Reagan Brings Budget Battle To Florida

MELBOURNE (UPI) — President Reagan brought the battle of the budget to Florida's "Space Coast" today, asserting his opponents in Congress "seem determined to destroy our economic expansion and send us right back to the malaise and stagnation of the 1970s."

On the eve of House debate of a $1 trillion budget plan — and resumption of the Iran-Contra hearings, Reagan hammered away at tenets of his domestic political agenda in a continued challenge to Democrats on Capitol Hill.

In remarks prepared for delivery to employees at a Dictaphone Corp. plant along this high-tech corridor south of the Kennedy Space Center, Reagan charged two Democratic proposals now before Congress — the budget resolution before the House and a trade bill before the Senate — have the potential of torpedoing the economic growth of the last four years.

Applauding Dictaphone's own record of improved productivity over that same period of time, Reagan sounded a note of concern in warning, "This miracle — all you've worked so hard to accomplish, all America has worked so hard to accomplish in the last 6 1/2 years — all this is now in jeopardy."

"I've got something to say, and I'm going to use plain language," he declared. "I'm not going to pull any punches. There are some people up in Washington who seem determined to destroy our economic expansion and send us right back to the malaise and stagnation of the 1970s."

While Reagan did not identify those "people up in Washington," his pique was clearly aimed at Democrats who rebuffed him with House approval of a trade bill he denounced again as "anti-jobs, anti-growth and anti-consumer" and with conference committee endorsement last week of a fiscal 1988 budget plan that includes some $65 billion in additional taxes over three years.

Reagan ripped into Congress for "that old-time deficit spending" despite Democratic charges that he shares the blame for record deficits and a national debt that has more than doubled since he took office.

Recalling the "giant veto pencil" Republican senators gave him last week to repel Democratic efforts to use higher taxes to reduce the deficit, Reagan stood his ground in the face of

Man Dies After Dive Off Bridge

A Sanford man is dead following a dive from the Wekiva River Bridge west of Sanford on State Road 46 at the Seminole-Lake county line.

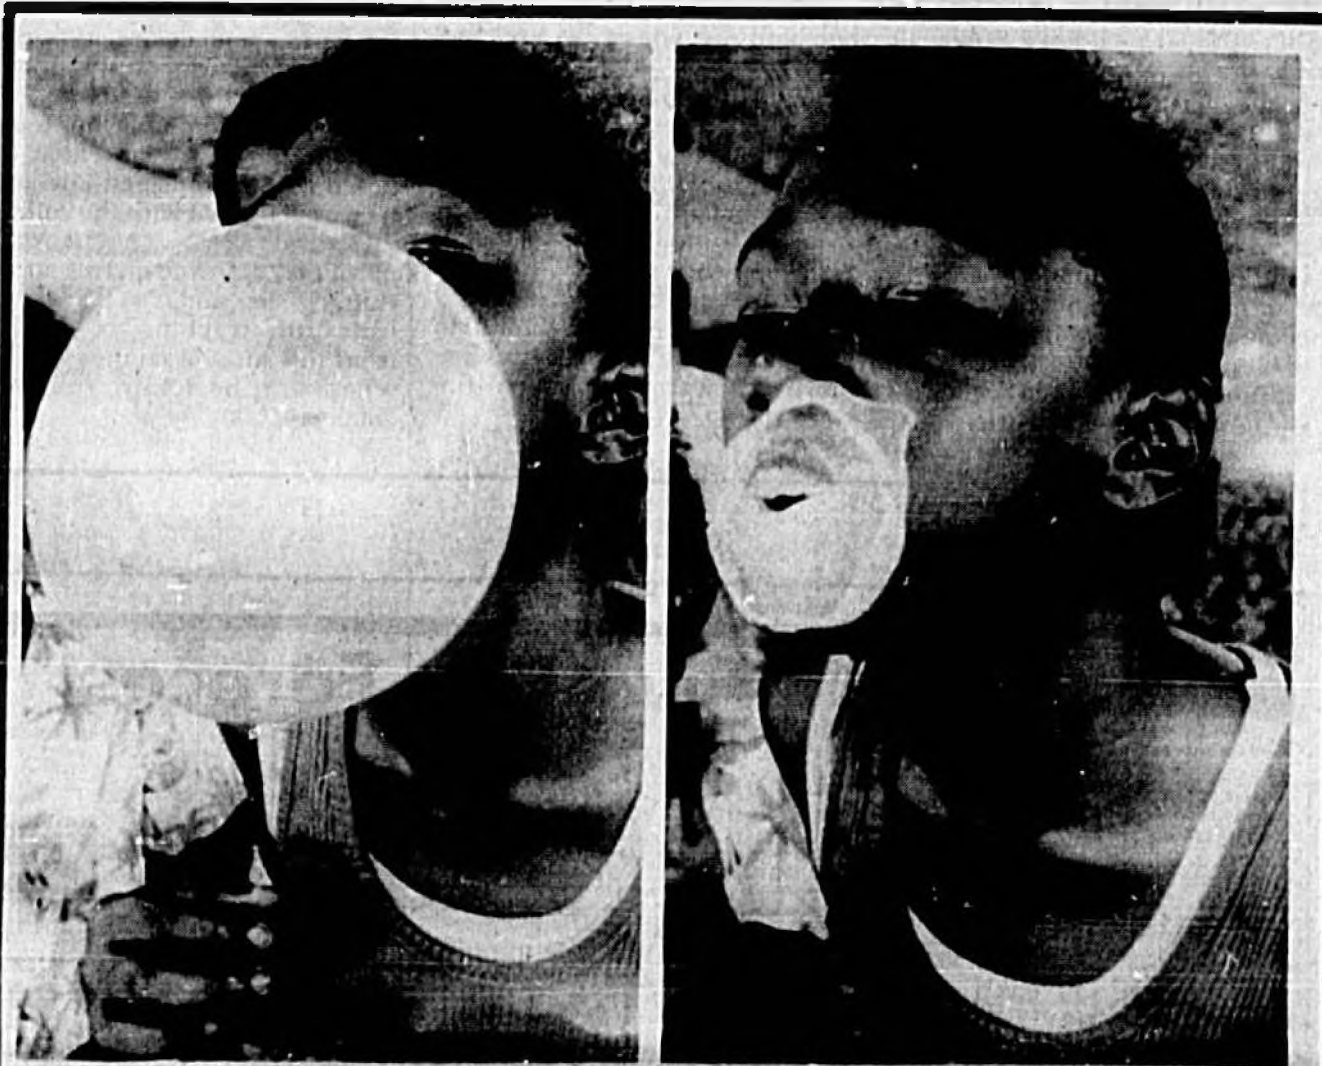

Michael Dean Bedenbaugh, 28, of 108 S. Holly Ave., dove from the bridge at about 4:30 p.m. Sunday. He was found floating face down in the water.

Bedenbaugh, a carpenter, was pulled from the water by Daryl S. Hokey, 22, of 318 Palmetto Ave. #D, Sanford. Then Keven D. Rudebeck, 23, of 5378 Orange Blvd., Sanford, tried to revive him with mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

At about 4:54 p.m. sheriff's deputies, firefighters and an ambulance arrived at the scene, where Bedenbaugh had been swimming with his girlfriend, Ellen Marie Herberger, 19, of 230 Lake Ellen Drive, Casselberry.

A sheriff's deputy reported Bedenbaugh had "a slight pulse and was barely breathing." He was transported to Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford, but apparently died enroute.

An autopsy was scheduled for early today at CFRH.

County Eyes New Fees On Growth

By Ted Carter
Herald Staff Writer

Still battling with its cities over imposition of impact fees for roads, Seminole County commissioners are to consider Tuesday imposing impact fees on developers to pay for library and fire-rescue services.

In other business, County Environmental Services Director Jim Bible will ask the commission to delay a public hearing set for 1:30 p.m. Tuesday on the county's proposed purchase of Lake Monroe Utilities. Bible said the owner's consumptive use permit from the St. Johns Water Management District must be renewed before the county can decide whether to buy the water and sewer utility for $1.2 million. That will require at least a two month delay, he said.

Concerning the possible impact fees, a committee charged with studying new development impact fees is advising against a countywide impact levy to boost library volumes, but recommending assessing the fees for fire-rescue operations in unincorporated areas.

The committee, in a 5-4 vote, concluded the library fees represented "lifestyle" enhancement rather than an essential growth-related need. The fees would cost developers $54 for each dwelling unit built.

The panel, voting 5-4, recommended the fire-rescue fees on new development in unincorporated areas. If adopted, developers would pay $75 for each residential unit built. The money would go towards establishing a fire-rescue response time of five minutes and offsetting any deficiency in the standard of services caused by growth.

County commissioners are to consider the committee's recommendations at a work session Tuesday morning.

The session is likely to include a commission decision whether to schedule public hearings on the fire-rescue and library impact fees in August.

The library fees would be assessed countywide and would be aimed at providing a per capita rate of 1.5 books over the next 10 years, at a cost of $3.6 million. The money would buy 217,353 volumes, according to the impact fee review committee.

Commissioners can expect objections to both fee proposals from the Home Builders Association of Mid-Florida, an organization representing developers in Seminole, Orange and Osceola counties.

Cheryl Lynch, the association's governmental affairs director, said the homebuilders recognize impact fees as a viable revenue source for growth-related infrastructure needs.

"As long as they are addressing basic infrastructure needs, we have accepted them as part of doing business," said Lynch. "However, improving the lifestyle of the community — such as with libraries — we feel should be funded by an across-the-board tax increase."

Lynch said the commission neglected to study how many library volumes it would need when it began an ambitious library construction program. Now, concerned about empty book shelves, it is trying to force developers to absorb the cost of

Lake Mary Continues Search For Downtown City Hall Site

By Genie Lindberg
Herald Staff Writer

Even though the property owners object, there is no reason Lake Mary can't condemn the land it wants for site of its new city hall complex, according to City Attorney Frank Kruppenbacher. But the city commission has decided to take one more look at other "downtown" sites before making a final decision.

Kruppenbacher had been asked by City Manager Bob Norris to address the condemnation question at Thursday's meeting. It was raised by citizens who questioned the legality of the city condemning property for use as a city hall when other property is readily available. Kruppenbacher said that because the city wants to use the land to begin developing a "downtown core," it can sustain taking the property.

Norris said the city owns property on Rinehart Road and since the Capital Facilities Committee identified a need of less than four acres for the entire city complex, there is, in fact, adequate land on Rinehart Road for the proposed city complex.

But the site the city selected earlier is immediately adjacent to the present city hall. Norris said he had received seven replies from property owners of the site indicating they did not wish to sell their land at all or not for the amount the city was offering.

The replies were in response to a letter from Norris asking the property owners to indicate their willingness or unwillingness to accept appraisal offers.

The letter said, "All final decisions relative to acquisition will, of course, be the prerogative of the city commission."

Commissioner Charlie Webster said he thought it was "ludicrous" to try and obtain people's land when they don't want to sell it. "Let's go find property somewhere else."

Norris urged the commission to advise him concerning the selection of a site because there are many proposed city hall related items that should be included in this year's proposed budget, he said. Estimated costs for property acquisition, construction and design total $3.8 to $4 million for the new city hall complex which will house all city administrative functions and the police department, Norris said. The complex is scheduled to be built in phases over a number of years.

The commission in March chose Catalyst Incorporated Architecture of Orlando over two other firms to design their new city hall. An architect's report is due to come before the commission on June 29. However, the commission has already authorized the architect to go ahead with the data gathering and space planning phases of the city hall complex because the information would be appropriate to the complex whatever location was selected.

Commissioner John Perey, who strongly favors a "downtown" site, reminded the commission that there are several different sites in the

Hippies Crash Stonehenge Summer Solstice Ceremony

AMESBURY, England (UPI) — Forty-three self-described hippies who tried to break through wire barriers to the ancient stone monoliths of Stonehenge were arrested while 60 white-robed Druids held their annual summer solstice ceremonies at the monument.

Some 500 long-haired hippies marched eight miles to the site in England's west country from their Devil's Dyke base camp Sunday to watch the sun rise on the longest day of the year. They were given permission to march to the area provided they stayed behind wire barriers around the ancient monument.

As some 250 reporters, photographers and television camera crew members looked on, some of the hippies tried to break through the barriers to the stones themselves. Forty-three were arrested after scuffling with scores of officers surrounding the monument. Police said the hippies were released without being charged.

Wiltshire Assistant Chief Constable David Cooke said the police wanted to be reasonable and had agreed to let the hippies near the monument "provided that the travelers are reasonable in return" and stay behind the barriers.

It was the first time such permission had been granted at the summer solstice since the hippies' annual festival there was banned two years ago. The ban followed often violent clashes with police and complaints over the noise and unsanitary conditions created by the hippies.

The 60 modern-day Druids, clad in white robes and clutching tickets issued by English Heritage, the foundation that manages the monument, were allowed to hold their annual rite within the prehistoric ring of stones.

Followers of a pre-Christian Celtic cult, the Druids believe Stonehenge was possibly erected and certainly used by others of the cult as a religious center thousands of years ago.

English Heritage for the past decade has allowed the public no closer than about 20 yards from the monument as a result of damage from graffiti.

Broward Arrests May Push Mob Into Central Florida

By Brian Sullivan
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County has not been ruled out as a location for probes of suspected mob activity, following the recent arrests in Broward County of members of three organized crime families, said Broward Sheriff's Deputy Steve Bertucelli. The arrests there, he said, may, "turn up the heat," on organized crime in that region and extend the influence of the mob's illegal enterprises to Central Florida.

Bertucelli said the Tuesday arrests of members of the Gambino, Busalino and Maggadino crime families will lead to additional arrests throughout the country and Florida. He said 24 crime families operate in South Florida, 16 of them in Broward County. Together it is estimated that 300 to 400 people are involved in organized crime Broward County alone and that for many of the families south Florida is home base.

"I was involved with investigations in the Orlando area in 1976 regarding syndicate gambling," Bertucelli said. "There's no reason to suspect that mob activities aren't still there or that they haven't gotten bigger."

According to Bertucelli, the potential for organized crime exists wherever big money and gambling are present. "It would be shortsighted to think that organized crime isn't present in Central Florida, or that there is nothing local law enforcement agencies can do about it," Bertucelli said. "Once you start digging and uncover a thread of mafia activity it just doesn't stop; it extends into almost every area of socio-economic life."

Bertucelli said that he isn't just talking about conventional mob activity of the Al Capone variety.

"The central and south American drug cartels...specifically Columbia, are springing up all over the country at a surprisingly sophisticated level of criminal activity," he said. "What local law enforcement agencies need to do is tap into an 'intelligence base' that is created for the use of all law enforcement agencies."

Bertucelli said such a base is expanded every time there is an arrest. In the Broward county case an undercover police officer wore a microphone for two years to get close to powerful members of the three crime families. When it began to look like the officer was in danger of being discovered, the task force made their move. The information and procedures of that operation will now be available for law enforcement people across the country.

"No single law enforcement agency has the resources to combat organized crime on its own," Bertucelli said.

"You need to task force big operations...with different departments working together on these cases. We had sheriff's deputies, the FBI, DEA...several different agencies that had to get together and work as a team to make arrests on the scale of our operation."

Prosecutor Takes Overtake in Stride

The assistant state attorney who prosecuted a drug conviction overturned this week by the Florida Supreme Court does not put much significance on the high court's ruling that prosecutors must prove accused drug dealers knew the substances they sold were illegal.

The Supreme Court, said prosecutor Bill Catto, was merely "reiterating the law" when it ordered a new trial in Seminole County Circuit Court for Antonio Dominguez. The court ordered the retrial on the basis of Dominguez' claim that he did not know it was two ounces of cocaine that he and a co-defendant sold to sheriff's agents for $4,000 in December 1984.

"It's always been up to the prosecutor to show the defendant knew it was dope," said Catto. "It's a matter of interpreting the law as it applies to Dominguez' particular case."

Dominguez, of Orlando, was sentenced to three years in prison after a jury in July 1985 found him guilty of trafficking in cocaine. Sheriff's agents arrested Dominguez and Job Brooks, also of Orlando, after the two sold an agent in the parking lot of an Altamonte Springs bank.

In overturning Dominguez' conviction, the court ruled 7-0 that judges must tell juries that one of the essential elements of a drug-trafficking offense is the accused person's knowledge of what the substance was.

Catto said it could be the State Attorney's Office will drop prosecution and let Dominguez, who was 22 when arrested, go free for time already served. —Ted Carter

Child's Injuries Investigated

A 7-month-old rural Winter Park boy was in fair condition today in Florida Hospital — Orlando.

He was found unconscious on the living room floor of the home of his babysitter at about 4 p.m. Thursday and was taken to the hospital where he was initially listed in serious condition. Seminole County sheriff's deputies are investigating the boy's condition as a possible case of child abuse.

Joshua T. Giachetti, the son of Teresa and Thomas Giachetti, of 2709 Red Lion Square, Winter Park, was taken from the home of his babysitter, Sheri Lee Durkee, 23, of 2831 Red Lion Square, after Durkee called rescue workers to her home after finding the baby unconscious.

The boy was first taken to Winter Park Memorial hospital and then transferred to Orlando Regional Medical Center, where doctors alerted sheriff's investigators and Health and Rehabilitative Services counselors that he might be a victim of abuse.

Sheriff's investigator Sgt. Greg Barnett said Joshua shows signs of having been "shaken," but tests are being conducted to attempt more specifically to determine the cause of his condition. —Susan Loden

Reaction To Creationism Ruling Mixed

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists and civil libertarians applauded Friday's Supreme Court ruling banning the required teaching of "creation science" and conservative Christians acknowledged their movement needs to regroup.

"Somewhere in heaven, John Scopes is celebrating," said a jubilant Ira Glasser, executive director of the American Civil Liberties Union, referring to the Tennessee biology teacher convicted of teaching evolution in the original "monkey trial" in 1925.

The court, in a 7-2 ruling, said the Louisiana law that required the concept of creation science — an attempt to put a scientific foundation under the biblical six-day account of creation — be taught on an equal basis with evolution, is an unconstitutional effort to promote religious beliefs in the public schools.

Supporters of the law were stung by the size of their defeat and the strongly worded opinion of Justice William Brennan.

"I'm shocked and disappointed," said former Louisiana state Sen. Bill Keith, who pushed the legislation.

"What this means is that the vast majority of American school children will continue to be indoctrinated in evolutionism and will be denied the right and the freedom to hear the evidences that point to creationism," Keith said.

"We will have to regroup now and find out where we are," he added.

President Reagan, who has endorsed the restoration of Christian religious values in the schools, including the teaching of creationism, was asked about the court ruling Friday and said, "I haven't seen that."

Scientists, teachers and civil libertarians as well as mainline Protestant and Jewish groups, however, warmly praised the court ruling.

"We won. Good," said Stephen Jay Gould, a professor of geology at Harvard University and an outspoken critic of the teaching of creationism.

Gould, who testified in a similar case in Arkansas and was involved in filing a brief in the Louisiana case, said he expected to win but thought the vote would be closer.

"I think this decisively ends the legal phase of this particular struggle," he said. "But the battle is far from over. Scientists and citizens interested in furthering science are still going to have to be watchful and keep up the battle."

Walter Slocumbe, who represented 72 Nobel laureates opposed to the Louisiana law, said he was delighted with the ruling.

"I think it will make it much harder for states to do this sort of thing," he said. "This ruling frees the teaching of science from this kind of confusion with what are basically religious concepts."

Summer Makes Violent Entry

United Press International
Violent storms ushered in summer in the Midwest and the South as lightning killed an Alabama fisherman, floods closed Detroit highways and a tornado struck a Michigan trailer park, killing one person, injuring four and damaging as many as 75 homes.

Michael Jr., 19 months, was in critical condition at Detroit's Children's Hospital, Novi police said.

"There was no warning whatsoever," said resident Skip Nafe. "It was just swirling in the air. I could see stuff flying in a circle in the air."

Two people were killed when their plane crashed in dense fog Sunday night near Mitchell Airport in Milwaukee, and an Indiana man died earlier in the day when his plane went down in the rain in LaPorte County, authorities said.

The tornado damaged 50 to 75 of the 725 trailers at the park, police said. The homes are worth about $15,000 each, but no damage estimate was available. Between six and eight of the trailers were overturned, police said.

Storms Sunday, when summer began at 6:12 p.m. EDT, hurled wind gusts of up to 116 mph near Quemado, Texas, and produced tornadoes in New Mexico, Missouri, Texas, Florida, Georgia and Michigan, the National Weather Service said.

"I went through one wall and landed in the bathtub," he said.

The only thing left standing at the dead man's home was a stairway, neighbors said.

Heavy rain prompted flash flood watches today in southern New York and southern lower Michigan, where about 15,000 homes and businesses remained without power, a Detroit Edison spokesman said.

Sgt. John Johnson of the Novi police said several minor injuries did not require hospitalization. The Red Cross set up emergency housing for the mobile home residents in the Walled Lake Junior High School.

Floods up to 4 feet deep in the Detroit area closed a slew of roads including sections of Interstates 75, 94 and 96, forcing some 100 motorists to abandon their cars, police said early today.

Tornadoes also caused minor damages in Roswell, N.M., and damaged trees and roofs at Cohutta, Ga. Other twisters struck near Monet, Mo., and Jacksonville, Fla., and at McCamey, Texas, and an unconfirmed tornado damaged homes in Dannelton, Fla., the NWS said.

"If you don't have somewhere to go today, I'd say stay home," said State Police Sgt. Douglas Parvainen in Detroit. "We've got sections of every freeway in the city closed."

A fisherman was killed by lightning on the Tennessee River near Swan Creek in Limestone County, Ala., the county sheriff's office said.

Lightning also sparked a fire Sunday at a grain elevator in Ashville, Ohio. Fifty firefighters from six departments responded to the blaze and one firefighter suffered an arm injury.

Korean Chief Agrees To Meet With Opposition; Riots Continue

SEOUL, South Korea (UPI) — President Chun Doo Hwan today agreed to meet with opposition leaders to discuss ways to end violent anti-government protests but students battled police for the 13th straight day.

Roh Tae-woo, chairman of the ruling Democratic Justice Party and Chun's handpicked candidate as his replacement, told reporters the president had accepted Roh's suggestion he meet with opposition leaders such as Kim Young-sam within a few days to seek a solution to the current crisis.

The latest protests have included some of the most violent demonstrations and at least one death. They began June 10 after the ruling party nominated Roh as its candidate to succeed Chun. Under Korea's electoral college process, Roh is guaranteed the presidency.

Kurdish Guerrillas Massacre 31

ANKARA, Turkey (UPI) — Suspected Kurdish guerrillas seized a village in eastern Turkey Saturday, herding residents into the streets and killing at least 31 people in a sudden hail of gunfire, the Anatolian news agency said.

The semi-official news agency said gunmen surrounded the village of Pinarcik, Mahdin province, near the Syrian border at 10 p.m. and used megaphones to order the residents into the town's main square.

Eyewitnesses told the news agency the rebels opened fire with automatic weapons, sending people fleeing in all directions to escape the bullets. Many of the residents briefly escaped into three houses, but the guerrillas demolished the buildings with hand grenades before escaping.

Magazine Links North To Plot To Assassinate Iranian Leaders

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Now added to the list of congressional questions for Lt. Col. Oliver North in the Iran-Contra scandal is the subject of his role in an alleged plot to assassinate Iranian leaders.

With the congressional hearings in the case resuming Tuesday, however, more lawmakers have questioned whether the Marine at the heart of the scandal will testify at all to those who have dogged him through seven months of silence.

The alleged assassination plot is raised in this week's edition of U.S. News & World Report, which was published Saturday, the same day Sen. William Cohen, R-Maine, one of the congressional investigators, said in an interview that he thinks North is ready to go to jail rather than testify about the scandal.

Joe Keefe, spokesman for the Orlando office of the Drug Enforcement Administration, agreed.

"You have to have task forces," Keefe said. "We have a drug task force in Seminole County and Sanford, and we encourage our people to work together with local agencies that may not have the expertise to recognize and deal with possible organized crime in their communities."

Sanford Police Chief Steve Harriett said the influence of mob crime is everywhere.

"There are indirect results of organized crime in almost every walk of life," Harriett said. "Many legal business operate far removed from the heart of the network, and the organizer's influence extends like invisible tentacles that, as we work on a case, may be difficult to follow in every direction."

Seminole County Sheriff John Polk said that as far as he knows organized crime has not really surfaced in Seminole County...yet.

"I'm sure there is some (organized crime) here," he said. "But I haven't seen strong evidence of it."

Keefe said the DEA is always looking for mob ties.

"Everybody should be looking for it," he said. "We (law enforcement) have better communication systems than we ever had before. There is so much cooperation between departments...a lot of the interdepartmental rivalries aren't as strong as they were and now the emphasis is getting the job done. With that in mind I think it would be hard for the south Florida mafias to become as entrenched up here as they got down there 30 or 40 years ago."

But Maurice Dettmer, chief of the Internal Revenue Service's Criminal Investigation Division for north/central Florida, said that in many ways the mob's operations are extremely subtle; but that if people know what to look for even the average citizen can help combat them.

"Most people in relatively small communities know who belongs," Dettmer said. "One good way of telling if organized crime is moving into an area is to look at people who are making large cash purchases of businesses with a high rate of cash flow...businesses like bars and restaurants. In these kinds of enterprises it is easy to run large amounts of money through the operation so that nothing looks abnormal."

Dettmer said the first thing members of organized crime do when they move into an area is look for ways to legitimize their large amounts of cash.

"They may buy a bank or some other lending institution, or claim that they received a lot of money in an insurance action. They need to say 'I own this business' or 'I got hurt in this accident'...anything that will give a reasonable explanation for large amounts of available cash."

Dettmer said communities need to watch for people who suddenly appear in the community and start throwing around lots of money. By law banks and stock brokers must report people who make deposits or investments of more than $10,000 in cash.

"If someone buys a car with more than $10,000 in cash from an automobile dealer we need to be notified by law too," he said. "Cash purchases of such amounts can be suspicious."

Dettmer warns citizens to be aware that the mob is active and to do something about it.

"They come to your community and they aren't going to do you any favors," he said. "They come in to milk it dry and then leave to go somewhere else and do the same thing."

Dettmer's other main concern downtown area to be considered because initial site selection was basically limited to that area designated in the city's Comprehensive Plan as "downtown."

Commissioner Paul Tremel suggested the commission start looking at property that has only one owner. "I agree with Charlie (Webster), I don't want to take someone's land."

Percy said that if the commission started giving in to those who did not want to sell, it would become vulnerable. "I grew up in a small town with a town center, churches and all that," Percy said. "and I frankly don't envision that on Rinehart Road."

Tremel agreed that the city would become vulnerable if it did not establish condemnation policies soon.

Mayor Dick Fess emphasized that the city had the property for the city complex appraised by MAI (Member of Appraisal Institute) appraisers and that based on those appraisals, the city was offering the property owners "a fair and just price." To let those property owners try to stand in the way of progress is just not right, Fess said. "If we pull city hall from this area (downtown), we're going to have a blighted area," he said. "I don't want city hall out on Rinehart Road. The city needs to be a viable, service-producing city and we've got to bite the bullet on this one."

Webster said it would be foolish for the city to fight the property owners because "those people believe their property is worth what they are asking — and those people have rights."

Tremel suggested that the city revisit the other downtown sites. "This was the ideal site. We may find another less than ideal site — but downtown."

Planning and Zoning Board Chairman Jim Talmadge encouraged the commission to take action concerning the site. "We've spent some money; let's go forward with it toward doing something that makes sense," Talmadge said. "You're putting yourself into a bad situation by not moving forward; you may come up with more people who aren't willing to sell their property."

Webster protested. "Let's just investigate other sites."

Fess said that by procrastinating the city could lose a lot of money.

Talmadge agreed. "Time is money," he said.

the new books, she said.

The fire-rescue fees also are proposed as way to fill a void left by the reluctance of county commissioners to budget enough tax money to ensure adequate fire and rescue services, Lynch argued. She claimed the county has been unable to show the fees would go for anything more than remedying "today's problems."

"They need to take care of today's problems with current revenues," said Lynch. "We would work with the commission and county staff to help find alternative revenues."

She also stressed that developers have no choice but to pass the cost of the fees onto homebuyers.

Meanwhile, the county is seeking a declaratory judgment from the circuit court on whether its road impact fees can be levied inside city limits. The countywide fee collections are to begin July 1, but Sanford and Winter Springs have balked at signing agreements to allow collection of the fees.

Concerning the utility purchase, Lake Monroe Utilities owner J.W. Hickman said today the plant has never had difficulties meeting state standards, although the state Department of Environmental Regulation found a high bacteria count in the treated water in late January and ordered customers to boil the water before drinking it.

Officials declared the water safe in mid-February after repairs on a chlorinating machine were completed.

Lake Monroe Utilities a private water and sewage treatment operation, provides water and sewer service to between 1,000 to 1,500 people at commercial establishments in the area of State Road 46 and Interstate 4.

The near 15-year-old utility which serves the Port of Sanford and several hotels near the interstate, has a daily water treatment capacity of about 1 million gallons and a sewer treatment capacity of about 100,000 gallons, Hickman said.

'Distracting Sideshows'

The Third International Conference on AIDS has come to an end and some 6,082 participants have left Washington after five days of conferring.

Their presence in the nation's capital, and their sense of urgency, has helped to force the AIDS issue to the top of the legislative agenda — which is where it ought to be.

The challenge now facing the Reagan administration is how to deal responsibly with what Sen. John Danforth, R-Mo., has called "the most serious health problem we have ever faced in the United States."

Some of the most sensible advice in Washington came from Dr. Ronald R. Hopkins, deputy director of the Federal Centers for Disease Control in Atlanta. Hopkins urged national leaders to "keep our eye on the real ball" — the need to reach and counsel people already infected with the virus in order to stop the spread of AIDS.

Hopkins said that public officials must "avoid distracting sideshows," such as calls for quarantines and widespread mandatory testing, that might drive infected people underground. And he warned that an over-emphasis on providing information about AIDS to the general public would be less productive than focusing efforts on the people most likely to be exposed.

"The main task, simply stated," Hopkins told the conference, "is to identify all infected persons as quickly as possible and persuade them to avoid transmitting the infection to others, while simultaneously seeking to convince everyone else to avoid putting themselves at risk of the infection."

The general public needs to be informed about AIDS, of course.

But as Hopkins pointed out, information directed toward the general public in North America, where infection rates are still low, "will probably not be the most productive intervention in terms of numbers of cases prevented."

He urged that "highest priority" be given to providing education, voluntary testing and counseling "where they are most needed."

And they are most needed among those who share sex or needles with known infected people; at venereal disease and drug abuse clinics and among people with any sexually transmitted disease or evidence of drug abuse.

"The main public health objective in regard to AIDS," Hopkins pointed out, "is to prevent infection. Thus, if the net effect of widespread mandatory testing would be to reduce the number of persons at higher risk who are in fact counseled and tested, because many others are scared away, then mandatory testing would not serve that crucial public health objective."

In a newly released study, the Rand Corporation concludes that the nation's total bill for treating AIDS between 1986 and 1991 probably will be about $37.6 billion, though it could amount to as much as $112.5 billion. That's one reason for Congress and the administration to heed Hopkins' advice.

The fact that 270,000 Americans are likely to develop the fatal disease by 1991 is an even more compelling motivation.

And Why Not 'It's OK To Soil Diapers'?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A New York publisher has started a new series of children's books, the titles of which seem tailor-made for our permissive society.

Published thus far are "It's OK To Be Angry," "It's OK To Be Different," "It's OK To Be Shy" and "It's OK To Be Afraid."

If I may suggest a fifth title, I would propose "It's OK To Beat that Toy Drum some Misguided Adult Santa Gave You at Christmas." In fact, I may do an entire new series under the title "It's OK To Make Noise."

Admittedly, I'm not a licensed psychologist, as is one of the co-authors of the four books listed above. I have had, however, a great deal of experience with small children and I can attest that most of their activities are not OK.

Being angry, for instance. A blurb says that "It's OK To Be Angry" contains a "very important message for children, namely "It really is OK to be angry at both circumstances beyond our control and frustration with ourselves."

This book, the blurb adds, "teaches children how to understand the potent emotion of anger and how to direct it in a positive way."

OK, I agree a person of any age should act natural, and if that includes not keeping potent emotions under control, it may be less stressful to give vent to them.

But throwing a temper tantrum definitely is not OK. At least around my house.

My experience has been that a child who lets anger or some other potent emotion run out of control is likely to turn blue in the face from lack of oxygen while throwing himself or herself on the floor and kicking his or her feet.

Sometimes, grown-ups act that way, too, particularly if they have had too much to drink. I'd like to see how a licensed psychologist would deal with that situation.

My own inclination, if I'm bigger, is to pick up a child or a cocktail guest and shake him or her until his or her teeth rattle.

After all, most of the circumstances we are likely to encounter throughout life are "beyond our control," aren't they? I say the sooner a person starts learning to handle them without flying off the handle, the better.

As for the second point raised by the blurb, if we can't be frustrated with ourselves, who can we be frustrated with?

As for being different, the blurb says that book "addresses with simplicity and joy the fact that we are all different in one way or another." It says children "find comfort" both from being like their little friends and from being themselves.

Yes, I still remember the simplicity and joy I felt the first time my differences were pointed out, and I wouldn't want youngsters today to miss it.

Shyness, we are given to understand, is a "normal, human emotion." Luckily, the book doesn't call it a "healthy" emotion. Otherwise, my cook would start trying to prepare shyness for supper.

As for being afraid, they can read the book, provided they aren't afraid to read.

Axing National Forests

BEDFORD, Ind. (NEA) — The beech, maple, oak and hickory trees that flourish in the Hoosier National Forest provide a verdant canopy for the surprisingly diverse animal and plant population that also thrives in southern Indiana.

Plaster Creek meanders through the pristine area that people only occasionally visit. Claw marks on the sandstone cliffs suggest the presence of bobcats.

Suddenly, that undisturbed setting gives way to an ugly scar — a massive clear-cut area where lumberjacks operating chain saws, skidders and bulldozers have destroyed and hauled away every single tree.

It shouldn't be that way. The country's 155 national forests and the U.S. Forest Service were established by the federal government specifically to prevent repetition of the timber industry's wanton devastation during the 19th century.

More recently, the National Forest Management Act of 1976 re-emphasized the Forest Service's conservation mission and mandated balanced planning and management of the country's 191 million acres of national forests.

But the Forest Service's plan to clear-cut almost the entire Hoosier National Forest during the next 80 to 120 years is only one example of its systematic violation of the intent of the 1976 law. Among the other cases cited by the Sierra Club and other conservation groups:

(BU) In Virginia's George Washington National Forest, the Forest Service proposes to double the rate of logging and triple the rate of road construction, destroying both valuable hardwood stands and wildlife habitat.

(BU) In Montana's Lewis and Clark National Forest, the Forest Service wants to allow oil and gas drilling in an area that is home to four endangered species — grizzly bears, gray wolves, peregrine falcons and bald eagles.

(BU) In California's Shasta-Trinity National Forest, the Forest Service is calling for elimination of half of the old-growth timber — an unwarranted move that will require construction or rebuilding of 1,200 miles of roads.

The Forest Service long has been notorious for emphasizing timber harvesting (as well as mineral, oil and gas extraction) at the expense of encouraging recreational opportunities and protecting watersheds, wildlife and fisheries.

Nuclear War Was At Hand In 1980

By Jack Anderson
And Dale Van Atta

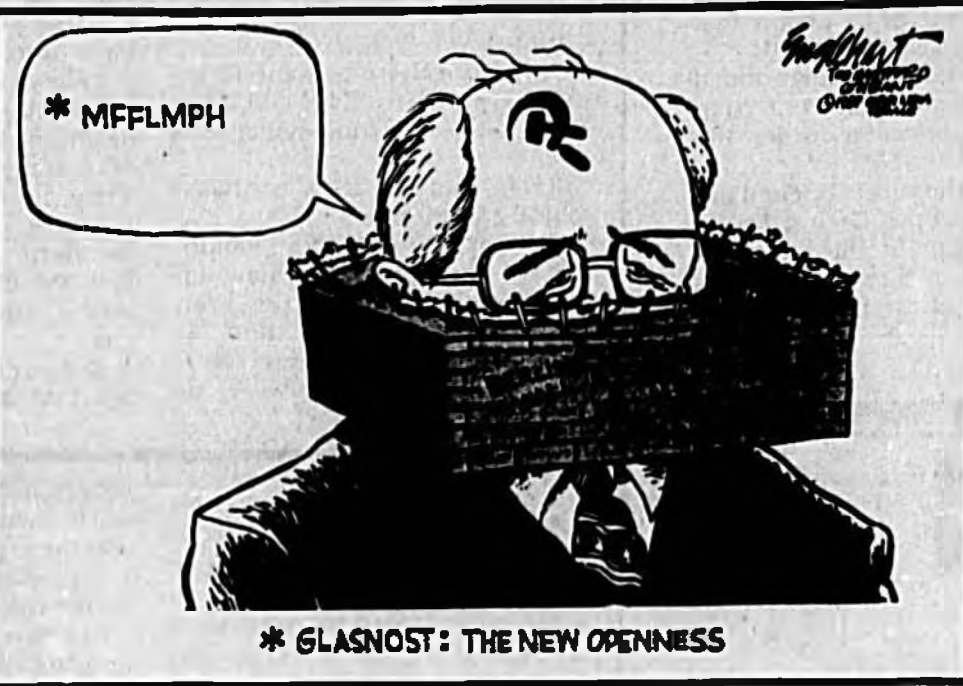

WASHINGTON — The suppressed story can now be told of a showdown in the Persian Gulf in the autumn of 1980 when the two superpowers maneuvered dangerously near the edge of war.

Now a new military confrontation is developing in the same place. Lest the lessons of 1980 be lost, here is the chilling story:

After the failed attempt in April 1980 to rescue American hostages from Iran, then-President Jimmy Carter began preparations for a second rescue mission. His national security adviser, Zbigniew Brzezinski, wanted a larger, punitive military assault.

In the strictest secrecy, intense preparations for a rescue raid began at training camps from Florida to California. Some elements of this scattered force began training under the code name "Positive Leap 80."

The same code name had been

Tragedy At The Zoo

An incident took place recently at Brooklyn's Prospect Park Zoo in New York City that has provoked public outrage, and rightly so. It also contains matter for reflection about public policy and police training.

At the zoo, police opened fire with 12-gauge shotguns and .38 caliber revolvers and killed a male and female polar bear. Police spokesmen have offered a shadow of justification, but only a shadow. The general public knows that the event was an atrocity of the first order.

The tragedy began when three 11-year-old boys from the neighborhood, fourth graders, slipped into the zoo around 7 p.m., after it had closed. Making their way to the polar bear enclosure, they took off their clothes, preparatory to climbing into the bear cage and swimming in the pool there.

When the moment came to enter, two of them hesitated. The third, and the apparent instigator, threw their clothes into the cage. This boy's name was Juan Perez.

The two boys, including Juan Perez, entered the bear enclosure. One of these two left almost immediately, and Perez was alone with the two big bears. Amazingly enough, he began to taunt the bears by hurling sticks and bottles at them.

"Then," recalls one of the surviving boys, "the father bear grabbed Juan by the shoulder and dragged him toward the cave. The two bears started to stretch his body." Perez yelled for help, saying "He's biting me hard." Then, as the bears killed him and began to eat him the other two boys ran away.

Residents in the neighborhood heard screams coming from the zoo and called the police. Significantly enough, the other two boys, fleeing, passed a policeman on the street and said nothing to him.

When the police arrived at the polar bear enclosure, they opened up with a fusillade, employing every weapon they had, and killing the two bears. Their rationale was that they did not know that Juan Perez, or what was left of him, was the only boy in the enclosure. And they say that they did see more than one set of boys' clothes inside the fence.

Clearly those polar bears, extremely valuable animals, should have been stunned rather than slaughtered.

There is no case to be made that the bears did anything especially vicious. There exists a primitive idea that any animal that kills a human being must itself be killed. But really the bears were just behaving like bears. If a zoo is going to exhibit polar bears, you have to expect them to behave like polar bears. If Juan Perez had gone swimming in the shark tank, we would not have been surprised if he had been bitten.

When a zoo exhibits dangerous animals, a presumption of responsibility exists toward the animals. They are in the zoo in the first place because they are what they are. You are not supposed to get into the bear enclosure, or the shark pool, or the rattlesnake den.

Police on duty in the neighborhood of a zoo also have responsibilities, including the acquisition of the equipment appropriate to deal with animal-related crises as they arise. When a polar bear behaves like a polar bear, there is no excuse for killing it.

At the funeral of Juan Perez, a Catholic priest added a bizarre footnote. Juan Perez had been a wild kid, he pronounced, and very likely the bears saved his soul from Satan by killing him young. This is theologically suspect to say the least. But following this story you begin to suspect that everyone in Brooklyn is crazy, except for the two polar bears.

Taking It To The People

By Helen Thomas
UPI White House Reporter

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan is being labeled a lame duck even by Republican colleagues, but he is determined to prove there is still life in his presidency and he plans to take his case against Congress to the people.

With some 18 months left in the White House, Reagan has decided the federal deficit, which he helped create, is threatening to sabotage prosperity not only at home but abroad with nations that have followed the U.S. lead.

"We have now reached the breakpoint," Reagan said in his televised report to the nation Monday night.

But, as usual, his solutions are political. There is none of Lyndon Johnson's Isaiah approach: "Come, let us reason together."

Instead, Reagan has said half heartedly that he is willing to have summit talks on the budget with the Democratic opposition. On the other hand, he is not buying their solution: raise taxes and cut defense spending.

He would prefer to do what he does best: take to the stump and denounce those who want to return "to the old policies of tax and tax, spend and spend."

With the deficit running about $175 billion and time running out for his administration, Reagan has suddenly awakened to the problem. His solution would be to cut domestic spending, particularly the social programs, and start selling federal lands and raising fees for those who use federal lands and waterways.

His philosophy is still that the best government is the least government. Interestingly enough, he has never thought of himself as running the federal government with all its red ink spending. His point of reference is always back to the good old days when he served two terms as governor of California and had a "line item veto," in which he could strike out spending that he disapproved of.

"I'm going to take the case to you, the American people," Reagan said in his broadcast.

His aides already have drafted an ambitious schedule of travel out of Washington once a week to promote the cause. "If Congress won't see the light, I know you can make them feel the heat," he said.

Senate Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia pleaded with Reagan in an Oval Office meeting before the president went on the air to be more "helpful" from his "national pulpit."

to retaliate with a major air and ground assault.

Then came the day that Carter backed down. The Soviet threat convinced him to abandon his October adventure. He called it off, the tensions cooled, and the hostages eventually were freed.

Postscript: The evidence cited in this account, including classified documents, backs up the columns we wrote in August 1980, warning that Carter was preparing for an October action in Iran. "The ostensible purpose," we wrote, "is to rescue the hostages, but the operation would also exact military retribution."

The White House issued a scathing denial. "The allegation made by Jack Anderson is absolutely false," declared the White House. A major book, researched and written by John Barron, a former intelligence specialist, now a Washington editor for Reader's Digest, also confirms our story.

Spurs To Make Robinson First Pick In Draft

NEW YORK (UPI) — David Robinson, set to serve his two-year hitch in the Navy starting in July, will first become the San Antonio Spurs' top choice when the NBA draft is held today.

"He's a very bright young man," Spurs General Manager Bob Bass said. "He's a terrific athlete, got speed, quickness, jumping ability and he's 7-foot-1. I don't see anything to hold him back. We definitely are going to draft him."

Robinson, who will be picked by the Spurs when the draft begins at 1:05 p.m. EDT in the Felt Forum, was scheduled to meet with Vice President George Bush Monday.

"He has a couple of personal commitments," a Spurs spokesman said from San Antonio. "One of them is meeting with the vice president."

Basketball

Robinson must complete two years of military service before joining the pros. During that time if San Antonio fails to sign him, the former Naval Academy star would become a free agent.

With Robinson a certainty to be taken by the Spurs, the mystery surrounding the 1987 draft involved who the Phoenix Suns would take second Sunday night. Phoenix traded its first-round pick of last year, center William Bedford, to Detroit for a first-round pick in 1988.

Phoenix, the runnerup in the lottery, must decide between a power forward or a shooting guard. Two players the Suns are considering are guard Dennis Hopson of Ohio State and forward Armon Gilliam of Nevada-Las Vegas. Both players have been to Phoenix for second interviews.

"We've thrown out a lot of different scenarios," Phoenix Coach John Wetzel said. "We're trying to determine what our most immediate need is. We discuss it nearly every day. We look at various teams — with Hopson, with Gilliam."

The 1987 draft lacked a dominant center after Robinson, but there were plenty of forwards and guards to consider. Following Hopson and Gilliam, some of the top choices in the draft were Reggie Williams of Georgetown, Derrick McKey of Alabama, Horace Grant of Clemson, Olden Polynice, who played in Italy last year, Steve Alford of Indiana and Scott Pippen of Central Arkansas.

The Los Angeles Clippers, with the league's worst record last season, had the fourth, 13th and 16th picks. Last year they didn't pick until the third round. Also picking twice in the first round will be the Spurs (23rd), Seattle (11th and 19th) and Chicago (18th and 10th).

The New York Knicks, a team in dire need, entered the draft without a coach or general manager and did not pick until 18th. New York was the only lottery team this year not get one of the first seven selections.

Former New York General Manager Scotty Stirling traded the rights to their lottery pick to Seattle for guard Gerald Henderson. Stirling had Denver's first-round pick, obtained for guard Darrell Walker, but he traded that to Chicago for Jawann Oldham.

Some powers will sit out the first round. The champion Los Angeles Lakers, Detroit, Houston, Milwaukee and Denver all traded their first-round picks.

The order of the first round was:
1. San Antonio; 2. Phoenix; 3. New Jersey; 4. Los Angeles Clippers; 5. Seattle (from New York); 6. Sacramento; 7. Cleveland; 8. Chicago (from Denver via New York); 9. Seattle; 10. Chicago; 11. Indiana; 12. Washington; 13. Los Angeles Clippers (from Houston); 14. Golden State; 15. Utah; 16. Philadelphia; 17. Portland; 18. New York (from Milwaukee via Seattle); 19. Los Angeles Clippers (from Detroit); 20. Dallas; 21. Atlanta; 22. Boston; 23. San Antonio (from Lakers).

Simpson Putts To Open Title

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Prior to Sunday, Scott Simpson had earned more money than recognition in 10 years of professional golf.

Consistency has been the 31-year-old's strength, and against some of the biggest names in golf — Tom Watson, Seve Ballesteros, Bernhard Langer and Ben Crenshaw — Simpson's steady putting enabled him to win the 87th U.S. Open at the Olympic Club.

"My No. 1 reason to play on the Tour was to make a living for my family," Simpson said after firing a 2-under-par 68 to edge Watson by a stroke. "I never thought something like this would happen."

It happened because Simpson rolled in four consecutive crucial putts while his competition made bogeys and double-bogeys all around him. He made a short birdie putt at the 14th hole to tie Watson then knocked down a 30-footer at No. 15 to go up by a stroke.

After Watson responded with a birdie of his own to pull even, Simpson sank a 15-footer for birdie at the 16th to take the lead. At 17, Simpson dropped in a 10-foot putt to save par after blasting out of a greenside bunker.

"I just had one of those days," said Simpson, who moved to the top of the 1987 money list with his $150,000 first-place check.

"It was one of the best putting rounds of my life. I was concentrating on making a smooth stroke, and for some reason the putts just kept going in."

Simpson, a four-time winner on the PGA Tour, had failed to make the cut in six of his seven previous Opens. His victory means 17 different players have won the last 17 major championships.

Simpson finished 72 holes at 3-under 277, a stroke ahead of Watson, who had an even-par 70 in the final round. Ballesteros was third at 282. Bobby Wadkins, Curtis Strange, Larry Mize, Crenshaw and Langer were all another stroke back at 283.

Simpson's victory ruined the dramatic return of Watson, Winless in three years and 56th on the money list this year, Watson shot a second-round 65 to move into a share of the lead. Displaying the form that brought him eight major tournament titles, Watson was alone in front after the third round.

"It felt good being back in the hunt again," Watson said. "I felt a little bit of the old magic coming back. I'm disappointed I didn't win, but there's a lot of golf left in Tom Watson."

Watson, 37, had a chance to send the tournament into a playoff, but narrowly missed a 45-foot birdie putt at the final hole. Simpson, playing a group in front, watched Watson's effort from a television monitor.

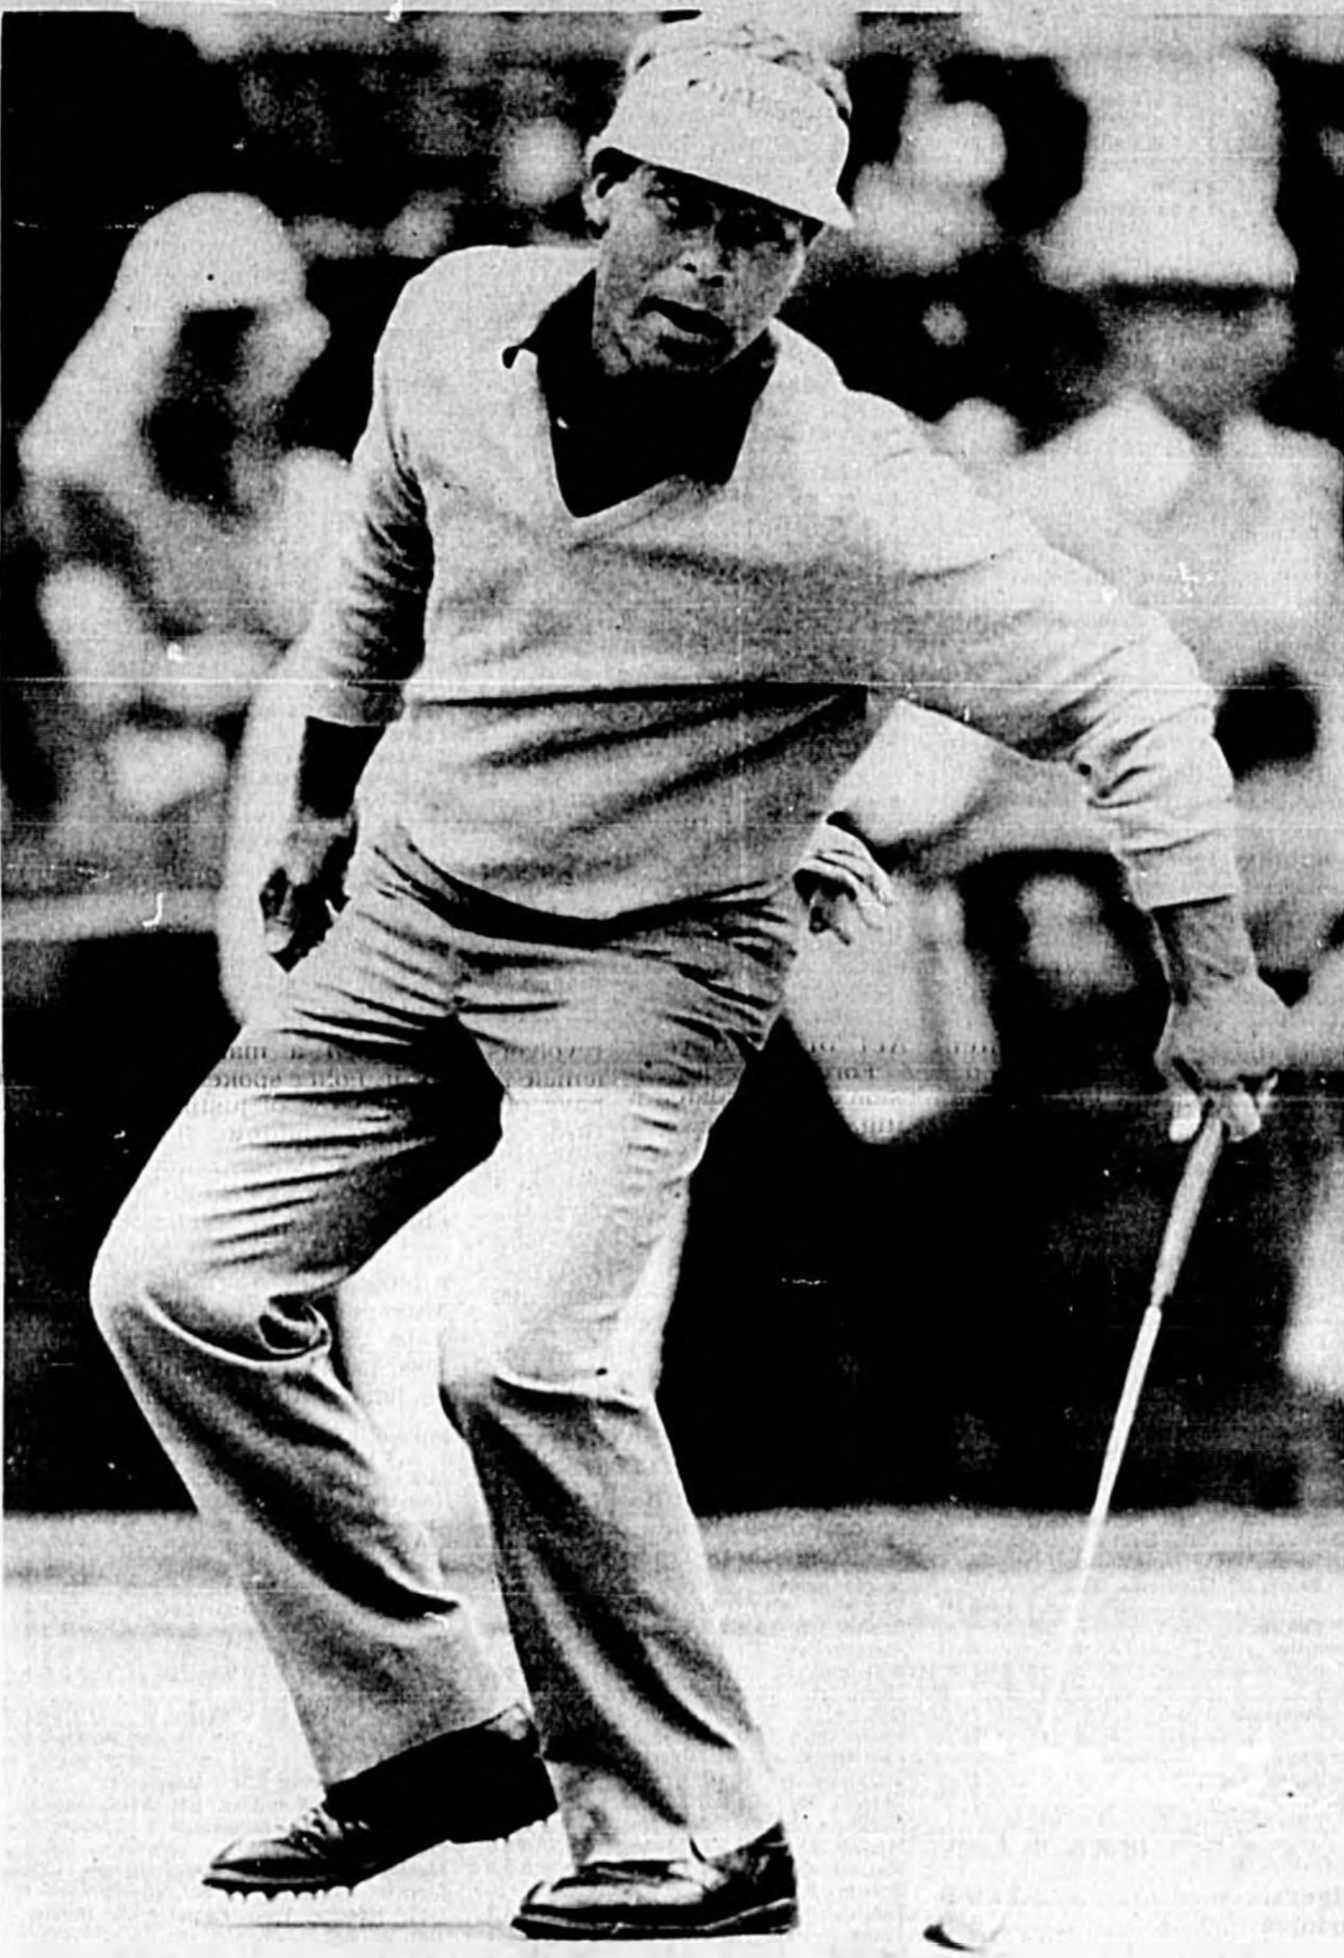

"I admit I was hoping it wouldn't go in," Simpson said. "I didn't want a playoff. I'm relieved it didn't go in."

Seven different players led during the frantic final round. Ballesteros mounted a brief charge when he posted back-to-back birdies at the 10th and 11th holes, but the Spaniard fell back with bogeys on the next two holes.

"I feel I had a good chance to win but my putting was not as good as it was supposed to be," Ballesteros said. "I guess putting is not my thing anymore. Everytime something good would happen, I'd make a bogey."

Keith Clearwater, a stroke back of Watson after three rounds, ballooned to a 79. Jack Nicklaus faded to a 77 in his effort to win an unprecedented 21st major championship.

Defending champion Raymond Floyd had a 76 and 73 in the last two rounds and finished 13 strokes off the pace.

Ben Crenshaw had the body english but not the magic with the putter in U.S. Open.

Watson On The Rebound

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — If gallery sentiments decided tournaments, Tom Watson would have captured the 87th U.S. Open instead of Scott Simpson.

Watson, cheered on by most in the crowd of nearly 30,000 spectators at the Olympic Club, shot an even-par 70 Sunday, one stroke behind Simpson.

"I have to win to prove that I'm back," Watson, an eight-time major winner, said after his 45-foot putt for birdie and an 18-hole playoff was inches short. "That's the name of the game. Finishing second is no good."

"I felt a little bit of the old magic coming back. I have nothing to be ashamed about. It's good being back in the hunt again. I felt capable of winning the golf tournament."

Watson's last triumph in a major came at the 1963 British Open. His game inexplicably deserted him soon after — he has not won a tournament in nearly three years.

"I was very, very nervous today," said Watson, who bogeyed the first two holes to fall from the lead. "I was nervous last night. I think it affected my play somewhat over the first few holes."

"I started off about the same way as I did yesterday (Saturday when he shot a 71). I missed some short putts early. It is and butts were candy and nuts..."

Watson came back to birdie No. 8 with a 15-foot putt and No. 9 with a 20-footer. His birdie on No. 14 gave him the lead, but Simpson strung three together to pass him.

"I was watching the leaderboard all day," Watson said. "I wanted to know my position. Scotty hit the shots that he had to make."

"I'm not surprised. Scott Simpson is a very fine golfer. He's proved he can play with the lead, he's come from behind and he's won on tough golf courses."

Watson's birdie chance on No. 18 came after he used a pitching wedge 113 yards from the hole.

"The ball sucked back off the green," Watson said. "It was within 45 feet. I just left it short of the hole."

Becker, Graf Shoot For Wimbledon Titles

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — West German teenagers Boris Becker and Steffi Graf, one attempting to make history and the other hoping to thwart it, will likely play major roles in determining the singles titles at Wimbledon.

Becker, the focus of attention and highly vulnerable to the pressure of being a two-time champion, can become the first man to capture three Wimbledon titles while still a teenager. Graf, who has not lost since November, will attempt to stop Martina Navratilova from winning a record sixth consecutive Wimbledon title.

Becker is unquestionably the world's premier grass-court player, but already has been put at a disadvantage since the rain of the last few weeks has softened the courts.

The top seed faced a relatively testing first-round match today against Czechoslovakian Karel Novacek, a quarterfinalist in the French Open earlier this month. At Paris, Novacek became only the second man in Grand Slam history to win a match in three love sets, shutting out Eduardo Bengoechea of Argentina.

"I'm a little superstitious, and this place has brought me a lot of luck," Becker said of Wimbledon, adding he was confident of yet another victory.

Weather conditions could play a major factor. Becker thrives on the speed of Wimbledon's grass, and Sunday, head groundsman Jim Thorne warned "the courts will behave more like slow clay for the first few days." In addition, more rain is forecast for the first week.

While Becker was touching off the Center Court festivities at 2 p.m. (9 a.m. EDT), weather permitting, No. 2 seed Ivan Lendl was scheduled to play on the adjoining No. 1 court against Romanian Davis Cupper Christian Saccau, ranked No. 178 in the world.

Most of the women are off until Tuesday, when top seed Navratilova will renew her attack on the record books. With five successive Wimbledon singles titles, she needs one more to stand alone in that category, and she also can equal Helen Wills Moody's record of eight Wimbledon championships overall.

However, Navratilova has not won a tournament since beating Graf in the Virginia Slims Championships last November, and Graf has not lost since then. Graf carries a streak of 39 consecutive match victories into

Tennis

Wimbledon, and although grass is not her favorite surface, she has shown an ability to beat anyone anywhere.

As for the pressure on her, the 18-year-old West German says, "If you always win, how can there be pressure?"

Chris Evert said of Graf: "This girl's tough now, but she's going to be great. She's hungry. She looks like she wants to eat the ball."

Navratilova suffered a psychological letdown Saturday when she lost to Helena Sukova in the final at Eastbourne, marking her first grass-court defeat in Britain in 70 matches.

"I'm not done yet," the 31-year-old left-hander insisted. "I haven't won this year, but I'm not done yet, although it looks like it will take an act of Congress for me to win again."

Pam Shriver, Navratilova's doubles partner, said even before the loss to Sukova "the confidence factor is missing right now" in her close friend. "The next two weeks will be very interesting."

Shriver added, though, "You have to go with the person who has won five straight at Wimbledon."

Almost overlooked is Evert, the No. 3 seed and a three-time Wimbledon champion who also was victimized by Sukova at Eastbourne.

"I guess the intensity is missing from my game," Evert said. "I know what the problem is — I've just played so many matches in my life."

Other matches today involving seeded players included: No. 3 Mats Wilander against Gary Muller; No. 4 Stefan Edberg vs. Stefan Eriksson; No. 10 Tim Mayotte vs. Jean Fluridan; No. 11 Pat Cash vs. Marcel Freeman; No. 12 Brad Gilbert vs. Stuart Bale; No. 13 Joakim Nystrom vs. Henrik Sundstrom; No. 14 Emilio Sanchez vs. Mike Bauer; and No. 15 David Pate vs. Sergio Casal.

In women's action, No. 7 Gabriela Sabatini was to play Barbara Gerken; No. 8 Manuela Maleeva took on Helen Kelesi; No. 11 Lori McNeil faced Marie-Cristine Calleja and No. 12 Catarina Lindqvist had a difficult opener against Kathy Jordan.

HOGAN WATCHES OPEN

FORT WORTH, Texas (UPI) — Golfing great Ben Hogan, hospitalized for three weeks for appendicitis and pneumonia, watched a few minutes of the U.S. Open on television Sunday from his hospital room.

Hogan, 73, was moved Saturday from the intensive care unit at Harris Methodist Hospital. He had problems staying awake to watch the tournament because of medication and fell asleep after a few minutes, a hospital spokesman said.

Hogan is the only golfer to win consecutive Open titles. This year's Open is being played at the Olympic Country Club in San Francisco, where Hogan participated in one of the most storied events in golf history. On the verge of winning the 1955 Open, he was tied on the 72nd hole by unknown Jack Fleck and lost the next day in a playoff.

Hogan, who won all four of golf's Grand Slam events, overcame a near-fatal auto accident in West Texas in 1949 to capture the Open in 1950-51.

Hogan was hospitalized May 31 for appendicitis. He contracted pneumonia in the hospital.

Altamonte Tops Oviedo

The Altamonte Big League baseball team not only moved closer to clinching the division championship Sunday but also gained a measure of revenge in an 8-4 victory over Oviedo "A" at the University of Central Florida.

Manager Gene Letterio's Altamonte team, which consists mostly of Lake Mary High players, improved to 14-1 with four games remaining and also beat Oviedo ace Scott Bowers for the first time.

"Bowers had shut Lake Mary High out late in the season and shut us out, 7-0, the first week of the Big League season," Letterio said. "A schedule change gave us a chance to face Bowers again and we were determined to get to him this time."

In six innings, Altamonte touched Bowers for six runs on seven hits. Bowers gave way to Jody Spellman who gave up two runs in the seventh. For "The eight runs were a factor, the defense was a factor. (Catcher) Bob Boone was a factor. The crowd was a factor. Maybe the newness (of the American League) was a factor," the 38-year-old left-hander said after pitching the California Angels to an 8-0 victory over the Kansas City Royals.

The 19-year veteran had lost his final six decisions as a member of the Los Angeles Dodgers and was 0-5 with the Cincinnati Reds this season.

"Believe me, I wasn't thinking about nine innings," Reuss said. "I was thinking fundamentals — warm up properly, not hang the curve."

Reds Fight Past Braves, Hold Lead

United Press International Atlanta entered a four-game series against Cincinnati trailing the National League West-leading Reds by 3 1/2 games.

Sunday, the Braves emerged battered, bruised, and no closer to first place.

Buddy Bell homered with one out in the 10th inning to lift the Reds to a 6-5 victory over the Atlanta Braves in a game marred for the second straight day by a benches-clearing brawl.

"It was a fairly exciting series," said Bell, who drilled a 1-0 pitch from Gene Garber, 8-5, to left field for his fifth homer.

"Lot of times your adrenalin seems to flow a little more than normal, and things like that are going to happen."

The melee erupted in the eighth inning after Kal Daniels of the Reds singled and stole second. Tracy Jones was hit by a pitch from Jim Acker, and charged the mound.

Both benches emptied and Jones was ejected. Saturday, Cincinnati's Bill Guttlickson hit Andres Thomas after back-to-back home runs by Dale Murphy and Ken Griffey.

Freddie's Dominates Pony Play

There is no second-guessing who the champion of the Pony Division of the Seminole Pony League is this season.

A bunch of 13 and 14 year olds known as Freddie's Steak House dominated the division with an impressive 18-2 record, including a season-ending 13-3 victory over Salvagio's Boys.

In that game, Steve Friesner and Dan Edwards combined on a four-hitter to lead Freddie's to the victory, as they have done all season long.

Friesner and Edwards also led the team at the plate against Salvagio's as each drilled three hits, including a double and four RBIs by Friesner and a triple and three RBIs by Edwards.

Salvagio's B.J. Calapa gave up seven runs and nine hits as the losing pitcher. Kevin Twigg came on in relief, however, and fanned 10 batters while rapping two singles to lead the team.

The healthy combination of strong hitting and powerful pitching sparked Freddie's the entire season, and Friesner, Newell and Edwards have successfully combined both into their personal bag of weapons.

Newell led the team offensively with a .463 batting average, while Edwards batted .457 and Friesner batted .432.

"The most valuable player (on the team) is a hard decision between Pat, Steve and Dan," Friesner said. "Therefore I select all three."

Those three pitchers were not the only contributors on the team, however, for three others hit above the .300 mark.

Martina Seeks Record Sixth Consecutive Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (UPI) — Martina Navratilova begins her bid for a sixth consecutive Wimbledon title facing two daunting facts:

She has not won a tournament since November; West German teenager Steffi Graf is the premier women's player at the moment.

Navratilova came to Britain last week aiming to reassert her superiority on her favorite surface, grass. Instead, she ended a five-year, 69-match unbeaten streak on British grass courts, losing to Czechoslovakia's Helena Sukova in the final of a $200,000 in Eastbourne.

"I blew it," Navratilova said. "All six of her Eastbourne titles have been followed by Wimbledon victories. A victory there would have given an immeasurable boost to her attempt to match Helen Wills Moody's eight Wimbledon singles titles and become the first to win six in a row.

Victory would also have gone some way toward diminishing the loss to Graf in the final of the clay-court French Open. It was Graf's first Grand Slam title, earned eight days before her 18th birthday. Navratilova double-faulted at match point, one error in a long line of mistakes once thought impossible for the world's No. 1 woman player.

"I've found enough ways to lose matches this year," she said. "I hope I've gone through them all."

Graf, ranked No. 2 in the world, has won her last eight tournaments, but grass is not her best surface and she has not played a grass-court tournament in two years. She missed last year's Wimbledon with a virus.

Tennis

"Martina has to be the favorite without a doubt," said Navratilova's friend and doubles partner Pam Shriver. "If you win five times in a row, seven times in nine years, you have to be the favorite. Until we see how Graf performs on grass we won't know how dangerous she is."

Navratilova says her problem is not a decline in her game as much as an extended case of nerves.

"I believe I have a lot of good tennis in me," Navratilova said.

"Although lately I've been falling apart at the drop of a hat. Simple shots that are there and I end up missing them."

"At this point it's all emotional. The shots are there. There are some physical problems, but not enough to affect me. There's not anything wrong with me technically."

"I'm not brimming with confidence, but I'm still the favorite. It's still grass, and playing Center Court at Wimbledon isn't like playing Center Court at Eastbourne."

Chris Evert, the No. 3 seed, also favored her old rival to take the crown.

"Graf will win on every surface, but whether she wins on grass this year remains to be seen," Evert said. "I'd still put my money on Martina."

History Lesson

The last man to win three straight Wimbledon singles titles was Bjorn Borg in 1976. He went on to make it five in a row. Other hat tricks this century were by Laurie Doherty (1902-04), Anthony Wilding (1910-13) and Fred Perry (1934-36).

Quote of the Day

"Lendl is the No. 1 but I look at it that he is just another player who has to be beaten and I'm going to give it my best shot." — Christian Leconte, on his first-round match against Ivan Lendl.

About Friends

John McEnroe, who has back trouble, is the most famous absentee. Sweden's Kent Carlsson and Martin Jais of Argentina also might have been seeded but passed up the grass-court event because they prefer to play on clay.

Wild Thing

No British man was ranked high enough to gain automatic entry to Wimbledon. Seven Britons earned wild-card entries. No others made it through the qualifying tournament.

Winning Streaks

Boris Becker has won the past two Wimbledon men's titles and has never lost a completed match in the tournament. Three years ago he retired hurt. Martina Navratilova has taken the women's title the past five seasons but is under threat from Steffi Graf, who enters the tournament with a 39-match winning streak.

Home Sweet Home

Swedish men should feel at home at Wimbledon. The 14 of them in the singles account for more than one-tenth the field. But the draw saw to it that at least three will go out after one round by pairing them with fellow Swedes.

THUMBNAILED

WIMBLEDON THUMBNAILED
United Press International

- Men's singles
- Boris Becker, West Germany
Age 19, height 6-2, weight 174 pounds. Rewrote the history books in many respects when he won Wimbledon in 1985, including becoming the youngest male (17 years 7 months) to win a Grand Slam title. Proved it was no fluke by retaining the title last year, when he also won five other Grand Prix titles and became the sport's youngest millionaire. Becker's booming service and aggression, ideally suited to Wimbledon, make him the overwhelming favorite for a third title, which is why he and not World No. 1 Lendl is top seed.
  - Ivan Lendl, Czechoslovakia
Age 27, 6-2, 173 pounds. The only male player so far to top $10 million in tournament earnings. Lendl won his third French Open title — and his fifth Grand Slam crown — earlier this month. Determination and ambition were the key factors in the Lendl rise to become World No. 1. Seven times a runner-up in Grand Slam tournaments, he was beaten in the Wimbledon final by Becker, but won the U.S. Open both in 1985 and 1986 as well as the French in 1984, 1986 and 1987. Always vulnerable on grass, needs a few easy matches in the opening rounds to gain confidence and rhythm.
  - Mats Wilander, Sweden
Age 22, 6-1, 175 pounds. At 17 years, 9 months won the 1982 French Open title, and is the only player to win four Grand Slam events (French 1982 and 1985, and Australian Open 1983 and 1984) before his 21st birthday. Lives in Monte Carlo and since his marriage this year to South African model Senta Mulholland, he's demonstrated a more easy-going attitude to tennis. A claycourt specialist, which accounts for most of his 24 Grand Prix titles, the Swede failed to win his third French Open title earlier this month when he was beaten in a four-set final by Lendl. Has never got beyond the fourth round at Wimbledon, though won the doubles title last year with Joakim Nyström.
  - Stefan Edberg, Sweden
Age 21, 6-2, 158 pounds. A rarity among the Swedes, an exciting serve-and-volley player, but Edberg has never been beyond the fourth round at Wimbledon despite living for most of the year in London and being thoroughly accustomed to grass court play. Australian Open champion for the past two years, he also reached the last four of the 1986 U.S. Open before being stopped by eventual champion Lendl.
  - Milesław Mečíř, Czechoslovakia
Age 23, 6-3, 180 pounds. A deceptively languid player, Mečíř defeated Wilander and Becker en route to a surprise appearance in the U.S. Open final last year but was then routed by Lendl. Better on clay than grass, Mečíř reached the quarterfinals at Wimbledon in 1984. Then he ran up against Becker, a defeat he avenged later in New York. Nursing a knee injury, the unpredictable Mečíř could lose in the first round, or could be the bogeyman of the bottom half of the Wimbledon draw.
  - Yannick Noah, France
Age 27, 6-4, 180 pounds. French Open champion in 1983, Noah has never been beyond the quarterfinals of any other Grand Slam event. One of the most exciting and dramatic players to watch on any surface, Noah is also top seeded with compatriot Guy Forget (whom he could meet in the second round) in the doubles.
  - Jimmy Connors, U.S.
Age 34, 5-10, 153 pounds. Champion in 1974 and 1982 and winner of 165 tournament titles but the last dates back to October 1984. Now relying on the role of "Grand Old Man" of tennis, Connors is revered by the likes of Becker as one of the all-time greats — which did not stop Becker beating him in the final of the pre-Wimbledon Queen's Club tournament in London. They could meet again in the quarterfinals (as they did in the French Open earlier this month), when Connors' guile and experience might provide the best test of how well equipped Becker is for a third title.

Wimbledon: Centre court looms ominous as grass court championships begin today.

- Andras Gimes, Ecuador
Age 27, 6-6, 190 pounds. Primarily a claycourt player, Gimes nonetheless has reached the quarterfinals of Wimbledon and the U.S. Open — both in 1984. But he lost in the first round at Wimbledon last year and this year faces an unpredictable first round opponent in Austria's Horst Skoff. Left-handed and known for prolonging the agony of eventual victory or defeat to the very limits. Winner of the Tournament of Champions title this year.
- Henri Leconte, France
Age 24, 6-1, 160 pounds. Probably the most naturally-gifted player since Ilije Nastase, the erratic left-hander reached the quarterfinals at Wimbledon in 1985 and the semifinals last year, before falling both times to Becker. But Leconte has little form this year following back surgery. A return, too early, to tournament play saw him eliminated from the French Open in the first round last month.
- Tim Mayotte, U.S.
Age 26, 6-5, 180 pounds. The big-hitting Mayotte last year won at Queen's Club, then reached the last eight of Wimbledon before falling in five tight sets to Lendl. This year, he lost at Queen's in the semifinals to Becker. A semifinalist also at Wimbledon in 1982, the mild-mannered Mayotte is known as "Gentleman Tim". The only American man to win a tournament this year, Mayotte took the title of the U.S. Indoor Championships in February at Philadelphia.

- Women's singles
- Martina Navratilova, U.S.
Age 30, height 5-7 1/2, weight 145 pounds. Aiming for a record sixth consecutive title and to equal the record of eight women's titles overall. Has not won a tournament this year, but as runner-up in the French Open Navratilova took her career prize money to more than $12 million. Going for three titles — singles, women's doubles (with Pam Shriver) and mixed doubles (with Paul McNamee). Only five women have won all three in the same year. Navratilova takes a 36-match winning streak in singles play at the All-England Club into this year's competition.
  - Steffi Graf, West Germany
Age 16, 5-8, 116 pounds. The rising star, perhaps already risen since winning the French Open. Wimbledon will show how ready she is to take over from Navratilova as world No. 1. The only German to win the women's title to date is Clifty Aussem in 1931. Graf's power and strength have not taken her beyond the fourth round at Wimbledon so far, but she is the key figure in the women's singles.
  - Chris Evert, U.S.
Age 32, 5-6, 125 pounds. Displaced as No. 2 by Graf, and likely to fade further. Three times Wimbledon champion and seven times runner-up. Evert's divorce from John Lloyd coincides with her displacement by Graf. A great competitor, Evert's determination is likely to take her to at least the quarterfinals at Wimbledon.
  - Hana Mandlikova, Czechoslovakia
Age 25, 5-8, 132 pounds. Last year's beaten finalist and reigning Australian Open champion. Mandlikova is the last player to defeat Navratilova at Wimbledon, beating her in in the 1981 semifinals. Erratic but at her best on grass, Mandlikova is also the only woman apart from Navratilova and Evert since the 1981 U.S. Open to win a Grand Slam title.
  - Helena Sukova, Czechoslovakia
Age 22, 6-2, 150 pounds. Her mother Vera reached the Wimbledon final in 1962, losing to American Karen Hantze. The tall Helena is a good grass court player, who can trouble all but the best and defeated Evert to reach the final of the U.S. Open last year.
  - Pam Shriver, U.S.
Age 24, 6-0, 150 pounds. As usual, top seeded with Navratilova in the women's doubles. In singles, reached the semifinals of Wimbledon in 1981 and the quarterfinals in 1984.
  - Gabriela Sabatini, Argentina
Age 17, 5-7 1/2, 130 pounds. With Graf, the star of the future. Many observers concentrate on her sultry good looks rather than her fierce topspin and cracking backhand. Semifinalist at the French Open, and at Wimbledon last year, she is able to win her first Grand Slam title on any surface.
  - Manuela Maleeva, Bulgaria
Age 21, 5-8, 127 pounds. Her sister Katerina is also seeded. Reached the fourth round at Wimbledon last year, but her baseline game is limited on grass. Maleeva's mother Yula was Bulgarian champion nine times. Her best performance on grass was reaching the semifinals at Eastbourne in 1985.
  - Claudia Kohde-Kilsch, West Germany
Age 23, 6-0, 130 pounds. Despite her serve-and-volley game, the tall and dominating West German has not had much success at Wimbledon, never getting beyond the third round. But she is one of the players who can extend Navratilova, defeating her at the 1985 Canadian Open and extending the Wimbledon champion several times in 1986.
  - Bettina Bunge, West Germany
Age 24, 5-8, 125 pounds. Born in Switzerland, brought up in Peru and Florida, now living in Monte Carlo. Bunge nonetheless represents West Germany in the Federation Cup. A vivacious player, she reached the semifinals of Wimbledon in 1982 and won four tournaments in that year and 1983.

Georgia Rips Florida, 27-3

By Scott Sander
Herald Sports Writer

ORLANDO — Coming into Saturday night's Third Annual Florida-Georgia All-Star football game, Georgia came into the game looking to avenge a pair of losses in the two previous games.

As it turned out, Georgia got what it wanted, and then some.

Georgia came out fired up, and took advantage of seven Florida turnovers as Georgia clobbered Florida, 27-3, before a record crowd of 17,440 at Orlando Stadium.

"I had a feeling all week that the kids were ready to play," Georgia coach Ray Lamb said. "We came out very strong, and it feels good to finally get a win over them."

Georgia took advantage of the Florida miscues as five of the seven turnovers resulted in Georgia points. Georgia kicker John Kasey booted field goals of 46 and 26 yards while quarterback Kevin Epsy had a 1-yard touchdown plunge. Runningback John Stewart also added a 3-yard touchdown run.

Florida coach Carl Madison said that, although it was only an all-star game, he was still not very happy with the way that his squad performed. "We were outplayed at the line of scrimmage," Madison said. "I knew coming in that they were bigger than us, and we couldn't generate any offense all night long. They were fired up, and we weren't. That was the biggest difference."

One reason that Florida was outmaneuvered was the absence of nine players that pulled out of the game earlier in the week. "We didn't have very good practices," Madison added. "And it showed tonight."

The big play of the game came in the third period. Florida took the kickoff and drove from their own 25 to the Georgia 29. Quarterback Casey Weldon, who was under constant pressure from Georgia defenders all game, rolled to his right and attempted to hit Terrance Barber. The ball, however, was intercepted by cornerback David Hargett. Hargett dashed down the sidelines for a 75-yard touchdown.

"We made a lot of mistakes and they took advantage of them," Madison said. "If we would have scored on that drive, it would have been a different game."

much of the game. Bowers and Altamonte lefty Steve Shakar locked up in a pitcher's duel as Altamonte clung to a 3-1 lead after five innings.

The big blow of the game then came in the top of the sixth when Altamonte pitcher Eric Birle launched a Bowers pitch over the fence in left center for a solo home run and a 4-1 lead. Altamonte added two more runs in the inning to pull away.

"It was really a great team effort," Letterio said. "It was one of the most enjoyable games of the summer. It was good that we got to play Oviedo again because there is not a whole lot of competition in our area."

Kelly Hysell led the Altamonte offense as he was 3 for 4 with two doubles and two RBIs. Mike Schmit also drove in a pair of runs with two singles and Billy Jenkins added a double, single and one RBI.

Shakar went the distance on the mound and allowed seven hits, struck out four and walked three.

Gary Pelezar led Oviedo at the plate as he had a triple and single and drove in one run. Joey Beasley socked a double and single. Spelman contributed a double.

Altamonte Astros Rolling

After compiling a 20-1 record during the regular season, the Altamonte Senior Astros roared into Top Team Tournament play and claimed three consecutive victories.

Manager Duke Pleicones' team opened Top Team play with a 9-0 rout of Eustis in which Curt Prom tossed a three hit shutout and struck out seven. Ken Brubaker, Prom and Chris Pleicones led the offense with two hits each.

The Astros then advanced to a game against the Oviedo Angels and rode the strong pitching of Andy Spolski to a 7-2 victory. Spolski allowed only four hits and struck out three and was backed by a superb defending effort as the Astros turned three doubleplays. Brubaker and Pat Battle led the offense with two hits each.

The Astros and Oviedo Angels squared off again this past Friday night and this time the Astros rolled to an 11-1 victory. Prom was the winning pitcher as he allowed three hits in six innings and struck out three. Battle led the offensive barrage with a double, single and three runs batted in. Prom contributed a double and two RBIs. Chance Wistrom had two singles and drove in a run and Pleicones attued a double.

In winning the regular-season championship, the Astros knocked off the defending champion Dodgers, 12-2, in the finale. Prom tossed another three-hitter in the game and whiffed 12.

Manager Pleicones attributed the Astros' success to an excellent pitching staff led by Prom. Spolski, Brubaker and Pleicones. Leading hitters include Kevin Wainscott, Wistrom and Spolski while Rusty Hurst came through with a number of clutch hits.

Other members of the championship squad include Mike Locke, Jeff Streeter, Doug Jones and Ricky Johnson. — Chris Flister

Stocks Active, Higher

NEW YORK (UPI) — Prices opened higher Monday in active trading of New York Stock Exchange issues as the upward momentum of the previous sessions carried investors further into uncharted territory.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, which rose 12.72 to a new high of 2420.85 Friday, was up 9.27 to 2430.12 shortly after the market opened.

Advances led declines 629-356 among the 1,396 issues crossing the New York Stock Exchange tape. Early turnover amounted to about 16,681,000 shares.

Stocks carved out a modest gain Friday on the New York Stock Exchange in heavy but orderly trading as new rules designed to dampen the volatility of the "triple-witching hour" appeared to work reasonably well.

"We shouldn't hang our hat on whether it worked well once," said Chester Pado, director of technical analysis at Jefferies & Co. in Los Angeles.

Most analysts and traders said they expect the market to move higher through the next two weeks at least, although some cautioned that there could be a corrective session Monday.

Jack Baker, head of the equity block trading desk at Shearson Lehman Brothers Inc., said he expects institutional investors, many of whom stayed on the sidelines last week, to reappear this week as the end of the quarter approaches.

"We cannot afford to keep fiddling while the fire of the federal deficit is raging out of control," Derreck said. "But Congress cannot put out that fire by itself."

The House is scheduled to begin debate Tuesday on the budget plan denounced by Reagan, who is expected to continue hammering away at the Democrats — and brushing off the significance of the Iran-Contra hearings — in a series of meetings and White House appearances throughout the week. The budget resolution pending on Capitol Hill would cut domestic spending by $18 billion, trim the deficit by $37 billion and fall $18 billion short of the $312 billion the Pentagon has requested for fiscal 1988.

In perhaps the sharpest challenge to Reagan, the proposal would allow defense spending to increase to $296 billion in 1988 from $289 billion this year only in the event the administration agrees to tax hikes totaling $65 billion in the next three years.

Taking aim at the budget plan approved by the conferees Thursday — one calling for $19.3 billion in additional taxes next year — Reagan said, "We're willing to work with those in Congress who will work with us in good faith, but this budget is as bad as they come, like a bad sequel to the tax-and-spend follies of the 1970s."

In the Democratic response to that broadcast, Rep. Butler Derreck, D-S.C., said Reagan should stop "playing Dirty Harry with the American economy" and work with Congress to fashion a reasonable and fair fiscal 1988 budget.

"I'm keeping that pencil at the ready in my desk," he said, "and believe me, any tax hike bill that makes it into the Oval Office won't make it out alive."

That was the message Reagan delivered Friday before out-of-town reporters and the next day in his weekly radio address as he denied he is unwilling to work for a budget compromise while blaming Democrats for a lack of progress so far.

Work with Congress to fashion a reasonable and fair fiscal 1988 budget.

Women Are Latest Victims Of Age-Old Problem: Booze

DEAR READERS: According to the newsletter "Update on Human Behavior," published by the Associated Psychotherapists of Colorado, there are more than 2 million female alcoholics, and their numbers are increasing at a faster rate than male alcoholics. Alcoholism usually starts later in life for women, but progresses much more quickly. Why? Because women have less water in their bodies to dilute it.

Women are more likely to drink alone, to hide their drinking, and to feel guilty and ashamed about it. They suffer more alcohol-related depression, and are more likely to develop other chemical dependencies — prescription drugs, for example.

Nine out of 10 wives stay with alcoholic husbands, but only one husband in 10 stays with an alcoholic wife.

Most alcoholics know deep down that something is wrong, but the denial that is part of the disease prevents them from seeing that alcohol is the root of their problems.

ARE YOU AN ALCOHOLIC? If you have experienced three or more of the following, the chances are high that you are an alcoholic, or are becoming one:

1. Absence or tardiness at work due to drinking.
2. Conflict or unhappiness at home due to drinking.
3. Drinking to overcome shyness or to build self-esteem.
4. Requiring increasing amounts of alcohol to "relax"

Dear Abby

and "unwind."

5. Having regrets about drinking.

6. Suffering financial difficulties because of drinking.

7. Pushing drinks on others; feeling uncomfortable when others don't drink.

8. Lack of concern about your family's welfare when you're drinking.

9. Decreased ambition since the onset of drinking.

10. Difficulty in sleeping due to drinking.

11. Drinking in the morning.

12. Poor job performance due to drinking.

13. Drinking alone.

14. Drinking to forget your troubles.

15. Loss of memory.

16. Resenting those who want you to stop drinking.

All right, so according to the results of the above test you are an alcoholic. Now what do you do?

For openers, find Alcoholics Anonymous in the telephone directory. Then attend a meeting at one of the chapters near you. There are no dues, and you need not identify yourself unless you want to.

If you need treatment, your local mental health professionals can help you choose among available community resources for expert, professional treatment. Another excellent source of help is The National Council on Alcoholism, 733 Third Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

DEAR ABBY: I can relate to the wife who's approaching 40 and announced to her husband ("Frustrated in Downers Grove") that she had lost all interest in sex. "Frustrated" wants to know why. Let's give him a few reasons:

1. Does he bathe regularly?
2. Does his breath turn her off?
3. Does he wear clean clothes?
4. Does he consider her needs when having sexual relations?
5. Does he consider her needs when NOT having sexual relations?
6. Does he stimulate her desire for sex with "I love you," "You are wonderful," "You are all I need" before and after sex?
7. Does he remember special occasions?
8. Does he prevent her life from becoming a bore?
9. Does he share the problems that she has with the kids?
10. Does he consider her a "lovermate," not just a housekeeper?

If he will take a look at himself, I'm sure he can find plenty of love and sex at home.

No Evidence Linking Cancer, Broiled Meat

DEAR DR. GOTT — What, if any, are the cancer-causing effects of eating charcoal-broiled meat?

DEAR READER — A carcinogen is a compound that can cause cancer. These substances are present in infinitesimal quantities in many foods we eat; most of them are neutralized during digestion. Some studies have suggested that there are compounds in meat that, when heated, undergo chemical changes and become carcinogenic. For example, fried bacon and charcoal-broiled steaks have been found to contain more carcinogenic material after cooking than before.

To my knowledge, the evidence connecting charcoal-cooked meat to cancer is still too unsubstantiated to permit a recommendation against eating this food. A person is probably more at risk of developing high blood cholesterol from consuming charcoal-broiled steaks. However, charcoal-broiling appears to increase the number of carcinogens. The prudent and health-conscious consumer must take this fact into account when deciding how often to enjoy a juicy steak broiled on the barbecue.

Because of your interest in this topic, I'm sending you a free copy of my Health Report on VIRUSES AND CANCER, which tells about the latest discoveries in cancer research. Other readers who want a copy should send $1 and their name and address to P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I have an allergy to cane sugar. How can I tell if wine, bourbon, brandy and other alcohol are made with cane sugar?

DEAR READER — Simple sugar, made from cane or beets, is ubiquitous in our processed-food culture. It is added to many foods for flavor. However, most alcoholic beverages contain no cane sugar. Although some wines are sweeter than others, this is because of fruit sugar that remains after fermentation. Sweet liqueurs may contain sugar; it's hard to say, because the products are made with "secret" formulas that the manufacturers jealously guard. Spirits have no sugar added, except in one instance: Distillers in the Caribbean make their rum from sugar cane, and some sugar is added to flavor the product.

DEAR DR. GOTT — I've had Bell's palsy on one side of my face. What causes it?

DEAR READER — Bell's palsy is paralysis of the facial nerve. It can be caused by injury, a tumor that compresses the nerve, or — in most cases — an idiopathic (unknown) infection.

The palsy may affect one side of the face or (less commonly) both; it may be permanent or temporary. There is no cure but, with time, most patients experience notable improvement.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby
Since South was using standard bidding, his three-diamond jump raise was forcing. The North hand was best suited for no-trump, but the spade holding of 10-8-4-3 contained an uncertain stopper. So the three-spade cue-bid by North showed a partial stop and asked South to bid the no-trump game with J-x, Q-x or anything better. When the jack of spades was led, South mentally congratulated himself on his fine bidding to get to the right contract. East played the encouraging six of spades at trick one, and declarer won the queen. He then played to the heart king to take a diamond finesse. When West turned up with the diamond king and another spade, the defenders took five tricks to set the contract. Of course it was unlucky that East did not hold the diamond king, but declarer did not play with proper caution. Since there is only a 50-50 chance that the finesse in diamonds will be successful, South should take precautions in case the diamond king is with West. He assumes a five-card suit for East's one-spade overall. If he allows the jack of spades to hold the trick, the defenders can continue the suit, but the 10 in dummy will be an eventual stopper. Declarer can then play diamonds at his leisure, not caring whether West holds the king, since West will not have another spade to lead to his partner.
