Crew struggles to begin work

CAPE CANAVERAL — In fits and starts, the Columbia astronauts finally began studying the heavens Monday, but work to fix a balky telescope aiming system threw the crew behind schedule, reducing the amount of data they will be able to gather.

But NASA managers and scientists on the ground were optimistic the trouble with the cantankerous European-built Instrument Pointing System, or IPS, would be fixed by today at the latest, allowing the crew to begin around-the-clock observations of the most violent stars and galaxies in the universe.

"People are working to solve the problem and we have confidence that we will solve it in a very short period of time," said NASA flight director Robert Castle. "We've got a 10-day flight and we've still got a lot of time ahead of us."

Teenage AIDS fought in schools

NEW YORK — The head of the public schools system wants to permit distribution of condoms to high school students as a way of fighting the nation's worst teenage AIDS outbreak, a published report said today.

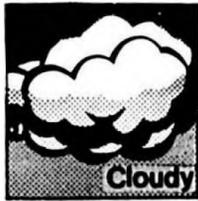

The New York Times said that students could obtain condoms even without parental consent under Schools Chancellor Joseph Fernandez's plan.

Road jams to worsen

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Traffic may be allowed to become and remain congested in four "core" areas of the county in order to encourage mass transit.

The areas include an area spreading out about two miles from the intersections of Interstate 4 and State Road 46, Lake Mary Boulevard and State Road 436. Traffic planners recommended allowing those areas to remain more congested, operating at a lower level of service, to discourage more cars from traveling to them.

"We want to concentrate development and encourage transit use," said Dick Thomas, county transportation planner. "If the level of service for traffic is really good, nobody is going to take transit."

County road congestion standards have decreased steadily during the last 13 years. When the county adopted the first development plan in the state in 1977, commissioners set an average level of service (LOS) goal of "C" to maintain as population grew and more cars were added to roadways. In 1987, the county adjusted that goal downward to a LOS of "D."

Monday, county planners said the county should maintain the LOS "D" for most roads of the county, but allow conditions to drop to "E" in four core areas of the county.

The main reason for the recommendation was to reduce the cost of road improvements. To finance a LOS "D" and "E" plan recommended by staff, the county would need $49 million, about $13.8 million more than it has available, to bring all roads up to that standard now.

By 1996, it will cost the county $132.3 million to bring the county roads up to that standard, $84.5 million more than the county will have. To bring all county roads up to a LOS "D" standard by 1996 would cost more than $200 million, staff said.

To have an idea what the county is planning for motorists' commuting, an understanding of what a LOS means to real life.

At a LOS of "A," a 15-mile commute to work in the morning at an overall average speed of 35

County not sold on mandatory pickup

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners will proceed — very, very carefully — towards mandatory garbage collection in all unincorporated areas of the county by next October.

But commissioners pledged Monday they will not approve a mandatory collection plan unless garbage rates drop below the $13.80 rate adopted by many garbage haulers in the county. They will formally vote to begin preparations for the plan Dec. 11. Final board adoption of the plan would occur next August.

County staffers said mandatory collection will be needed to deter illegal dumpers and to meet state requirements to reduce the amount of garbage going to dumps by 30 percent by 1994.

But still stinging after hundreds of complaints received by residents about increased rates and lack of choice when the county began its solid waste program in October, commissioners were unwilling to embrace mandatory garbage collection enthusiastically Monday.

"If we go to mandatory, that must clearly result in a significant reduction in price," said commission chairman Fred Streetman. "I'll be darned if I'm going to vote for mandatory collection if the prices don't go down."

"I am not ready to go to mandatory until we reduce the prices from where they are now," said commissioner Pat Warren. "I think we are going too fast into mandatory."

All commissioners agreed price breaks should be offered to the elderly and single-parent households or low-income residents.

Commissioners Jennifer Kelley and Larry Furlong said garbage staff should explore a usage garbage fee for residents that would reward those who dispose of smaller amounts of garbage or recycle more.

Kelley said some cities, including Plantation, Fla., have gone to a bag system where residents purchase plastic bags at local stores for about a dollar a bag instead of paying garbage fees. The proceeds from the bags would pay for the collection services.

Furlong suggested the county consider a mandatory base rate to pay for the collection expenses, then

Longwood OKs change in ratio of paving costs

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — There was considerable discussion last night before the city commission finally approved a change in the percentage of money it will pay for street paving projects.

The commission approved the change by a 4-to-1 vote, with Commissioner Paul Lovstrand opposing.

Under old guidelines, property owners on each side of an unpaved street paid 45 percent each for the cost of having their street paved through their taxes, while the city paid the remaining 10 percent. The new rule reduces the amount required from property owners to 20 percent on each side, with the city assuming the responsibility for the remaining 60 percent.

Lovestrand objected to the increased amount to be paid by the city. "I live in a district where all the streets are paved," he said. "I paid for mine and I don't want to pay for others."

Lovestrand said if the city pays such a high percentage, there will be so many street paving jobs to do it will tax the city's budget. "And if the city pays too low a percentage, there won't be any street paving."

While Commissioner Rex Anderson said the new resolution as proposed did not explain enough details, it was determined that the new one merely changed the percentages and not the methodology of street paving requirements.

Commissioner Adrienne Perry said she sees the issue in the same light as redevelopment plans. "It will improve the looks of our city."

Lake Mary sophomore chosen as leader

By VICKI DeSORMIER

LAKE MARY — Jenni Townsend, a sophomore at Lake Mary High School, has been selected to represent her peers at the Hugh O'Brien Leadership Seminar next spring.

Townsend, daughter of Julie and John Townsend of Longwood, will attend the seminar to be held in April.

"We're very proud of Jenni," said Sandy Davis, occupational specialist at the school, 655 Longwood-Lake Mary Road, Lake Mary. "She was selected based on her leadership ability, sensitivity to others, personal incentive and rapport with her peers."

Townsend, 16, was chosen by a panel of teachers and counselors who recognized her leadership potential.

Active in school politics and organizations, she currently serves as treasurer of the sophomore class. She is a member of the debate team and belongs to the French club, the drama club and the Interact service club. She is also the volunteer coach of a seventh grade cheerleading squad at Greenwood Lakes Middle School in Lake Mary.

"She is a very busy young woman," Davis said. In an introductory letter written to accompany her application, Townsend said that she always takes the initiative to get things done.

More notice required for incinerators

TALLAHASSEE — State environmental officials are now requiring greater public notice of plans for hazardous waste incinerators, landfills and similar facilities.

The policy comes in response to abuses by companies proposing the facilities and public outcries against them.

Department of Environmental Regulation Secretary Dale Twachtman said the department will let the public know about any applications it receives for such facilities.

Environmentalists and residents fighting the building of new waste facilities in their areas favor the new DER policy.

Ken Krantz, president of TSI Inc., the company that wants to build an incinerator in Jasper, said he also supports Twachtman's plan and agrees that some builders have tried to avoid public scrutiny.

AMA endorses mandatory AIDS tests

ORLANDO — Members of the American Medical Association have endorsed mandatory AIDS testing of patients before surgery to fully protect health care workers against contracting the virus.

More than 3,500 physicians, medical students and medical professionals are at the four-day American Medical Association convention in Orlando.

Testing for the HIV virus that causes acquired immune deficiency syndrome drew a lot of attention and debate, with at least a dozen reports and resolutions directly dealing with the disease. Some of the proposals sought mandatory testing.

In Florida, physicians must get the patient's permission to do an AIDS test.

But the state Legislature in its last session passed a law that allows testing for the HIV virus without consent if health care workers, police officers or paramedics may have had contact with that patient's body fluids.

Firefighters log suspected AIDS patients

BRADENTON — Fire Department workers have maintained an unofficial log listing names of people they believe to be infected with AIDS.

The list came to light through the case of a woman charged with attempted murder and prostitution. Police said she knew she had AIDS and offered to perform oral sex on an informant for $10.

After making the arrest, police contacted rescue workers, who said the woman was on their list of people with AIDS.

State law requires judges to order convicted prostitutes to undergo testing for sexually transmitted diseases, including the deadly AIDS virus. Those results can be made available to medical workers, such as members of emergency squads.

But the woman had never been charged with prostitution, according to Manatee Circuit Court records. Fire Chief Gene Gallo said the rescue squad's information did not come through official channels.

Gallo said the names in the log were of people who told rescue workers they had AIDS. He said he learned of the list Monday.

Public defender Elliott Metcalfe said he is outraged that the workers had kept a list of people they believed to be infected with AIDS, and that the list had been turned over to police. He believes the state's strict privacy laws prohibit such lists.

Weeks Wachee 'mermaid' recovering

WEEKI WACHEE — A woman training to play a "mermaid" at Weeki Wachee Spring is recovering from an air bubble in her blood.

The embolism formed as Cynthia Smith, 21, swam to the spring's surface Sunday.

Dan Wilson, a spokesman for the attraction, said Smith and two training companions had been breathing compressed air from tubes placed about 15 feet below the spring's surface.

As Smith rose to the surface, she apparently failed to exhale the compressed air, which expanded in her body as she neared the surface. Smith was unconscious but breathing when she reached the surface.

She was flown to Shands Hospital in Gainesville, where she's in serious but stable condition.

Bankruptcy voids Eastern settlement

MIAMI — A pledge by Continental Airlines Holdings Inc. to assume nearly $700 million in unmet pension obligations at Eastern Airlines was scuttled Monday by the company's bankruptcy filing, federal officials said.

The Pension Benefit Guaranty Corp., which negotiated an agreement with Continental in September covering those obligations over 13 years, said the agreement was void following the company's Chapter 11 bankruptcy filing.

The agency said it will seek to recover about $700 million in claims against Continental and its subsidiaries to cover the unmet obligations for seven pension plans once operated by Eastern Airlines.

Those plans were terminated in October following the agreement among the agency, Continental and Eastern.

Cops acquittal sparks rampage

Community explodes with arson, violence

By JEFF HARDY
United Press International

MIAMI — The acquittal of six police officers charged in the beating death of a Puerto Rican drug dealer set off several hours of looting, arson and rock-throwing by hundreds of angry youths in an Hispanic neighborhood.

No serious injuries were reported during the rampage, which erupted at about 6:30 p.m. EST Monday in the city's predominantly Puerto Rican Windwood section, north of downtown, taking city officials by surprise.

Shouts of "We want justice" and "Viva justice!" could be heard from many of those taking part in the violence hours after a federal court jury cleared the six policemen of conspiracy and other charges in the death of Leonardo Mercado.

Police dressed in riot gear clashed several times with the looters, some of them wearing masks fashioned from paper bags and T-shirts, and authorities managed to bring the area under control by 11 p.m.

Police said a handful of people were arrested, but no accurate tally was available.

For Miami residents, the disturbance was a chilling reminder of the three days of violence that rocked the city's predominantly black neighborhoods in January 1989.

Those riots erupted after an Hispanic police officer, William Lozano, shot and killed a black motorcyclist. Lozano was convicted of manslaughter.

Police initially kept a restrained presence Monday as the youths ravaged parts of the Windwood neighborhood, setting fire to parked cars, buildings and trash dumpsters, tossing rocks and bottles and looting stores.

Automobiles were overturned and at least one bus driving through the area at the height of the violence was pelted with stones. Smoke shrouded the area under siege, stretching 10 blocks north to south and six blocks east to west.

Police estimated the size of the mob, comprised mostly of young teenagers, at about 300 people at the peak of the disturbance.

Speaker says Lippman's job is in jeopardy

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — House Speaker T.K. Wetherell said Monday lawmakers were considering whether Majority Leader Fred Lippman should be ousted from his post following disclosures that $47,000 was paid to a former House aide who accused him of sexual harassment.

Wetherell, D-Daytona Beach, said he has asked his attorney to look into the situation and brief him on the House's legal posture. Meanwhile, he said, "we're working on" a decision whether Lippman will remain majority leader.

Lippman, D-Hollywood, did not attend the opening session of a legislative conference in which Wetherell passed out committee assignments and briefed members on his goals for the 1991-92 sessions.

The speaker said he wants to set a cost-cutting example in tight budget times, and that there will be no office renovations, computer purchases or junkets to conventions without approval from the leadership.

He did not mention Lippman's plight in his remarks to House members. In questioning outside the meeting, Wetherell for the first time indicated the veteran majority leader might be slipping.

"We'll work on that. He is the majority leader today, but we'll work on that," Wetherell said.

Former House Speaker Jon Mills, D-Gainesville, approved payments totalling $47,036 to Kathie Jennings, a former legislative analyst for the House Regulatory Reform Committee when Lippman was chairman of the panel in 1987.

In return, Jennings signed an agreement saying she would never disclose the payment or sue Lippman or the Legislature.

New Friend of the Wekiva River

Patrick Riley, manager of the Wal-Mart department store in Sanford, presented Friends of the Wekiva River secretary Judy Wick a $1,000 contribution Monday. Riley said the organization was selected by local employees for its efforts to protect the river from damage caused by development. Wal-Mart stores throughout the country are making the gifts available to local organizations as part of their community involvement program, Riley said.

Industry resists permit hikes

By MICHAEL MOLINE
United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — They're not exactly throwing down the gauntlet, but Florida businesses are resisting Gov.-elect Lawton Chiles' plans to increase fees for environmental permits by as much as 500 percent.

Chiles wants the fees charged to developers, industrialists, mining companies and homeowners to reflect the full costs to the taxpayers of the Department of Environmental Regulation's oversight.

Currently, those fees recover only 18 percent to 25 percent of the costs of regulation.

The incoming administration said that arrangement cannot long endure in the current economic climate, which has state agencies looking for places to cut costs, said Lt. Gov.-elect Kenneth "Buddy" MacKay, who is expected to become Chiles' point man on growth-related issues.

"We don't propose to increase taxes, and this agency is doing some very important functions and I don't want to see them cut," MacKay said.

Industry officials support reasonable fees and are willing to negotiate with the incoming administration over the issue.

But they also believe they are paying their fair share already.

"It's not like they're at the service of people wanting a permit," Chuck Littlejohn of the Florida Chamber of Commerce said of DER and other business regulatory agencies.

"These agencies are there to protect the environment and regulate growth."

Coast Guard rescues Haitians just before boat sinks

United Press International

MIAMI — The Coast Guard rescued 128 Haitian refugees from a rickety, overcrowded boat just before the vessel sank in 9-foot seas, throwing the boarding team into the water, a spokesman said Monday.

The guardsmen and the Hal-tians, including seven children and six pregnant women, were all rescued unharmed.

"We're fortunate that we didn't lose anyone. It was an extremely delicate situation," said Lt. Cmdr. Jeff Karonis.

Crewmen aboard the cutter Bear spotted the 30-foot wooden sailboat Saturday night, rolling dangerously in the rough seas about 40 miles northwest of Great Inagua Island, some 400 miles southeast of Miami.

A boarding team in a small motorboat distributed life jackets, then began ferrying the Haitians to the Bear in groups of five to eight. Karonis said. "That is one of the most dangerous processes that you go through, when you're transferring people. The thing that made it even more difficult was that it was at night," Karonis said. "This group was very cooperative. They understood they were being rescued."

Death threat made with chisel

SANFORD — City police here report charging Essoff Gaines, 48, 87 Seminole Gardens, Sanford, with two counts of aggravated assault. He is accused of threatening to kill two persons with a chisel in the parking lot of Seminole Gardens. He was arrested there after the incident at 4:59 p.m. Wednesday, police said.

Police stop car theft

SANFORD — Sanford police, who arrived on Shepherd Avenue to hear a woman shout, "He's stealing my car," report catching the man.

Police said the car of Marian Smith stalled as Konnie Maholeon Major, 30, 1708 W. 13th St., Sanford, allegedly tried to drive away after pulling Smith out of the car.

Major was arrested at the scene at 2:17 a.m. Sunday on a charge of auto theft.

Suspect nabbed leaving victim's house

LAKE MARY — A man who allegedly robbed a woman of her purse as she ran from him in rural Altamonte Springs Saturday night, was arrested near the victim's Lake Mary house just after midnight Saturday.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies report that at the house of Gloria Justice, 40, 464 Sun Lake Circle, #312, Lake Mary, the suspect allegedly broke the windshield of Justice's car. He was arrested as he drove from that scene on Lake Emma Road.

Reverias Bratcher, 41, of Pine Street, Altamonte Springs, is charged with robbery and criminal mischief in the two cases with Justice as the victim.

Mother, daughter battered

SANFORD — A man who allegedly battered a Sanford woman and shoved her 8-year-old daughter into the side of a car when the girl intervened, has been arrested by Sanford police.

James Glivens, 24, 2450 Center St., Sanford, was arrested on two counts of battery at 7:13 p.m. Monday. He is accused of hitting Gwendlyn Martin in the head during an argument. Martin's daughter was reportedly slammed into a car during the incident. The arrest was made at 1805 Peralmon Ave., Sanford.

Man charged in child sex assault

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Several times over the last three years a 39-year-old Altamonte Springs man has allegedly sexually assaulted a pre-teenage girl.

The girl's allegations were reported first to state officials and then to the Seminole County Sheriff's Department Sunday. The girl reportedly said the last assault was Nov. 30.

Danny Lee Evans, 100 Ridgewood St., Altamonte Springs, has been charged with sexual battery of a child and committing a lewd and lascivious act on a child. He was arrested in Altamonte Springs Monday.

Firefighters practice on Sanford highrise's walls

By NICK PFEIFER
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Firefighters from departments throughout Seminole County and Central Florida are spending much of this week polishing their safety and rescue skills, especially in rappelling, the ability to quickly climb down the outside of a building on a rope.

The training course is being held through the cooperation of the firefighting school at Seminole Community College.

"This is an excellent way for our men to get additional training," said Assistant Chief Ron Neel of the Sanford Fire Department.

Neel said if each separate fire department had to set up its own individual training sessions, the costs would be considerably more than through the community college. This also affords the opportunity of firefighters from various departments to learn techniques from each other in addition to the recommended training courses.

The rappelling, which has in the past been done mostly at the fire training facility at the college, was done this week with special permission at Bram Towers, 519 E. First Street, Sanford. Bram Towers is one of the tallest structures in the area.

AMT protests county ambulance contract

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The American Medical Transport ambulance company has protested the county's decision last week to award an ambulance contract to Atlantic Ambulance Service to lower rates.

AMT attorney Steven Bechtel, in a letter received by the county Monday afternoon, wrote the county's ambulance service specifications were vague and "deprived (commissioners) of information needed to make a valid comparison of proposals."

But county purchasing director David Galmor said this morning because the protest was filed four business days after the Nov. 27 commission meeting, he will recommend to County Attorney Bob McMillan that it not be considered. The county's purchasing ordinance requires bid protests be filed within two business days after the alleged discrepancy is discovered.

Commissioners decided to award the exclusive service contract to Atlantic last week after reviewing rates that show Atlantic's 1991 rates would be lower than AMT's current rates. Much of the discussion revolved around whether both companies could operate in the county under the county's exclusive ambulance service contract for the unincorporated areas.

The issue was critical to the financial health of both companies last week because officials said non-emergency transportation of patients was the source of their profit.

Atlantic president Stuart Temkin argued under a state definition of ambulances, his company would be the only operating vehicles with advanced life support equipment. AMT vice president Trace Skeen argued their ambulances would still be allowed to operate to carry stable patients between hospitals or from home to a nursing home as long as the ALS equipment was not used.

County attorney Bob McMillan concluded only vehicles without ALS equipment would be allowed to co-exist with Atlantic during the commission's Nov. 27 meeting.

Based on McMillan's decision, AMT wrote county officials in a letter received Nov. 30 that they could offer rates lower than Atlantic's. Commissioners should reconsider their decision, Bechtel wrote.

CALNO meeting cancelled

LONGWOOD — Mayor Hank Hardy, who serves as chairman of CALNO, the council of local governments in Seminole County, has advised the membership that the Dec. 5 meeting will be cancelled.

Hardy said he had checked with several members of the organization, and drew the conclusion that it would be in the best interests to cancel the meeting. He cited as the major reasons the busy holiday season plus the rush to complete various projects in the member cities before the end of this year.

With this month's cancellation, the next regular meeting of CALNO is Jan. 2, to be held in Lake Mary City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd., Lake Mary.

Christmas fete in Longwood ends tonight

From staff reports

LONGWOOD — The momentum from Saturday's Christmas parade in downtown Longwood continues today with the observance of "Christmas in Olde Longwood."

The two-day event, sponsored by the Central Florida Society for Historic Preservation, began yesterday and resumes tonight at 7 p.m. at Christ Episcopal Church, 151 W. Church Ave., with lessons and carols, followed by a typical Christmas turkey and ham dinner, with dessert, at the historic Bradlee-McIntyre House, 130 W. Warren Ave., immediately following caroling at the church.

Tickets for the event are $13.50 per person and are available at Browsers Barn, 150 W. Jessup Ave., in downtown Longwood.

The Christmas spirit was also alive at city hall last night.

Trophies for winning entries in Saturday's Christmas parade were awarded at the Longwood city commission meeting last night. Mary Volkening, who served as parade chairman, was awarded a certificate of appreciation for her service.

Correction

Three stories in last week's Sanford Herald incorrectly included the address of Bernice Lawrence, who lives at 1611 Peach Ave., Sanford.

A homicide victim was found at 1610 Peach Ave. Another story incorrectly stated Lawrence's sons were arrested at her residence. The two were arrested at the police station.

Tortured record of human rights

In 1985, a massive earthquake toppled the attorney general's headquarters in Mexico City and revealed its grisly secrets. In the trunks of two cars found in the rubble were the bodies of three prisoners and their Mexican attorney. They had been tortured to death.

Police torture is routine in Mexico. It is often inflicted to extract confessions. But the graphic proof amid the government ruins galvanized people's discontent.

It energized a fledgling human rights movement and triggered a "social earthquake," said Mariclaire Acosta, a prominent Mexican activist.

Today, Acosta's non-governmental group, the Mexican Commission for the Defense and Promotion of Human Rights, is one of 53 such organizations in that country. Many of them are grass-roots responses by villagers fed up with police abuse.

To his credit, Mexican President Carlos Salinas de Gortari has allowed these groups to speak out. In fact, his government seems to react to the pressure and criticism.

His administration created the National Commission on Human Rights, described in its literature as "an example of the Mexican government's commitment to accord the highest priority to individual and social rights."

Recently, Salinas proposed reforms that would prohibit state and federal judicial police from interrogating suspects and prevent criminal cases from being based entirely on confessions.

Critics say the judicial police have been granted too much power in the Mexican justice system. The judicial police are the only agencies allowed to investigate criminal charges.

Under Salinas' proposal, questioning of suspects would be carried out by attorney's from the public prosecutor's office, not police. Any confession could only be made with a defense attorney present. Suspects are presently not allowed an attorney until after they are formally charged with a crime. By that time, a confession has often already been extracted.

This sounds good. But will it work? Or is it just "damage control," as Acosta describes it? After all, torture has been against the law in Mexico since 1821. It still flourishes, and so does assassination, which seems to be on the rise despite the growing uproar over human rights violations. Acosta says 100 cases of politically motivated murder have been documented since 1986, including the assassination of attorney Norma Corona, a human rights activist in the state of Sinaloa.

Salinas is sitting on a powder keg. He knows all the right things to say, but he has yet to deliver on many of his promises, leaving people frustrated and disillusioned.

If he can enforce his anti-torture proposals, it would be a step toward restoring the people's confidence. Fine words alone won't persuade them. They need a sign that their president is in control — and willing to stamp out government terrorism.

Capitalism's specter

A glittering diplomatic conference in Paris signals the end of the Cold War and the beginning of a new era of peace in Europe.

But, as the head of state of 34 countries gathered for a final banquet in the Hall of Mirrors at Versailles, it was not a triumph of diplomacy so much as the down-to-earth collapse of the economic system of the Warsaw Pact countries that was responsible for the new era. Karl Marx preached economic determinism, holding that economic forces were the main agents of historical change.

The best evidence for his theory is the present situation in the Soviet Union and what has happened in Eastern Europe in the last year. The totalitarian socialist governments in the Kremlin and its satellite allies seemed impregnable, protected by an immense security and military apparatus, but they have been brought down, or in the case of the Soviet Union, brought low, simply because they could not feed and clothe and shelter their people.

The causal connection between the bread and vodka lines in Moscow and the ceremonies in Paris is clear and direct. The Cold War ended when the hungry, threadbare Marxists surrendered. The best symbol of the West's triumph is a supermarket. A specter is haunting Europe, the specter of capitalism.

Time for the truth on Gulf crisis

OK, let's get serious about the crisis in the Persian Gulf. I. Although I personally believe a military operation is the only solution to the problems presented by Iraq under Saddam Hussein, realism compels the recognition that the air is going out of that balloon pretty fast. The American people have not been effectively sold on the necessity for an attack (see below), and the Democrats who control Congress are prepared to use Congress' undeniable constitutional power to declare war (Article I, Section 8) to keep George Bush on a short leash.

They are too shrewd, of course, to reject all use of military force outright. That would enable Bush to pull back our troops and blame Congress for the consequences (see below). But they will drag their feet, take care to pose as More Peace-Loving Than Thou, and make sure that Bush gets the full blame for every American casualty if and when hostilities break out. Under such conditions, Mr. Bush may well be unwilling to order an attack.

II. Mr. Bush did a fine job of lining up world support for a boycott, and even for an attack on Iraq. But he has been far less successful, because inarticulate and inconsistent, in explaining the need for a military operation to the American people.

As originally stated, our aim was to defend the Saudi oil fields, to keep Hussein from acquiring a grip on Middle Eastern oil that he could use to precipitate a deep depression throughout the Western world. That aim was valid, and in America's and the world's highest interests. But unless U.S. forces are to be stationed in Saudi Arabia permanently, the only way to keep Iraq from taking over when we leave is to defeat it militarily first.

But White House spin-controllers evidently feared the American people would deem such considerations grubby. (Who wants to "die for Exxon," or for "a few cents at the pump"?) So pretty soon the president began describing our goal more idealistically, as "detering aggression" — as if we could or should make it our business.

Finally, administration spokesmen began to argue that Hussein simply cannot be allowed to construct nuclear weapons. That is true enough, and is a consideration that must have been on many minds at the National Security Council for years — above all in recent months, as Hussein's real aims and attitude grew clearer. But it sounded like (and was) an afterthought, when used to explain the presence of 400,000 Americans in the Arabian desert.

III. Given the present structure and dynamics of American society, there may well never be an occasion for the use of military force that won't be resisted, tooth and claw, by a hard left longing for "two, three, many Vietnams" — each ending in American humiliation and defeat. If enough elements of the right join the left in that sickening enterprise this time, America may lose its will to prevail — not only for now, but forever.

As Winston Churchill warned the British people after Munich: "We have passed an awful milestone in our history. ... The terrible words have for the time being been pronounced against the Western democracies: 'Thou art weighed in the balance and found wanting.'"

They are too shrewd, of course, to reject all use of military force outright.

The singing behind the curtain

BOSTON — Just weeks before the country had lost its taste for Milli Vanilli, I found myself speaking in a cavernous convention center in Toronto. I was dwarfed less by the room than by the image projected onto the screen beside me like a giant replica of the original. The original me.

The small me, the real me, was talking to the audience. But the audience was by and large watching the big me, the video me talking simultaneously on the screen. A roomful of people had come to hear or see someone live and then stayed to watch on TV.

The larger-than-life image was more arresting than the diminutive and real thing. Which was lip-synching?

I was not entirely innocent of the new technology of entertainment before this day. Nor was I unaware of its power to amplify, enlarge, improve and finally distort human reality. This split-screen split-reality is a staple of national political conventions and sporting events.

But I'd never experienced it firsthand. On the plane home, I felt as if I'd barely been there. I might as easily have sent a videotape.

I raise this because of what technology has done to authenticity. It has changed both the reality and the perception. It doesn't always hit us until Milli Vanilli melts down and we discover that the singing duo did nothing more with their mouths than move their lips. But it's all around us.

In 1939, Hollywood offered a warning of sorts in "The Wizard of Oz." At the end of that movie, the exposed wizard desperately ordered Dorothy and her friends to: "PAY NO ATTENTION TO THE MAN BEHIND THE CURTAIN."

The man behind the curtain was no wizard at all. He was an ordinary person merely "enhancing his image" with an amplifier and assorted machinery.

That was a parable for the entertainment industry even then. In 1952, in "Singing in the Rain," Gene Kelly pulled another curtain to show the audience the voice behind his lip-synching co-star. But 14 years later, when Audrey Hepburn lip-synched through "My Fair Lady," nobody cried foul.

Gradually, the audience has obeyed the would-be Wizard. We pay no attention to the machinery. We prefer the illusion.

In the editing room, people sing and dance effortlessly without a single short breath. In the recording studio, voices are enhanced and warped. On the synthesizer, anyone can play the saxophone. On tour, the stars lip-synch to their studio tapes. We are told Madonna does it. New Kids did it. Janet Jackson too.

Behind high-tech art and artificial is a pressure to create something larger than life, better than best, an ever-improved version. It is a pressure that can lead from illusion to trickery, from lip-synching to fraud, from being entertained to being duped. It comes from dissatisfaction with the limits of what is real and what is humanly possible.

The people who created Milli Vanilli wanted someone who looked like Rob Pilatus and Fabrice Morvan and sounded like Johnny Davis, Charles Shaw and Brad Howell, who reportedly did the singing. So, like genetic engineers, they grafted the voices of one onto the bodies of another. It is as if they had heard Barbara Streisand and seen Julia Roberts and then created a composite.

Talent inflation drives entertainment. If the image is bigger, it is also better than the real thing. The star has been replaced by the superstar. But the superstar — producer, writer, director, dancer, singer, sex symbol in one — can only be sustained by the synchronizer and the plastic surgeon. How often is a star told that he looks smaller in person?

We pay no attention to the machinery. We prefer the illusion.

This passion for the larger-than-life size is not exclusively the product of movies and music. Politicians are also produced to the hilt. A candidate goes around the country reciting another writer's script. A businessman goes on the author's circuit with his ghostwritten memoirs. A sports star performs his broad jump with steroids. A beauty contestant struts her stuff with perfectly formed silicone.

The expectations of the audience, our well-trained preference for the large-screen hi-tech version over the human scale, has led to more than one act of creative larceny. This time, the fraud has come on a stage as wide as the Grammy and a scale as broad as seven million records.

But the warning is as old as Dorothy's solid Kansas sense: Pay More Attention to the Man Behind the Curtain.

Saudis say Iraq conspired in war

WASHINGTON — Is the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait the first step in a larger plot by Iraq, Yemen and Jordan to carve up Saudi Arabia and its oil among themselves? Saudi Arabian leaders firmly believe it's true, and that is the compelling reason behind their secret pressure on President Bush to get into a war soon and get it over quickly.

"The Plot," as the Saudis call it, is detailed in highly classified Central Intelligence Agency reports. The Saudis believe the plan was for Iraq to take Kuwait and the northeastern oil fields of Saudi Arabia. Yemen would get a part of southern Saudi Arabia that the Yemenis have long claimed as their rightful land. Jordan would regain the western Hijaz region including the holy cities of Mecca and Medina. That region was ruled by the ancestors of Jordan's King Hussein until the House of Saud booted them out. The invaders would let the Saudis keep the middle region of the Arabian Peninsula where there is little oil or anything else of value.

Like all conspiracy theories, there are elements of truth to this one. Until U.S. forces moved in, Yemen was perfectly capable of taking a chunk out of Saudi Arabia. The Saudi army is slightly larger than Yemen's, but the Saudi troops are preoccupied on their northern border with Iraq and Kuwait. Yemen, south of Saudi Arabia, could have expected a cakewalk if it invaded. The Saudis have a superior air force compared to Yemen, but the CIA reports note that Iraq's Saddam Hussein sent a squadron of Iraqi MiG-13s to Yemen just before his invasion of Kuwait.

Since the invasion, Yemen and Jordan have leaned toward Saddam. Yemen abstained in U.N. Security Council resolutions condemning Iraq. Similar abstentions in Arab League meetings are interpreted by the Saudis not as neutrality, but as proof of The Plot. In mid-September, Saudi Arabia ordered Yemeni business owners in Saudi Arabia to find Saudi partners for their businesses, or leave the country. Since then, more than a million Yemenis have sold their businesses and left Saudi Arabia. The CIA reports say the Saudis believe that Yemen's reward for joining The Plot would have been the three southwestern provinces of Saudi Arabia that were part of Yemen until they were annexed by the Saudis in 1934. One of those provinces, Najran, is rich in oil, which the impoverished Yemen desperately needs.

The difference between the "haves" in Saudi Arabia and the "have nois" in Yemen is vast and has bred animosity between the two nations. The Saudi per capita income is more than 10 times that of Yemen. Saudi Arabia has a superior education system while as many as 90 percent of Yemenis are reportedly illiterate. Whether or not Yemen cut a deal to slice up Saudi Arabia is now moot with the presence of U.S. troops in the region. Now Yemen is asking the United Nations for $1.6 billion in compensation for abiding by the sanctions against its old friend Iraq. As long as Saudi Arabia believes The Plot was real, Yemen cannot count on the continued foreign aid it was getting from the Saudis.

The CIA does not know whether or not to believe The Plot, but if President Bush gets desperate to rally support for a continued military presence in Saudi Arabia, stories of a larger conspiracy will come in handy. IT AIN'T OVER — Congressional Democratic leaders will try to force a new civil rights bill on President Bush next year. They have made a commitment to the Congressional Black Caucus.

Like all conspiracy theories, there are elements of truth to this one.

'Home Alone' holds at No. 1 at movie theater box offices

United Press International

HOLLYWOOD — "Home Alone" cleaned up at the nation's box office for the third consecutive week, humbling its competition with nearly $70 million in ticket sales since its release.

Written and produced by John Hughes, "Home Alone" grossed $14.4 million at 1,342 screens over the weekend and is moving toward crossing the $100-million benchmark by the end of the year, with a gross of $66.8 million in its first 17 days for Twentieth Century Fox.

Only 25 other movies in Hollywood's history have led the box-office for three straight weeks.

The film, starring Macaulay Culkin as a 9-year-old boy forgotten at home while his family jets off for vacation, fended off a strong challenge from the debut weekend of "Misery," the latest Stephen King book to come to the screen.

"Misery," starring James Caan as a writer beset by a deranged fan, had plenty of company with a $10.1 million gross at 1,244 screens.

"Home Alone" and "Misery" may face strong competition this weekend from Warner Bros.' debut of "The Rookie," starring Clint Eastwood and Charlie Sheen.

Meanwhile, "Three Men and a Little Lady," Disney's sequel to its hit "Three Men and a Cradle," fell from No. 2 to No. 3 with an $8 million weekend at 1,282 screens. The film, which boasts stars Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg and Ted Danson, has grossed $29.6 million in 12 days.

The critically acclaimed American Indian epic "Dances With Wolves" caught $7 million at 1,053 screens over the weekend, as it stayed in fourth place in its second week in wide release for Orion. The three-hour film, starring and directed by Kevin Costner, has grossed $24.4 million in its 24 days of release.

Fox's "Predator 2" dropped off sharply, scoring just $4.1 million at 1,978 screens in its second weekend after a solid opening weekend. The sci-fi flick, starring Danny Glover and Gary Busey fighting an unstoppable alien, has grossed $19.7 million in 12 days.

Sylvester Stallone's "Rocky V" stumbled from fifth to sixth with a less-than-punchy $3.3 million weekend at 2,053 screens, off sharply from its first two weeks. The film, supposedly the last of the "Rocky" series, has grossed $32.1 million in 17 days.

Still another sequel, Disney's animated "The Rescuers Down Under," came in seventh with $2 million in its third weekend at 1,237 screens.

Romance-mystery "Ghost," the year's biggest hit, floated from No. 7 to No. 8, grossing $1.9 million at 1,828 screens. "Ghost," one of only 10 films to post four No. 1 weekends, has grossed $198 million in 21 weeks for Paramount and should top the $200 million mark later this week.

Universal's "Child's Play 2," the No. 1 flick just three weeks ago, came in ninth with a $1.3 million gross at 1,439 screens over the weekend.

Columbia's thriller "Jacob's Ladder" rounded out the top 10 with a $825,970 take at 1,094 screens for a 31-day gross of $23.7 million.

The top 10 weekend gross, total gross and weeks in release:

1. "Home Alone," $14.4 million, $66.8 million, 3 weeks.
2. "Misery," $10.1 million, 1 week.
3. "Three Men and a Little Lady," $8 million, $29.6 million, 2 weeks.
4. "Dances With Wolves," $7 million, $24.4 million, 4 weeks.
5. "Predator 2," $4.1 million, $19.7 million, 2 weeks.
6. "Rocky V," $3.3 million, $32.1 million, 3 weeks.
7. "The Rescuers Down Under," $2 million, $11.6 million, 3 weeks.
8. "Ghost," $1.9 million, $198 million, 21 weeks.
9. "Child's Play 2," $1.3 million, $24.5 million, 4 weeks.
10. "Jacob's Ladder," $825,970, $23.7 million, 5 weeks.

Traffic

mph on the road with little traffic and few stop signs or traffic lights will take about 25 minutes, said Jerry McCollum, county engineer.

With slightly more traffic the LOS drops to "B" and the same trip takes 30 minutes. But at LOS "C," the same trip takes about 45 minutes, McCollum said. At LOS "D," that same trip has now increased to an hour at an average speed of about 20 mph. At LOS "E," it will take the commuter 90 minutes to creep along for 15 miles at an average speed of 15 mph.

At LOS "F," traffic is stop-and-go, but, McCollum said, some interesting traffic things begin to occur. McCollum said the amount of traffic begins to decline as more motorists begin seeking other routes, taking U.S. Highway 17-92 instead of I-4 for example. Also, the peak "drive time" hours of 7 to 9 a.m. and 4 to 6 p.m. begin to lengthen as more workers begin to leave for work earlier or leave work later to avoid congestion. As a result of LOS "F" conditions on one road, more roads become congested for longer periods of time.

Commissioners may have to accept some LOS "F," however. Through policy decisions, commissioners have said several roads, including Red Bug Lake Road, will not be widened beyond a certain number of lanes regardless of how traffic builds up on them.

When asked for the staff's recommendation for those roads by commissioner Fred Streetman Monday, county principal planner Frances Chandler was reluctant to answer. The staff recommendation to widen Red Bug Lake Road to six lanes two years ago brought scorn from commissioners Pat Warren and Jennifer Kelley, who had made campaign pledges to restrict the busy road to four lanes.

County consultant Roger Nelwender rescued Chandler by saying, "That's a difficult position for staff to be in." Nelwender said the county's Program Review Committee appointed by commissioners recommended allowing the LOS on those roads to drop to 20 percent below their "D" level or "E" level if they fall in a core area such as Red Bug Lake Road.

When that minimum level is reached, the committee recommended either a parallel road be widened to accommodate spillover traffic or to block future development in the area.

she said. "I see this as a marvelous development and all people will benefit from it."

In response to the heavy influx of paving requests suggested by Lovestrand, Perry said, "We should do it on a first come first served basis, but let's do as much as we can."

Lovestrand continued to object to the change, saying that some people who live on dirt streets should be allowed to keep them that way if they wanted to without being forced into having them paved.

Commissioner Gary Hefter, while agreeing that people who don't want their streets to be paved should not be forced into it, made the motion to accept the change. He added an amendment that the commission establish a priority list to handle requests from citizens requesting paving.

The final vote was 4 to 1 for approval of the change with Lovestrand casting the lone negative vote, saying, "It's too high and I can't vote for it, especially while the city is facing financial problems."

The cost of street paving to be paid by property owners is spread out over a 10-year taxing period.

Milli Vanilli on Grammy ballot

United Press International

BURBANK, Calif. — The National Academy of Recording Arts & Sciences has mailed out ballots listing the disgraced Milli Vanilli on the 1990 Grammy Awards ballot but their votes will not be counted.

The first-round ballots, which will be used to select the actual nominees for the awards, were printed and mailed to 6,000 voting members of the academy before it was revealed that Rob Pilatus and Fabrice Morvan did not sing on the album, "Girl You Know It's True," which won them a Grammy as best new artists last year.

However, their song "Blame It on the Rain" is on the ballot for song of the year, a category that honors the songwriter — in this case Dianne Warren — and still might be included in the voting.

The academy's awards and nominations committee was expected to issue a recommendation to the organization's board of trustees about whether to include the son on the final ballot.

Academy officials said no letter will be sent to Grammy voters to inform them of the eligibility problems.

The duo won in the best new artist category last year, but the award was revoked on Nov. 19.

'Suicide doctor' charged with murder

United Press International

PONTIAC, Mich. — Dr. Jack Kevorkian has been charged with first-degree murder for helping a woman with Alzheimer's disease commit suicide with his "suicide machine," a prosecutor announced Monday.

Janet Adkins, 54, of Portland, Ore., died in Kevorkian's van in a rural Oakland County park on June 4 after pressing a button on his device that released a lethal drug into her system.

"Dr. Kevorkian was the primary and legal cause of Janet Adkins' death. He cannot avoid his criminal culpability by the clever use of a switch," Oakland County Prosecutor Richard Thompson said at a news conference.

Kevorkian, anticipating Monday's announcement, said late last week he does not fear criminal prosecution.

"Send me to jail," he said. "Put me in solitary if you want. At least I'll be with honest people when I'm by myself."

Thompson said he would base his case against Kevorkian on a 1920 Michigan Supreme Court opinion that held that a husband who mixed and placed poison near his wife at her request so that she could drink it was guilty of first-degree murder when she died as a result of drinking the poison.

To date, the case has not been reversed by the Michigan Supreme Court, nor has it been revised by the Michigan Legislature, Thompson said.

"I have a constitutional duty to faithfully enforce the laws of this state as enacted by the legislature and interpreted by the court, regardless of the tragic and emotional aspects of this case," he said. "Under our constitution, the legislature is empowered to declare what is a crime. And as a prosecutor, I have no legitimate authority to ignore or stipulate away duly enacted laws."

Thompson said his investigation into the Adkins case led him to conclude that there was no reason for her to take her own life and no reason for Kevorkian to assist with the device he invented.

"Janet Adkins was not terminally ill or suffering pain," he said. "For me not to charge Dr. Kevorkian under these circumstances would be a corruption of the law and turn Oakland County into the suicide mecca of our nation.

"Dr. Jack Kevorkian is not above the law and if he wants to change the law, he should address the legislative branch of government. If physicians are to have a license to kill in addition to their license to heal, that license must come from the legislature, not the prosecutor."

Thompson's announcement came one day before trial was to begin in a civil case brought by his office in response to Adkins' death nearly six months earlier. Oakland County Circuit Judge Alice Gilbert is deciding whether to make permanent her temporary order barring Kevorkian from using his so-called suicide machine.

Kevorkian has insisted he has broken no laws and is convinced authorities are acting improperly in proceeding against him.

"They're making up their own laws as the court goes on," he said last week. "Even the Nazis went through the motions of legislating officially through a duly constituted government before they took court action. We're not even up to the Nazis' standards. How do you like those apples?"

Simultaneous with the Hugh O'Brien seminar in Florida, will be similar workshops in other states.

From each state and the District of Columbia, one male and one female representative will be chosen to attend the international leadership workshop next summer.

According to Davis, the seminar is led by business, industry and educational leaders from across the country.

The participants will "brainstorm" on various critical current issues, Davis said.

Townsend has been a Red Cross volunteer for the last two summers, teaching swimming and first aid.

"She doesn't limit herself to school activities," Davis said.

The Hugh O'Brien Foundation will pay Townsend's travel expenses to the spring seminar and to the international program this summer if she is chosen as a representative from the state.

The international seminars will be in Canada, in the Bahamas and in Mexico.

Paul Tremel Randy Morris, wife Laura, Judge Eaton David, Laurie Meador

Santa Claus paid a surprise visit to Lake Mary city hall commission chambers last night.

Lake Mary city hall festivities emphasize family involvement

By NICK PFEIFAU
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Newly installed Mayor Randy Morris said last night's city commission meeting was not only a happy occasion, but one of the most family-orientated official meetings ever held in that city.

The special called meeting last night actually had two purposes, swearing in ceremonies and the lighting of the city's Christmas tree.

Chief Circuit Judge O.H. Eaton conducted the swearing in ceremonies, first for Commissioners David Meador and Paul Tremel, who were opposed for re-election, then for Morris, who was elected mayor.

"It was a packed house," Morris said this morning, "and when they gave me a standing ovation, it really made me feel proud to be part of the city and its commission."

Following the swearing in, Tremel was chosen to serve as deputy mayor. Tremel had served in that post last year under Mayor Dick Fess. He then became acting mayor when Fess resigned to run for a county commission seat this summer.

"As the meeting continued," Morris said, "they had a barbershop quartet come in and entertain the audience. I don't think there has ever been a Lake Mary city commission meeting with anything like that," he said. "They even sang a song called 'Randy the Red-Nosed Reindeer.'"

While the quartet sang "Jingle Bells," Santa Claus made a guest appearance before the commission to the delight of many children in the audience.

Santa, kids and others turned on tree lights in park

The meeting then adjourned, and the crowd went outside for the official lighting of the tree, which, until this time, had remained in the darkened area of the amphitheater.

In discussing the event today, Morris said, "All the children finally saw the tree and ran down to it in the dark. My first official duty as mayor was to throw the switch to light up the tree and the railings which had been strung with lights."

He continued, "I threw the switch, and the railings lit up, but not the tree. I guess with the children all around the tree, someone accidentally pulled a plug or something." Morris said there were chuckles in the audience, and comments about Florida Power Corporation getting even with Lake Mary over the issue of burying power lines along Lake Mary Boulevard. The city and power company have been wrangling over legal ramifications of the city's demand that power lines be buried when Lake Mary Boulevard is widened.

"It only took a few minutes before we finally got everything lit up for the holidays," he said, "and it was a beautiful sight."

Morris will preside over his first regular commission meeting Thursday at 7 p.m. in the commission chambers at City Hall, 100 W. Lake Mary Blvd.

Quake prediction a dud, so far; media focus shakes up area

By DAN SHOMON Jr.
United Press International

The day a climatologist picked for his earthquake prediction in the midwestern United States came and went with the largest rumble generated by dozens of media trucks in one Missouri city.

But people who believed the forecast looked to Tuesday and Wednesday as days still possible for a giant seismic jolt.

Schools were closed in many districts in a seven-state area along the New Madrid Fault on Monday because New Mexico climatologist Iben Browning projected a 50 percent chance of a major quake striking within 48 hours of Dec. 3.

As a precaution, some schools will remain closed all or part of the rest of the week. "In this part of the country, we have to live with this fear the rest of our lives," said Virginia Fulton of Jackson, Mo. "The fault is not going to go away."

Dozens of school districts in Southern Illinois closed down, many because of pressure from parents who wanted to be with their children — just in case.

"I'm not sure the majority believe it, but the remote possibility led to the closings. The national press made it worse," said John Wilson, regional school superintendent of a four-county area of Illinois near the Indiana border.

Sentiments were much the same in Cape Girardeau, Mo. "We didn't just cancel them because we thought there would be a quake but because of the anxiety and apprehension that a lot of folks were feeling, and that was a genuine feeling," said Arthur Turner, superintendent of public schools in Cape Girardeau.

"We think we'll probably have a few people taking the whole week off but most people will be back in school Wednesday."

The New Madrid Fault stretches from Illinois to Mississippi, running through portions of Tennessee, Arkansas, Kentucky, Indiana and Missouri. Top earthquake experts insist there is no scientific basis to Browning's projection.

Media attention for the quake forecast has focused on New Madrid, Mo., a town of 3,300 near the predicted epicenter of the predicted temblor. Residents have registered mixed reactions, alternately scurrying to leave town, stocking up on supplies or throwing parties.

Vendors there hawked homemade T-shirts with the words: "It's my fault: New Madrid 1990." Regular patrons of Hap's Bar in New Madrid held an "earthquake watch" party beginning at dawn on Monday.

"This is the most famous little bar in the nation right now," said tavern owner Jack Haley.

Radio and television trucks from cities as far away as Fort Worth, Texas, Kansas City, Mo., and Louisville, Ky., filled the parking lot across from the New Madrid Chamber of Commerce.

In the city of Carbondale in Southern Illinois, City Manager Steve Hoffner let at least one fearful employee have the day off.

Jets crash on runway; Eight killed, 21 hurt

United Press International

ROMULUS, Mich. — A Northwest Airlines jet on a takeoff roll clipped another Northwest jet that had strayed onto the runway in heavy fog, causing the second airplane to burst into flames, authorities said. At least 8 people were killed and 21 others injured on the burning airplane.

A Northwest 727-200 jetliner thundering down the runway had just pulled its nose wheel off the ground when its right wing struck the tail end of a Northwest DC-9 that entered the runway in thick fog, authorities said.

The DC-9 erupted in flames and quickly became a charred hulk with most of the top of its passenger cabin burned away. The 727-200 landed immediately and its passengers suffered only minor injuries.

The 727-200 was traveling approximately 140 mph when it clipped the DC-9, which was standing still, aviation sources said.

Wayne County Executive Ed McNamara said thick fog reduced visibility at the time of the 1:45 p.m. collision. "Visibility was down very low," McNamara said. "I happened to be passing by the airport and commented on it. No question, weather was a factor."

The National Weather Service said visibility was one-quarter mile in the air and less on the ground.

House GOP retains leadership

By ROBERT SHEPARD
United Press International

WASHINGTON — House Republicans, preparing for the next session of Congress, re-elected their leadership team, including two who had to fight off determined efforts by challengers to oust them.

Rep. Guy Vander Jagt, R-Mich., was re-elected Monday as chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee in a 98-68 victory over Rep. Don Sundquist, R-Tenn., and Rep. Jerry Lewis, R-Calif., turned back a challenge by Rep. Carl Pursell, R-Mich., 98-64, to retain his No. 3 leadership post of Republican Conference chairman.

Others, including House Republican leader Robert Michel, of Illinois, were re-elected without opposition.

Democrats met later in the day to also organize for the 102nd Congress, which convenes Jan. 3. There were no contests for the leadership posts, however, and Speaker Thomas Foley, D-Wash., and all other incumbent leaders were retained by the Democrats.

As a result of the Nov. 6 election, the Democrats strengthened their hold on the House and will enjoy a 267-167 majority. One member, Rep. Bernard Sanders, of Vermont, was elected as an independent and was not expected to be a member of either party caucus. The challenge to Lewis was seen as a fallout from the recent battle over the budget deficit, in which Lewis supported the package of tax increases and spending cuts urged by President Bush. Pursell opposed that plan and his bid for the conference chairmanship was backed by conservative Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., the assistant GOP leader who publicly split with Bush over the budget.

Lewis was clearly angered that Gingrich would work against another member of the GOP leadership. After the vote he said the election "was somewhat of a disaster" for Gingrich and his allies "who have chosen from within the leadership to actively work against my candidacy."

Ireland installs first woman president

By PATRICK McQUAID
United Press International

DUBLIN, Ireland — Church bells and a 21-gun salute marked the inauguration Monday of Ireland's first woman president, Mary Robinson, who promised to represent "an open Ireland."

A Socialist-backed attorney was sworn in in Irish as the seventh president in the history of the republic in a largely military ceremony.

"The Ireland I shall be serving will be an open Ireland — open, tolerant and inclusive," Robinson said in a brief address in both English and in Irish.

She replaced Patrick Hillery, who has served for the past 17 years uncontested.

Robinson, 46, is Ireland's first president who did not come out of the conservative Fianna Fail party machinery. She served 20 years as a senator, formerly for the Labor Party, which she left in 1985 when it was part of a coalition government. She lost two elections for the lower house of the Irish Parliament.

Drawing on Celtic mythology, Robinson spoke at her inauguration of a spiritual fifth province that she hoped would be symbolic of her presidency. Old Ireland is divided into four political provinces, including Ulster, now part of the United Kingdom.

She promised to represent Irish emigrants abroad and suggested that the presidential home be the site of an annual "get together" for the 70 million people worldwide who claim Irish ancestry.

Robinson also said her tenure would be marked by "local community empowerment. It is time for the small to start believing again that it is beautiful."

What makes Spatters unique is that you can create your own wearable art.

Paint It...Spin It...Bake It...Wear It! You Are The Artist At Spatters.

Take a plain T-shirt, randomly apply brightly colored paint, give it a spin on a centrifuge, dust it liberally with glitter and bake it in a dryer for 10 minutes. It's the recipe for fashion's latest fad which can be found at Spatters located in the Lake Mary Centre (next to the General Cinema).

Spatters is owned and operated by Rick Voltoline and Lisa Henley. Most of the designs were created by Rick and Lisa. Spatters is open Monday 3:00-8:00, Tuesday-Thursday 12:00-8:00, Friday 12:00-7:00, Saturday 10:00-6:00, Sunday 1:00-4:00.

The appeal of Spatters wearable art is multiple.

- It's so simple that young children can do it, as well as adults.
- You can't make a mistake, because the spin process turns blobs into beauty marks.
- You feel creative, because you've done the design yourself and each one is unique.
- It's reasonably inexpensive — a T-shirt that's gone through the spin art process sells from $12.50 and up. The creative process works as follows: You pick the shirt, then create your own design or use one of Spatter's designs. One of the trained staff members will smooth and clamp your shirt to a special board. Then you trace your design onto the shirt using a special fabric pen. Apply paint to your design. Spin it on the Artwave machine and bake it in the special Artwave dryer. You have just created your own original designer T-shirt!

Spatters also encourages spin art parties which have proved to be an extremely popular birthday event for persons of all ages. Spatters has a private party room available with special discounted rates for groups of 6 or more. Please call us at 333-0067 for more information.

Spatters also carries leggings, pants, shorts, belts, earrings and hair accessories to help you create your own designer wardrobe. We also have gift certificates. A Spatters' gift certificate allows that "special" person the fun of doing-it-themselves!

The fun never ends at Spatters. We're outrageous, we're contagious — we're the hottest new thing in town! So come take a spin with us!

Bush: hemisphere harmony visions

By NORMAN D. SANDLER
United Press International

BRASILIA, Brazil — President Bush was in the second day of a 12,000-mile South American tour Tuesday, offering visions of a harmonious democratic future for a hemisphere that has yet to expunge all the vestiges of a turbulent past.

Bush was headed from the largest country in South America to the smallest after a rebellion by military officers in Argentina distracted some of symbolic focus of a five-country swing to promote political and economic change.

It was a trip planned and promised for some time and one to which Bush was said by aides to have attached a high degree of personal interest. But as he was headed Tuesday for Uruguay, the domestic problems of his hosts and the violence in Argentina served as reminders that the historic transition that has swept Latin America in recent years has yet to be fully consolidated.

U.S. officials tried to discount the significance of the fighting in Argentina between government and dissident troops, though White House press secretary Marlin Fitzwater acknowledged it appeared intended to embarrass President Carlos Menem with Bush due in Buenos Aires on Wednesday.

"It is not a large-scale uprising," Deputy Secretary of State Lawrence Eagleburger asserted to reporters. "And again, my argument would be that fundamentally, democracy in Argentina is working and when this is over, it'll demonstrate the roots

Our challenge is to hew out of a wilderness of competing interests a new opportunity in the Americas.

—President Bush

of democracy in Argentina are fairly deep." Bush ruled out any immediate change in his travel plans to avoid the appearance of alarm and reinforce what Fitzwater described as "his confidence in President Menem and his support for democracy in Argentina." Privately, officials monitored the situation.

In the absence of a major change for the worse, Bush went about his mission of selling Latin leaders on his notion of a new hemispheric order governed by "mutual respect, candor and collective will" and driven by free trade and economic development, which topped the agenda for talks Tuesday with Uruguayan President Luis Alberto Lacalle.

"I truly believe we are approaching a new dawn in the New World," Bush said Monday in a speech to the Brazilian Congress. "Our thinking must be bold, our will resolute. Our challenge now is to hew out of a wilderness of competing interests a new kind of opportunity in the Americas."

In Brazil, Bush had high praise for a country that ended 21 years of military rule in 1985 and the struggle by youthful President Fernando Collor de Mello to revamp an economy burdened by recession, inflation, protectionism and a $119 billion foreign debt, largest in the Third World.

Just as Menem has faced problems from the Argentine military, Collor has seen the progress of his economic recovery program stalled not just without but within by business and bureaucratic sectors that have profited from the inefficiencies and inequities of the past and would lose from modernization.

Bush offered Brazil, like the other four nations on his itinerary, a future of opportunity governed by "mutual respect, candor and collective will."

His pledge that the United States would support that transition "every step of the way" was backed by no new promises beyond the still-evolving trade, investment and debt relief plan he announced in Washington on June 27. But one of his objectives on this trip is to help leaders like Collor buy the time that will be needed to escape the legacy of dictatorship and state control, which is why he emphasized the need for patience and even sacrifice if reform is to succeed.

"In the short run, economic change will be difficult and painful for many," he said at a luncheon for Brazilian business leaders. "But the long-term results - a growing economy, sound currency - will lead to new opportunities and a better quality of life for all the people of Brazil and indeed for the rest of the hemisphere."

The faces will change but the themes will remain the same as Bush rounds out his trip with stops in Uruguay, Argentina, Chile and Venezuela, selling his "Enterprise for the Americas" initiative as a formula for expanded economic interaction.

Argentine revolt equais stormy Latin democracy

By DANIEL DROSDOFF
UPI Senior Editor

Analysis

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina — A surprise military rebellion in Argentina just two days before a scheduled visit by President Bush is a sad reminder that South America has a long way to go before it consolidates its newly won democracies.

President Carlos Menem, in 17 months in office, adopted policies that generally pleased Washington, but now the stability of his government is in grave danger.

It shows that at least four of the countries Bush is visiting — Chile, Uruguay, Brazil in addition to Argentina — could suffer a military uprising at any moment for just about any reason.

In 1980, these four nations were in the solid control of military regimes. They will not change their ways overnight and Monday's uprising in Argentina strikes that fact home.

Former President Raul Alfonsín, the leader who re-established democracy in Argentina after seven-and-a-half years of military rule, found out how vulnerable he was when he had to quell three military revolts, one in 1987 and two in 1988.

Although loyalist officers managed to put down the rebellions, Alfonsín was forced to grant the military a pay raise, reshuffle his command and then grant amnesty to most of the officers accused of the torture and murder of 9,000 political prisoners in the 1970s.

Menem tried to put the military crisis behind him in October 1989 pardoning all the hundreds of officers and non-commissioned officers who participated in the revolts against Alfonsín.

He also extended the amnesties granted officers accused of human rights crimes so that today only five such officers remain in jail.

The latest military insurgency demonstrated that Menem's policy of appeasement didn't work. Perhaps nothing could have worked.

Cheney: 'We can't delay indefinitely'

By ELIOT BRENNER
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Defense Secretary Dick Cheney says he does not think sanctions alone will work against Iraq's Saddam Hussein, and told congressional critics who want delays that stalling could be dangerous.

Cheney, delivering a blunt administration message meant both for Congress and for Saddam, told the Senate Armed Services Committee Monday that time can weaken the international coalition arrayed against Iraq, and that further damage could occur to politically and economically fragile nations, permitting Iraq to bolster its military strength.

Asked by Sen. Carl Levin, D-Mich., if it were more likely than not that sanctions could work in a year or two, Cheney replied:

"My personal view is that given the nature of that regime, given Saddam Hussein's brutality to his own people, given his very tight control over that society, his ability to allocate resources for the military, their ability to produce their own food, basically, inside, that he can ride them out."

"Those who would have us rely indefinitely on economic sanctions alone need to face the possibility that they will fail to achieve our aims. Such a failure will have very serious consequences and those consequences must also be faced," said Cheney.

President Bush, in Brazil Monday, noted the economic impact the crisis is having on the economies of nations like Brazil and Czechoslovakia, making the point that many nations are suffering because of the crisis.

"That's why when people say to me that this can go on and on, I say no," Bush said in prepared remarks, ones designed like Cheney's to increase the pressure on Iraq and make clear to a restive Congress seeking delays why the administration is pushing forward.

The administration message did not sway a key senator, Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee.

He told Cheney, "It is my feeling that we should be patient in applying military force, that we should give the sanctions an opportunity to weaken Saddam Hussein, so that if it becomes necessary to use the option of military force we will perhaps have saved some lives of American boys. ... I'm concerned that we don't have a consensus here in this country that would support a war."

Cheney also said that he believes that it is within Bush's power to commit U.S. forces to battle without first asking Congress.

"I do not believe the president requires any additional authority from Congress before committing U.S. forces to achieve our objectives in the Gulf. The president made it very clear that he wants to consult extensively with the Congress on the subject," said Cheney.

In a related matter, the Pentagon said late Monday that Cheney signed an order on Dec. 1 authorizing the call-up of an additional 63,000 military reserve and National Guard troops.

Are you open to some energy-saving ideas?

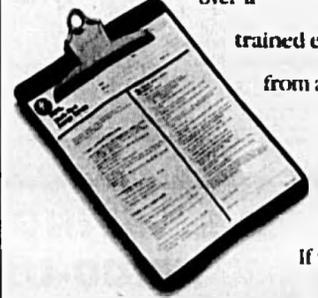

We don't want to put words in your mouth, but most likely the answer is "yes."

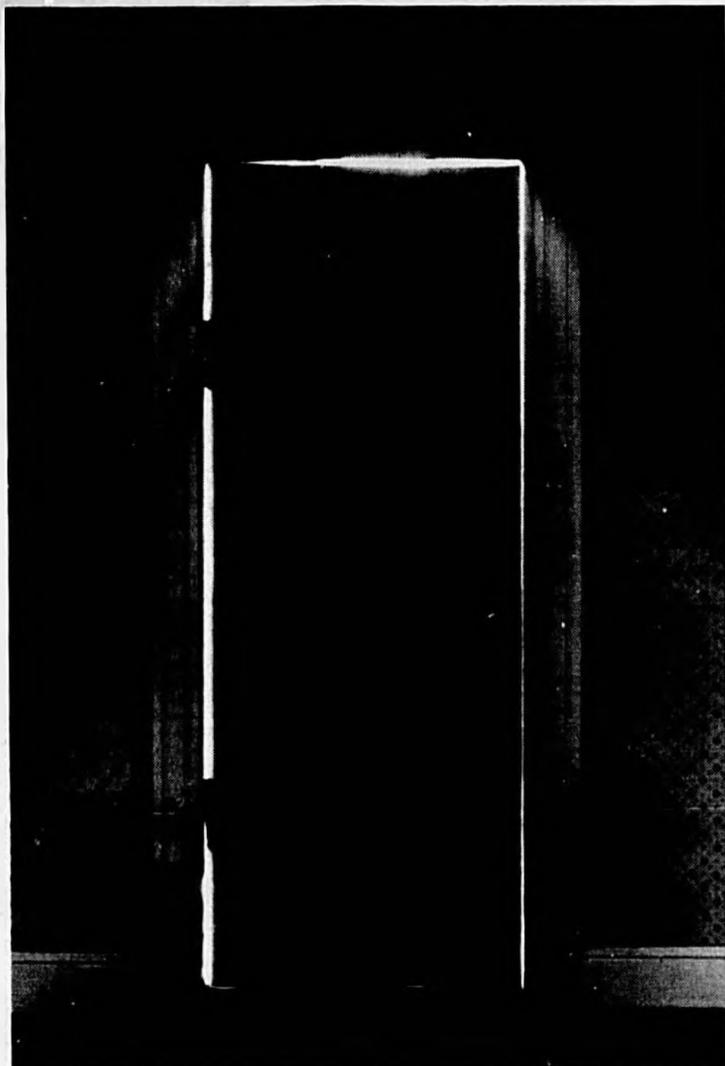

Even a house that seems to be energy-efficient probably has hidden cracks and gaps where air could be escaping, driving up your cooling or heating costs.

FPL's free, no-obligation Home Energy Survey is designed to find those openings.

Call us for an appointment, and we'll send over a trained energy specialist to inspect your home from attic to baseboards to look for leaks. We'll also check to see if insulation for your water heater or a more efficient air conditioner can help. If we do uncover problems, we'll suggest easy ways to correct them.

While we're there, we'll also tell you if you qualify for cash incentives from FPL on other energy-saving improvements—things like window treatment, ceiling insulation, and high-efficiency water heating systems.

The sooner you call for your free survey, the sooner you'll start saving energy.

If you're looking for a way to help hold down your electric bill, this is the perfect opening.

10. Manatee CC (5-3) 16

Also receiving votes — Hillsborough CC (7-3) and Florida College (7-2).

COLLEGE HOOPS

FSU whallops Morgan State

TALLAHASSEE — Aubry Boyd scored 17 points to lead four Florida State players in double figures and the Seminoles (2-1) led by as many as 48 points Monday night en route to an 89-48 drubbing of Morgan State.

The Golden Bears fell to 0-4.

Bulls cruise to win

TAMPA — Radenko Dobras scored 19 points and Gary Alexander added 16 points as South Florida (2-0) cruised to an 82-67 win over Bethune-Cookman Monday night.

Bethune-Cookman fell to 0-5 with the loss.

Southern outlasts Flagler

LAKELAND — Calvetti Pate scored 20 points, 13 of them in the second half, to lead Florida Southern to a 71-63 win over Flagler Monday.

Derek Flowers scored 15 points for Southern (5-0).

Flagler (6-4) got 20 points from Derrek Kegler.

ETSU crushes Eckerd

JOHNSON CITY, Tenn. — Jerry Pelphrey had a career-high 21 points and eight rebounds in East Tennessee State's 112-48 romp over Eckerd Monday night.

The 64-point margin broke the school record set in 1948 when East Tennessee beat Emory & Henry 112-58.

Eckerd (1-3), a Division II team, shot only 20 percent from the field during the first half. Division I East Tennessee (4-1) forced 28 Titan turnovers, 16 in the first half en route to a 51-17 lead at intermission.

PRO BASKETBALL

Knicks fire Jackson

PURCHASE, N.Y. — The New York Knicks, off to a slow start and laboring on offense, Monday fired Coach Stu Jackson and replaced him with veteran John MacLeod, the coach they sought two years ago.

The decision was announced by General Manager Al Bianchi, who was an assistant coach at Phoenix when MacLeod coached the Suns. Jackson is the first NBA coach to be dismissed this season.

MacLeod, whose ties with Bianchi go back more than a decade, will coach his first game with the Knicks Tuesday night, against Orlando at Madison Square Garden.

BASEBALL

Braves sign Pendleton

CHICAGO — Free agent third baseman Terry Pendleton Monday signed a four-year guaranteed contract with the Atlanta Braves, kicking off new general manager John Schuerholz's campaign to rebuild the team.

Financial terms of the deal were not released. Pendleton, 30 and a switch-hitter, batted .230 with six home runs and 58 RBI in 121 games last season for the St. Louis Cardinals. In his seven-year career, he has a .259 average, 44 homers and 442 RBI.

McGee goes to Giants

CHICAGO — The San Francisco Giants decided not to gamble on Brett Butler possibly becoming a second-look free agent and Monday signed Willie McGee to a $13 million, four-year contract.

McGee, 32, won his second National League batting title in 1990, hitting .335 in 125 games for the St. Louis Cardinals before an Aug. 29 trade to Oakland. The switch-hitter batted .274 in 25 games for the Athletics.

Taubensee an Athletic

Former Lake Howell star taken in draft by Oakland

United Press International

CHICAGO — Eddie Taubensee, a 1988 graduate of Lake Howell High School, was one of 12 players selected Monday in baseball's minor-league draft.

Taubensee was one of two Cincinnati Reds farm hands taken in the draft by the Oakland Athletics. The Montreal Expos also selected two players.

Taubensee, a left-handed hitting catcher, batted .259 with 16 homers and 62 RBI this season.

A player taken in this draft must be protected on the 40-man major-league roster or be sent back to his previous club.

The Athletics, who had the last pick in the Rule 5 draft by virtue of having the best record in 1990, also selected right-handed pitcher Joseph Turek in addition to Taubensee, both off the Nashville roster. Turek was 13-6 with a 2.34 ERA and 154 strikeouts.

The Expos picked first baseman-outfielder Nikko Riesgo, who hit .298 last year at Class A Port St. Lucie. In the first round, and left-handed pitcher Greg McCarthy, who had 67 strikeouts in 59 innings at Class A Clearwater, in the second round. Both were on the Scranton minor-league roster.

Outfielder Patrick Howell was the first selection, chosen by Minnesota off the New York Mets' Tidewater list. He hit .264 and stole 79 bases at Columbia in the South Atlantic League.

Houston followed, taking right-handed pitcher Dean Wilkins, who was 6-2 with a 3.70 ERA and 11 saves, from the Des Moines roster. Wilkins appeared in seven games with the Chicago Cubs.

Milwaukee tabbed pitcher Randy Vann, 3-5 with a 3.43 ERA, from Edmonton, and San Diego took right-handed Frank Seminara, who was 16-8 with a 1.90 ERA.

Cleveland drafted outfielder Michael Huff, a .325 hitter, off Albuquerque's roster, and the New York Mets went for left-handed Douglas Simons from Portland. Simons was 15-12 with a 2.54 ERA for the Twins' Class AA Orlando team. Toronto drafted right-hander Rickey Rhodes, who was 7-10 with a 3.73 ERA at Class A Greensboro and on the New York Yankee's Columbus roster, and the Chicago White Sox picked left-hander Brian Harrison from the Indianapolis roster. Harrison was traded to Montreal two weeks ago for right-handed pitcher John Costello, and last pitched for the San Diego Padres Class A team at Riverdale.

Players left unprotected could be selected for $50,000. The selection order was based on reverse order of finish during the 1990 season with each league alternating.

Last year, 18 players were selected in the draft and nine remained on major-league rosters all season, including Philadelphia's Sil Campusano, Minnesota's Shane Mack and Montreal's Bill Sampen.

Raiders try to extend win streak

By DEAN SMITH
 Herald sports writer

BRADENTON — The Seminole Community College men's basketball team will look to extend its winning streak to five games tonight when it travels to Bradenton to take on the Lancers of Manatee Community College starting at 7:30 p.m.

Tonight's game starts a four game road trip for the Raiders. Friday and Saturday they will play in the Brevard Christmas Tournament at Cocoa before traveling to Madison to take on North Florida Community College next Friday. SCC will finish its pre-Christmas schedule with a home game Dec. 15 against St. Petersburg Junior College.

This will be the second meeting between the Raiders and Lancers in the past week. Last Wednesday SCC handed Manatee an 89-78 loss at the Health and Physical Education Center.

Freshman forward Dennard Ford led the way for SCC with 20 points, eight rebounds and three assists. Also in double figures for the Raiders were Brian Nason (17 points), Darnell Robinson (16 points), Robert Moore (13 points) and John Mackey (12 points). Point guard Dexter Vanzant chipped in with a game high seven assists.

It was a good on the boards for SCC as Mackey (eight), Robinson (seven), Moore and Nason (five each) contributed to a 40-31 rebounding advantage over the much taller Manatee team.

The Lancers were led by Mark Salley with a game high 23 points.

Robert Moore, here scoring against Manatee, will need to have another good game against the Lancers tonight as the Raiders look to extend their winning streak to five games. Moore, Seminole high grad, had 13 points, five rebounds and five assists as SCC stopped Manatee 89-78 last week.

Brown's gymnasts claim third place

From staff reports

JACKSONVILLE — Brown's Gymnastics Central of Allamonte Springs came away with a third place finish in the Girl's Level V State Championships held at All-American Gymnastics of Jacksonville Sunday.

American Twisters of Pompano Beach came away with the state championship followed by LaFleur's of Largo and Brown's Central. Rounding out the top five were Palm Beach Sports Academy and Jacksonville Gymnastics Center. The Twisters won by over five points but the next four places were decided by less than one point.

Mikara Steinberg was the highest finishing individual performer for Brown's Central with a third place finish in the 11-year old group. Steinberg scored a 36 out of a possible 40 and still was only able to finish third. Sophia Carrero (nine-year olds) and Lani Higgins (10-year olds) both finished eighth in their age groups.

The event attracted 434 gymnasts from all over the state of Florida which was the largest number of entrants ever for the Level V state championships.

This was the last competition of the fall season for the Level V's but the Level VI girls will hold their state championships this weekend at Sun Country Gymnastics of Gainesville.

- Team results, Level V:
 1. American Twisters, Pompano Beach, 185.30
 2. LaFleur's-Largo, 180.05

Darkness, 2-2 tie forces suspension of Rotary Soccer Cup tournament finals

From staff reports

WINTER PARK — The dreaded encephalitis carrying mosquito struck again Monday night as the finals of the second annual Goldenrod Rotary Soccer Cup tournament was suspended on account of darkness with Lyman and Lake Howell tied at 2-2 after regulation.

The regular game ended at 5:20 p.m. and Orange county has a 5:30 curfew on all outdoor high school activities. No decision could be reached on how to break the tie because the Lyman team wanted to go to a penalty kick tie-breaker while Lake Howell wanted to play the 30-minute extra period, so the two teams will try to work out a time and place to play off the tie later.

"It really didn't matter to me which we played because we were dominating the match," said Lyman coach Ray Sandidge. "I wanted to go straight to the penalty kick so we could get this decided, but they wanted to play the extra period. They wasn't enough light to play the overtime and none of the tournament officials would make a decision so we will try to play later."

The Greyhounds (2-0) had advanced to the finals with identical 3-1 wins over Bishop Moore and Lake Brantley, while the Silver Hawks (also 2-0) got to the finals with a 1-0 victory over Winter Park and a 3-2 triumph over Lake Macy.

Lake Howell opened the scoring 15 minutes into the game when the Lyman goalie misjudged a corner kick by Matt Bird and Chris Brown booted the ball into a wide open net.

Lyman came back to tie the contest seven minutes later when Jeff Onderko headed the ball into the net off a corner kick by Brian Fooks. But the Silver Hawks took a 2-1 lead into the intermission when Teddy Lane headed a free kick by

Tampa removes Perkins

United Press International

TAMPA — Ray Perkins, hailed as a Vince Lombardi by the team's owner when he was hired four years ago, was fired Monday as coach of the founding Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Owner Hugh Culverhouse made the announcement the day after Tampa Bay broke a six-game losing streak with a 23-17 victory over Atlanta. Richard Williamson, Tampa Bay's receivers coach since 1987, was named interim coach for the final three games.

"In any company, if you don't meet your goals, the head man is out," Culverhouse said. "This is not my second-guessing, I'm emotionally sick over this day. Ray Perkins and I met shortly before one o'clock and I decided it would be best if I replace him as coach. He took it pretty hard."

The Buccaneers are 5-8 this season and need to win their

Prednisone use should be monitored closely

DEAR DR. GOTT: I've been diagnosed with giant cell arteritis. For the past five years, I've been treated with prednisone ranging from 15 to 60 milligrams, depending on my sedimentation rate, which is monitored twice monthly. I'm also a diabetic and have angina attacks. Can you provide information on my arteritis and the side effects of prednisone when taken over long periods of time?

DEAR READER: Giant cell arteritis (temporal arteritis) is a disease of unknown cause, marked by inflammation of an arterial inner wall, usually involving blood vessels at the side of or in back of the head. It can, however, affect arteries elsewhere in the body, including the aorta and the coronary arteries.

In most cases, symptoms include fever, headache, weakness and pain. The involved artery can be felt by examination and appears hard and nodular; the strength of the pulse may be diminished, and the overlying skin may be red. About 50 percent of patients experience ocular symptoms (double vision and blindness, which may be permanent or temporary). Patients often suffer stroke, coronary occlusion or loss of circulation to a limb.

All patients with temporal arteritis have elevated sedimentation rates (when blood samples are placed in a tube and allowed to stand, the blood cells sink to the bottom at an accelerated rate). This simple test aids in the diagnosis and also enables a physician to monitor treatment of the disease: As the condition improves, the sedimentation rate returns to normal. The definitive diagnosis is established by biopsy, during which a small segment of an affected artery is removed and examined under a microscope for the distinctive, large (giant) cells that characterize the affliction.

Treatment with prednisone (purified cortisone) is universally effective. After several weeks of high-dose therapy, the amount of medicine is gradually reduced, depending on symptoms and the sedimentation rate. In the presence of visual symptoms, stroke or a similar major complication, the drug may have to be continued for years, to prevent further tissue damage.

WIN AT BRIDGE

By James Jacoby

It's remarkable how the mind can malfunction at the bridge table. A defender can get caught up in a fixation, to the point that he will not allow logic to rule his tactics. Place yourself in the East position. After a weak two-bid by East and a pre-emptive raise from West, North doubled for takeout. South had no way of telling that his most profitable action would be to pass, so he tried four diamonds. West led the king of clubs, taken by dummy's ace. East immediately began thinking how clever it would be, when he got on lead with a diamond trick, to underlead his A-K of hearts to his partner's presumed queen, so that West could then cash out whatever club tricks the defenders had coming to them. Declarer played to his ace of diamonds, dropping West's king, and led another diamond. East took his two diamond tricks, as West discarded first the four of hearts and then a club. Still mesmerized by his original plan, East played a low heart. South put up the queen, hoping for a miracle. And the miracle allowed him to make the contract. Forget that West's discard of the four of hearts was meant to warn East against a foolish underlead. Simple logic should dictate to East that he can set four diamonds with normal defense regardless of declarer's hand. Let him cash the king of hearts and exit with the 10 of spades. Declarer will run the spades and ruff one heart loser, but he will still come up short in his quest for 10 tricks.

HOROSCOPE

By Bernice Bede Osol
YOUR BIRTHDAY
Dec. 5, 1990

In the year ahead you may make some interesting changes that will produce fortunate circumstances. Although they might not seem major at the time, their peripheral effects will be quite advantageous.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You should do well today in endeavors where the final decisions have to have your stamp of approval. Don't let someone less competent usurp your authority. Sagittarius, treat yourself to a birthday gift. Send for your Astro-Graph predictions for the year ahead by mailing $1.25 to Astro-Graph, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428. Be sure to state your zodiac sign.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Lady Luck tends to favor you today, but she's not apt to do so in an obvious fashion. She will, however, try to see that you are involved with the right people at the right time.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Mixing business and pleasure today could turn out to be a homogeneous blend. Discussions over lunch or dinner with important clients or friends should turn out successfully.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) A factor that could add broader dimensions to your effectiveness today will be in involvements that challenge your creativity. Your imagination is your greatest asset.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Be all eyes and ears today, because you might either see or hear about an opportunity of substantial magnitude. One with whom you're chummy socially could be the tipster.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Something of value can be gained today by closely watching how one you admire operates. Developments might later arise that will give you a chance to imitate his/her strategies in your own affairs.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) The type of reward you're likely to garner today can't be measured materially. Instead it will be the good will and golden thoughts of a friend you'll help.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) You could be rather lucky today

In several instances. The most impressive situation, however, might be of a financial nature. Be alert for ways to add to your resources.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You are likely to be more fortunate today in dealing directly with the person who can give you a definite yes or no than going through intermediaries. Make your pitch to the head honcho.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An arrangement with which you've been rather uncomfortable might undergo some classic improvements today. Think positive, because conditions may end up better than you dared hope.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) You've just entered a rather hopeful cycle where your expectations have good chances of being fulfilled. You'll still have to do your part, of course.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) A positive attitude is a mind set for which we should always strive. Today, however, it's doubly significant in your case, because it could have a big influence over financial results.
