DEAR DR. LAMB—I'd like some information on varicose veins. I'm 27 and I'm not overweight. My left leg seems to get worse even though I wear support hose most of the time. My legs ache a lot. My question is this: Is it possible that the hose could be harming my leg? My right leg is O.K. I have two children and I tried to wear support hose through most of my pregnancy. I've become afraid to wear them now. My legs ache so bad. I'd appreciate any information you might have.

DEAR READER—Varicose veins are overstretched veins. Your veins have elastic fibers in them and when they become overstretched to the point that the elastic fibers don't work properly, they're permanently dilated. It's somewhat analogous to a balloon that's been blown up too many times until it won't snap back to its original form.

The veins in your leg contain tiny valves. These little flaps all open as the blood moves upward flowing toward your heart. If the blood starts to flow backward the flaps drop against each other and close the vein. These valves are important in maintaining the circulation in the veins in your leg.

Those overstretched veins sometimes are stretched so much that these little valve flaps don't quite meet. As a result, they don't work well and so blood accumulates in the veins when you're standing upright. Blood runs downhill and downhills in your heart level down. If you're lying on your back so that your legs are relatively at the same level as your heart, then this doesn't happen and the swelling associated with varicose veins disappears.

I'm sending you The Health Letter number 5-8, Varicose Veins, to give you more details about the causes of varicose veins and what can be done about them. Other readers who grant this issue can send 50 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1581, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Explanation Of Varicose Veins

Support hose or pressure bandages such as the elastic bandages that athletes use to prevent swelling. Do this by creating external pressure outside the veins and compressing them. This helps prevent the dilation and accumulation of blood in the veins themselves.

Support hose should not increase the problem with your varicose veins in any way. The only trouble people get into is by using some kind of constricting garment. To illustrate this point, if you have an elastic garter around the top of a nylon, the garter may act as a light venous tourniquet and impede the flow of blood out of the veins toward your heart. You should never wear anything constricting from the heart down if you have varicose veins.

As The Health Letter I'm sending you explains, there is a family tendency toward having varicose veins. You were absolutely correct to wear support hose during your pregnancy. I wish all women would, particularly those who have a family history of varicose veins. It's also important for women who come from a family with such a history to wear support hose if their occupation requires prolonged sitting or prolonged standing.

HOROSCOPE

By BERNICE BEDE OSOL
For Tuesday, May 29, 1979

YOUR BIRTHDAY
May 29, 1979
You'll have many wonderful opportunities this coming year to put into use some of those ideas you always get. The thing that could trip you up, however, is being too impatient and pushy.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20)
You are feeling awfully sure of yourself today and that's good, but don't carry things to extremes and try to pull off a bluff. It won't work. Find out more of what lies ahead for you for the year following your birthday by sending for your copy of Astro-Graph Letter. Mail $1 for each and a self-addressed envelope to Astro-Graph, P.O. Box 489, Radio City Station, N.Y. 10019. Be sure to specify birth sign.

CANCER (June 21-July 20)
Frustrating thinking could cause some problems for you today. Double-check everything so that a large error doesn't slip through.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22)
Money and friends won't mix well today. Don't get involved with any financial dealings with pals, either as recipient or lender.

VERGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22)
You may have to take extra pains not to be overly critical today. Your words will have a boomerang effect and come back and attack you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22)
Someone may try to use you as a doorman today by winking their nasty little comments all over you. Speak up for your rights. Don't let them get away with it.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 22)
Teenagers must be selected with extra care today. The wrong ones could make you look like a chump instead of a champ.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21)
You could easily get stuck in a rut with your own thinking today. Give your competition a few jumps on you. Try to look beyond the obvious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19)
You're feeling good at making excuses but unfortunately they won't do your work for you. You'll reap exactly what you sow today.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)
Be especially careful who you tell what to today. There is a false friend who will use what you say in a manner that is harmful to you.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20)
If you don't have much faith in the abilities of others involved with you in your activities, you'd better not rely on them too heavily.

ARIES (March 21-April 19)
Tackle only what you're capable of doing alone today. Proper help will not be available for strenuous tasks, and you could hurt yourself.

Taurus (April 20-May 20)
Your budget will only stretch so far before it snaps. Don't kid yourself by thinking tomorrow will care for itself. Better spend wisely.

South wins and must play his two top trumps.

Oswald: "Simple enough. The point to his play is that he wants to ruff his last spade under his own terms and conditions. He isn't ready yet."

Alan: "He cashes dummy's top diamonds and diamonds one club. Then he ruffs a fourth diamond to set up dummy's last one."

Oswald: "Now he ruffs his little spade and leads dummy's last diamond. It doesn't matter what East does. South gets rid of another club and loses just one club, one spade and one trump."

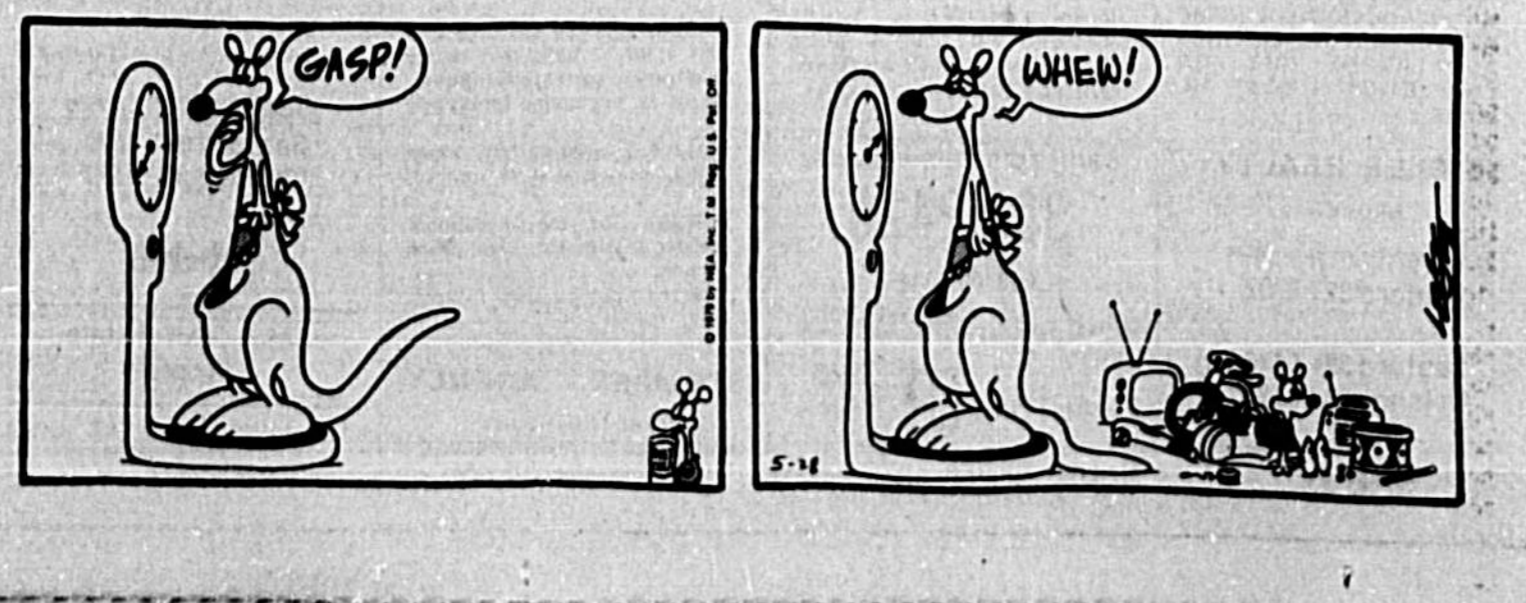

Alan: "Easy when you see it, but the sort of result that would be worth about nine or ten points out of twelve in duplicate play."

Investigation Sought In Jail Complaints

By SHARON CARRASCO
Herald Staff Writer
A Seminole County circuit judge has asked the state attorney to have a grand jury investigate county jail inmates' allegations that their civil rights are being violated.

Four inmates, two of them in custody on murder charges claim they have been denied the right to practice the free exercise of their religion, denied access to the court because there is no law library and denied proper medical and dental care.

Other allegations include unreasonable "strip searches" they claim are in violation of their constitutional rights, unsanitary handling of food by cafeteria personnel and prisoners are subject to different kinds of corporal punishment.

Inmate Robert A. Preston, Jr., awaiting trial for murder, and M. Sims, a convicted murderer, John F. Eiden and Frank Hall II who's currently on bond have filed a petition for a writ of mandamus (a writ asking public officials be ordered to perform their duty) with the Seminole County Circuit Court.

The action is on behalf of all inmates of one particular cell block at Seminole County Jail, the action states.

The inmates' petition, which is hand written in pencil on yellow tablet paper, is filed against Seminole County Jail, Sheriff John Polk, Major Duane Harrell, Capt. Max Stewart, Lt. Don McCallough and the board of County Commissioners.

Seminole County Circuit Judge Volie A. Williams Jr. responded to the petition. In a letter to the state attorney, he wrote "please have a grand jury of the county

A spokesman at the printing shop on Magnolia Avenue said about 100 of the bumper stickers have been printed. Bentley has come under fire in recent weeks for favoring an expansion alternative that would relocate SMH outside the city of Sanford. Among those critical of Bentley's position have been members of the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce and the Sanford City Commission.

Last week bumper stickers reading, "Move Bentley not the hospital," began appearing around town. One of those purchasing such a sticker was Commissioner David Farr, who said he purchased the sticker from the Celery City Printing Company when he heard they were being produced.

"It's nothing personal against Mr. Bentley," Farr said, "just don't want the hospital to be moved out of Sanford."

Unperturbed by bumper stickers suggesting his removal as Seminole Memorial Hospital Administrator, Charles Bentley said today he will continue to advocate hospital expansion plans that "best meet the needs of all the people of the county."

County Commissioners To SMH: Study All Possibilities

The offer of Florida Hospital — Altamonte — to merge the operations of its Altamonte Springs facility with Seminole Memorial Hospital should at least be considered with all other alternatives, said Bob French, county commissioner chairman today.

Florida Hospital President Bob Scott, in a letter to Allan Keen, Seminole Memorial Hospital board of trustees vice president suggested the "common operation" possibility, saying by "combining our efforts, the entire county would be served with a common facility and this would greatly alleviate our rivalry."

But Keen's response has been that the merger proposal isn't being given serious consideration.

"The hospital trustees are talking about the possibility of spending $15 million to $16 million to renovate and expand the existing hospital or to build a new one. I think the trustees are going to have to look at all the alternatives to justify the expenditure," French said.

"I'm not going to even consider moving the hospital, establishing a satellite, or anything else but upgrading if they show it is needed, until they consider all the alternatives," French said. "In the Booz, Allen and Hamilton report, it says on the first page that they 'arrived at certain conclusions based on assumptions.' I'd like to know what the assumptions were. If they do not list all the assumptions, I don't know what the report means," he said.

The 12-page, $8,000 consultant study said it would be cheaper to relocate the hospital than to renovate and expand.

"I think it is a good idea to explore merger possibilities," said Commissioner Bill Kirchhoff. "But, I also think it would be good for anyone who is interested to make presentations in detail for hospital service in the northern care area of Seminole County and Southwest Volusia," he said.

Commissioner Dick Williams said: "I haven't seen the letter from Mr. Scott. All the alternatives ought to be looked at. The Seventh Day Adventists, who operate the Florida Hospitals, have a long track record," he said. Williams added, it may be that only the hospital trustees have authority to make a decision on the hospital.

The trustees last week authorized a $25,000 marketing study to aid them in making a decision of whether the hospital should be expanded and renovated, relocated or a satellite built in the Lake Mary area in conjunction with expanding the present facility.

Legislation which would permit changing the hospital's status from a public supported facility to a non-profit hospital has been approved by the Legislature. Final approval by the county commission is required before any status change can be brought about.

Kirchhoff reminded that the board of trustees has not as yet come to the commission with a request for exactly what it wants done.—DONNA ESTES

Deputies Come To Aid Of Kidney Transplant Donor

By GUY FORD POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer
A Seminole County confinement officer is scheduled to undergo a kidney transplant today that could restore his 12-year-old sister's health, and he says the action of Sheriff John Polk and 10 other deputies has made the operation feasible.

Mark Dixon, 21, of 115 Country Club Drive, Sanford, is at Shands Hospital in Gainesville, today waiting for the scheduled operation that will remove one of his kidneys and transplant it to the body of his sister, Marcelle of Jacksonville. Marcelle's kidneys were removed a year ago and she has had to undergo dialysis machine treatments for up to five hours, three days a week, Dixon said.

"This is going to allow her to function as a normal girl. It's something I want to do very much," said Dixon.

Dixon who works at Seminole County Jail, said he learned from doctors in February that his kidney would be acceptable to his sister and decided immediately to undergo the transplant. However, he said he has only been a deputy for about a year and has accumulated only five days sick leave. The operation will leave him unable to work for as much as six weeks, he said.

But a policy revision made by Sheriff Polk will provide all the time necessary for recovery without costing Dixon lost pay volunteered to help. They were fantastic, I wish I could let them know how much I appreciate what they have done," Dixon said.

Dixon said his sister was stricken with kidney disease when she was three and the disease grew progressively worse. He has had to watch while the young girl withered to 50 pounds, he said.

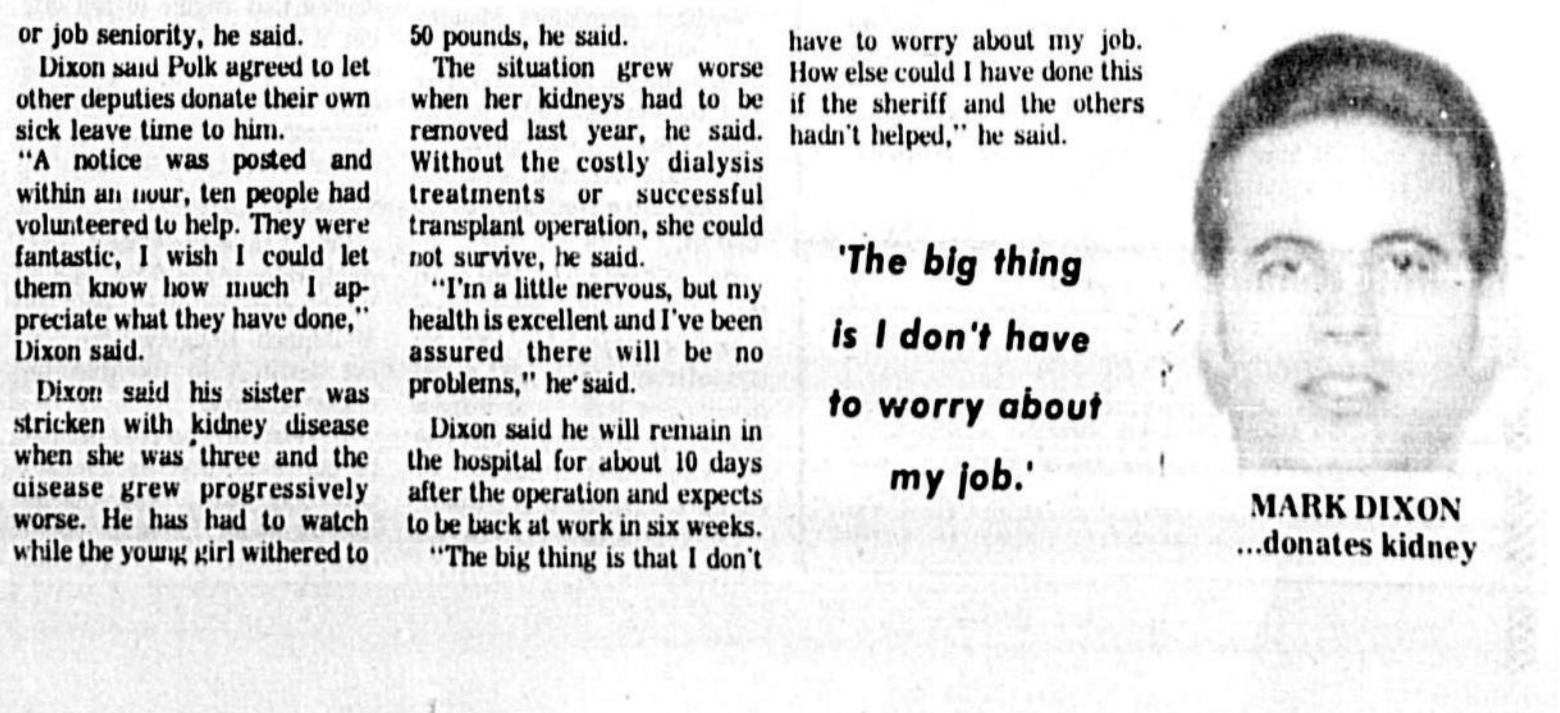

The situation grew worse when her kidneys had to be removed last year, he said. Without the costly dialysis treatments or successful transplant operation, she could not survive, he said.

"I'm a little nervous, but my health is excellent and I've been assured there will be no problems," he said.

Dixon said he will remain in the hospital for about 10 days after the operation and expects to be back at work in six weeks. "The big thing is that I don't have to worry about my job. How else could I have done this if the sheriff and the others hadn't helped," he said.

"The big thing is I don't have to worry about my job."

County Sued For 'Abuse' Over Land Use

By DONNA ESTES Herald Staff Writer
A suit charging denial of constitutional rights and "abuse of discretion" by elected and appointed Seminole County officials has been filed in federal district court by Arthur L. Seligman of Maitland seeking $124,000 in actual damages in addition to punitive damages of an undetermined amount.

By U.S. Judge George Young, said refusal by county officials to permit him to use his land at the corner of General J. C. Hutchison Parkway and U.S. 17-92 caused him "financial loss, many hours interruption in his business and personal life" and actual loss of the property.

Flexible Spine An Impossible Wish

DEAR DR. LAMB—I had a complete physical exam two years ago and the doctor found that I have arthritis of the spine. He gave me pills for the pain and a series of exercises to follow. I've been very pleased because my condition has improved. I no longer have the pains I used to have and I no longer take pills. I do continue to do the exercises and I'm quite active.

I'm concerned because my spine doesn't bend very much because of the arthritis. It's made the joints calcified and I'm not very flexible although I try to bend and stretch with exercises. It's possible to break up the calcium deposits in any way so the joints could again function somewhat like they used to? I'm a 48-year-old man and have suffered with arthritis for about 12 years. I don't care how long it takes but if it is possible to be more flexible, I'd like to work toward that goal.

DEAR READER—Your story sounds like you have a special form of rheumatoid arthritis that involves the spine. It's particularly apt to occur in young men. It may not be associated with arthritis of other joints although that's not a set rule.

It does behave a little bit different than the usual variety of rheumatoid arthritis. However, I'm sending you the Health Letter number 4-11, Rheumatoid Arthritis, to give you more information on this problem as it's related to your condition and the letter contains some comments about rheumatoid arthritis of the spine.

It sounds like the treatment your doctor has given you has been very good. Being pain free and being able to be active is an important achievement.

It's often impossible to avoid the spine becoming stiff and fused, regardless of what you do. Your best route to maintaining flexibility is through exercises. If a physical medicine department is available to you in your community, you might see a specialist in physical medicine and physiotherapy for additional advice and consultation about the forms of exercises that can be used to maintain as normal function as possible.

DEAR DR. LAMB—I have asked my doctor this very personal question but I would like a second opinion. I'm in my late 40s and in the menopause phase. I don't have any problems but I'm very nervous about the future. I need to know when contraindications are no longer necessary.

DEAR READER—Many women in this stage of life have that same question. It's very sensible question because there are so many complications and undesirable features to birth control itself. If you're not likely to get pregnant anyway, there's not much reason to live with these problems.

The difficulty is in saying specifically in an individual's case that she will no longer get pregnant. Some doctors say that when a woman has finished the menopause and gone at least a year without any periods that she is most unlikely to get pregnant. If you want to be safe you probably should extend this period to two years after the last period. If you want to shorten that interval, you ought to see a doctor and let him examine you and give you his opinion as related to your specific case. Finally, there do not seem to be any reliable records of any woman getting pregnant after age 57.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By Oswald Jacoby and Alan Sontag

All South has to do to make three trump is to stop to count his winners.

He is suit of one heart, two spades, three diamonds and a third club trick barring very bad breaks. He almost surely must play clubs at some stage or other and must also try the spade finesse. There is a potential heart finesse also, but the one thing South wants to do is to keep from being forced to take that spade finesse entry in the play.

West has the king's trick with dummy's first diamonds in order to lead a second diamond. Now South can lose the spade finesse while he still has heart control and score his game in spite of both major suit finesses being wrong.

A Utah reader wants to know if we recommend an opening two spade bid with this hand.

No, we don't. With only 19 high-card points and five probable losers, the hand doesn't qualify for a forcing club bid. We would not give any demerits to a player who chooses to open with a two bid.

Judge To Longwood: Vote Or Be Jailed

Special Meeting Called

Julian said he could not file an appeal with the Fourth District Court of Appeals until the order had been filed, but once it is, he would do so. He said the filing of a notice by a governmental body with the appeals court "generally stays an order subject to the court's findings."

"We'll do whatever is necessary to comply with the court order as needed to keep from going to jail—whatever the law allows us to," said Julian.

The judge granted the contempt motion requested by attorneys for Robert Daves, who filed suit in October, 1978, against the city and Goldberg, after the commissioner moved from the district he was elected to represent.

On May 17 Muldrew ordered the Longwood commission to vote on the issue, but on May 21 they refused to do so.

Instead, in a 3-2 vote, they authorized Julian to ask for a rehearing and failing that to file an appeal.

In Tuesday's hearing, Muldrew dismissed both motions filed by Julian asking the judge to throw out his first order. Muldrew said the city's motions were not covered under procedural rules.

Meanwhile, Mayor June Lormann called a special meeting of the commission for 1 p.m. Thursday at city hall to act on the judge's ruling.

"I don't like the whole situation," commented Commissioner J. I. Grant. "I think the judge is within his rights. I'm tired of spending the taxpayers' money."

Everybody knew what the law was before he (Goldberg) moved. The law is pretty plain and you can't implement a new charter and leave one man out. Mr. Julian is trying to implement the new one and use the old one.

The new charter requires commissioners to reside in the district they represent, but they are elected at-large.

"I'm willing to go along with whatever our attorney advises us to do," said Commissioner Ray Leibenberger. "If he tells us we have to vote I guess June will call a special meeting and if he says we should appeal, I'll go along with that."

Commissioners Goldberg and Stephen Barton could not be reached for comment. Barton and Grant voted against further defense of the suit.

Sewer Rates To Rise $2.36 In Seminole

Customers of Seminole County's four utility systems will face a $2.36 monthly increase in sewer rates, if recommendations from consulting engineers are approved after a June 12 public hearing. County Commissioners in a workshop Tuesday heard recommendations from the consulting engineering firm of Post, Buckley, Schuh and Jernigan of Orlando that minimum monthly sewer rates be increased from $9.46 to $11.82—a 25 percent hike.

The firm said revenues from the four systems—Lynnwood, Country Club, Indian Hills and Consumer Utilities—in the south and central part of the county are not sufficient to meet operating expenses, debt service coverage and a balloon payment due in 1980.

The increase, if approved, would generate $100,000 more in revenue annually, the firm said.

The minimum sewer bill is based on 120 percent of the monthly charge for 10,000 gallons of water. It is to be increased to 150 percent. Minimum water rates, meanwhile, would remain at $4.58 for 80 gallons. Charges to those customers, however, who use more than 20,000 gallons of water monthly would be increased from 66 cents per thousand gallons to 80 cents.

The reason for increasing the rate to persons using over 20,000 gallons, according to the consultants, is to discourage use of water for lawn sprinkling. The consultants said the use of that high a volume of water usually means much of it is being sprinkled on lawns and water for these purposes can better be acquired from individual wells drilled specifically for that purpose.

The county currently has 2,219 customers on its utility systems and, according to county estimates, the systems have a potential of serving 6,000 customers.

"Potable drinking water is fast becoming an expensive commodity," the consultants said.

County Commissioner Sandra Glenn noted the proposed rate increase would be the second in three years, adding the rates were raised in 1976 by 44 percent.

The consultants said, however, after the county acquired the systems money was invested in them to meet or exceed standard. The consultant added labor costs and other inflationary factors, as well as requirements by the state Department of Environmental Regulations for water and sewer utilities, have increased costs of operation. — DONNA ESTES

RIOT SQUAD TRAINING What appears to be a dangerous situation at first glance is actually just a training exercise for units of the Florida Highway Patrol riot squad. The FHP conducted riot training in an area near south Sanford Avenue and 28th Street this morning. The riot squad went through mock emergencies using blank bullets.

New Phone Network OK For Seminole

Seminole County government busy signals may just another year during peak hours—but the phone jam may clear.

County commissioners Tuesday authorized installation of a new telephone network at the county courthouse, Roundhill building where the manpower program is housed, the sheriff's department complex to relocate at the Sanford Airport and the Five Points complex.

Dorothy Wade, commission office manager, told commissioners "the new system will provide total communications to all departments in the county government by the most cost effective and productive manner available and will eliminate any and all problems that exist in the present system."

She said, however, it will be a year before the installation is completed.

The delay of one year, she said, is because the new system is being "tailor-made" for the courthouse and county needs, and a study to determine exact county needs is to be completed first.

Mrs. Wade said that county needs to get calls through to government offices during peak periods. In addition, government employees cannot conduct business with the outside world during those times, causing low productivity and morale when communications are blocked. There is a "zero growth factor" in the present system, she noted.

Peak hours, said Mrs. Wade, are 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., 10:30 to 11 a.m. and 3 to 4:30 p.m.

She estimated, after consultations with Southern Bell Co. officials, the new system will cost 26 percent more annually over the current rate—up from $155,988.77 to $195,777.

It is also possible to add additional trunk lines to alleviate the (telephone) traffic. It would cost $350 more per month. This still would not alleviate our problems," she said. "We are unable to add any more additional extensions to our present system."

Mrs. Wade said the new system, called the countywide dimension network, will enable all personnel at all locations to quickly and easily communicate with any person within the county government, give fast and orderly connections to outside lines and increase productivity and raise morale.

Most county offices are now linked via the courthouse switchboard.

Keep Personnel Files Secret, Sanford Attorney Says

By GEOFFREY POUNDS
Herald Staff Writer

Should city employees' personnel records be confidential? Says Sanford's city attorney.

Such records do not fall under the same category as other public records and should not be made available to the press or other interested persons, city attorney Vernon Mize has advised the Sanford city commissioners.

"I recommend that personnel records not be disclosed to anyone unless there is a written approval from the individual employee involved," Mize told the commissioners at a Tuesday's regular commission meeting.

An exception would be salary information, which is listed in budget reports.

Mize said it is his opinion that personnel records do not fall under the broad definition of public records which, according to the Florida Public Records Act, must remain open to the public.

Although Mize said he does not expressly exempt personnel files, court cases suggest there is a distinction between public records and personnel records. He also said the federal Freedom of Information Act specifically exempts an employee's personnel record from public scrutiny.

There would be a question of liability if personnel records were released, Mize said. He said the individual releasing the records would be subject to suit if the employee whose records were released did not consent.

Mize said information which is kept in a personnel file and also duplicated in other public documents is not confidential so long as it is obtained by the alternate documents. Salaries would not be protected, since for example, they are listed in reports available to the public.

Mize said he reviewed the city's policy on confidential personnel files after reading an article in the Florida Municipal Record by Plant City Attorney Paul S. Buchanan. Buchanan's article stated that until it is judicially determined to be confidential, it would appear that there is a constitutional right of privacy which precludes public disclosure of personnel files of city employees.

"I think it would be prudent to instruct the city manager to adhere to the recommendation of the city attorney and not release personnel files," commissioner John Morris said.

The other commissioners were polled and all agreed with Morris, although no formal action was required in order to enact the policy.

In that case, the District Court said.

"Almost universally, a private employer assumes the obligation of treating personnel information on a confidential basis. If government cannot assure its employees of similar protection, then the public will be prone to the inability of its agencies to attract qualified personnel."

Where's Carter?—Fishin'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—I did it and I'm glad. It may have been worded differently, but that was the essence of President Carter's response to questions about his having sneaked away for a secret fishing trip over the weekend.

"It was one of the nicest days of my life," a beaming Carter told reporters at his nationally broadcast news conference Tuesday. Getting away from it all, he said, "is good for me and good for the country."

Members of the White House press corps say, however, the president violated an informal agreement to keep them apprised of any movements he makes in public.

The agreement grew out of a face-to-face meeting between the president and several White House reporters early in Carter's presidency, after he had gone unannounced to an opera at the Kennedy Center and after he had conducted an hours-long running news conference on the streets of Plains, Ga., on a day his press secretary had said he would make no news.

Carter said then it would be a rare occurrence when I wouldn't let you know about his movements. Press secretary Jody Powell concurred, and reporters took that to be an informal agreement.

Perhaps they should have listened more carefully to what else Carter had to say:

"I'm not going to relinquish the right to go to the zoo with Amy, or to the opera with my wife, or to pick up arthropods on my farm without prior notice to you."

He said at his news conference it is rare for him to get away from the "woods" and swamps and in the fields and on the streams by myself."

"I really believe," he said, "that it is not only good for me, but for the country to be able to do that on occasion. I wish I could do it more. But I don't intend to ignore any opportunity to take advantage of a fishing trip when my permits it."

Fishing has been a favorite form of presidential relaxation at least since the time Benjamin Harrison split on his worms for luck and cussed when the fish got away. President Hoover wetted his line in New Jersey's Pequest River with a member of the state's Fish and Game Commission. President Eisenhower braved the chilly waters of Colorado's South Platte River to hook a rainbow trout. And President Carter learned the sport in a Plains, Ga., pond.
