

Chamber asks for help in planning

everyone else is planning, and mostly, when they are asked to do it.

SANFORD — It's never too early to plan ahead, and the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce is not only doing so, but offering an opportunity for others in the area to join them in the preparation of the 1991 Calendar of Events.

The chamber, through its Cultural Arts Committee, is attempting to help the coordination of our area's community, civic, business and social events, by inviting people to place those events on the official chamber calendar during this week.

"In this way," said David Farr, chamber executive director, "we hope to avoid having major events scheduled during the same time periods. We would like to have everyone know what

"When two groups hold similar events at the same time, or sometimes even near each other, one dilutes the other to the point where neither one receives its due recognition," Farr said. "With this large calendar, we hope everyone will know what days are available and what days are filled as they plan their events."

The large calendar is being maintained at the chamber office at the corner of East First Street and Sanford Avenue. Authorized representatives of the various clubs, groups and organizations are urged to stop during chamber business hours and write in their events. The calendar will be available through Friday of this week.

Cathy Maggard, chamber administrative secretary, marks the calendar.

Suspect linked to earlier burglary

SANFORD — A man caught by Sanford police after he jumped over a fence to elude them after allegedly trying to force entry through a window of a house at 400 Rosalia Drive, Sanford, at about 3:15 a.m. Monday, has reportedly been linked to an earlier burglary.

In the Monday case Charles Carl Fields, 19, 101 E. Altamonte Drive, Altamonte Springs, was charged with burglary and resisting arrest without violence. In the other case, involving a burglary Sept. 7 to a house at 808 Elm Ave., Sanford, Fields is accused of stealing jewelry. Police said they recovered some of that jewelry and charged Fields with burglary and grand theft in that case.

Seminole County DUI arrests

SANFORD — The following person faces a charge of driving under the influence of alcohol (DUI) in Seminole County:
 • Dwayne Herman Bell, 38, 314 Oakleaf Circle, Lake Mary, was arrested at 3:18 a.m. Monday on Country Club Road. Lake Mary, after his car was clocked traveling 85 mph in a 40 mph zone.

• J.R. Lawson, 39, 2645 S. Park Drive, #68, Sanford, was arrested at 9:14 p.m. Saturday after his car failed to maintain a single lane on U.S. Highway 17-92, Sanford. He was also charged with having an open container of alcohol.

• Jason Cody Wallace, 21, 181 Garden Street, Winter Springs, was arrested at 8:38 p.m. Sunday after his van was seen traveling erratically and at 40 mph in a 20 mph zone on State Road 434, Winter Springs. He was also charged with careless driving.

SANFORD — A full week of activities is planned for Sept. 17 through 21 as the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce Industrial Action Committee launches into Industry Appreciation Week.

Tuesday, the chamber will host an Industry Appreciation Luncheon at noon in the chamber office, 400 E. First Street, at which time industrial members of the chamber will be honored. There is a charge of $10 for this event. Reservations are required, and should be made by Sept. 14.

The guest speaker will be Steve Mayberry, director of the division of Economic Development for the Florida Department of Commerce. Mayberry will be honoring Shirley Bazrook of Pretty Funch, Inc., 237 Power Court, in the I-4 Industrial Park, and other local supporting industries.

Pretty Funch, Inc., is also the Sanford chamber's nomination for the statewide Industry Appreciation Week award. Seventy Florida firms have been nominated.

Florida Secretary of Commerce Bill Sutton said in a release, "The companies were nominated because of their work to improve the overall quality of life in their respective communities."

Six statewide finalists will be selected from Florida's six economic development regions and the winners will be honored at a luncheon at the governor's mansion in Tallahassee next week.

David Farr, chamber executive director, said he expects to hear whether the local entry has been selected by the state before the end of this week.

Wednesday's highlight at the chamber is the brown bag luncheon beginning at 11 a.m., with discussions centered on worker's compensation insurance, led by an attorney who has extensive expertise in that field.

Thursday from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m., it's another brown bag luncheon. The subject is drugs in the work place, how to know there is a problem and what can be done to correct it. Guest speaker will be Henry Harlow, Care Unit of Orlando administrator.

The third brown bag luncheon is slated for Friday, from 11 until 2, with the topic being Local Industry Support. This seminar will include presentations by Seminole Community College and the Economic Development Commission of Mid-Florida. Friday's session will also cover the various types of help that are available from the Small Business Association. Featured speakers will include Olen Morgan of BCC and Pat Werner-Hollis of the EDC.

No advance reservations or fee are required for the brown bag luncheons. Members are invited to bring their own lunch and beverage and join in the discussion.

The September Business After Hours event is also scheduled for Industry Appreciation Week. On Sept. 20, the chamber's BAH function will be at the 1800a Saloon and Cattle Co., 119 S. Magnolia Ave., from 5 to 7 p.m.

Except for the Business After Hours function, all luncheons will be held at the Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce building, 400 E. First Street, downtown Sanford. For reservations or further information, call the chamber at 323-9312.

Longwood approves tax increase in 1991 budget

By MARK PAPPAS
Herald staff writer

LONGWOOD — The city commission heard from a parade of citizens and spokespersons during a marathon session Monday night before approving a $12.300 million budget and a one-half cent tax increase on first reading.

Most of the citizens who appeared before the commission last night, addressed the subject of the Downtown Redevelopment Fund, pricing what has been determined to be the goals and objectives of the redevelopment. The fund accounts for a majority of the $2.4 million increase in the city's 1990-91 budget.

Among those speaking in favor of the redevelopment were Keith Blanton, president of the Longwood/Winter Springs Chamber of Commerce; former mayor Steve Uehert; Bonnie Julian, chairwoman of the beautification task force; Bob Lewis, executive vice president of the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce; and Diane Fiddler, Realtor, who worked on the strategic planning committee.

As part of the redevelopment will include a new five station, L.I. Mills Chellan spoke on behalf of 21 urban dwellers in the city, expressing approval of efforts to provide a new facility.

While they were not against the downtown redevelopment issue, two Longwood citizens, Paul Loveland and Bob Davis, addressed the commission, suggesting that rather than having the redevelopment matter included in the new budget, it should first be put on the ballot to determine whether or not the citizens actually want it.

When the final vote was taken, the new budget was approved on first reading, and the millage rate was officially established at 5.15 mills on the dollar for, as the official ordinance states, "the purpose of realizing a sum sufficient to meet and defray the necessary operating expenses of said city for the ensuing fiscal year."

Longwood normally holds their city commission meetings on the first and third Mondays of each month, but due to the Labor Day holiday, the meetings this month are the second and fourth Monday, which sets the second and final public hearing on the budget for Monday, Sept. 24, with the budget to become effective Oct. 1.

The Longwood City Commission meetings begin at 7 p.m., at the city hall chambers, 175 W. Warren Ave.

Pregnant addicts need urgent help

There is great emotional satisfaction for some people in the moralistic approach to crack babies, blaming the mother for the fate of the child. Passion is stoked by the thought of damaged babies born to a life of suffering at great social and economic cost to the community, all because a mother was too irresponsible to say no to ingesting or injecting illegal drugs.

You can say the mother, knowing she was addicted, should not have got pregnant or decided to carry her baby to term unless she also decided to quit drugs for the duration of her pregnancy.

But saying that or threatening the mother with prosecution is not likely to produce a healthy baby.

A sober pragmatic approach, withholding moral judgment, works better. It should be followed by public officials at all levels of government. The birth of crack or meth or alcohol-damaged babies is a tragedy that should not be allowed to happen in a civilized society. Whatever the moral lapse of the mother, the baby is innocent and must be protected. The best way to do that is to appeal to whatever maternal instinct remains alive in the mother's breast, not to pit her against the fetus in a conflict of interests.

Treatment of mothers seems to work. Drug-treatment programs for pregnant women have a higher success rate than such programs for other adults. Priority should be given to the programs for mothers-to-be, even if it means transferring money from the other drug-treatment programs and cutting back on treatment for men and non-pregnant women. If for no other reason than to conserve public money, it is better to treat the mother while the baby is in her womb than to treat the baby after it is born with a disabling drug or alcohol syndrome.

Leadership or politics?

Can Americans handle tough decisions based on hard realities? Saddam Hussein has demonstrated to the world that a single man can bully an entire continent with two weapons of terrorism. Surely the possession of chemical weapons and the holding of civilian hostages.

It was international corporate greed that allowed weapons to be delivered to Saddam...It was short-sighted political decisions that allowed Iraq to develop and assemble these weapons.

Weapons now used to blackmail his neighbors and indeed, the rest of the world community.

Can we believe that simple containment will halt Saddam's insatiable pursuit toward control over the entire region?...halt his production and use of chemical weapons?...development of the nuclear capability?...I think not!

I can only hope and pray that the solutions we use, the decisions we make, consider the world of generations ahead of us, rather than the length of a politician's time in office!

How TV distorts educational crisis

Q: What do you get when you cross America's educational crisis with a television program? A: A kindergarten class playing show-and-tell. When television is photographing an explosive or dramatic event, it is excitement at its mind-boggling, heart-palpitating best.

But once TV invades the Byzantine empire of education, where cleaving academic values require in-depth professional analyses and statistical diagnoses, TV falls on its electronic face. A television anchor does not a scholar make. But the American public prefers stargazing to mind-raising. In the last two weeks, I suspect that 10,000 times more persons watched PBS's two shows — "Learning in America" and "Why Do These Kids Love School?" and the CBS show "America's Toughest Assignment: Solving the Education Crisis" — than have read all of the newspaper columns and magazine stories on education in the past year. Despite the embarrassing shortcomings of all three television shows, their timing was exquisite.

Schools and colleges were reopening for the fall.

The College Board had just released the results of its annual psychometric orgy — the SATs. They showed a decline in verbal fluency and a stagnation in mathematical skills.

The Milwaukee school system was embroiled in a controversy over its new school voucher program, which critics contend will undermine public school education.

Chicago's public schools, once described as the nation's worst, are drowning in a bureaucratic ocean of community control. Is there a new educational crisis in the nation, as the TV coverage would suggest? Not at all. For the last decade, newspapers and magazines have headlined education's failures, usually by using teachers as a whipping post.

Cover stories wailed: "Help! Teachers Can't Teach" (Time, June 1980); "What's Wrong with Our Teachers?" (U.S. News & World Report, March 1983); "How USA Schools Are Failing Our Students" (USA Today, May 1983); "Why

Chicago's public schools are drowning in a bureaucratic ocean of community control.

Teachers Fail" (Newsweek, September 1984); "Who's Teaching Our Children?" (Time, November 1988). Coupled with the Reagan administration's idiotic attacks on public-school teachers, public confidence waned. Yet, public schools, for the most part, have done an outstanding job, despite constricted budgets, lack of public understanding, diminished legislative support and parental disinterest.

Private and parochial schools have one pedagogical luxury denied public schools — self-selection. Public schools must take all students. Private and parochial schools take only the students they want. We also know from any number of experimental programs that parental involvement makes an enormous difference in achievement levels. Instead of playing show-and-tell, television ought to be asking painful questions. Why have SAT scores declined in the last 25 years from a national average of 870 to 900? Are students reading less, as those bureaucratic buffoons at the College Board lament, or have the SATs become a cognitive irrelevancy? Why did women score higher than men on SAT scores until 1971? Why do women today have higher grade point averages but lower SAT scores than men? Why do blacks have the worst SAT scores of any ethnic group?

Crisis misused for political gain

WASHINGTON — Rep. Denny Smith, R-Ore., may have the distinction of being the first member of Congress to exploit the Persian Gulf crisis for political gain. We predict he won't be the last.

Caught in his own little corner of the savings and loan scandal, Smith is considered to be one of the most vulnerable incumbents in the upcoming congressional elections. For that reason, Smith is grasping at any mud within his reach to throw at his opponent, Democrat Mike Kopetski. Why not put Kopetski in league with the devil, Saddam Hussein?

A few hours after Iraq invaded Kuwait, Kopetski said at a fund-raiser that he opposed a U.S. military response. Instead, he favored multilateral action against Saddam Hussein by the United Nations — a position that even President Bush was mulling over at the time. But Smith seized the moment and hustled to produce radio ads painting Kopetski as an apologist for Saddam and painting Saddam as the new Hitler.

We have learned that Smith has no room to accuse anyone of being soft on Saddam. Our associate Scott Black checked Smith's voting record. Just before the invasion of Kuwait, Smith voted against a bill that would have denied agricultural credits to Iraq. The bill was supposed to punish Saddam for his brutal human rights abuses, but Smith opposed it. Apparently he hadn't figured out by then that Saddam was a little Hitler. We asked Smith's spokesman to explain the vote in favor of Iraq. He said Smith was just following the party line.

Now that the party line has turned against Saddam, Smith is hitting his opponent with cheap ads. But it will take more than a few Hitler ads to get voters to forget Smith's role in the collapse of the S&L industry.

His involvement with three S&Ls that went down the tubes has had Democrats debating for months whether they should demand an investigation of Smith by the House Ethics Committee. The Democrats are robust, fearing that the Republicans would then expose Democrats who went to bat for failing S&Ls.

Smith's office told us he would welcome an investigation "to show how desperate these guys (Democrats) are to beat an incumbent." The spokesman said the Democrats haven't pushed for an investigation because there is nothing to investigate. We disagree.

In 1987, Smith was a member of the Board of Directors of American Federal Savings and Loan Association of Oregon. The thrift was on the verge of collapse and federal regulators had proposed merging it with a healthier S&L. Smith reportedly refused to agree to the merger unless the Federal Home Loan Bank Board guaranteed that he and other directors of American Federal would be exempt from any lawsuits filed by the government if the S&L should fail. Not only did Smith want to cover himself, but he wanted the Federal Home Loan Bank Board to give blanket immunity to all S&L directors.

Edwin Gray, then chief S&L regulator as chairman of the Federal Home Loan Bank Board, refused to even meet with Smith. Smith later wrote to then-President Reagan asking him to fire Gray, but has since denied that he requested anything to do with Gray (granting his demands). Smith had written Gray a letter about a second S&L, complaining that the directors were being harassed by Gray's regulators. That S&L also collapsed.

Smith has no room to accuse anyone of being soft on Saddam.

DAVID S. BRODER

S&L executives turn on PR

WASHINGTON — Back in January, when his name was first becoming familiar to the American public as a central figure in the savings-and-loan scandals, Charles L. Keating Jr. mounted a public-relations campaign as aggressive as his financial dealings.

The boss of Lincoln Savings and Loan and its parent company, American Continental Corporation (ACC), the man who poured thousands of dollars into the campaign treasurer of the "Keating Five" senators, was all over TV. Far from being responsible for fraud that would cost the taxpayers $8 billion, as the government alleged, Keating insisted he was the innocent victim of overzealous, incompetent regulators who had thoughtlessly taken a profitable business operation away from him and run up record losses.

On a "Meet the Press" panel where I was one of the frustrated questioners, Keating looked right into the camera and said, "We had a profitable S&L....It operated profitably until the government confiscated it." Asked by NBC's Andrea Mitchell if he had not executed a scheme to "hood Lincoln and take the money to the parent company (ACC)," Keating said: "Of course not. That didn't happen. And as I say, truth will come to trial in the courtroom, and we'll be vindicated."

Keating's monumental self-assurance was backed by the fact that he had gone to court himself, suing the federal regulators to regain control of his S&L. Many viewers probably saw him as a harassed businessman, not the financial pirate that they had been led to expect.

Well, it turns out we had it right the first time. The hearing before District Judge Stanley Sporkin was a complex affair, with conflicting testimony from accountants and lawyers, regulators and company officials. When the verdict came down on Aug. 24, Charles Keating sought a public-relations break he didn't deserve. Sporkin's findings were all but submerged in that day's dramatic news of Saddam Hussein's bizarre televised visit to British hostage families and a new div of the stock market plagued by the prospect of a Persian Gulf war.

What Sporkin said should not be lost. The routine enforcement director of the Securities and Exchange Commission was not as easily lulled by Keating's self-assurance as we television viewers had been. Her use to dissect and denigrate by the complexity of Keating's financial maneuverings.

We found for the government on every single point and said that if the regulators hadn't acted the truth, they would have been convicted in their duties.

"What has emerged," he wrote in his 20-page opinion, "is not a pretty picture. It is abundantly clear that ACC officials abused their positions with respect to Lincoln. Bluntly speaking, their actions amounted to a looting of Lincoln."

The basic device, Sporkin found, was a "tax-sharing" agreement under which Lincoln transferred $94 million between 1984 and 1987 to the parent company controlled by Keating, ostensibly to meet its payments to the Internal Revenue Service. But since "Lincoln in fact owed no taxes," and ACC had millions of dollars worth of offsetting losses from prior years, ACC essentially pocketed the money which really belonged to the Lincoln shareholders.

"This so-called tax-sharing agreement was nothing more than a clever but impermissible way of looting Lincoln by upstreaming funds from Lincoln to ACC," Sporkin ruled. ACC, he said, had no "license to strip Lincoln of its funds, particularly because the funds upstreamed consisted from the savings of individual investors which were insured up to $100,000 per account by the federal government....There is simply no legal justification for these payments. Moreover, since ACC filed for bankruptcy on April 15, 1989, it is unable to repay Lincoln any part of the $94 million ACC received from Lincoln."

Having blown over Keating's denial that he had misled Lincoln for his own profit, Sporkin also demolished the Senator's claim that all was well until the federal regulators took over. In March of 1988, Sporkin said, Justice Vincent of the Arthur Young accounting firm refused to approve a phony transaction that would have given Lincoln a paper profit of $84.5 million and allowed ACC to collect $10 million in "tax-sharing" for itself.

When she talked, Keating himself told her "he thought he would have to declare bankruptcy if we did not recognize this transaction." In December 1988, Sporkin says the Senator tried to have Vincent removed from the audit. But she stood her ground, emerging as one of "the few heroes in this age."

Other lawyers and accountants did no such thing, Sporkin notes. Instead, they trained themselves into knots to find justifications for abetting and concealing Keating's manipulations.

Keating insisted he was the innocent victim of overzealous, incompetent regulators.

Smith has no room to accuse anyone of being soft on Saddam.

Blvd. in Lake Mary. Kurt [redacted] said sales have been slow, but the lines probably wouldn't start to form until tonight.

"We've done most of our sales at night," he said. "The most anyone has bought was $80 or $100. We're still waiting for someone to come in and buy $1,000 of tickets."

Farr said people are procrastinators even when there's $90 million on the line.

"They'll wait to the weekend and stand in long lines for their tickets," he said.

Florida lottery officials said frenzied ticket-buying could push the jackpot to $100 million by the end of the week.

Sales through 11 a.m. Tuesday were about 100 percent higher than the best week on record, said Lottery Secretary Rebecca Paul, who again urged players to buy their tickets for the Saturday drawing as early in the week as possible.

At least three callers have approached the lottery so far this week about buying 13.9-million tickets at $1 apiece from the central office and covering all possible six-digit combinations, Paul said.

"We get those sort of calls whenever it gets over $50 million, but we won't do it," Paul said. "Technically and philosophically, we can't and won't. The computer can't print them out fast enough, and it's not fair to those players who are hoping to win the jackpot outright."

Of course, she added, "the callers are welcome to spend as much as they want and try to find enough terminals to handle the load."

A $90 million prize would be the largest Lotto jackpot since the Florida Lottery gaming began and the second-highest in lottery history.

The single largest payout to a lottery winner was $65.1 million won two years ago by Sheelah Ryan of Winter Springs.

Two new elementary schools will be built during the next year to help ease the overcrowding in the Oviedo and west Sanford areas of the district.

Seminole County has placed a priority on increased teacher

Tonight's information session begins at 6 p.m. The public hearing starts at 7 p.m. Both are in the district board room, 1211 Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Portables

There are an additional four trailers which house the administrative offices, the guidance offices, the teachers lounge and bathroom facilities.

The buildings being torn down, which used to house Lyman High School, were built at various times between 1924 and 1956.

"It's just a safety matter," Poole said of the construction. "Those old buildings were literally falling down around us."

While most of the students don't mind attending classes in the portable school, some aren't happy with the situation.

"It's crappy," said Mindy Newsome, 11, a sixth grader.

"You gotta walk all over the place outside and the classrooms aren't big enough."

Her friends, sitting around a table under a tree in the center of campus having lunch, do not agree.

"I think it's cool," Leila Benedict, 11, also in sixth grade, said. "It makes coming to school lots more fun."

Tricia Cronin, an 11-year-old sixth grader, said she liked the closeness of the campus.

"I get to see all my friends all day," she said.

The gymnasium has been converted, temporarily, into a cafeteria while the old dining facility is being transformed into a modern "cafetorium" with a large stage and three times the dining area previously available to the students and teachers, according to Poole.

Poole said they expect the cafetorium to be ready some time in October.

Pizza Hut sells their wares at one end of the make-shift dining area. At the other end, Milwee food service personnel, who made the day's lunches at facilities at Lake Mary High School, are serving the food.

The students are orderly but noisy.

"Sometimes we have to remind them that right now, this is a lunchroom, not a gym," Poole said. "We can't have them running around in here."

Jessenia Delecris, 13, a seventh grader, said she likes going to classes on the portable campus.

"I like it," she said. "It's a lot of fun. It's different."

Another seventh grader, Eric Johnson, 13, said he's not particularly fond of the school's current status.

"It's not the best thing, I don't think," he said. "I don't think it's hurting my education, but it's not the best way to go to school."

Steve Borden, a math teacher, said he likes the portable classrooms.

"I don't mind it at all," he said. "The classrooms are big and air conditioned. I just need some storage cabinets."

The campus is divided into two sections with the sixth and seventh graders on the south side and the eighth graders on the north.

"Right now it's working out really well," John Thomas, the school's resource officer, said. "With the grades separated there's less fighting...less of the older kids picking on the younger ones."

While Poole said she doesn't mind the "portable city" arrangement of the Milwee campus, she said she's looking forward to next year when the new classroom buildings and renovated facilities are ready.

"This is not nearly as bad as it looks," she said, "but it's going to be great next year."

confirmed inside their apartment. "It's terrific," Makhoul said of her freedom this morning. "We just wait for a walk. It's great to see grass, to touch moss. The first week of the invasion, we went out and had to hide our faces. It's obvious I'm a Westerner."

Makhoul's husband Joseph is a citizen of Lebanon, and that, she said, made it possible for him to move about the occupied country.

"He's fluent in Arabic," Dr. Marshall Woodson, of Longwood, said of his son-in-law. "He had the Iraqi guards befuddled. He could have left at anytime, because he is Lebanese, but he couldn't leave the family."

Woodson said his Seminole County family has been in agony not knowing the fate of the Makhoules until they were flown into London Monday.

Pat Woodson, whose Longwood home is now home to her returned family, said they left behind everything except five suitcases full of belongings. Joseph Makhoul, an international lawyer will seek employment here, but beyond that the family's plans are not firm.

"It's indescribable the relief we all feel. We're pleased they're out of there. Apparently they had some frightening times. If you don't have freedom to move about, it's frightening," Pat Woodson said. "The children seem to be in great shape. There doesn't seem to have been any major trauma." She said she's not aware of any other Seminole County family facing the same situation.

"My fear is there are many people who want to leave but who are afraid to check in with the (U.S.) embassy," that is operated by a "bureaucratic staff," Makhoul said. "I don't want to come back and make any negative remarks, because there are still people (Westerners) there."

Ballot

Ann Nelwender, board chairman, was concerned that the voters might be confused by the question.

"Couldn't we just ask 'should the superintendent be elected or appointed?' and leave out all the rest of that?" she asked.

According to Julian the question was written as it needed to be according to the law, though he noted that the portion which states the superintendent is currently elected could be eliminated.

"I think if people don't understand something on the ballot they'll vote against it," Nelwender said.

Supt. Bob Hughes was elected to his position. In Florida school districts 48 of the 67 superintendents are elected, but in most school districts across the country, superintendents are appointed by the school board.

Proponents of retaining the position as an elected one say that it allows the voters to remove from office anyone who is failing to provide the leadership they want for the schools. Opponents argue that elected superintendents are not required to meet any criteria to be elected.

Both sides argue that the other fails to make the superintendents accountable for their actions.

Three sentenced in jogger case

NEW YORK — A state Supreme Court judge — ignoring charges of racism — gave the maximum jail term to three rapists for their attack on a woman jogger, and lambasted them for turning Central Park into a "torture chamber." Justice Thomas Galligan said the actions of Antron McCray, Raymond Santana, and Yusef Salaam, all 16, symbolized the breakdown of the quality of life in New York City. "Central Park is an oasis in our city that was turned into a torture chamber by mindless marauders seeking to 'chill,'" said Galligan, using a street term the youths substitute for the word "relax."

Walker executed by injection

JOLIET, Ill. — Convicted double-murderer Charles Walker was executed by lethal injection Tuesday — the first condemned man to be put to death in Illinois in nearly three decades. Walker, 50, Belleville, was pronounced dead 12:12 a.m., 11 minutes after executioners began administering the lethal combination of chemicals. Walker looked straight at the 23 people witnessing the execution, until he found his minister, Jessie Mathes of the Jesus is the Way Prison Ministry of Champaign and then turned his gaze upward.

Mecham fails in comeback bid

PHOENIX — Millionaire businessman and political novice Fife Symington won the Republican nomination for governor of Arizona Tuesday, ending the comeback hopes of the impeached Evan Mecham. Mecham, making his sixth bid for the office that he held for 15 months before being removed following a 1988 impeachment trial, admitted defeat with less than half the votes counted as Symington held a convincing lead in the five-way race.

With just over half of the votes counted, Symington had 45 percent of the votes to 23 percent for Mecham. Former legislator Fred Koory trailed with 17 percent, former Congressman Sam Steiger had 12 percent and little known Bob Barnes collected less than 2 percent of the votes. Symington will face Democrat Terry Goddard, a former Phoenix mayor, in the November general election.

Nation's largest private museum planned

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans for the nation's most expensive private museum project, an $85-million San Francisco Museum of Modern Art building, were unveiled Tuesday by city officials hoping to regain ground lost to Southern California's explosive art scene. The 300,000-square-foot museum, set for a 1995 opening, will double the exhibition space of the museum, founded in 1935 as the nation's second art museum dedicated to modern art. Mayor Art Agnos, cultural leaders and Italian architect Mario Botta unveiled the plans for the new building at a news conference in the museum's old beaux-arts style War Memorial Veterans Building.

Gunmen kill civilians mistaken for police

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Gunmen fired on a yellow taxi they mistook for a same-colored police vehicle, killing three civilians during factional violence in black townships overnight after attackers fired on a police car and killed a policeman, police said Wednesday. The attacks south of Johannesburg, in the nation's largest black township of Soweto, coincided with raging battles in three settlements to the east and the death of at least 21 people in clashes between rival groups. Business Day newspaper reported several policemen saying they were "too scared" to go into the townships to quell the fighting, which has defied emergency measures and effective martial law imposed Aug. 26. The latest violence followed a warning Tuesday from black leader Nelson Mandela that talks aimed at ending white minority rule may collapse if the government fails to crush the wave of internecine strife which has killed some 630 people since firing Aug. 12.

EC funds diverted to sex hotel

STRASBOURG, France — Two women members of the European Parliament accused the European Community of providing credits worth some $600,000 to a West German company specializing in sex tourism in Thailand. The deputies, Barbara Simons of West Germany and Mearje van Putten of the Netherlands, said Tuesday the European Commission made a grant worth $600,000 to NUR-Touristik of Frankfurt, a subsidiary of the Neckermann concern, which the firm used to set up a sex hotel at Pan Buri in Thailand. Simons said the affair already has caused a demonstration in Frankfurt by feminist protesters. A Neckermann spokesman was quoted as saying the figures were correct but that it understood "one could use the credits as one wished."

Historic Germany accord signed

United Press International

MOSCOW — The foreign ministers from the victorious World War II allies and the two Germans on Wednesday signed a historic accord clearing the way for German reunification set for Oct. 3.

Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev attended the ceremony where the representatives of the four wartime Allies — the Soviet Union, the United States, Britain and France — joined the foreign ministers from West Germany and East Germany in signing the agreement on the external aspects of German unification.

"The treaty on the final settlement with respect to Germany was signed in a ceremony here today, winding up the Two-plus-Four meeting of Soviet, U.S., British, French, West German and East German foreign ministers," the official Soviet news agency Tass said. The officials had gathered in Moscow on Tuesday for a final negotiating session of the talks convened to give the Allies bleasing to bringing the German people back under a single national flag after more than four decades of formal separation. One of the last major obstacles was cleared Monday when Gorbachev and West German Chancellor Helmut Kohl agreed on a compromise sum of money that united Germany will pay to help withdraw 380,000 Soviet troops from the territory of present East Germany. A West German Finance Ministry spokesman in Bonn said Tuesday that Germany would pay $7.8 billion for the withdrawal, which is to take place during a four-year transition period. Germany is paying for part of the cost of withdrawing the Soviet troops and building new housing for them in the Soviet Union in what West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher has described as "practically the price of German unification." Other issues that had to be resolved before the accord Wednesday included the Soviet request to expand a guarantee that nuclear weapons will not be deployed in eastern Germany so that it will cover missiles capable of carrying either conventional or nuclear warheads. The Soviet Union also asked that no NATO maneuvers be held in what is now East Germany, and experts fine-tuned the wording of restrictions on Soviet soldiers during the transition period.

Abortion may be the only trap for Souter

By JOSEPH MANOWARY United Press International

WASHINGTON — When David Souter appears before the Senate Judiciary Committee Thursday, only the abortion issue appears to have the power to stop him from being confirmed for the Supreme Court — and even many of his critics admit that is a long shot.

With hearings on President Bush's choice to replace the William Brennan on the high court ready to begin, a wide array of liberal activists — the main forces that helped defeat President Reagan's nomination of Robert Bork in 1987 — are voicing concerns about Souter.

But even as they planned on several fronts Wednesday to raise questions about the quiet New Hampshire jurist, few of the activists would predict Souter will not soon be sitting on the high court, which begins its new term next month.

The reason is the same one that has dominated the nomination since it was announced by Bush in July: a slim written record that has provided people with little insight into Souter's philosophy.

In a Senate speech, Judiciary Committee Chairman Joseph

David Souter

Biden, D-Del., said Tuesday that despite exhaustive investigation by his staff, Souter's record provides "more blank spaces than answers" and leaves the Senate with "almost total uncertainty" about his judicial philosophy.

Abortion rights activists, knowing Souter may provide the critical vote to overturn the 1973 Roe vs. Wade decision, have been the most vocal in their doubts about him, demanding he be questioned about whether the Constitution protects rights that are not specifically mentioned, and whether a right to abortion is guaranteed.

While no one expects Souter to directly answer how he would vote on a case, Biden stressed Tuesday "there is nothing wrong with putting to Judge Souter some specific questions about constitutional issues, including religion, speech, civil rights and abortion and expect some rather specific answers." But Sen. Arlen Specter, R-Pa., considered a swing vote on the committee, said Souter should not be judged on any one issue, including abortion.

Census numbers fall short as follow-up continues

By ROBERT SHAPIRO United Press International

WASHINGTON — Preliminary numbers for the 1990 census came up short of estimates, but census officials said the totals almost certainly will increase as follow-up work continues.

Some members of Congress, however, are calling the census a failure, one that will have serious economic consequences for many areas and large groups of the U.S. population. They say minorities, in particular, were undercounted.

Census Director Barbara Bryant told a House subcommittee Tuesday that while the initial count is finished, "the census is still in progress."

The preliminary population count released two weeks ago was 245,837, 661. That was short of the estimated total of 250 million and Bryant acknowledged that "some have questioned whether the count is wrong or the estimate is wrong."

"In any case, the difference between the two figures is less than 2 percent, and will narrow as the census progresses," she said.

"The census count will increase in practically every jurisdiction throughout the country because of ongoing coverage improvement programs. We expect to add millions of persons before the count is delivered to the president (by Dec. 31)."

The final figures will be used to apportion representation in the House and determine the amount of federal funds to be received by various areas. Several witnesses said the count is off and probably cannot be corrected.

Rep. Donald Payne, D-N.J., disputed census figures indicating that the predominantly black city of Newark, N.J., lost 27 percent of its population over the past decade.

Rep. Norman Mineta, D-Calif., and others said the Asian-American community was significantly undercounted. That group includes "over 3 million recent immigrants who are probably the most vulnerable to being missed by the census."

Rep. Martin Frost, D-Texas, said warnings about the undercount of minorities went unheeded by the Census Bureau

Bank fund facing big danger of depletion

By BOB WISSTEN UPI Business Writer

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The federal insurance fund that protects depositors from commercial bank failures is facing its greatest danger of depletion since the days of the Depression, the General Accounting Office said.

"Not since its birth during the Great Depression has the federal system of deposit insurance for commercial banks faced such a period of danger and uncertainty as it does today," said Charles Bowsher, comptroller general of the United States.

The GAO's audit of the Bank Insurance Fund's 1989 financial statement showed a loss of $653 million during the year, marking the fund's second consecutive loss. Banking regulators, expecting the fund to post an additional loss of as much as $3 billion this year, recommended last month that banks pay greater insurance premiums to slow the fund's steady erosion. Banking performance worsened in 1989 as the growth in non-performing assets increased and industry earnings declined, the GAO said. The reasons for the decline are many — an increased reliance on real estate loans, stiffer international competition and the growth of non-bank financial services companies.

The GAO audit showed the insurance fund's balance has decreased 28 percent during the past two years to $13.3 billion from $18.3 billion because of steady levels of high bank failures. Overstated appraisal values for foreclosed real estate also could further diminish the insurance fund, the GAO said. "We are concerned that the fund's cash resources are too low to enable it to deal decisively with problem banks," Bowsher said. The report said the low level of bank reserves, coupled with a recession, "could lead to a level of bank failures that would exhaust the fund and require taxpayer assistance." Bowsher also said a GAO examination of 200 banks found 35 large institutions in such severe financial condition that their doors are likely to close without some form of recapitalization or regulatory assistance. The 35 banks, mostly in the Northeast and Southwest, have combined assets of $45.1 billion and would cost the insurance fund between $4.4 billion and $6.3 billion should they fail. "In addition to these 35 banks, we identified a significant number of other large banks that were experiencing severe negative performance," Bowsher said.

Rams don't take long to beat 'Noles

From staff reports

SANFORD — At least it didn't take long.

Lake Mary made short work of Seminole on Tuesday night, scoring a 15-2, 15-3 girls volleyball win in Seminole Athletic Conference action at Seminole High School.

The win boosts the Lake Mary Rams' record to 6-1 overall, 2-0 in the SAC. Seminole drops to 1-2, 0-2 in the conference.

"We played everybody," said Lake Mary Coach Cindy Henry. "Everybody looked good. Nobody did it for us and nobody messed up. We got to play everyone quite a bit."

"It was just a very smooth, steady match where we just dominated. It's nice to see the girls play at a steady rate. This team is a very level team emotionally. They don't get crazy and they don't get out of a match, either."

Melissa Mau served well to lead the Rams as the Seminoles had trouble receiving serve.

The Lake Mary junior varsity also won easily, beating Seminole 15-0, 15-3.

On Thursday night, the Rams will be at home to host co-conference leader Lake Howell while Seminole travels to DeLand. Both matches are scheduled to start at 7 p.m.

Tetracycline safe for long-term use

DEAR DR. GOTS: I'm a 19-year-old male and take 1,000 milligrams of tetracycline daily for acne. Can long-term ingestion (five years) of this drug be harmful? Would L-lysine and bee-pollen tablets be a natural alternative to tetracycline?

for further advice. L-lysine (an amino acid) and bee pollen are not effective in treating acne.

MEDICINE
GOTSCH

DEAR READER: Acne, a common skin affliction marked by a plugging of follicles and infection, is often helped by tetracycline. This antibiotic seems to have benefits over and above its antibiotic properties; it may change the skin's chemistry, thereby reducing the tendency to inflammation.

Traditionally, patients with acne are prescribed tetracycline in full doses (250 milligrams four times a day on an empty stomach) and, as soon as improvement appears, the dose of the drug is reduced. This usually takes two to four weeks.

Thereafter, patients are given a maintenance dose (250-500 milligrams per day), depending on the severity of the skin disorder and its response to therapy. At this low dose, tetracycline can safely be continued for years. The major side effects of tetracycline (sensitivity to sunlight and vaginal yeast infection are, in my experience, rare at this dose).

You seem to be taking more antibiotic than you need. Although tetracycline is safe for extended use - even in full doses - I'm curious why you require so much. Perhaps it isn't effective in your case. If so, you might experience more success with one of the newer prescription preparations, such as tretinoin (Retin-A, a cream that causes the outer layer of skin to shed, reducing infection) or isotretinoin (Accutane, a pill that reduces the secretion of skin oils and inhibits infection). Ask your doctor about these drugs - or, better yet, see a dermatologist.

The place for bridge players to be early in May was Atlantic City, where the Showboat Hotel was the site of the $200,000 Omar Sharif Individual Tournament. The scoring emphasized total points, so bidding and making games and slams was worth a healthy premium. Of course, just as important was setting the opponents in whatever they bid. That's bridge. Most declarers reached four spades in today's deal. After the king of clubs led, if declarer won the ace, he was quickly set, since he could not reach dummy to play diamonds before the ugly defenders came on play with another club and a club ruff. A few declarers found the play of smoothly ducking the opening lead. If West foolishly led a second low club, dummy's jack took the trick, and two rounds of

Sept. 12, 1990

A more charismatic you may emerge in the year ahead as various pressures with which you have had to contend are alleviated from your life. You'll feel free to be more active and communicative.

your conversations with others, or else you might say something carelessly that will be difficult to retract.

truly what you want or else victories won't yield joy.

VERGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23)

Today you might feel what is good for you is also good for others and there's a chance you may be right, but you'll have a hard time proving this to friends if they feel manipulated. Trying to patch up a broken romance? For your personal horoscope, love, luck, numbers and future forecast, call Astro-Tone by dialing 1-800-454-3535 and entering this newspaper's code number 000; 95 cents per minute.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan. 19)

There doesn't appear to be a middle ground for you today. Your involvements may either go extraordinarily well or turn out to be disappointments. Fortunately, the good should outweigh the bad.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20)

Do not take your competitive involvements too seriously today, especially those that are not of the workaday world. If you're playing a game, play it for fun only.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23)

Not everyone is going to be supportive of the views and positions you take today in critical career matters, but there is a strong likelihood the people whose support you most need will be.

AGNUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19)

Others won't mind helping you today up to a certain point. If you make demands of them beyond that critical mark, it could invoke negative reactions.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23)

In most of your endeavors you'll be imaginative and resourceful, but there is a possibility you will either tire early or become bored and start doing things the hard way.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23)

Be extremely conscious of the comments you make today in ANNIF

PIES (Feb. 20-March 20)

Fate might intervene today and make it possible for someone you love to do something for you that you have been intending to do for him/her.

CANCER (June 21-July 23)

A willingness to cooperate, as well as intentions to do what's best for everyone, will serve as a salve to soothe the opposition with which you may have to contend today.

Busy fall calls for meals in 30 minutes or less

"Back to school" time usually brings demanding schedules with increased need for more flexible time, for even the best students. This may result in less time for meal preparation. To help cope with the fall's steppin-up pace have on hand recipes and food stuffs for quick and satisfying meals; those that can be ready in 30 minutes or less. Casseroles and meal-in-one dishes need only a salad or some relishes to complete a nutritious menu. Others may require additional accompaniments and often they can cook on a surface unit while the main dish is in the microwave.

Frozen stew vegetables make this dish quick and easy. If you prefer fresh vegetables allow 5-10 minutes extra cooking time for them.

30-MINUTE MEATBALL STEW

1 package (24 oz.) frozen vegetables for stew
1/2 cup water
1 lb. ground beef

2 T. finely chopped onion
1 t. salt
1/4 t. pepper
1/4 cup dry bread crumbs
1/4 cup milk
1 egg
1 can (10 3/4 oz.) condensed tomato soup

2 t. instant beef bouillon

Combine frozen vegetables and water in 2-qt. casserole. Cover with lid. Microwave on 100% power 18-20 minutes or until just about tender, stirring once. Set aside. Combine ground beef, onion, 1 t. salt, the pepper, bread crumbs, milk and egg; mix well. Form into meatballs. Arrange 8-inch square baking dish. Cover with wax paper. Microwave 100% power 5-6 minutes or until no longer pink. Drain meatballs, add meatballs, soup, 1/2 t. salt and the bouillon to the vegetables; mix lightly to combine. cover with casserole lid. M/W on 100% power 4-5 minutes or until hot. 4-6 servings.

M/W on 100% power 4-5 minutes or until hot. 4-6 servings.

Convenience is the name of the game! A homemade sauce can be just the right touch for a package of frozen ravioli.

ITALIAN RAVIOLI

1 small onion, chopped
1 T. margarine
1 can (8 oz.) tomato paste
1 1/2 cups water
1 t. instant beef bouillon
1 t. Italian seasoning, crushed
1/2 t. sugar
1/2 t. salt
1/4 t. garlic powder
1/2 package (30 oz. size) frozen ravioli
Parmesan cheese

Combine onion and margarine in 1 1/2 qt. casserole. M/W on 100% power 2-3 1/2 minutes or until onion is tender, stirring once. Mix in remaining ingredients except ravioli and Parmesan cheese. Cover with casserole lid. M/W on 100% power 4-5 minutes or until mixture boils, stirring once. Mix in ravioli, stir to coat with sauce. Cover. M/W on 100% power 10-12 minutes or until ravioli are hot, stirring once. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. 4-5 servings. Complete the meal with a green salad, garlic bread, and fresh fruit. Green and red grapes and melons are a very good buy now.

This recipe, if prepared conventionally would require 1 1/2 hours at 350° F.; in the microwave oven it needs only 35-40 minutes.

CHICKEN CASSEROLE

3 slices bacon
1/4 cup uncooked rice
1 cup chicken broth
1 cup condensed cream of mushroom soup
1/2 t. salt
2 1/2 - 3 lb. frying chicken, cut up

Natural chicken browning and seasoning powder

Place bacon in single layer in 12x8-inch glass baking dish. Cover with paper towel. M/W on 100% power 3-4 minutes or until crisp. Set aside; discard drippings if desired. Add rice, broth, soup and salt to baking dish; stir to combine. Cover with waxed paper. M/W on 100% power 6-7 minutes or until mixture boils, stir in rice, crumble bacon and add to rice. Arrange chicken pieces over rice with larger pieces toward the outside of the container. Sprinkle with browning powder; cover with waxed paper. M/W on 100% power 25-30 minutes or until chicken is tender. Paprika can be substituted for the browning powder.

Our fall weather can be quite hot. Sometimes a sandwich makes a good supper. Adults and kids alike will like this nutritious quick one.

BOT TUNA BOATS

1 can (9 1/2 oz.) tuna, drained
1/4 cup chopped celery
1/4 cup chopped green onions
1 cup shredded cheddar cheese
3 hard cooked eggs, chopped
1/2 cup mayonnaise
1/2 cup sour cream
2 T. chopped pimento, drained
1/2 T. lemon juice
1 small loaf french bread (12 inches) or 2 French rolls

Combine all ingredients except bread and parsley. Cut French bread in half lengthwise; scoop out center of bread leaving a 1-inch shell. Place crust-side-down on microwave safe serving plate. Fill each half with tuna mixture and garnish with parsley. Microwave on 100% power 7 1/2 minutes or until heated. Cut in 6 or 8 sections.

Micro-hint: smaller portions may need only 20-30 seconds for each sandwich. Bread that is removed can be used for bread crumbs.

Dan Taylor prepares his secret barbecue sauce.

Secret barbecue sauce from recipe passed to eldest son

By JOAN KING
Herald correspondent

Dan Taylor, a Sanford resident for the past 30 years, is our Cook of the Week.

Our cook is a distinctive-looking man who is easily recognizable by his black decorated hat, vest, jeans and boots along with a graying beard and long, swept-back hair.

He is engaged to be married on Valentine's Day next year to Lynne Heiser. Heiser and her nine-year-old son, Kenny, by a previous marriage, also live in Sanford. Heiser and Taylor are planning a formal wedding at the First Baptist Church in Sanford.

"We've both been married before but I've always wanted a formal wedding with a gown. It will be the only time Dano will ever wear a tuxedo," Heiser laughs and says.

As Taylor serves barbecue pork on a bun with pan fried taters, country style, on the side, he relates the history of the barbecue sauce he makes at home.

"Years ago my dad was helping a church raise building funds. He knew a man that made great barbecue sauce. My dad asked the man for the recipe so he could sell weekend barbecue for the church. That man had an idea that he would pass down the recipe to his son one day. However, the man's only son was killed in WWII. He liked my dad and taught him to make the sauce with the stipulation that my father could never teach anyone but the eldest son in the family. That was me. My dad didn't teach it to me until I was 25 years old and I'll pass it on to my eldest son when the time comes.

KILLER BBQ SAUCE

2 cups ketchup
1 cup vinegar
2 Tbsp. mayonnaise
1 Tbsp. mustard
4 Tbsp. Worcestershire sauce
2 Tbsp. sugar
1/2 Tbsp. salt
1/2 - 1 Tbsp. crushed red pepper flakes
1/2 tsp. black pepper
2 to 3 lbs. pork roast
Marinate pork in soy sauce and Nature's seasoning and roast until well done. Break up meat. Set aside while sauce is cooking. Taylor says, "You're on your own as to the cooking process." The man won't budge, however, so try simmering the sauce until it thickens and season to taste, then add the pork or any meat.

Positive blood type has negative result

DEAR ABBY: Your recent article on knowing your own blood type has prompted me to write.

When I was pregnant for the first time at age 36, my obstetrician performed a routine blood test, including blood typing. I was informed that my blood type was "O Negative" - whereupon I told the nurse that there must have been some sort of lab error because I already knew that my blood type was "O Positive."

The test was repeated, and to my surprise, my blood type was in fact "O Negative!" I had always carried a card, given to me by my mother, that stated my blood type was "O Positive." My pediatrician had tested my blood when I was a child back in the early '50s, and that card was part of my medical file along with my immunization records.

I discussed this discrepancy with my doctor, who informed me that, although accurate for blood type, tests performed during the '40s and '50s were often incorrect for the Rh factor. In fact, an error rate of 10 percent or more in the Rh factor was typical of the old blood-typing test!

So, Abby, your reader should rely on only the relatively recent blood-typing tests to determine their blood types.

PATRICIA WEEKS, LONG BEACH, CALIF.

DEAR PATRICIA: I am informed that when it comes to blood typing, nobody takes anybody else's word for anything; the blood is tested again just to be on the safe side, whether a person is giving or receiving blood for a transfusion.

DEAR ABBY: When I saw the letter about blood types, I had to write.

Three years ago, our son left this small Kansas town to drive alone, to California. He called us the first night, the second night - then nothing! My husband contacted the

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

Highway Patrol, and one by one, I was asked for a recent picture of our son, his driver's license, his blood type and the license number of his car. Each question hit me like a physical pain. Some of the answers I did not know, and in the condition I was in, I could not even think logically enough to find them.

Thirty-six hours later, our son showed up on our doorstep! (He had changed his mind and returned home.)

Now, all of the information for each member of this family is safely tucked away in my desk - labeled and easily accessible.

JANE KATHAWAY, ST. JOHN, KAN.

DEAR JANE: Fortunately, your story had a happy ending, but there's a lesson in it for everyone. Thanks for sharing.

DEAR ABBY: When I was 18 years old, I was raped by a man I trusted. I never told anyone what happened to me.

Now six years later, I have fallen in love with a wonderful man who has asked me to marry him. I'm sure he thinks I'm a virgin and I'm afraid if I tell him the truth, he won't marry me. What should I do?

SUFFERED ENOUGH DEAR SUFFERED: Tell him you were raped by a man you trusted when you were 18 years old. It's the truth. If he decides not to marry you for that reason, you're better off without him.

(Problems? Write to Dear Abby. For a personal, unpublished reply, send a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Dear Abby, P.O. Box 99440, Los Angeles, Calif. 90099.)

Grilled vegetables are aromatic autumn treat

Why do most of us bring such hearty appetites to barbecue outings? Probably because the grilling, especially when aromatic wood chips are used, intensifies the flavors.

Grilling vegetables yields superb results, because the dry heat of the coals quickly seals the skin, and the vegetables steam in their own moisture. This heightens natural flavors and adds smoky accents.

Cooking times vary depending upon the vegetable and the intensity of heat. For example, it takes longer to cook vegetables on an uncovered grill than on a covered one. The vegetable is properly cooked when a skewer can be inserted easily.

When working with soft, juicy vegetables, it is best to use a basket for easy turning. If a basket is not being used, oil the grid to keep vegetables from sticking.

The simplest method is to brush vegetables with your favorite oil, perhaps a fruity green olive oil, and grill them over medium-hot coals. Thicker-skinned vegetables such as large, sweet onions may be roasted right in the hot coals.

To do this, soak unpeeled onions in cold water 20 to 30 minutes, embed them in the coals and roast until they are easily pierced with a skewer, about 20 minutes in a covered grill or 30 minutes in an open grill. Peel and serve whole or quartered, perhaps with wedges of lime.

As a special potato treat, coat potatoes with your favorite barbecue sauce and roast them on the grid over medium coals in a covered grill until done, about 45 minutes.

When space is limited on the grill, make a foil packet for vegetables. Combinations might include cauliflower and broccoli florets or zucchini slices and mushrooms. Moistens them with water, chicken stock or herbed butter and steam in foil until done.

Root vegetables that take longer to cook may be parboiled, and some cooks use the microwave to precook potatoes, yams or turnips for a few minutes before putting them on the grill.

According to editors at Bon Appetit magazine, the trend toward grilling vegetables began in restaurants in the '80s and is moving to home grills quickly. They recommend grilling only those vegetables that are suited to this method of cooking, these include bell peppers, corn, Japanese eggplant, mushrooms, green onions, red onions, potatoes, potato skins and zucchini. Experimenting is part of the fun of barbecuing, so try a variety of vegetables to lend color and variety to the menu.

CORN GRILLED IN HUSKS WITH CHIVE BUTTER

6 to 8 ears of corn in husks
4 to 6 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons fresh chives, snipped
salt and pepper to taste

Gently peel husks away from corn, about 1/4 of the way down; remove silk, then replace husks around corn, covering kernels as much as possible (if you wish, tie a string around tip of corn to keep husks in place). Soak in cold water 15 minutes. Brush outer husks lightly with oil. Roast on uncovered grill 15 to 20 minutes, turning 3 to 4 times until kernels are tender.

While corn grills, melt butter in small saucepan; stir in chives. Pull husks back or remove completely. Brush corn with chive butter and serve hot. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 to 6 servings.

GRILLED ONIONS

6 medium Bermuda or large yellow onions, unpeeled
1 tablespoon balsamic or red wine vinegar
1 tablespoon water
1 tablespoon brown sugar
dash of pepper
2 tablespoons vegetable oil

Halve unpeeled onions lengthwise. Combine vinegar, water, brown sugar, pepper and oil; brush on cut surface of onions. Arrange onions, cut side down, on oiled grill and cook, uncovered, 5 to 6 inches above hot coals for 10 minutes. Turn over and brush again with dressing. Continue to grill until crisp-tender and browned, 10 to 15 minutes longer. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 6 to 12 servings.

SUGAR SNAP PEAS AND MUSHROOMS GRILLED IN FOIL

1 pound sugar snap peas or snow peas
1/4 cup sliced mushrooms
1 tablespoon sliced green onion
2 teaspoons fresh dill, snipped
2 tablespoons butter
2 tablespoons butter
salt and pepper to taste

Remove strings from peas, rinse thoroughly, but do not dry. Place on sheet of heavy-duty foil, along with mushrooms, onion and dill. Dot with butter, sprinkle with salt and pepper. Wrap foil tightly around vegetables and place on grill, 4 to 5 inches above medium-hot coals.

Cook on an uncovered grill, shifting packet occasionally so vegetables cook evenly, for 6 to 10 minutes. This kitchen-tested recipe makes 4 servings.
