Opponents Of Concorde Launch Legal Offensive

WASHINGTON (AP) - Opponents of the Concorde are launching a major legal offensive against the supersonic jet today as the object of their opposition sat on an airport runway only 15 miles away.

A three-judge appeals court was to hear the case five days before the first scheduled U.S. flights by the controversial plane were to begin. Two days earlier, French President Valery Giscard d'Estaing arrived on a Concorde at nearby Andrews Air Force Base for a state visit. The suits before the appeals court challenged the Feb. 4 ruling by Transportation Secretary William T. Coleman Jr. that authorized Air France and British Airways each to operate two Concorde flights daily into New York's John F. Kennedy Airport and one flight daily into Washington's Dulles International Airport for up to 16

Coleman said the 16-month test period would allow the government to determine whether the plane was environmentally acceptable. He said he would decide after that time whether the British-French built plane should be given permanent landing rights at the two airports.

FLORIDA Report Of Bogus Abortions

TALLAHASSEE (AP) - A television report that Miami clinics are performing purported abortions on women who are not pregnant has led to House subcommittee approval of a bill to license abortion clinics. The Health and Rehabilitative Services subcommittee approved the Senate bill, CS-SB53, in a 4-0 vote Tuesday after viewing a videotape of the report by Miami television station WCKT. The measure passed despite warnings from two at-

Federal Budget Deficit Perilous

Labor Statistics, went to Capitol Hill as the bearer of good news. The American economy created 710,000 new jobs in April, raising total employment to a record 87.4 million. As Shiskin told the Joint Economic Committee of Congress, the rate of employment growth over the last year has been

In fact, Shiskin is of the opinion that it's time to stop referring to the state of our economy as "recovery." We have moved past recovery, as he sees it, into a "growth stage". In employment levels and the gross national product, the economy now is producing more than it was before the

Every economist has his own method of drawing conclusions from economic statistics. No economist would ignore them altogether, however, and we are wondering if Congress is listening when Mr. Shiskin and others provide their data. The budget targets emerging from Congress for the 1976-77 fiscal year seem to be based on old sets of

House and Senate budget committees have now agreed to set $413.3 billion as their target for the federal budget for the fiscal year beginning next Oct. 1. That's $17.5 billion higher than what President Ford proposed in January, calling for a deficit of more than $50 billion. And the excuse offered for this indulgence in deficit spending is that the economy is going to need stimulating in True enough, Americans right now are joining the labor force in numbers that have kept the o ficial unemployment rate from falling below 7.5 per JOHN CUNNIFF cent. The economic growth which has taken hold will have to become stronger in order to whittle down that figure, but with the momentum evident in the performance of the last few months, there is every reason to believe that such strength will materialize to some degree.

Another statistic that Congress may be ignoring comes from the inflation indicators. Wholesale prices which has held steady for five months jumped by eight-tenths of a percentage point in April, foreshadowing increases in retail prices later this year. The relief from inflation which consumers have enjoyed — a relatively mild 2.9 per cent increase in retail prices for the first quarter of this year - may be in jeopardy.

This raises the question of what beacon Congress should be following in mapping the course of federal spending in 1977. To assume in May of 1976 that the economy is going to need the stimulus of a $50 billion deficit a year from now is hardly justified. To program that kind of excess into the budget when the economy is in a period of growth would be inflationary. Fortunately, Congress can take another look at prospective spending programs before setting a final budget ceiling Sept. 15. The next four months also gives Congress time to take a closer look at what is happening in the real world of the U. S. economy.

Moment Of Truth

scheduling of parliamentary elections on June 20 are bringing Italy to a moment of truth in its long flirtation with a supposedly ndependent Communist Party, Communist successes in June on a scale with the 33 per cent of the vote captured in last year's regional elections probably would place leaders of the party in a new national government.

The political campaign now beginningg will attract as much attention from the rest of Western Europe and the United States as it does in Italy. The question in the minds of Italy's friends and allies is the same as the one facing the Italians. Is this Communist Party really independent of the Soviet Union and really dedicated to the principles of parliamentay democracy

Italian voters have the choice of finding the answer the hard way - by giving the Communists a share of power and seeing what happens - or trying to answer the question on the basis of history and the doctrines embraced by Communists the world over. How the voters go may depend mostly on the leadership of Italy's non-Communist parties, who will be on the spot in the next six weeks to show that they have better answers than the Communists to the volatile political, economic and social issues that have made Italy barely governable in recent months.

tending college, she has finally realized it at the age of 43.

"You can do anything if you really want to do it," says the new attorney, who still has two children at home. "You have to be super efficient. In between studying a attending classes you still have to shop, go to the bank, take the children to the orthodontist, and do all the other things involved in raising a Married soon after graduation, she gave birth to three of 11 years, despite the danger involved in pregnancy because of her heart condition.

When the youngest was 2, Ms. Weiss, as she prefers to be called, entered college at the age of 31, graduating from State University College at Buffalo in 1968, and went to work as a teacher.

"After one year I decided it was not the career for me," she recalls. "I was used to running other people's lives to a considerable extent, and I was not used to restrictions."

Her next job brought her one step closer to her goal of becoming an attorney. She was hired as a paralegal by a Buffalo law firm, and after several years with the firm her responsibilities had increased significantly, but her salary had

"My employer advised me to go to law school if I wanted to earn more," she says.

So, in the fall of 1972, she entered State University of New York at Burialo Law School as a fulltime student, but once again it was not to be easy. She and weeks before she started law school, and they were subsequently divorced.

"It was exceedingly difficult after the divorce to get my mind into gear for studying," says Ms. Weiss, who returned to using her maiden name. "Divorce is a trauma, and no matter how much either party wants it, there is a period of adjustment that is difficult." There was also the adjustment to law school itself, which she found entirely different from college and much more

Workshop At FTU

Florida Tech's popular faculty ensemble will be presented in concert on May 16, at 8:30 p.m. in the Music Rehearsal Hall on campus. The program is free to the public. Members of the group include Patricia Stenberg, oboe and recorders: Sabina Micarelli, violin; Gary Wolf, piano; and Lee Eubank, string bass. All are well-known to Floridians as outstanding teachers and performers. Basically Baroque ensemble was organized in the fall of 1973 and has been in popular demand since that time. The ensemble will be joined for the evening by two guest artists - John Borg, viola, and John -Norton, clarinet. Borg is principal violist with the West Coast Symphony in Sarasota and Norton is presently a graduate The program will include works by Prowo, Telemann, Loeffler and Prokofieff.

'Draft Humphrey' Movement Under Way

Jimmy Carter's loss in Maryland's Democratic primary election and a near miss in Michigan's contest have backers of Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey on the move.

They planned to announce today the formation of a committee to draft the Minnesota senator for the Democratic presidential nomination that he held eight years ago. without the senator's authorization or encouragement - are Joseph Crangle, a Democratic leader from Erie County, N.Y., and Rep. Paul

Simon said Wednesday he and Crangle decided on the move because the primary results in Michigan and Maryland, coupled with those the week before, "have changed the picture somewhat."

Humphrey has refused to enter the race for the nomination, saying only that he would accept a draft from the convention this summer. In Ohio for a speech, Humphrey took a look at the results from the day before in Michigan and Maryland, and proclaimed the party is headed for
