Hastings ready to run

TALLAHASSEE — Former federal judge Alcee Hastings says he has two pluses on his side in his race for Governor: His trial has made him well-known throughout the state, and he says he is innocent of all charges. The U.S. Senate voted Friday to remove him from the bench, and he declared his candidacy Monday.

Officer to work promotions beat

SANFORD — The city commission Monday authorized reclassification of a police officer position from patrolman to sergeant.

The police department will advertise for the position in house, Police Chief Steve Harriett said. The position will be a community-based officer in the Sanford Housing Authority housing projects, he said.

Teams of two officers work the community-based program in the projects. The newest position will place a fourth police officer in the program, Harriett said.

Deputy shoots at suspect

LONGWOOD — A Seminole County sheriff's deputy fired a shot at a suspected car thief this morning. No one was injured in the incident.

Just before 8 a.m. today, Longwood police were chasing a suspect in a reportedly stolen Corvette. Deputy Kevin Brubaker said he was standing in front of his patrol car, blocking Bennet Street at Charlotte Avenue, when Robert Lawson, 19, of Altamonte Springs, allegedly accelerated the Corvette directly toward him. Brubaker said he fired a single shot from his service revolver, hitting the passenger side of the car. The car's brakes locked and the suspect spun the car onto another street. The suspect escaped after abandoning the car on Seminole Boulevard.

Longwood police captured Lawson several blocks away on foot. He faces Longwood and Winter Springs charges related to the auto theft and flight. Lt. Marty LaBrusciano said Lawson will probably be charged with aggravated assault on an officer with a motor vehicle. Brubaker, LaBrusciano said, feared for his life as the car advanced toward him.

Commission agrees to lobby judges for tougher sentencing

SANFORD — The city commission last night responded to complaints about law enforcement in black neighborhoods by agreeing to lobby for tougher punishment for convicted drug dealers and to work with black citizens and police to improve community relations.

Bennie Alexander, representing members of the Celery City Elks lodge, said during a city commission meeting last night members have been afraid to attend meetings at the 619 Cypress Ave. lodge because of loitering and drug traffic on Seventh Street. He said law enforcement in the area is "mediocre."

"We feel the commission has not given us justice as a community," Alexander said.

City Commissioner Bob Thomas agreed, saying, "You treat my community different than you treat yours. If those youngsters were brave enough to set up shop on First Street, they wouldn't last."

Police Chief Steve Harriett said loitering and curfew ordinances are strongly enforced in all HEATHROW — On Tuesday, Oct. 17 at 5:04 p.m., time stood still for Heathrow residents Tom and Mary Lou McDonald.

Time stood still, but everything else moved. The McDonalds were in San Francisco when the now-infamous earthquake struck, paralyzing northern California and leaving a path of death and destruction in its wake.

It was a perfect California day, the kind the Beach Boys write songs about. Sailboats dotted the shimmering blue waters out in the bay, motorists stuck in rush-hour traffic moved only as fast as the choked freeway exit ramps would let them and a short distance

County AIDS cases doubling each year, health director says

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — The number of people in Seminole County suffering from AIDS is doubling each year and will continue to increase, Seminole County health department Director Jorge Deju said.

According to statistics Deju prepared for the Seminole County Board of Commissioners, the number of acquired immune deficiency syndrome cases reported in Seminole County jumped from three in 1984 to 22 this year. Of 70 AIDS cases reported to the county health department since 1984, he said, only 18 are still living.

"The epidemic will get worse in Seminole County," Deju said.

The number of AIDS cases nearly doubled from 14 in 1988 to 22 this year. Of cases reported this year, three were heterosexuals, nine were homosexuals, two were bisexuals and six were intravenous drug users, according to Deju.

Deju said he projects the number of cases among heterosexuals will rise, while cases among homosexuals will decrease.

"We are now seeing the status of AIDS in this county seven years ago," Deju said. Symptoms of the syndrome take about seven years to surface, he said.

Florida ranks third in AIDS cases this year

United Press International

ATLANTA — Florida is third in the nation in the number of AIDS cases reported between September 1988 and August of this year.

The figures were released at a recent Georgia Department of Human Resources meeting, where the panel also discussed a policy that currently allows people to be tested for the deadly virus anonymously.

According to the figures, New York was first in the nation with 34.5 cases per 100,000 residents. New Jersey followed with 27.8 cases per 100,000, followed by Florida with 25.1 cases and California with 20.8 cases. Georgia was fifth.

Dr. Brian Williams, Georgia director of AIDS surveillance, said Georgia had 16.6 cases per 100,000 residents with 74 percent of the afflicted found in the Atlanta metropolitan area.

Williams said Georgia's incidence rate may be high because of its large metropolitan area and the prevalence of intravenous drug use in

Store owners complain about proposed law

City commission delays decision until November

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — City commissioners last night tabled a vote on an ordinance requiring additional staff for all-night convenience stores in order to allow six store representatives who attended last night's meeting to speak on the matter.

Representatives from 7-Eleven, Handy Way, Cumberland Farms and Circle K stores attended last night's meeting to voice opposition to an ordinance requiring each store to staff two clerks between 8 p.m. and 4 a.m. The proposed ordinance would also set regulations for lighting of parking lots, amount of cash kept in store registers and visibility through store windows.

Police Chief Steve Harriett said the two-clerk regulations have been effective as a deterrent to robbery in Gainesville, where a similar ordinance was adopted in 1986.

Commissioner Lon Howell's motion to draw up the store regulations was seconded by Bob Thomas, but the commission then voted to table the issue until convenience store representatives could offer input at a Nov. 6 work session.

The motion to table the ordinance was made by Commissioner A.A. McClanahan, who said he opposed government controls on commerce at a work session last week.

Henry Marois Jr. of the Florida Food and Fuel Retailers said after the meeting his group opposed convenience store regulations, not because of the expense of additional personnel, but because of safety issues.

"We are the victims of crime," Marois said.

Marois said his group has fought passage of convenience store regulations in 25 cities and counties, of which only four have adopted such ordinances. The group will challenge any such ordinance in Sanford, he said.

'Stash that trash' says task force

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — By next summer, most Seminole County residents might be tossing soft drink cans and mayonnaise jars into plastic bins for a county recycling program.

Among the recommendations of the county's 19-member recycling task force are requiring unincorporated residents to have their garbage and recyclables collected by county-franchised haulers, paying for the service once a year along with their taxes.

County commissioners will consider the proposal today.

The task force was formed to discover the best way to help the county comply with the state's wide-ranging 1988 Solid Waste Management Act. The act requires counties to reduce the amount of garbage going into garbage dumps by 30 percent by 1994. The task force is made up of county, city and school officials, homeowners and trash collectors.

Seminole County commissioner Bob Sturm, chairman of the task force, said mandatory garbage collection should help reduce roadside littering and illegal dumping. About 16 percent of the homes in the county

Education chief disputes dropout report

TALLAHASSEE — Florida's high-school dropout rate is actually a lot lower than the federal government reported early this year, state education chief Betty Castor said Monday.

"Washington is wrong," Castor said in a press conference, pointing to the federal report in April that said Florida's graduation rate in 1988-89 was 88.8 percent, 50th in the nation.

Castor said the actual graduation rate for that period was 71.8 percent — meaning, 71.8 percent of the first-time ninth graders who entered Florida high schools in 1984 graduated in 1988.

Schools won't fight prayer ban

PALATKA — The Putnam County School Board has decided not to use public money to fight a federal appeals court ruling on school prayers and has instead passed a resolution against it.

Earlier this year, the 11th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals in Atlanta ruled in a Georgia case that prayers before high school sporting events were unconstitutional.

Some school districts in rural north Florida have opted to ignore the ruling, and officials in Putnam County thought about going to court to fight it. But that would have required public money and the approval of voters.

The board did not want to wait until November's elections to take up the question, and instead approved a resolution Monday. Currently, Putnam County schools observe a moment of silence prior to each high school football game.

Gun safety law appeal discussed

BUSHNELL — Authorities in Sumter County say they may apply the state's new gun safety laws in the case of a 15-year-old boy who shot his 16-year-old sister on Sunday.

Investigators say the two teens were playing with an empty gun and then obtained a second pistol. It went off, striking the girl in the upper thigh.

The father of the teenagers was at home at the time and had allowed the 15-year-old to keep the weapon. The boy was being taught handgun safety.

The new law says the owner of an unsecured gun can be held responsible if a person aged 15 or under uses it to kill or injure someone else.

Gas tax increase draws support

TALLAHASSEE — State Senate Transportation Committee Chairman Malcolm Beard says he is ready to support a 4-cent-per-gallon increase in the state gasoline tax, but the idea still faces opposition.

The Legislature will meet in special session next month to discuss highway funding. Although a $700 million plan is under review, the exact funding formula is undecided.

Some legislators want at least a small increase in the gasoline tax, while others want to raise it by 10 cents a gallon.

Gov. Bob Martinez is opposed to a gas tax hike, and instead backs a combination of higher "user fees" and other charges.

The special session is scheduled for Nov. 15-17.

Alleged killer wants trial moved

TAMPA — Lawyers for a man accused of killing an entire Tampa Bay area family have asked for a change of venue, saying publicity in the area will prevent their client from receiving a fair trial.

Defendant Newton Stawson is accused of killing the Oswald Wood family during a rampage at the Wood home last April. All four members of the family and an unborn fetus died. Stawson is scheduled to stand trial Nov. 13.

Assistant Public Defender Brian Donerly says there has been a lot of public discussion of the case. The court has not yet ruled on the change of venue request.

Missing woman found in cave

WIND CAVE NATIONAL PARK, S.D. — The search for a Florida woman missing at the Wind Cave National Park in southwestern South Dakota has ended successfully, authorities said today.

Rachel Cox, 16, of Tallahassee was located on the other side of a limestone wall in the cave late Monday night and was brought to the surface early Tuesday, park spokesman Bill Swift said.

Cox, who disappeared Sunday afternoon, was hospitalized for observation at nearby Hot Springs, Swift said.

Senate roads chief backs tax plan

TALLAHASSEE — A House plan to raise statewide gasoline taxes by 4 cents per gallon has won the support of Senate Transportation Chairman Malcolm Beard.

"I'd like to do more, but I think we can do that at least," Beard said of proposed increase.

NASA gears up for military flight

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — With the shuttle Atlantis back on the ground in California, engineers at the Kennedy Space Center are gearing up to roll the shuttle Discovery to the launch pad Wednesday for a military flight around Nov. 20.

If all goes well, the National Aeronautics and Space Administration will close out the year by launching the shuttle Columbia on a 10-day mission over Christmas to dispatch a military communications satellite and retrieve a science package left in orbit in 1984.

"The next two launches look like they're pretty much on schedule," NASA shuttle chief William Lenoir said. "There's a very good likelihood that the next two missions will be in the air over the two upcoming holidays, Thanksgiving and Christmas."

Columbia's flight will be the sixth for

— Shuttle Chief William Lenoir

1989, a record exceeded only once — in 1985 — since the shuttle program began in 1981.

The shuttle Discovery is scheduled to be hauled from the Vehicle Assembly Building to launch pad 39B starting at 12:01 a.m. EDT Wednesday for work to ready the veteran spaceplane for liftoff around Nov. 20 on a classified military mission.

Discovery skipper Frederick Gregory, co-pilot John Blaha and crewmates Manley Carter, Story Musgrave and Kathryn Thornton plan to fly to the Florida spaceport this weekend to board the spacechip Monday for a dress-rehearsal countdown at the launch pad.

In a bit of space trivia, four of the crewmates — Blaha, Carter, Musgrave and Thornton — have birthdays within 11 days of each other and Gregory, veteran of a previous space flight, will become NASA's first black shuttle commander.

Blaha was added to the crew in June to replace co-pilot David Griggs, who was killed June 17 when the vintage World War 2 airplane he was flying crashed in Arkansas.

Because of the military nature of Discovery's flight, details about the mission are top secret and the identity of the payload has not been revealed.

Launch time and mission duration also are classified.

Hastings says his impeachment a plus in declaration for governor

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Ousted federal judge Alcee Hastings filed Monday as a candidate for governor, saying his removal from the bench for conspiring to accept a bribe had made him "at least well-known" throughout the state.

"I believe myself to be a man of honor and integrity. I have not committed any crime at any time. And therefore, I'm satisfied that in spite of the actions of the United States Senate, I can go forward and address issues in this state," said Hastings, an Altamonte Springs native.

Hastings, a Democrat, had announced his plans to seek the governorship moments after the Senate voted Friday to remove him from the bench. Before formally filing as a candidate Monday with the state Division of Elections, he said he had been considering a run for the office for six months.

"Negative celebrity brings one into the fray the same as positive celebrity does," Hastings said. "I'm at least well-known. Now the question becomes, can I translate that into a thorough positive."

Hastings promised a positive campaign based on the issues and not the personalities of his opponents.

He endorsed a state personal income tax, a 10-cents-per-gallon increase in the gasoline tax, legalization of gambling by local option, support for abortion rights and willingness to execute murderers despite his personal opposition to capital punishment.

He also proposed changing the Florida Constitution to abolish the independently elected Cabinet and office of lieutenant governor, and to create a unicameral Legislature.

Hastings promised to be an "inspirational leader of the people that will say the hard things that are difficult for people to come to grips with because politicians duck issues."

Water-use fee being considered

UPI report

TAMPA — Florida residents could find themselves paying a user fee in the future for a diminishing precious resource — water.

The user-fee idea is only one of several recommendations under consideration by the Governor's Water Resources Commission, which is seeking ways to regulate water use and manage the state's water resources.

The commission, composed of two representatives from each of the state's five water management districts, is scheduled to present its final recommendations to the governor by Dec. 1.

Other proposals under discussion include integrating state land-use planning with water planning, requiring water-management districts to complete plans identifying how much water is needed and where it will come from, and creation of regional water-supply districts in areas with critical water supply problems.

It is the idea of a user fee for water that is easily the most controversial, however, especially among agricultural interests, the Tampa Tribune reported Monday.

Secretary of State seeks reform

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Secretary of State Jim Smith called Monday for a series of election reforms including public campaign financing and spring primaries, and he vowed to keep pressing change upon a reluctant Legislature and governor.

Smith acknowledged during a news conference that most items in his reform package were rejected by the Legislature last year, and that Gov. Bob Martinez opposes public financing of candidates.

"If it's rejected again this year, I can assure everyone I'm like an old pony, I'll be back," Smith said.

Smith said his reforms would encourage higher voter turnout and lessen the influence of special interests.

"I don't see it working for the disadvantage of either party, or that it works to the disadvantage of minority candidates," said Smith, a Republican who also has served two terms on the Cabinet as a Democratic attorney general.

He said he saw danger in voter turnout rates that have hovered between 30 and 38 percent in recent years, noting that Adolph Hitler won control of the Nazi party by a single vote.

The Legislature enacted a public campaign financing law in 1986, but has refused to put any money into the program since then. Smith urged lawmakers to reserve $12 million for the program by 1994.

At least $12 million is expected to be spent in next year's governor's race alone.

"I can raise money with the best of them. I've demonstrated that," Smith said. "But I'm willing to submit myself to the limits of this campaign reform for equality and fairness."

Florida is one of six states with second primaries, and all are among the nation's lowest voter-turnout states. Smith suggested numerous alternatives, including moving the primaries to the spring or having a single decisive primary for each party.

New pilot classification prompts worry

United Press International

FORT LAUDERDALE — There have been 1,302 aircraft accidents in Florida since 1983, and critics worry the total will climb more rapidly as a new class of recreational pilots wing their way into the state's crowded airspace.

The Federal Aviation Administration's creation of the new classification has caused an uproar in the aviation community.

The 1,302 accidents have caused 446 deaths, 678 injuries and millions of dollars in damages. Records kept by the National Transportation Safety Board show four out of five crashes resulted from pilot mistakes — some as basic as running out of fuel — and poor judgment.

"The biggest nut is the one behind the wheel," said Lacey Moore, a former B-52 bomber pilot who now serves as chief airport inspector for Florida's Department of Transportation.

Air safety experts said better training is the key to deterring most accidents. But the "recreational pilot" classification, which took effect Aug. 31, allows pilots to fly with less training.

Recreational pilots are supposed to have at least 30 hours flying time, while a private pilot's license normally requires 40 hours.

Recreational pilots are supposed to fly only during daylight, cannot operate more than 50 miles from their home airport and cannot fly into areas where they must use their two-way radio. The radio requirement and others are designed to keep them from flying near busy commercial airports.

But in previous accidents, investigators have said the small planes favored by recreational pilots did not show up on air traffic control radar screens until it was too late to warn the other pilots.

The NTSB reports 10 single-engine, propeller-driven planes are involved in accidents for each 100,000 hours of flight time. That is almost twice the rate of a Navy Tomcat, the fighter jet featured in the movie "Top Gun."

Housing Authority contacted by lawyer

SANFORD — A San Antonio attorney has contacted the Sanford Housing Authority concerning legal action against an SHA commissioner who called a Mexican-American contractor a "wetback" in August.

Guadalupe Luna, staff attorney for the Mexican American

Legal Defense Fund (MALDEF), wrote SHA interim executive director Linda Williams last week requesting information about what steps have been taken by the housing authority following the remark made by SHA Commissioner J. Wain Cummings during review of professional management firms.

Cummings later apologized for the remark about Robert Perez of McAllen, Tex. Judy Weekley, SHA finance officer, said Williams would not return from vacation until Nov. 1. No response to Luna's letter would be made until Williams return, she said.

Luna said in the letter, "Mr. Cummings' remark and subsequent attempted apology demonstrates a lack of sensitivity, actively cultivates racial animosity and perpetuates stereotyping in a most harmful way." MALDEF, a national organization founded in 1968, spent nearly $2 million last year in litigation costs, according to the group's 1988 financial report.

The Florida Commission on Hispanic Affairs, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People and a group of SHA employees have asked for Cummings' resignation or removal.

Longwood mayor balks at deliberations

By SANDRA BOUCHANNE

LONGWOOD — The city will attend discussions about the purchase of Longwood's wastewater treatment plant, but not with Mayor Hank Hardy's approval. Hardy last night voted against attending the meetings, comparing the purchase with last year's rejected Sanlando Utilities deal.

Hardy said, "I see ourselves headed in a similar situation before, only reverse." Sanlando Utilities was a controversial issue last year when the city considered sponsoring bonds for a company to purchase this wastewater treatment plant from the county.

Last night, City Manager Michael Abels recommended to city officials that they attend discussions concerning the county's plans to buy Longwood Utilities Inc., a private wastewater treatment plant owned by Florida Residential Construction Co. (FRC) Altamonte Springs. The plant services 1,600 homes in Longwood.

Although Hardy was opposed, three other commissioners supported the city attending the discussions.

Abels said the county had informed the city 45 days ago it had been approached by FRC to purchase the plant which he called "the biggest utility in Longwood."

that plant might be," Abels said. "Not knowing what the future may be, we have an obligation to protect the interests of Longwood residents."

Deputy Mayor Gene Parach commended Abels for keeping the commissioners informed about the situation. "I think we need to be abreast of what is there for the benefit of Longwood," he said.

Commissioner Ted Poelking said, "If it's going to cost us money, forget it," although he was in favor of the city attending the fact-finding session.

Hardy was the only one who voted against entering into the discussions. "Currently, they're not having a problem. I don't see the urgency here," Hardy said. He said he was concerned that if the county acquired the plant, the rates would go up. Currently, Longwood Utilities customers pay $34.25 a month, according to Hardy.

Hardy also claimed Abels didn't have the authority to call the meeting last night. "It's beyond the scope of your authority to call this meeting," he told Abels.

City Attorney Richard Taylor told the commission that it was within Abels' "administrative capacity" to call the meeting in order to keep the commission informed.

"I don't think he had to call the meeting, but I don't think it hurts that he does," Taylor said.

Red Bug Leg Road widening reviewed

By J. MARK SANFORD
 Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners today will review proposals to widen a portion of Red Bug Lake Road, a plan area residents have previously opposed.

County consultants Blount Bikes & Associates of Orlando will give commissioners a shopping list of six alternatives to widen the road from two to four lanes. County engineers recommended widening the road to six lanes last year, but the proposal generated a protest from Red Bug Lake corridor residents opposed to the additional traffic a six-lane road will bring.

The hearing will begin at 7 p.m. at the Seminole County Services Building commission chambers.

As a result of the controversy, commissioners narrowed the roadpath between Autumn Glen Lane and Tusakawilla Road from the 140 feet engineers said was needed for six lanes to 120 feet, a width more accommodating of a road with only four lanes. They discarded completed design

Car bomb kills Florida man injures wife

United Press International

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. — Investigators worked Monday to determine what type of explosive device was used to blow up the car of a Florida couple as they drove in southwestern Missouri, killing the husband, authorities said.

A preliminary investigation showed a bomb was responsible for the explosion Sunday that killed Michael Coy, 48, of Sarasota, Fla., said Thomas Mountjoy, prosecuting attorney for Greene County.

Mountjoy said investigators from the U.S. Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms were checking the wreckage of the car for clues Monday. He said they were assisted by agents from the Missouri State Fire Marshal's Office, the Highway Patrol and the Greene County Sheriff's Department.

"The explosives experts are looking at the car today," Mountjoy said. "They're literally taking it apart, trying to find what type of explosive device was used. They're also looking at the scene of the explosion itself."

The blast occurred about noon Sunday as Coy and his wife, Donna, 46, were traveling in their car on Missouri Highway 126 in Greene County, about 8 miles east of Springfield, the Highway Patrol said.

The explosion was centered in the driver's floor area, ripping open the car's floor and hood, troopers said.

plans for a road with six lanes and hired Blount Bikes to design a road within a narrower path.

Leaving the final decision up to commissioners, Blount Bikes has offered six different designs, all beginning with four lanes. Three of the proposals can be expanded to six lanes by adding lanes to the center median. Three of the designs cannot be widened to six lanes.

Many Red Bug Lake Road residents oppose any widening of the road to six lanes — either now or in the future. Other residents and businessmen say the road should eventually be widened to six lanes to prevent a traffic snarl in the rapidly-growing section of the county.

Power grab

By a convincing margin of 232 to 184, the House of Representatives has rejected a bid by lawmakers from the Northeast and Midwest to force the Census Bureau to exclude undocumented aliens from the 1990 tally. But the Senate has endorsed the move, on a vote of 50 to 41. The issue now must be resolved by a House-Senate conference committee.

Although the House shows no indication of backing down in conference, President Bush could help kill this ill-founded legislation by pledging to veto it.

Commerce Secretary Robert A. Mosbacher, whose department encompasses the Census Bureau, has said he will recommend a veto if the Senate version reaches the President's desk. Yet Mr. Bush could greatly strengthen the leverage of the House negotiators by declaring his opposition now to excluding undocumented residents. A promised veto could make the difference in what ultimately emerges from the conference committee.

The amendment passed by the Senate is glaring power grab by lawmakers whose states stand to lose from the big population shift to the South and West during the last decade. For example, when the 435 seats in the House are reapportioned based on the 1990 census, California is expected to gain at least five seats — at the expense of Michigan and other northern industrial states that have had little or no population growth. Because federal aid to the states is often doled out on the basis of population, billions of dollars in federal programs are also at stake.

To mitigate these losses, backers of the Senate amendment are trying to discount illegal aliens for the first time since the initial federal census in 1790. The Immigration and Naturalization Service estimates there are between 1.7 million and 2.9 million people living illegally in the United States. The majority are Hispanics living in California, Texas and other states with booming populations.

Among constitutional scholars, there is broad agreement that a move by the Congress to eliminate undocumented aliens from the Census would violate the Constitution, which stipulates that every resident shall be counted. Yet supporters of plan want to test their luck in the courts, all the same.

Even if the Senate amendment were not unconstitutional, it would compromise the accuracy of the census and be nearly impossible to implement. Census takers, who are generally low-paid, part-time workers, would have no way to distinguish legal residents from illegal ones. Moreover, the mere effort by census takers to determine who is legal and who is not would drive undocumented residents underground and make many legal immigrants reluctant to provide accurate information about their households.

President Bush ought to help preserve the 200-year-old practice of including every resident in the census. A public pledge to veto the Senate amendment is probably all it would take to derail this selfish scheme.

"How do you like my Halloween costume, Pappy?"

WILLIAM A. RUSHER

Life goes on in San Francisco

Faithful readers of these columns, having endured my dithyrambs on the subject of San Francisco, are certainly entitled to watch me eat a little crow in the wake of the events of Oct. 17.

Very well, I probably overdid it. Certainly, on the basis of the latest evidence, San Francisco was considerably less enthusiastic about my arrival here than I was. But who said a great love has to be requited?

Anyway, in San Francisco proper it wasn't all that bad. The epicenter of the quake was some 50 miles south of here, and the damage was accordingly most extensive in the communities below San Francisco Bay. By far the heaviest death toll was in Oakland, occasioned by the collapse of a double-decker freeway loaded with cars. In fairness to the Coast & Geodetic Survey map I cited in a recent column, it does color the Santa Cruz area with bright red, denoting the highest likelihood of an earthquake.

I had been in Tokyo in 1985, when that city experienced a quake almost as big as this one, so I wasn't a complete novice in such matters. But my first thought, as I waited for a cable car at 8:04 p.m. at the corner of California and Hyde, and the pavement began to rumble beneath my feet, was that I hadn't realized BART — San Francisco's shiny new subway — came this way.

For the sensation was a dead ringer for one every New Yorker is familiar with: that of a train passing under Park Avenue on its way to Grand Central Terminal.

But the rumble swiftly escalated to a crazy, jiggling away, and I suddenly realized what was happening.

Before I had time to feel scared, however, the rwaying stopped.

People poured out of a nearby supermarket, talking excitedly. Several large glass windows in the supermarket's wall had broken, scattering thousands of glittering shards on the pavement. I could see my cable car two blocks away — going nowhere, since power had been cut off. I managed to hail a cab, and came home.

Damage to my apartment building had mercifully been slight. There were cracks in the plaster in the stairwells, and the glass in bay windows on the first three floors had broken. But my own bay window, like the others above the third floor, had survived intact.

In my apartment, books had fallen on their side; a few items of bric-a-brac had toppled, without damage. A lamp shade had leaped sideways from the rim of the lamp bowl it had rested on. As I inspected one room, a sharp aftershock rippled through it, and I heard the bric-a-brac in the next juggle cheerfully.

But that was all. Duak was falling now, with the power still out (it won't be restored until all danger of gas leaks in the area is past). Now the experience became almost an exact replay of the New York blackouts of 1965 and 1976, both of which I witnessed.

Now as then, water and phone services were still functioning — though not to be abused. Elevators and traffic lights were out. Here at home I pattered around with a flashlight in the dark, listening to a battery-powered radio, drinking warm beer, and starting out the window at the dark city center and its ring of brilliantly lit suburbs. The area's various radio stations were doing their frantic best to relay news, rumors, official announcements and sound advice. At last I fell asleep.

People poured out of a nearby supermarket, talking excitedly.

Keeping mankind in line

WASHINGTON — San Francisco's geography is histrionic — its fogs can be as spectacular as the vistas they obscure — and its geology is downright dangerous. On Oct. 17 that geology taught the nation three lessons. They concern the predictability of some surprises, the sovereignty of nature and the web of dependencies that define civic life.

The earth's shell is composed of numerous plates from 45 to 95 miles thick, slowly migrating, North America — The United States of America, as the geologists call it — is united only for now. This "collage of wandering fragments" (geologists are phrasemakers) may disperse to form new aggregations in a few hundred million years.

Meanwhile, California straddles two plates, one moving south, the other north. No good can come of this. Sudden slippages between plates produce quakes, and not only in the West.

Quakes around New Year, 1811-12, near New Madrid, Missouri, reached perhaps 8.8 on today's Richter scale. They reversed the flow of the Mississippi, altered its course, caused waves in the Earth several feet high and rang church bells in Boston. Last November, a 6.0 quake hit rural Quebec. In 1983, a 6.5 quake shattered Coalinga, Calif. The scale is logarithmic: San Francisco's 1906 quake (8.3) was 90 times more powerful than Coalinga's and less powerful than Alaska's 1964 quake (8.4).

There are between 2,500 and 10,000 measurable tremors during a normal day on this fidgety planet. (Instruments can measure ground movement the size of an oxygen molecule.) Big quakes are rare. They also are certainties.

Earth sciences predicted the 1980 eruption of Mount St. Helens and six months ago Science magazine examined evidence that "dangerous quakes are closing in on the San Francisco area." A 1976 quake in China killed 400,000, but in 1975 the evacuation of a Chinese city in response to a correct prediction saved an estimated 100,000 lives. As a predictive science, seismology is still developing, but it suggests that a big quake is highly likely in eastern America within 30 years.

San Francisco's quake should concentrate minds. One-tenth of all Americans live in California. One-quarter of the semiconductor industry is in one county near the San Andreas fault. About 47,000 Americans die each year in motor vehicle accidents, the equivalent of a major plane crash every day. An 8-strength quake — smaller than 1906, larger than 1989 — could kill that many in 15 minutes. Only 60 people died when Charleston, S.C. shook for eight minutes in 1886, but people then did not live in high-rise structures over natural gas lines and downwind from chemical plants.

An earthquake once shook the Western mind. It struck Lisbon on All Saints' Day, 1755, killing thousands in churches and thousands more who fleeing to the seashore, were drowned by a tidal wave. It was as though nature were muttering "Oh, really? Says who?" in response to mankind's expanding sense of mastery. The quake was an exclamation point inserted arbitrarily into the Age of Reason, raising doubts about the beneficence of the universe and God's enthusiasm for the Enlightenment.

In this secular age, when the phrase "acts of God" denotes only disasters, we still can learn lessons from them.

One of the striking vignettes from television coverage of the aftermath of San Francisco's quake was a policeman exhorting citizens to "go home and prepare for 72 hours without services." Perhaps no electricity, no gas, no running water for three days. Of course mankind lived for millennia without any of those. Today, however, our well-being depends on a network of many systems too easily taken for granted.

The words civic, civil, citizen have a common root. They originally pertained to residents of cities. It is in these complex creations — cities — that we see the truth of the phrase "social fabric." Any community, but especially a modern city, is a rich weave of diverse threads. The strength of each thread is derived from its relations to the rest. All the threads can snap or unravel when the fabric is ripped by jagged events. San Francisco's fabric has been strained but not torn.

From any catastrophe some good can come. It is no bad thing to be reminded — the world relentlessly sees to this — of the fragility of all social arrangements. Americans, for whom individualism is instinctive, need periodic reminders that their individual pursuits of happiness are utterly dependent upon the functioning of civic, collective community institutions — government — and upon habits of civility of the sort San Franciscans showed in their crisis. An earthquake is a tough teacher but it tells the truth.

Big quakes are rare. They also are certainties.

Soviets ease up on lies about U.S.

WASHINGTON — The Soviet Union has eased up on its bizarre campaign of lies about the United States because of a secret "disinformation pact" negotiated by former U.S. Information Agency Director Charles Wick.

For decades, official Soviet publications have printed stories fit for "The Twilight Zone" — that the Pentagon created the AIDS virus, that the United States imports South American babies to sell their organs, that America has a gas that kills only blacks.

Those stories no longer make the official rounds. We learned about the secret pact that led to disinformation detente from sources in Moscow, including the current director of the Soviet news agency Tass, Leonid Kravchenko. Wick confirmed the details.

Kravchenko was one of the negotiators for the Soviets. The talks began because Wick got fed up with the lies and with the Soviet jamming of Voice of America radio broadcasts. He asked the Soviets to ease up.

Kravchenko credits Wick's candor for keeping the talks on track. The Soviet negotiators had given Wick a replica of the 1,700-foot Ostankino Tower in Moscow with a light on top. The landmark is a television transmission tower. At a low point in the talks, Kravchenko said Wick was asked what he wanted to do next. According to Kravchenko, Wick grabbed the tower model and said he would like to put it up their collective communist behinds and light it. The Soviets broke out in laughter and the talks were amicable from there on out.

Wick told us he doesn't recall the specific episode, but admitted that the talks began because of his complaints.

For decades, the Soviets had four favorite lies they told in their official publications:

- That the United States kidnapped or illegally adopted South American babies and then sold their organs for transplants.

- That a Central Intelligence Agency assassination team was assigned to kill religious madman Jim Jones, his 900 followers and Rep. Leo Ryan in Guyana in 1978 because Jones was planning to move his cult to the Soviet Union.

- That the United States is responsible for an assortment of assassinations overseas including that of Palestinian Liberation Organization military chief Abu Jihad in 1988. An Israeli hit squad actually killed him.

- That the United States has cultivated a variety of bacteriological weapons designed to kill Cubans and Africans, including the AIDS virus, which the Soviets said was created by the CIA and the Pentagon.

Wick said that for six years he complained about them and other fairy tales. "We would give them chapter and verse of their disinformation efforts," he said, "but they followed the party line and debunked them."

In January 1987 on a trip to Moscow, when the Soviets were pushing the medium-range missile treaty, Wick asked Soviet officials how they could expect to be trusted if "you keep putting out a lot of lies about us."

That blaststorm got Wick invited to lunch with Mikhail Gorbachev, when the Soviet leader came to Washington in December 1987. Wick told Gorbachev if he was "really serious about reducing tension and strains" he would stop the lies and the jamming of VOA.

On the spot, Gorbachev ordered his top aide, Alexander Yakovlev, to follow up. The negotiations began in April 1988.

The United States kidnapped or illegally adopted South American babies and then sold their organs for transplants.

County C of C discusses advertising

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Reaching customers through effective advertising will be the theme at the Greater Seminole County Chamber of Commerce roundtable discussion this week.

Diana Dicks, assistant director of the University of Central Florida Small Business Development Center, will discuss various advertising and marketing topics. The topics are identifying customers, media alternatives, creative design and evaluating advertising effectiveness.

The discussion, part of the chamber's Small Business Roundtable Evening Seminar series, will be Oct. 26 from 5:30 to 9:30 p.m. at Maison et Jardin Restaurant. Cost is $30 for members and $40 for non-members. Dinner is included. Call 834-4404 for reservations.

Commission may pay $6 million for land

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners today will consider final approval of a $6 million land purchase of more than 4,000 acres north of the Osceola Landfill near Geneva.

The land is currently owned by Sanford city attorney William Colbert and several members of his family.

Commissioners have touted the purchase as a way to assure the rural Geneva area will be protected from rapid growth and to provide a buffer between homes and the landfill. The land might also be used to expand the landfill during the 2000s and provide a recreational area.

If approved, the sale will be closed Nov. 10.

Soviet-Polish talks underway

United Press International

WARSAW, Poland — Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze arrived today for two days of talks to redesign relations between Poland's new Solidarity-led government and Moscow.

The new agency PAP said Polish Foreign Minister Krzysztof Skubiszewski met Shevardnadze at Warsaw's Okecie airport to meet his Soviet counterpart, and the two began talks soon after.

Shevardnadze recently met

Skubiszewski during the U.N. meeting in New York and "expressed his satisfaction that he will be able to continue talks with the Polish minister."

A Polish diplomatic source said Shevardnadze will discuss preparations for an upcoming trip by Prime Minister Tadeusz Mazowiecki to Moscow and also take part in a meeting of Warsaw Pact foreign ministers scheduled to begin Thursday.

The Communist Party-controlled newspaper Zycie Warszawy recalled that the government of Mazowiecki, done in Jacksonville and Miami will give a more accurate account of the number of AIDS cases in Florida within a few weeks, Deju said.

The highest incidence of AIDS in Seminole County is among white males, who account for 15 of the reported cases. The health department also treated three black males, one black female and one Hispanic female for AIDS.

Deju said the health department administers AZT, the only Food and Drug Administration-approved drug for the treatment of AIDS. The department also provides counseling for patients before and after testing for AIDS.

"If a person comes to us for testing, it is obviously because they are concerned about some dangerous behaviors," Deju said. Patients who do not test positive for the disease are also counseled after testing to educate them on the risks of sexual activity and drug use, and because the test may not be the final word.

away from the McDonald's hotel, the eyes of the world were focused on Candlestick Park where the Giants and Oakland Athletics prepared to do battle in what would soon become little more than a trivial sporting event.

Tom McDonald, who was in town for a convention, was taking a nap in his room on the eighth floor of the Hyatt Regency Hotel when the earth moved and he felt the time had come for him to leave this world.

"I made peace with my Maker," McDonald said. "I asked him to forgive me of my sins. I thought the world was over. I thought we were going down."

McDonald describes himself as a religious man and says he goes to church "because I'm a sinner. If I wasn't, I wouldn't need to go to church."

He was awakened by the movement and although he's never been in an earthquake before, he said he knew what was happening.

"I knew it was an earthquake," McDonald said. "Everything shook for five or six seconds and then it seemed like there was a pause. Then it started back up again and it was even more intense. I thought the whole structure was going to collapse. It seemed like there was a lot of noise. It sounded like the whole building was creaking and there were sounds of concrete grating against concrete."

Mary Lou had gone to the 16th floor of the hotel to visit friends and the two finally found each other several minutes later.

"After the shaking stopped, I ran out in the hall and asked some people what we were supposed to do," he recalled. "They told me to stand under the beam in the doorway to my room. I did that for a few minutes. I was in my pajamas and a few minutes later, I went back in the room to get dressed. I put on some slacks and a tie."

It was later that he realized he still had his pajama shirt on.

"I put the tie on because I wanted to look decent," he said. "This was in the financial district and I wanted to look okay."

Mary Lou found Tom shortly thereafter and the two made their way to the stairwell where several other hotel guests were trying to make their way to the ground floor.

"There wasn't a whole lot of damage in the hotel rooms but there was some in the lobby, mostly broken glass," he said.

"From my room, I could see the bay bridge (on which a 50-foot section collapsed, killing at least one motorist) and the marina district. I could see the fires down in the marina district. The lock on the glass doors in my room broke and my wife said that two televisions in the room on the 16th floor were ripped off the wall and exploded."

McDonald said there were a lot of people rushing and moving about, but there didn't appear to be any panic or pandemonium.

"Everyone was asked to leave the building and we all went to a little park near the hotel," he said. "We were outside for about 5 1/2 hours. The water mains were broken and gas lines were broken. The street in front of the hotel was flooded. There was about 2 1/2 feet of water in the road. People leaving their offices were rolling their pent legs up and wading through the water."

Hotel guests were not allowed to return to their rooms that night, McDonald said he and his wife slept in the hotel ball room and were given a tablecloth to use for a blanket. Everyone was evacuated from the structure the following morning.

"The hotel personnel were just fantastic," McDonald said. "The bay area people were very kind. There was no looting, no panic, everyone was helping each other."

McDonald said his wife maintained her composure throughout the bedlam, mostly because she was with friends when the earthquake struck. That night, while trying to sleep in a crowded hotel ballroom, McDonald said he could hear sirens outside. He said there wasn't a lot of yelling or people's voices, just the sounds of emergency vehicles flashing about and the feeling that something very horrifying had occurred.

"I didn't see anyone that had been hurt," McDonald said. "We had heard there were some people in the hotel who had been cut by shattered glass, but I didn't see any of them."

When daylight finally came and revealed the destruction around them, the McDonalds tried to arrange safe passage out of the city. After much difficulty in making contact with their airline, they finally managed to secure a seat on a plane that was scheduled to depart from San Jose, a city some 80 miles south of San Francisco and very near the earthquake's epicenter.

"We had befriended a lady during our stay at the hotel and she wound up taking us to the San Jose airport," McDonald said. "She drove a Mazda RX-7. Do you know what kind of car that is? My wife was scrunched up in the back with our luggage, looking up at the sky and I was hunched up in the front seat trying to give her more room in the back."

The story ends with the McDonalds on a plane from San Jose to Dallas and eventually back to Central Florida, but it's not the kind of thing you can forget about, Tom McDonald said.

"I will never forget the experience," he said. "As long as I have a mind, I will remember the earthquake. I was really scared. When the ground under your feet is not secure, you wonder if there's anything in this world that really is secure. Something like that will make you think about what's worthwhile in life. Material things aren't really important. It's people, and children, and your personal integrity, things like that. Those are the things that are important."

Officials at the hotel where the McDonalds were staying later revealed that the building had swayed some seven feet from side to side during the earthquake. They say the structure is built to withstand a 10-foot sway.

But that's not important to Tom and Mary Lou McDonald right now. They say if they ever experience another earthquake, it won't be one in California.

"We've been to San Francisco six times," Tom McDonald said. "It's a gorgeous city and everybody we know out there are just tremendous people, but we aren't going back."

neighborhoods across the city, but criminals have not been effectively handled in the state and county correctional systems to curb drug-related activity in the area.

"We're all on the same side. We are as frustrated and as desperate, from a law enforcement aspect, as the people who live in and use these areas are," Harriett said.

A lottering ordinance adopted by the city commission in May is used selectively by the police, Harriett said, but is not effective in moving a "mobile-type situation" of dealers moving from one street corner to another.

City attorney Bill Colbert told commissioners the public defender notified him Friday of plans to challenge the lottering ordinance. "We will do everything we can to keep the ordinance on the books," he said.

Harriett said the police have made 83 drug arrests in the area of Seventh Street and Cypress Avenue and a total of 270 drug arrests north of 19th Street over the past 12 months.

"If you arrest 83 on drug charges, the sad part is nothing has been accomplished. We need to stop handling the same people over and over," Harriett said.

"Drug dealers are only serving 19 percent of time in Department of Corrections, even less in the county jail. The fact that we have moved 270 people through the revolving doors of justice is evidence that it is a problem," Harriett said.

Upon Harriett's urging, the

"We shall not change Poland's place on the world map or the foundations of our national security, part of that being our participation in the Warsaw Treaty," Zycie said.

Poland was dependent politically on the Soviet Union for last 40 years and Moscow had the biggest say in deciding the country's internal policy.

commission called for a resolution to pass along to judges and legislators demanding longer sentences for convicted drug criminals.

Colbert cautioned the commission that constitutional limitations allow few steps to be taken on the local level to fight crime. "There are limitations on us all...but we should not give up," he said.

City Commissioner A.A. McClanahan said concerned citizens should ride on patrols with police and develop a network of citizens and law enforcement.

"Until you understand what we are up against, I don't think it's fair to call law enforcement mediocre or to say one community is treated any different," McClanahan said.

Stores

Florida Department of Law Enforcement statistics show convenience store robberies in Gainesville and Alachua County simultaneously dropping 60 percent between 1986 and 1987. Maris said a robbery prevention program offered by his group to 20 counties accounts for the drop from 70 to 28 robberies in Alachua County during that period.

Dick Swartzman, human resources manager for Circle K stores, said his stores have reported as many robberies while two clerks managed the counter as with only one store clerk.

But Sylvester Chang, owner of Sanford Mobil Service and vice president of Service Station Dealers of Florida, said he supports convenience store regulations, which he will lobby for this week in Hillsborough County.

"Two clerks is not the complete answer, but it is a start," Chang said. Better lighting and visibility, protective glass booths for clerks and security cameras are other measures that help reduce robbery, he said.

Service Station Dealers of Florida have proposed to Hillsborough County Commissioners adopting an ordinance barring major oil companies from forcing gasoline-food mart operators to keep their outlets open 24 hours. The group also proposed electric power door locks with bells for the all-night stores.

do not have regular garbage collection.

"It will dramatically decrease the amount of clutter on our roads," Sturm said. "Where it's going now is anybody's guess. Some of it winds up on our roads and behind the trees and shrubs."

Sturm said mandatory curbside collection of recyclable materials such as glass, newspaper and aluminum will be necessary to make the program work. Voluntary programs in other communities throughout the country are usually unsuccessful, officials from those communities say.

Sturm said task force members favored the use of plastic bins similar to those used to carry milk cartons for residents to separate their garbage. The bins will be given to residents to place their glass, aluminum cans and newspapers for recycling without charge. The task force also recommends allowing the garbage hauler to pick up the recyclable materials.

To better coordinate the garbage collection, the task force recommends dividing the county into a dozen or more franchise areas — one for each of the 20 haulers contracted by the county to collect garbage.

Sturm said a smaller hauler go out of business or sell their businesses to larger waste companies, the franchise areas could be consolidated into a more manageable number of four or five.

If the program is started by next July, Sturm said the franchise haulers would initially collect fees for the garbage collection, but the billing service would eventually be taken over by the county.

Sturm said the task force considered monthly billing for the collection service on water and sewer bills, but many landowners in Seminole County have their own wells and septic tanks so they don't receive a monthly bill for county services.

will be shown as part of child care activities at Mable Jean's Day Care at Eighth Street and Elm Avenue, only a block away from the construction site.

Children ages 6 to 13, with their parent's permission, may work in a special area of the playground, scrubbing trees and driving nails, Croser said. Youth ages 14 and up may work along side adults, she said.

Lunch, dinner, snacks and drinks will be provided for all children, Croser said.

Children will be registered for day care at the volunteer desk at the park, Croser said, and their hand prints will be stamped across a banner to be hung for the playground opening ceremonies Nov. 5 at 6 p.m.

Croser said she expects about 120 children each day on the weekends, but fewer during the week. Her estimates are based on the number of children at child care provided for construction of a playground at Orange City.

Here is a schedule for construction week child care:

Nov. 1: Only skilled construction workers and contractors will be working, so no child care will be provided.
Nov. 2-4: Child care provided from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Nov. 5: Child care provided from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m.

In addition to child care, meals will be provided for volunteers working shifts of at least four hours. About 1,600 volunteers are needed to help build the community playground.

Croser said volunteers are still needed for child care services. One adult volunteer is needed for every four children, she said.

House considers quake victims aid

WASHINGTON — A $2.85 billion disaster aid package prepared for consideration by the House today was infused with new relief funds for victims of Hurricane Hugo as well as earthquake-stricken California.

But the House Appropriations Committee, in approving the funding late Monday, rejected a broader relief package proposed by California lawmakers.

The panel adopted the disaster relief money as part of a stop-gap spending bill to keep the federal government functioning while Congress finishes work on tardy appropriations bills.

The $2.85 billion assistance package was scheduled to be taken up on the House floor today. It then goes to the Senate. The deadline for enactment of the measure is midnight Wednesday.

Bush signs interior spending bill

WASHINGTON — President Bush signed into law the most sweeping moratoriums on offshore oil drilling ever approved by Congress and a truce resolving a dispute over ancient forests and spotted owls in the Pacific Northwest.

Both the delays in offshore drilling and the settlement in the timber dispute were enacted Monday as part of an $11.3 billion spending bill for the Interior Department and related agencies, including arts and cultural programs.

The measure allows for $652 million more in spending than was approved last year, about $2.1 billion more than Bush requested.

Shot mother delivers baby, then dies

BOSTON — A gunman abducted a couple leaving a downtown hospital after attending birthing classes and took them to a housing project, where he robbed them before fatally shooting the woman and critically wounding her husband, police said today.

The husband managed to guide police to his car with the use of a cellular telephone before passing out, allowing doctors to deliver his wife's 7-month-old fetus by Caesarean section Monday evening, officials said.

Hungarians cheer new republic

BUDAPEST, Hungary — About 150,000 Hungarians sang long-banned patriotic anthems and held candles and torches in the vast square outside Parliament, gleefully toasting the nation's rejection of communism and proclamation of a democratic republic.

Monday's declaration came on the 33rd anniversary of the start of the 1956 pro-democracy uprising that was crushed by Soviet troops and tanks. Those who gathered for the evening vigil said they came to mourn those who had suffered under the invasion and to rejoice in the creation of a new democracy.

Acting President Matyas Szurocs issued the proclamation from the balcony of Parliament to the thunderous cheers of the multitudes, many waving Hungarian flags with the Soviet red star cut from their center.

Beirut braces for protests

BEIRUT, Lebanon — East Beirut merchants shuttered their shops today as angry youths blocked traffic with burning tires, demonstrating support for Christian leader Gen. Michel Aoun's rejection of an Arab-brokered peace plan.

Shops, schools and other institutions were closed in many areas in the divided capital's Christian enclave, witnesses said.

Young men toured east Beirut's streets in cars during the night, using bullhorns to call on residents to participate later Tuesday in a march to Aoun's headquarters in the suburban district of Baabda.

The protesters were urged to support Aoun's stand rebuffing the Arab League-mediated compromise accord to end Lebanon's 14-year-old civil war. The plan was worked out last weekend by members of Lebanon's Parliament in the Saudi resort of Taif.

Explosions rock Texas plastic plant

At least 1 worker killed, 109 hurt, many missing

United Press International

PASADENA, Texas — A fire sparked by a series of explosions at a Phillips Petroleum Co. plastics plant, killing at least one worker and injuring about 109, was allowed to burn through the night.

At least 23 people were unaccounted for early today, a day after explosions rocked the plant and nearby homes and triggered a raging fire, Phillips President Glenn Cox said. Some of the missing were feared dead.

"How many (of the missing are dead), we don't know," Dr. Paul Pepe, Houston's director of emergency services, said late Monday. "It could be three or four, or it could be more."

The fire erupted after a series of explosions tore through the 41-year-old facility at 1 p.m. It was under control by 10 p.m., Cox said.

"We're beginning to send Phillips representatives to the families of those missing or unaccounted for," Cox said.

The identity of the person killed was not yet available, he said.

A large amount of polyethylene pellets kept feeding the fire, which burned through the night, said Bob Benz, manager of Phillips plastics division.

Cox said 20 of the company's employees were missing late Monday. Another three who work for various subcontractors at the plant also were unaccounted for.

The first small explosion was followed by a huge blast, which broke out windows and knocked loose ceiling tiles in nearby schools and at a shopping mall.

More explosions followed, and fires were reported in three parts of the facility. Some of the injured were people living near the plant who were hit by flying debris, hospital officials said.

The blast also damaged the water storage system at the complex, hampering firefighters' efforts Monday. The five fire companies sent to fight the blaze had to pump water from the neighboring Houston Ship Channel.

Hydrocarbon vapors, the raw materials used for making plastics, were believed to have caused the explosions, Benz said.

Bill Stolts, the facility's environmental director, said the burning chemicals were not toxic but were "highly explosive."

There was little warning of the explosion, which sent debris flying six feet into the air.

"When I came out of my office, I could see a huge explosion. It looked like an atomic bomb going off," Joe Backus said.

Roy Berry said he saw "all kinds of debris" in the air.

"There were sheets of aluminum about 4 to 6 feet long falling," he said. "The air is saturated with material. I knew immediately what it was."

Ambulances lined roadways to the Phillips 66 Co. Houston Chemical Complex, which sprawls over 800 acres and makes three types of plastics, Phillips spokesman Dave Dryden said.

About 900 people are employed at the complex, but only 500 to 600 work there at a given time, Stolts said.

Doug Langford, a pipe designer at a nearby Occidental Petroleum facility, said the fireball was "just like the sun coming up. It just rose up with the smoke," he said. "It was unbelievable."

Shevardnadze admits ABM treaty violation

United Press International

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union, reversing years of denials, acknowledged that a giant Siberian radar station violates the 1972 ABM treaty, that its invasion of Afghanistan was illegal and that it kept making chemical weapons after a U.S. halt in 1969.

Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze also said "tens of billions of rubles were wasted building confrontation with China."

Shevardnadze made the sweeping review of past and present Soviet foreign policy Monday in a major speech to parliament.

"The authority of perestroika does not ensure us against faults," Shevardnadze said. "It is important not to hide them, but rather to recognize and correct them."

Shevardnadze's stunning admissions could pave the way for U.S. and Soviet negotiators to make rapid progress on new agreements cutting offensive nuclear weapons and limiting chemical weapon production.

The Soviet foreign minister bluntly told lawmakers that despite the Kremlin's longstanding denials — the towering Krazenyarsk radar in eastern Siberia violated the U.S.-Soviet anti-ballistic missile treaty of 1972.

"All these years we have been fighting to preserve this (ABM) treaty for the sake of strategic stability," Shevardnadze said.

"Yet at the same time this (radar) station the size of an Egyptian pyramid has stood — I must say this directly — in violation of the agreement."

In Washington, State Department officials said the Bush administration policy echoes that of the Reagan administration: In order to remove the treaty violation, the radar and the building must be destroyed.

Shevardnadze said the Soviet leadership under Leonid Brezhnev broke the law in Deember 1979 by sending troops to Afghanistan in an invasion that began a nine-year war in which 13,310 Soviet soldiers died.

"I say this as someone who was then a candidate member of the Politburo of the Communist Party's Central Committee," Shevardnadze said. "Just like Mikhail Sergeyevich Gorbachev, who I was with at the time, I learned of (the invasion) from radio and newspaper reports."

Gorbachev and Shevardnadze both had been elevated recently to the ruling Politburo when Russian troops swept across their southern border into Afghanistan.

Shevardnadze then turned to the production of chemical weapons, in effect lauding the United States for halting the weapons' production in 1969.

"Those who criticize us for (conciliation) unilateral steps should remember: In the past there have been unilateral steps of a different character," Shevardnadze said. "In 1969 the Americans stopped producing chemical weapons."

E. Germans demand to have free elections

United Press International

BERLIN — More than 100,000 people demonstrated in Leipzig to demand free elections on the eve of a Parliament meeting to elect Egon Krenz as president to replace fallen hardliner Erich Honecker.

Witnesses said some of the demonstrators Monday night shouted objections that Krenz had been nominated by the Communist Party Central Committee, which made him party leader as well.

Earlier Monday, workers at an East Berlin factory announced they were forming an independent labor union to oppose a union run by the Communist Party.

In a declaration released in West Berlin, workers of the Wilhelm Pieck machinery plant in the East Berlin district of Treptow said it was necessary to create the "Reform" union because the communist-run Free German Labor Federation does not represent the interests of workers and considers itself an ally of the Communist Party.

The government news agency ADN said more than 100,000 took part in a peaceful demonstration in the center of Leipzig after prayer meetings in five Protestant churches and one Catholic church. Church sources estimated the crowd at times swelled to between 200,000 and 300,000, the West German news agency DPA reported.

Witnesses said the protesters demanded free elections and "a leading role for the people."

It was the third successive week that protesters had held huge demonstrations in Leipzig after Monday night prayer meetings. Last week 150,000 demonstrated and the week before 70,000.

At a news conference later in East Berlin, opposition groups said arrested demonstrators had been kicked and beaten in police stations.

IN BRIEF

76ers beef up, sign Nimphius

PHILADELPHIA — The Philadelphia 76ers took a step Monday to strengthen their weak bench, signing 6-foot-11 veteran Kurt Nimphius to a one-year contract.

Nimphius, 31, played in the NBA for seven years before playing in the Spanish League last season. He has averaged 6.7 points and 3 rebounds per game in the NBA.

"We think that Kurt, at 6-11, will provide backup center and power forward help," General Manager John Nash said. "We're anxious to see to what extent that will come true."

The 76ers have stumbled to a 1-4 record in the exhibition season and have been hurt by a absence of a backup center behind Mike Gminaki and by a general lack of production from their bench.

Nimphius' best season came in 1985-86, when he averaged 11 points and nearly six rebounds per game for Dallas and the Los Angeles Clippers.

Sunniland still unbeaten

By DEAN SMITH
Herald correspondent

SANFORD — The Sunniland Corporation used a 20-hit attack to move into sole possession of first place with a 13-2 shellacking of Stromberg-Carlson in Sanford Men's Class D Slowpitch Softball action Monday night at Chase Park.

In the other games, Ken Rummel Chevrolet moved into a tie for third when it shut out The Barn Burners 7-0 and RMC Industries and Harcar Aluminum tied 10-10.

The win by Sunniland left them the only unbeaten team in the D League with a 4-0 record while Stromberg lost for the first time and fell to 3-1. Ken Rummel and The Barn now stand at 2-2 while RMC and Harcar are still looking for their first win at 0-3-1.

Sunniland came out with smoking bats and put four runs on the board in the bottom of the first inning. That was only the beginning as they scored at least one run in each of their five at bats and ended the game by the 12-run mercy rule.

Ron Carroll led the way for Sunniland with four singles and three runs scored. Other contributors were Rick Cieciak (triple, single, run scored), winning pitcher Rocky Morris and Chris Split (each with two singles and two runs scored). Chuck McMullan and Albert Key (two singles and one run scored each), Dan Sacco (two singles), Craig Split and Brad Wallace (a single and a run scored each), Shannon Split and Tom Moore (one run scored each).
□ See Softball, Page 3B

Harcar's Mark Steffes (hitting) drove in one run with a sacrifice fly and another with a single on Monday night, but Harcar had to settle for a 10-10 tie with RMC. The game will be completed at a later date. John Lugo is the RMC catcher and Duane Lafollette is the umpire.

FOOTBALL

Metcalf, Koser bury Chicago

CLEVELAND — Rookie Eric Metcalf scored two touchdowns and Bernie Koser hit Webster Slaughter with a 97-yard scoring pass as Cleveland beat Chicago 27-7 Monday night to move into a tie for first place in the AFC Central and give the Bears their third straight defeat.

Cleveland, 4-3, snapped a two-game losing streak and is now tied with Cincinnati and Houston. Chicago, which registered its first three-game losing streak under coach Mike Ditka, is 4-3 and a game back of Minnesota in the NFC Central.

Koser completed 23 of 29 passes for 281 yards and 2 touchdowns, and Slaughter registered career highs with 8 catches for 186 yards. The 97-yard pass was the longest scoring play from scrimmage in team history and came with 6:56 left in the game. Only 13 plays from scrimmage have been longer in NFL history.

The touchdown pass to Slaughter came on the first play after the Browns stopped the Bears on a fourth-and-goal play. Slaughter blew by single coverage by Vontae Jackson on the play and slipped a tackle attempt from Jackson on his way to the end zone.

Jays' Key to undergo surgery

TORONTO — Jimmy Key of the Toronto Blue Jays will undergo diagnostic surgery on his pitching shoulder Tuesday.

The team said Monday the arthroscopic examination was necessary because Key suffered from late-inning fatigue in September. The left-hander was placed on the disabled list in August because of a mild rotator cuff tear.

After returning from the 15-day disabled list Aug. 20, he was 6-1 with a 3.39 ERA in nine regular-season starts. He finished 13-14 with a 3.88 ERA.

During the playoffs, Key was the winning pitcher in Toronto's only victory against Oakland — a 7-3 victory in Game 3.

The Blue Jays also named Galen Ciccio pitching coach, replacing Al Widmar, who has been reassigned.

Walter in Canadiens' spotlight

MONTREAL — With Bob Gainey and Larry Robinson gone and the last link to the Stanley Cup-winning Canadiens teams of the past severed, Montreal needs new heroes this season.

Ryan Walter became one of them Monday night when he scored the winning goal with 21 seconds remaining in the game to lift the Canadiens to a 3-2 victory over the Hartford Whalers.

Walter was standing in front of the Hartford net when he directed a blue line drive from Petr Svoboda through the legs of Whalers goalie Mike Liut.

"Just before that last faceoff in their zone Petr (Svoboda) said to me, 'Ryan, you get the draw and I'll score,'" Walter said. "I went to the net. I know that Mike Liut hates being bothered by someone in front of the net."

In other NHL action, the New York Rangers downed Vancouver 5-3; New Jersey tripped Toronto 5-4; and Washington tied Calgary 3-3.

SANFORD HERALD PLAYER OF THE WEEK

Menello leads Rams to first win

By MARK BLYTHE
Herald sports writer

Lake Mary's Bob Menello established a school record for a fullback as he rushed for 218 yards Friday night to pace the Rams to their first win of the year. For his performance, Menello has been named the Sanford Herald Player of the Week.

Menello led Lake Mary to a 31-12 hammering of Spruce Creek and was a major force in the new wishbone offense. The Rams are looking to make it two wins in a row this Thursday when they travel to play winless Daytona Beach Mainland.

Others considered for Player of the Week honors were Lake Howell's Dan Vercek (60 yards rushing with two touchdowns, 34 yards passing), Oviedo's Frank Diaz (174 yards rushing with one TD, 36 yards passing), Lyman's Cedric Bouey (106 yards rushing and one TD), Lake Brantley's Shawn Martin (50 yards receiving, 23 yards and one touchdown rushing), and Seminole's Henry Williams (42 yards receiving along with punting five times for a 27.9-yard average).

"I feel that if the wishbone is going to be effective, you need a stud at fullback," Lake Mary coach Doug Peters said. "Bob (Menello) fills that role very well. He's real tough, he hits the holes real fast and knows what to do if the blocking isn't there."

The Rams responded to their new offense extremely well. The turnaround even surprised Peters, who won his first game ever as a head coach.

Editor's note: Lake Mary running back Bob Menello rushed for 218 yards on Friday to help the Rams to their first win of the season and earn Sanford Herald player of the week honors.

Others who players who were considered include:

● Lake Howell's Dan Vercek rushed for 60 yards and two touchdowns while passing for 30 yards.

● Henry Williams caught two passes for 42 yards and punted five times for a 27.9-yard average.

● Lyman's Cedric Bouey had a 66-yard touchdown run.

● Frank Diaz of Oviedo had 174 yards and one touchdown rushing while completing a pass for 34 yards.

● Lake Brantley's Shawn Martin had 23 yards and one touchdown rushing.

Lake Mary's Bob Menello

"I expected us to fumble the ball more," Peters said. "We want to polish up this week and look even better on Thursday."

Menello had just one touchdown Friday, but set up two others with his blocking. The 6-1, 210-pound back is not only a lead to bring down, he's also a tremendous blocker.

"He's such a strong runner, people forget how well he blocks," Peters said. "He scored just once. When a running back has over 200 yards you'd think he scored two or three times. His blocking set up two other touchdowns as he opened some huge holes for the other running backs."

Peters was also pleased with the play of quarterback Mike Merthle, who he feels could of had a big night himself. Merthle, though, kept giving the ball to Menello on the option play and Menello came through.

"Mike (Merthle) could have had a real big night," Peters said. "But he was unselfish. He saw that Bob was having a good night and he kept giving the ball up. He could have kept it a couple times and run for good yardage, and we'll look for him to do that in the future."

NFL still looking for commissioner

United Press International

CLEVELAND — NFL owners meet again beginning Tuesday in an attempt to choose a successor to Commissioner Pete Rozelle, with attorney Paul Tagliabue having gone from longshot to favorite.

Tagliabue, 48, was one of four candidates submitted to the ownership at a meeting in Dallas two weeks ago. At that time he received 13 of the 19 votes needed to elect.

New Orleans Saints President Jim Finks also received 13 votes, with two owners abstaining. The deadlock seemed destined to produce a compromise candidate.

However, there are now indications some veteran owners may be swinging toward Tagliabue, the Washington lawyer who has worked behind the NFL scenes for 20 years, serving on committees and representing the league in various court cases.

"We are going to get a commissioner out of this thing," said the Dallas Cowboys' Jerry Jones, an outspoken member of the group of younger owners who have exerted influence in this matter. "I've talked to a bunch of the owners and they are all saying, 'Let's get it done.'"

Similar comments were heard going into the Dallas meeting but that session only produced two days of divisive bickering.

Rozelle announced his retirement last March and a search committee eventually nominated Finks to replace him. But at a July vote in Chicago, 11 owners abstained, blocking election of a new commissioner.

Another search committee was formed and four candidates were proposed — Finks, Tagliabue, New York Republican Party Chairman Patrick Barrett and Hall of Fame defensive end Willie Davis.

Players losing intensity with delay of World Series

United Press International

SAN FRANCISCO — Heavy rain forced cancellation of World Series practice Monday, and the prospect of more storms jeopardizes Game 3 at Candlestick Park.

The World Series, already put off one week by the devastating earthquake to the Bay Area, may face another delay as a result of the band of winter storm fronts and unsettled weather extending into the Gulf of Alaska.

If and when the World Series between the San Francisco Giants and Oakland Athletics resumes, it will mark the longest break between games since the championship began in 1903.

"Although you can't generalize, the delays will have a significant effect on a number of players," said

Dr. Bruce Ogilvie, one of the pioneers in the field of sports psychology. "In terms of human behavior, one can expect a decline in the emotional involvement needed to excel in a championship situation over time. How can there not be a flattening effect?"

By Monday, players on both teams had gone through their ritualistic emotional buildups for games at least twice, only to have the contests rescheduled.

"Most athletes can't just keep getting ready for a game and then turn it off and then on again," said Dr. Jerry May, head of the U.S. Olympic Committee's Sports

Psychology Department. "It gets harder to focus."

The delay can also make athletes overly analytical.

"One of the dangers with any kind of delay is it makes some athletes think too much about what they are doing," May said. "They lose some of their instinctiveness. They let self-doubt creep in. You can also overprepare."

Fortunately, May says, baseball players are used to delays because of rainouts.

"They've been through delays before," he said. "Granted they usually are not this long, but they

Excess zinc will not make men more virile

DEAR DR. GOTT: Would you please give me an explanation of what zinc has to do with a man's sex life, if anything?

DEAR READER: Zinc is one of many minerals necessary for normal body function: It is an essential ingredient in more than 70 enzyme systems that control metabolism. Zinc deficiency causes stunted growth, taste and smell disorders, night blindness, immune impairment, poor healing, hair loss, dermatitis, diarrhea and male infertility (low sperm count and defective sperm). A rare form of impotence, associated with zinc deficiency, can be corrected by supplemental zinc.

Notice that I've listed many of the complications of zinc deficiency. No valid study has shown that additional zinc—above the Recommended Daily Allowance of 15 milligrams per day—improves sexual performance or aids health. In fact, excess zinc can be harmful. For example, it can cause anemia by interfering with copper metabolism. Meat, eggs, liver and seafood are rich natural sources of zinc.

Impotent or infertile men with normal body levels of zinc often mistakenly believe that supplemental doses of the mineral will improve virility. This is incorrect. As with vitamins and other minerals, an excess is not as healthful as an adequate amount. Although zinc is a vital element, I discourage patients from taking doses exceeding the RDA. To give you more information, I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Fads I—Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with a stamped, self-addressed envelope to P.O. Box 91369, Cleveland, OH 44101-3369. Be sure to mention the title.

DEAR DR. GOTT: I have a salty taste in my mouth at all times. The use of commercial toothpaste and mouthwash makes it worse. Three different doctors have laughed off my condition. Does this indicate a certain malady?

DEAR READER: A salty taste often indicates dental infection. Check with your dentist to make sure the source of your problem isn't a tooth abscess that can be easily treated.

By James Jacoby

Although a balanced hand is not ideal for competing over an opponent's opening bid, the West cards looked better with the A-Q of hearts over the heart bidder. So West doubled for takeout. That led to a normal part-score battle, with South bidding three hearts over two spades. A defensive mistake gave declarer a chance to make nine tricks, but he muffed it. On the opening lead, declarer played dummy's club jack, covered by the queen and ace. A spade was led to dummy's king. (If West had not held the ace, he might have led a spade.) When another spade was played, West won the ace and played another club. King of clubs and a ruff were followed by a spade ruff. South now led a heart. West took the A-Q and then got off lead with another club. Eventually, declarer had to lead away from the king of diamonds, losing two tricks and the contract. Declarer could have succeeded after the spade ruff if he had played the jack of diamonds from dummy and let it ride. Even if that lost to the queen, declarer could still lead the king of hearts from his hand with some slight chance that he might smother the singleton queen of trumps in either defender's hand. And the defensive mistake that gave declarer this chance? It was West's winning the second spade. East should win that trick with his queen and lead a trump. West would take the A-Q and another, and declarer would never enjoy a spade ruff.

YOUR BIRTHDAY
Oct. 23, 1969

Interesting developments are likely to take place regarding your social associations in the year ahead. You may become the focal point of a group where you have previously been merely a spoke in the wheel.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 23) Accept friends for what they are today and not for what you think they might be able to do for you. The pals you count on to help you the most could be the ones who let you down the hardest. Know where to look for romance and you'll find it. The Astro-Graph Matchmaker instantly reveals which signs are romantically perfect for you. Mail 62 to Matchmaker, c/o this newspaper, P.O. Box 91428, Cleveland, OH 44101-3428.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) Two opposing factions will be at odds today where your career is concerned. Fortunately for you the proponents of your cause will be stronger than the forces of your detractors.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 23-Jan.

19) If you're in need of a favor today, don't go to people who have rejected you in the past. On the other hand, it looks like you can count on those who have seen fit to help you previously.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) In your commercial dealings today it looks like you will be able to deal with others in a very effective fashion, but in purely social situations, you might have two left feet.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) Don't let your ego dominate your logical thinking today if you're required to make an important decision. Do the smart thing, even if it doesn't make you look superior in front of others.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Today you might not qualify as the best self-starter among your associates. Someone else may have to prod you a bit to get your motor started, but you won't resent the needed nudge.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) Before you make demands on someone today, be sure you'll be able to reciprocate down the line. Let this person know you're a giver, not just a taker.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) Things aren't likely to run too smoothly today if your mate feels taken for granted. If you want to be respected, you must first show respect yourself.

CANCER (June 21-July 23) Try to avoid negative people today, because you might have considerable self-doubts to deal with yourself. On the other hand, positive thinkers' vibes will be infectious.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 23) You are likely to collect guilt at this time if you squander funds for selfish purposes. If you want to make points, buy something nice for your family instead.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 23) A competitor who has it in for you might try to make you look small in the eyes of others today. If you keep a cool head you can easily take the steam out this person's maneuvers.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Anxieties might creep into your mind today, but at least they won't be concerning material things. The problem that plagues you could be what to do with your surplus.

Bay Area goes back to work

United Press International.

SAN FRANCISCO - A cold, driving rain and stormy seas that turned ferry boats into roller coasters added to the Bay area's misery, but the return to work by thousands of commuters a week after an earthquake went smoother than anticipated.

Monday was the first full workday since the devastating earthquake crippled Bay area transportation Oct. 17, killing at least 62 people, injuring 2,300 and destroying or damaging more than 100,000 homes.

Officials said the commute in one of the nation's most congested metropolitan areas was not the nightmare some had expected as businesses and government offices reopened.

"People did exactly what we asked them to do," said Burch Bachtold, regional director of the California Department of Transportation. He joined other officials in urging commuters to use Bay Area Rapid Transit trains, car pools, ferry boats, trains - anything but cars - and to leave early or stagger travel to dilute rush hour gridlock.

BART trains carried about 40 percent more passengers through the tube beneath San Francisco Bay than on the same day last week, officials said.

Only about 6,000 people rode ferries, many apparently deterred by the stormy weather, which hit with full gale force and winds to 65 mph.

San Francisco Bay was so rough that the boats, some of which had sailed from Los Angeles to help out, could not land at the downtown Ferry Building and the vessels had to chug on to Fishermen's Wharf a couple of miles away where passengers were bused back downtown.

Many companies and government offices closed after the 15-second quake hit, leaving thousands homeless in a nine-county area and causing up to $10 billion damage. Officials said it was among the costliest natural disasters in U.S. history.

Oakland police said 52 people remained unaccounted for since the quake struck at 5:04 p.m. last Tuesday at the height of the afternoon rush hour, measuring 6.9 on the Richter scale. The toll of injured was reduced Monday from more than 3,000 to just over 2,300 when officials removed the names of those with only cuts and scrapes.
