Many Affected By Milk Allergy

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D. DEAR DR. LAMB - I am a black woman and I'm writing husband and I have trouble to you in desperation. Both my with milk and milk products. I read your column and know we both have lactose inolerance. Even one glass of milk or if I use too much in cooking really makes us both as sick as if we had been poisoned. If I eat ice cream, cottage cheese, drink milk or use milk gravy, I get so distended that I just lie on my back and suffer. For years I was told that I was nervous but I learned that it was milk intolerance.

What are black people supposed to do? I understand 90 per cent of us have this problem and so do Mexicans and other minority groups. We are denied the right to a balanced diet because we can't use milk products. I understand that the milk sugar can be treated with an enzyme so it won't cause these problems and people can use this treated milk without get-

Why won't the dairy industry provide us with milk products we can use without getting sick? Is it discrimination because we are black? If there were more black people or other minority people running the dairy industry we would all be able to use milk without getting sick. Isn't there something that can be done to make the dairies provide us with milk we can

DEAR READER - I understand your distress but I don't think it is really discrimination. There are 35 nillion whites as well as over 24 million blacks in the United States with this problem. There is a market potential of about 60 million - or one in

Moynihan To Quit U.N. Post, Eyeing N.Y. Senate Seat

WASHINGTON (AP) - Daniel Parick Moynihan will resume teaching at Harvard but will keep an eye on a Senate seat from New York when he leaves his post as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations at the end of this month. The flamboyant, blunt-spoken diplomat made no mention of any friction between himself and President Ford or Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger when his resignation was announced Monday.

But there were reports that Moynihan blamed Kissinger for his departure, saying Kissinger undercut him in private while supporting him in public. And top U.S. officials, speaking privately, made it clear they considered Moynihan a cross to bear because of his outspoken and occasionally caustic statements about world affairs during his 612 months at the U.N.

When he was asked Monday about his relationship with Kissinger, Movnihan said, "We are old friende, I have been his ambassador as well as the President's in carrying out his policies."

Blizzard Warning Issued

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS A blizzard warning was in effect early today for the northeastern shore of Lake Ontario with travelers advisories over eastern New York state and Vermont. A high wind warning covered eastern Pennsylvania with gale and storm warnings extending along the New England coast.

Travelers advisories were in effect from the southern Ohio Valley into Tennessee. A storm in the northern Plains continued to intensify. Winter storm warnings were issued for today for western Montana, northeastern Wyoming, South Dakota and the southern third of North Dakota. Travelers advisories were in effect for the remainder of North Dakota, eastern Montana and northern Minnesota

Adviser States Intentions

WASHINGTON (AP) - President Ford's new political counselor calls it hypocritical to try to separate government from politics, saying he intends to work at both and provide a new link between the White House and the Ford

Rogers C.B. Morton was being sworn in today as a $44,-600-a-year presidential adviser, a position that has stirred controversy and one he said is essential to any president. Morton said "there is no way in the world that you can separate politics from government" in a system based on elections. "And therefore anything you did, like try to say that you work 40 hours a week for the taxpayers and 40 hours a week to re-elect the president, is hypocritical.

MPLA Denies Charges, Expells British Reporter

By The Associated Press

The Soviet-backed Popular Movement (MPLA) Angola has denied it plans to nationalize Gulf Oil's Cabinda concession and it expelled the British correspondent who reported the MPLA planned to take over the offshore field.

The London Daily Telegraph said the MPLA, in expelling their correspondent A. J. McIlroy from Luanda. 'denied categorically that the government of the People's Republic of Angola was considering the nationalization of Gulf's operations, and it also denied it was seeking any form of compensatory payment from Gulf."

McIlroy had reported Monday from Cabinda, the Angolan coastal enclave, that Dr. Agostinho Neto's MPLA regime "is claiming more than $2 billion in royalties due from Gulf but Gulf has closed its operation, withdrawing all its staff and technical experts."

Agreement Prospects Dim

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (AP) - Northern Ireland's constitutional convention begins another attempt today to chart the strife-ridden province's political future, but nobody expects it to produce an agreement that will bring peace.

"The chances are pretty slim, almost zero," said John Taylor, a Protestant leader who four years ago was shot six times by gunmen of the Irish Republican Army,

"We're prepared to make every effort to reach agreement in the convention, but the chances are that agreement will not be reached," commented John Hume, a Roman Catholic leader of the Social Democratic and Labor party.

Trudeau Tour Controversial

CARACAS (AP) - Canadian Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau has ended his 11-day LatinAmerican tour, leaving a trail of controversy over his friendliness with Cuban Prime Minister Fidel Castro, Trudeau acknowledged Monday as he left Caracas for

Ottawa that some Latin-American countries fear the export of Cuban revolution on their soil, along the lines of Cuban operations in Angola. But he insisted at a news conference there was nothing incorrect in his relations with Castro and "in areas where we have political differences, they were made quite clear and almost brutally frank."

FLORIDA IN BRIEF Police Seek Assistance

In Orlando Franchise Case

ORLANDO (AP) - Police are asking for assistance from persons who think they were cheated by a paraplegic accused of selling phony franchises for medical aids for the handicapped.

In a 10-state appeal Monday, police sought evidence to help prosecute the president of an Orlando-based firm called RAD Medical Aids. The firm's president, C. Monroe Arnold Lerman, was arrested Saturday on charges of larceny.

Lerman, a wheelchair-bound paraplegic, gained national attention last year when he mailed a photograph of missing teamster boss Jimmy Hoffa to the Hoffa family.

Investigators said the charges were based on evidence that more than 30 persons from 10 states have shelled out thousands of dollars for fake franchises.

HRS Official Charged

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - Two Health and Rehabilitative Services Department purchasing officers are sticking to their claim that a top HRS official applied extreme pressure to get $188,000 in illegal purchases approved.

Both men took strong issue with a report prepared by former House Speaker Terrell Sessums at the request of HRS Secretary William Page.

Sessums' report, presented to the Senate Health and Rehabilitative Services Committee Monday night, had cleared Odis Kendrick, a deputy HRS secretary, of charges that he used pressure to get approval of purchases of television equipment, calculators and office furniture

Children Die In Fires

APAPKA (AP) - Fires in two houses on the same block have claimed the lives of three infant girls, including 15-month-old twins. A fourth child was severly burned in one of the blazes. The victims were identified as Carmen and Sara Marta

Moreno, and Lisa Hudson, 1. Another Hudson child, Tonya, 5, was hospitalized with second degree burns over most of her body.

Fire Chief Roy Gilliam said the Moreno twins died of apparent smoke inhalation early Monday about 15 minutes after being rushed to a hospital following the fire at their home

Basic Tax Reform A Sensible Idea

Secretary of Treasury William Simon says he is not launching a trial balloon for the Ford administration with his recent speeches and interviews calling for basic reform of the federal tax system. We wish he were.

President Ford's determination to link tax cuts with spending cuts led Congress to go along reluctantly with that principle for the sake of getting the President's signature on a tax bill in December. In the end, Congress could not argue with the logic of the President's position. There is a similar appeal to logic in the reforms Mr. Simon is proposing for the tax system itself. Congress is currently bogged down in the technicalities of another voluminous "tax reform" bill. Mr. Ford probably would strike a sympathetic chord with the public by challenging Congress to look instead at the kind of reform Mr. Simon is suggesting. It is the periodic exercises in piecemeal tax reform like that now under way in Congress which have made a wilderness out of our tax laws and left taxpayers with a growing resentment about their complexities and inequities.

Mr. Simon thinks his reform would restore simplicity and fairness to the tax system. He would throw out most of the 6,000 pages of laws and rules that are now beginning to baffle even the Internal Revenue Service - personal tax preferences, special deductions and credits, exclusions and other provisions. He would instead impose a simple, progressive income tax on what people earn. Those in the lowest income brackets would be excused, as they are now. The rest would pay a tax ranging from 10 or 12 per cent at the lower end to 35 or 40 per cent at the higher end of the income spectrum.

Second, Mr. Simon would "intergrate" the personal income tax and the corporate income tax to end what now amounts to double taxation of corporate earnings. If income tax is collected on a company's earnings, it should not be collected again on dividends paid from those earnings to the company's shareholders. Besides correcting an inequity, this would have the further benefit of encouraging more Americans to invest in business and industry and create the pool of capital needed for economic growth.

Mr. Simon's frontal assault on the tax system has been described as "radical simplification." His simplification is radical enough that political leaders may tend to shy away from it. However, the approach of April 15 should remind the President and members of Congress of the profound discontent aroused in their constituents by the sight of Form 1040 waiting to be filled out. It may take radical surgery on the tax system to head off the "taxpayer revolt" that Mr. Simon believes is brewing.

Power To People

Cuba will hold its first elections since 1959 this year, but they seem likely to be more cozy than democratic.

Premier Fidel Castro authorized the drafting of a constitution in 1975 by the Communist party congress, providing for national provincial and municipal assemblies. There has been no stampede of candidates, because Castro has warned against self-glorification. Aspirants for public office must be proposed by their friends and peers on the basis of their outstanding citizenship.

And since it is difficult in Cuba to be an outstanding citizen without being a Communist party member, the choice between slates will be limited. Eventually a Council of State, selected from the National Assembly, will be named. It will choose a president, who will be head of government and head of state. Most of the nine million Cubans over 16 years old will be permitted to vote under the new system giving "power to the But skeptics report that the early favorite for the new presidential post is Castro.

"This is the part of campaigning I don't like not knowing whether you were too evasive or not evasive enough!"

Women who register for the Worry Clinic will have the opportunity to spend the morning exploring any two of the nine topics to be covered. A registration fee of $3 covers the entire program, including lunch.

DON OAKLEY Ford Speech; Cosmetic Or Cosmic In his second State of the Union Address

President Ford was happy to report, and Americans were happy to hear, that the nation is in better -- "in many ways a lot better" -- shape than it was last January.

Whatever credit the President can take for this, and he did take credit, is not to be begrudged. The only problem, economics being the far from exact science it is, is that there is no way of knowing whether the policies of the Ford administration are responsible for this encouraging turnabout or whether it is simply due to the sheer resilience of this vast country. Assuredly, though, the more the nation's economic outlook improves in the months between now and convention, the better will be Mr. Ford's chances of receiving his party's endorsement to govern the nation for the next four years.

Also, his presenting himself as the "common sense" leader, and his quoting of the Revolutionary-era author of that stirring call for American independence, may have been just the fillip his image needs.

(The cynic might point out that the man who was afraid to receive Alexander Solzhenitsyn in the White House would never invite a freethinking radical like Thomas Paine to a presidential prayer breakfast. But then Paine is safely dead.)

The President still has a number of handicaps to overcome, however. The unions, for one, are mad at him for vetoing the common situs picketing bill. Labor, of course, has always been more or less in the Democratic pocket, but even the farmers, who have traditionally voted Republican, are angry over the restrictions the government has placed on the sale of agricultural products in the world market.

And there are still some eight million unemployed whose situation has not been significantly improved by anything the Ford administration has done or has not done. Even so, sufficient unto the day not only is the evil but the good tidings thereof. Today, both Gerald Ford and the nation look better than anyone expected they would a year ago.

"In China every citizen has the right to food, shelter, clothing and medical care," he informed in Cleveland the other day.

"The system there exists not to make doctors rich but to keep people healthy. There is no unemployment, no inflation. The people there are freer than we are."

Unfortunately, some Chinese don't seem to have gotten the message. According to the International Rescue Committee, an estimated 5,000 refugees from China managed to slip into Hong Kong last year.

Despite a continuing recession and economic stress on many people, Savings and Loan Associations in Florida experienced their largest net savings gain in history during 1975, according to William D. Hussey, president of the industry's statewide trade association, "The Florida Savings and Loan League.

'In excess of $3.6 billion was added to savings accounts in Florida savings and loan associations,' Hussey said, "and it would appear that in addition to the new money being deposited, retention of a significant amount of the $950 million paid into savings accounts in interest, contributed to the record gain."

For his part, Johnson (a slender bald man whose trouser cuffs are held above his ankles by the electricity of his executive length hose) believes the congressional action was a much legally as legislatively punk. Accordingly, he has filed suit in a California federal court asking that the cost of living statute be stricken for constitutional reasons. One, he says, it violates due process of law, in that Congress has given to itself a privilege which most Americans can not get. Two, since the law allows the President to determine the annual percentage hike, Johnson says separation of powers is ignored.

But beyond the legalities, Johnson's primary anger is moored to the sinking thought that "Congress has shown utter contempt for the people of this country." He says that for 180 years, since the days when congressmen were paid with $6 per day stipends, no Congress save the present one has voted a salary increase for Modern portfolio theory, as practiced by many trust departments, pension funds and other fiduciaries, maintains that risk is a factor of the overall character of a portfolio, not simply a characteristic of each company in the portfolio.

In her first book of poems, "The Many Facets of Love," Sanford writer Shirley Platt Schilke lays bare her heart and soul. But more than exploring just her own feelings as daughter, mother and lover, she writes of emotions familiar to all womanhood.

"In my poetry, I'm endeavoring to relate the complete gamut of emotions a woman feels when experiencing the different facets of love in her life, The wonder of nature all around her; that special love and concern for family and friends; and the sensuous love a woman has for a man." All through her life, explained the petite and sparkling Mrs. Schilke, the material for her poems has been welling up inside of her. It is only now, that her family is grown and her social and service committments are less pressing, that she has time to pour her accumulated experiences out on paper.

"The Many Facets of Love" is the result. It was from an interview on the Johnny Carson Show that the theme of her poetry collection evolved. "A young actress was talking about her interest in reincarnation," Mrs. Schilke recalls. "Johnny Carson made the comment that he would like to come back as a woman - that he would really like to understand male emotions and what makes a woman tick. "And that's what I set about doing in my poems," she con-

For the most part, she writes of personal experiences. Her poetry reflects a deep self knowledge as well as a sensitivity to the feelings of others.

Mrs. Schilke enjoys a great zest for living. "I get child-like pleasure out of things - there's a part of me that I have not allowed to grow up, to get too sophisticated," she smiles. "Why, the most exciting event of my day can be finding a new shell . . . waking in time to watch the sunrise. . . . " So many of her images include the sun and the sky and the

'The early morning sunrise, Finds me standing by the window. . .' And later:

'Can you see how beautiful the moon is tonight my dearest? How it shines upon the water

Casting a silvery glow, Creating soft shadows on our balcony?" The endless stretches of New Smyrna's beach, its tumbling waves and waving sea oats are recurring images in her work. So is the love she has known there, as demonstrated in the sensual lines from 'I Want To Remember:' 'And as I look at you, I see us - on the beach Side by sid? - among the dunes

Although Mrs. Schilke is now easing back into the working world as vice president of her husband, Carl's new business. Schilke Enterprises, most of her married life has been devoted to her children and their activities. Scouts, PTA, den mother, music lessons, football games she's enjoyed it all. She writes tenderly and with pride of her grown children, Christine, Wendy and Richard. 'You are now on your own, my son. No longer a little boy, but quite grown.

Seminole Plaza To House County's Temporary Library

outh Seminole County nporary branch library ur to five weeks

Development Roger der said about four or five weeks is the amount of time officials estimate it will take to get the facility into operation. At Tuesday's Seminole County Commission meeting, commissioners approved a contract to lease 12,000 square feet of space in the Seminole Plaza Shopping Center at U.S. 17-92 and Semoran Boulevard. A month ago the commission decided to search for space for a temporary facility because South Seminole residents weren't being provided services promised under the new

A librarian already has been selected for the branch facility in South Seminole, and the only item lacking was a structure in which to house books and other library facilities.

Though commissioners at first discussed only the location of a courthouse annex in South Seminole, at least two commissioners - Harry Kwiatkowski and Michael Hattaway - at recent com mission meetings have raised the possibility of constructing some type of facility on 80 acres of county-owned property just north of Five Points. The Five Points facility could conceivably be some type of police-judicial complex. Or, it could house Board of County Commission functions.
