They Still Back The President

Parents Told Son Missing In Action

"Missing in action," that was the message brought about their son by the Marine captain who came to the home of James and Linda Martin of 144 Roann Drive, Oviedo, Wednesday afternoon.

"We were expecting some kind of news. It was better than his saying Jack was dead, we're still optimistic that he will be all right. We're praying that we will get good news," said Mrs. Martin, whose son, Lance Corporal Jack Lee Martin was assigned to the top floor of the Marine headquarters in Beirut destroyed in Sunday's terrorist bombing.

Young Martin joined the Marine Corps two years ago and in August volunteered to go to the Mideast with a laser range-finding unit. The 21-year-old Lake Howell High School graduate had just completed a two-month tour of duty in Lebanon, but his mother said he volunteered a week and a half ago to stay on.

"His unit wasn't there, just him," she added. "He knew there was a danger, and he was concerned about not being able to fire back, but he knew the reason. They didn't want to hit civilians. We value life more here than they do over there. Being a fighting unit, it was a difficult situation for them."

Should the Marine peace-keeping unit be in Lebanon?

"If my son hadn't thought so he would not have volunteered to extend his tour of duty. We—my husband and I and our whole family—are behind the President 100 percent," Mrs. Martin said. The Martins have four other children, all still living at home.

Mr. Martin was in the Army Reserve for six years after going through basic training, but was never in combat, his wife said.

The waiting has put a strain on the family, but they have been getting a lot of support from friends and neighbors.

"They have been extremely supportive. They have been preparing our breakfast, lunch and dinner and bringing in food. And they have been praying."

Before moving to South Seminole County, the Martins lived in Osteen, and Jack attended Deltona Junior High School and DeLand High School before graduating with the Lake Howell class of 1979. He attended Seminole Community College and worked at Scotty's in Altamonte Springs.

Jack has two cousins who have served with the Marines in Beirut. One, Johnny Cornelius from Titusville was scheduled to go back, but was sent to Grenada instead. The other, Jerry Reed of Ormond Beach, is also scheduled to go back to Beirut, but is now on leave recuperating from an auto accident.

Same Training, But Only Paid Certified

Volunteer Firefighters Charge State Law Unfair

By Donna Estes
Herald Staff Writer

Lake Mary's volunteer firefighters are bothered about regulations now being enforced by the state fire marshal's office forbidding their state certification in the same fashion as paid firemen.

"It is calling us second class firefighters," said Lake Mary Fire Chief Jim Orloles.

Orloles cited a letter received from the Bureau of Fire Standards and Training in Ocala which states that effective immediately "certificates of compliance" will be issued only to those students who are full-time paid firefighters.

Orloles said this means that even though volunteers get the same training as paid firemen, they will be discriminated against in the type of state recognition they get.

And Lake Mary Mayor Walter Sorenson said the new rules "are just not fair."

State Rep. Bobby Brantley, R-Longwood, said the problem is the state definition of a firefighter. The law defines a firefighter as a full-time employee.

"If Lake Mary can come up with something that will fit their situation, I'll do everything I can to help them," Brantley said. He noted that Lake Mary's volunteer fire department is unique in that it has all the same requirements for a volunteer firefighter as the state requires for paid fireman, except for the physical examinations and salary.

"It appears that the law is designed to protect paid firefighters to the disadvantage of volunteers such as Lake Mary has and that flies in the face of President Reagan's feelings about encouraging citizens to volunteer to help their communities," Brantley said.

But, Brantley said, the state law has been on the books for some time and just wasn't being enforced until now.

"The new regulations sound like one has to be state certified to become a paid fireman, yet can't be state certified unless he is already a paid firefighter. There's something not quite right about that," Sorenson said.

"If paid firemen and volunteers receive the same fire training at the community college and pass the state test, it isn't right that a difference should be made in whether they are certified," Sorenson said.

Under the new rules, volunteer firemen will have "certificates of completion" when they finish their training, while paid firemen will have "certificates of compliance."

Suzanne Ertel, aide to state Rep. Carl Selph, R-Casselberry, who researched the issue, said that the law on different types of certificates for paid and volunteer firefighters has apparently been on the books for some years, but wasn't enforced by state Fire Marshal Bill Gunter's office.

She added, however, that after some former volunteers with "certificates of compliance" got jobs with paid fire departments and some trouble popped up with lawsuits, the state office began enforcing the law.

The section of state law involved, Mrs. Ertel said, is Chapter 633.34. It requires that firefighters to be employed and state certified; must be high school graduates; must not have been convicted of a felony or misdemeanor involving "moral turpitude;" have fingerprints on file with the state office; have a good moral character as determined by an investigation; be in good physical condition as determined by a medical examination following the requirements of the National Fire Protection Association and have completed the required firefighter training.

She said that the requirements are set for those "initially employed as a firefighter" and volunteers are not employed so they do not fit under the category, according to information supplied to her by Gunter's office.

"The difference seems to be whether a fireman is employed—working for pay—or not," she said.

Fae Owles, Brantley's aide, received the same information from Tallahassee.

Mrs. Owles said that volunteers may still go through the training, but will receive certificates of completion rather than compliance.

Sorenson said, however, the fact remains that the city sends the volunteers to firefighting school and then they cannot get the same type of certification as paid firemen. "That's not right," he said.

Goolsh creatures such as these will be on hand Halloween night at the Sanford Recreation Department's Haunted Housse for children age 12 and under. The house of horrors will be open 6:30-8:30 p.m. at the Spooky Mansion on the corner of 5th Street and Oak Avenue. Admission 25 cents.

Treat Little Goblins To Safe Halloween

Owls hoot their warning; ghosts moan their lament; witches cackle with villainous pleasure; black cats dart across your path and the leering grins of jack-o-lanterns seem to appear from every window. It's Halloween!

As tots, toddlers and the not-so-tiny get set to celebrate the eve of All Saints Day Monday, local officials are putting out this message: enjoy the holiday but make it a safe one.

The Sanford police department is offering its help if parents think any candy their children receive on Halloween is tainted. Suspect candy may be brought into the station for a look. An officer will call a national "hotline" number which will give instructions for tests that can be made to determine if it is safe.

Lake Mary's police and fire departments will be giving out safety trick-or-treat bags at the Lake Mary Elementary School and the nurseries in the city Monday, Fire Chief Jim Orloles said.

The trick or treat bags will include reflectorized tape to be placed on bicycles, Orloles said.

Off duty police and fire personnel Monday night on their own time will be jointly patrolling the city in their own vehicles to assure the safety of the community's children, he added.

The fire chief is advising parents to make sure their children are brightly dressed and to accompany smaller children on their trick or treat calls.

As a public education project, the National Easter Seal Society and the National Safety Council have put together safety tips for Halloween celebrating:

- Design costumes so children can walk easily without entangling their feet or tripping.
- Have children wear comfortable, well-fitted shoes.

Drive-Home School Cars Ok'd, But Chairman Still Objects

Over the objections of Chairman Roland Williams, the Seminole County School Board has approved a list of personnel permitted to take district-owned vehicles home.

Thirty-three vehicles are taken home for security or because district personnel are on 24-hour call.

But Williams wants to know how 14 workers in the maintenance and transportation departments are assigned vehicles to take home. Those workers receive cars to take home, the majority of the board says, because they are on 24-hour call to deal with emergencies.

Williams doesn't feel many of the employees, who are administrators or supervisors, need to have a district car.

"They're just like in business and industry. If there's an emergency it's their obligation to be there."

Assistant Superintendent for Finance Roger Harris said taking the cars home costs the district about $3,907 annually, but admitted that the figure includes only gas, oil and other maintenance.

Maintenance Supervisor Glenn McGraw drives a district vehicle the farthest, from the maintenance office to his home in Maitland, a distance of 40 miles for the round trip.

Williams questioned whether it is cost-effective to allow the vehicles to be taken home. "We need to look at that," he said.

Superintendent Robert Hughes defended the district policy. He said maintenance and transportation workers are called out to emergencies about 28 times per month. It's less expensive to give them cars so the workers can go straight to an emergency than to have them drive to the county office and pick up their vehicles.

"We're not abusing it," Hughes said. "In a neighboring county (Orange), they have 85 cars they're taking home. Social workers and everyone are driving them home."

Board members also questioned why several of 19 driver education vehicles are being taken home. William Kroll and Jean Bryant asked why four vehicles from Lake Brantley High and three from Lake Mary High are driven from the schools since the district pays persons to live adjacent to the buildings to reduce vandalism.

Voter Drive On In Black Areas

Persons deputized in the black communities by Seminole Elections Supervisor Sandy Gourd will be conducting voter registrations on Friday and Saturday in the Sanford area.

Deputy registrars will be available Friday and Saturday at the Midway-Canaan Water Station on Jetway Avenue in Midway. On Friday the registration hours will be held from 4 to 7 p.m. and on Saturday voter registration will take place from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Also on Saturday the deputy registrars will be at McCoy's Cleaners, 1107 W. 13th St., Sanford, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

U.S. Troops Mopping Up In Grenada Operation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Pentagon sources predict U.S. forces will mop up the last pockets of resistance on Grenada today but Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger indicated American troops could remain on the Caribbean island for weeks.

Most of the 1,200 Marines who participated in the initial pre-dawn invasion Tuesday have withdrawn from the island, the sources said, leaving about 2,700 Americans ashore — the bulk of them Army Rangers and about 1,000 soldiers of the Army's 82nd Airborne Division.

Weinberger said Wednesday the invasion forces encountered unexpected resistance by Cuban and Grenadian troops and fighting still was in progress at two strongholds near the capital of St. George's. He said 600 Cubans have been captured, among them 20 wounded and a colonel.

At least six Americans were killed, eight were missing and 33 others were wounded, he said. Three helicopters were shot down, one of which limped back to the helicopter carrier Guam offshore, he said.

Meanwhile, American students evacuated from Grenada cheered the U.S. Army Rangers who freed them from a frightening week of dormitory confinement under a "shoot-to-kill" curfew. Some were so happy to be back on U.S. soil they knelt and kissed the ground.

Five military transport planes loaded with 336 people, mostly students from St. George's School of Medicine on the embattled island, arrived in Charleston, S.C., Wednesday night and early today.

Every arriving student interviewed supported the U.S. invasion, which one described as "like 'Apocalypse Now,'" the movie by director Francis Ford Coppola.

Joe Entario of Brooklyn, who was on the Grand Anse campus, apparently was among the last group to be rescued. He arrived with 72 other students on two flights this morning.

"It was like 'Apocalypse Now' with five Marine helicopters coming in over the beach," he said of the invasion. "They had difficulty rescuing us. Bombs were going off. We were scared out of our wits. There were 50 to 60 people per room in three rooms."

Mark Gardy of Riverdale, N.J., also on the Grand Anse campus, said: "We were lying face down. The rooms were cleared and the beds and mattresses were lined up against the glass doors to keep them from shattering and hitting us. Bombs were bursting all over the place Tuesday." The bombs apparently were Cuban mortar fire.

"I'm very proud to be an American," said Stephen Hall, 27, of Hastings, Fla.

"Few of us have been able to fully appreciate the full meaning and importance of United States citizenship," said Hall. "The military action that led to our evacuation was extremely impressive and we were extremely proud to see the Rangers when they landed. We were very impressed with their professionalism."

Randall Tressler of Jarrettsville, Md., said the invasion appeared the only way the students could be rescued. "I don't see how they would have gotten us out otherwise," said Tressler, "because every time the State Department worked with them to get us out, they seemed to close the airport."

Weinberger told reporters 36 hours after the invasion that U.S. forces were "moving against the remaining few objectives against diminishing Cuban resistance."

IN BRIEF

U.S. Paid Mexicans For Deportations

BROWNSVILLE, Texas (UPI) — The United States has been paying Mexican officials for the past two years to deport illegal aliens from Central America to Guatemala, a U.S. Border Patrol official said in a sworn court statement.

The deposition from Larry Richardson, chief of the Border Patrol Sector at McAllen, said there was no written authorization for what he termed "an arrangement" with Reynosa, Mexico immigration officials.

In the statement made public in federal court Wednesday, Richardson said the agreement had been kept quiet to avoid unfavorable publicity. Through the arrangement, U.S. immigration officials have turned over to Mexican officials groups of Salvadorans and Guatemalans caught illegally entering the United States, Richardson said.

The Mexicans, in turn, flew the deportees to Mexico City, then bused them to the Guatemalan border with the U.S. Border Patrol paying the expenses, including those for a Mexican immigration official to accompany the Central Americans, Richardson said.

Breeder Reactor Scrapped

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Clinch River Breeder Reactor, killed by the Senate after 13 years of debate and $1.6 billion in tax dollars, will cost from $175 million to $300 million more to terminate, officials said.

The Senate's 56-40 vote Wednesday to refuse $1.5 billion to complete the Oak Ridge, Tenn. reactor designed to "breed" more nuclear fuel than it used was a stunning setback to Senate Republican leader Howard Baker, who fought for years to keep his home state project alive.

Construction never began, although site preparation was nearly complete.

Rights Issue In Court

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A federal judge is being asked to overturn President Reagan's abrupt decision to fire three members of the U.S. Commission on Civil Rights.

Two of the fired commissioners — Mary Berry and Blandina Cardenas Ramirez — filed suit Wednesday in U.S. District Court, one day after they received their dismissal notices from the White House.

Their suit insists that the commission was set up in 1957 to be an independent watchdog of the government's civil rights policies and that the president has no power to fire its six members.

WEATHER

NATIONAL REPORT: Snow frosted the mountains of Vermont and New Hampshire early today and superheated Santa Ana winds triggered brushfires in Southern California. Freezing temperatures descended on the high valleys of the Colorado Rockies and on northern Michigan, northern New York, and the Green Mountains of Vermont and White Mountains of New Hampshire. Snow and fog shrouded Mt. Washington and adjacent peaks in the White Mountains, and stretched west across Vermont. At lower elevations, those states and northern New York shivered in rain chilled just a few degrees above freezing. Santa Ana winds whipped Southern California Wednesday and gusts to 50 mph spread a brushfire through 200 acres of southwest San Diego near the Mexican border. Air tankers and helicopters making waterbucket drops were called in when flames licked within a quarter-mile of the border, and finally extinguished the blaze, which forced evacuation of some livestock but did not burn any structures. A much smaller blaze burned 10 acres in Canyon Country, north of Los Angeles. The so-called "devil winds" which occur every fall are created by atmospheric conditions that reverse the area's normal flow of ocean breezes and push hot, dry desert winds over the mountains, through the Santa Ana pass, and into the Los Angeles basin. Surfers love them because the winds keep the ocean waves from breaking until they are very close to shore.

Answers May Come In Reagan Speech Tonight

Why Are U.S. Troops Dying Overseas?

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Reagan plans to tell the American people tonight of the strategic importance of Lebanon and the Middle East and a Marxist-free Caribbean to the United States, aides say.

The 8 p.m. address will be carried live by all three major networks.

Deputy press secretary Peter Rousset said the U.S. invasion of Grenada was getting strong support from those who telephoned the White House to voice an opinion. He said there were 3,656 positive calls and 1,508 negative calls.

The more than 200 Marine deaths in the suicide bombing at Beirut Airport last Sunday has been particularly anguishing for Reagan, and the president was expected to discuss efforts to increase the security of the multinational peace-keeping force.

There were still questions surrounding Reagan's decision to invade Grenada Tuesday morning to rescue 1,000 Americans on the island and to restore order.

On the war front, Defense Secretary Caspar Weinberger said operations on Grenada were "progressing very well." He said the U.S.-led invasion force had captured 600 Cuban prisoners, rescued 70 Americans and was "moving against the remaining few objectives."

Pentagon sources said that at least six Americans were killed and 33 wounded.

The defense secretary declined to be pinned down on when U.S. troops would withdraw, saying, "I hope we're talking about days or weeks."

Deputy press secretary Larry Speakes indicated only minimal efforts were made to seek an alternative solution, short of military action, to ensure the safety of the U.S. citizens, mostly medical school students.

He insisted that the assurances of the Marxist-oriented Grenada Revolutionary Military Council that the Americans would be safe were not acceptable because of the instability of that new government.

"It was a floating crap game down there and we never knew who was in charge," he said.

"There was just no way, in our collective judgment, with the collective judgment of the neighboring islands, that we could be at all assured that their promises would be kept — that we weren't going into a situation which would have been chaotic and which would have resulted in disaster," he told reporters.

"It could have stopped at any time if we had some assurances that our people would be safe," Speakes said. However, the spokesman said, "We didn't believe anything we were told."

"If at any time up until 5 a.m. Tuesday morning we had been in any way certain that we could have accomplished this short of a military situation, we would have done so," Speakes said.

Gunmen Rob Maitland Area Jewelers In Home

Four armed men entered a south Seminole County couple's home Wednesday night, tied up the victims, and stole over 100 pieces of jewelry.

The victims, Samuel Chesser, 48, and his wife Doris, 46, are both jewelers who work out of their home at 117 Birchwood Drive near Maitland, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

Chesser said when he answered his door about 7:45 p.m. four men armed with a shotgun and a revolver forced their way into the home. The gunmen apparently knew who he was, one of them calling his name, Chesser said.

According to the report, the men tied both victim's hands with electrical cords and also bound Chesser's feet.

One of the men said they had been hired "to do a job" and were being paid $2,000, the report said.

The robbers collected over 100 pieces of jewelry that the Chessers were repairing for customers, the report said. Some of the Chesser's personal jewelry, an undetermined amount of cash and some handguns and antique rifles were also taken. The value of the stolen jewelry and other items was not disclosed.

PEDESTRIAN ROBBED

Four men jumped a 26-year-old Sanford man early Monday, beat him and took his wallet and a gold chain.

Carl Edward Blakenship, of 650 N. U.S. Highway 17-92, told sheriff's deputies that he was walking on State Road 46 near Sipes Avenue when the four men approached him at 1:15 a.m., knocked him to the ground, beat him and stole a $15 gold chain and his wallet which contained about $6 in cash.

Blakenship was not seriously injured, deputies said.

BOAT STOLEN

A 17-foot motor boat, valued at $4,500, was stolen from a Fern Park apartment complex between 8 p.m. Friday and 5 p.m. Monday.

The boat's owner, Dale L. Origer, 33, who lives at the Granada apartments, 525 E. State Road 436, said the boat's trailer, a 135-horsepower Mercury outboard motor, two water skis and three ski vests were also taken.

The beige and brown tri-hull Glastron boat was chained to a light pole in the parking lot, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

SERVICE STATION ROBBED

A man who may have been armed with a pistol robbed a Fern Park service station of an estimated $2,000 in cash early Tuesday.

The attendant at the Shamrock station, U.S. Highway 17-92 at O'Brien Road, said she was kneeling on the floor in the front storage room, taking money out of the floor safe to open the business at 5:45 a.m. when a man walked up to her, pressed an unknown object into her side and said, "give me the money."

She reached into the safe and handed over about $2,000 in cash to the man who then ran out the door and escaped in a blue car, a Seminole County sheriff's report said.

The attendant was not harmed.

Child Killer Hasn't Decided On Appeal

Donald Glenn McDougall, convicted of second-degree murder in the death of a 5-year-old girl, still has not decided if he will appeal the verdict which could send him to prison for life.

"It's up to Mr. McDougall and he hasn't let us know," Glenn Klausman, one of McDougall's defense lawyers, said today. "I would imagine he would appeal."

A jury in St. Petersburg Saturday found McDougall guilty of second-degree murder and aggravated child abuse in the death of Ursula Sunshine Assaid.

The state had charged McDougall with first-degree murder, claiming that the child's death was a premeditated act. The defense admitted the girl was abused, but claimed McDougall did not intend to kill her.

"I think it was a victory," said Klausman. "The jury apparently did not think it was premeditated." If it had, McDougall could have faced the death penalty.

He said McDougall was "pleased it was not first-degree (murder). Of course he would have preferred (a jury verdict of) third-degree murder," which carries a maximum penalty of 15 years imprisonment.

The state charged that McDougall, 27, beat and tortured the girl to death last September and that McDougall and the girl's mother, Susan Barrett Assaid, placed the body in a bag and tossed it into a pond in Altamonte Springs.

Mrs. Assaid, who was living with McDougall at the time of the death, pleaded guilty to manslaughter and was sentenced to 15 years in prison.

The trial was moved to St. Petersburg after Seminole County Circuit Judge C. Vernon Mize Jr. decided it would be difficult to select an impartial jury in Seminole due to intensive media coverage of the case.

Mize has not announced when he will sentence McDougall.

City, Developers To Discuss Lake Mary's Water Needs

By Donna Estes
 Herald Staff Writer

Six developers or property owners of large tracts slated for future development will meet with the Lake Mary City Commission at 7:30 tonight to discuss the impact their developments will have on the city's water system and the city's need for a water supply.

The meeting will be held at city hall, 158 N. Country Club Road.

Four of the developers are planning to build more than 1,000 housing units while two others own about 1,000 acres of property for which they have not revealed plans.

Developers expected to attend the meeting include: representatives of Residential Communities of America and Lake Mary Woods; Hans Schweizer, developer of Lake Bingham Woods; Ed Koch of Feather's Edge condominiums; Patricia Stenstrom, who owns 600-700 acres that stretches from Rinehart Road to Rantoul Lane, and Glen Martin who recently purchased a parcel that runs from Lake Mary Boulevard near Interstate 4 around Lake Emma to Rinehart Road.

RCA has announced it will build between 700 and 800 single-family homes in a development called "The Hills at Lake Mary" on Rantoul Lane. Lake Mary Woods is to have about 133 homes while Schweizer's Lake Bingham Woods is to have 31 homes.

Feather's Edge, to be constructed off Lake Mary Boulevard, is expected to have 58 condominium units.

Mayor Walter Sorenson said the developers will be asked to share their thoughts on the city's water needs and how they'll assist the city in gaining its own water supply.

The city has been getting its water from Sanford for seven years.

RCA officials, lead by Bill Goodman, one of the company's owners, have been discussing building a water plant and water storage facility large enough to serve not only the needs of their subdivision but also the needs of the entire city.

Under the proposed arrangement, the city would pay for the amount of the system over and above what RCA needs for its development.

At tonight's meeting, the city's consulting engineers, Conklin, Porter & Holmes, are expected to detail the size of the water plant needed to serve the entire community and the costs of building such a facility.

Beirut Bombing: What Can Congress Do?

Evening Herald, Sanford, Fl. Thursday, Oct. 27, 1983—2A

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Congress has limited, although effective, options should the demand for the withdrawal of U.S. Marines increase in defiance of President Reagan's insistence that they stay at their stations in Lebanon.

Speaker Thomas O'Neill and Senate Republican leader Howard Baker and other congressional leaders are firmly supporting Reagan's position. But at the rank-and-file level, keeping the U.S. forces in Lebanon has come under heavy criticism.

Congress has three options:
—Repeal or modification of the war powers compromise, approved Sept. 29, that allows Reagan to keep the Marines in Beirut for another 18 months.

—A cutoff, used with success to end the Vietnam War, of funds for the Marine operation after a certain date — long enough only for an orderly withdrawal.

—A resolution calling for the withdrawal of the Marines.

Analysis

All three options came under consideration almost immediately after Sunday's attack on the Marine compound in which at least 214 American servicemen were killed.

Sen. David Pryor, D-Ark., said Congress should seriously consider repealing the 18-month extension.

Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo., one of the authors of the War Power Resolution, said such a move was a possibility.

The 18-month extension, opposed by almost all Senate Democrats, was approved 54-46 — but only after Senate GOP leader Howard Baker bludgeoned a number of reluctant Republicans into voting for the resolution.

A move to repeal the extension, or to reduce the time to allow for an orderly withdrawal, would appear to have strong support.

Rep. Clarence Long, D-Md., chairman of the foreign operations appropriations subcommittee, has announced he will submit a cutoff amendment when the House works on the defense money bill this week. His prospects are not considered good.

Four Democratic congressmen, all armed forces veterans, said they would file a resolution calling for the "prompt and orderly withdrawal" of U.S. troops from Lebanon.

But any attempt to force Reagan into pulling out the Marines would face obstacles.

Reagan's persuasive powers, and those of Secretary of State George Shultz, in addition to pressure from O'Neill and Baker would be difficult to overcome — unless demands for withdrawal become overwhelming.

And even if Congress approved one of the three options, Reagan could veto the legislation, forcing the Senate and House into a situation where it would take a two-thirds majority to override.

American Public Facing 'Budget Deficit Roulette'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — There are indications on both sides of Capitol Hill that lawmakers may attempt sizable spending cuts and tax increases this year to minimize the federal budget deficit. But the chances for success are questionable.

A group of House Democrats has outlined a plan to raise $73 billion in taxes in the next three years — the amount mandated by the congressionally approved budget.

"The American people face a game of budget deficit roulette," one of the groups' leaders, Rep. Donald Pease, D-Ohio, said.

"The stakes are tragically high," Pease said, noting that interest rates could soar and unemployment climb again unless the federal budget deficit is brought under control.

The coalition of freshman lawmakers and veteran liberals, backed by House

Speaker Thomas O'Neill, plan to offer two amendments to an $8 billion tax reform bill that the House will consider today.

If accepted, the two amendments, along with one already proposed by Ways and Means Committee Chairman Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., would bring the package's total revenue up to $73 billion. Each amendment would be subject to a separate vote on the House floor.

The administration opposes any tax increases, except the loophole closing and extension of tax rules contained in the Ways and Means Committee basic $8 billion bill. Although that legislation has bipartisan support, it is unlikely that Republicans will support any of the Democratic amendments offered to raise the bill's total revenue.

In the Senate, Finance Committee Chairman Robert Dole, R-Kan., said his committee would begin work this week on a package of at least $100 billion in budget savings, including both spending cuts and tax increases.

"If we're only going to do $10 billion to $20 billion (in tax changes), why do anything," Dole said during a committee meeting Tuesday. "We'll try to come up with a major plan to reduce the deficit."

He told reporters later that he would aim for at least $100 billion in budget savings over three years. But, so far there is little indication that his colleagues share his enthusiasm.

Pease said liberal members of the House Democratic Study Group will offer a 31.7 billion amendment to close loopholes and raise taxes for certain business and wealthy individuals. In a related effort, Democratic freshmen will offer a $19.8 billion amendment to limit the benefits of the final stage of President Reagan's three-year 25 percent tax cut to $700 per person, similar to one the House approved earlier this year.

The liberals' plan includes a new 10 percent luxury tax on jewels, furs, expensive cars, and non-commercial boats and airplanes. It would also reduce the business deduction for the "three-martini" lunch by one-third, limit consumer interest deductions for other than home mortgage interest payments and reduce the availability of income averaging for taxpayers whose incomes increase substantially in one year.

"It's going to be very tough" to pass the two amendments, but "chances improve every day," Pease said. "I think the momentum is with us."

"If we're able to pass the package and if the Senate would follow suit, I think the president would be forced to change his position" against tax increases, Pease speculated.

Nudging Mr. Marcos

The Reagan administration does not want the Philippines to go the way of Iran and Nicaragua. In the latter two places, unpopular but pro-American strongmen were toppled only to be replaced by far worse dictatorships that were anti-American to boot. Accordingly, administration policymakers are reacting with utmost caution to the political crisis that began in the Philippines two months ago with the still-unexplained assassination of opposition leader Benigno Aquino Jr.

For the most part, the caution is warranted. America has important interests — a longstanding alliance, vital air and naval bases, and more than $1 billion in economic investments — to safeguard in the Philippines. Too obvious an intervention for or against the regime of beleaguered Philippine President Ferdinand Marcos could offend Filipino nationalism and endanger American interests.

But there are crucial differences, too, between Iran and Nicaragua during the late 1970s and the Philippines today. Opposition to the shah of Iran and Somoza of Nicaragua was organized and led primarily by radicals with a clearly established anti-American agenda.

By contrast, the daily demonstrations against Marcos in Manila are being mounted mostly by a moderate opposition that is democratic, non-violent, and still well disposed toward America.

That means that the Reagan administration should be less hesitant to nudge President Marcos toward an accelerating restoration of full political rights for the Philippine opposition. And above all it means that Marcos must be told in no uncertain terms that only a credible investigation of the Aquino assassination followed by prosecution of those responsible can end the present chill in U.S.-Philippine relations.

Ferdinand Marcos, now 66 and visibly ill, will pass from the scene sooner or later even if he survives the continuing furor in Manila over the brutal murder of Aquino. Democracy will have a better chance to return and then survive after Marcos if he now permits it at least a little opportunity to blossom. That requires a freer press, independent control of the government's electoral machinery, and a fair chance for the democratic opposition to compete for real power in the parliamentary elections scheduled for next March.

That is the message we hope Marcos is hearing when he asks what Washington is thinking.

Great, McClintock

As only the seventh woman Nobel laureate in science among more than 350 winners since the prizes were inaugurated in 1901, Barbara McClintock is truly an inspiration. Young women now have one more wonderful reason to believe that they can make a mark in the male dominated world of science — if they're persistent.

Unfortunately, McClintock's award came 30 years after her discovery that genes can move from one spot to another on the chromosomes of a plant. Scientists had once assumed that genes were held firmly in place on chromosomes. The discovery has led to a greater understanding of some human diseases.

McClintock, 81, joins the distinguished ranks of Marie Curie and Dorothy Hodgkin, the only other women to win unshared Nobel prizes in science. This prize, in combination with Sally Ride's achievements as the first U.S. woman in space, should help convince more school girls to consider careers in science, a field needing brilliant minds.

Moreover, McClintock's down-to-earth approach toward life, work and the winning of the prize should be an inspiration to men and women alike. The charming scientist said: "It might seem unfair ... to reward a person for having so much pleasure over the years, asking the maize plant to solve specific problems and then watching its responses."

What a nugget to pack away for times when problems seem insoluble and work seems void of pleasure. Apparently, joy and answers about life's perplexities can be found most anywhere — even in a lowly cob of corn — if a person is determined to search.

DON GRAFF World Press Crisis?

You've certainly heard of Paris. They've been holding another international meeting there.

Talioires, you've probably never heard of. It's out of the way, tucked in the French Alps.

But what took place there a month ago is of considerable importance to the proceedings of the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization in Paris.

The key item on the UNESCO agenda, once again, is something that has come to be called the "new world information order."

I shall attempt to be basic and brief. For a number of years there has been an effort underway to redress a perceived imbalance in the worldwide news business.

The complaint is that the gathering and dissemination of international news is dominated by relatively too few Western press and broadcasting organizations.

The result is that the news in the underdeveloped world — the Third World — goes inadequately and unfavorably reported.

The desire is that international information activities be restructured to give Third World countries more say in reporting their stories to the outside world and greater control in the outside news getting in.

The concern is that the means of doing so — licensing news people, broadcasting restrictions and making governments directly answerable for their own newsgatherers abroad — would abridge press freedoms regarded as basic in the West. And the standard operating procedures under totalitarian regimes, where the news business is the state's business, might be extended worldwide.

The West — especially the governments — was a bit slow in perceiving the extent of the threat. Discussions were well underway within UNESCO before much of the fuss was raised.

In the second strategy session in two years, some 90 representatives of news organizations — mostly from North America and Europe, but with enough representation from Africa and Asia to internationalize the resistance movement — met at Talioires Sept. 30 through Oct. 2.

Out of it came an agreement to expand assistance to Third World countries in developing their own independent news services through personnel training programs and easier access to the necessary technology and hardware.

Also renewed was the determination to resist moves within UNESCO to institutionalize information procedures that would in effect be restrictions on freedom of information.

Face Lifts Are Not For Women Only

By Patricia McCormack
UPI Health Editor

More males than ever these days are getting their ears pinned back, jowls trimmed, and chins worked on. By surgeons.

Plastic surgery, you see, is not for women only — and that goes for eyelid lifts and even breast reductions — those grown too large due to overdevelopment of chest muscles or due to a hormonal imbalance most commonly seen in boys during puberty.

What happens to males of all ages, from all walks of life who look to surgeons for better looks was described, cut by cut and stitch by stitch, by Dr. Bernard L. Kaye at a seminar at the New York Academy of Medicine.

Kaye, clinical professor of surgery at the University of Florida and chief of plastic surgery at the Baptist Medical Center in Jacksonville, practices what he preached. He's had his face fixed and appears so much more youthful — so much so that one would never guess he is 56.

He said he may have his face done again if it becomes necessary. A graduate of Yale and Harvard universities, Kaye holds a dental as well as medical degree. He also is principal saxophonist with the Jacksonville Symphony and first saxophonist with the Jacksonville Starlight Symphonette.

"All other things being equal, studies have shown, we often select the better looking person," he said, naming one reason more men are getting defects fixed or seeking surgical help to hold back the hands of time.

More than vanity is involved, howev-

If you're thinking about buying a used bicycle, you may find a bargain among the stolen, lost or abandoned bicycles that authorities auction off in the Sanford area periodically.

Hundreds of bicycles are stolen in Seminole County each year. Many of these bikes are in excellent condition. Some are practically brand new. Often the thief is a kid who grabs a bike, takes a joy ride and dumps it in the woods.

The Seminole County Sheriff's Department and the Sanford Police Department accumulate dozens of abandoned or lost bicycles each year. The bikes are auctioned off to the public periodically.

Bicycles collected by the police are auctioned off at the city's public works department at the west end of Fulton Avenue. Bikes amassed by the sheriff's department are put on the block at the county barn at Five Points, and the next auction will be held there Nov. 12.

Advertisements giving details of the auctions are run in the Evening Herald in advance.

Some of the bikes were sold at retail for as much as $350 and even up to $500. Bikes have been auctioned off for as little as $2 and as much as $100, said Lt. Beau Taylor of the sheriff's department.

Taylor and Herb Shea, assistant chief of the Sanford police, also have some advice for persons who already own a bicycle and would like to hold on to it.

To prevent your bike from being stolen, lock it when it's not in use. "That makes it tougher to steal," said Taylor. "Not all thieves carry a wire cutter in their back pocket."

Keep your bike in the house or in a locked garage at night. If you ride your bicycle to a store, lock it and chain it to a pole or bike rack.

Make a record of your bike's serial number. Shea also recommends that you engrave your driver's license number on several different parts of your bike such as the frame and the wheels. The Sanford police department will lend you the tools to do this.

JACK ANDERSON

Slug Your Kid Today?

WASHINGTON — Earlier this month, I uncovered a startling Justice Department proposal to identify future criminals by studying thousands of 9-to-12-year-old boys. The inquisitors would watch for such ominous signs as lefthandedness, oddly shaped ears and failure to sweat when given electric shocks.

My disclosure of the proposed study blew up a storm of protest and Justice Department officials are backtracking frantically. I have been assured by sources within the department and on Capitol Hill that the initial $500,000 funding request doesn't stand a chance. The project is now dead.

But now my associate Andy Badwar has obtained a copy of another Justice Department proposal along the same lines — and it has already been funded with a $324,845 down payment. The three-stage study would be conducted by the prestigious Rand Corp. It is intended to develop "intervention strategies" that will stop "the careers of serious juvenile offenders before they become fully developed."

The Justice Department official responsible for both projects is Alfred S. Regnery, director of the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention.

I had my reporter Kevin Ellis do a little checking on Regnery to see if perchance he exhibited any of the telltale signs his scientists were going to look for.

According to a number of sources, Regnery is not lefthanded nor do his ears appear to be misshapen. My sources could not determine whether Regnery's palms remain dry when he's given an electric jolt nor could they find out whether his second toe was longer than his middle toe (another bad sign for the voodoo scientists).

But he was described by three sources as having shifty eyes and he never looks at the person he is talking to, a sign of suspicious motives — to silent-movie directors if not to medico-scientific quacks. And he has greasy hair, hunches over his desk and appears insecure.

These physical traits are meaningless, of course. The point is they are just as valid measurements of potential criminal tendencies as the characteristics Regnery does not show — but which he evidently thinks were worth observing in young boys.

The litmus tests for criminals have long since been discredited as quackery on a par with phrenology and palm reading. The theories enjoyed their peak of popularity among the demonstrably criminal leaders of Nazi Germany — with sickening results that were documented at the Nuremberg trials.

Interestingly, the proposal for "Early Identification of the Chronic Offender" has references that are reminiscent of Nazi ideology. "It will be important," the proposal notes, "to assess characteristics such as ... ethnic and racial heterogeneity ... Schools can be evaluated in terms of ... ethnic and racial composition, and heterogeneity ..."

In this context, "heterogeneity" is simply a seven-syllable word for that old bugaboo of the Third Reich: race mixing. Like the Nazis, the study's proponents apparently fear that young boys can be corrupted simply by associating with kids of different ethnic or racial backgrounds.

Regnery, a former official of the conservative Young Americans for Freedom, drew considerable opposition at his Senate confirmation hearing because of his outspoken views in favor of harsh punishment for juvenile offenders. At one point he suggested "maybe sending a juvenile to Wales for a week as a sort of shock treatment."

And during his confirmation hearings, his car bore a bumper sticker that asked: "Have You Slugged Your Kid Today?"

WASHINGTON WORLD Why They Voted No To Holiday

By Steve Gerstel

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Nearly one of every four U.S. senators voted against the creation of a national holiday in tribute to Martin Luther King Jr., but it would be an injustice, despite the temptation, to label them all racists.

There were legitimate reasons, at least in their minds, not to elevate the martyred civil rights leader to a footing equal only with George Washington and Christopher Columbus.

Yet it seems inescapable, in the cases of some of these 22 senators, that race and politics did play a role in their vote.

Sen. Bill Bradley, D-N.J., a man not given to verbal extremes, flatly accused North Carolina Sens. Jesse Helms and John East of pandering to base anti-black feelings.

"They are running the old campaign, as old as the interaction of race and politics in America," Bradley said. "They are playing up to old 'Jim Crow' and all of us know it."

By instinct, as well as past records, the inclination is to hunt for Southern senators in search of those who opposed the King holiday.

After all, it was the Southern senators in the 1960s who used every means available to prevent passage of the goals that King's non-violent revolution sought.

But far from substantiating a return to the '60s, the roll call shows that Southern senators, by a wide margin, voted for the holiday.

Only three Southerners — John Stennis of Mississippi, Strom Thurmond of South Carolina and Russell Long of Louisiana — were in the Senate in the 1960s and survive.

Stennis, after voting against Helms' engineered amendments, in the end cast his ballot against the King holiday.

But Thurmond, who rivaled George Wallace as a segregationist, and Long both voted to set aside the third Monday of January in honor of King.

A cynical interpretation would lead to the conclusion that Stennis, in his 80s and just starting another term, does not plan to run again. Thurmond probably will and Long certainly is going to go after another term.

But Helms, East and Stennis represent only a tiny fraction of what was once the Dixie bloc. The rest of the Southerners, including the very conservative Jeremiah Denton of Alabama, voted for the holiday.

Who else then voted against the legislation — refusing to accord this high honor to the catalyst of the civil rights movement?

They were, for the most part, conservative Republicans from Midwestern and Western states.

Here again, cynicism would indicate political reasons. In none of the states from which the negative votes came is the black vote a factor.

realistic expectations about the outcome.

To be sure a patient is making a well-informed, rational decision, he said the plastic surgeon evaluates the patient from a psychological viewpoint.

Appearance-improving plastic surgery for men generally costs anywhere from $800 to $3,000, depending on what is being done.

A survey by the American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons Inc. cited typical range of fees for specific operations (in 1981) and gave the age ranges of the male patients usually seeking them.

Procedures, age span, and typical range of fees:

—Hair transplants: 20s to 30s and 50s to 60s, $1,000 to $1,500.

—Face lifts, brow lifts, eye lids: 40s up, $2,000 to $3,000.

—Ear reduction: 5- to 10-year old boys up to adults, 50s to 60s, $800 to $1,200.

—Nose reshaping: teenagers to 20s, $1,200 to 1,800.

—Breast reduction: teenagers, 50s to 60s, $2,000 to $2,500.

—Body contouring, chest, abdomen, buttock, thigh: 40s up, $1,500 to $3,000.

The American Society of Plastic and Reconstructive Surgeons runs a free referral service to help prospective patients locate an active member who is certified by the American Board of Plastic Surgery. The telephone referral number is 312-856-1843. Those preferring to write should address inquiries to the Society at Suite 1900, 233 North Michigan Ave., Chicago, Ill. 60601.

IN BRIEF

You May Be Entitled To Auto Insurance Refund

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — The Florida Supreme Court has agreed to decide on an expedited basis the lengthy battle over the state's auto insurance excess profits law.

Insurance Commissioner Bill Gunter said Wednesday the practical significance of the decision is that if the court upholds the law "the way will be cleared for refunds and credits to policyholders."

The law was upheld by a Leon County circuit court last month, but the auto insurance industry appealed to the 1st District Court of Appeal. The Insurance Department then asked for the case to be certified to the high court.

Gunter said the auto insurance industry currently owes policyholders $14 million in refunds or credits, but he said a legal question remains about whether the industry can be required to pay interest.

Creditors Claim Mansion

MIAMI (UPI) — Creditors cashed in their claims against Sheik Mohammed Al Fassi to obtain the dilapidated, half-built mansion the flamboyant member of the Saudi royal family abandoned when he left the country.

The Arabian sheik's marble mansion was claimed at auction Wednesday by 12 building firms who presented the auctioneer $2.3 million in unpaid, court-approved claims.

The sheik's plans called for an estate that would include a bowling alley, a mosque, bomb shelter, guardhouse, two swimming pools, five waterfalls all of which was to be surrounded by tons of marble, solid oak and mirrors.

Pedro A. Cofino, a lawyer representing the builders, said his clients plan to complete work on the property, "definitely not the way the sheik wanted it," and re-sell it.

Hold The Spanish

MIAMI (UPI) — Burger King workers accustomed to orders to hold the pickles or hold the lettuce now are being told to hold their tongues — if it happens to be Spanish.

"Communications among managers and/or crew members in the Spanish language will not be tolerated," said a memo from Pedro Garcia, a Cuban-born district manager in Miami.

"We had complaints that employees were speaking Spanish and not getting the orders right," Garcia said.

Miami area manager Everett Smith said a new memo will be issued that will allow cashiers to speak Spanish to customers who have difficulty with English.

A Gem Of An Idea

MIAMI (UPI) — A man who didn't know his son had slashed a half-million dollars worth of stolen diamonds in an old shoe donated the shoe to a day care center — resulting in grand larceny charges against his son.

'Return Cuban Refugees With Prisoners'

MIAMI (UPI) — About 1,300 Cuban refugees jailed in an Atlanta prison should be shipped back to their homeland along with some 600 Cubans taken prisoner in Grenada, members of Florida's congressional delegation told President Reagan.

Sen. Lawton Chiles, D-Lakeland, and freshman Rep. Bill McCollum, R-Altamonte Springs, sent letters to Reagan Wednesday suggesting repatriation of the jailed refugees.

The head of the Miami chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union immediately labeled the idea "repugnant" and compared it to Iran's taking of American hostages.

The prisoners in the Atlanta Federal Penitentiary have been detained since they came to the United States in 1980 aboard the Freedom Flotilla from Mariel harbor. Immigration authorities determined they had committed crimes in Cuba and were too dangerous to be freed in the United States.

Most of the 1,395 jailed because of their records still are in the Atlanta prison. Many of the more than 110,000 others on the boatlift settled in Florida.

"Your administration, with the support of many of us in Congress, has sought to return these prisoners to Cuba but without success," Chiles wrote. "The Castro regime has adamantly refused to cooperate with U.S. authorities seeking a return of this criminal element to Cuba.

"Frankly, Mr. President, it has been a question of leverage."

McCollum said 130 other representatives had co-signed his letter to Reagan.

McCollum said he does not believe the "Cuban Mariel criminal element" has constitutional rights. But Jim Mullins, chairman of the Miami ACLU, said the idea would probably violate the U.S. Constitution and international law.

"In the hysteria of the moment, we should not forget our constitutional values," Mullins said.

"Secondly, the United States is not in the hostage business. Iran was condemned for doing the same thing," Mullins said.

Republic P47s such as these will grace the skies of Leesburg this weekend in an air show featuring other military aircraft of the World War II era. During the two-day event, the airport will be rededicated.

War Birds To Invade Leesburg

The skies above Leesburg will be filled with war birds this weekend as they were during World War II when the air field served as a combat training base for the 313th Fighter Squadron, 50th Fighter Group (Special).

Thirty WW II fighters and bombers are expected to take part in the annual Air Fair at Leesburg Municipal Airport, which will officially be rededicated Saturday to the citizens of Leesburg and surrounding areas for their cooperation with the armed services in making the field available for combat training in 1943.

The event is being sponsored by the city, Leesburg Area Chamber of Commerce and the Leesburg Aviation Association.

The ceremony will be marked with the unveiling of a nearly 2-ton granite monument dedicated to the men of the 313th who first occupied the field and went on to serve their country with valor and distinction overseas. Modern military jet aircraft are scheduled to fly over the field in tribute during the dedication.

Air shows are scheduled for both days featuring WW II airplanes from the Valiant Air Command Group flying club which is trying to raise enough money to build a WW II museum in the state. Pilots will be flying in formation, doing simulated bombing runs, and performing aerobatics. There will be static displays of aircraft, jeeps, tanks, and trucks from the WW II era.

Gates are set to open at 9 a.m. both days with dedication of the plaque set for 1 p.m. Saturday. The two-hour shows will be at 1:30 p.m. A flight training film made in Leesburg in 1943 will also be shown. Tickets at the gate will be $6 for adults and $1 for children. Advance tickets are $5. Concessions will be available.

In conjunction with the air show, there will be a reunion of the Fighter Squadron 50th Group at Misaton Inn in Howey-in-the-Hills.

Prison Population Up, Crime Rate Down: Survey

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A new survey indicates the nation's prison population went up 4.2 percent in the first six months of this year, and suggests that's why crime declined by 5 percent.

A Justice Department survey shows the number of federal and state prisoners grew by 4.2 percent in the first six months of 1983 to a record 413,829.

At the same time, the FBI reports a 5 percent drop in the number of serious crimes in the first half of 1983. In 1982, the number of reported crimes dropped 3 percent.

The Justice Department said total inmate populations ranged from a low of 402 in North Dakota to a high of 37,238 in California. California, Texas, New York and Florida accounted for one-third of all state inmates.

The combined federal and state population grew by 4.2 percent during the first six months, the lowest increase since quarterly statistics began in 1981.

"This is a record number of inmates," said Steven Schlesinger, director of the department's Bureau of Justice Statistics. "It contributes to the overcrowding that has led to court orders or litigation to improve prison conditions in 38 states and the District of Columbia."

Schlesinger added, however, that at least prisoners are unable to victimize the public and "this may partially explain the recent decrease in crime rates."

The Justice Department report said in some jurisdictions tougher attitudes toward parole violators and a willingness to return them to prison has contributed to an increased number of prisoners.

Other states have passed laws setting specific sentences or ranges of sentences that preclude a parole release date prior to the expiration of sentence.

The government said some states' prison systems are as much as 30 percent over capacity.

The report also said the number of women in state and federal prisons reached 18,853 on June 30, an increase of 5 percent over the previous year.

However, women still account for only 4 percent of the total prison population and their incarceration rate was far lower than men's.

Underdog Gators Take On Auburn Saturday

United Press International
Fourth-ranked Florida visits fifth-ranked Auburn Saturday in the biggest Southeastern Conference game so far this year and that, says Florida coach Charley Pell, is what college football is all about.

"I love it," said Pell. "It wouldn't be a sport and a challenge if it weren't for big games."

Florida, unbeaten but tied by Southern Cal. and Auburn, beaten only by second-ranked Texas, are both 3-0 in SEC play, a half game behind sixth-ranked Georgia. Auburn-Florida is the first of a three-game round-robin with Florida playing Georgia next week in Jacksonville and Auburn visiting Georgia the following Saturday.

"These are exciting days for the Southeastern Conference and its fans," said Georgia coach Vince Dooley, who is concerned about keeping his players' minds on Temple, their Saturday foe, while Florida and Auburn are going head-to-head. "With Alabama and Tennessee each with only one (conference) loss, it could be more than just a three-team race."

"Auburn has the better schedule since it doesn't play any of the other contenders on successive weeks," said Dooley. "But, while I think Auburn has a great team, one that has rolled on since losing to Texas, this is the best Florida team I've seen and our team is coming on."

Auburn is rated a 3-point favorite over Florida, which has never won the SEC football championship. The Gators beat Auburn, 19-17, last year at Gainesville after recovering an onside kickoff and kicking a field goal with seven seconds to play.

"We expect another tight game," said Auburn coach Pat Dye. "There's a lot riding on this game and we're going to find out something about ourselves. It will be emotional and it will be physical. We'll find out what we're made of. If we don't do it now, we're not going to do it."

"I expect one of those tough, grand old Southeast games," said Dye. "It will be the same for Georgia against Florida and it will be the same when we go to Georgia. I don't think any of us have to say anything to our players to get them emotionally ready for these games."

"It's obvious we'll have to play our best game of the year," said Pell. "This is the best Auburn team since 1957 (when the Tigers were unbeaten and No. 2 in the UPI rankings)."

"Pat Dye said this summer that the game against us last year was the worst of their season," continued Pell. "That worries me because I thought we played pretty close to our best to hold them to what we did."

"We're not a healthy team. We were in a knock-down, drag-it-out battle last week (against East Carolina) while Auburn got to rest their top people with their lopsided victory," Pell said.

Star offensive lineman Lomas Brown and tailback Neal Anderson, Florida's leading runner, missed Wednesday's two-hour workout.

"Lomas strained his back last week against East Carolina and we thought he was doing all right, but today it tightened up on him," Pell said.

College Football

Anderson was diagnosed by team doctors as having a bad cold-type infection with sore throat. The doctors said they expect the malady to last 24 to 36 hours and that Anderson should be ready to play Saturday.

Asked about tight end Dwayne Dixon, the Gators' leading pass catcher who returned to practice this week, Pell said, "Dixon's physical strength is there and the knee is sound. But to expect him to be 100 percent isn't fair considering he hasn't run a pass route in three weeks. One thing is for sure, though, he'll be 110 percent on effort."

Pell said he was happy with Wednesday's practice.

"It seems like we're getting our assignments down and getting our game plan together," he said. "We had less missed assignments today than we did yesterday so we're getting there. We worked a lot on the kicking game."

The Tigers feature a wishbone offensive attack that worries Pell and his Florida defenders.

But last year, the Gators held standout running backs Bo Jackson to 23 yards rushing and Lionel James to only 34 yards.

"I'd prefer to go up against a running team like Auburn because our pursuit is the strength of our defense," said senior linebacker Wilber Marshall. "Last year, we kept the outside part of the field away from them."

"But you try to pressure the pitch man because you don't want the ball going to their backs, especially if the backs are Jackson and James."

Florida senior quarterback Wayne Peace said, simply, "This is probably the biggest game I've ever played in."

In other Southeast action Saturday, 13th-ranked West Virginia is at 7th-ranked Miami of Florida, Mississippi State at 19th-ranked Alabama, Cincinnati at Kentucky, Ole Miss vs. LSU at Jackson, Tennessee at Rutgers, Memphis State at Vanderbilt, Florida State at Arizona State, Southwestern Louisiana at Southern Mississippi, and Tulane at Baylor.

Miami has won seven straight since opening its season with a loss at Florida and is favored by a touchdown over the Mountaineers, who suffered their first loss of the season last week to Penn State.

Alabama, a former wishbone team, will be defending the wishbone for the first time this season and coach Ray Perkins said he's glad the Crimson Tide had an open date last week since it gave extra time to prepare. The Tide, coming off back-to-back losses to Penn State and Tennessee that dropped it to 4-2 in Perkins' first season as Bear Bryant's successor, is favored by 18 points.

Mississippi State quarterback John Bond needs 16 yards rushing Saturday to become only the second player in major college history to rush for 2,000 yards and pass for 4,000.

Tennessee, 5-2 after four straight wins, is favored by 16, but coach Johnny Majors has been telling his players about The Vols' 1979 homecoming when Rutgers pulled off a 13-7 upset.

Charley Pell

LSU is favored by eight points after snapping a three-game losing streak by beating South Carolina. However, Ole Miss has upset this season over Arkansas and Vanderbilt.

TALLAHASSEE (UPI) — Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden indicated Wednesday that one of the keys to beating Arizona State Saturday night will depend on the Seminoles' ability to put pressure on the Sun Devils' quarterback.

Bowden said he was pleased with his team's practices this week.

"We practiced hard all week and I just hope that it shows on Saturday night against Arizona State," he said.

Bowden said Florida State will continue to give the second string offensive unit playing time "as long as they're productive."

Roll Out The Football, Not The TV On Friday

I'm on a roll. After a 8-2 week of picking my record stands at 45-27-1 for the season. I don't see many upset possibilities this week except maybe Lake Mary over Apopka, but there is some question if that is possible. In college, look for Maryland to knock North Carolina out of the number three spot in the rankings.

If you are still deciding whether to stay home and watch TV or go out and see a game Friday night, here is a list of the choices you have:

8 p.m. (CBS) — The Dukes of Hazard: In an innovative new theme, the Duke brothers get in a car and go fast. (NBC) — Mr. Smith: Howard Cosell visits the show and causes an uproar when he calls the star "A little monkey." (ABC) — Benson: Benson helps the governor find his flibuster. (PBS) — Belgium, Country of Goats: Episode three of a 86 part series. (HBO) — Neil Simon Quadruple Feature: Only When I Laugh followed by I Ought to be in Pictures followed by Only When I'm in Pictures followed by I Ought to be Laughing.

9 p.m. (CBS) — Dallas: Sue Ellen devotes herself to Mickey. Pam marries J.R., Bobby divorces Pam, Mickey devotes himself to Cliff, etc. (NBC) — Maelstrom: Confused on what animal he should become, our hero turns himself into half panther-half oyster and becomes new attraction at Smithsonian Institute. (ABC) — Lottery! Florida woman wins lottery but goes to jail when she finds out lottery is illegal in Florida.

Those are the television choices and here are the football choices:

SEMINOLE AT DELAND
Speedy Seminole running backs give DeLand defense fits. DeLand offense looks for place to hide. Fighting Seminoles win fourth game of season. Seminole by 8

LAKE MARY AT APOPKA
Apopka quarterback Rodney Brewer riddles Lake Mary secondary. Blue Darters roll up another big offensive night. Lake Mary offense scores points, but not enough to beat the sixth-ranked Darters. Apopka by 12

LYMAN AT LAKE HOWELL
Big inter-county matchup of the week. Lyman Greyhounds try to stay within one game of Apopka in Five Star Conference but Lake Howell Silver Hawks have something to say about that. Lake Howell by 6

SPRUCE CREEK AT LAKE BRANTLEY
Lake Brantley defense holds Spruce Creek to under 200 yards total offense and under 10 points. Patriots' offense rolls up enough yardage and points to squeeze by the Hawks. Lake Brantley by 7

BISHOP MOORE AT OVIEDO
Undermanned Bishop Moore no match for Oviedo. A lot of junior varsity teams could beat Bishop Moore's varsity. The Lions break a three-game losing streak with a rout of the Hornets and Barry Williams runs for over 200 yards. Oviedo by 24

UCF AT AUSTIN PEAY
UCF Knights stale after playing only one game in last three weeks. If your wondering, Austin Peay is located in Clarksville, Tenn. Austin Peay by 7

FLORIDA AT AUBURN
The biggest game in the Southeastern Conference to date. Florida could very well be on its way to SEC title if the Gators beat Auburn. Florida still has Georgia and surprising Kentucky to contend with while Auburn has Georgia and Alabama in successive games. Gators by 13

FLORIDA STATE AT ARIZONA STATE
FSU's Seminoles don't fare very well out west. Arizona State is a top-notch team and the Sun Devils have the edge at home. Arizona State by 9

WEST VIRGINIA AT MIAMI
The Hurricanes could move up in the polls with a victory over West Virginia, which fell back in the polls after losing to Penn State last week. The Mountaineers won't lose two in a row, though. In a slight upset. West Virginia by 3

BUCS AT STEELERS
Pittsburgh's defense has been scoring a lot of points lately and Tampa Bay's offense has given up a lot of points this year. If Franco Harris can break loose a few times this one could be a rout. Steelers by 28

RAMS AT DOLPHINS
The Dolphins are on a roll and, now that they know Don Shula is staying, the Dolphins are ready to devour the Rams. Miami by 14

Jones After Jones

It's always tough to keep up with the Joneses, especially a Jones as elusive as Seminole running back Dexter Jones. The 170-pound junior leaves the ground to avoid an Apopka defender Aaron Jones in varsity football action two weeks ago. This week, Dexter and his Seminole teammates travel to DeLand in quest of their fourth win.

Denny Wins Comeback Award — Lasorda Top Manager

NEW YORK (UPI) — John Denny, who rebounded from arm trouble to pitch the Philadelphia Phillies into the World Series, has been named overwhelming winner of UPI's National League Comeback Player of the Year Award for 1983.

Denny, a 30-year-old right-hander who credits Christianity and the overall strength of the Philadelphia organization for the change in his fortunes, received 25 of a possible 35 votes cast by a panel of UPI baseball writers.

"I definitely was away last year," Denny said. "At least I've come back. I appreciate the award and I feel honored."

George Foster of the New York Mets, with three votes, was a distant second. After missing 33 days with a sore shoulder and struggling to a 6-11 record with Cleveland for the first five months of the 1982 season, Denny was traded to the Phillies for Wil Cuhner, Leroy

Smith and Jerry Reed on Sept. 11.

Philadelphia hoped Denny might make the difference in a close NL East race but the native of Prescott, Ariz., instead went 0-2 with a 4.03 ERA in four starts and the Phils finished three games behind first-place St. Louis.

"There was no way I should have come over to Philadelphia," Denny reflected on the quick change in the course of his career. "I was having an off-year. However, the people in Philadelphia saw me as part of their long-range goal. It's something to be said for the organization."

"Hugh Alexander (chief scout) saw me pitch a couple of games. I was on my way back. He saw the process."

Despite his rocky start with the organization, Denny was welcomed into the organization. "The people in public relations made it easier for me," he said. "The players made me feel welcome. They encouraged me."

Denny also began working with Philadelphia strength and flexibility teacher Gus Hoefling, trainer Jeff Cooper and pitching coach Claude Osteen. Hoefling and Cooper helped Denny prepare for the season by rehabilitating and strengthening his arm and Osteen corrected some bad habits in the pitcher's delivery.

Finally, Denny said, becoming a Christian "allowed the other things to fall into place."

He became Philadelphia's most reliable starter, finished with a 19-6 record and a 2.37 ERA and was one of the biggest factors in the Phils' six-game runaway in the NL East.

After pitching well in a losing cause in Game 2 of the NL playoffs, Denny opened the World Series and combined with reliever Al Holland on a 2-1 victory over the Baltimore Orioles. He was the losing pitcher in Game 4 of the World Series.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Tom Lasorda earned the UPI National League Manager of the Year Award, the hard way.

The 56-year-old Lasorda, who took a team that was thought to have no chance in August and led it to the NL West Division title, was a landslide winner in a balloting of 26 UPI baseball correspondents from each of the major-league cities.

"When you are named Manager of the Year, it becomes a reality because of the contributions of the players," said Lasorda. "What you're really saying is the organization is the Organization of the Year."

"I've never seen a bunch of coaches work as hard. And I want to thank the trainers who got the players ready. They never get any credit. It's an organizational award."

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — Reliever Dan Quisenberry of the Kansas City Royals, who set a major-league record with 45 saves this past season, has been named the winner of a $10,000 award as "the most productive and most consistent" player in the big leagues for 1983.

In edging Atlanta outfielder Dale Murphy, the 29-year-old right-hander became the first relief pitcher ever to win the prize in the nine-year history of the award.

The award is also known as the Seagrani's Seven Crowns of Sports.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Jerry Kaptein, the agent for Craig Nettles, announced Wednesday the New York Yankees' third baseman had filed for free agency.

Nettles, 39, the all-time home-run leader among American League third basemen with 333.

Glenn's 132 Yards Pace Lyman Romp

Benny Glenn picked up 132 yards on 18 carries, including a 54-yard touchdown burst, to lead the Lyman freshman Greyhounds to a 21-6 mauling of Lake Mary's frosh Tuesday night at Lyman High.

Lyman ended the season with a 4-2 record while Lake Mary finished at 3-3.

After a scoreless first quarter, Lake Mary took a 6-0 lead in the second as quarterback Shane Letterio scampered 40 yards for a touchdown. The conversion kick was wide left.

Prep Football

Lyman came back to take a 7-6 lead in the second quarter as quarterback Gibb Lundquist unloaded a 53-yard scoring strike to R.J. Noid. Peter Knudsen added the conversion kick.

The Rams had a chance to take the lead late in the second quarter and had a fourth and two at the Lyman 33-yard line with about 30 seconds left until halftime. Instead of going for the first down, Ryan Lisle attempted a 50-yard field goal which was just short of the mark and Lyman's 7-6 lead held up at halftime.

The Greyhounds increased their lead to 14-6 by scoring on their second possession of the third quarter. This time it was Glenn who rambled 54-yards for the score and Knudsen again added the conversion kick.

Lyman put the game on ice with 7:02 remaining in the game as Robert Thomas scored from seven yards out. Knudsen's third extra point made the final 21-6. Behind Glenn, Thomas picked up 23 yards on six carries for the Lyman frosh. Darren Boyesen was the defensive standout for the Greyhounds.

For Lake Mary, Letterio picked up 71 yards on six carries while Lisle gained 61 yards on 10 carries. Doug Bandy and Lisle led the defense.

In Wednesday's Evening Herald, it was reported that the Seminole freshman lost to St. Cloud, 7-0. Although St. Cloud was on the schedule, Seminole played Oviedo Tuesday night.

Oviedo scored on a 32-yard pass by quarterback John Morrow to Wingback Tony Bellflower. Mark Merchant kicked the winning extra point.

Outstanding defensive efforts were turned in by linebackers Cary Justice and Gene Hartman. The leading rusher for Oviedo was tailback Mark Merchant with 46 yards.

Tonight, the biggest junior varsity game of the season pits undefeated Lake Brantley against Seminole at Lake Brantley at 7:30.

Seminole is also undefeated in county games, but it will have its hands full stopping Patriot tailback Mike Beams who has rushed for over 1,000 yards this fall.

Alvin Jones, who has returned three kickoffs for TDs, leads the Sanford offense.

Thompson: Booing Is Minor Compared Marines' Ordeal

The PA announcer at Tampa Stadium, Mike Menendez, asked the crowd to rise please for a moment's silence honoring those courageous young men who had given their lives in Lebanon.

Taps was then sounded. Over on the Tampa Bay side of the field before last Sunday's game with New Orleans, Jack Thompson, the Bucs' quarterback, lined up with the rest of his teammates, bowed his head and asked backup tight end Jerry Bell:

"What happened?" Now before you begin getting all over Jack Thompson, wondering what kind of isolated vacuum he lives in that he hadn't heard of what happened to the Marines in Beirut, you have to bear in mind this was Game Day and it still was relatively early in the day.

On Game Day, Thompson has only one thing on his mind: The Game. He doesn't read the newspapers, doesn't listen to the radio, doesn't watch TV. He doesn't have the time.

Last Sunday, for example, before the Bucs were beaten, 24-21, for their eighth straight loss without a victory this season, Thompson got up a few minutes after 9 in the morning and went directly into a meeting with the other Tampa Bay players at the team's facility.

He looked at films for an hour-and-a-half, after which it was almost time to begin suiting up for the game. That was why he hadn't heard about the Marines or, for that matter, anything else pertaining to the outside world.

When Thompson asked Bell why they were having a moment of silence, the Bucs' big second-year man from Derby, Conn., told him that 20 or 30 Marines had been killed by terrorists in Lebanon. The known fatality figures were much lower at the time than they turned out later.

Still, Thompson was as shocked and saddened as anyone else. But he didn't have much time to think about it. He had to think about the game.

The Saints' defense, which is the best in the NFL, really worked him over. Thompson was sacked seven times and three of his passes were picked off, including one by New Orleans' safety Bobby Johnson, who legged the ball 70 yards for a third quarter touchdown.

Thompson, who comes from Pago Pago in American Samoa and whom Tampa Bay got from Cincinnati in a trade last June for a first round draft pick, was the target of a lot of booing last Sunday. Especially during the second half when the Bucs blew a 21-10 lead.

Some dumbbells in the crowd felt booing wasn't enough, so they hurled racial slurs at Thompson, loudly suggesting he "go back where you come from — that island off Africa."

They had their geography all wrong. Their oceans, too. American Samoa is in the Pacific, not the Atlantic.

Jack Thompson is a refreshingly outgoing and intelligent young man. He's a damn good football player, too. If those people who keep booing the 27-year-old former All-America from Washington State don't believe that, they should ask Forrest Gregg, who had him with the Bengals.

It hasn't been easy for Thompson, known as "The Throwin' Samoan" in college. In his four seasons with Cincinnati, he labored in the shadow of Ken Anderson, one of the best passers in the game. In his first season with the Buccaneers, he's replacing Doug Williams, who, as the NFL's lone black quarterback, picked up many supporters before he decided to leave Tampa Bay for more money with Oklahoma in the USFL.

After the game with the Saints, Thompson started thinking about how he and his teammates had been working so hard without having anything to show for it in the win column. He thought about the boos, the slurs and the pressure each week. Mostly, though, he thought about those Marines in Lebanon and their families.

"I got to think about all this so-called pressure, about how I was getting booed and cut to pieces," he says, reflectively. "The more I thought about all that compared to what happened in Lebanon, the more it put everything in perspective.

"What was happening to me was nothing compared to what has been happening to the families of those poor Marines. The bottom line of all that is this: If having to play with boos and having to live with this kind of pressure is the greatest ordeal Jack Thompson will have to go through in his lifetime, then he'll be a happy man. I couldn't possibly mean that more."

Despite the boos, Thompson says the vast majority of the fans in the Tampa Bay area have been very supportive.

"I never hear anything from the people who meet me in the street that I do from those in the stands. Maybe the ones who meet me face-to-face don't want to hurt me," Thompson laughs. "I like people," he goes on. "I really do. Nobody really has been that rough. I understand they want a winner. No more than we do, though."

Thompson keeps an open mind. It's so open, he doesn't even show any resentment when he hears that his predecessor, Williams, says he hopes "the Bucs go 0-for-16 this season."

"I didn't go through the negotiations he did," says Thompson, getting ready for the tough, division leading Pittsburgh Steelers this coming Sunday. "I try to understand where Doug is coming from, but it's hard to comment about what he says."

John McKay, who showed so much patience with Williams, is showing no less with Thompson. The Bucs' coach says he has never seen any developing quarterback, and that includes the greatest ones, who showed such consistently steady progress that he didn't encounter a few temporary setbacks along the way.

Thompson appreciates McKay's patience. He also appreciates the fact that as the Bucs' quarterback, he's going to keep being put under a microscope for sometime to come.

"That's what this position is all about," he says. "It's great when you're on a roll and it's terrible when you're not. You know how that goes. If you can't take the heat, then get outta the kitchen. I think I can take it."

Peete Wants Repeat At Pensacola Open

PENSACOLA (UPI) — Calvin Peete, winner of the 1982 Pensacola Open, is shooting for a repeat performance this week, which would give him his third win of the year on the PGA tour and break a late-year slump.

"I feel I'm playing better than I have in the last five weeks. I hope to get the momentum going tomorrow," Peete said Wednesday after finishing his pro-am round.

The tournament begins today.

Peete, who has won the Atlanta Golf Classic and Anheuser-Busch Golf Classic this year, hit a late-year slump with disqualification from the B.C. Open, a cut from the Las Vegas Pro Celebrity Classic and withdrawal from the Walt Disney World Golf Classic. The defending champion said he wasn't sure of his chances of winning again after his pro-am play.

Marple's Clutch Single Knocks Out Uncle Nick's

Don Marple singled home the winning run with no out in the bottom of the eighth inning to lift the Pookie Bears to a 9-8 victory over Uncle Nick's Oyster Bar in Sanford Men's Softball League play Wednesday night at Pinehurst Field.

The loss, coupled with the DeLuxe Bar's 16-1 victory over Session Time in Wednesday's first game, knocked Uncle Nick's from a first-place tie with DeLuxe. Uncle Nick's is 8-2 while DeLuxe is 9-1.

The Pookie Bears took a 3-1 lead in the second inning when Nicky Whitehead singled in one run and winning pitcher Gary Snell slapped a two-out single to chase home two more.

Uncle Nick's bounced back to take the lead in the fourth as hot-hitting Marty Ceresoli singled home two runs and a base hit by David Lively tallied another one for a 4-3 edge.

Snell put the Bears back in front in the bottom of the inning, though, when he doubled home two more runs for a 5-4 edge.

In the top of the fifth, however, Don Causseaux hammered a three-run homer as Uncle Nick's surged back in front, 7-5. The Bears, 3-7, came back with two of their own on a sacrifice fly by Steve Miller and an RBI force out by Whitehead to knot the game at 7-7 going into the sixth inning.

In the top of the eighth, Wayne Russel singled with one out and scored two hitters later when David Price singled.

In the bottom of the frame, Miller singled and Mark Smith doubled him home to tie the game. Whitehead then drew a walk and Bob Beins reached on an error by the shortstop to load the bases. Marple followed with a single to win the game.

Marple had three hits for the winners. Snell had two hits and four RBI. Miller had two hits and Whitehead drove in two runs. Price and Ceresoli had three hits apiece for the losers while Causseaux, Russel and Lively slapped two hits each.

DeLuxe Bar moved on top of the league as 10 players drove in one run or more in the 15-run victory over 4-5 Session Time. Burnett "Slim" Washington spaced seven hit to pick up the win and didn't give up a run after Russell Holloman's RBI-single in the first inning.

Levi Raines led the DeLuxe attack with three hits including a home run and three RBI. "Steady Eddie" Jackson had three hits and two ribbies. Lenon Anderson had three hits and one RBI while Lee Banks drove in three runs with a trio of singles.

Losing pitcher Wayne Crocker had a triple and a single for Session Time.

WORLD IN BRIEF

U.S., Chinese Search For Missing Oil Ship

PEKING (UPI) — U.S. and Chinese planes searched the stormy South China Sea today for an American oil exploration ship missing for two days and carrying as many as 90 people, including 40 Americans.

An official from Atlantic-Richfield Co., which contracted the ship, said it was possible the ship had been seized by Vietnam. But Hanoi was informed of the search for the 5,930-ton Glomar Java Sea and registered no objections, Western diplomatic sources said.

The vessel was last heard from at 11:10 p.m. local time Tuesday night, Chinese officials said. It signaled that it was listing 15 degrees in the Gulf of Tonkin as it battled the 75-mph winds and 26-foot swells of Tropical Storm Lex.

Vietnam has disputed China's rights to oil in the area. It warned last February that the operation of the Java Sea, under contract to Atlantic Richfield Co., was a violation of Vietnamese sovereignty.

Chile Braces For Protest

SANTIAGO, Chile (UPI) — Opposition forces and labor unions called on Chileans to take part in mass protests today demanding the military government of President Augusto Pinochet allow a restoration of democracy.

Pinochet, who has taken a tough line with anti-government forces, Wednesday warned that protest organizers will be liable to imprisonment and exile under new legislation the government plans to introduce to tighten already strict national security law.

At least 50 people have died in clashes with police and soldiers during the previous six protests.

The organizers called on Chileans to boycott schools and shops, and show their dissatisfaction with the 10-year-old military regime by banging on pots and pans in their homes at night — a traditional form of protest in Chile.

Rebels Deny Split

United Press International

Factions in Nicaraguan rebel Eden Pastora's alliance met into the night in a bid to reaffirm the group's unity despite internal friction and a spokesman for the guerrilla leader said he would remain in the organization.

The spokesman said Wednesday that Pastora will not break ranks with his Revolutionary Democratic Alliance, or ARDE, but was upset that a member group sought military training in Honduras and Argentina without his consent.

In Nicaragua, junta leader Daniel Ortega warned some 30,000 people gathered to protest the U.S. invasion of Grenada to have their "rifles ready to shoot" should U.S. forces invade.

...Tips For A Safe Trick-Or-Treating

- Choose wigs and beards that won't obscure children's vision.
- Use light colors for costumes or reflective tape on them so they'll show up after dark — and give children white shopping bags or make designs on them with reflective tape.
- Look for fire retardant labels on readymade costumes or material you use to make costumes.
- Make costumes large enough to wear over warm clothing if necessary.
- Use face makeup instead of masks so children can see easily. Apply cold cream base and then design faces with make-up, pencils, lipstick, rouge, blush, eye shadow or clown white — working from drawings the children themselves have made.
- Flashlights help children see and be seen more clearly.
- Flashlights also are preferable to candles in jack o'lanterns, also for safety reasons.
- Make knives, swords and other sharp accessories from cardboard instead of giving kids metal or plastic ones.
- Make no bike riding the rule if costumes are loose enough to get caught in the wheel spokes.
- Caution children to walk on sidewalks, not streets. If there are no sidewalks, walk on the left side of the road, facing traffic.
- Accompany young children.
- Give children a meal or snack before they go trick or treating so they won't be tempted to eat before they get home.
- Examine all edibles children bring home, especially unwrapped or loosely wrapped items. Only give or accept wrapped or packaged candy.
- Make your own home hospitable to young trick and treaters by keeping dogs away from the door so the children won't be frightened — and keep a light on so they can see the steps.

The nation-wide Tylenol poisoning scare last year made Halloween an occasion of real fear. This year, the Orlando Crime Prevention Commission has a tamper proof alternative to giving candy to trick-or-treaters — "Frightening Freebies." Available in Seminole County, they are Halloween coupons designed especially for trick-or-treaters that are redeemable for a free order of french fries from Burger King. Burger King is donating the proceeds of all Frightening Freebies sales to the crime commission to help fight crime in Central Florida.

Also included with each book of coupons is a list of Halloween safety tips. The coupons are available up until Halloween night at a cost of $1 for a book of 20 coupons at all Sun Banks and Burger Kings in Seminole County or by calling the Crime Prevention Commission at 422-8718.

Orlando General Hospital, 7727 Lake Underhill Drive, Orlando, is offering free X-rays of candy for all trick or treaters on Halloween night from 7-9 p.m.

The Florida Medical Association also recommends that parents ration the booty that children collect since they tend to binge on the goodies.

The Florida chapter of the Automobile Association of America recommends that children go trick-or-treating while it is still light outside and that they wear reflective tape on their costumes if they do go out at night.

Russians May Leave Arms Talks

MOSCOW (UPI) — President Yuri Andropov said today the Soviets will walk out of the Geneva arms negotiations if NATO begins deploying new nuclear missiles in Europe, but he offered new proposals to end the "impasse" in the talks.

A Western diplomat said the threat to walk out of the negotiations appeared to be a final Soviet attempt to postpone NATO's deployment of 572 cruise and Pershing 2 missiles in western Europe, scheduled to begin in December.

The Soviet Union announced Monday it was preparing to station new nuclear missiles in East Germany and Czechoslovakia to counter any American weapons.

Andropov said the Soviet Union was willing to count just warheads. Earlier, the Soviets insisted on parity in launchers or in launchers and warheads combined.

In Washington, the Reagan administration dismissed the new offer as inadequate and insincere.

It was not until her ninth month check-up that doctors at Good Samaritan Hospital in West Palm Beach found a lump near Ginger's kidney. Ginger was then referred to Shands Teaching Hospital in Gainesville. After more tests, she

The following morning Ginger was transferred to Houston, Texas to the Texas Children's Medical Center under the care of Dr. Franklin Harburg. The Hibiscus Circle of the Garden Club of Sanford held the October meeting at the home of Mrs. Herbert Moreland with Mrs. Lee Welch co-hostess. There were 12 members present with Mrs. Bea LeCerva welcomed as a new member.

Mike Martin, forester of the Seminole Agriculture Center, showed some pictures of trees and shrubs suitable for landscaping and told the advantages and disadvantages of each kind for this area.

A business meeting was conducted by the new circle president, Mrs. Leroy MacTavish. Mrs. Theobald gave a report of the Leu Gardens Festival.

Refreshments were served and the hostesses gave each one a bird made from dry branches of Puerto Rico palms.

Women Who Pay Way Can Play Their Way

DEAR ABBY: I want to congratulate the 16-year-old Iowa girl who didn't think it was fair for the fellow to always treat the girl. She said she had a job and could pay her own way, but her friends and parents thought she was crazy — the boy should always pay.

She is not "crazy" — she is smart. I am a senior citizen and have always felt that boys obligated girls by paying their way, then they expected sexual favors in return. (Maybe not all, but about 98 percent did.)

I say the girl should pay her own way, and if the boy makes romantic overtures, she is free to do what she wants, depending on the way she feels about him, because she won't owe him anything.

WISCONSIN GRANDMA

DEAR GRANDMA: Another Wisconsin shares your view:

DEAR ABBY: When I first started to date about 15 years ago, I was one of those rare girls who insisted on paying for myself. I got some strange looks, but that's the only way I felt comfortable.

My reason was twofold. First, I felt if a man treated me, I would owe him something, and that something could mean sex. Second, I believe male-female relationships should be mutual.

One of the few men I dated told me he appreciated my independent attitude. We're married now, and still share all the expenses.

IT'S WORKING IN EDGEMONT, WIS.

DEAR ABBY: My mother was terminally ill, so we decided to keep her home in familiar surroundings instead of having her live out her last months in a hospital.

This decision necessitated constant care, night and day, changing bed linen several times a day, and trying to make Mother as comfortable as possible. This was exhausting enough, but worse yet were friends, neighbors and relatives who felt the need to visit from 7:30 a.m.

Dear Abby

until 11 p.m.

I had to stop whatever I was doing to prepare coffee for these visitors, make sure they didn't stay too long and answer the telephone, which rang at least 50 times a day — people wanting to know how Mother was.

My husband finally put a "No Visitors" sign on our front door, which did no good because everyone thought the sign didn't apply to him.

Abby, please ask your readers to be more considerate of dying relatives and their families, and not drop in at all hours expecting conversation and coffee.

EXHAUSTED IN NEW YORK

DEAR EXHAUSTED: The "inconsiderate" visitors who need to heed this message will think it doesn't apply to them, so it's up to those caring for the very sick person to meet the visitors at the door with a firm but gentle, "I'm sorry, but this is not a good time to visit." And put a muffler on your telephone.

CONFIDENTIAL TO AMBITIOUS IN CONNECTICUT: There are two ways to get money: Marry it or earn it. Actually, there is only ONE way, because if you marry it, you will earn it.

Diuretics May Help Bring On A Stroke

DEAR DR. LAMB — I had a stroke a year ago. My doctor told me to cut down my diuretic pill from one pill to a half pill a day. Shortly after that I got the stroke.

Please tell me if he should not have recommended this to me. Every day on TV they tell people not to stop taking the pills once they have started. Is this true?

Also, someone told me I should take aspirin every day. Would you advise this?

DEAR READER — Since strokes and heart attacks are unpredictable diseases, we never know when a patient may have one. And the occurrence usually has nothing to do with medicine. The probabilities are that you would have had a stroke despite continuing the same dosage of your diuretic.

Having said that, I must add that I am concerned about patients taking too much medicine. Diuretics work by washing out sodium and water from your body. That lowers blood pressure. It also decreases the blood volume and makes your blood more concentrated.

When you have less blood you may not be able to maintain a good blood flow to your brain. In that way diuretics could actually contribute to strokes. And there are studies that show that increasing the blood volume reverses the paralysis and findings of a stroke when this is done at the onset of the stroke.

Still other studies show that more concentrated blood may make circulation through small arteries more difficult. So the liberal use of diuretics in individuals susceptible to strokes may not always be wise. That is why I am delighted to see a swing to using other medications to control high blood pressure, such as the beta blockers and calcium blockers that do not affect blood volume or blood concentration.

I do not routinely recommend aspirin for strokes. Large doses of aspirin may even be harmful. You should let your doctor guide you on what is best for your case.

But I am sending you The Health Letter 16-6, What You Need To Know About Strokes, to give you more information.

No, I do not agree that once you start blood pressure medicine you must take it for life. A recent study reported at the last American Heart Association meeting showed this is not true. But you do need to let your doctor decide.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I would like to know if there is any harm to the skin when a person cleans his face with full-strength alcohol?

DEAR READER — Alcohol does have some penetrating ability but the relatively hard cell layers at the surface of the skin will minimize absorption. The small absorption may help control some bacteria lives just under the skin surface. That could be helpful.

It is an astringent and will dry the skin. If your skin gets too dry from full-strength alcohol you might dilute it half and mix with water.

The drying effect can be helpful in controlling mild cases of acne. Alcohol also mixes well with oils and helps to remove excess oil from the skin. That is part of the way it helps in controlling mild cases of acne.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You could be caught in a situation today where your pride is wounded. However, instead of making a big issue of it bite the bullet and shrug it off. SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Do not try to palm your responsibilities off on others today. It could end up causing you additional complications. Be duty-conscious.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) Your investigative instincts which you usually rely upon may be temporarily out of order today. Be careful not to be taken in by someone deceptive.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Normally you're agreeable and easygoing, but today there's a chance the opposite might be true and you'll rub others the wrong way.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) There's a possibility you could be in a negative frame of mind today, where you'll resent not only doing things for others but for yourself as well.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Counting on factors which are not visible or presently in the palm of your hands is like betting in the blind today. Be aware of the odds.

CANCER (June 21-July 21) Take pains to be extra-prudent today in managing your resources. Carelessness could lead to the types of mistakes which may be very costly.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) Flexing your muscles in order to get others to do your bidding today could backfire. Instead of using any form of intimidation, try saying "please."

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Be wary today of being a faultfinder who looks for the negative rather than the positive side of things. Seek problems and you'll find them.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) A friend of long standing may make unreasonable demands of you today. If you feel they're not justified, let him or her know it.

exactly one small trump. What Pete was worried about was his contract. He had lost a club as a starter and three trump tricks added to that one club would leave him one trick short.

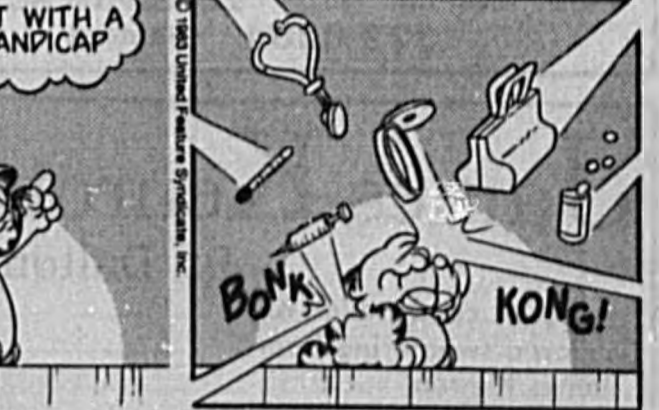

Pete saw that if West held all five trumps, there was little that he could do about it.

Anyway, East took his ace of clubs and led back to dummy's king. Now Pete was ready for a safety play. He led dummy's one trump and played his nine. West showed out, but Pete was now in full control. He simply played ace and queen of trumps. East got his king and collected the 10 later on, but Pete had his game.

If any of readers want to have some fun with this hand, you may try to study the chances of a declarer who finessees. Then work out some sort of trump coup to hold East to two trump tricks. It can be done so that this time Pete's far-fetched safety play was wasted.

JFK Considered Cuba Invasion, Tapes Show

BOSTON (UPI) — President John F. Kennedy, during the tense days of the Cuban missile crisis in October 1962, considered an invasion of the island nation to remove medium-range missiles smuggled in by the Soviet Union, newly released records show.

Kennedy, in two tense White House meetings with close advisers on Oct. 16, 1962, weighed three alternatives to counter the Russian missile deployment which threatened the southern and eastern coasts of the United States.

He eventually decided on a naval blockade of the island nation.

Transcripts — 85 pages and heavily edited to delete sensitive material — of the two off-the-record meetings were released Wednesday by the JFK Library in a timely parallel to the U.S. invasion of Grenada this week.

They made it clear Kennedy was determined to excise the missiles from Cuba, one way or another.

"I don't think we got much time on these missiles," said Kennedy. "Maybe (we) just have to take them out and continue our other preparations if we decide to do that. That may be where we wind up."

Military advisers estimated JFK had anywhere between six hours and two weeks before the missiles — capable of carrying nuclear warheads — would be operational. A decision had to be made before the weapons were capable of being fired.

Former Defense Secretary Robert

McNamara outlined three options, arguing against the one he described as "political" — to call for diplomatic confrontations with Cuban Premier Fidel Castro and Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev.

McNamara felt tipping the U.S. hand too early would have seriously hurt the chances of success for the two other options — a naval blockade or air strikes followed by an invasion.

Kennedy was chillingly aware that the U.S. would be on its own and could not warn its NATO allies or friends in South America of planned action.

"But of course warning them, uh, it seems to me is warning everybody," Kennedy said. "And I, I obviously, you can't sort of announce that in four days from now you're going to take them (the missiles) out."

"They may announce within three days they're going to have warheads on 'em; if we come and attack, they're going to fire them. Then what'll we do? Then we don't take them out. Of course, then we announce, we, if they do that, then we're going to attack with nuclear weapons."

Most of the discussion concerned the feasibility of air strikes, either limited to the launch sites or broadened to include support facilities and Russian MIG fighters. A full-scale invasion was considered as a follow up to the strikes.

Kennedy finally opted for a middle-of-the-road solution, a naval blockade.

Deer Hunt Opposed In Suit

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Conservationists are suing the Interior Department to stop a controversial deer hunt slated to begin Saturday in Florida's Loxahatchee National Wildlife Refuge.

The Humane Society of the United States announced Wednesday it has asked U.S. District Judge Lewis Oberdorfer to halt the South Florida hunt, charging that 24 species of wildlife, "designated as endangered, threatened, or of special concern would be adversely affected by the hunt."

Some of the animals the conservation group said could suffer include the river otter, bobcat, Florida panther, and birds like the bald eagle, snowy egret and great blue heron.

Humane Society Vice President John Grandy argued that the 600 permits being issued will allow hunters to "invade this pristine wildlife sanctuary."

"The opening of the refuge is particularly absurd when you consider that there are already more than a million acres of land in South Florida open to hunting," said Grandy.

Polishing The Brass

The brass section of Lake Brantley High School's Royal Blue Brigade marches across the field during a half-time performance at a recent football game, a preview of the kind of entertainment that will be provided Saturday in the ninth annual Seminole County High School Band Festival. The Blue Brigade will be one of seven area high school bands participating in the festival which is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Lake Brantley High School stadium. The event, which will also feature a fireworks display, is being sponsored by the Sanford Optimist Club and the Evening Herald.

Port Wants PSC Review Of LMU's Rate Increase

By Michael Beha
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole County Port Authority Attorney William Hutchison says he doesn't want to deny a rate hike to Lake Monroe Utilities (LMU), he just wants the new rates to be fair.

Hutchison, who represented the Port Authority in a state Public Service Commission hearing today at the Holiday Inn on Interstate 4 near Sanford, said the utility deserves a rate increase but not the 300 percent increase approved by the PSC in July.

The rate increase is the first LMU has received in 10 years. Under the new rates, which took effect last month, an average water user's monthly bill increased to $92.96 from $22.50. Average monthly sewer bills went from $46.31 to $173.96.

Port Authority Director Dennis Dolgner said he has kept the Port's bills from LMU for the past two years, the period used by the PSC staff in analyzing the rate structure. He said there is a great disparity in the bills for the building which serves as the Port's office.

"For five months we averaged 200 gallons (of water) a month. That's about one trip to the bathroom per person per week. For a couple of months we averaged 16,000 gallons. That's about 37 trips to the bathroom per person per day," he said.

Dolgner claims the new rates are unfair and could discourage companies from locating at the Port's industrial park.

Hutchison said he hopes to convince the PSC that they had insufficient data to justify the higher rates. He'd like to see the PSC monitor LMU's operation before making the rates permanent.

Pumpkin Supply Down; Price Up

United Press International

Even Linus might be discouraged by this year's search for the Great Pumpkin. With Halloween just a shout of "trick or treat" away, pumpkin supplies are down and prices are up.

Children hoping to carve spooky faces in huge jack-o'-lanterns and cooks who crave fresh fillings for Thanksgiving pies are finding a paucity of perfect pumpkins.

They will pay extra for the pumpkins they do choose because of the hottest, driest summer since the Dust Bowl days.

Many of the pumpkins now on sale are small, bumpy and less meaty — nothing like the pumpkin of harvest moon proportions that the Peanuts comic strip character Linus seeks in vain every year.

Pumpkins in the Tidewater area of Virginia developed bumpy surfaces due to the hot, dry conditions.

"It's probably one of the worst pumpkin years I've ever seen," said Ken Gustafson, owner of the Ashland Berry Farm.

Sally Eaton of Bogue Orchards in New Castle, Ind. says this year's pumpkin crop is the worst she has seen in 12 years in the business.

"We don't have hardly any size at all. I would say it's half of what we got last year."

In North Carolina, "we've had more (pumpkins) this year than we've ever had, but the average size pumpkin was cheaper last year than this year because of the weather," said Charlie Murray, manager of the state farmers market in Raleigh. "For an average size pumpkin, buyers will be paying $3 to $5 this year compared to $2 to $3 last year."

Quality pumpkins can be bought in Chicago, but consumers will be paying top dollar. One man paid $6 for his soon-to-be jack-o'-lantern, but said it was worth it.

"It was the best pumpkin I've had in five years. Big, orange, smooth. I had to shell out six bucks for my beautiful city pumpkin. It's going to be scary," he said.

Land that was irrigated produced an abundant but costly crop.

"This is one of the best crops we've had in the six years we've been growing pumpkins but it also has cost more than any other crop we've had," said Lee Roy Frazier, who was forced to irrigate his 8-acre pumpkin field near Wake Forest, N.C.

Planters in heavily irrigated west Texas were hurt more by an early freeze than by the summer drought.

"The freeze hurt is worse than the drought," Ben Roming, the state's largest grower, said. "The drought made pumpkins smaller than normal. But it was the Sept. 20 freeze that did the damage. It came a month early and pumpkins were not mature, not fully grown."

Roming had hoped for 5 million pounds of pumpkins from his farm near Lubbock. He said he will end up with a harvest of about 3 million or 4 million pounds.

Circleville, Ohio gathered enough pumpkins to hold the Circleville Pumpkin Show, but they were smaller and less meaty.

"When you cut one open, you won't find as much meat inside," said show treasurer Clarence Radcliffe.

Circleville's festival menu includes pumpkin cookies, pumpkin cakes, pumpkin pies and pumpkin ice cream.

Amnesty Charges Human Rights Crimes Worldwide

LONDON (UPI) — Amnesty International paints a dark picture of torture, summary trials, disappearances and the denial of human rights in 117 nations around the world.

The independent human rights organization's annual report for 1982 said 1,609 prisoners in 49 countries were known to have been "put to death" last year but "the real total was certainly higher."

It said torture and political imprisonment were widespread in Africa, the Americas and Eastern Europe.

But it also singled out western European countries such as West Germany, Switzerland, France, Italy and Greece along with East Germany, the Soviet Union and Hungary for imprisoning conscientious objectors to military service.

It said Amnesty continues to receive reports that political prisoners were being tortured in Turkey, "and that some had died as a result."

The 351-page report of the London-based organization detailed thousands of cases of prisoners "held only for their beliefs or origins, or held without trial or after inadequate trials, or subjected to cruel or inhuman treatment."

It described political killings by governments, the "disappearance" of suspected government opponents and other "violations of the human rights commitments governments have pledged to uphold."

It said governments used "deception, distortion and disinformation on human rights questions."

It said "statements about human rights have been misused to make political propaganda," citing as examples Soviet news media reporting on Poland, statements by U.S. officials on Central America and "the sudden attention given in Britain during its (Falklands) conflict with Argentina to torture and disappearances in that country."

"The concealment of facts, the dissemination of half-truths or lies and other forms of manipulation of public opinion by governments must be challenged," the report said.
