City politics will not open some way or other and it seems that the dengue fever has gotten into the systems of the politicians and taken all the ambition out of them.

F. L. Woodruff is being urged to make the race for mayor, but he has troubles enough as county commissioner and will probably resign his city toga to another.

J. D. Davison is also spoken of as a candidate for the position of alderman and may decide to enter the lists.

There will be several candidates from the A. C. L. according to reports and they will put up a strong fight.

Although opening up slow, politics may yet cause considerable noise. And after the smoke of the city battle has cleared away the county firing will commence and this promises to be something sure enough, as every man and his brother wants a county office.

From time to time I have talked about a city market house, where the farmers could bring in their produce, fruits, etc., and sell them fresh to the people of Sanford realizing a good cash price from same and making the market days a source of revenue to all parties concerned.

Pensacola's first public market day was an unqualified success.

Notwithstanding the rain yesterday morning a large number of farmers were present with wagon loads of vegetables, poultry, eggs, fruit, pickles, preserves and scores of table necessities.

The town people were there also in generous numbers and they found the market a great advantage in point of fresh supplies, variety, to select from, price and other features.

The public market will do much to encourage the farmers back of Pensacola and to develop our soil resources. It will also do much to improve the tables of the people who buy and incidentally to decrease the high cost of living, while at the same time giving the farmer a better price for his product and a bigger market for him to sell in.

Next business morning will again be market day and a larger business should develop on that day. Pensacola should make it a point to patronize the market and to help make it the success that it deserves.

The Money Value Of Health

(By the State Board of Health)

What is the money value of good health by the year?

Is it worth ten cents? The population of Florida by the census of 1910 was something more than seven hundred and fifty thousand, but it was nearly three and a half years ago when that count was made, and tens of thousands have been added since that time.

Florida's State Board of Health spends every year about one hundred thousand dollars in the administration of its duties. This fund is raised by a half-mill tax upon all the accessible property in the state—five cents on every hundred dollars valuation.

It costs therefore ten cents a year for every man, woman and child, white, black, red or yellow to finance the state Board of Health. But, as a matter of fact it is those classes in the community at large which pay the least toward the maintenance of the board's functions that get the largest individual benefit from its work.

What do the people of Florida get for this dime?

To answer the question would be to list all the lines of endeavor in which this great organization is the prime mover, and these are described in detail in the annual reports of the board which are to be had for the asking.

These functions might very well be outlined in two divisions: first, the preservation and safe-guarding of public health; and, second, the restoration of public health when, as in an epidemic, the situation in any section gets beyond the control of local physicians and health authorities.

The history of Florida records disastrous epidemics of yellow fever, started always by importation from Cuba or the West Indian islands. Every Floridian in years not far in the past, breathed a sigh of relief when the fall months arrived without that affliction having visited the state.

Rumors of bubonic plague or of cholera in any part of the world arouse these same health officers to a keen sense of alertness.

Smallpox, like the poor, is always with us somewhere in Florida. It never has been completely wiped out because the people of Florida have refused, or failed to cooperate with the board. Plain talk, but it's true. Always on the alert, the board furnishes vaccine points free for the asking, to any city, town or community and in any quantity. It aids each section to protect itself against any other infected section, and it doesn't use shotgun quarantine, either.

It exercises a general and very close oversight of the existence of communicable diseases in every part of the state, to rid that section of its troubles and to prevent their spread into other parts. A single case of glanders in any part of Florida, reported at the board's headquarters, calls for immediate action and energetic action, because this disease is one that is communicable from animals to human beings, and it is dangerous to both.

For the past two or three years the State Board has been studying how to relieve the people of Florida, particularly the children, of the debilitating effect of hookworm. Its anxiety has not been how to get rid of it, for that is so easy as to be simple, but to discover the cases so as to administer the cure and increase individual efficiency by a thousand per cent. It took a census of the country schools of a certain part of Florida a few months ago, mainly in the rural districts where the children usually go bare-foot.

people through the State Board of Health in a practical way, as already described, for these are only a part.

Nor is the work of the board confined to the health of human beings. It is extended to aid their pocketbooks as well as their physical well-being. Glanders among animals is considered practically incurable, and the state reimburses the owner of any animal which is killed on account of this disease.

Hog cholera is not such a menace, but it brings serious financial loss to the farmer, therefore the free distribution of hog cholera serum is made to the owners of this class of property. It is to be had for the asking and on a reasonable guarantee that it will be used for the purposes intended.

An important feature of the work of the state board is its campaign for education among the people of the state along the lines of sanitation and general information regarding health matters. Not only is the literature issued by the board offered free to any and all, but it is practically forced upon them.

The State Board of Health has established and maintains three splendidly equipped laboratories at Jacksonville, Pensacola and Tampa, for the bacteriological study of diseases. Nothing better than these laboratories show that the board is abreast the times in its methods and that its officers keep in close touch with the advances of the medical world.

These studios of science are manned by workers of the highest ability, and through them every Floridian is or may be in touch with the latest discoveries and the greater benefits of applied medical research. How this is important about may not be apparent at first thought.

Seven days every week these laboratories are open to help the people of Florida, whether they be taxpayers or not. Sunday, however, is reserved for emergency work which demands the promptest attention. And this work is free, free as the air to those who cannot afford to pay for it.

The treatment of indigent crippled children, under the direction of the State Board and through an annual appropriation by the legislature, is one of Florida's greatest benefactions. The collection of records and statistics, an invaluable accompaniment of all scientific work, belongs to the board, and so thorough and efficient has been its record, that the health officer of a neighboring commonwealth is quoted as crediting Florida with being the only southern state with a Board of Health worthy of the name.

Such is a brief outline of the services for which the average citizen of Florida pays ten cents a year—the price of a fairly good cigar, or one admission to a moving picture show, and it is safe to say that every man, woman or child goes to a picture show at least once a year. Is it worth the price?

News was received in the city this morning of the death of Mrs. M. L. Allen at Rutland, Vermont, where she had gone in an effort to regain her health. For some time she had been suffering with indigestion and medical aid seemed powerless to effect a cure.

It is hoped Harry Brown will open up the craniums of a few Florida editors during the Cost Congress at Ocala and infect a little gray matter into their brains that will teach them how to estimate on the cost of even so small a job as the printing of fifty calling cards.

When the grasshopper ceases to hop and the old cow quits her bawling; when the fishes no longer flop and the baby stops its squawking when the dunce no longer stum—and the hoot dwi quits its hooting; when the rivers cease to run and the burglar stops his looting; when the vine no longer runs and the skylark stops its larking; when the sun no longer shines and the young man quits his sparking; when the heavens begin to drop and the old maids stop advising, then it is time to shut up shop and quit your advertising.

With the early arrest today of the Rev. Hans Schmidt, assistant rector of St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, with the murder of Anna Amuller, a domestic, a mystery surrounding the finding of parts of the dismembered body of a girl in the Hudson river was solved.

Some people are so fond of hearing themselves talk that they don't know the difference between a conversation and a monologue.

Some people believe in doing only one thing at a time—and then do the wrong thing.

TRAVELS IN EUROPE BELGIUM AND BRUSSELS

By DR. E. D. BROWNLEE

Amsterdam, Sept. 4, 1913.

I arrived in Brussels at 40 minutes after fourteen o'clock. My watch refused to follow the Belgium custom of numbering the hours of the day from 1 to 24. I had difficulty getting an hotel. My first preference was full, and my next preference, upon a trial of one night, proved unsatisfactory and I started out to find again. The third hotel tried after this had one room vacant, and as that was all I needed at one time, I took it. It was the Grand Hotel Cosmopolite, convenient to the station and for sight seeing. We had three dining rooms in the hotel and a large cafe on the street. The inside dining room seated 160, 200 and 250 respectively at one sitting. The hotel must serve at least 2,500 or 3,000 regular meals per day, besides thousands who drop in for coffee, tea or wine. It was a marvel to me how the waiters held up at the rushing pace they kept up at all hours from 7 a. m. until 2:30 o'clock.

one of the most frequented places in the city. It is the custom in Belgium, as in France, for cafes to put seats on the sidewalks and serve drinks to patrons there. They often take up the whole walk and force passers by to pass in the middle of the street. Each night, these cafes present a lively scene with the thousand of people who flock to them. You know all the continental people are great drinkers of beers and wines. I was amused at my rejected hotel in Brussels, where the waiter informed me that beer was free with my dinner, but that water would cost me 50 centimes (10 cents). That is where my prohibition proclivities cost me. They do not seem to understand how any man can eat a meal without beer or wine.

Brussels is the capital of Belgium and has about 700,000 inhabitants, most of whom are Walloons. French is the prevailing language. There are nearly 2,000 English residents in the city.

Tradition ascribes the foundation of Brussels to St. Gery, Bishop of Cambrai in the 6th century. In the chronicles of Otto the Great in the 10th century, it is mentioned under the name of Bruscella (Broeksele, dwelling on the marsh).

The city has had a checkered history, being at different seasons the abode of despoils and loyal patriots. Many of its streets and places are immortal because of their place in the history of the past thousand years.

The greatest show place of the city is the church of St. Gudule. It is a Gothic building, consisting of nave and aisles. It was begun in the year 1220 on the site of the old church, St. Michael, which was dedicated in 1047. The present church was not finally finished until 1861. Its most famous windows are four, painted between 1540-47 and presented to the church by four of the most powerful Roman Catholics potentates of Europe. They were given in honor of a certain wonder working host. A legend records that in 1370 the Jews stole some consecrated bread from St. Catherine church and religiously transfixed it in their synagogues, whereupon it bled and so frightened them that they returned it to the Christians. The church is rather plain on the interior, but the decorations on the exterior are fine. The building is 354 ft long and 164 ft wide and 228 ft high.

The most magnificent structure in the city is the Palace of Justice. It was begun in 1866 and cost 44,000,000 francs, about $9,000,000. It is the grandest building erected in the 19th century and is the most remarkable. The area of the building is 270,000 sq. ft. It has 27 large court rooms, besides 245 apartments for judges, officials, etc., and has 8 large open courts. One of the rooms in which clients consult their attorneys has an area of 1,300 sq. yds. or 200 ft. each way, and the ceiling is 420 ft. high. It is one of the most wonderful buildings I ever saw. And its location on a hill overlooking the city adds to its appearance.

The Palace of the King is another one of the interesting sights of the city. I went over with friendly intentions of calling upon King Leopold, but found his palace protected by a company of Belgium soldiers who eyed me suspiciously as a possible anarchist, and because of the King's loss of time becomes I did not permit myself to see the king. He was not in the city, though, anyway. Wouldn't it be trisome to be a king, to be guarded and watched by great crowds of soldiers, more beset than our convicts. It is fine to be just a plain citizen of America and come and go at will, and feel superior to a king of a petty state and pity him.

Every one goes to the Palais des Beaux Arts in Brussels. I did not like their pictures as well as those of Antwerp, but there was a wonderful sculpture of some of these marble figures seemed alive, surely the artists live in them and breathe their life through them.

I visited the University of Brussels. It is a Protestant University with 100 professors and 1,000 students. It may be interesting to notice the educational system of Belgium briefly. They have a primary school with a six year course. Then the student at the age of 12 or 13 enters what they term a college, which has a course six years long. This corresponds to our high school. Then if the education is to be pursued further, enters a university. This course in the Humanities or Philosophy, occupies 6 years. The course in medicine is 7 years, three of which are spent in a hospital getting experience. A dentist takes the medical course and then specializes in dentistry, as our physicians specialize in eye, etc. The course for their Veterinarian is more severe than that of the physician to the human body and their house doctors make fine money. It is necessary to attend some university three years before one can be a notary public here. The average amount spent by students at the university is $100 per year. This is an old school founded in 1519, in opposition to a Roman Catholic University at Louvain, Belgium.

They do not have compulsory education here, but use moral compulsion to make a man send his children through the primary school. If he does not send them his name is placed on the public bulletin boards and published abroad as a man who will not send his children to school. This usually has the desired result.

It was my privilege to attend a Scotch Presbyterian church on the Sabbath and sing in English and hear a sermon in English. There were many tourists like myself present. I was interested in looking over their visitors' book to find the names of many southerners and quite a number of our ministers who had worshipped here in the past year.

My time is up and I have not had time to mention the Hotel de ville, or city hall, and their historic guild houses, the Manikin Fountain, the monuments to heroes with their interesting history, or the Bois de Cambrie. But this does not propose to be more than a few impressions of the many things seen.

Brussels is an interesting city, much like Paris in many ways. Its French is so pure, that many desiring to learn French come here to study it, rather than in Paris. I did not find things very cheap anywhere in Belgium.

MARION COUNTY REMAINS WET

Prohibs Lose Out in Fight to Dry the County of Marion

Ocala, Fla., Sept. 16. With all but five precincts heard from the county is wet by probably one hundred majority. It is the opinion of many here that the tide was changed from a safe majority for prohibition during the past few days to a victory for the wets, as shown in today's election.

This change was brought about by a "hand-bill war" between the opposing sides, in which it was made to appear that some unfair work was done by the wets to incite votes for that cause. Some of this work was exposed by a leader of the wet faction and resulted in a change of feeling on the part of many, it is said.

The warfare carried on was bitter and abusive and of its peculiar kind has probably never been surpassed. The printing presses were kept busy and automobiles were kept ready to distribute the circulars to the furthestmost parts of the county on short notice.

It looked at times as if personal difficulties would be unavoidable and, in fact, one or two fistfights resulted, but nothing of any serious consequence.

The petition calling the election was signed by about eight hundred voters and there are only twenty-one hundred voters in the county.

Plenty of Grandfathers. Little Helen's father had been looking up his genealogical tree, and frequently spends his leisure evenings poring over papers from the various historical societies relative to the matter. One day while Helen was playing with her little friends, a childish dispute arose as to which was the best looking Helen almost in tears blurted out "Well Alice may be the prettiest and Dorothy has the nicest dress, but I have sheets of grandfathers all right." Sickroom Screen. A screen in the sickroom is almost indispensable. It is needed to keep light from the patient's eyes, to guard the bed from drafts or shut out the sight of medicine bottles and so forth. An excellent sanitary screen is made by tacking white olefin on to a frame, then painting on in oil a pretty scene as birds or butterflies. These screens can be washed as often as necessary. What Shall I Give Her? If funds are low and a wedding present is a necessity to a friend, make her a "memory" book—or books—covering stiff backed blank books with white satin or pretty silk. Inside have the titles indexed—books business addresses, Christmas list, garden lists, invitations, new dishes. A companion book can be made and filled with an tried recipes from friends. Ready for Reception. Annoyed by a notice that the local sanitary committee were going to inspect his cowhouse, a Dorset (King Land) farmer spread linoleum over the floor of the building, displayed hearth rugs in convenient positions, hung the walls with pictures and a mirror, and installed a harmonium. When the committee arrived he gravely invited them to wipe their feet on the door mat before entering. Quite Naturally. A funny mistake occurred lately in printing labels for a meat-preserving company. The printer had been in the habit of labeling tins of beef or mutton, as the case might be, with the words "without bones" prominently displayed. The company having added kidney soup to its list, the new article was duly ticketed as "Kidney soup—without bones." So Careless. Two little girls had a bird given to them, and were very anxious to see it bathe. On seeing it get into the water for the first time, the three-year-old child exclaimed: "Why, I declare! It isn't getting right in the water with all its feathers on!" Why Clerks Go Insane. Aunt Mandy (to the clerk of the general store)—"You all aint got no fo'-cent calico, is you—or is you? Ef you is, is you all got some jes' cheap cheapah?"—Woman's Home Companion. Legal Notice. Keep your own counsel and you'll never need a lawyer.

Don't Have Roaches In Your Home They crawl through sewers and drains and then over dishes and tables and water dishes germs and a filthy poisonous odor. Don't use a paste for killing roaches. Roaches travel through it trail it about your house on their wings and legs, and the least speck of poisonous paste will kill a person. Many persons die in this way and its never known what killed them. You do know that if a chicken eats an insect that has been killed with a paste, it is a dead chicken, and if a dog eats the chicken it is a dead dog, and if a buzzard eats the dog it is a dead buzzard. Ashe's Roach Pepper Contains no poison and has no odor, and one application will rid any home of all roaches, cats, bedbugs and other insects. 25c a Box at All Drugstores.

ONE HUNDRED THOUSAND CAR LOADS

Of Farm Products wasted and rotted in the fields last year, and yet people actually starving--- what is wrong?

Lack of PROPER Distributing and Marketing Facilities.

One individual grower or farmer has no idea, after he grows his crop, where the best market, or any market at all, is that will take it---how can he know it? To remedy these Evils, and to turn Waste into Profit, and bring order out of Chaos, only one means has yet been devised, and that is CO-OPERATION. The salesman at the head of your Organization has his eye focused on every section of the United States and in Canada, and his finger in every market. It only costs a few pennies a box per individual. THE FLORIDA CITRUS EXCHANGE could have sold FOUR TIMES the amount of fruit it handled last season, at a greater Profit and at a less Cost. ### They are Working This Ice

Man of Yours Mighty Hard Now

The popularity of OUR ICE was never more in evidence than right now in this heated term. This has put the hardest kind of strain upon our delivery service, when the heat retards swift movement and weather conditions make the public more impatient than usual.

We ask your help in our effort to give the people the greatest boon that comes to them at this season of the year.

You can do this by not delaying our wagon at your door. Be ready to take the ice, ready with the coupon or the change, and please do not let the driver tarry after he has made the delivery.

As a result of your thoughtfulness, relief may come quicker to some one on a couch of pain farther down the street, who has been counting the minutes against the coming of the wagon. At any rate, help us and you will certainly be helping humanity.

HUMAN NATURE

Being A Treatise On The Follies And Foibles Of Mankind In Sanford

By R. J. HOLLY

Have you had the dengue fever? Joe DeMont calls it the damyou fever. Joe is the only professor of polyglot language that we have in Sanford and for once he has struck the right pronunciation.

That is just the way you feel about it especially when you are having it. You feel like using Joe's pronunciation every time you move. A good case of dengue will make a rabbit spit in a lions face, make a pessimist out of an optimist and a miser out of a good natured fellow.

It's a good leveler of persons and one feels so badly they don't care what happens to them. I used to ride in an auto but do not care for autos now and prefer to ride in Charlie Dingee's wagon the dengue having made me that democratic. I was skeptical about the dengue fever, having had it once for three weeks and I pooh-pooed the idea of the light attacks they were having here, but believe me for a light attack it is a thorough one and fully satisfying.

It crept upon me one night as I lay alone. If my wife had been here I would have sneaked out on the other side of the bed; I always believe in ladies first. Before I knew anything more I was a human thermos bottle, twelve hours hot and twelve hours cold. A herd of elephants romped on me and did their work so well that every bone in my body ached like the toothache. Pink and green monkeys tried to yank me out of the bed and I was alternately digging the Panama Canal with an overcoat on and discovering the North Pole with no clothes on.

About daylight I awoke trying to discover what part of the San Francisco earthquake I was in and every time I moved my bones would move apart and I felt very much like a rusty wagon that needs oil.

Rolling out of bed literally and managing to get dressed and down stairs I rested all day trying to find out whether it was the regular form of dying or a new fangled notion that did not require the services of Frank Miller. The latter part of the first day fooled me for the ill effects passed away but a general eruption broke out all over the body and made me look like a scarlet fever patient. Some of my kind hearted friends said I would be all right now since it had broken out.

Going to bed that night with the secure feeling that the dengue was such a little thing I was rudely awakened by the same performance of the preceding night; only it was a three ring circus this time and the elephants did their turn much better.

I stayed right with the big show until morning and the same aches and despondent feelings came over me but deciding if I had to die it was much better to do it gracefully in the heart of the city I came down to the office. My face was a sight and every one told me to go home and get in bed. This was comforting because bed was a place that did not look good to me but I turned in and fought the same animals again for two days and nights.

It is gradually leaving me and having nothing more to work on I am just as near the down and out stage as possible and still be on the job.

When I see another fellow weakly tacking up the street now, hollow checked and wasted I take him by the right hand and shake it three times and the same instant giving him the talismanic sign of the Dengue Dope and he immediately recognizes a brother who has been all along there and feebly returns the signal.

Our only joy in living at present is the thought that we have had ours and the other fellow has his coming.

Druggist Gives Money Back

When an article is sold a druggist who is willing to give it his personal guarantee, it's a mighty strong proof of real merit.

That's exactly the case with Dodson's Liver Tone. It is a pleasant tasting, vegetable remedy for a slow and sluggish liver. Since Dodson's Liver Tone came on the market the sale of calomel has gone "way down." The reason is simply this: Dodson's Liver Tone is safe and harmless and guaranteed to be satisfactory--calomel is often uncertain, sometimes dangerous, and no druggist wants to guarantee that it won't knock you out of a day's work and may be send you to bed.

L. R. Phillips & Co. sell Dodson's Liver Tone and guarantees it. For you and your children, it's a good thing to keep a bottle always in the house.

L. R. Phillips & Co. will give you your money back if you think Dodson's Liver Tone is not worth the price. "Keep your liver working and your liver will not keep you from working." is good advice to go by.

THE 1914 OVERLAND is the Most Wonderful Car of the New Season. And the Price is Reduced Again.

The motor is more powerful; the wheelbase is longer; the tonneau is larger; the equipment is more complete, better and costlier than ever. In every respect Overland value has been increased while the price has been decreased.

The manufacturers have turned their enormous facilities over to the building of this one model. In no other way could such value be secured.

The production has been increased to 50,000 cars. There is an even stricter practice of the well-known Overland manufacturing economics. And this means a greater car at less cost to you.

So finely drawn is the big 1914 Overland production plan, that 50,000 cars will be built; 10,000 men will be kept busy all the year round; every wheel of the $4,000,000 worth of most modern machinery kept in constant operation, and never a moments hesitation permitted in a plant that covers more than 100 acres of ground.

This is the way the Overland makes possible a $1200 value for $950.

Their great business is built on established standardized quality.

System is the watchword in the Overland factories and you get the benefit.

We have the new Model 79 Overlands on our sales-room floor. We urge you to see this new model at once. Ride in the car; feel what a difference the big 114 inch wheelbase makes; note the car's entirely changed appearance. It is neater, prettier than ever---and that means the handsomest car of the year.

The long wheelbase gives increased riding comfort.

The improved Overland motor is rated at 35 horsepower---plenty of power to give satisfying comfort and speed. Inspect the many motor refinements which make the power plant more flexible and accessible.

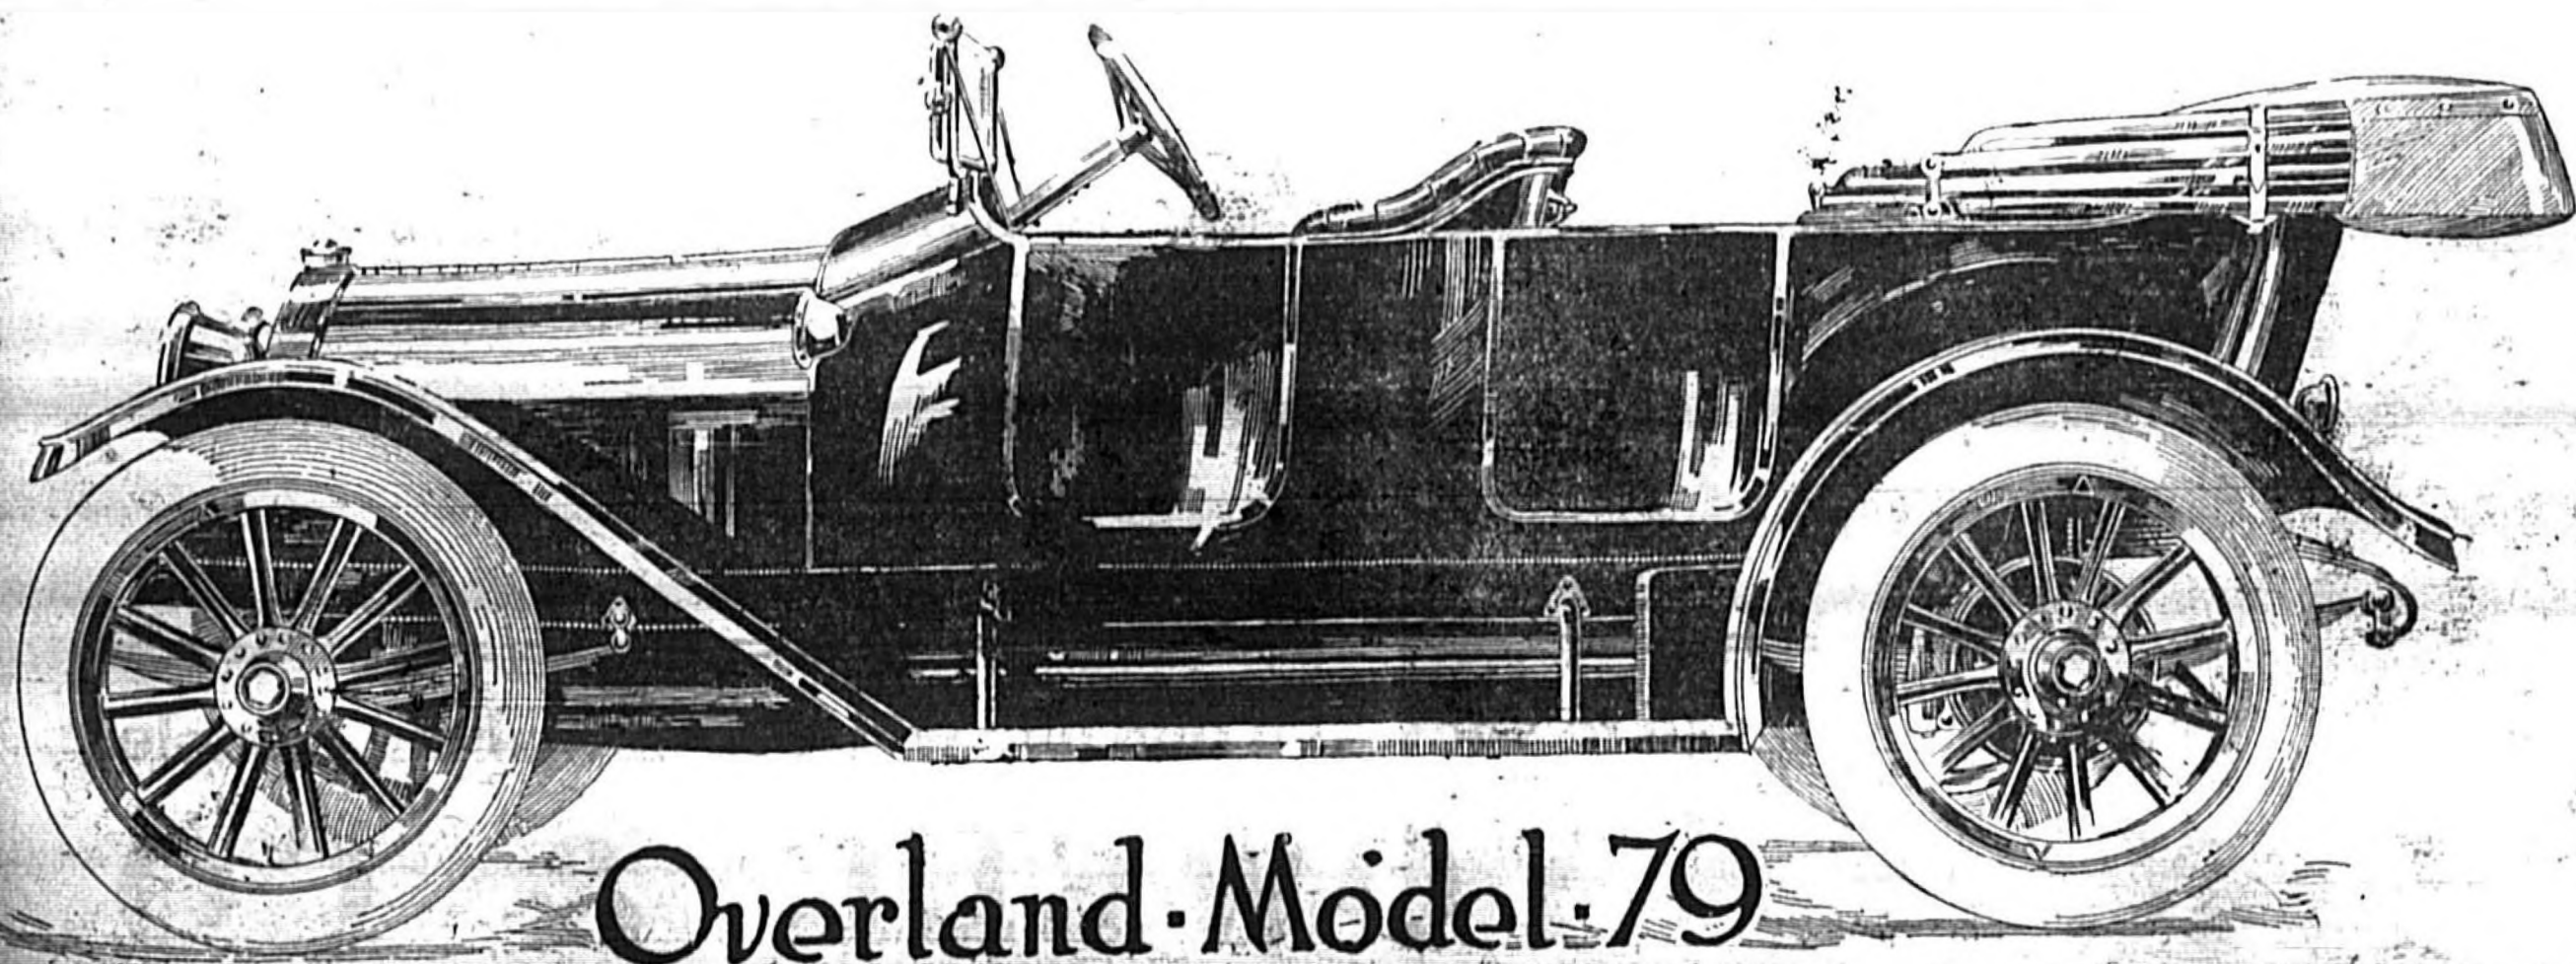

You'll find a most efficient and reliable electric lighting system on the new Overland. This costly addition to equipment is worthy of a $1500 car.

The new Overland body has a handsome finish---beautiful rich, dark Brewster green. The trimmings are of heavy nickel and aluminum. And the big graceful cowl dash gives to the car an appearance of dignity vainly sought in many other cars of higher price.

Examine the spacious tonneau; note the big, soft, deep and luxurious folds of upholstery. The new Overland is bigger and better; we can show you point for point where it is the best your money can buy.

You can see it today.

ALIVE AND KICKING

Jabez Thorpe's Manipulation of Real Affection for the Deserving One.

By VICTOR REDCLIFFE.

"One foot in the grave and the other on a banana peel—that's Jabez Thorpe, to my way of thinking."

"Exactly my opinion. A man of his age crossing the ocean! Never was a hundred miles away from his own hearthstone before. It's a terrible risk he is taking!"

Thus the gossiping neighbors of the reputed wealthy proprietor of Thorpe Farm. It was an echo of the current chatter of the village. When hard-fisted, miserly old Jabez Thorpe announced that he was going to England to settle the estate of a distant relative, it had been a nine days' wonder. It had been reported that the interest of old Jabez in the estate was uncertain. He was a fighter, however, and strenuously declared that he was going to see it that he got his rights.

Thorpe Farm was not the pleasant place in the world. It had a pretty fair house on it, but poorly furnished. As Thorpe grew older he had enclosed three acres near the house, and rented out the rest of his land.

Ten years previous he had adopted the child of a second cousin, Nellie Thorpe. She had grown into his life more of a comfort, guide and support than he realized. It was when he came to give up to Nellie the entire charge of his business during his absence, that he began to understand how much he depended on her. If Nellie felt that he was loading down upon her a vast responsibility, she reflected upon the gratitude she owed him. Jabez Thorpe had given her a shelter when she was homeless, and she took up her new duties seriously, but with her bright little heart full of confidence and cheer.

"It is not so hard as I fancied," Nellie wrote to Evan Pearson, her lover, who was filling a clerkship in another town. "A sister of the man who rents the west farm is seeking to restore her broken health through sunshine, garden work and good food. She helps me with the milking and chickens daytimes, and stays at the lonely old homestead nights. Uncle Jabez does not know that I am keeping right on with my little business. I want to prove to him what a busy housekeeper I am when he returns. Besides that, I must fit myself for our own home—long, long ahead, dear, but sure to come if you long for it as I do."

Nellie's "business" was selling milk and eggs. Her exacting relative had cut her down to a minimum as to household expenses, but the economical little housekeeper had managed to save something even out of that. As to the eggs and milk, at the end of a month, Nellie's bookkeeping showed such splendid results that she worked with added pleasure and interest.

Then there was an interruption—sad, sudden and overwhelming. The steamer in which Abner Thorpe had sailed on his homeward trip was reported lost off the Canada coast. Only a few of the passengers had been saved. The name of Jabez Thorpe was not among the list. A week later it was generally accepted in the village that he had met a watery fate. Nellie went to his lawyer, who was a sensible, kind-hearted old man. He told Nellie to remain right at her post of duty. So far as he knew, no will had been left. This being true, the nearest of kin would inherit. Nellie was not in that list, but he encouraged her to believe that the heirs would make some provision for her.

And then, much to the discomfort of Nellie, the heirs apparent began to arrive. There was the relict of a brother of Jabez Thorpe, in-waids, and always snuffing and plying herself. There was a fantastic, fussy old maid cousin who entertained great hopes because Jabez Thorpe had once sent her a birthday gift. There was a callow youth studying for the bar, who claimed near relationship, and a vast deal of knowledge as to the legal phases of the estate. There was a shiftless youth, besides, and all these planted themselves about the premises. For two days Nellie welcomed them. Then she thought the situation all over. She went modestly but firmly before them one morning.

"I have only the directions of the lawyer, Mr. Randall," she said, "as to being in charge here, but he has told me to go right on doing my duty in Mr. Thorpe's interests until the estate is settled. Mr. Thorpe left me only enough money to cover the regular expenses, and I fear I cannot afford to entertain so much company."

Thereupon the lazy young man growled out something about nigardly treatment, the lady in mourning flounced out of the room in hysterics, and the fussy old maid flared up like an offended pussy cat. The young legal sprig walked out on his dignity. There was no dinner that day.

The tribe thereafter got their meals at the village hotel. They by no means deserted the old homestead, however. There was too much envy and suspicion among them for that. They watched one another as though afraid that some one was going to carry off the estate—house, farm and all.

Never would the faithful, persevering Nellie forget one bright afternoon as she went about the house attending to her manifold duties. The young limb of the law was smoking a pipe in the sitting room, the other male watcher of the slow development of the estate was asleep with his feet on the table. In the parlor the snuffing relict and the fussy old maid were chattering away like magpies, when Nellie heard a roar.

"She dropped the plate she was washing, and it was smashed to smithereens at her feet. Then with a scream of delight she darted into the sitting room, gave one glance at a sturdy, wrathful figure filling the doorway, and bounded straight into the arms of Jabez Thorpe.

"Oh, uncle! uncle!" she cried. "I am so glad—so glad!"

"Yes, and the only one who is," replied the old man, as he placed a sheltering arm about her. "You young sprig of insolence!" he shouted at the astonished smoker, "out of here with that vile pipe of yours! Here, wake up and march!" he added, pulling the sleeper from his chair. "As to you, ladies," he sang out to the occupants of the parlor, "I've heard in the village of how you've all socked here like a set of crows after a carcass. Well, old Jabez is alive and kicking, after all. And before the day is over he's going to have you the expense and trouble of coming to any more funerals by leaving what he's got, when it's ready to leave, to the only one among the crowd of you who is worth two pence—and that's Nellie."

It was after the dejected, disappointed mob of fortune seekers had left that Nellie proudly exhibited her bookkeeping. It ended by the old man manifesting real affection for his loyal and faithful housekeeper in the words:

"You have proved what you are, dear child—true and good, with a heart of gold. We will have Evan Pearson down here Saturday evening, and make a new deal all around."

Mr. and Mrs. McGuin Entertain One of the most delightful events of an exceedingly pleasant season at Demorest, Ga., was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. A. V. McGuin on the evening of Sept. 18th at their attractive new summer home, "Hillhurst."

was thrown ensuite on this pleasant occasion, displaying most effectively the handsome woodwork of early pine and the artistic furnishings throughout. A profusion of potted plants and cut flowers adorned the rooms, forming a vivid background for the many lovely guests.

The host and hostess received their guests in the pretty reception room. Mrs. McGuin was most becomingly gowned in a white embroidered robe. At the dining table centered with a handsome cloth was the punch bowl and during the evening the delicious beverage with cake was served. Mrs. Carrie Blaine Yeiser of Jacksonville, Fla., and Mrs. John Winslow presiding. A table of dainty confection made an attractive spot, arranged in a cosy alcove beneath white draperies. Miss Eva McClure dispensed sweets at this table.

He's a Sanford Boy

The following is from the Tallahassee True Democrat of Friday last: "Paul Shannon Appleyard, the bright fifteen year old son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Appleyard, left Tuesday morning for Atlanta for Sweetwater, Tenn., to enter his second year at the famous Tennessee military institute. Paul achieved decided honors his first year, as all Tallahassee boys do, and promises to do even better this year. He expects to make a try for the football team."

We have no objection to Bro. Smith claiming some things, but Paul was born in Sanford, while his father and mother lived here at the time. We shall insist on claiming this "kid" as a Sanford product. The Herald is informed that the youngster is way up for a boy of fifteen. It is the intention of his parents, after Paul's graduation at Sweetwater some two years hence, to send him to Georgia Tech. to read and major in electrical engineering, as to be a natural mechanical point and then to the School of Mining at Boulder, Colo., so that he will occupy the top round of the ladder in his chosen profession of engineering.

Noted Convict Escapes

J. F. Cooper, who was serving a life sentence for the murder of Marshal J. H. Bowman of Punta Gorda, Fla., in 1904, has escaped from the camp of the DeLeon Naval Station, Campagna, near DeLand, and has not yet been recaptured.

Cooper was convicted and sentenced to be hanged. He repeatedly obtained stay of execution and remained in jail at Arcadia for about five years. Two governors having passed his case without final disposition of it, Governor Gilchrist, when he came into office, commuted the sentence to life imprisonment.

He had become a trusty, so it is understood, such successful in making his escape. The convict offers of $100 reward for his capture and send out a description as follows: "State prisoner No. 5465. Male 5 feet six inches tall; weight 155 pounds, stocky build; black hair tinged with gray; light blue eyes; medium forehead; small pointed nose; medium mouth, bad teeth, front teeth small; medium chin, neck and shoulders; length of feet 10 inches. Peculiarities: Very hairy over back and hips go straight down. Scars: mole outside right hip; scar right side of forehead; long scar left side of forehead.

"Born in Lake county, Fla., and sentenced from Desoto county for murder, February 12, 1909."—Tampa Times.

Engineer Bryan Higgins Killed In a Collision

Passenger Train Has Head-On Collision Near Beresford

Popular Young Engineer Was the Son of Superintendent Higgins of the Atlantic Coast Line

Bryan Higgins, engineer running on 83 was killed in a head on collision with an extra freight engine at Beresford curve last night about 1:30. Train 83 southbound from Jacksonville to Tampa with Bryan Higgins at the throttle and Conductor Barden in charge was to pass extra going north with Conductor Hutto and Engineer Norwood at the junction near Beresford. Waiting the allotted time and not seeing the extra engine the passenger train pulled out and proceeding around the curve near Beresford met the extra engine full head on. The passenger engine turned over on the side. Engineer Bryan Higgins was caught under the engine and other wreckage and his body was not recovered until about seven o'clock this morning.

The negro firemen on both trains were seriously injured and were brought to this city this morning. Engineer Bryan Higgins is the son of Supt. Higgins of the A. C. L. and passed his early boyhood here, having grown up in the railroad business taking up the work of the freight department first and afterward becoming a fireman and then engineer. He was taking the place of Engineer Wm. Shadle last night when the accident occurred that cut off his young life.

The sudden nature of the sudden death of this popular young man is the leaving of his young wife and baby, the wife having just lost her mother last week. Mrs. Kate Butt, whose death occurred in Atlanta.

The sympathy of the whole city goes out to the young wife, to the father and mother, sisters and brothers of the deceased whose legion of friends were shocked to learn of his death.

No arrangements have been made for the funeral, but it will probably occur tomorrow afternoon from the Catholic church.

Later: Funeral services tomorrow morning at 10:30 o'clock at the Catholic church.

Bachelors Can't Smile

The Orlando Citizen, Sept. 18th, which the late editor of the Citizen, V. E. C. Walton, is part owner, says that three Orlando bachelors have taken their lives since spring and not a single one of them has done anything more. The cumulative evidence that it is not possible for a man to live alone. Better profit before it is too late, young man. Good advice, but maybe the poor fellows were moved by patriotic influences that of sacrificing themselves for the purpose of starting a graveyard where the people are so healthy they never die. Strange, however, that even an old bachelor would want to kill himself in the garden spot of the world, where every prospect pleases. Something certainly is wrong. —Richmond (Ky.) Climax.

Death of Mrs. Rossetter

The visit of the angel of death to any household is said to be a most unfortunate event. In the case of Mrs. Rossetter, the angel of life has just departed and left a young cherub, when death occurs and leaves two small children the bereavement is made doubly severe to the husband and the family. The sudden announcement of the death of Sadie Sykes Rossetter yesterday morning cast a gloom over the entire city and brought tears to the eyes of a legion of friends who knew Mrs. Rossetter in life. Only a week ago a beautiful baby had come to brighten the home of Mr. and

Mrs. Rossetter, and keep company with little Harnet, two years of age. An attack of diphtheria, insidious in approach attacked the mother, and in her weakened condition could not be combated and death resulted in a few days.

The funeral services occurred at the home on Celery avenue yesterday afternoon at two o'clock, the great outpouring of mourners attesting to the love and esteem in which Mrs. Rossetter was held. Rev. J. P. McKinnon officiated. Interment was made in Lakewood cemetery.

A loving husband, two little girls, sister, Mrs. B. A. Howard and brother, Roy Symes and mother all of Sanford are left to mourn her untimely end.

Mrs. Rossetter was a native of Michigan, coming here several years ago with her parents, as Mr. Symes came annually for his health.

She was of an affectionate disposition, kind and winning in her ways, so that her family circle was to her a large one. Indeed, it may be said of her that "none knew her but to love her."

Only a few years ago she was married to Kent Rossetter of this city, whom she loved with two small children to mourn her loss.

Mrs. Rossetter's sorrows were of but brief duration, little over a week, so much with us today, so that in life she had duty and love, and some happiness.

When she came as a writer yet, her own papers and helped to establish a newspaper of her own; her pen may have written her battles fought, her faithful work rendered to the world. In the quiet of all places to help her to get to sleep and rest. Her friends and acquaintances such a resting place where her friends remain to gather about the death of her young wife and baby, her husband's her own children, her home with her.

After the struggle and the death of her dear wife and the death of her own child, she still remained in the world, but she could not find the strength to live. She died in the morning, and her body was buried in the cemetery. Her death was a great loss to the community.

Tampa, however, is growing every day and the banks have to work overtime to keep up with the amount of business offered. The new concern is to be the Tampa Savings and Trust Company and it is said that it will be capitalized at $500,000. A new and handsome bank building will be erected on Franklin street, near Twig street. Tampa, and the Savings and Trust Company will have excellent and commodious quarters. Mammoth Water Tank For Our Water Supply

Will Give City Excellent Water Pressure at all Times

Sanford Will Soon Have One of the Finest and Most Complete Water Systems

Sanford will soon have one of the best and most complete water plants in the south. Foreman Parsons of the Chicago Bridge & Iron Works and a large force of men are busy at the plant of the Sanford Light & Fuel Co., erecting a mammoth tower that will hold the tank for the water supply of Sanford. The tank that will be placed on the tower will hold 60,000 gallons of water. The water will be pumped into it from a large reservoir holding 40,000 gallons of water. This will be aerated before being raised into the tank and all traces of sulphur eliminated, making a pure, soft water for drinking and domestic purposes.

The immense tower now being constructed will be 92 feet in height and beyond this the tank will rise 22 feet, making a very imposing structure. The tower rests upon a solid concrete foundation, all reinforced and strengthened. The water system when finished will have an average pressure of 14 pounds.

Two new triple plungers driven by H. P. pumps will also be installed that will pump 1,000 gallons per hour each against a pressure of 14 pounds and with the tank as a standing pressure Sanford will not only have a low service for ordinary use, but in case of fire the water will be well protected.

The water supply commission at the first of November, and other improvements are contemplated that will give Sanford one of the best and most complete water systems in the state. The lake that will hold the water for the city, that will be a fine sight to the people of the city and the state.

Fletcher Buys Home

Dr. F. C. Fletcher, proprietor of the Seminole Pharmacy, has faith in the future of Sanford and likes his adopted home so well that he has purchased the elegant Fletcher residence on Sanford Heights and will reside there in the future. His family and household goods have arrived and Dr. Fletcher can now call Sanford his home. He has been living in many Florida cities but thinks that Sanford is the coming city of the state, hence his investments here in business and a home.

Off to Tallahassee

Misses Nellie Elder, Margaret Wight, Laura Lee and Kate Underwood left last night for Tallahassee, where they will resume their studies at the Woman's College. Lillian Higgins was to have gone with them but illness prevented her going, but she will follow later. Sanford is well represented at Tallahassee by Sanford girls and they have the reputation of being the prettiest and brightest girls in the school.

Marshal Brown Here

Hon. J. C. Brown lately appointed U. S. Marshal for the Southern District of Florida was in the city yesterday receiving the congratulations of his many Sanford friends. Mr. Brown was an enthusiastic Wilson man and very optimistic over the chances of democracy to reign at Washington for many years to come. He says the impression everywhere is that President Wilson is making pledges good and that he is doing everything to carry out the platform adopted at Baltimore.

Mr. Brown is a railway locomotive engineer and a power in the councils of organized labor. He made an enviable reputation in the legislature recently assembled at Tallahassee by his fight for the people. He had full charge of the celebrated Bryan primary law and steered it through the legislature after a stubborn fight and was presented by Governor Trammell with the pen which the latter used to sign the bill as a token of esteem.

When asked about the coming senatorial race Mr. Brown declared that in his opinion Duncan E. Fletcher the present United States senator who is considered one of the brightest men in congress occupying most important positions on committees and who is a national figure would be overwhelmingly chosen for a second term in the primaries.

Mr. Brown was one of the twenty-two candidates for the United States marshalship and is justly proud of the honor bestowed upon him. He had the endorsement of both of the United States senators from this state and was appointed by the President last week.

Persons Favors Market

That a central market is the only solution of handling meats and produce in a thoroughly sanitary manner is the opinion of Dr. W. C. Persons, the city physician, who some time ago recommended to council the advisability of establishing such a market.

While no location has been chosen for the matter has not gone that far, a tentative selection has been made on West Pine street. "It would be better to have the market on this side of the railroad," said Dr. Persons yesterday, "but no location has been suggested which is better suited to the purposes than that on West Pine."

Dr. Persons said he didn't expect these present council to do anything with the proposition, for the reason that the aldermanic system of government was soon to be succeeded by the commission form and he recognized the tendency of the kind for their successors in office.

Dr. Persons concluded by saying that it was the only way to handle the market matter so that flies could be done away with. The entire market could be screened and all the perishables offered would be kept within this limited space, and in this way the fly pest could soon be exterminated.—Orlando Sentinel.

Shot From Ambush

Pensacola, Fla., Sept. 21. Thomas Morrel, a Washington county farmer was shot from ambush yesterday afternoon as he was enroute to his home at Holmes Valley.

Two negro turpentine hackers working half a mile away, heard the shots but paid no attention. When they quit work at dark they found the body, riddled with buckshot on the side of the road. Three white men and a negro are held on suspicion.

The city assessment rolls have been completed and show the valuation of city property, personal and real, based on a one-third valuation, to be $1,281,104. The millage was fixed at twenty-seven, which would mean that if the actual value of property was assessed, the millage would only be nine on the dollar.
