New trials for convicted robber

MIAMI — James Cannady hasn't let a sentence of 1,698 years in prison stop him from working the court system. Cannady, convicted in a series of armed robberies, was granted new trials by an appeals court that ruled he should have been tried separately for each hold-up.

Girl injured by truck dies

SANFORD — A 3-year-old girl, injured Sunday when her father apparently backed a truck over her in their driveway, died late Wednesday afternoon in an Orlando hospital.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett said today Tiffany Tauscher, 308 Laurel Court in Hidden Lake, died at the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Women and Children from head and internal injuries.

Tiffany was injured when her father, James Tauscher, 27, stopped an unattended, rolling truck in his driveway, police said. After stopping the truck, Tauscher reportedly backed it up the driveway. At that time, police believe Tiffany was run over. Police believe she had been knocked from her bicycle when the truck first rolled out of control. Harriett said the investigation continues and the death appears to have been accidental. As of this morning, police have not filed charges against Tauscher in connection with the incident.

Kelley trial date scheduled

SANFORD — Trial has been set for April 23 for Seminole County Commissioner Jennifer Kelley and her former husband and campaign manager Eoghan Kelley.

The Kelleys face a total of 115 charges filed in October by the State Attorney's Office, alleging they violated state campaign financing laws during Jennifer Kelley's bid for the District 5 county commission seat.

The trial had originally been set for a December hearing, but all Seminole County judges declined to hear the case and the matter was assigned to Brevard County Circuit Judge Edward J. Richardson. Richardson's aide and Seminole County clerk confirm the case will be heard in a Seminole County courtroom.

Jennifer and Eoghan Kelley, married 31 years, were divorced Jan. 31 in Lake County.

Youth club director dies

MIDWAY — Harold Jason Thomas, 25, director of the West Sanford Boys and Girls Club, was killed in a traffic accident in Sanford Tuesday night.

A Sanford boy who was riding with Thomas, Leo Butt, 15, 8 Saultpointe Apartments, Sanford, was injured and transported to Orlando Regional Medical Center, a Florida Highway Patrol spokesman said today. Butts suffered chest injuries.

FHP reports say a 1989 Nissan pickup truck collided with Thomas' 1983 Toyota as Thomas pulled from Brisson Avenue into the path of the truck traveling on Celery Avenue in Midway at about 9 p.m. The truck's driver suffered a broken arm.

The FHP investigation continues and the spokesman said charges are pending against Antonio Williams, 24, 2450 W. 18th St., Sanford, the driver of the truck, who was treated at Central Florida Regional Hospital in Sanford.

A night at the movies

Protests and pickets but no confrontations

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Christian groups had warned they would be out in force to protest the showing of "The Last Temptation of Christ" at Seminole Community College last night, but it was 500 students and others opposed to censorship who crowded outside the screening.

"The constitution is not mocked. Stop censorship," read one sign. "Rights. What rights?" read another.

A man dressed like a member of the Gestapo marched silently outside the sign where the film was being shown carrying a sign that read "Don't worry how I look — just trust me."

Three women, standing silently near the front of the line, spoke with people around them about their Christian beliefs, but would not go on record as being for or against the film.

A young man, dressed conservatively in a coat and tie, tried to shout down members of anti-censorship groups.

"You are going to go to hell," he shouted. "You must hear God's word." To that end, he handed passers-by a booklet containing the gospel of John written in modern English.

Following protests from the Christian community last month, the S.C. Board of Trustees chose to move the screening of the film from the 350-seat Fine Arts Auditorium to a classroom that could accommodate 60 people. Once the first 60 people in line were seated, the door was locked and four security guards were stationed outside, concerned that the Christian groups would make good on their threat to break up the showing. No such violence was attempted.

The 1988 film, released by Universal Studios, has been the center of controversy since before its release.

Many of those in attendance felt the move to a room too small to accommodate all those who wanted to see the movie restricted the public's ability to make a decision for themselves as to the validity of

Lake Mary may adopt store security measures

By LAURA L. SULLIVAN
Herald staff writer

LAKE MARY — Nearly one year after the Lake Mary City Commission first considered clamping down on convenience store security, the commission tonight may adopt regulations for the all-night food stores.

On Feb. 15, the commission unanimously approved first reading of an ordinance requiring two clerks to staff each convenience store and other retail outlets between 8 p.m. and 8 a.m., installation of security cameras and improved lighting in store parking lots.

Commissioners first reviewed an ordinance identical to one passed in Sanford in December, but made several changes and deletions before approving the regulations. The Sanford ordinance was patterned after legislation adopted in 1986 by the City of Gainesville, the first Florida city to place the regulations on convenience stores.

Sanford's ordinance applies only to convenience stores, but Lake Mary's proposed ordinance would apply to all stores open late. Although convenience stores are the only retail outlet now open 24 hours, the regulations would affect any liquor stores, gas stations or other outlets built in the future.

The Sanford ordinance also requires other security measures, such as robbery prevention courses for all store employees, installation of drop sales and limits for cash kept in store registers.

Lake Mary Commissioners rejected the additional safety measures, saying they infringed on constitutional rights of merchants.

Sanford mayor declares April 1 as 'Census Day'

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Proclaiming April 1 "Census Day in Sanford," Mayor Bettye Smith urged all residents to participate in the federal government's count of residents.

"From the city's point of view, we have a vested interest in getting an accurate count," Smith said Wednesday morning as she signed the proclamation.

Martha Brown, Bureau of Census community awareness specialist, said Seminole County residents should receive their census questionnaires after March 23. They should be completed and returned by April 1 — U.S. Census Day.

Sanford's housing rehabilitation program is dependent on an accurate census of the city's population of low- and moderate-income families, Smith said. Brown said up to $428 in federal aid can be lost for each person not counted in the census.

"A low count of 1 percent would really affect the city of Sanford," Brown said.

Brown said one problem that will be a challenge to the accuracy of the census is counting migrant farmworkers who may fear legal or immigration repercussions from giving census information. Brown said

College guarantees jobs for grads

MIAMI — Miami-Dade Community College will refund tuition to students who do not receive a job upon graduation, officials said Wednesday.

The money-back guarantee applies to a limited number of fields where demand for graduates is high, including nursing, medical and mortuary sciences.

School president Robert McCabe said the program, which starts this fall, is the first of its kind in Florida. Administrators do not expect to refund the $738 annual tuition fee to many students in the selected degree programs because of the school's placement record in those areas.

"Students are not choosing these programs," said McCabe. "Most of the students who come to us, come thinking about going on for a bachelor's degree. But there are a lot of programs we offer where there is job placement for students."

Administrators hope the guarantee will attract students whose families receive public assistance or live in poverty.

Agents seize 12,700 pounds of hashish

PORT CANAVERAL — Authorities seized 12,700 pounds of hashish on an ocean-going tugboat off the Florida Coast in one of the biggest hashish hauls in the nation's history, federal officials announced Wednesday.

"This seizure is very important. It's the sixth largest (hashish) seizure in the U.S.," said Pete Charette, a Drug Enforcement Administration official from Miami.

Government officials, including the 100-member crew of the Coast Guard Cutter Seneca, which boarded the vessel and seized the cargo, displayed the haul discovered aboard the Nina I, a 39-year-old tugboat registered in Honduras.

The 120-foot tug was boarded and its eight-man crew arrested Tuesday during stormy weather and high seas, Charette said. Officials would not say where the boarding took place.

Woman awarded $1.1 million in lawsuit

JACKSONVILLE — A Palatka woman has won a $1.1-million award in her civil rights lawsuit against four St. Johns County sheriff's deputies accused of intervening in a domestic dispute.

The suit by Lori Bowden said the four officers used their positions as deputies to find and detain her in 1987 so her estranged husband could take their infant son. One of the deputies is Bowden's former father-in-law.

A federal jury deliberated about 70 minutes Tuesday before ruling against the defendants. Deputy Melvin Tennyson, Lt. Byron Kirkland and auxiliary officers Fleming Bowden and Tommy Wayne Bowden.

Tommy Wayne Bowden is the woman's former father-in-law and brother of defendant Fleming Bowden.

The jury awarded Mrs. Bowden $800,000 in compensatory damages. Kirkland and both Bowdens were ordered to pay $100,000 each in punitive damages.

If upheld on appeal, the judgement would be paid by the Florida Sheriff's Self-Insurance Fund.

Police say woman tried to hide robber

PENSACOLA — A woman who allegedly demanded money from a robbery suspect in return for hiding him has been charged with being a principle to armed robbery, police said Wednesday.

The woman, Angeret Jones, 28, was charged after she allegedly hid the suspect from police following a Tuesday morning armed robbery at a service station, police said.

The suspect, Gary Dematrice Harrison, 22, was charged with robbery. Another man, Joe Lewis Mitchell, 24, is accused of helping Harrison plan the robbery and waiting outside during the holdup.

According to police, a suspect entered a service station, waved a .22 caliber handgun and demanded money. He took the money and then ran to an apartment complex several blocks away.

He then approached a woman and asked her to hide him. She allegedly demanded $20, but accepted his offer for $10. She allegedly locked her apartment door and gave police false information on his whereabouts.

Harrison, however, was arrested after a witness told police the suspect was in Jones' apartment.

Winn-Dixie recalls Superbrand cheese

JACKSONVILLE — Winn-Dixie Stores Inc. has recalled its Superbrand cheese products after a routine test of a sample batch detected a bacteria, officials said Wednesday.

The Georgia Department of Agriculture Wednesday confirmed the presence of the bacteria Listeria monocytogenes in a sample of Winn-Dixie Superbrand Sliced Cheese Imitation processed cheese slices taken from a processing plant.

Winn-Dixie said it stopped shipping the product, and as a precautionary measure, removed from shelves Superbrand Kountry Slices of American Sandwich Slices and individually wrapped slices of Pasteurized Process Cheese Food.

The company asked that customers return any of these products to the store for a full refund.

Two-year-old loses fight for life

Lung infection claims boy despite special treatment

United Press International

MINNEAPOLIS — A 2-year-old Florida boy who was flown to Minnesota this month for special treatment after he fell into an algae-infested pool died Wednesday, a hospital spokeswoman said.

Kyle Sutton of Loughnan died at 6:22 CST at the University of Minnesota Hospital and Clinic, about an hour and a half after doctors removed him from a sophisticated heart-lung machine, spokeswoman Mary Stanik said.

Kyle fell into a neighbor's pool on Jan. 25 and contracted a lung infection, apparently because of the dirty water. Stanik said the boy suffered severe lung and neurological damage.

He was initially treated at the Arnold Palmer Hospital for Children and Woman in Orlando, but doctors there determined he needed a special treatment.

Kyle was flown to Minnesota on Feb. 6 after the boy's plight was brought to the attention of Martinez.

State officials reviewed his case and then pledged to pay a minimum of $40,000 for Kyle's medical care, clearing the way for the treatment.

The money was made available through the state's Children's Medical Services Program, which helps children whose families are unable to pay. Kyle's parents were unemployed.

The boy began treatment Feb. 8 on the special machine, known as an extra-corporeal membrane oxygenation unit, or ECMO. Stanik said. However, Kyle's lungs continued to deteriorate, and he remained in a coma until he died, she said.

"The unofficial cause of death was respiratory failure," Stanik said.

Hospital officials expect to perform an autopsy, she said.

Shuttle crew deploys satellite

United Press International

CAPE CANAVERAL — The military crew of the shuttle Atlantis presumably launched a 19-ton picture-taking satellite Thursday to spy on the Soviet Union, clearing the way for landing Sunday in California's Mojave Desert.

NASA has imposed a news blackout in effect to keep the Russians in the dark about the secret mission and the expected deployment of the shuttle's top-secret payload, reportedly set for around 6 a.m. EST, could not be confirmed immediately.

But the Air Force allowed NASA to lift the secrecy surrounding the 34th shuttle mission somewhat Thursday by announcing that Atlantis and its five-man crew are scheduled to land Sunday at Edwards Air Force Base, Calif.

"We're going to land on March 4 at Edwards," said NASA spokesman Jeff Carr. "The crew is doing well and the space shuttle Atlantis is continuing to perform satisfactorily."

While the exact landing time will not be announced until 24 hours before re-entry, the flight is expected to last about four days, 10 hours and 43 minutes, which would result in a landing shortly before 2 p.m. EST Sunday.

Otherwise, NASA officials have had nothing to say about the progress of the 34th shuttle mission since an hour and 50 minutes after takeoff, when a brief statement was released saying Atlantis and its crew had been given a "go" for routine orbital operations.

Navy Capt. John "J.O." Creighton, 46, the commander, Air Force Col. John Casper, 46, the co-pilot, Marine Lt. Col. David Hillmers, 40, Air Force Col. Richard "Mike" Mullane, 44, and Navy Lt. Cmdr. Pierre Thuot, 34, began their first full day in orbit Wednesday evening.

Although the goal of the sixth military space shuttle mission is classified, Aviation Week & Space Technology magazine reported last month the shuttle team planned to launch a state-of-the-art $500 million satellite Thursday during Atlantis' 18th 90-minute orbit, or some 27 hours after launch.

The magazine reported the 37,000-pound satellite is equipped with a high-tech photographic system capable of beaming back super-sharp digital pictures of ground targets around the world to help monitor arms control treaties.

The spacecraft also is believed to be equipped with electronics gear to eavesdrop on supposedly secure Soviet military communications.

Man sentenced to 1,698 years wins new trials

United Press International

MIAMI — A man sentenced to 1,698 years in prison for a series of armed robberies was granted new trials by an appeals court that ruled he should have been tried separately for each hold-up.

James Cannady's punishment exceeded state sentencing guidelines by 1,671 years, but the appeals court did not focus on that issue.

The Third District Court of Appeal reversed Cannady's 1987 conviction this week on grounds that he was unfairly brought to trial on 18 felonies stemming from the robberies of six Miami businesses.

The appeals court said each robbery case should have been tried separately. Prosecutors plan to do exactly that.

Metro-Dade police worked for months to catch Cannady, accused of committing the crimes after his escape from a minimum-security prison. He had just been promoted to a work-release program.

Two state officials jump aboard Martinez re-election bandwagon

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — Gov. Bob Martinez was endorsed for re-election Wednesday by Insurance Commissioner Tom Gallagher and Secretary of State Jim Smith, who squelched speculation he might seek the GOP nomination for himself.

Smith has been mentioned in Tallahassee circles as a possible challenger to the governor in the Republican primary. But during a news conference with Martinez and Gallagher, Smith said he is loyal to Martinez.

"He can certainly count on my endorsement in this campaign," Smith told reporters.

"Unfortunately, Tallahassee is driven by rumors," Smith said. "There's never been any thought we could be candidates against Gov. Martinez."

"Those rumors never had any basis, except they seemed to have a life of their own," said Martinez.

He has drawn numerous challengers in the GOP primary, including Sen. Marlene Woodson-Howard, R-Bradenton, but was expected to win re-nomination easily.

"My whole campaign is geared toward the Super Bowl, which is the general election," Martinez said.

"The bottom line is, the governor's done a good job here in Florida," said Gallagher.

Republicans Smith and Gallagher both face re-election campaigns of their own this year. They are serving two-year terms opened up by the retirement of Democratic Cabinet members.

Smith served two terms as a Democratic state attorney general beginning in 1978. He switched parties and went to work for Martinez after losing the 1986 Democratic nomination for governor.

"It was not many years ago that there weren't Cabinet officers to help Republican governors run," Smith said. "Today there are, and we're ready to go to work."

Martinez said he does not expect to begin formal campaigning until late spring or early summer, but he has collected more than $5 million toward his re-election and has been airing television ads touting his record on the environment and as a supporter of capital punishment.

The national GOP has targeted Martinez's re-election as a top priority for 1990. President Bush has already visited the state on the governor's behalf and is expected to return several times, said Jeb Bush, the president's son and campaign chairman.

Passenger pulls plug on plane

UPI Report

ORLANDO — A passenger aboard a United Airlines jet spotted smoke in the cabin Wednesday while the DC-8 was at the terminal and pulled open an emergency exit in a panic, prompting more than two dozen people to evacuate the plane, officials said.

There was no fire on the aircraft, but about 30 of the 167 passengers aboard Flight 123 slid down the chute onto the tarmac at Orlando International Airport, United spokeswoman Sara Dornacker said.

The rest of the passengers walked off the plane through the jetway in an evacuation by flight attendants, Dornacker said.

The passenger who yanked open the exit door had seen smoke from an overheating air conditioning unit, something Dornacker described as "not that uncommon."

One passenger complained of a back injury in the mishap and was taken to the hospital, Dornacker said.

Carolyn Fennell, spokeswoman for the Greater Orlando Aviation Authority, said the passenger who panicked had forced open the left rear exit and deployed the chute. The passenger, whose name was withheld, was not arrested.

There were 167 passengers and a crew of seven on the plane, which was bound for Chicago's O'Hare International Airport, then on to San Francisco.

The incident happened at 7:15 a.m., one minute before the plane's scheduled departure, Dornacker said.

"When you have an air conditioning pack overheat, it is likely that you might get some evidence of smoke in the cabin, either the smell or appearance of smoke," Dornacker said.

Sanford man arrested on drug charges

LONGWOOD — Seminole County sheriff's deputies who stopped a car with an improper license tag said they found open beer in the car and cocaine and marijuana hidden in the crotch of the pants of an occupant of the car.

That brought charges of possession of cocaine and marijuana and possession of an open container of alcohol by a minor against Darius D. Black, 20, 3650 Washington St., Sanford. He was arrested at 2:58 a.m. Tuesday at 1140 Second Place, Longwood.

Alleged threats lead to arrest

LONGWOOD — A city policeman arrested a man for resisting arrest without violence when he was allegedly uncooperative when asked for information during a traffic stop. The man then allegedly threatened the officer.

That brought an added charge of corruption by threat against Joseph Anderson, 48, of Apopka. He was arrested at 10:45 p.m. Tuesday on County Road 427, Longwood.

Woman accused of kidnapping

MIDWAY — A woman has been arrested after allegedly abducting another woman from a Midway street at gunpoint, beat her and threatened to kill her.

Seminole County sheriff's deputies charged Mary Lou Hampton, 30, 2170 Dixie Ave., Sanford, with kidnapping, aggravated battery and aggravated assault at her house at about 3:30 p.m. Wednesday.

Sonya Collins, 21, 2031 W. Dixie Ave. had reported to sheriff's deputies that Hampton kidnapped her from Dixie Avenue at Sipes Avenue at gunpoint at about 1 p.m. Wednesday. Two witnesses reported seeing Hampton force Collins into a car driven by another woman. Collins was reportedly beaten with the handgun and her life was threatened, deputies said.

The vehicle stopped on Sipes Avenue and deputies said both the suspect and victim got out and struggled with each other. Then Hampton allegedly hit the victim in the head with a brick before fleeing with the driver. The driver had not been located when Hampton was arrested, deputies said. A motive for the attack was not reported.

Three charged with armed robbery

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Seminole County sheriff's deputies report the arrest of three men accused of robbing a man and putting the barrel of a handgun into his mouth on Dunbar Street, rural Altamonte Springs, Wednesday night.

The victim reported he was also hit twice in the face by one of the robbers.

The suspects, all of rural Altamonte Springs — Harold Poole, 21, 145 Jackson St.; Troy Hill, 21, 147 Jackson St.; and Harrison Hampton, 19, 148 Oak St., were arrested at Oak and Jackson streets at 9:30 p.m. Wednesday. They are charged with armed robbery and aggravated assault.

Pot plants reportedly found in house

WINTER SPRINGS — City County Investigative Bureau agents with a warrant searched 234 Buttonwood Ave., Winter Springs, Wednesday night and reported finding two potted marijuana plants in the rooms of two residents.

That led to charges of cultivation and possession of marijuana against Maureen Louise Campione, 37, and Jody Mathew Tracey, 19. Also arrested there on charges of possession of marijuana were Mary Emily Scally, 18, of that address; and a 17-year-old Longwood boy.

Couple arrested during search

SANFORD — Tina Marie Lowe, 24, and Joseph Earnest Tanner, 22, 222 Red Coach Court, Sanford, were arrested on charges of possession of less than 20 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia Wednesday night.

City County Investigative Bureau agents with a warrant reported finding the contraband in a search of the suspects' house.

Man arrested on a DUI charge

SANFORD — The following person faces a charge of driving under the influence in Seminole County:

Richard Colon, 27, of Orlando, was arrested at 1:40 p.m. Wednesday after his car was in an accident on State Road 438, Altamonte Springs.

Registered nurses, machinists bring home the most money

From staff and wire reports

Registered nurses and machinists are the highest paid workers in Seminole County, according to a new statewide wage survey. The survey also shows the conventional wisdom generally holds true — that pay scales go up the farther south you go.

But there are exceptions, according to the survey by the state Department of Labor and Employment Security and two-dozen private industry councils.

Nurses and heavy truck drivers, for instance, make more money in the Jacksonville area than in most other parts of the state.

Generally, though, the survey shows that wages for the same job are higher in south Florida than they are in north Florida and the Panhandle. One important reason is that the cost of living is higher in Dade, Broward and Palm Beach counties, so workers are paid more money.

Competition for workers is stronger, too, than in other parts of the state.

The flip side of the issue, according to the survey, occurs in the Panhandle, where there are more workers competing for each job. Those who get the jobs are generally willing to settle for less.

In Seminole County, registered nurses and machinists reported the highest wages of the 48.4 percent of firms who responded to the state survey, a Department of Labor spokesperson said today. Registered nurses reported an average wage of $11.38 an hour, and machinists reported wages at an average of $11.13 an hour, he said.

The lowest wages reported in Seminole County were earned by waiters, waitresses and bartenders, the spokesperson said. Excluding tips, he said, waiters and waitresses reported an average of $2.34 an hour. Bartenders here reported an average of $4.02 an hour.

Wages increase yearly for only one quarter of Seminole County employees, the survey said. Only 25 percent of firms who responded said they offer cost-of-living wage increases.

Of the 167 firms in Seminole County who responded, more employers said they provide dental insurance than health insurance, the Department of Labor reported. More than 41 percent of firms said they provide dental coverage, while just less than 33 percent of Seminole County firms said they provide health insurance, the survey said. The manufacturing industry is the most likely to provide benefits, while construction is least likely to provide a benefit package, according to the survey.

State officials said the study marks the first time that businesses in each of Florida's 67 counties were surveyed simultaneously.

Surveys were sent to 21,000 employers last April, and 8,153 responded. Companies with fewer than 19 employees were thrown out of the sample because of a poor response rate.

The report compares wages for 107 occupations, mostly in jobs where pay is hourly. Most high-level professional positions such as doctors, lawyers and executives were excluded.

County: Elbow grease before cash for building

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald staff writer

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners have balked at supporting the rehabilitation of the Midway Community Center, saying they want to see more community participation before they pledge county dollars.

"We'd like to know how much support you have from the private sector in terms of money and elbow grease," said commissioner Fred Streetman.

Midway community leaders and church officials want the county to refurbish the dilapidated 10-year-old building at the north end of Williams Avenue to use for community activities and as a day care center. A year ago, county officials estimated repairing the building would cost nearly $60,000. When first built, the building cost about $73,000.

All the windows at the center have been either broken or shot out. Efforts to board the structure, not in use for five years, have failed. Commissioners Tuesday approved spending $1,900 to place metal bars over the door and windows to prevent entry.

But community leaders wanted more than verbal support. Theobald Wells and Les Simmons, two representatives with Douglas Northstar, a Seminole County black Republican organization, said they will petition Midway residents next month to determine what is wanted at the center.

Simmons said when the community desires for the use of the building were known, they would ask the county for money.

But Streetman and other commissioners on Tuesday suggested the organization should seek community and business contributions and labor before asking the county for financing.

"It will be a lot easier to convince us of the need for money if the private sector is behind this," Streetman said.

Commission chairman Sandra Glenn had suggested leasing the center for $1 yearly and allowing the community to operate the facility.

After the meeting, Midway leader Johnell Jackson said he was disappointed commissioners did not show more support for the project. "It's time for the county to shell out some money for this," Jackson said.

Jackson said Midway residents might be reluctant to pledge money and effort to the rehabilitation of the center without a show of financial support from the county.

But Jean Metts, a resident of Orange Avenue west of Interstate 4, said Bookertown residents refurbished their community center near her home and take a great deal of pride in its maintenance.

"In four years, not one window pane has been broken," Metts commented.

Poll: Teens less afraid of drugs than children

United Press International

NEW YORK — About 41 percent of high school juniors and seniors believe they can try drugs and escape addiction, far more than the 13 percent of fifth and sixth graders who harbor the same belief, a nationwide survey released Monday said.

The survey, based on 5,000 responses to a questionnaire distributed to more than 180,000 students in grades five through 12, also found that 44 percent favor regular drug testing in high schools.

The survey, conducted by The Scholastic magazine and Cable News Network's NEWSROOM broadcast, indicated that 33 percent of all students polled said they easily could buy drugs.

Drug availability was far more prevalent in the older grades, the students reported. Among fifth and sixth graders, 14 percent said they could buy drugs in school; 50 percent of 11th and 12th graders said they could do so.

The survey, which asked the youngsters 15 questions, found that 26 percent of all the students polled believe they can sample drugs without slipping into addiction.

But only 13 percent of the fifth and sixth graders said they believed they could try drugs safely, while 41 percent of 11th and 12th graders thought they could experiment with drugs and avoid becoming drug abusers.

The survey also said that while a total of 44 percent of students in grades five through 12 favor drug tests, about 33 percent of the 9th-12th graders said they would be willing to be tested regularly for drug use.

Sandra Glenn announced her re-election bid to the Seminole County Commission today at a $100-a-plate breakfast at the Ramada Inn in Altamonte Springs. She shook hands with about 350 well-wishers, including two other county commissioners.

Glenn announces re-election bid

By J. MARK BARFIELD

ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — Kicking off her bid for a third four-year term as District 4 county commissioner this morning, Sandra Glenn told about 350 well-wishers and supporters she will base her campaign on courage, experience and leadership.

"A few years ago, when I was the first woman elected to the Seminole County Commission, it took a lot of courage just to show up," Glenn told the group, who paid $100 each to attend the kick-off at the Ramada Inn.

"We were just a little bit fair to everyone and that takes courage," Glenn said.

During her speech, Glenn addressed the differences she has had with county officials and other commissioners and offered an olive branch to fellow commissioners, particularly Bob Sturm and Fred Streetman.

"There has been a lot said about philosophical decisions being made on the board of the Seminole County Commission," Glenn said, "but if there are philosophical differences on how we should approach some issues, I believe there is not a single person on the Seminole County Commission that does not believe in Seminole County," she said.

Among those attending the breakfast were Seminole County Commissioners Pat Warren and Jennifer Kelley, Kelley's ex-husband Eoghan Kelley, Rep. Art Grindle, R-Altamonte Springs, former Florida Senate President John Vogt and Sid Roche, developer of Alauqua and Alauqua Lakes. Sturm's campaign manager, Harry Hagle, also attended the function.

According to election supervisor Sandra Goard, only Glenn and Sturm, seeking a third term as District 2 commissioner, have opened campaign accounts.

Inmate deaths prompt questions

United Press International

TALLAHASSEE — A team of court-appointed doctors has raised questions about the quality of medical care given five state prison inmates who died in two North Florida prisons over the last two years.

But those inmates, along with a sixth who lost a leg to gangrene, were the "serious exceptions" to otherwise adequate care at the Sumter and Lawley correctional institutions; the Tampa Tribune reported Wednesday.

Both facilities were recently inspected by the survey team of doctors.

In each of the five deaths, the doctors found, the inmates should have received better medical care. And in one case, the prisoner's death was characterized as "possibly preventable."

The two reports were the first by an independent team of six doctors appointed by a federal judge in Jacksonville to conduct a final round of inspections at the state's 40 major prisons.

The survey of prison health services stems from the long-standing Michael Costello lawsuit that already has forced the state to make sweeping changes in prison living conditions.

Health care is one of the aspects still unresolved. Lawyers representing the inmates and attorneys for the Department of Corrections have agreed to settle the case, if the survey team approves of the level of health care.

So far, the team has surveyed 10 of the state's major prisons but finished only the two reports that it furnished to lawyers Tuesday.

Attorneys for the corrections department had not had a chance late Tuesday to thoroughly review both reports, according to the Tribune, but Assistant Attorney General Jim Peters said they showed there was marked improvement in prison health care in recent years.

Previous court-ordered inspection reports on other prison facilities listed about two dozen deaths, between 1985 and 1987, of inmates who received sub-standard medical care.

According to the medical team's report on Sumter, there was no effort by prison workers to revive a 31-year-old inmate immediately after he'd had a heart attack on June 2, 1988. But the inspection team concluded he likely would have died anyway.

In another case, a 25-year-old inmate with AIDS died of pneumonia on Nov. 11, 1988, 16 days after he reported suffering from shortness of breath.

Deaf, blind on pesticides

Following a yearlong investigation, the Senate Office of Research has concluded that it's "likely" that the Department of Food and Agriculture has given its seal of approval over the past four years to hundreds of household products containing potentially toxic levels of pesticides, without making sure that they are safe or even that they have been labeled properly. Spokesmen for the department admit they have made some mistakes, but say the report's estimates are probably too high. The evidence the Senate investigators turned up in a detailed review of the approvals the department issued in just one nine-month period, however, is bad enough.

According to the Senate report, the department, despite the protests of its own expert toxicologists, has:

- Approved the sale of a shampoo to removed head lice on children that contains chemicals that have been classified as causing irreparable eye damage.

- Authorized the use of labels on at least six other household insecticides that did not warn consumer of the hazards that the department already knew were associated with their use.

- Altered official reports from the department's toxicologists in order to hide their objections and warnings about specific products.

Department officials contend those were isolated incidents, and it's now the department's policy not to approve any pesticide if the toxicology division objects. But when Senate investigators asked for a copy of that policy in January, the department couldn't come up with one. The head of the pesticide management program now says he just thought everyone in the department understood what the policy was.

The Senate report includes three internal memos from employees in the toxicology division complaining that in fact nothing really has changed in terms of departmental policy since 1988. As a result, the division has been a turmoil, suffering a better than 50 percent turnover rate in the past four years. According to the memos, that's because the employees feel they are under constant pressure to compromise their scientific integrity. One writer in 1988 complained that she feels the department is using her expertise as "window dressing" for its own political objectives.

That's pretty much what the department's worst critics have been saying for years in arguing why state agricultural officials shouldn't be involved in regulating pesticides. Just a few months ago, the head of the department, Henry Voas, rejected the advice of the scientists at the Department of Health Services and the Water Resources Control Board who had recommended a ban on the use of an agricultural pesticide called aldicarb. Now it appears the department hasn't been paying any attention to its own experts in this field, either.

Winners and losers in Nicaragua

SAN FRANCISCO — The surprise victory of Violeta de Chamorro in the Nicaraguan presidential election will take its proper place among the other striking events of these remarkable months.

Let us pause to note some of the big winners and losers as a result of the Nicaraguan vote. First, the losers:

Daniel Ortega. This communist punk has presided, during the past decade, over the economic ruin of his country, not to mention a civil war that has cost 30,000 Nicaraguan lives. Apparently he realized, when Moscow stopped answering his phone calls several months ago, that he had no choice but to take his chances in a fair election. Now he knows what the people of Nicaragua really think of him.

Fidel Castro. Now the Bearded One is all alone again on his embattled island. He broke with Gorbachev months ago and has now lost his communist foothold on the mainland of Central America. His days are numbered, and he knows it.

El Salvador's FMLN guerrillas. These communist terrorists managed to survive for years only because the Sandinista regime in Nicaragua provided them with sanctuaries and equipped them with Soviet and Cuban weapons. Now they will have to do without both, and the freely elected anti-communist government of El Salvador should be able to roll them up in pretty short order.

The American religious leftists who backed the Sandinistas. These oddball exponents of liberation theology — nuns who were forever getting ambushed while running blockades and religious social workers with inexplicable caches of Soviet hand grenades buried in their gardens — have disgraced their alleged faith by their antics. It will be interesting to see where they turn next.

Last but far from least: Christopher Dodd and his fellow congressional Democrats. For years they ran interference for Ortega and the communist dictatorship in Nicaragua, blocking every attempt by the Reagan administration to give effective aid to the contras. Now, at least for a while, they will have no choice but to support President-elect Chamorro.

And now for a few of the big winners: First and foremost, the contras. God bless 'em. For nearly 10 years they slogged, sweated and died in the scrub and jungles of Nicaragua, fighting for their country's freedom in the teeth of the insistence of the world's liberals that they were just a bunch of leftover Somocistas.

Ronald Reagan. As usual, Reagan turns out to have had a better grasp of the true situation than his numerous critics. All he ever demanded in Nicaragua was free elections.

George Bush. Conservatives feared that Bush had "sold out the contras." But, with a Democratic Congress to contend with, Bush never really had the option of seeking a military solution.

Violeta de Chamorro. This courageous woman, not in the best of health, has led the forces of freedom to a stunning victory. The betting is that there's a lot more Margaret Thatcher than Corazon Aquino in her. Certainly she will have all the help — financial and otherwise — that the Bush administration can give her. The people of Nicaragua have chosen wisely and well.

This communist punk has presided, during the past decade, over the economic ruin of his country.

California: The big change

WASHINGTON — Undeterred by evidence that all its improvements make matters worse, the Democratic Party has decided to further fine-tune the presidential nomination process. It has endorsed a California proposal to move that state's primary up from June to the first Tuesday in March.

One must admire the panache with which the party takes leaps in the dark, no matter how often it stubs its toes.

This is the party whose decline in presidential competition has coincided with the rise of its itch to reform the nomination process. It has made the process more "democratic" by diluting the influence of professionals and increasing the sway of ideologically intense factions. The first result of giving power to (some of) "the people," was George McGovern, who then swept Massachusetts and the District of Columbia.

Now the liberal party is endorsing a step that would make the nomination context less of an equal opportunity process, and one more easily dominated by candidates connected, through their public offices, with big money in the private sector.

When the process starts slowly and in small states, retail politics is possible. Relatively unknown candidates have a fighting chance to jump to prominence before the big expensive primaries arrive. Conceivably, that still could be true in 1992. Perhaps there will be two way for a candidate to make a quick splash in California — by spending, say, $7 million there, or by winning New Hampshire.

A primary in a socially, ethnically and economically diverse state where one-ninth of the nation lives will be a semi-national primary. If other big states, such as Texas, feel impelled to move up their primaries, we will have, de facto, a national primary. That will be a mechanism capable of making a quick, decisive, continental mistake.

California, with seven major media markets, is a maw that devours political money. The more the nominating process is "front-end loaded," with huge delegate prizes won early in states that require millions to be spent (and hence millions to be raised long before the process begins), the more the process favors candidates who are national figures already. It especially favors those who have leverage with large givers.

It favors governors, whose states do lots of business with business. Dukakis had a lot of early money: Cuomo could have a lot. So could Sen. Bentsen. Business wants a happy chairman of the Finance Committee. Sen. Bradley is a member of that committee, and of the Energy and Natural Resources Committee.

On the other hand, remember Gary Hart in the giddy three weeks after the 1984 New Hampshire primary. He won that primary with a grand total of 37,702 votes (37.3 percent and a margin of just 9,529 over Walter Mondale). Suddenly and briefly he was a national fad, supported for the presidency by more people than had even heard of him a month earlier. Now, suppose that the week after New Hampshire there had been a primary in California, the state of novelties and regrets.

If there is a clear winner in an early California primary, the contest may be essentially over right then. But that is a big "if" now that the Democratic Party has decided that proportional allocation of delegates is the only ethical system in primaries.

In 1988, Southern Democrats cobbled together Super Tuesday to strengthen the voice of moderate conservatism in the party. That is why we are currently governed by President Gore. Gore did well on Super Tuesday, but so did a Massachusetts liberal (Dukakis) and the most liberal candidate (Jesse Jackson). Those two adopted a strategy of "cherry picking," concentrating on particular congressional districts, rather than regarding the South, as the creators of Super Tuesday had hoped, as a single region.

Republicans may hope that Jesse Jackson's power to make mischief will be enlarged by proportional allocation of California's delegates. However, Jackson looks more and more like less and less. By evidently passing up a chance to be mayor of Washington, in favor of hosting a television talk show, he has, in Michael Barone's biting words, decided to be a second Phil Donahue rather than a second Fiorello LaGuardia.

Republicans may hope that the liberal money of Beverly Hills will pull Democrats ruinously far left in an early California primary. However, Iowa's democratic activists, who are disproportionately influential in a caucus system, are much more liberal than California's Democratic electorate.

Democrats hope an early California primary will prevent another McGovern. And another Carter. And another Mondale. And another Dukakis. But the boring truth is that no one knows how an early California primary will work upon either party in any particular year.

California, with seven major media markets, is a maw that devours political money.

Water dispute keeps on flowing

BUFFALO CREEK, Colo. — The decade-long controversy over whether to build the Two Forks Dam typifies the difficulty in resolving fundamental disagreements about how we use the nation's resources.

Although the site near the confluence of the South Platte River and its North Fork, 24 miles southwest of Denver, was considered a logical location for a dam as early as 1921, serious planning for the project did not get underway until 1981.

The politically powerful Denver Water Board and municipal water-supply agencies in approximately 40 suburban communities, united as the Metropolitan Water Providers, then began pressing for the dam they argued was crucial to sustaining regional growth.

The cost of building the concrete structure 615 feet high and 1,700 feet wide was estimated at $500 million to $1 billion, but the local consortium was committed to pay all of those expenses.

The dam's proponents devoted eight years and $40 million to completing the environmental impact studies required by federal law. In June 1988, Colorado Gov. Roy Romer gave his qualified approval to the project. In March 1989, the Army Corps of Engineers issued a construction permit.

But the Two Forks Dam always had more than its share of critics, largely because the 7,300 acre reservoir created by it would engulf 25 to 30 miles of spectacularly beautiful Cheesman Canyon, unsurpassed for its recreation opportunities, particularly its trout fishing.

Opponents of the dam also noted that it would endanger the water flow to a unique sandhill crane habitat along the banks of the Platte River in central Nebraska, probably disrupting the birds' migration patterns.

In addition, they pointed out that at least one-third of impounded water was to be used not to slake the thirst of the region's growing population but to keep the Denver area's lawns and golf courses lush.

The country's leading conservation organizations made the future of Two Forks Dam an early test of President Bush's commitment to protecting the environment — and in March 1989 the head of the Environmental Protection Agency dramatically blocked further work on the project.

Arguing that the dam could result in "the very heavy, final and irremediable loss of an environmental treasure of national significance," EPA Administrator William K. Reilly took jurisdiction from his agency's regional office and ordered a special review of the project.

Reilly's decision was widely interpreted as marking the end of an ambitious dam-building era in the West that began more than a century ago and provided potable water to residents of thousands of communities.

Indeed, 37,000 of the nation's 68,000 dams span waterways west of the Mississippi River. But the Interior Department's Bureau of Reclamation, the agency that built many of them, announced in 1987 that it would phase out dam construction in favor of environmental protection and conservation activities.

Almost a year has passed since Reilly personally intervened in the Two Forks Dam dispute. Public hearings were held in Colorado and Nebraska last autumn, but no final decision has been forthcoming from EPA.

Moreover, there is no reason to believe that EPA's action will end the dispute. Officials of the Denver area's water supply agencies, for example, have threatened to sue the federal government to secure the right to revive the project.

The Two Forks Dam always had more than its share of critics.

$1,000 tagged fish caught

ASTOR — An Astor man caught a locally-sponsored tagged fish worth $1,000 on Lake Woodruff this week as anglers begin their second month of competition in the 1990 Johnson Reels Crapfish fishing tournament.

Markcum Reynolds of Astor this week caught Sneaky Pete, a $1,000 fish sponsored by Anglers Boat Center in DeLand.

Nationally-sponsored fish, including one worth $65,000, are still waiting to be snagged from the waters of the St. Johns River and area lakes. The tournament, stretching between Sanford and Astor, will conclude March 20.

Howell Estates to tax for improvements

SANFORD — Seminole County commissioners Tuesday unanimously approved creation of a special assessment district in the Howell Estates subdivision in south Seminole County to make neighborhood improvements. The nearly $156,000 project will cost each resident $1,058 if financed over 10 years or $690 in a one-time cost. Those Howell Estates property owners failing to pay the assessment could face a county lien. A $13 per year, per lot maintenance fee will also be assessed.

The proposal was opposed by many subdivision residents who said they had not been fully informed on the creation of the proposal. Dan Bushrul, chairman of the committee that created the special assessment "municipal services benefit unit," is president of the Howell Estates homeowner's association.

City's insurance company sued

SANFORD — The driver of a car that collided with a Sanford police motorcycle on July 3, 1989, on 25th Street, Sanford, when the officer made an emergency turn to respond to a police call, has sued the city's insurance company.

The suit, asking for damages in excess of $5,000 was filed Friday by Kenneth Collins, formerly of Wilson Road, Paola.

Sanford Police Chief Steven Harriett declined to comment today on the suit. He said Officer Gordon Reid has not returned to duty and is still undergoing therapy for severe injuries received in the accident. Harriett said the Florida Highway Patrol, which investigated the crash, filed no charges in the case. Harriett said Reid's motorcycle police emergency lights were on and he gave both a hand and mechanical turn signal before entering the lane where Collins' vehicle was traveling. Collins suffered nerve damage to his hands and other injuries. He wife was also traveling with him, according to police reports.

"That means that 83 percent of the people who wanted to see the film were not given the opportunity to see it and judge for themselves," said Roberto Mendez, a student who objected to the censorship.

Mendez tried unsuccessfully to find another copy of the film to show in the Fine Arts Auditorium.

"I just want people to have the opportunity to make their own decisions," he said.

Members of an anti-censorship group called Friends of the First Amendment later donated four copies of the videotape to the SCC library.

Julle Puckett who, along with fellow SCC student Chuck Brownell, founded the group called Concerned Students Against Censorship, said there was a lot of concern about censorship in the community at large.

"This is not just a student group," said Puckett. "We have gotten support from members of the community of all ages."

The group, wearing yellow armbands fashioned from police crime scene tape, crepe paper or cloth, circulated a petition protesting the change in location by the board of trustees. Puckett and Brownell estimated that they had garnered over 1,000 signatures during the last week. A middle-aged woman signed the petition without a word, tied a yellow band around her arm and walked toward the Fine Arts Auditorium in hopes of seeing the film or listening to others debate the issue.

"The board of trustees was given several options, including the suggestion given by Rev. George Crossley (of radio station WTLN) that the film "Jesus" also be shown," Brownell said.

Many had their own reasons for wanting to see the film.

"I just want to see what the big deal is," said Joann Long who objected to the board's move. "I don't want them to tell me what and where I can do things."

Long said the film should be seen by as many people as possible so that they can make an informed situation.

(business) from developing their property," said Gerald Brinton, authority director. "That restriction was never there, but this gives further assurance to any businesses that want to expand."

"This doesn't mean there won't be a road there someday," Brinton said. "It just gives those people a little more comfort and removes some of our potential liability."

Brinton said the reservation never prevented the businesses from expanding or carrying on their activities, although some have charged they have lost business as a result of the authority's plans to build the road through their property.

What the removal of the reservation means regarding a lawsuit filed last May against the authority by Brenda Properties Inc., owners of the Zayre's Plaza, is uncertain. Brenda Properties asserted the authority's plans to build the expressway through their shopping center northwest of Airport Boulevard and U.S. 17-92 caused them to lose tenants, including Zayre's and Walgreens. All but one of the businesses have moved and the remaining one is scheduled to move.

Brenda Properties also asserted potential tenants, including Albertson's, said they would not place stores in the shopping center because the proposed expressway would take the entire property. Expressway officials plan to build a major interchange at U.S. 17-92 with entrance and exit ramps through the shopping center site.

Authority attorney Lonnie Groot said the removal of the reservation would probably have little effect on the lawsuit. Brenda Properties attorney William Moore could not be reached.

The reservation was placed on the entire 18-mile expressway route in Nov. 1987 from the Orange County line near Oviedo over Lake Jesup then west to Interstate 4. Under a state law, the reservation can only be in effect for five years before it must be removed if no progress towards completion of the road has been accomplished.

Brinton said it is unlikely the state will appropriate the money needed to build the road before the mid to late 1990s — long after the reservation would expire in Nov. 1992.

Census

information is held in confidence from authorities.

Smith also urged residents to seek employment with the census bureau.

Pat Ryan, manager of the Census office that includes Seminole County, said about 2,000 people will be needed in the next six months for census jobs in the county. Many of the positions needed are for enumerators — people who make direct contact with residents who do not respond to the mail-in questionnaires. A total of 785 people have been tested for the jobs, Ryan said.

Brown said enumerators will primarily work in their own neighborhoods. They will undergo a federal check to assure they're not felons and a 30-minute written test.

Enumerators will be paid $6 per hour or more on a part-time, temporary basis.

Those interested in applying for census jobs can call the Job Service of Florida, 330-6700 or the census office in South Daytona, 904-756-6500.

While fragile coastal areas have traditionally been considered wetlands, the federal definition has broadened to include many types of so-called swamp land.

Rural lawmakers also attacked recommendations the government pay only 50 percent of the cost for reconverting farmed wetlands.

Although the state will actually sell the bonds for the authority, tolls will repay the 30-year debt.

Security

City attorney Ned Julian cautioned against some of the regulations because none have been tested in court since five Florida cities have adopted the legislation. Police reports show four robberies and attempted robberies at Lake Mary convenience stores since 1985. In a report to the commission, police said only one of those incidents — where a man fled the robbery attempt when a customer drove up — might have been prevented by requiring two clerks on duty.

When the commission first considered convenience store regulations last year, Lake Mary police had encouraged working individually with merchants as an alternative to adopting legislation. But because other cities in the area are adopting convenience store regulations, Police Chief Charles Lauderdale said last month he supported similar measures in Lake Mary to prevent criminals from choosing targets in the city rather than stores in cities where robbery has been made more difficult.

The Seminole County Commission is also considering an ordinance regulating convenience stores. The ordinance, scheduled for a public hearing March 13, requires a store to either have two clerks on duty between 9 p.m. and 5 a.m. or to enclose a single clerk in bullet-proof glass.

Representatives of the Young Democrats and the Central Floridians Against Censorship were also present at last night's showing. Conspicuously absent were members of the SCC Board of Trustees.

NATIONAL BRIEFS

Baker warns against troop cuts

WASHINGTON — Secretary of State James Baker says he is less concerned that a unified Germany will force the removal of U.S. troops from its soil than that a budget-cutting Congress will demand bringing them home.

"I will give you as good a guarantee that the Germans won't do it as you can give me that the Congress won't do it," Baker told Sen. Wyche Fowler, D-Ga., Wednesday during testimony before the Senate Budget Committee.

There is concern in the Soviet Union, as well as in Poland and other Eastern European nations, that an aggressive, powerful and united Germany will look to lands lost on the Polish side of the border formed by the Oder and Neisse rivers and again threaten Europe as it did in two world wars.

No drug blockade of South America

CHICAGO — The U.S. Navy has not participated in drug interdiction in international waters off South America because of objections raised by Latin American leaders, Defense Secretary Dick Cheney said Wednesday.

The proposal was a major issue in Latin America during and after the U.S. invasion of Panama. The plan was tabled during talks with the Colombian government over allowing a United States task force off its coast to detect and monitor drug traffickers.

Communist wins award from Ohio

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Communists may be in retreat throughout Eastern Europe, but the party has won an honor in Ohio.

The office of Ohio Secretary of State Sherrod Brown has given a certificate of recognition to Rick Nagin, chairman of the Ohio Communist Party. He collected the award for registering more than 2,000 voters during his unsuccessful campaign for Cleveland City Council last fall.

State Rep. William Batchelder, R-Medina, was outraged at the honor. "It seems a bizarre perversion to recognize people who don't believe in the process," Batchelder said Tuesday. "One of the central tenets of communism is the belief in one party."

Hot dog restaurant wants Rocky statue

PHILADELPHIA — The bronze likeness of Sylvester Stallone, which once towered in front of the Philadelphia Art Museum, could end up outside a hot dog eatery in the historic district if an offer Wednesday to buy the statue is accepted.

The 8-foot-8-inch statue recently was moved from the Spectrum arena to the top of a flight of steps in front of the Art Museum to serve as a prop in Stallone's upcoming movie, "Rocky V."

The saga of where to put the Rocky Balboa statue, which has become more contentious than some of the fictitious boxer's battles in the ring, took another turn when the Ginger Group announced it wanted to buy the sculpture from the city for $10,000. The food company would erect it in front of its Levis Hot Dog Restaurant in the city's historic Society Hill section.

Buckey conspiracy count to be dropped

LOS ANGELES — Prosecutors said Wednesday they will dismiss a conspiracy count against former McMartin Pre-School teacher Raymond Buckey, but tentatively intend to retry him on 12 remaining molestation counts.

"We do not intend to proceed with the conspiracy count, which will shorten the trial considerably and strengthen our case," Deputy District Attorney Joseph Martinez said.

Martinez made his remarks to reporters following a hearing in which Superior Court Judge Stanley Weisberg, selected Monday to preside over the retrial, ordered jury selection to begin March 9.

Poindexter renews Reagan diaries bid

WASHINGTON — John Poindexter's lawyers argue Ronald Reagan's personal diaries are even more crucial as evidence now that the former president testified he has forgotten key details about the Iran-Contra scandal.

The lawyers asked U.S. District Judge Harold Greene on Wednesday to require Reagan to turn over some 30 excerpts from his personal diaries to be used at Poindexter's trial, scheduled to begin Monday.

Poindexter, who was Reagan's White House national security adviser, faces five criminal charges in connection with the biggest scandal of the Reagan administration. It involved secret weapons sales to Iran, efforts to free American hostages in Lebanon and the financing of covert military supplies for the rebel Nicaraguan Contras.

Hanging of black man ruled suicide

ROCKWOOD, Tenn. — Police ruled a black man committed suicide by hanging himself from a basketball goal but his family contended Thursday racists killed him as punishment for dating white women.

"Mike had a lot of girlfriends, black and white. He had children by two white women and had another white girlfriend. Some white people in Rockwood don't like that and there's been run-ins over it before," said Ralph Sanders, the uncle of Mike Sanders, 28, who was found dead Monday.

Investigators said Sanders apparently climbed on a trash barrel, then tied a television antenna cord to the rim and put the cord around his neck before kicking away the barrel.

Cold cure progress noses ahead

WASHINGTON — The search for a cure for the common cold nosed ahead with the development of a potential drug that can block nearly half of all cold viruses in the test tube.

Reporting in the Journal Nature, researchers led by Boehringer Ingelheim Pharmaceuticals of Ridgefield, Conn., said Wednesday they have designed a molecule that in the test tube has the power to prevent cold viruses from infecting human cells.

"These results are very encouraging, but the leap from the test tube to the nose is a very big one," said Steven Marlin, head of the research team.

It will take probably five years before the molecule, called soluble ICAM-1, is tested in humans, he said.

"Even if it is 100 percent effective, it's not going to be a cure in the sense that it works against every common cold. At best, it would be effective against 45 percent of colds," added Marlin, noting about 55 percent of cold viruses use other routes to infect cells.

Potassium may not be health aid

BOSTON — New findings do not support a widely held belief that potassium supplements can play a role in controlling high blood pressure, researchers said.

A Minnesota research team said its two-year study found no evidence that supplements of potassium, a metallic element essential for control of the nerves and muscles, can keep some men with high blood pressure from needing medication.

"The question of whether potassium chloride can be used as a non-drug treatment for hypertension has been a hot topic," said Dr. Richard Grimm Jr., the team leader. "From what we found, it cannot."

The finding refutes several earlier, and smaller, studies suggesting that supplementary potassium can play a role in controlling high blood pressure in some people, especially black men.

From United Press International reports

Clinics reported lacking regulation

By GARY SILVERMAN
United Press International

WASHINGTON — Americans risk receiving inadequate care at many of the growing number of non-hospital health facilities providing services ranging from radiation therapy to drug treatment and cataract surgery, government investigators say.

A General Accounting Office report released Wednesday said so-called free-standing providers may be performing up to 40 percent of all diagnostic procedures and surgeries, but still operate with little and often with no state licensing or regulation.

States with licensing rarely impose sanctions, usually because of a lengthy appeals process or a lack of intermediate penalties, the GAO said, and nearly half the states lack a system for processing complaints.

"Because of minimal state regulatory efforts, consumers do not have adequate assurance that unlicensed free-standing providers are offering quality care," the report concluded.

Gayle Elliott, a director of the Accreditation Association for Ambulatory Health Care in Chicago, said her group has accredited 300 to 400 of the several thousand providers under a voluntary program. But she said sometimes there "is no way of knowing the quality of care provided by a facility."

Rep. Edward Roybal, D-Calif., chairman of the House subcommittee on health and long-term care, who released the report, said he would introduce a bill establishing federal standards.

"The care provided in these facilities can literally mean the difference between life and death," he said.

Federal quality standards now exist for certain free-standing providers — such as surgery centers — that participate in the Medicare program.

The number of free-standing providers has expanded rapidly in response to cost-control efforts, improved technology and increased competition. At the same time, health maintenance organizations have emphasized keeping patients out of hospitals, fueling the growing ambulatory market, the report said.

The GAO studied 16 kinds of free-standing providers and found that, as of Sept. 30, 1987, only two states, New York and Montana, required each provider known to be operating within its borders to obtain a license.

No states required licenses for cancer treatment centers, using either radiation or chemotherapy, or for pain control centers.

U.S. hostage could be free within month

United Press International

BEIRUT, Lebanon — One of the eight U.S. hostages kidnapped in Lebanon could be freed this month as a result of recent secret direct talks involving U.S. and Iranian officials, Moslem sources said.

"It is quite possible that one of the American hostages would be set free in March," a Moslem militia source, who requested anonymity, told United Press International Wednesday.

The source said the release would be because of recent clandestine, direct discussions between the United States and Iran.

A Moslem fundamentalist source close to Iranian circles echoed the militia source's information. "The atmosphere is ripe and positive to solve the hostages issue," the fundamentalist source told UPI. "We should wait and see what the coming month might bring."

In Washington, a senior State Department official denied any high-level U.S.-Iranian contacts. "There have been no authorized meetings," he said.

Syrian officials told Peggy Say, whose brother, reporter Terry Anderson, has been held longer than any other U.S. captive, that they "have greater hopes" of releasing the hostages. Say received the word during a five-day visit to Damascus that ended Sunday.

"I think that this is the beginning of the end," Say told the British Broadcasting Corp. before a meeting Wednesday in London with the archbishop of Canterbury, Robert Runcie. "There was almost, if not 100 percent, agreement among everybody whom I talked to, that the time seems to be right."

Anderson, 43, chief Middle East correspondent of The Associated Press, was kidnapped March 16, 1985, in Moslem west Beirut.

The militia source said two rounds of talks were held in December and January in Geneva and New York to find a compromise to the hostages' plight. Mahmoud Rafeesani, the brother of Iranian President Hashemi Rafsanjani, and a State Department official were involved in the talks, the source said.

Medical negligence kills thousands, according to landmark study in N.Y.

United Press International

NEW YORK — Negligence by doctors and hospital workers is responsible each year for the deaths and injuries of thousands of New Yorkers, many of whom could but do not file medical malpractice claims, a landmark study shows.

The $3.1 million study conducted by researchers from Harvard University found an estimated 6,895 deaths among hospital patients across New York state in a single year were caused by medical negligence. An additional 27,179 patients — 1 percent of the 2.7 million people hospitalized in 1984 — were injured through negligence, the report showed.

"We believe our findings support the view that medical intervention is a risky enterprise," wrote the authors of the five-year study, commissioned by the New York state Health Department and released Wednesday.

The study was the most comprehensive assessment of medical malpractice ever conducted in the United States.

The Harvard team investigated the cases of more than 30,000 patients admitted to 51 New York hospitals during 1984 and found that only a fraction of the people injured through negligence ever filed malpractice claims.

From the sampling, the team extrapolated the number of deaths and injuries that could be attributed to negligence throughout the state's entire hospitals system.

Senate challenged on 'peace dividend'

United Press International

WASHINGTON — The Senate was challenged to a test vote on new priorities for the "peace dividend," exposing deep, partisan differences on how to spend money saved by cuts in the military budget.

But many Democrats and Republicans said Wednesday they were not certain that there would be a "peace dividend" as the United States scales down militarily or, if there is one, when it will come.

Sen. Phil Gramm, R-Texas, saying he wanted to begin the debate, proposed a non-binding Senate resolution which would allocate the "peace dividend" to cutting the deficit and giving the rest to American citizens in the form of tax credits and tax cuts.

The Democrats countered with an alternative: They called for using the money for balancing the budget, for "urgent national priorities," and for "tax reductions for working men and women."

"I believe it is not too early to see what will be done with the resources that have been freed," Gramm said, adding that it would be a "great tragedy" to pump the money in new or enlarged domestic programs.

"The fruits of the success of freedom ... should go to the people who won the Cold War, not to the government," Gramm said.

Gramm said that the United States broke with tradition after the Vietnam war and "squandered" the peace dividend as domestic spending "skyrocketed" and both taxes and the deficit increased.

"The squandering ... made the 1970s the lost decade for the working men and women of America," he said.

Sen. James Sasser, D-Tenn., chairman of the Senate Budget Committee, offered the Democratic alternative and said if there is to be a "peace dividend" it will have to be "carved out" by Congress.

He charged that the five-year, $180 billion cut proposed by Defense Secretary Dick Cheney would mean that the country would be spending $20 billion a year more than it is now because the reductions are made from an ever-increasing base.

"A tax cut — yes, we're all for tax cuts," Sasser said, but charged that President Bush considers a tax cut for middle class Americans "disastrous for the economy" and that a "capital gains tax cut would do wonders for the economy."

"I wonder why tax cuts for the wealthy are so wonderful and tax cuts for working Americans are not," he said.

Sasser said that any "peace dividend" should first be used "to put our fiscal house in order," then to "long-neglected" domestic priorities, and only then to a "carefully crafted" tax cut aimed at working Americans.

Wide offensive launched in Lebanon

BEIRUT, Lebanon — Troops of military leader Gen. Michel Aoun unleashed a wide-scale offensive today against strongholds of Sunni Geagea's militiamen in east Beirut, turning into fierce fighting with gunmen that left at least 10 people dead and 25 wounded, police said.

The fighting, which broke out at dawn and raged into the afternoon, shattered a 10-day-old truce between the rival Christian forces.

Cambodian peace talks collapse

JAKARTA, Indonesia — Peace talks on Cambodia collapsed over Vietnam's insistence on describing as genocide the former practices of the Khmer Rouge, just hours after an accord was reached on an enhanced U.N. role to end 11 years of war.

Indonesian Foreign Minister Ali Alatas, co-host of the negotiations, said the lack of a unanimous accord among the 10 countries present Wednesday made it impossible to recommend reconvening international peace talks in Paris, the primary goal of the Jakarta gathering.

Gandhi party drubbed; 97 dead

NEW DELHI, India — Former Prime Minister Rajiv Gandhi's Congress (I) Party suffered stunning election defeats in five states and possibly a sixth, it was reported today. Election violence left 97 people dead.

The biggest winner in Tuesday's violence-riddled polls was the right-wing Hindu Bharatiya Janata Party, which stormed to a two-thirds majority in Madhya Pradesh and ousted the Congress (I) Party in northern Himachal Pradesh in its first state-election victories ever.

'Sandalistas' cannot bear loss

By ABDON M. PALLASCH
United Press International

MANAGUA, Nicaragua — Joy in Washington over the victory of Nicaragua's National Opposition Union strikes fear in the hearts of the "Sandalistas" — the Sandalshod Americans in Nicaragua — to help the Sandinistas.

The Sandalistas fear the conservative U.N. administration will recruit, profit-pushing International Monetary Fund-type U.S. advisers in three-piece suits to replace them.

Let's talk about what were going to do in the future, an organizer told 200 American computer teachers, doctors and businessmen gathered in Managua to plot their strategy

"Let's talk about what were going to do in the future, but first, did anyone bring a guitar. Lets sing a song and then we'll talk about what we'll do in the future."

-Sandalista organizer for dealing with the new government. But first did anyone bring a guitar? Lets sing a song and then we'll talk about what we'll do in the future.

Alternately called the internationalists or Sandalistas, for their idealism and 1960s-style dress, the technicians from Nicaraguan solidarity groups in America and other countries enjoy cordial relations with outgoing President Daniel Ortega's Sandinista government. The Sandinistas use American volunteers in their training programs and even in government offices.

The internationalists back the economic reforms of the Sandinista Front, which reformed bankrupted plantations, to peasants, nationalized the banks and made loans available to poor people, controlled trade and dared to take on the U.S. government.

They fear the new pro-U.S. party will welcome the "usual" U.S. advisers who will tell the government to privatize banks and industry.

Ten years of democratic training may now be in jeopardy, Carter Garber warned the crowd.

The new government may try to smash the democratic institutions built over the last 10 years, said Garber, a Tennessee economist who has been in Nicaragua for 1 1/2 years working on development projects.

Timothy Dylan Wood, 18, his long hair and a red bandanna, has spent several months in Nicaragua planting trees. He was stunned by the election results.

Mandela remarks to Arafat threaten to alienate Jews

United Press International

LUSAKA, Zambia — Nelson Mandela's embrace of PLO Chairman Yasser Arafat and comments comparing their two struggles threatened to stir poorly with South Africa's small but influential Jewish community already uneasy over a surge of white extremism.

Arafat, packing a gun on his right hip and wearing a black and white headscarf known as keffiyeh, was among the first foreign dignitaries to greet Mandela on his arrival

Tuesday in the former British colony of Zambia.

He embraced the black nationalist, kissed him several times and later presented him with a large gold-plated sword in a heavily ornamented scabbard.

During his address to the airport crowd, Mandela specifically welcomed the leader of the Palestine Liberation Organization as a "comrade" and compared their two struggles. Like us, he is fighting against a unique form of colonialism and we wish him success in his struggle, the black leader said.

At a news conference Wednesday after meetings with southern African leaders and Commonwealth officials, Mandela was asked whether he believed his comments threatened to alienate South Africa's 100,000 Jews.

Well, if the truth alienates the powerful Jewish community in South Africa that is too bad, Mandela said. His comments drew a quiet murmur of "hear hear" from President Kenneth Kaunda, who was seated next to him.

Havel suggests new alliance of East, West

United Press International

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia — President Vaclav Havel, fresh from visits with President Bush and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev, suggested the creation of a "Helsinki Zone" across the Northern Hemisphere to replace current East-West blocs.

Havel, a dissident playwright turned to the role of a foreign Czechoslovakia's president, also announced Wednesday that he had again invited Bush and Gorbachev to hold a summit in Prague.

The proposal was met with great interest by both of them, Havel said, adding, "We could find them a nice little castle." The two superpower leaders are scheduled to meet in June in the United States.

Fine-tuning his proposals for a Europe free of the traditional East-West bloc structure, Havel called for a summit of the heads of all European states this year to prepare for new talks in late 1990 or early 1991.

It should become the equivalent of the universal peace treaty that never was achieved at the end of World War II," Havel said.

Havel said such an accord would confirm existing European frontiers and the reunification of Germany would be defined and ratified by this process.

Then, the existing blocs should merge, Havel said. These two blocs should flow into a unified European structure of a Helsinki Zone in the Northern Hemisphere, including the United States and Canada. The Soviet Union loses the circle.

While in Washington last week for talks with Bush and an address to a joint session of Congress, Havel proposed a prompt meeting of the nations participating in the Helsinki Process on political boundaries and human rights in Europe.

New storms lash Europe, killing 72

United Press International

COPENHAGEN, Denmark — The latest in a series of storms that have killed at least 72 people in Europe bore down today on the continent and Prince Charles cut short his ski trip in Switzerland to visit residents hit from their homes in Wales.

A new storm is on its way toward central and southern Europe from Britain and cold northerlies will hit Germany and Holland in the next 24 hours, Danish duty meteorologist Thige Rasmussen said late Wednesday.

Winds of up to 60 mph accompanying the developing storms are "as dangerous" as those borne on storms that have ravaged Britain and the continent so far this week, Rasmussen said.

Since Monday, 17 deaths have been reported in Britain, 15 in West Germany, 13 in France, nine in Belgium, six in Italy, three in East Germany, three in Switzerland, two in Denmark, one in Ireland and one in Greece.

Celtics catch Mavs in Garden

Based on past performance and their current condition, the Boston Garden was the last place that the Dallas Mavericks wanted to be Wednesday night.

Larry Bird scored a game-high 31 points to lead the Celtics to a 111-98 victory over Dallas, the Mavericks' 10th consecutive loss without a victory at Boston Garden.

"They just wore us down tonight," said Mavericks forward Sam Perkins after his team ended a six-game, 10-day road journey. "We couldn't get anything going in the second half."

Rookie Michael Smith, making his first start in Boston Garden and his third in a row, scored 21 points.

Elsewhere in the NBA, Atlanta edged Indiana 102-99, Miami crushed Sacramento 113-92, the Los Angeles Lakers defeated Seattle 112-107, and Golden State defeated San Antonio 144-135 in overtime.

Chunat shuts out Rams

SANFORD — Jeremy Chunat tossed a five-hit shutout to help Seminole knock off previously undefeated Lake Mary 5-0 in a junior varsity baseball game Wednesday afternoon at Seminole High School.

In the process, Chunat struck out five and had one walk.

Chunat and David Eckstein led the Seminole offense as each collected a pair of hits and two RBI. John Lugering also had two hits while Matt Freeman drove in the fifth run.

Harney and Johnston each had two hits for Lake Mary.

Now 2-0, Seminole plays DeLand at Seminole today at 3:30 p.m.

Scoreboard for J.V. Baseball: Lake Mary 0, Seminole 5. Stats for Chunat and Freeman.

Point-shaving alleged

RALEIGH, N.C. — Former North Carolina State basketball player Charles Shackelford accepted money from a gambler to shave points in as many as four games, it was reported Wednesday.

Three people, including one of his Wolfpack teammates, told ABC News that Shackelford, a star center on the 1987-88 squad, and three teammates conspired to fix a game between N.C. State and Wake Forest. The player alleged points were shaved in as many as three other games during the 1987-88 season. Shackelford currently plays for the New Jersey Nets.

"You're gonna throw the ball away and make sure they get a layup out of it, you do whatever necessary as that particular moment," the teammate, his identity disguised, said Wednesday.

Rangers show why they're hot

The hottest team in the NHL right now is the New York Rangers, and Wednesday night the Rangers demonstrated why with a methodical 3-2 victory over the Washington Capitals.

The Rangers have the best record in the NHL over the last 20 games (13-4-3) and lead the closely-contested Patrick division by four points after Wednesday's victory.

"The Rangers look real good," said Capitals Coach Terry Murray.

"They play a very disciplined game. They have role players and some scorers and they don't beat themselves."

Goff Courtnall gave Washington a 1-0 lead at 10:19 of the first period with a power-play goal.

The Rangers tied the score 1-1 just 14 seconds into the second period on John Ogrodnick's 37th goal of the season.

Elsewhere in the NHL, Pittsburgh beat New Jersey 2-1, Toronto nipped Quebec 5-4, Hartford topped Montreal 3-1, Detroit upended NY Islanders 4-3, Los Angeles downed Edmonton 4-2, Vancouver and Philadelphia skated to a 7-7 tie.

Killer Bees extend lead

From staff reports

SANFORD — The Killer Bees solidified its lead and RMC won its second straight game in Sanford Recreation Department Wednesday Night Softball League action at Chase Park.

In Wednesday's second game, the Killer Bees improved their record to 6-1 with a 13-1 thrashing of Harvar Aluminum Products while RMC withstood a last-inning comeback attempt by the Sanford Police Benevolent Association to pick up a 7-6 triumph in the opener.

Harvar remains second in the league with a 4-3 record while Whiskey River is third at 3-1. SPBA is fourth at 2-1 and RMC brings up the rear at 2-5. Next week, SPBA challenges the Killer Bees at 6:30 p.m. and RMC squares off with Whiskey River at 7:30 p.m. Harvar has the week off.

The game between SPBA and RMC was close until the fifth inning when RMC scored three runs to turn a 4-3 deficit into a 6-4 lead. The big hits in the inning were a triple by Mike D'Amico and a double by Randy Covell.

RMC added a run in the sixth to go up 7-4 heading into the seventh, where SPBA started its comeback with one out.

Tom Hastings and Timo Fontana singled and Steve Harrett walked to load the bases. Mike Ansley followed with a single to score both Hastings and Fontana. When the throw went to the plate, Harrett and Ansley took third and second base, respectively. But RMC settled down to retire the next two batters.

Producing the offense for RMC were Mike D'Amico (two triples, two runs scored), Bob Keeney (two singles), Covell (double, run scored), Benito Ancles (double), John D'Amico (single, run scored), Dan Gill and Ron Dexter (one single each) and Delton McCormick (run scored).

Doing the hitting for SPBA were Ansley (two singles, two runs scored), Hastings and Fontana (two singles and one run scored each), Arron Johns (two singles), Robbie Shull and Mitch Lindel (one single and one run scored each) and Ken Kaiser (single).

The second game was all Killer Bees, but the fifth was the real big inning as the Bees scored six runs. The game ended by the mercy rule in the bottom of the sixth when Eric Erickson tripled with one out to score two runs.

Contributing to the Killer Bee offense were Paul Pratt (three singles, four runs scored), Erickson (triple, single, run scored), Mitch Burke (double, single), Frank Van Pelt (two singles, three runs scored), Tom George (two singles), Tom Weaver (double), Ric Holt (single, two runs scored), Tom

Dwayne Clark (No. 5, left) and Bobby Fugate (No. 32, right) were the one-two punch for the Lake Howell Silver Hawks in their win over Seminole Wednesday night at Sanford Stadium. Clark limited Seminole to four hits while Fugate had two hits, two runs scored and two RBI, including the game winner.

Clark, Fugate power Silver Hawks

By DEAN SMITH Herald sports writer

SANFORD — Dwayne Clark tossed a four-hitter and Bob Fugate drove in two runs during a three-run third inning as Lake Howell bested Seminole 10-2 in a Seminole Athletic Conference baseball game at Sanford Memorial Stadium Wednesday night.

The win improves the Silver Hawks to 14 overall and 1-0 in the SAC, while Seminole falls to 2-6 and 0-1.

Scoreboard for Baseball: Lake Howell 10, Seminole 2. Stats for Clark and Fugate.

Lake Howell's next game is Friday when they host Lake Brantley in a 3:30 p.m. start. The Seminoles' next game is also Friday when they play host to DeLand at 4:00 on the Seminole High School field.

Walker, Tribe get past Lake Highland

From staff reports

ORLANDO — Argie Walker was 4-for-4 with an inside-the-park home run and three RBI to lead Seminole to a 17-13 slow-pitch softball win over Lake Highland Prep on Wednesday afternoon at Fort Mellon Park.

Now 4-2, Seminole will play again today at 4:15 p.m. at DeLand Lake Highland fell to 0-2.

Unlike last Wednesday's game between the two schools, won by Seminole 16-1 in five innings, last night's game wasn't decided until the final inning.

The Seminoles took the lead on four different occasions, only to see Lake Highland retake the lead of tie the score in the bottom of the inning. In the top of the sixth, the Tribe scored four runs to go up 13-11, but Lake Highland came right back to tie the score.

Then, in the top of the seventh, LaTrea Turner and Andrea Bullin led off for Seminole with a single. An out later, Rita Frison singled to score Turner with the eventual game-winning run. Andrea Nathan, Walker and Valerie Wilks also contributed run-scoring singles during the rally.

Lake Highland tried to rally in the bottom of the seventh, leaving two runners reach base with two out. Up came Lee, who had victimized the Seminoles with an inside-the-park home run of her own earlier in the contest. This time, Turner made a running catch on Lee's shot.

Besides Walker, Seminole also got key offensive contributions from Bullin (5 for 5 with two runs scored), Frison (4 for 5 with a double, four RBI and three runs scored), Tiffany Jones (3 for 4 with two RBI

No new talks scheduled as lockout reaches 14th day

United Press International

NEW YORK — Owners negotiator Chuck O'Connor fired back at union head Don Fehr and said he remained in charge of the stalled labor negotiations that Wednesday became the third longest work stoppage in modern big-league history.

On the eve of what would have been Opening Day of the Caribs and Grapefruit League seasons, Fehr flew to Los Angeles to brief players, who have been locked out of spring training for 14 days.

In New York, O'Connor spent the day talking with owners, some of whom he said were upset by Fehr's remarks Tuesday in Phoenix that the union should be dealing directly with owners.

owner Fay Vincent.

"I don't know why anybody is talking about Chuck O'Connor," Fehr said. "He's clearly ceased being the chief management spokesman."

O'Connor said Fehr's comments could serve to further the resolve of the owners.

"It does complicate things a bit," he said in a conference call from his office in New York. "Today I had to handle calls from clubs upset with the comments."

But I have been in this business 23 years and I've been insulted by experts. The clubs were upset because Fay Vincent made an effort to enter the negotiations in the context of the commissioner in a way he regarded to be beneficial. He never made a pretext as to his role.

Negotiators announced no resumption of the talks that broke off Saturday. By reaching two weeks, this lockout passed the 1972 strike, which lasted 13 days, and delayed the start of the regular season. An owners' lockout in 1976 lasted more than three weeks, and a players' strike in 1981 went 50 days.

O'Connor said the earliest he expected to meet with Fehr again would be early next week after the union chief returned from meeting with players. But O'Connor cautioned no bargaining sessions were scheduled as of Wednesday night.

Baseball fans could be looking at another lost week as O'Connor is scheduled to meet with owners and their representatives in Dallas next Wednesday.

LSU's Jackson, freshmen lead All-SEC picks

United Press International

ATLANTA — LSU's high-scoring sophomore Chris Jackson, an All-America last year as a freshman, was joined by two freshmen and two seniors on the 1990 All-Southeastern Conference basketball team, announced Wednesday by United Press International.

The freshmen are 7-foot-1, 286-pound LSU center Shaquille O'Neal and Tennessee guard Allan Houston, son of the Vols' first-year coach Wade Houston. The seniors are Mississippi forward Gerald Glass, a repeater from 1989, and Georgia forward Alec Kessler, a second-teamer a year ago.

Jackson, a 6-1, 168-pounder from Gulfport, Miss., was a unanimous choice for the second year in a row. Leading scorer in the SEC last season when he averaged a nationally second-best 30.2 points per game, Jackson was leading the conference again this season with an average of 28.8 ppg through his first 28 games.

Jackson, who has scored 40 or more points six times this season — including a three-game stretch in mid-February when he scored 49, 41 and 46 in a row — was runaway winner as SEC Player of the Year in balloting by sportswriters and sportscasters in the seven-state region.

Jackson made seven 3-pointers in that 46-point performance, at Van derbilt and afterwards Vandy Coach Eddie Fogler said. "Those shots Jackson made were tough shots. When we tried to run at him, he would go the other way and pull up and shoot it, and make it with a hand in his face."

Jackson also made seven 3-pointers three nights earlier at Kentucky while scoring 14 of LSU's last 21 points although the Wildcats held on to beat LSU, 100-95. Kentucky Coach Rick Pitino said, "Jackson's play at the end was amazing."

Pitino, former New York Knicks coach who succeeded Eddie Sutton at Kentucky when the Wildcats were placed on NCAA probation for recruiting violations, was named UPI's SEC Coach of the Year Wednesday after guiding the player shy Wildcats to 14 victories in their first 26 games.

O'Neal, a 17-year-old from San Antonio, Tex., leads the league in rebounding (12.1 ppg) and blocked shots while averaging 13.9 ppg. Houston, 6-5 from Louisville, is averaging 19.9 ppg after averaging 29.7 his past seven games.

Glass, 6-6 from Greenwood, Miss., is the SEC's second-leading scorer for the second year in a row. He averaged 28.0, fourth nationally, a year ago and is currently averaging 24.4.

Kessler, 6-11 from Roswell, Ga., is third in the SEC in scoring at 21.0 ppg and fourth in rebounding at 10.2. The 230-pound pre-med honor student has been the key to league-leading Georgia's first regular-season SEC basketball championship in the 58-year history of the conference. In last Sunday's 86-85 win over second-place LSU, Keseler had 30 points and 16 rebounds and caused O'Neal and his backup, 7-foot Stanley Roberts, to foul out.

 Alabama junior forward-center Melvin Cheatum was the leading vote-gainer on the UPI All-SEC second team. Other second teamers selected were Mississippi State forward Cameron Burns, Florida center Dwayne Davis, Georgia guard Litteral Green, and Kentucky guard Derrick Miller.

Blue & Gold plaque goes to Ellis

Harry Ellis (left) receives the Blue and Gold plaque from the Rev. William McLoud during the Cub Scout Gold & Blue banquet.

The annual Blue & Gold banquet of Cub Scout Pack No. 34 was attended recently by 154 parents and adult leaders.

The Cub Scouts and Boy Scouts are sponsored by the First United Methodist Church, 419 S. Park Ave., Sanford.

Twenty-three scouts received awards.

In addition, the Rev. William S. McLoud surprised Harry Ellis with the Blue & Gold plaque for his dedicated work as Cubmaster for the past three years.

Ellis is currently chairman of the Cub Scout committee and activities chairman for the Cub Scouts of the Central Florida Council. John Good is the new Cubmaster.

Grandmom feels guilty about accident

DEAR ABBY: I have a 2-year-old granddaughter. I have been watching her now and then while her parents have a night out. I have been watching her since she was born, and I love her very much.

Well, the last time I was watching her — I had her at my place — she accidentally burned her little hands on my kerosene heater! They were minor burns, but all the same, burns. This is the first time anything like this ever happened while she was in my care.

Of course, I immediately applied ice cubes to her hands and thanked God it wasn't more serious. Only a grandmother would know how terrible I felt.

ADVICE

ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

My problem is this. I called my daughter the following day to find out how the baby was, and she told me she was up all night. Abby, she made me feel so bad — she gave me no comfort at all. I love my grandbaby so much and she loves me, and my daughter knows it.

I am afraid that I am not going to be asked to watch the baby anymore because of this. I usually visit them a couple times a week, but now I feel horrible — too horrible even to go over to visit. Am I wrong to let it bother me like this? What's the best way for me to handle this?

FEELING HORRIBLE: Your daughter's anger and disappointment will fade with time, as they should, and so will your feelings of guilt — so don't dwell on this. Learn from it.

You say that you applied ice to the baby's burns. Perhaps you should be aware that there is a better way to treat minor burns. According to the American Medical Association's Handbook of First Aid and Emergency Care (Random House): "Minor burns such as a sunburn, or by a brief contact with hot objects, hot water or steam, should be treated by placing the burned area immediately under cold running water, or by applying cold-water compresses (using a clean cloth) until the pain subsides. Applying ice, butter, grease, sprays, ointments or home remedies is not recommended."

Those who baby-sit children should take the time to investigate first aid and CPR classes. And, people who anticipate a visit from a child who is old enough to crawl or walk should "baby-proof" their homes. This means having all sharp items out of reach, as well as cleaning powders, bleach, roach and ant powders, rat poison, etc. — anything that a child might come upon and "sample" by tasting.
