School Choice: Cereal, Juice Or Milk?

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
Herald Staff Writer

Breakfast may return to Seminole County schools. Three of the five members of the Seminole County School board said today they would be in favor of a pilot breakfast program.

Their comments were aimed at a just-completed breakfast survey conducted in all 40 county schools by the food service department in compliance with a recently passed state law.

Most Florida counties already have some type of breakfast program in their schools, according to D.F. Kirkpatrick, assistant food service director.

The survey was completed over about a two-month period.

Letters were sent to the parents listing the proposed menu and asking if their child would participate daily, two or three times a week, occasionally or never.

Parents at three schools said their children would participate in some type program while parents at the other schools indicated for the most part their children would not participate.

Principals at Rosenwald and Wilson Elementary said they would be interested in the program if certain conditions are met.

Principals at Casselberry Elementary, Goldsboro Elementary and Croons High School recommended the program be started at their schools. Rosenwald and Wilson Elementary gave a qualified yes.

School Board members Roland Williams, E.C. Harper Jr. and Pat Tolson said today when the issue comes before the board at next Wednesday's meeting they would vote to begin the program on a trial basis.

"I definitely support the idea and would hope eventually we could have an all-out program if it is desired," said Williams.

"I would go along with the program on a trial basis, because a lot of times it looks good on paper but a lot of complications can arise," said Harper.

Mrs. Tolson, chairman of the board said "I'd hate to see any child go hungry and if the staff believes it should be done I would think it should be done on a trial basis."

Charlotte Whitmore, food service director said "If the principals at the schools believe they can handle the supervisory part of it and if we are given enough lead time I see no reason why we can't implement it."

About four weeks would be needed to handle the necessary paper work and get the breakfast foods in to distribute to the selected schools, Mrs. Whitmore said.

The children could be served about 30 minutes before school begins and would be charged 30 cents for the breakfast which would consist of a package of cereal, a four-ounce carton of orange juice and an eight-ounce carton of milk, she said.

Some children in the schools would be eligible for a free or reduced price breakfast costing 10 cents, she said.

The children who would be eligible for the free or reduced breakfast would be the ones who now receive the free and reduced lunch. They are eligible for both meals based on the parents' income and the number

GOP Boss: Why Do Demos Make Issue Of Machines?

Bill McCollum, chairman of the local Republican executive committee, said today Democratic County Chairman Rod Cable "stoooped awfully low when he used Wednesday's voting machine inspection as an excuse to attack Republican City Manager Warren E. Knowles. Mike said there were no letters of reprimand placed in the files of the officers in connection with "improper" activities.

The files, which Mike said

"Before the 1976 general election, Hagerty found four machines with votes already recorded for Democratic candidates but these were quickly corrected and the Republican party didn't call the press and attack the county commissioner on the eve of an election.

"The presence of numbers on counters of three or four machines has no relation with the number of men working on the machines. "If there had been 10 men working, the chances are a handful of machines would have had registered counter numbers," said McCollum. (McCollum had been out of town and unavailable for comment Thursday.)

Cable, Thursday, chastised the county commission for

"turned up absolutely nothing wrong with any machine.

The official Republican Party inspector, Phil Hagerty spent several hours examining the machines at the same time as Cable and was unequivocally there were no significant problems found.

Out of 176 machines inspected, three or four had low digit numbers on the public counters left over from routine maintenance work," McCollum said.

"In nearly every inspection a few numbers which are easily corrected as was the case Wednesday.

"It is virtually impossible for Johnson to be at the back of the machine and the front of the machine at the same time," said Cable, "yet Johnson was expected to finish the job himself."

Supervisor of Elections Camille Bruce said when the helper was taken off the job,

Housing Panel, Realtors Target County Fair Housing

Such a panel would work with the Seminole County Board of Realtors to implement its affirmative marketing agreement for fair housing, according to Lee Black, equal opportunity specialist with HUD.

The agreement provides for the board of realtors to establish an equal-opportunity committee, ensure implementation of the agreement and receive and investigate complaints of discrimination involved in the marketing of homes.

The Seminole County Board of Realtors recently signed an affirmative marketing agreement and has established an equal opportunity committee, according to the Simpson, committee chairman.

"The CHRB would work with the board of realtors to ensure the affirmative marketing agreement is being carried out. The CHRB and board of realtors would meet quarterly to assess the program of the agreement. The CHRB will also work with the board of realtors to work out any problems which might arise and will participate with the realtors in an annual affirmative marketing review by HUD, according to former Seminole Black.

Affirmative marketing is strictly a voluntary program. "What we're really doing with affirmative marketing is reaffirming the golden rule," commented Simpson.

Later he noted the program was voluntary.

"This was a voluntary agreement," said Simpson. "No one from HUD or any branch of the federal government came down to us and said, 'you have to sign this agreement.'"

Black agreed.

"We like to emphasize the voluntary part of this program," he said. "Without voluntary agreement this would not work."

In addition to affirmative marketing, realtors are to encourage minorities to enter the real estate profession under provisions of the agreement.

"That's where we'll really need the help of HUD," commented Simpson.

Also attending the meeting for HUD was Roosevelt Peay.

$500-Plate Fete Nets Graham $60,000

By DONNA ETTES
 There is a new generation of leadership in Florida, combining the best from the business community, the labor movement, the academic area and government," said Robert Graham, Democratic gubernatorial nominee to supporters Thursday night who paid $500-a-plate to eat a prime rib dinner with the candidate and to hear him speak.

The last fund-raising event in the Graham campaign for the governorship, held at the mansion of developer/entrepreneur Everett Huskey in Sweetwater Oaks, Longwood, raised "just a hair short of $60,000."

The money, Graham told the crowd, is to give a wide TV showing of a 30-minute campaign film on Graham, his family and the issues.

"It takes a significant number of George Washingtons to be effective in a campaign. We're showing the film as often as we can," said the Democratic chief-executive hopeful.

"This gathering shows the Democratic spirit," he said. "We campaign hard during a primary, give it our best shot and afterwards we come together," he said, asking for a show of hands of those persons who had formerly been with the campaign of unsuccessful Robert Sherin, Jim Williams and on through the list of those men Graham had defeated in two party primaries.

"Is there anyone here who was with Claude Kirk?" he asked with a smile. Or Leroy Edent? We hope the mayor will join with us ultimately," said Graham, referring to Jacksonville Mayor Hans Tander who has joined the opposing forces of Republican nominee Jack Eckert.

Reporting that a poll is being published today in the Miami Herald showing that the Graham-Wayne Mixson slate holds a substantial lead in the gubernatorial race at this point, Graham said. "As of now primary, give it our best shot and afterwards we come together," he said, asking for a show of hands of those persons who had formerly been with the campaign of unsuccessful Robert Sherin, Jim Williams and on through the list of those men Graham had defeated in two party primaries.

"One of those things that is being said is sectionalism and the government in Florida must share responsibility for shedding this prejudice. We have all the pieces and can put them together to have one Florida. And we can have a period of good, responsive government in our state," he told the enthusiastic crowd.

Mize: Police Solicited 'In Innocence'

LaPetra has denied having any knowledge of the folders or requesting that they be assembled.

Mize said the improper exchange of equipment occurred on two occasions. A Florida Highway Patrol trooper was given a two-way radio, however the radio has been returned.

On the second occasion, a light bar and siren was changed with a private police equipment firm, Mize said.

The city attorney said although he believes policemen in uniform soliciting funds is illegal, it was done in "innocence."

"The example I like to point to is raising funds to send the Sanford little league to the state fields. The officer didn't know it was illegal," Mize said.

"The law isn't that clear, but if someone went on doing it, action would be taken," Mize said.

"It's not that unusual for policemen to solicit funds," Cheshire said. "I think the matter can best be handled by the representatives."

Cheshire initiated the internal investigation following his probe of the surprise firing of LaPetra in July.

During his investigation, which showed no criminal wrongdoing in matters charged by LaPetra, several officers said they had heard rumors of irregularities at the police department.

Cheshire requested the police department conduct an internal investigation of the rumors and supplied a list of policemen who testified during his probe.

Sgt. Roy Williams was assigned to conduct the internal investigation and he reported several of the officers declined to repeat what they had told the state attorney.

Both Mize and Cheshire said if any of those officers change his mind and decides to come forward with new information the investigation could be reopened.

United Way Tops 1978 Goal Of $220,000

A last minute surge has put the 1978 United Way of Seminole campaign for funds over the top.

Volunteer campaign workers held their breath as a nervous campaign chairman Robert Daehn announced the total of $221,485 at the Victory Dinner held at the Holiday Inn in Sanford.

This year's goal of $220,000 was the largest quota yet.

Co-chairmen of the Pilot Division, Tom Hunt and Jack Horner reported they had exceeded their goal with a final total of $102,751.01 in pledges and contributions. Two of the major contributors to the success of this division were Stromberg-Carlson with a combined corporate and employee gift of $42,187.00 up 92 percent from last year and NCR with a combined gift of more than $12,000 a 62 percent increase. Winter Park Telephone Co. gave $10,874.03.

John Stewart and Jack Weible, co-chairmen of the commercial division, reported a total of $49,817.87.

Among the major contributors in this division were Montgomery Ward, Sears, Altamonte Mall, Burdines, Jordan Marsh, Clark Chrysler-Plymouth, Interstate Mall, Sanford Airport, Eckard Drugs, All State Insurance and J.C. Penney.

Wayne Albert, chairman of the financial division reported a total of $18,885.88 from banks, savings and loans, and finance companies.

Sheila Brown went over her goal in both the professional division with a total of $11,538.85 and the special gifts division with a total of $10,347.

Under feature gifts she reported $4,000 from the Orlando Seminole Jai Alai Fronton and $1,500 from Sanford-Orlando Kennel Club.

Hesekiah Ross, chairman, reported a total of $1,668.86 from the Black Community division.

Ernest Cowley reported a total of $10,322.64 in the education division. Of this $9,265.64 was from the county schools and the balance from Seminole Community College.

City Chairman under the public employees division Eddie Rose reported a first. One hundred percent of the employees of the city of Longwood pledged a total of $608. This was the first year the city participated in payroll deductions.

A total of $7,722.20 was pledged from the city, county, state and federal employees. Employees in the various United Way agencies also contributed to the fund drive. Several firms indicated their final reports are not yet in so LW officials feel the total will eventually be even higher.

He's The Best For Congress

David Best offers residents of the Fifth Congressional District of Florida the best hope for the future.

Mr. Best, vying to unseat Republican Rep. Richard Kelly, carries with him the promise of fresh new leadership and approaches to the problems facing our county, our state, our nation.

In Mr. Best we see the specter of positive approaches to some of the complex questions and issues of our time, rather than a continued reliance on glib negativism.

At the same time, we are convinced he will avoid the temptation to demagogue on many of these issues — a temptation too frequently given to in the halls of Congress.

Mr. Best has a unique background — teacher, lawyer, intelligence agent. This latter experience, gained in service with the National Security Agency, means he probably is familiar with the intricacies of the federal bureaucracy. All pluses for a freshman national legislator.

Mr. Best is bright, knowledgeable, articulate. And we have no doubt he will apply these traits in advancing the cause of our area and the nation in responsible tones.

Unlike his incumbent opponent who has proudly proclaimed his intention "to save the world," Mr. Best has no such grandiose objective. He just wants to serve.

That's fine with us. We want him to represent us in the House of Representatives.

Sandra Glenn For Commission

Sandra Glenn wants to transfer her legislative experience from the city level of Alamoonte Springs to the county level of Seminole.

She deserves that chance. Mrs. Glenn is not just another pretty face — although we would be the first to concede such an addition would be a positive acquisition to county government — but she is an able, capable, knowledgeable municipal official.

During her four-year tenure as city commissioner in Alamoonte, Mrs. Glenn has chalked up an impressive record. Examples: she was a prime mover in implementing two property-tax reductions, a utility tax cut, an improved mosquito control program, and a joint planning agency between local and county government.

The latter item is probably most significant. For, if there is any top priority in our area that needs attention, it is that of a better coordinated effort between the county and its municipalities.

In her platform, Mrs. Glenn has pledged an advocacy of planned and orderly growth and all that entails, including updating of building and planning codes to meet our future needs.

She has also pledged to be a full-time commissioner. That is another plus for her, in our opinion.

Sandra Glenn also has accrued legislative and administrative experience as a member of several governmental agencies — from the East Central Florida Regional Planning Council to the Florida League of Cities Environmental Quality Committee.

She has demonstrated her devotion to public service, which we want to see her continue on the Seminole County Commission.

By DORIS DIETRICH

A woman's wit. Never underestimate or try to second guess the tactics and strategy Milady might employ to drive a bargain. Every woman probably has her own built-in system for successfully executing her whims (and him).

And don't let that sweet, innocent, demure exterior surface fool you. She may be seemingly shy — but probably shy like the old fox.

Several days ago, I crossed paths with a super lady whom I had not seen in several years. Jill is the former operator of a fashion boutique.

All at the sight of each other, we burst out laughing before embracing, followed by catching up on the news over coffee.

A few years ago, I was the lone customer in her shop just before closing time. I had selected several items to try and was headed for the dressing room when Jill looked toward the front door and excitedly exclaimed, "Oh, my goodness, here comes Jack."

He's late. Please don't leave until I get rid of this wool in sheep's clothing, and I'll give you a discount."

Jill, a high-fashion, prim and proper prostrator, peeled off her chic gray pinstriped jacket and posed provocatively by the counter-desk. "What in blue heaven is going on here?" I thought. Her white blouse was the flimsiest, flimsiest patch of fabric I think I ever saw for day wear — very poor taste for a fashion freak.

I might add that the incident took place before women became liberated from the underpinnings securing the — uh — chest area.

Spurs swirls of lace snagged under the sheer, sheer top covering — not leaving too much to the imagination. And I might further add that Jill is well — uh — stacked.

Jack dropped the handful of papers he was carrying, and when Jill stooped over to pick them up — ope! — nearly spilted — well, almost. Jill was closing a deal — or so, it seemed — and the haggling began.

She shuffled the papers and arranged them like a playing card hand. Dramatically checking the papers close to her upper torso, Jill moved them periodically, fast-fashion, to circulate the warm air. She finally leaned forward — sans shield of papers — quoted a figure, and had Jack sign, sealed and delivered before his eyes left their sockets in his peek-a-boo play.

Now that the business at hand was finalized, it seemed pretty obvious that Jack might have another — uh — deal in mind.

I was frantically rummaging through racks of clothing — but not out of clear bearing and visibility range. This was getting very interesting.

Jill grabbed her jacket, buttoned it up to her neckline and headed in my direction saying, "Oh, dear, I almost forgot my husband's sister is here trying on clothes. So long, Jack."

Jill was single at the time.

How Does It Look In Illinois?

CHICAGO (NEA) — Unless the Republicans surprise everyone with a sweep on Nov. 7, the off-year elections of 1978 are not likely to offer many clues to Jimmy Carter's re-election prospects for 1980.

But that doesn't mean that this year's balloting has no relevance to presidential politics. On the contrary, for at least three men who are eyeing Carter's job with more than casual interest, the Nov. 7 results will be crucial.

One is California's Gov. Jerry Brown, the president's most likely Democratic challenger. The second is Senate Minority Leader Howard Baker, R-N.H., and the third is GOP Sen. James R. Thompson of Illinois.

All three are up for re-election this year, and all three must not only win but win big if they are to remain credible as presidential contenders for 1980. Which imposes added strains above and beyond the ordinary pressures of a campaign, especially for "Big Jim" Thompson.

Thompson, 62, became a figure to be reckoned with in national politics when he won the governorship two years ago by a record-shattering 1.4 million votes, a 58 percent margin. But the very size of his 1976 victory is what makes his election sticky; it is a hard act to repeat.

Thompson, a former federal prosecutor who made his name fighting corruption in Chicago, was tipped two years ago with an inside and supporting Democratic opponent put forward by the machine of the late Mayor Richard J. Daley.

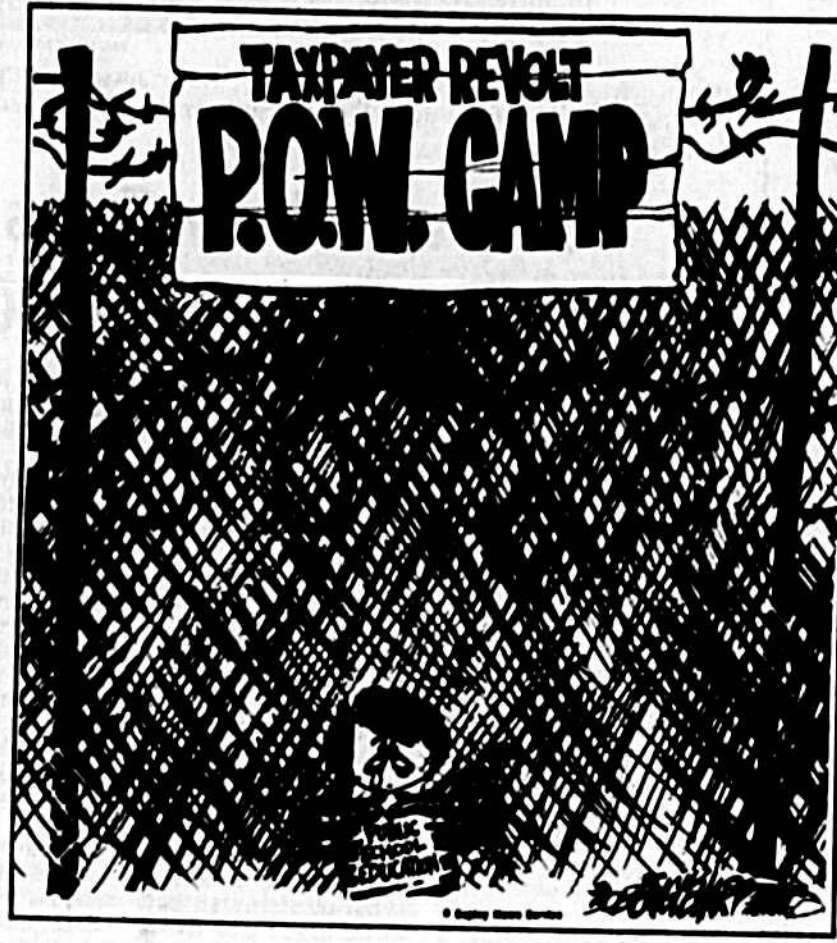

This time, he was nearly as lucky. The Democrats nominated their attractive and aggressive state controller, Michael Bakalis, 38, who has made a career of winning elections that were considered hopeless.

Furthermore, Bakalis and his fellow Democrats who control the state legislature managed to dead the initiative last summer on the big issue of 1978 — tax reduction. They did so with a property tax rebate bill that Thompson felt obliged to veto for budgetary reasons.

Ever since then, the tax issue has dominated the gubernatorial campaign. Thompson boldly countered his opponent with his own drive to put a referendum on the ballot asking voters whether the state constitution should be amended to impose a ceiling on taxes and spending. The referendum, however, is purely advisory and contains no specific formula.

The petition drive for the "Thompson proposition" was scarred by charges of forged signatures and other irregularities, and cleared a court challenge only Oct. 18 — a bit close for comfort, since Thompson had already decided to peg his entire campaign to the proposal.

Bakalis is still pushing his property tax rebate plan, but with Thompson spending $600,000 for television advertising geared to his own proposition, it appears that the governor has recaptured the lead on the tax issue.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Great Pin-Up Debate

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Back in the age of innocence, before someone invented magazine centerfolds, the Ridge Tool Co. in a burst of corporate boldness began distributing free calendars ornamented with pinup pictures.

Although community standards and censor art have changed a great deal since then, Ridge has stuck with its original girl-in-swimsuit motif. You might think that to the contemporary male eye these poses would seem more quaint or nostalgic than provocative. But Ridge insists that a photograph of the female form partly concealed by beachwear is more alluring than an anatomically explicit shot.

Dubious about that theory, I decided to test it out by prematurely hanging a copy of the just published 1979 Ridge calendar by my desk.

The first person to notice the calendar was Elroy Limpert, a congressional employee and war veteran who is still active in the Army reserves.

As soon as his eye fell on the upcoming Miss January, he called himself to attention and gave her a snappy salute.

"I'm glad to see you finally doing something patriotic," he said. "I was beginning to have doubts about your loyalty."

"Since when has a tool company calendar been an affirmation of one's Americanism?" I asked.

"This, my dear sir, is the type of pin-up that won World War II," Limpert reverently replied. "What you agree that pictures of girls in bathing suits are more sexy than nude photos?"

"Not only more sexy but militarily superior. It was only after calendar girls without swimsuits became available that we lost the war in Vietnam."

Not long afterward, however, the calendar was espied by Henry Uphash, a young journalist, male chauvinist and ogler.

"What happened to that poor girl?" he cried. "Was she in an accident or something?"

"What's your point?" I asked. "I don't see anything wrong with her."

"Why is the front part of her body all blanked out that way?"

"She's wearing a bathing suit, you dummy. Uphash gave a low, modified wolf whistle.

"Wow! I knew from reading the letters in Penthouse that there were a lot of kinky photographers around, but this is the first time I ever came across a fetish like that."

"There is nothing weird or unnatural about a picture of a girl in a swimsuit," I remonstrated. "It's all in your mind."

Uphash shook his head. "If Mother Nature had meant for calendar girls to be camouflaged, she would have given them polyester pelts."

VIEWPOINT

Old Andorra Emerges

By DON GRAFF

Andorra, the small principality located in the Pyrenees between France in Spain isn't used to worldwide attention. Not the modern kind, at least.

But 180-square mile Andorra has just celebrated its 700th anniversary with a public recollection between its Spanish and French "co-princes."

Key participants were France's President Valery Giscard d'Estaing and Spain's Bishop of Urgel Mari Y. Almita.

Andorra is run almost exclusively by the co-rulers.

To mark the anniversary, they stood side-by-side in Andorra-La-Vella's central square, shaking hands under the blue, yellow and red Andorran flag.

Oddly enough, that represented history's first meeting between the joint rulers of the tiny, mountainous nation, which won independence in 1278.

Independence came at the height of a 13th century squabble between the bishops of Urgel and the French counts of Foix.

But the anniversary ceremonies were affected by some clearly 20th-century realities.

A recent commercial boom transformed the poor, largely agricultural nation into one of the most prosperous freeways of Europe. French and Spanish shoppers pour into Andorra every weekend.

So the two "princes" are trying to cooperate in resolving problems associated with the rapid industrialization of the territory.

Up till now, rivalry and mistrust between the Urgel bishops and French officials stalled all attempts to modernize Andorra's medieval government.

For one thing, that meant efforts to set up a social welfare system for the 8,000 Andorrans and 22,000 foreign residents were blocked.

Giscard, who backs more power for Andorrans, said: "In the history of the valleys, tradition has never meant immobility and this is particularly true today in view of the rapid and happy development of Andorra."

He added, "This modernization of the constitution and the framework of life must be met with a corresponding adaptation of the habits, procedures and institutions."

At least things are going much more smoothly than they did in 1977, the last time a French "prince" visited Andorra.

The late president Charles de Gaulle rekindled tension with Andorra and Spain by bringing along thousands of French gendarmes for protection.

Harper: Preventative Maintenance Is Main Goal For County Schools

E. C. HARPER JR. WILLIAM KROLL

Who, What

Incumbent school board member E.C. Harper Jr. is facing William Kroll for the District One school board seat.

The two are vying for the seat that encompasses the largest area of the five districts. The district includes parts of Sanford, Winter Springs and Longwood and most of Lake Mary.

Although the candidates have to live in the district they are elected county-wide in a non-partisan election. — LEONARD KRANSDORF

Kroll: Get Parents To Board Meets

"Parental involvement is the key phrase for William Kroll who is running for the District One seat on the Seminole County School Board.

To get more involvement of parents in the schools, Kroll would attempt to "establish in each school a nucleus of 10 or so people who could be counted on to attend a school board meeting at any time."

"An" even if you get only three out of the 10 people to attend, it would still be possible," he said.

Kroll, 38, noted that it is important to have a cross-representation of all schools in a school board meeting to hear what problems the board is dealing with.

"If a problem could happen at, say, Sanford Middle School, it could happen anywhere and parents from the schools may want to give their opinion or hear the solution," he said.

Kroll, who has worked on the countywide Parent Teacher Association, says the number of people he has met on that committee could also be effective in getting information to the board if 10 or 15 people cannot be found in the individual school.

Kroll, the father of three and a salesman for Industrial Chemical and Supply, sees growth as the biggest problem facing Seminole County in the next four years.

To help face this problem, the thinks the county school district in conjunction with chambers of commerce and the county planning department should be able to estimate growth areas and begin building schools before the state makes its five year survey.

"The state would ultimately have to make the final decision, but there is no sense in having to wait. There should be some flexibility on the county's part and we could use the projections to start building schools before we face an overcrowding problem," he suggested.

Also on a board member, Kroll says he would question more the recommendations made by Superintendent William (Bud) Lauer.

"I go to the school board meetings and hear Bud Lauer give his recommendations to the board and never tell what he has or hasn't looked at before he made the recommendation," he said.

"As a board member, I want to know what he, Lauer, considered in making his decision, because he may say something I never thought of or I may have overlooked or thought of something he may not have considered."

Kroll has been endorsed by the Seminole Educators Political Action Committee, the political arm of the Seminole Education Association.

However, Kroll says, "I appreciate their support, but my only special interests are the children in Seminole County. I have made no deal with anyone and my only promise is to be open-minded and listen to anyone."

Having a better preventative maintenance program in the county schools to fix problems before they become serious is a big concern of E.C. Harper Jr. seeking re-election to his District One school board seat.

Harper would hire one full-time person to go to the schools checking for any existing problems or fixing the minor ones before they become major.

"The money he saves the school system would probably more than pay his salary," Harper said.

"It's better to have a preventative maintenance program so that if you have a faucet that needs fixing, you fix it and if you have a blinking light you can either let it continue to wink and blink or you can change the bulb," Harper said.

Harper also believes his business expertise has been a positive factor to the school board in the first four years and will be helpful in the next four. "I believe I'm the only one who could read a set of blueprints. And, when we have an architect come before us I jump all over them, picking out what I believe are their weak points in the hope that we can get better schools for less," said Harper who has been out of Sanford Electric for about 20 years and has been president of the company for the last eight years.

"The biggest problem that will be facing the school system in the next four years, according to Harper, is growth. "Growth is going to be a killer especially with the expansion of Duney World," he recalled.

He added there will be a "dire need for more elementary schools especially in the south-west quadrant."

Harper, who came in second behind William Kroll in the September primary, said, "I think most of the things that people have heard have been rumors, but when they find out the truth, it could make the difference in this election," he added.

One area that Harper receives inquiries about is his support of Sanford architect Eoghan Kelley as architect on the new Rock Lake Middle School.

The school board has written Kelley as well as several contractors because of leaky roofs in county schools. All suits are still pending.

Harper noted that the board had already paid Kelley about $4,000 to design Rock Lake before the leaky roofs were found.

"If we got out of that contract we would have lost $4,000 we had already paid him as well as any penalty, and then have to put off building the school which is needed now to alleviate overcrowding," Harper explained.

Walk A Mile In His Shoes

They say you don't really know a man until you've walked a mile in his shoes.

Maybe it's impossible to know our own children because we can't fit into their shoes.

Our sons and daughters at every level of growth have needs which depend for fulfillment on our awareness. One of these is their need for early and continuing religious education.

The Church is your ally in providing your youngsters moral and spiritual training. The initiative must come from you. And the example. But the Church's educational program can be a decisive factor in fashioning your child's future.

Training For The Game Of Life

By FRED R. GARDNER
Grace United Methodist Church

In Mark 13:13 of the Living Bible it says, "But all who endure to the end without renouncing me shall be saved."

There is something funny about athletics. I like athletics, almost any kind, from tennis to football, but I repeat that there is something odd about athletics.

We had company for dinner the other day. The fellow was an athlete and played football. He was a fine fellow, but he did something very odd for a person of his size and condition at that dinner. When it came time for pie we could not get him to take any, and it was a "good pie" who in the "world" would turn down a good piece of pie? I asked him if he was sick, and he said, "No, I am not sick. I am in training, so I can not eat pie."

Now, to me that seemed odd for such a guy who likes to eat, and not eat, to turn down pie. Why shouldn't a fellow eat pie if he wants to, even if he is in training?

I discovered that there were other things that the coach does not want his team to do. Do you know of any? Early to bed, no drinking, smoking, sweets, etc. This was the idea to me. Why does a coach want each member of the team to give up these things?

How long do they have to keep this up? Till the end of the season?

My lesson that evening was this: a good player will deny himself certain things in order to be in the best condition for the sport. You say, "Simple, I knew that." But I sometimes wonder, do we really know the whole implication of this denial in order to endure to the end of the game?

To win the race, or the game, we must deny ourselves those things which will hinder our being in top shape. Also, along with denial comes goal, stiff exercise. Everyday workouts which will keep the muscles hard so they can stand all the knocks and falls that the players will get in important to the game. In addition to all this, there is a strong in the game of life because they will not train. Keep your eye on the Lord, do not renounce Him, and you will endure in Discipleship.

Solution For Financial Crisis

Oral Roberts

QUESTION: My wife and I are facing a financial crisis. Our income just isn't adequate to cover all our bills. I'm looking for an extra job, we've applied for a loan, we've asked our family for help, we've even prayed. But so far nothing has worked out. Now I'm beginning to panic. What can I do?

ANSWER: The best solution I know for financial crisis — or a crisis of any kind — for that matter — is to put your trust in God alone and keep it there no matter what happens. The Bible puts it like this: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding." (Proverbs 3:3).

Now I know that's easier said than done. I wish I could tell you I never have a desire to turn to other people and make them realize that I'm not God. But I can't tell you that. There are times when I'm tempted to say, "God, why do I always have to wait on You to solve my problems? Why can't this person or that person help me to solve this problem?"

The importance of learning to trust God alone as my Source came home to me when I heard a story from a personal friend, Dr. Bryant Kirkland, pastor of a large New York church. He told me how one day he was about to cross a busy Manhattan street when a young woman came up, fell by a seeing-eye dog. He realized she was blind. When the light changed and the people started crossing over, he noticed a truck that had stopped at the red light from the other direction. The truck driver a goodly fellow, jumped out, ran over to the girl, and said, "Can I help you across the street?"

She said, "Oh, thank you, but no. You see, I've got to trust my seeing eye dog. If I depend on someone else, then my seeing-eye dog won't guide me."

The man said, "But how can you dog tell when the light changes from red to green? A dog can't tell colors."

She replied, "I don't know how he knows, but he just says, 'I've got to trust my seeing-eye dog. If I depend on someone else, then my seeing-eye dog won't guide me.'"

The man wished her well and returned the street to safety, trusting the guidance of her seeing-eye dog. Who are you trusting to guide and take care of you? Is God your true Source, or are you depending on someone or something else to supply your needs? A financial crisis is a good opportunity to find out whom you really trust.

If you are depending on others, then God can't help you the way He wants to. However, if you are looking to God alone for the solution to your problem, then you are making Him your true Source; and He will make a way for you where there seems to be no way. He may use a loan, a company, a family member, a new job, or He may use some other means you haven't even thought of yet. But whatever instrument He uses, remember that God alone is the true Source of your supply, and He will never fail you in your time of need. I know — because ever since I've made God my Source, He's never failed me!

Presbyterian Union Eyed

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

The nation's two largest Presbyterian bodies, the Presbyterian Church in the U.S. and the United Presbyterian Church in the USA, have been talking about reunion almost since the time they separated in 1811.

But the move toward merger has been a complicated dance, with the proposed partners taking as many sideways steps as forward motions. It was one of the most bitter.

In recent weeks, the Covenant Fellowship of Presbyterians, an unofficial but influential group of conservative and evangelical Presbyterians in the Southern-based PCUS, has added a new step to the dance.

The Fellowship has made public a list of 13 conditions under which it would favorably consider plans for union of the two denominations.

"The Covenant Fellowship is always in the position of reacting against plans of union," said Dr. B. Clayton Bell, president of PCP and pastor of Highland Park Presbyterian Church, Dallas, Texas. "It's created an image of antipathy."

"We want to say to the world that we're not against union under certain conditions," Bell said. But he said no one on the Joint Committee (on Presbyterian union) has ever bothered to ask the Fellowship how it felt.

Some of the conditions set by the Fellowship, however, are not going to go down easily with union advocates.

In particular, the Fellowship is calling for one confessional document for the reunited church (the PCUS currently has nine), fair representation of the CP's list of conditions is to take power away from the General Assembly and Mission Board or national level of the church and concentrate it in the presbyteries, the smaller regional bodies.

"The board and its agencies have control of the church," said Dr. Andrew Jumper, also an executive vice president of PCP and pastor of Central Presbyterian Church, St. Louis, Mo.

"The leadership of the church is dominated by liberals," said Bell. "The Mission Board and its agencies are more interested in the World Council of Churches and the National Council of Churches than they are in the National Association of Evangelicals."

Healing Mission Planned

The Greater Orlando Chapter of the Order of St. Luke will present a three-day healing mission at All Saints Episcopal Church 238 Lyman Ave., Winter Park, on Nov. 6-8.

Rev. John H. Parke, Warden Emeritus, of the Order of St. Luke will be the minister.

Parke has just completed his five year term as Warden for the United States and Canada of the International Order of St. Luke and is now rector of St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Heathsville, Va. In addition to serving as a resource speaker in Camps Farthest Out, he has been active in Christian education, youth work, camps and conferences for the Episcopal Church. He has been the lecturer of many healing missions and schools of Prayer.

"The purpose of the Order of St. Luke the Physician is to bring the healing of the spirit, emotions, body and relationships of all kinds," said Elizabeth Gardner, publicity chairman for the Orlando chapter. "Spiritual healing is through prayer, laying on of hands, anointing with oil, the Sacraments, by the power of the Holy Spirit in response to faith in God through Christ. It is healing by means other than by medicine, surgery, psychology and psychiatry. It is not a substitute for medicine or surgery, but is complementary to scientific medicine.

"Spiritual healing is based on God's love of faith and love just as medical healing is based on God's physical laws as understood by modern science. However, they do not break natural laws but are based on higher laws which we do not understand," added Mrs. Gardner.

Estrogen Does Have Some Good Effects

DEAR DR. LAMB: Is it a known fact that estrogen pills cause cancer, and what part of the body does it affect mostly? Also, when cancer is found in the human body by surgery, does it grow faster when it is exposed to air?
DEAR READER: There are an awful lot of people who take estrogen who never develop cancer. I might also point out that estrogen alone isn't a cancer causing agent, because both men and women normally produce estrogen. In fact, there are several different chemical kinds of estrogen.
At this writing, there has not been a careful separation of the different effects of the different types of estrogen in relation to any cancer effects they may have. This is a relatively pertinent point in determining the danger from taking estrogen.
With the regular administration of at least one type of estrogen, there does seem to be an increased rate of cancer of the uterus. This may not be important to the woman who takes estrogen intermittently, meaning for three weeks and stopping for one week. It certainly is not important to the woman who has already had a hysterectomy. It is difficult to develop cancer of the uterus if you don't have one.
Giving additional estrogen is also a poor idea in a woman who has lumpy breasts, or if a woman develops lumpy breasts while she is taking estrogen, usually she should stop it.
Cancer of the uterus and breast are the two main considerations about the relationship of estrogen to cancer. Otherwise, there is a great deal of evidence in the scientific literature that suggests the administration of estrogen protects a woman's health and prolongs her life. In fact, the statistics for the good features of estrogen far outweigh the statistics that suggest there may be some bad features of estrogen.
How do you resolve this problem? Well, you go to your doctor and let him find out if you need estrogen or not, and let him decide whether your breasts are normal enough that you won't have a problem there. And let him decide about the status of your uterus, if you have one. And if there really is any danger posed by the type of estrogen he wants to administer on the schedule he recommends that it be taken.
So, there is no one little pat answer that can be included on the evening TV news to solve this problem for everybody. Sorry about that!
I don't know where the idea comes from that if cancer is exposed to air, it will grow faster. That is totally untrue. Cancer cells are body cells. True, they are abnormal, but that's what they are.
They depend on nutrition, just like your other body cells do. In fact, you can kill cancer if you are able to eliminate its food supply, because it can't get nutrients and have the normal exchange of oxygen and carbon dioxide needed for cells.
Cancer of the uterus and breast are the two main considerations about the relationship of estrogen to cancer. Otherwise, there is a great deal of evidence in the scientific literature that suggests the administration of estrogen protects a woman's health and prolongs her life. In fact, the statistics for the good and a two-way spade finesse for the 13th.

Should South take a coin to decide which way to go?
That gives him a 50 per cent chance but the use of discovery technique can help.
If he can find out how many spades each opponent holds, he can play that the man with the greater number holds that missing card.
So South runs off all the hearts, diamonds and clubs and in the process discovers that West was dealt exactly five cards in each red suit (since East showed up on the third lead) and exactly two clubs since he failed to follow.
That left West with exactly one spade. A spade lead to dummy's king shows that it was the six spot so South fineses against East with absolute certainty.

OURSELVES

So-Called Atheists Need 'Wise' Answer

DEAR ABBY: We don't go to church. Instead, my husband and I and our three children sit down to a hearty breakfast on Sunday morning and afterwards have a friendly discussion around the breakfast table.
We talk about school problems, family gripes and relations with relatives and friends. We support each other in overcoming bad habits and faults and come to an understanding about allowances, TV watching, homework and to contribute to our community and our nation.
We believe that God's spirit is within us (all) and that ours are helping hands which can be used to make this spirit evident here on earth.
Recently, some of the neighborhood children have been calling our children "atheists" because we don't go to church. They are shocked and upset and don't know what to answer. Do you in your wisdom have an appropriate answer?
AT A LOSS
DEAR AT: How is this: "We are NOT 'atheists.' We accept the existence and influence of God in our lives. But to us, God's spirit is within all of us, and we offer helping hands which can be used to make this spirit evident here on earth."
(P.S. In my opinion, yours is a stronger religious commitment than many church-goers make. But that, too, is his business.)
DEAR ABBY: SHELDON'S WIFE couldn't understand why her husband came home with red smudges on his shirt and red hairs on his coat. Don't jump to conclusions, Abby. He may have been feeding strawberry jam to a cocker spaniel!

 And Things In SCC Class

The clocks have been set back the hour they lost in the spring.
 The jack o' lanterns have had their candles blown out and pilgrims and turkeys are on the holiday horizon.
 So, while many hate to think about it, that means Christmas is almost here again.
 For those who plan ahead and try not to wait until the last minute, Seminole Community College is offering several courses through their Leisure Time program that can help add a splash of color to your holiday decor.
 Linda Tofora of Sanford is teaching a Christmas arrangement and wreath workshop, which will enable the student to create some striking pieces to decorate the home or may be used as perfect pre-Christmas gifts during the Holiday season. Emphasis is on making and coordinating wreaths, arrangements, mantle pieces and trees with materials the students furnish. Bow-making, use of diamond dust, silver and gold glitter are also included in the course.

 Several courses have already been completed this fall and a strong interest is being expressed in the remainder.
 Those interested in turning out attractive wreaths and arrangements, which are bound to attract many compliments, should contact the college's Leisure Time Program at 323-1450, extension 302.

Children are naturally curious — about the world in which they live and its sometimes mysterious workings. For those curious minds, television programming for children on CBS opens many doors to a better understanding.

The 1978-79 season on the CBS Television Network offers a variety of regularly scheduled and special broadcasts of particular interest to young people and their parents.

This season, "Razzmatazz," the CBS News magazine about young people, returns as a regular monthly offering, to be broadcast on the first Thursday of every month.

Other presentations during the season on Saturdays will include "30 Minutes," a new CBS News weekly series, modeled after CBS News' Sunday evening "60 Minutes," which will examine issues of particular significance to young viewers.

The "CBS Saturday Film Festival" will be seen on the last Saturday of each month in the "30 Minutes" time period.

"Joey and Redhawk," a week-long miniseries, the first ever for young people, will be seen every weekday afternoon in late November, CBS News' "In the News" reports on major events of the week.

"The CBS Festival of Lively Arts for Young People," incorporating the New York Philharmonic Young People's Concerts, returns on weekend afternoons, along with "Famous Classic Tales." Other specials scheduled include "The Children's Television Workshop adaptation of 'The Lion, the Witch, and the Wardrobe,' the first book in the classic series, 'The Chronicles of Narnia,' by C.S. Lewis; and Raggedy Ann, 'Peanuts,' and many holiday presentations.

In focusing on young people who are busily involved in doing things of their own, "Razzmatazz" has shown stories about working in a museum, understanding problems of the handicapped, baking and selling chocolate-chip cookies to earn money and to go to college, and spotting traffic by air over San Francisco.

With CBS News Correspondents Betsy Aaron and Christopher Glenn serving as co-editors, "30 Minutes" reports on subjects of significant interest to young people. "30 Minutes" will cover stories ranging from the difficulties in teenage marriage and the troubles of a teen-age activist to the hypocrisy of movie ratings and the way teen-age convicts live in a maximum-security prison.

'Good Morning': 3 Years Old Today

NEW YORK (UPI) — David Hartman recalls the assumption that there's more hard news on the "Today" show than on his "Good Morning America." And he isn't too crazy about the people who mean well when they tell him they caught him on "Today," although he's too polite to correct their mistake.

"Good Morning America" was three years old Nov. 3 and Hartman is proud of the show's accomplishments, most particularly in the news field.

"There's a perception about the program — that it's not oriented toward news," Hartman said in an interview. "We do more hard news in our regular segments than 'Today.' We do more stories, more top stories, more live stuff dating last night's news."

Hartman said that the "Good Morning" staff in the last year has been making a determined effort to update its news on the theory that a lot has happened since the show's news reports should reflect that.

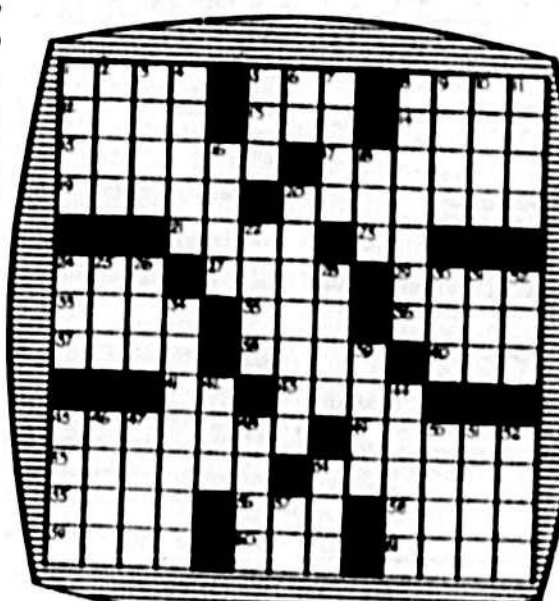

"We give more than a rerun of the evening news — more timely, better updated."

When discussing the show, Hartman returns again and again to the point that news does not have to be dull, that reporters in dark suits, and that interviews must reveal something about the subject beyond the hard facts of the story involved.

The Nielsen numbers bear out Hartman's contention — "Today" remains the morning leader, but "Good Morning" has made big gains since it first went on the air Nov. 3, 1975.

For the first quarter of 1978, according to A.C. Nielsen, the new show at a rating of 2.8 and a 13 percent share of the viewing audience, compared to a 2.2 rating and 18 share for CBS and a 4.5 rating and 29 share for NBC.

By the first quarter of 1977, ABC had a 2.5 rating and a 17 share, compared to 2.4 rating and 17 share for CBS and a 4.8 rating and 29 share for NBC. In the first quarter of this year, ABC boasted a 3.5 rating and 21 share, compared to CBS with a 2.3 rating and 17 share, and 4.8 rating and 29 share for NBC.

Ask Dick Kleiner

DEAR DICK: Why are there so many commercials after 11 p.m.?

Beverly: 1st Real Black Female Star?

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) - There has not yet been a real black female motion picture star.

BEVERLY Johnson, William Holden, Peter Ustinov, Omar Sharif, Rex Harrison - and was directed by a major talent, Richard Fleischer.

There is the feeling that maybe Beverly Johnson has a shot at being the first. It's hard to tell yet, because her first film hasn't even been released. But they are talking about the film and that's something. There is also the positive fact that Beverly Johnson is a very beautiful woman, so she has that going for her.

Maren: She Went From Sales To Stars

MAREN

Like a contemporary Hollywood Cinderella the dark-haired, blue-eyed Maren Jensen found herself propelled from waiting tables and selling shoes into the elite corps of high fashion models, the exciting world of television commercials and her series starring debut as Athena on ABC's new action-adventure space series, "Battlestar Galactica." Born in Arcadia, Calif., and raised in nearby Glendale, Maren studied on scholarship at the University of California's Los Angeles campus, participated in that school's drama department and took part-time jobs. After three years, however, Maren left UCLA to concentrate on her theatrical studies with Pat Randall. She was determined to combine her beauty and talent into a professional acting career. In June of 1977, Maren caught the eye of a fashion photographer whose guidance to a professional agency immediately thrust her into the company of top New York models. In less than a year, her face was pictured on the cover of such magazines as Vogue, Mademoiselle and Britain's Cosmopolitan. Hollywood producers quickly recognized Maren's attributes, transporting her beauty from still photographs to the active exposure of television commercials. A short time later, Maren made her primetime television debut as a guest star on ABC's "Hardy Boy-Nancy Drew Mysteries" series before capturing her role in "Battlestar Galactica."

Andrea As Judy: It's Touching

By JOAN HANAUER
NEW YORK (UPI) — Judy Garland looks at the ruby slippers she wore as Dorothy in "The Wizard of Oz" and says, "They're just another pair of shoes. Who needs them?"

Someone that sums up the sad story of Baby Frances Gumm, the little girl who turned into Judy Garland, as portrayed in "Rainbow," to be shown on NBC Nov. 6, 9-11 p.m., Eastern time.
Andrea McArdle, who herself became a child star in the title role of the hit Broadway musical "Annie," portrays the young Judy from age 10 to 17 in a sadly moving drama about growing up disillusioned in fairyland.
Andrea is an excellent choice for the role of Judy — she, too, is pretty but not beautiful, a trifle chubby for stardom, combining the winning innocence of youth with a sock-it-to-'em growup voice. While she makes no effort to imitate Judy, she has been coached in Garland's style — not even Liza Minnelli can do that. But the best part of the show is McArdle singing old favorites including "Stormy Weather," "Zing Went the Strings of My Heart," "Dinah," and the famous version of "You Made Me Love You" dedicated to Clark Gable.

THE 2 FACES OF RICHARD

A man for all — two at least — reasons — that's Richard Chamberlain who'll be popping up on your TV screen in all kinds of garb the next few days. For instance, there he is (left) as Alexander McKeen (with wife, Clay-Basket-Barbara Carrera) as a "Centennial" figure, Sunday on NBC. Then, lo and behold, after a quick change, he becomes The Writer in Neil Simon's "The Good Doctor," Wednesday, on PBS.

Grass Was Greener For CBS In Ratings

NEW YORK (UPI) — There's a good news for CBS in the Nielsen ratings — or, at least, what passes for good news these days.
For the first time this television season in the Nielsen for the week ending Oct. 29 — CBS captured second place, relegating NBC to the cellar. ABC remained in firm control of first place, as expected. CBS was left at the starting post last year, also, but began its catch-up drive at about this time and wound up the season in the No. 2 spot.

Mork: Another Henry Schreiber

By DAVID HANDLER
Mork is a space-age Charlie McCarthy. Part innocent, part naughty, he caroms about the stage like a liberated ventriloquist's dummy, delivering a patter of odd noises and catchy, second-hand slogans.
In the hands of Robin Williams, our traveler from the planet Ork is a nut. Unfortunately for me, he's also Henry Schreiber, a guy who lived across the hall from me in college, who'd drop by my room every night at 11, do a monologue with a deodorant stick, and romance a sweeper, watch my TV and not get the hint to go home until forcibly ejected.
Mork, like Henry, is only a laugh in small doses. He's not the sort I'd want to spend time with. Like, say, 30 minutes. But since he so totally dominates "Mork and Mindy," that's precisely the case.
The show has little to offer us besides Williams. I'm still not quite sure what the premise is.
Mork is assigned to experience life on earth and report back to his head man, Oron.
He appears in Boulder, Colo., and apparently moves in with Mindy McConnell, who's wholesome, cute, has a nice smile.

Why she takes him in baffles me, but we must accept it because the show doesn't exist outside her apartment.
Nor do the other characters. Mindy has some sort of marginal coed life, but it's off-camera.
Then there's her pop, a bow-tied prig who owns a music store, and her caustic, foulmouthed granny. But basically the show is Mork.
In place of situations (a.k.a. plots) "Mork and Mindy" relies on demonstrating that hugging and kissing a real, live, cute, wholesome girl is a heckuva lot more fun than doing it with a dummy.
You betcha.
It's the same tune as "Three's Company" — kiddie post — "burrs: the dialogue and action are drenched with sexuality but the characters don't consummate — even though they want to — because of the show's structural limitations.
In "Three's Company," Jack is only supposed to be a roomy, and a gay one at that. Here, Mork just isn't a fella.
Williams is a talented comic. Reliable female sources inform me he's also irresistibly cute.
His physical humor is imaginative and sometimes amusing, but his routines just go on and on.
There's a incredible repetition, and really nothing else for the show to do. How it can rely on him simply running in place every week is beyond me.
But for now, Mork is this year's Fozzie, on the cover of TV Guide and People the same week.

$300,000 Comics Business

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Comic books about superhuman heroes used to be simple fun for kids tired of textbooks, but a Nashville teen-ager is one of many who has converted interest in the animated tales into a business.

"I started out as a reader," says Randy Sparlock, who in three years has parlayed a $300 loan into a $100,000 comic book business catering to collectors in Memphis and Nashville.

"Then I began collecting comic books until I had about 1,500 by the time I was 15," the 17-year-old said. "My father had noticed how much some of them were selling for and he was the one who first suggested that I go into it as a business."

Sparlock last month obtained a $300 loan to launch his enterprise in Memphis, but his initiation into the business world got off to a rocky start.

"Right off, I invested $25 in junk books and took them to the flea market, where it cost me another $75 for a booth and expenses," he said. "I expected to make about $100 that week. Instead, I wound up losing about $35. I was really down, but after that first week, Sparlock soon realized that the secret of success is buying not selling.
As his inventory of comic books increased, business improved and his father, who was an insurance agent, went to work for his son in the Nashville store. Together they have an inventory of about 100,000 books worth between $75,000 and $100,000, Sparlock said.
"Most people just don't realize what these magazines are worth to collectors," the dark-haired youth said. "Just the other day, I sold four early Donald Ducks for $750. The buyer was a middle-aged woman who was getting them for her son, who is a collector."
The most expensive comic book ever printed, Sparlock says, is the first Superman, which lists at $7,500.

Small Claims Hassle Where Do You Go To Get $ Back?

By DENNIS FEOLA
 Herald Staff Writer

Pre-trial hearings are held every Monday at 9 a.m. and 10:30 a.m. at courtroom D in the Road Mall in Sanford. If all parties agree to go ahead with the suit, a trial date is set. One of three county court judges will hear your summary suit in Seminole County. They are Judge Alan A. Dickay, Wallace H. Hall and Harold P. Johnson.

After the witnesses are heard and the evidence presented, the judge will make a decision. Once he rules in your favor, you're on your own.

If the defendant agrees to pay, of course, everything is fine. If he still refuses to pay, it's back to the court office for a certified copy of the final judgment.

With that, you can get a writ of execution from the clerk's office to have your judgment enforced.

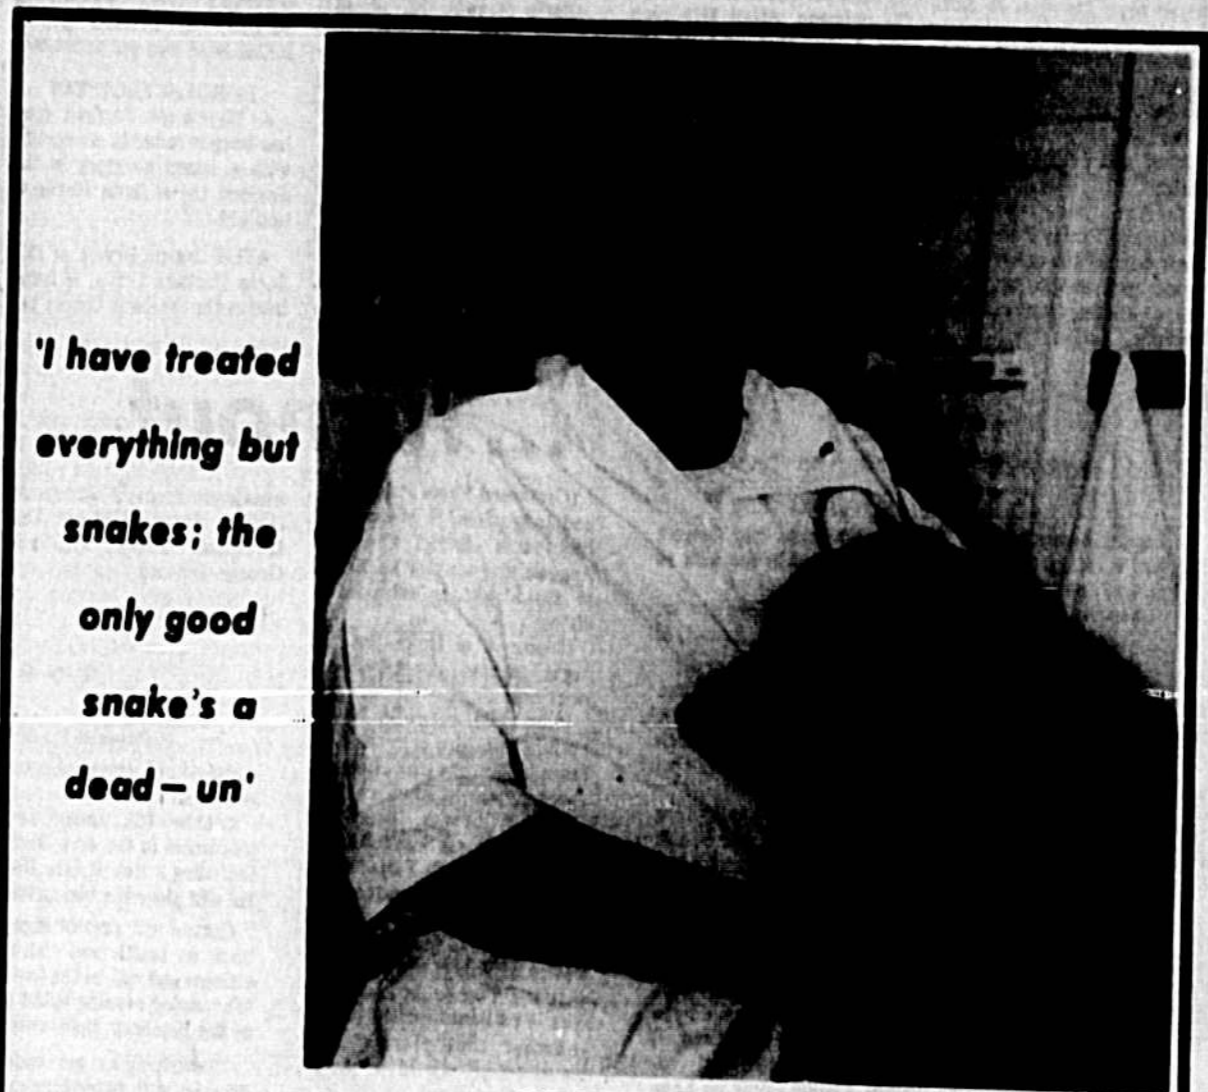

The sheriff's office can seize, advertise and sell to the highest bidder enough of your judgment debtor's property to satisfy the amount of your judgment plus the cost of seizure, advertisement and sale.

It is necessary for you to provide the sheriff's office with a list of property which can legally be seized to pay the debt.

There are various ways of finding out what property your debtor owns including checking with the Department of Motor Vehicles and real estate records.

It takes four or five weeks before a pre-trial hearing is set.

DR. RAYMOND BABB WITH LUCKY

He Still Treats Animals, But Pasture Calls Are Out

By JANE CABELLERRY
 Herald Staff Writer

After a broken back, broken neck, blindness and paralysis, Sanford veterinarian Dr. Raymond L. Babb finally got the message.

Ten years ago he took his doctor's advice and stopped treating horses and cows.

Although after 34 years of veterinary practice in Sanford he is still busy treating his smaller patients of the canine and feline variety, Babb no longer makes pasture calls.

"My doctor, Dr. Raydon Miller, told me he would treat my broken back only on the condition I never touch another large animal," explained Babb. "This was back in 1968 when he was temporarily paralyzed after a hernia which he was giving warm medicine straight down outside his Park Drive office building his back." "I was in the hospital for five weeks and laid up at home for another five weeks," said Babb.

"July 14, 1967... a day Dr. Babb will never forget! He was running up a herd of cows in rough woods near the Wekiva River when his horse slipped in a burned-out stump hole and went down." "I stayed in the middle and my neck was broken in the fall," Babb recalls. "Although my horse had not shown affection before, while I was laying on the ground he put his head against my back bracing me so I could pull myself up by grabbing hold of some bushes. I walked on for as I could but crashed into the car. Another fellow came back and found me, then went for help. The ambulance never got there so he drove me 11 miles to the hospital sitting up in the car. I guess I did all the things wrong and I nearly died."

"The bones in my neck were crushed and there was a cramp in my spinal cord. They put tubes in my head and stretched me out. I was totally blind for 10 days to two weeks. They moved me from Sanford to Orange Memorial in Orlando and when they got me there they held me to the bed for 30 days and I couldn't even turn over. Every time I sneezed or coughed they took another X-ray," said Babb.

"That time he was laid up for nine months. While he was in the hospital with his broken back his large animal equipment 'disappeared.'" "My wife was intent on my following the doctor's orders that time," he said.

Babb has had his share of trouble from small animals as well and has scars on his arms from bites and scratches.

"When I first came to Sanford, rabies was rampant and at one time every animal not tied up was killed. There were 70 people in Sanford being treated at one time. There were so many cases there was not enough vaccines in the country to supply all the visits needed so we had to divide up the doses," Babb remembers. "I have been treated eight times for rabies—more than any vet in the U.S. as far as I know," said Babb. "Along about 1963, a rabid animal we had in a cage became violent and charged his way out. My wife called the sheriff patrol from the Navy base and he reached across the fence and tapped the dog on the head with a billy club," he said.

It has been about 10 years since Babb saw his last case of rabies, a cat, and it was the dog of Beverly Campy.

"We have been told 'don't snore' anywhere around Sanford, Fla.," said Babb.

65% Voter Turnout In Seminole?

By DONNA ESTER
 Herald Staff Writer

Supervisor of Elections Camille Bruce is predicting 65 percent — 35,000 — of the county's 54,471 registered voters will go to the polls in Seminole County Tuesday to elect two congressmen, a new governor and three members of the Cabinet as well as three legislators, two county commissioners and three school board members.

"We will see a turnout of 65 percent or better," said Mrs. Bruce, adding that 1,000 absentee ballots have been issued so far compared with 974 in 1974 in a similar election four years ago.

Voters in seven Sanford area precincts — 1, 3, 14, 25, 27, 28 and 62 — will choose either incumbent Congressman Bill Chappell, Democrat or Tom Boney, Republican, for the District 4 seat in the U.S. House of Representatives.

Those voters in the remaining 69 precincts will select either Democrat David Best or incumbent Republican Richard Kelly for the 10th district representative to the nation's congress.

In the governor's race, the contest is between Democratic Sen. Bob Graham of Miami Lakes and his running mate, State Rep. Wayne Mixson, and Republican state of druggist magistrate Jack Eckard of Clearwater and Public Service Commissioner Paula Hawkins.

For the Florida Cabinet, the choices are George Firestone, D, and Andre Crockett, R, for secretary of state; Bill Gunter, D-incumbent, and Jeffrey L. Latham, R, state treasurer; and Ralph D. Twilington, D-incumbent, and Herman B. Williams, R, for commissioner of education.

In the race for the District 10 seat in the Florida Senate held by Lott Wilcox, I-Chance, the county's county Commissioner Bill Beck, D-III, Ched, and State Rep. Clark Maxwell Jr., R-Mooreville.

The merit system of electing judges will be introduced in column three of the ballot which lists: Judge Spencer C. Cross of the fourth district Court of Appeals and the question of whether the people want or do not want him retained in office.

Registration, Hopes Up For Big Olympics

By MAX ERKLETTIAN
 Herald Staff Writer

About 1,000 participants, more than in any other year, are expected to take part in this year's Golden Age Olympics, opening Monday, according to Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Executive Manager Jack Harner.

Harner said he bases his prediction of 1,000 participants on the high number of medical registrations, increased premiums work this year and the fact the event has increased each year.

Last year 600 people took part in the program and about 100 medical registrations had been received before the Olympics began, he said.

Harner noted he spoke to the annual meeting of Florida Chamber of Commerce trying them to register from their communities this year.

"We've had a very heavy early registration," said Harner, "heavier than in any previous year."

All the clinics of the week more than 300 medical registrations had been received at the chamber.

"Most of the registrations are males and that's a very good sign," commented Harner, referring to the high number registered to date.

The medical registrations have come from as far away as Canada.

When the week-long event originated in 1970 a total of 600 persons took part.

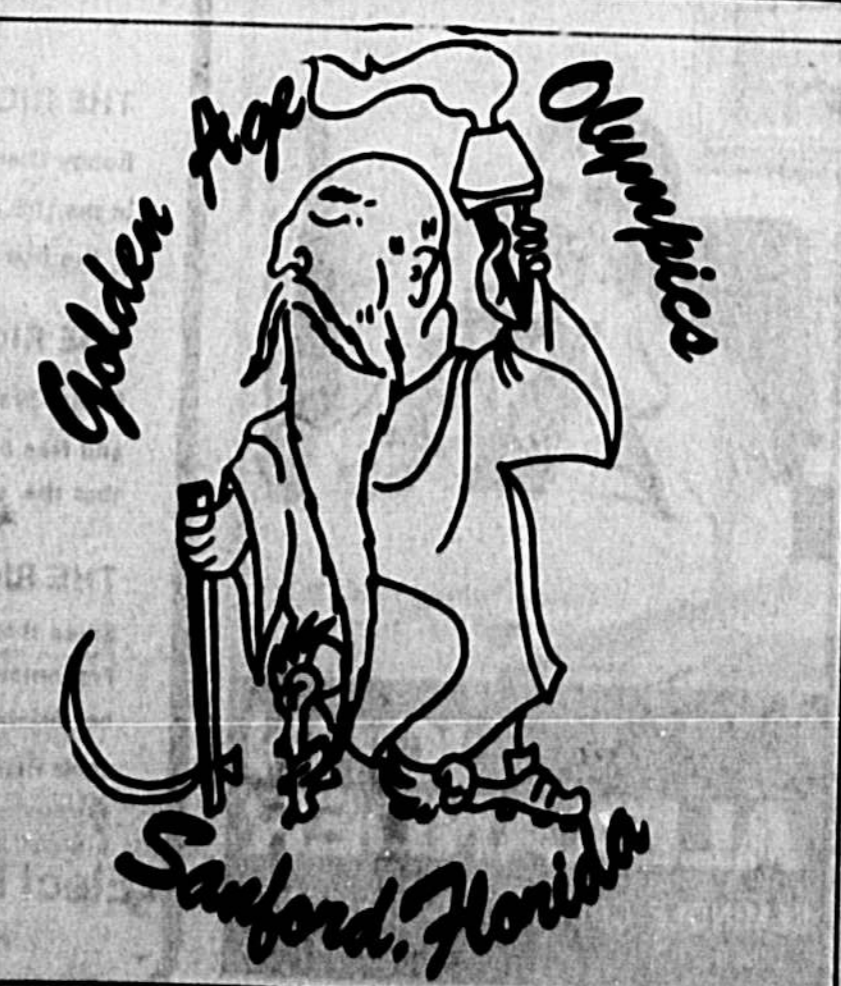

There is no deadline for registration, according to Harner. "People can come in to the time of any event and register for the sport on any day during the Olympics," he said.

Serving as honorary chairman of the Olympics is Mayor George Harner, mayor and earlier Mayor Charles Harner. Credits will get credit in Sanford next Tuesday. He has a television commitment in Tallahassee, according to Harner.

Not only will credits be on hand for all events during the Olympics, he will be participating in them for the first time.

"He took part in some of the events last year, but we did not let him compete for the medals," said Harner. This year he wants to

Arabs To Sadat: Change Your Mind

By United Press International

Arab radicals and moderates meeting in Baghdad today dispatched a four-man delegation to Cairo in a surprise conciliatory move aimed at talking Egypt's President Anwar Sadat out of the Camp David accords, the Israeli News Agency said. Meanwhile, officials in Jerusalem and Cairo were studying the draft treaties for peace between Israel and Egypt.
