

Attendance-wise the prayer meeting was successful but afterwards, each community went its separate way.

Slowly, the community center and recreational park at Winwood Park materialized. A basketball court was erected, a baseball field laid out, and supervised summer recreational programs provided.

And now the little house was the home of a successful Head Start program.

But Winwood Park was beginning to suffer growing pains. School equipment for the 60 Head Start students occupies a lot of space, and clubs and other organizations are finding the facility inadequate to meet their expanding needs.

This spring the bomb dropped. The Head Start program that
