

Clinic June 24

ORLANDO—Builders, lenders, bankers and government housing officials will attend a regional mortgage finance clinic here June 24, sponsored by the National Association of Home Builders and Florida Home Builders Association.

The clinic will draw attendance from the association's sixth region, embracing Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Puerto Rico, the Orlando Convention Bureau announced.

Attention in the field of home financing will explain federal and commercial financing, review programs of the industry and lead discussions on current trends and forecasts.

Representatives of all government financing agencies will participate, including the Federal Housing Administration, Federal National Mortgage Association, Veterans Administration and Veterans Home Credit Program. In addition, mortgage experts representing banks, savings and loan associations, commercial banks and insurance companies will serve as panel members.

Florida's Attorney General Richard Egan will be among the speakers.

The clinic will be held at the San Juan Hotel, Orlando, beginning at 9:30 a. m.

Ohio Men Tape Records Own Funeral Service

NORWALK, Ohio—(UPI)—Former State Sen. William H. Harner, 50, is all set to preach his own funeral service.

Harner tape-recorded a 20-minute funeral sermon. In it, he preached for 15 minutes and recited his own poetry for five more.

He decided to preach at his own service, Harner said, because he "attended quite a few services and never was too impressed with some of the sermons." He limited the service to 20 minutes because "most services are too long."

Dead Flier's Bible Sent To Mother

DORTMUND—(UPI)—The Bible of an American airman killed in action over Germany is on its way back to Texas, returned after nearly 18 years by a German housewife, Mrs. Theodor Hillebrand.

Mrs. Hillebrand found the Bible in the pocket of a torn leather flight jacket that fell in her garden in 1948 after nearby anti-aircraft guns had shot down an American Flying Fortress.

She faced a possible jail term under Nazi laws for keeping and concealing the Bible.

"But I wanted to keep it and one day give it back to its rightful owner," she said.

Not On Flight

The name written in the Bible was that of T/Sgt. Bill J. Wheeler of Etoarty, Tex., but Air Force records showed that Wheeler could not have been on the flight that ended in the Dortmund crash because he was killed six months earlier when his plane was shot down over the North Sea coast near Emden.

Air Force officials surmised that his Bible must have been passed on to a friend in his unit, the 28th Bomber Squadron, 91st Bomb Group, Eighth Air Force.

But 28 B-17's were lost over the Ruhr that autumn day in 1943 when Mrs. Hillebrand found the Bible, and there is no way of knowing who had carried it with him.

Mrs. Hillebrand kept the Bible for nearly 18 years because she could not think of any way to get it back to Wheeler's family. His address was not written in it. Dortmund was in the British occupation zone, with the nearest U. S. offices 200 miles distant.

Several months ago, Army Specialist Dennis G. Pappas of Ogden, Utah, visited Mrs. Hillebrand's neighborhood with his German-born wife, Elisabeth. Mrs. Hillebrand invited the couple over for coffee and asked Pappas' help in getting the Bible back.

Pappas talked to his unit chaplain, Capt. Ben S. Price of Paris, Tex., on his return to his base in Red Kreuznach. The Air Force was called in and records were checked to find Wheeler's address. His mother, Mrs. Susie L. Wheeler, told Air Force officials she remembered giving the Bible to her son, who was then 17, in 1941.

The Bible will be handed back to her in ceremonies at the Waco, Tex., home of the 18th Air Force. "It has been a long time, but I know Sergeant Wheeler's mother would want to have this little Bible," Mrs. Hillebrand said. "I know I would."

Air Force Will Develop 'Dynaosor'

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Harry M. Jackson D-Wash. announced that the Air Force has awarded contracts for development of the "Dynaosor"—a manned aircraft capable of operating in outer space and within the earth's atmosphere.

The contracts went to Glenn L. Martin Aircraft Co., and Boeing Aircraft Co. Their dollar value was not disclosed.

The "Dynaosor" dynamic soaring is an advanced boost-glide vehicle, designed to use both aerodynamic lift and centrifugal force.

The plane will be designed to fly in the initial reaches of outer space, circle the world at speeds of about 17,000 miles an hour and return its pilot safely to earth.

The first model is expected to cost about 150 million dollars. Where the actual work on the aircraft will be performed was not announced.

The Air Force informed Jackson by letter that the two companies—Martin and Boeing—will work in competition to assure the best development at the lowest cost.

Jackson, a member of the Senate Armed Services Committee and the House-Senate Atomic Energy Committee, hailed the announcement as "truly the first step to the stars for man."

The Air Force said preliminary investigation indicates that by "varying the original rocket boost," the "Dynaosor" would be capable of making "one or many" orbits of the earth and still return for a normal landing.

The "Dynaosor," according to the Air Force, will be capable of "many varying missions" and can operate from space altitudes down to well within the atmosphere.

Work has now begun on a housing project, with parks, a lake, shops, and apartments for 40,000 persons. But before the buildings can go up, much of Hitler's architecture must come down.

The 11 pseudo-classical stone towers around the giant assembly field, some of them more than 100 feet high, must be blown up at a cost of half a million dollars. The acres of paved ground that once thundered with goose-stepping boots will be broken up in patches to make room for trees.

The pit excavated for the "German Stadium" that was never built, filled with rubble and muddy water since the war, will be cleaned out and made into a lake. The mountains of rubble surrounding it will be covered with top soil and smoothed into a park.

Housing Project To Cover Old Nazi Stamping Grounds

By RONALD SHANOR United Press International

NUERNBERG—(UPI)—Nazi Germany's biggest and bleakest monument, deserted for nearly 20 years, is coming back to life as a giant housing project.

The Nazi party grounds, where hundreds of thousands of Hitler's brownshirts marched during the 1930's, has been empty since the start of World War II in 1939.

Since 1945, successive city governments have been wondering what to do with it. The Nazis built in such heroic proportions, that razing or alteration mean major budget outlays.

Work has now begun on a housing project, with parks, a lake, shops, and apartments for 40,000 persons. But before the buildings can go up, much of Hitler's architecture must come down.

The 11 pseudo-classical stone towers around the giant assembly field, some of them more than 100 feet high, must be blown up at a cost of half a million dollars. The acres of paved ground that once thundered with goose-stepping boots will be broken up in patches to make room for trees.

The pit excavated for the "German Stadium" that was never built, filled with rubble and muddy water since the war, will be cleaned out and made into a lake. The mountains of rubble surrounding it will be covered with top soil and smoothed into a park.

American G. I. baseball for the past 12 years, will remain at a city athletic field to be shared by the Army.

The toughest problem of the postwar planners was the Nazi Congress Hall, a structure that was to hold 120,000 party members for indoor meetings. Designed along the lines and spaciousness of the Roman coliseum, the hall was only two-thirds completed when the war began.

To tear down the hall would have taken most of the housing project funds. To leave it, vacant and gloomy, in the midst of the new residential area would discourage tenants.

A solution was found with the formation of the Corporation of Sportsmen and Industrialists to complete the walls and use the hall as a stadium. The Nazis left the construction material at hand.

Thousands of huge stone blocks, cut to fit the building plans and carefully numbered, lie piled or scattered along the roads leading to the party area. Some have been covered with dirt and planted with grass, since other removal solutions would have cost too much. They probably will be dug out again.

Reputation Restored
The housing project will put an end to one of Nuernberg's biggest law-enforcement headaches. Since the early occupation days, residents of suburban Nuernberg have been afraid to go near the party grounds at night. There have been two murders and innumerable robberies there.

The Valka Refugee Camp, scene of several displaced persons riots, occupied part of the area. Black marketers used the overgrown stone towers and weedy piles of rubble as meeting places.

The project also represents Nuernberg's efforts to erase the bad name Hitler gave it. He chose the city for his party meetings in 1929 because of the old Germanic legends connected with its past, which the Nazis were fond of borrowing for their own propaganda.

Nuernberg, after the war, was associated with the Nazi leaders tried by the International War Crimes Tribunal.

The housing project will be a contribution to its new reputation as a city with model social and welfare plans. Despite opposition because of the notoriety of its name, Nuernberg was chosen to represent West Germany at the Brussels World's Fair as an example of city planning and services.

Foot Rules Diabetics Should Never Forget

By HENRY M. SHUMWAY, M. D.

Remember the "good old days" when youngsters used to go barefoot all summer long? We don't see much of this any more, especially in our urban areas. And it's probably a good thing.

With all the glass and other sharp objects left lying around these days as a result of our more civilized way of living, the chances of injury and infection are fairly high.

Here Foot Humors
So I suggest that you parents do not permit your youngsters to go around barefoot much this summer, unless it is in the safety of your own backyard.

And I must rule out even this for all diabetic children. In fact, any diabetic, young or old, should never walk around barefoot anywhere any time.

Any kind of an infection in a diabetic should be treated as an emergency. Infection, you see, reduces the effectiveness of insulin.

Engage on Skin
Since infection is apt to begin around the toes, a diabetic must take meticulous care of his feet. Therefore let me give you a few foot rules that any diabetic, young or old, should follow:

Bathe and powder your feet daily. Pat your feet dry, don't wipe them.

Don't bathe in very hot water. Even in the shower, protect your feet with paper slippers. Don't cut, scrape or injure your toes or feet. Don't use commercial corn removers. Don't use strong iodine solutions. Wear Leather Shoes. Wear good, supple leather shoes with flexible soles. Old shoes that are out of shape can cause foot trouble. Don't wear poorly fitted shoes or high-heeled shoes. Don't wear shoes without heels. Poor circulation also is extremely dangerous to a diabetic. It causes damage to the tissues and the excess sugar in the blood provides bacteria with an excellent opportunity to grow. Consequently, Don't sit with your legs crossed over your knees. Don't use tight bandages or place adhesive tape on the skin. Don't use hot water bottles on your feet.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
Mrs. R. M. My 20-year-old son has a very high-pitched voice. This began at the age of 14. What can be causing this? Answer: Some disorder of the vocal cords or nervous system may be at fault. A thorough physical examination will probably reveal the exact cause.

Smithsonian Has 50 Travel Exhibits
WASHINGTON—(UPI)—Fifty "traveling exhibitions" are listed in the Smithsonian Institution's 1954-55 catalogue.

The catalogue is published each year to help schools, museums, university and college galleries and other non-profit organizations to plan their seasonal educational programs.

The ambulatory exhibitions include painting and sculpture drawings and crafts, Oriental folk and indigenous art, photography, books and children's drawings. The Smithsonian has sponsored these exhibits for the last six years. Working with private funds, it has arranged 1,300 different showings of 106 domestic and foreign exhibits for this country, Canada and Hawaii.

The U. S. Information Agency has circulated 34 more displays overseas. The catalogue of traveling exhibitions may be obtained by writing to the Smithsonian's chief of

Backyard Pools In Huge Growth

CHICAGO—(UPI)—An American Society of Planning Officials report on backyard swimming pools in the United States indicates that the number may hit 200,000 this year, nearly 50 times as many as there were in 1947.

Communities have been quick to respond to the sudden growth of the number of pools by issuing ordinances regulating the noise, glare of lights and danger to children.

Many cities now prohibit pools in front yards, require pools and pool regulation equipment to be set back from property lines, control drainage, require fences and occasionally require the consent of neighbors before the pools can be built.

The catalogue of traveling exhibitions may be obtained by writing to the Smithsonian's chief of

Two Hurt As Auto Smashes Into Truck

Two people were injured and their automobiles declared total losses in a smash-up on Highway 40 at the St. Johns River bridge 16 miles east of Sanford late last night. However, two passengers of a pickup truck, involved in the collision and a third passenger in the passenger automobile miraculously escaped uninjured. Bernard Wagner, 65, a sundry store operator in Lake Helen and his wife, Regina, 58, were taken to an Orlando hospital early this morning for hospitalization following emergency treatment at Seminole Memorial Hospital. Mrs. Wagner received a crushed left hip, a possible brain concussion, possible fractured ribs and severe lacerations of the face. Wagner, driver of the car, received facial lacerations and a possible chest injury. A daughter, 13-year-old Rosemary Wagner, was uninjured in the crash that occurred about 10:30 last night about 30 feet east of the bridge in Volusia County. E. W. Smith and his wife, of Lake Mary, were traveling west on State Road 16 and had come to a stop at the eastern approach to the bridge because of oneway traffic. Smith said "I saw the car coming and had time to think." He said that when the automobile smashed into the rear of his truck he pulled sharply to the right, went down the steep embankment, turned sharply to the left and was stopped by a barbed wire fence at the river. "Otherwise," said Smith, "we would have gone on into the water." The Wagners were returning from a visit in Vero Beach and were on their way to their Lake Helen home four miles east of Orange City. Automobiles involved in the collision were a 1952 Chevrolet driven by Wagner and a 1957 Ford pickup truck driven by Smith. Neither Wagner nor his wife were able to make statements about the crash last night before being taken to an Orlando hospital for treatment. Investigation of the accident was conducted by Florida Highway Patrol Trooper T. Mark Mack who was assisted by Auxiliary Patrol Corporal L. E. Smith. Seminole County Deputy Sheriff Marion Driggers was at the scene to lend assistance.

Capt. Ramage To Relieve Reedy As Commander Of Hatwing One

Captain James D. Ramage has arrived aboard the Sanford Naval Air Station where he will relieve Captain James R. Reedy as Commander of Heavy Attack Wing One. The change-of-command ceremonies will take place on the third of July. Captain Reedy will then immediately depart for the West Coast where he will take command of the aircraft carrier U.S.S. Lexington. Captain Ramage comes from duty at the National War College in Washington, D. C. His is a U. S. Naval Academy graduate of the class of 1933. During World War II he made two cruises with Bomber Squadron Ten aboard the U.S.S. Enterprise. In the latter part of the Korean war he was Commander of Carrier Air Group Nineteen aboard the U.S.S. Oriskany. These services earned him decorations which include the Navy Cross, three Distinguished Flying Crosses and seven Air Medals. Other duties have included those of Chief of Operations and Projects for the Armed Forces Special Weapons Project at Albuquerque, New Mexico and Commanding Officer of the all weather fighter squadron VC-3. With Captain Ramage in Sanford are his wife Ty and two daughters Jaleen, age 7 and Janine, age 3. Although Captain Ramage was born in Waterloo, Iowa, he and his family call Honolulu, Hawaii, their permanent home. Captain Reedy has served as Commander of Heavy Attack Wing One for a period of one year. During this time he has been the first Navy captain to become qualified in landing the twin jet A-1H bomber aboard a carrier. Captain Reedy's family will remain residents of Sanford while his ship is overseas in the Western Pacific.

Chicago Nun's Disappearance Is Investigated CHICAGO (UPI) — American Embassy in several European capitals today investigated the disappearance of a Chicago nun 10 days ago while traveling through communist Czechoslovakia. The Chicago Sun-Times said it learned Sunday the missing nun, Sister Catefan, was en route by train through Czechoslovakia to Czechochowa, Poland, when she vanished. The nun planned to build an orphanage for retarded children at Czechochowa. United States embassies in Prague, Warsaw, Vienna and Rome are seeking her whereabouts, the Sun-Times said, but apparently have been stymied by the refusal of the Czechoslovak government to divulge any information in the case.

AR Accused Of Waging Actual War On Lebanon

County's Government Facilities Falling Apart

AN EDITORIAL Seminole County has been so engulfed by growth and progress that its very governmental operation cannot operate efficiently because of the lack of space. Every department is faced with problems that can be solved only by providing exactly what some citizens suggested at the time county property was considered for commercial expansion—and that is a new Court House and jail. Now, some of the same people who stormed at Seminole County Commissioners for even considering the sale of property because it could be used for the proposed facilities, are rising up in arms at the suggestion that a court house and jail be built. Some near-sighted individuals are suggesting that Seminole County burden the taxpayers with additional millage for repairing the present court house "fire trap" at a cost of some $15,000 to $50,000 so that it can be used for two more years. What these people don't realize is that in two years the problem of providing new facilities will be even greater, costlier, and out-of-reach. Every Seminole County citizen should pay a special visit to the Health Unit located on the second floor of a Palmetto Ave. building. Sick people wouldn't dare walk up the narrow stairs and in the second place they wouldn't know what to do when they reached the second floor and the antiquated, outmoded, inadequate space that is now provided. And we call to your attention that the doctors and sanitarians are expected to administer 1958 plans and prevention in the 1960 facilities in which they are working. Next — and by all means — pay special attention to the Seminole County Health Department located in the dungeon-like building next to the Sanford Fire Department. Behind bars that were used probably in 1900 — in a building that is as unsavory as the worst mixture that can be concocted, the Health Department of your county is supposed to operate. It is a downright shame that such facilities are even allowed to be used — and they are representative of our county. Yes — Seminole County is growing — outgrowing its own government and government facilities! And next, you should visit Seminole County's "poor house" on 17-92. It is exactly descriptive of the words attached to it — poor house. A former stockade, prison farm, workhouse for the county, and yet, still remains. It is to be used for the housing of aged people — people who are sick, disabled, indigent, and in these conditions unable to take care of themselves. Take a look at what some of our "civic leaders" want Seminole County to use in housing these elderly citizens of our community. Would you want to go there in event you lost all of your earthly possessions? It is a shame and disgrace that the county can't provide the facilities in which these people could be treated and cared for. Go to the County Jail and see how juvenile delinquents must brush by hardened criminals — how women must be confined in areas that many Seminole County cattlemen wouldn't even house their cows and range cattle. Ask to be shown the hot water tank that leaks in two places—possibly could blow up under certain conditions. Look at the 1915 water heater attached to it—a heater that provided hot water for a family of three or four many years ago. Be sure to see the cells from which it is practically impossible to bring out a sick man on a stretcher. The overcrowded conditions even at times when "not too many are confined to jail." The Seminole County Court House is a veritable " tinder box" — would go up in smoke like cannon fire with just one act of carelessness. Look through the cubbyhole in the Seminole County Tax Assessor's office — survey the space in which the Tax Collector and the Tax Assessor can't even put new equipment they have purchased for the operation of their departments. Antiquated? It's far beyond that! And yet — some Seminole County citizens dare object to providing the facilities that match the growth and progress of one of Florida's fastest growing, fastest advancing counties. In other words, they say "If it was good enough for my Granddaddy to use — it's good enough for me." The stage is now set for some concrete action with respect to facilities provided for our county government. The fair approach now is for Seminole County Commissioners to continue with their planning.

Routine Meeting Scheduled Tonight For City Fathers

A routine meeting is scheduled for the Board of Sanford City Commissioners tonight, according to the agenda prepared by City Manager Warren E. Knowles. Eight items for discussion and action have been placed on the agenda with miscellaneous business items on the floor and City Commission slated to occupy more time. Slated to come before the commissioners tonight is a public hearing on the rezoning from R-1 to R-2, Lots 1, 2, 3, and 4 of Block 20, Mellonville. A request to open an alley from 23th St. to Orlando Dr. between Myrtle and Elm Aves. Also a request to vacate the alley from Palmetto to Sanford Ave. between 18th and 19th Sts. Two appointments are to be made. One to the Civil Service Commission and another to the Zoning and Planning Commission. Also slated is a discussion of a proposed change on the material in the radio bid. To be considered is a transfer of $66.00 from account 1017 to 4021 in the city's records. For consideration is a request for no parking signs on Sanford Ave. at the First Christian Church. The final item on the commission's agenda for tonight's discussion is to see if the city wished to send a representative to a one week course on the "Role of Planning and Zoning in Community Development."

15-Year Old Girl Dies From Injuries

A 15-year-old girl died in Jacksonville early Thursday morning as a result of injuries received in a two-car collision shortly after 6 o'clock Sunday afternoon June 15. Hilary Ann Schroeder, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hilary Schroeder of Jacksonville, became another Seminole County traffic fatality when she failed to overcome a brain injury received in the accident. The young girl was first treated in Seminole Memorial Hospital and then transferred to the Baptist Memorial Hospital in Jacksonville early the following morning. Schroeder, 33, executive director of the Florida Blue Shield-Blue Cross insurance organization in Florida, was listed in "fair condition," along with his wife, Mrs. Marion Schroeder, 48, who were both injured in the accident. Another passenger, Miss Virginia Humes, 12, of Maitland, niece of Mr. and Mrs. Schroeder, was uninjured in the accident and suffered only shock. John Robert Webster, 34, an insurance man of Winter Park, driver of the car which collided with the Schroeder's automobile about two miles north of Sanford on 17-92 is said to be in fair condition in an Orlando hospital. Webster, who had struck the Moore Bridge prior to crashing into the Schroeder car, received lacerations all over his body and was transferred to the Orlando hospital early Monday morning following the accident. Florida Highway Patrol Trooper T. Mark Mack, who investigated the collision, said that two charges have been placed against Webster.

Recreation Dept. Registers 1,600 Youths Last Week

The Sanford Recreation Department and the Seminole County Playground Program registered 1,600 different youngsters for its first week of summer activities, according to a report made this morning by Sanford Recreation Director Ronald W. Perry. With 10 centers in operation, said Perry, four within the city of Sanford and six in the county and a staff of 35 workers, a tremendous program is underway. Perry said "All residents of Seminole County may engage in the various activities with registration made at the nearest center." Residents within the City of Sanford, he said, have been divided into three areas, but the residents of outlying suburbs and districts may register at Pine Crest School where there are now almost 200 enrolled, or at Oviedo where 70 are enrolled or at Lyman School where 160 are enrolled. Centers for colored residents, Perry pointed out, are established at Oviedo where 50 have registered, Midway School with 117 registered and at Rowland School in Altamonte Springs with 31 registered. The two colored centers in the City of Sanford, he said, are at Goldthorn School with 350 registered and Hopper Academy with 131 children enrolled. The overall total has swelled to over 1,600 participants in the program, said Perry.

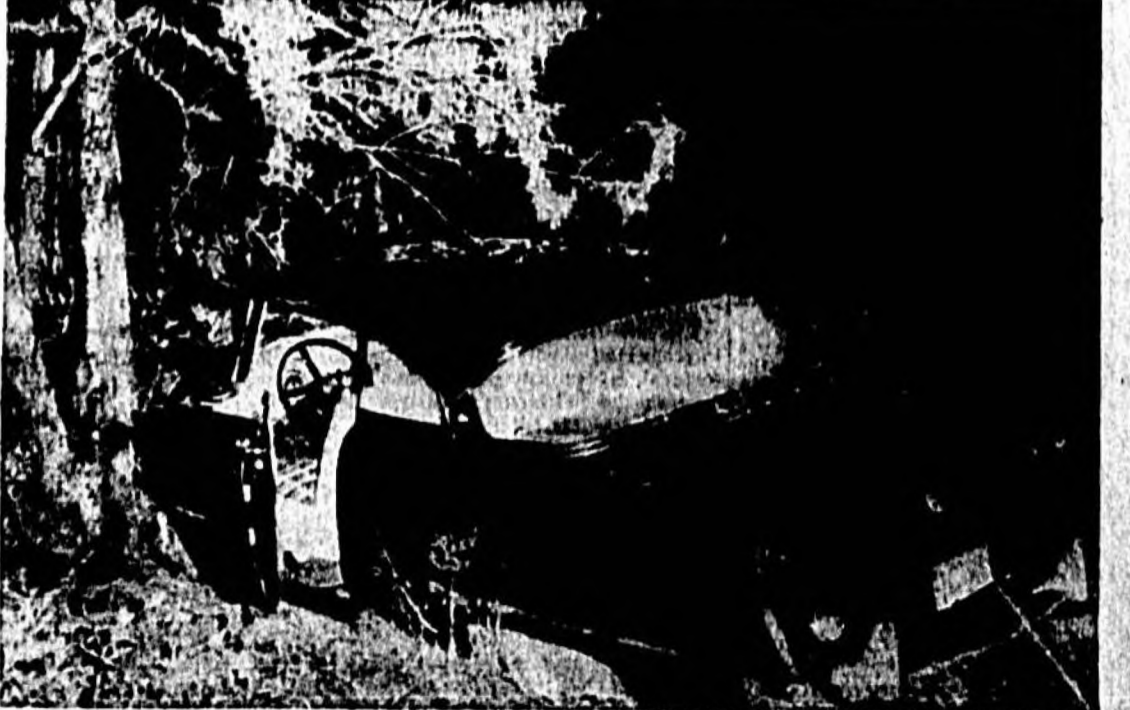

Constable Galloway In 'Fair' Condition

Constable J. Q. "Blim" Galloway is in Seminole Memorial Hospital following a heart attack Friday night shortly after 9:30 p. m. Galloway's condition is listed as "fair" and reports this morning state that he has "improved slightly." Constable Galloway went home Friday night about 9 o'clock complaining of feeling ill. However, his condition worsened, and he was rushed to the hospital. Seminole County Sheriff J. T. Hobby said this morning that his office is assisting in the handling of complaints and emergencies ordinarily handled through the Constable's office. Sheriff Hobby said this morning that complaints and emergencies usually referred to Constable Galloway should be referred now to the Sheriff's office until such time that Constable Galloway is able to resume his duties.

The New WAYNE D. OVERHOLSER Thriller

THE LONE DEPUTY

CHAPTER 24
PRICE BEGAN ROSE AT SUN-
 UP Monday morning, tired and groggy, but very much aware that in a general way the future of the River would be decided today, perhaps for as long as a generation. He pulled on his boots and buckled his gun belt around him, and washed in the basin on his bureau, and all the time he was thinking that, in terms of individuals, today was more important than it was to the country as a whole.

Laura and him. The settlers on the Yellow Cat, the Mohawks and Cole Weston. Certainly Harry Madden. If Ralph Carey were here, the old sheriff would tell him that more important than all the individuals involved was the broad principle of law.

Would it be an instrument by which justice could be given to all the people in the county of Tennessee, or more words bandied about by Cole Weston, defied by him when it suited his own selfish needs?

There was exactly what Ralph Carey would ask. In many ways he was a tough, uncompromising man, shaped that way by his environment and by the demands which had been made upon him. Yet there was this other side which constantly surprised Price. The way he looked upon law as something other and above the selfish grasping of a lot of men. Price was surprised at himself too, when he realized how much of that idealism had rubbed off on him.

Price put on his Winchester, went down the stairs and out of the hotel and lobby into the cool morning sunshine. He could not elude the gloom that settled upon him. Everything depended upon the finding Bruce Jarvis and bringing him to town, alive and able to talk, and, moreover, he knew, would depend largely on sheer luck.

After breakfast he saddled his gun, shoved the Winchester in the boot, and took the rear road out of town. Every available rider on the Rocking C and Broken Ring would be out on the range searching for Bruce Jarvis today. Price still felt reasonably certain that the boy had holed up somewhere along the Yellow Cat. He would be shocked and frightened, and he'd know the search for him would be red hot. But would he get panicky and bolt? If he did, Price thought grimly, he'd be dead by noon.

He reached the mouth of the Yellow Cat and turned up the creek, passing the Evans farm, and stopped at the Potter place. It was deserted. He was angered by this, for he'd told George Farnum to stay, and yet he hadn't actually expected him to obey. By mid-morning, these people would probably be on their way out of the country. But fifty yards up the road he met Farnum in his wagon. Both stopped, Farnum saying, "Thought I ought to go down and do the chores. How's Joan?" "She's alive and I ain't kept her that way," Price answered. "Why didn't you stay at the Potter place like I told you?" "Wasn't no use to," Farnum said defensively. "After dark the kid sneaked in, hunting for grub maybe. I was dozing in a rocking chair in the front room when I heard him in the back. I yelled at him, but he took off like a skinned rabbit and that's the last I saw of him."

Price held his tongue, fighting a desire to tell Farnum what a check-headed idiot he was. If he'd handled it right, he could have got hold of the boy, that there was nothing to gain now by cursing Farnum out. He asked, "Which way did the kid go?" Farnum jerked his thumb up the creek. "He stopped at our place. Leastwise I think he did. Sure won't talk to me, sure won't about nothing, but she's wrapping with Dora fit to kill, but I don't know why. By the time you get there they'll be pulling hair."

"I'll stop and talk to Susie," Price said.

"Regan," Farnum stumped down at his big hands that held the reins. "You reckon we might be moving out today? What'll they do to us?"

Again anger flared up in Price. He wanted to say that if a man wanted to fight for his home, he didn't deserve to be kept. But the anger died at once, for he remembered that Farnum had found the bodies of Lizette and Sam Potter. Against men like Cole Weston and the Mohawks, Farnum had no chance and he knew it.

"I ain't tell you what to do," Price said. "I guess it depends on whether I find Bruce alive or not. If I don't, you'll have trouble."

He rode up the creek, leaving Farnum perplexed and frightened. Before he could dismount in front of the Farnum house, Dora came storming out. "Keep on riding, Regan," she said. "The Jarvis kid ain't here."

He didn't pretend to understand her. There was no use arguing with her. He stepped out of the saddle and, leaving the reins dragging, started toward her.

"I ain't gonna let you in the house," she said harshly. "You'll make us nothing but trouble just like the Jarvis boy. He's got Susie so mixed up she don't know what she's doing."

Dora retreated to the doorway and stood there, a big, coarse-featured girl who was consumed by a fury which seemed to have no cause.

Simple Precautions That Will Pay Off For Summer Vacationers

School's all out (except the summer school program) and it seems as if about one-half the population is already on vacation or about ready to take off for distant parts or perhaps planning just what and where the summer vacation will be.

Comes now a word of caution to those in the two latter groups.

Though the good guys greatly outnumber the evil guys in this drama of life we go through, there are still enough of the evil ones around to make trouble for the rest of us. Some of them like nothing better than to spot a house whose occupants are obviously away for an extended trip. When they do spot such a location, they are likely to come back in the dark of the moon and make off with whatever valuables they can carry.

Evil guys of this ilk can be thwarted by removing various telltale signs of family absence. One thing to do is arrange to have the lawn mowed regularly while you're gone. Don't forget to stop the milk deliveries and get a friendly neighbor to take in your newspaper and mail every day. Better yet, call The Sanford Herald and have your paper discontinued for the period of time you're to be gone and ask to have your papers saved so that on your return you can catch up on all that's happened.

Another thing that helps wonderfully is to leave a small light burning somewhere, possibly in the bathroom; this is a tiny cost for first-rate insurance against prowlers.

Don't draw the shades; this, if you didn't know it, is a dead giveaway that there's no one at home. Ask that same friendly neighbor to check your doors and windows now and again.

Call the Sanford Police Department if you live in the city, or the Seminole County Sheriff's office if you're in the county, the constable of your district, or the marshall in one of the outlying towns of the area and notify them that you're going to be away for awhile. You can't imagine what a help this is for your law enforcement people are constantly on the alert to protect the citizens against wrong-doers.

These are all simple precautions. But—they pay off. Coming home to find your house looted can sour memories of even the very finest vacation trip.

The Public Will Benefit

One of the most promising developments to emerge as a reaction to several recent mid-air plane collisions is the proposed that there be created a unified federal agency to handle both civilian and military air traffic problems.

The developments have gone so far that a proposed bill to create such an agency has been submitted to the Senate by thirty-three senators. A similar plan has been suggested by President Eisenhower.

Such an agency might be a far better vehicle than the United States now has for moving rapidly toward air traffic control adequate in what has become the jet age. The Civil Aeronautics Administration has made progress toward this end, especially during the past few months, but it has simply not kept pace with the rising need.

Spending money for this control is certainly better than the tremendous losses in planes that have been destroyed — to say nothing of the more important phase of the plan and that is the saving of lives. It is hardly possible to place a monetary value on lives of fifty passengers aboard a plane, or the pilots and their plane crews who maneuver the military air vehicles.

The prospects that this control could be done in a short time, even by a unified agency, are not at all good. One major handicap, for instance, is that large quantities of complex equipment will be needed, and it is not the sort of equipment that can be purchased at the nearest department store. At best, several years probably will pass before the nation has an air traffic control system fully up to handling demands made on it.

That is no reason, however, for slackening the effort; quite the contrary, the way we see it. And the best bet is some sort of unified agency combining the present functions of both the Civil Aeronautics Administration and the Airways Modernization Board.

The military, we think, should have its fair share in the say about regulations and the kind of control system adopted but certainly we would not want that representation overbalanced.

The very essential thing is that with a unified agency both military and civilian flights would be subject to overall control, and the public would benefit accordingly.

Soviet Tourists To Tour U. S.

By COLLETTE BLACKMOORE
 MOSCOW (UPI)—In about two months, a few groups of travelers carrying maroon-colored passports and conservative plywood suitcases, and with a distinct look of their own, are expected to step down from a plane at New York's International Airport.

After taking a deep breath and a wide-eyed look around, they will go on to act just like any other foreign visitors to the United States.

Within hours of arrival they will have patronized the picture postcard stands, bought themselves a guide map of New York, and taken a stroll up the Avenue. They will start wandering through the museums and generously sampling the local cuisine.

If all predictions are fulfilled, these people will be the first bona fide Soviet tourists to come to America on a sightseeing tour. In its time, the United States has received a number of distinguished Russians and, since the Bolshevik Revolution, Soviet citizens.

In most recent years, the trickle has become a stream. Over 8,100 Soviet citizens have made trips to the United States since July, 1955. Beginnings of Tourism
 The vast majority travelled on official passports. Some were classed as unofficial visitors but also came in connection with their work. A very few were permitted by the Soviet government to visit relatives in the United States.

Now the era of real tourism is about to begin. The first groups of sightseeing Soviets are tentatively scheduled to arrive in New York in August for an 11-day excursion which will take them, in addition to New York, to Washington, Chicago, Buffalo and perhaps Detroit.

At an approximate cost of 8,000 rubles ($900) at the tourist exchange rate, the fortunate 13 to 20 persons in each group will explore Manhattan Island from the uptown Cloisters to the Battery.

They will inspect the White House and the various seats of American government in Washington. Like so many honeymooners they will make the pilgrimage to Niagara Falls.

In Chicago the lakefront and the Loop await the Russians while Detroit may offer them a good look at America's automobile production lines.

Large Areas Restricted
 As with Americans in the Soviet Union, Soviet tourists will not be able to travel wherever they please in the United States. The State Department's elaborate travel restrictions, imposed early in 1955 in retaliation for those which closed about one-third of the Soviet Union to foreigners, ban the Russians from the states of Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, Washington, large parts of Pennsylvania, Indiana, Ohio, Tennessee, North and South Dakota, California, and sections of other states.

The suggested five-city itinerary has been worked out in conformity with the restrictions.

Who will the first Soviet tourist in America be?

There are no advertisements in the Soviet press announcing that so many places are available for such and such a junket to this or that country. The entire business of informing people that there is a possibility of going to America, accepting applications, and selecting the lucky candidates is handled by the trade unions, which receive their instructions from the Communist Party.

The tourists who finally set off for New York will be citizens who can afford the cost and have a clean character and work record. They will not be "average" Russians nor can one expect to find many, if any, young people among the pioneer tourists. The cost alone, seven-and-one-half months' salary for an "average" earner, excludes them. The fortunate first will undoubtedly

Future Naval Warfare Under Study

By BARRELL GARDNER

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The U.S. Navy believes today that its war fleet are winning a postwar battle to avoid being chased beneath the sea by technology.

But if space age advances in detection and missiles prove so great that most naval combat operations must be sub-surface, it is preparing to take full advantage of nuclear-powered submarines.

One result may be a generation of Navy men prepared to fight either from surface ships or submarines.

Another will be the gradual obsolescence of non-nuclear naval vessels unless they can somehow be of service to atomic-powered aircraft carriers.

The inescapable facts of future naval warfare, being studied by the Navy's progress analysis group, include:

—Surface ships will be able to operate within the zone of combat only if they control the sky above and the waters below. That means huge task forces based around the aircraft carriers and including cruisers and destroyers amply armed with anti-aircraft guided missiles.

Can Patrol Alone
 —Only the nuclear sub can patrol alone. The fact that these can remain submerged indefinitely, and their new-found ability to conduct sub-surface launchings of 1,800-mile missiles carrying H-bomb warheads, has made them "a fourth dimension in sea power."

The Navy already has several categories of enlisted men who are trained to serve either on subs or surface ships. These include men, electronics technicians and machinist mates.

During the next few years, the number is expected to increase by 700 per cent, while the missile category will increase by 2,000 per cent. Gains of 40 and 25 per cent respectively are assigned to the electronics and machinist groups.

Conventional subs meanwhile have become a thing of the past as far as new construction is concerned. Six atomic submarines are at sea, twelve are being built and a dozen more are in various stages of planning.

The fantastic capabilities assigned to the "fleet ballistic submarine," one of which is under construction with two more authorized so far, has captured attention on this type. While details are still secret, the general characteristics of the subs are expected to be these:

—They will displace about 6,000 tons, double the size of the atomic-powered Nautilus.

Carry Polaris Missiles
 —They will carry 16 each of the Navy's 1,800-mile Polaris missiles, and thus will be capable of striking almost any inland target with nuclear explosives.

—They will conduct the missile launchings from safe distances beneath the surface, and may rise to surface for months at a time.

Rear Admiral Ignatius J. Galatin, former chief of undersea warfare, writing in the June issue of the U.S. Naval Institute Proceedings, assures that the area of possible conflict can be greatly extended downward as well as upward.

Whereas 300 or 400 feet was extreme depth for a World War II sub, Galatin believes nuclear types can be built to patrol at depths of 3,000 feet—more than half a mile. The oceans average about 13,000 feet in depth.

But Capt. Henry L. Miller, director of the progress analysis group, warned in an interview that the purpose of U.S. naval operations must always be to control the surface of the seas.

Try and Stop Me

By BENNETT CURT

ONE BIG BRANCH of a national restaurant chain showed a sudden sharp and inexplicable decline in receipts, and inspectors were sent on the double to investigate. "Everything seems in perfect order," they reported, frankly puzzled. "We kept a close eye on all three cash registers, and every sale was rung up accurately."

That's how management discovered the gimmick. There were supposed to be only two cash registers. A cashier had thoughtfully installed a third register of his own.

Bob Hope took one look at the galaxy of oil tycoons come to honor him at a banquet in Dallas and observed, "It's a lucky thing no Vanderbilts or Rockefellers showed up here tonight. They'd be picked up for vagrancy!"

adly represent a sprinkling of the Soviet Union's party, government, scientific, industrial, and artistic elite.

What are the Soviet tourists likely to notice and remember of America?—a skyscraper skyline, shiny automobiles, bumper to bumper, a super-skyway or a supermarket, the abundance of consumer goods?

They will surely notice these things. But they will also notice the big city slums, the separate facilities for Negroes in the South, and the loud commercialism that pervades so many areas of life in the United States.

In the final analysis they may very well decide, as Soviet conductor Kiril Kondrashin told his Moscow Radio audience after appearing with pianist Van Cliburn in the United States, that what is best about America are the people here.

If all or even most of the returning tourists bring this impression back to their friends, Americans may happily feel that they have been paid the supreme compliment.

Citrus Mutual

By JOHN SIKES
 Florida Citrus Mutual
 LAKELAND—Echoes from the "biggest convention of agricultural producers ever held in the U. S.":
 "Frenziedly, that 'convention', of course, was the 10th Anniversary meeting of Florida Citrus Mutual in Winter Haven this week.

Will Rogers Jr., almost the epitome of physical image of Ol' Will except he seems taller, was surprised—and said so—to learn that Florida citrusmen produce close to 70 percent of the total U. S. production of oranges, tangerines and tangelos.

When young Will wearily put in at Lakeland after midnight the day of the Big Meet, following 12 hours of flying and autoing from his Los Angeles home, know what the first thing he asked for was? Florida orange juice, that's what. Tom Alderman, Lakeland innkeeper who bedded Will down for the rest of the night, produced a couple of pitchers of ice cold F.O.J. Will quaffed them off like he'd never heard of California.

In his drawing talk to his Dad, during which he recalled several of the philosophical funnies of Ol' Will, young Will grinningly libeled the assembled 2,500 growers for having California oranges on display in one of the booths.

A grower—Florida, of course—sitting near the Press Table leaned over to say to a reporter: "We gotta keep check on the competition, don't we?"
 Another grower, surveying the crowd that jam-packed Weta

Mayo Auditorium of Winter Haven's Florida Citrus building, wondered out loud: "What are we going to do for a place to hold these gatherings if they keep getting bigger and bigger?" He had a point. All the seats in the big, air-conditioned auditorium were filled and hundreds were standing in the aisles made extra narrow because some 300 or 400 extra seats were brought in at the last minute to care for the crowd.

Polk County Sheriff Hagan Parrish, who's organized a Sheriff's Post, most of whose members ride Palmico horses, was of the opinion there were 3,000 present, but agreed to hold his official estimate down to 2,500 to prove he was not being over-enthusiastic over his Big Meet of Florida citrus folks. The Sheriff was there on his horse, of course, which he shared with Young Will who proved he could do a trick or two with the larriat, like his famous Dad.

JIMMY MARTIN: home on leave.

Airman Martin Spending 2-Week Leave With Family

LONGWOOD—Airman 2nd Class James C. Martin, better known as Jimmy, is spending a two week leave with his family on Pasadena St., his parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. C. Martin, his sister, Deloris, and brother, Bobby. He has one other sister, Mrs. Merle Odum, Apopka.

A/2C Martin has spent the last year in Korea, serving in the United States Air Force. Before going overseas, Jimmy was stationed at Scott Air Force Base, Ill., for 10 months.

Jimmy attended Lyman School through the tenth grade. Since enlisting in the Air Force, he has completed high school training. He has two more years to serve before being discharged, unless he decides to follow a military career.

Here are excerpts from a letter of appreciation, written to Martin by Lt. Colonel Dolford F. Payne: "On the occasion of your departure for reassignment to the United States, I take this opportunity to express my appreciation of your outstanding performance of duty as radar maintenance technician with this organization."

"In your duty as radio relay maintenance technician you have, through persistent application and personal initiative, continually broadened your knowledge and experience until you have become one of the most valuable technicians in the communication section."

"It is heartening for me to have men of your calibre assigned to my squadron. Your consistent, creditable performance of duty reflects favorably upon yourself, this squadron, and the United States Air Force. Thanks for a job—well done—but outstandingly done."

Longwoodites are proud of the service records being made by our young men. All together we say, "Welcome Home," A/2C Martin will be stationed at Myrtle Beach, S. C.

Jimmy's mother is one of Longwood's most popular school bus drivers.

No Antidote For Radiation

"There is no antidote for radiation" warned a leading Radiation Biologist, Major Phillips M. Brooks, Wright Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, O., this week in Miami Beach, Florida, where Dr. A. W. Woodall of Sanford is attending the 63rd Anniversary Convention of the National Chiropractic Association at the Hotel Fontainebleau.

"You can't see, smell or feel the initial effects but they show up in later years by early death and susceptibility to disease," declared the Major. He and Lt. Col. Bennett E. Robertson, USAF Academy, Denver, Colo., urged that an education program be set up in the near future and warned that the government may establish rules and regulations for keeping records of X-ray exposures if all operators do not do this soon.

The Doctor was accompanied to the convention by his wife and stayed at the Hotel Fontainebleau.

He retired in DeBary and was a member of the DeBary Fire Department, Democratic Club and Property Owners Association. A pioneer resident of DeBary, Hofman organized the dance and golf clubs there.

Survivors include his wife Amanda Hofman; son, Everett Hofman of New Jersey; two sisters, Tillie McCully, New Jersey, and Celestine Mikka, New Jersey. Funeral services will be held tomorrow at 1:30 p. m. at Gramkow Funeral Home Chapel, with the Rev. Phillip Schlessman, pastor of the Lutheran Church of The Redeemer, Sanford, officiating.

Citizens Bank Buys Property

OVIDEO—The property located back of the Oviedo Drug Store, Oviedo Post Office, Citizens Bank of Oviedo, O.H.H.'s Barber Shop, and Alford's Shopping Center was sold sometime ago to the Citizens Bank of Oviedo by Ben H. Jones and Mrs. H. W. Estes, who had formerly owned part of each. Prior to that the bank had purchased another portion from D. K. Kerary.

A warehouse that was on the property owned by Mrs. Estes, was torn down a short time ago. The new couple of days has been spent in widening the warehouse that was on the Ben H. Jones property. The warehouse was bought by Robert McCallister.

Shaffer, questioned on the use of the property, stated that they plan on using a shell to make the purchased land into a parking lot. He also said that they plan on widening the alleyway back of the bank in order to put in a drive-in window at the back to give service to the public.

Workers for the two-week period, namely, all teachers, plus Mrs. E. M. and Mrs. G. M. Aron, refreshment committee; Mrs. George Means, plant and secretary for the second week of school; Miss Nancy Myers, secretary for the first week. (Miss Myers had to go the second week to help with Recreation School, so Mrs. Means took over).

Carol Beasley, Beverly Cauthan, Jackie Pendarvis and Pat Jackson acted as ushers Friday evening, the collection going to defray Bible School expenses.

Refreshments were furnished by various members of the WMU of the church.

2 Ladies Attend P-TA Short Course

By Sibyl Grant
LONGWOOD—Mrs. Elena Shaw and Mrs. Jim Birkenmeyer attended the 22nd annual P-TA Short Course, held in Gainesville, recently.

The theme of this year's Short Course, "Keeping The Channels Clear" was borne out in lectures, panel discussions and movie films. Particular emphasis was placed on the "Channel" of communication between teenagers and parents. Then the "Channels" between teachers and pupils, between teachers and parents and the "Channels" of co-operation from chairmanship to P-TA body as a whole came in for their share of importance.

An informal reception was held the first night. At this time old friends had a chance to say "hello". New friendships were formed, ideas exchanged, and much comment on the soaring temperatures was heard.

The speech, discussion and films showing the United Nations at work, and conducting the viewers on a tour through the United Nations building were described as being "just wonderful." The films showing the work and operation of the United Nations, declares Mrs. Shaw, would be good for any school program. These will be available from the P-TA film library in the near future.

The Friday morning assembly was the Friday night. It was reported. The P-TA Short Course Chorus presented a group of beautifully arranged choral numbers. Then, for the first time in Short Course history, the County Superintendent of Public Instruction, and the Presidents of the County Council of P-TAs were present.

Mrs. Mussett, Miami, presided over the P-TA Council. The assembly chairman introduced each County Superintendent and County Council president. The Seminole County delegation nearly burst with pride as Rayburn T. Milwee and Mrs. Ira E. Soward marched down the aisle together to acknowledge their introduction.

Very informative were the panel discussions on a proposed new school course, "Education for Family Life." This course is now being taught in some Florida schools. The opinion of those attending the short course was that such a course would be of great benefit to many children.

After night classes Wednesday and Thursday nights, the Lyman School delegation joined in the fun of square dancing. Declaring that it is a privilege to attend a P-TA Short Course, Mrs. Shaw says "I will have many events and things to remember the rest of her life."

New Filling Station Being Built In Oviedo

OVIDEO—Oviedo will soon be sporting another new filling station.

This new $20,000 building is being constructed by B. F. Wheeler Jr. down town, where the highway divides, one highway (419) going to Chuluota and the East Coast, the other highway (488) going to Geneva and the East Coast leading to Daytona Beach, New Smyrna Beach, Titusville, etc. The Chuluota highway leads down East Coast to Melbourne, Cocoa, etc.

Wheeler says that the new station is due for completion within 60 days and has been leased by him to the Texaco Co. He also states that it is of 60,000 gallon capacity.

This same site has housed a Standard Oil Station, L. H. Gore operated the station and Ben G. Wainright at one time worked there.

The building was later torn down. The Standard Station rebuilt sometime ago a new station across the highway from this location. It is now being operated by Kenneth Malcolm.

Furniture, Rug Market In July

High Point, N. C. Furniture and department store buyers, including Mather of Sanford, are sending in advance registrations to attend the Southern Furniture and Rug Market in High Point, North Carolina, July 7-12, in numbers equal to any markets of the past, according to Leo J. Heer, Market Manager.

National influences are the dominant style notes and range from furniture with an American-Indian motif on through the European nations and into the Orient.

Furniture buyers make the trip to High Point in preparation for their merchandising programs for the next six months. They view furniture in something like 12 acres of space at the Southern Furniture Exposition Building which is being entered by another 150,000 square feet in a 7-story building now under construction.

The Standard Station rebuilt sometime ago a new station across the highway from this location. It is now being operated by Kenneth Malcolm.

J. Horner Named To Holy Cross Church Vestry

The Vestry of an Episcopal Church recently elected John C. Horner of Little Venice to fill the Navy seat left vacant by the moving of Lewis M. Cobb. Horner is a church school teacher at Holy Cross, a licensed lay-reader, and he and his wife are the sponsors of the Young People's Group. He will fill the balance of this year's term on the Vestry, and at the Annual Parish Meeting in January of 1959, the congregation will vote upon whether or not he will continue in the Vestry seat, or some other Navy man will be elected to fill the remaining year of the three year term.

The Vestry of an Episcopal Church is the duly elected representative board of a parish whose responsibilities are the care of all physical property and the handling of business and financial matters. M. L. Rahorn, Jr., is Senior Warden and William Bush is Junior Warden of Holy Cross Parish. The rector is the Rev. John W. Thomas.

Hungary's Problem Not Isolated

EDITOR'S NOTE: Mr. David Kelly, a diplomat since 1919 and British ambassador to Moscow from 1949 to 1951, is one of Britain's foremost experts on Communist affairs. In the following analysis he reports that the execution of former Hungarian Premier Imre Nagy means the return of Stalinism in the Kremlin and the end of "separate paths to socialism."

By SIR DAVID KELLY
Written for UPI
LONDON (UPI) — It would be a mistake to consider the case of Hungary as an isolated problem. There is no doubt that when Khrushchev made his famous denunciation of Stalin at the 20th party congress he overplayed his hand. He had very intelligible motives for denouncing Stalin personally, but he never had the least intention of departing from strict Marxist-Leninist orthodoxy, and this has become a practice inseparably linked with the fundamentals of Stalinism as a system.

In Soviet Russia itself the governmental machine is now more subordinate than ever to the Communist Party, while the Presidium of the party itself seems to be completely under Khrushchev. He has ten members of his party secretariat in it — thus disposing of the "restoration of collective team leadership" which was a central point of Khrushchev's attack on Stalin.

Similarly, the professed encouragement of "various paths to socialism" which never did mean as much as wishful thinkers read into it has obviously come to a full stop. Integration Explained

Be Kind to Your Ears When Tuning Hi-Fi

By NORMAN N. BUNDENSON, M. D.
TUNE down that Hi-Fi, Bub! Buying a high-fidelity phonograph doesn't give you a license to blast the ears off everyone in the house and possibly the entire neighborhood, or even of yourself.

Some persons—too many, it seems—think the volume must be turned all the way up in order to appreciate the effects of the music. This, of course, is nonsense. Moreover, it might actually be harmful.

Delicate Mechanism
The ear mechanism, you must remember, is a delicate thing. It is not indestructible.

Any noise loud enough to cause your ears to ring, or to cause partial deafness which lasts longer than a few days, has probably damaged the mechanism enough so that it will never function as perfectly as before.

Generally, this is more likely to occur in industry than in the home. But playing a Hi-Fi set too loud might be a contributing factor.

Current Study
A study is underway right now to determine the amount of industrial hearing loss suffered by Americans.

This study points to the possibility that, under certain noise conditions, hearing damage occurs within a few months of exposure instead of after many years as has been commonly thought.

C. D. Yaffe, who is in charge of the Public Health Service study, reports: "With the increasing background of noise to which all Americans are subjected through the wider use of automobiles, trains, planes, buses, subways, power mowers, electric shavers, vacuum cleaners, outboard motors, radio and television sets and other sound and noise producing devices, we may be approaching the point where the hearing of a significant portion of the population is being affected."

One Million Affected?
The number of workers exposed to hazardous noise levels probably exceeds the number exposed to any other occupational hazard, he says. It might, he adds, be more than 1,000,000 persons.

There is one more thing to consider when playing the Hi-Fi, radio or TV set at home. As persons grow older, their ranges of sound between the audible and the disagreeable become less and less.

Therefore, while loud music might not damage their ears, it does make them very uncomfortable.

QUESTION AND ANSWER
M. L. N.: I am short of breath. Will a change of climate help me?

Answer: It all depends on what the cause of your shortness of breath may be. Shortness of breath may be caused by a disorder of the heart, lungs or blood, or even by an allergic disease such as asthma. You should consult your doctor concerning a change of climate.

Blood Shortage Always Occurs Every Summer

By LOUIS CASSELL
United Press International
WASHINGTON (UPI) — Somewhere in America, in the next few weeks, newspapers will carry a headline that will shock many readers.

It will say, in effect: "Blood shortage forces local hospitals to suspend all operations except emergencies." "It happens every summer," an official of the American Red Cross explained. "The regular donors go away on vacation and the supply of blood falls off. Then the hospitals encounter an unusual run of accidents or surgical cases, and the regional blood bank finds its reserve stocks dropping to the danger point."

The Red Cross usually is able to meet the crisis by appealing through newspapers and broadcasting stations for blood donors to come on the run. And if the worse comes to worst, the temporarily bankrupt blood bank can borrow an emergency supply from another regional center.

But the perennial recurrence of these shortages demonstrates that narrow margins of supply exist from hospital to hospital, and the amount that healthy Americans are willing to give through the Red Cross and other agencies.

Delay Can Be Serious
Even a temporary interruption of supply at the giving end can be serious. Blood can be stored only 21 days before the red cells deteriorate. After that it can be used to produce blood fractions such as plasma and gamma globulin. But it is useless for whole blood transfusions.

Keeping the life line filled has become one of the major responsibilities of the Red Cross since its civilian blood program was inaugurated ten years ago.

Through its 31 regional blood centers, the Red Cross collects about 40 per cent of all the blood used in hospitals. The rest is collected by the hospitals themselves, by community blood banks operated by non-profit agencies other than the Red Cross, and by commercial blood banks.

Commercial banks charge from $25 to about $60 a pint for blood. The average price is about $35 a pint. These banks collect blood from paid donors.

The Red Cross never charges a penny for blood. This statement, often made and often challenged, requires some explanation. It costs the Red Cross about $6 a pint to collect and distribute blood, even though the blood itself is given free by volunteer donors.

The Red Cross pays nurses and doctors who staff the blood centers, for bottles, syringes and other equipment, and for the processing, storage and transportation of the blood.

Few Cents For Juice
A few cents of it goes for the fruit juice with which donors are paid before they bare their arms, and for the doughnuts and coffee that await them when they finish.

For the past several years, hospitals in many parts of the country have been underwriting part of the collecting costs. The rest is paid by the Red Cross out of the funds contributed by the American public in its annual appeal.

Hardly a day passes, however, without some outraged citizen getting the idea that the Red Cross is running some kind of racket with its blood program. What outrages the citizen is the discovery that a hospital has billed him for a blood transfusion.

The explanation, which the Red Cross patiently offers over and over, is that the blood itself is free. But the Red Cross has no control over any charge that a hospital may make for administering it.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The government reported today that living costs hit another all-time high in May. Food prices held steady after a five-month climb, but increases in other prices pushed the average to a new record.

The average from April to May cause of higher charges by physicians largely because of a seasonal increase in the supply of fresh vegetables, eggs, and milk, whose prices dipped. Prices of meats, poultry, and fresh fruits advanced.

Medical care costs rose seventenths of one per cent mainly because of higher charges by physicians largely because of a seasonal increase in the supply of fresh vegetables, eggs, and milk, whose prices dipped.

Fringe area residents will be given the opportunity to vote in the Sept. 9 Primary on the setting up of Fire Districts in order to assess costs for fire protection, according to a decision reached at last night's session of the Board of Sanford City Commission.

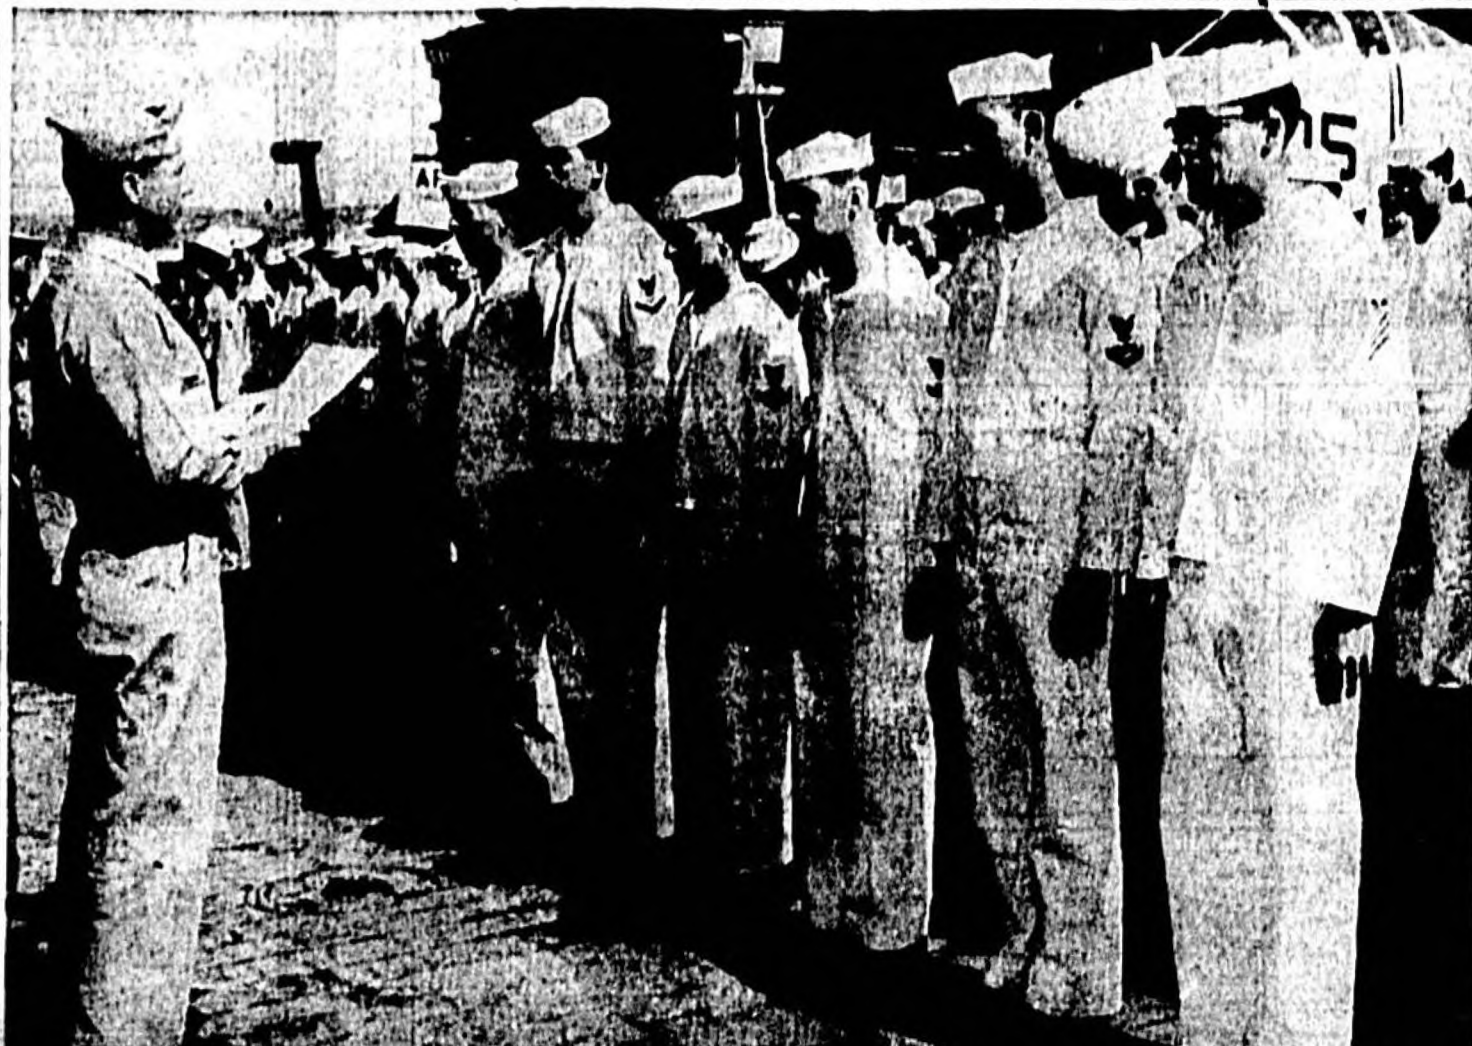

Commissioner Earl Higginbotham suggested that "in the event Seminole County provides sufficient millage and fire districts are established the City of Sanford will contract with the district or districts for fire protection."

City Manager Warren E. Knowles told the board of commissioners that it would "be well to consider a second water plant for the City of Sanford instead of pumping water from outlying areas into the present plant."
