FLORIDA GRID
NEXT YEAR

Southern Branch Of University Of California Is Opponent

UNIVERSITY OF FLORIDA, GAINESVILLE, Feb. 18 — The University of Florida football team will play the University of California, southern branch, at Los Angeles, on a following day, it was announced last night by Athletic Director Jones. Negotiations for some time, were completed a few hours last night by faculty committees designated to handle the contest.

The game, first announced in a feature story last week, will be a feature event of the Gatorade festival for 1931, and will be the first of a series of contests to be made by the school team.

The game will be played in the stadium, seating 50,000. California officials have estimated the value of the 1,300,000 in attendance at Los Angeles will be for the Turkey day scrap.

California will follow the Tech game in Atlanta on Saturday, preceding Thanksgiving. According to the present plan, the Gators will board the train for California immediately following the Tech game at Grant, arriving in Los Angeles on Tuesday.

Coach Bachman, head football coach of the Gators, in discussing the game yesterday, admitted it would be a tight squeeze to get the train without a lot of rest, and dash to another city. He plans to ameliorate the effects with workouts enroute, breakfast, and drills in Los Angeles on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Coach Jones said advice from the Gators was that the Gators would be the only important game in Los Angeles between the 1st and Dec. 5. He declined to discuss the financial arrangements that have been made for the game, but it is understood a 50-50 contract had been made out.

This year's game will be the opening wedge for regular athletic competition between the Gators and the California school. The first game will be in the nature of an experiment with a multitude of the Florida officials.

Coach Bachman was won over by the idea of the long trek, he explained. When the coach clambered from the train after the Gators' trip to Chicago last season, he said "Never again these long trips are not."

With the scheduling of California game, the Gators have not one long trip, but they are to play Syracuse University in New York in an inter-sectional tilt.

Director Jones explained yesterday the many difficulties that were encountered in arranging the Los Angeles game. Among the obstacles were the objection of some faculty members to the game on the grounds that it was giving over emphasis on football. The university absence rule forbids any student to be away from his studies more than 15 days during any semester. It was noted that Florida already had a game scheduled, the maximum allowed by the Southern Association.

The first difficulty was the game was not explained. The rule was also a matter of judicial planning of football. It is planned to meet as much as possible the needs of the students, and to keep almost within the 15-day limit.

It was agreed to release Florida from the game contract that was in order that the Gators make, and still keep within the 15-game limit, the California game.

In a radio-telephone conversation that flashed across the Atlantic as clear as a bell, Clarence DuBose, chief of the Associated Press bureau in Madrid, outlined the gravest crisis that has faced King Alfonso in his 47 years on the throne.

In the opinion of grid deposters at the university, the Gators have a very good chance of winning the California game despite the rigors of the long trip, since U. C. L. A. is too young an institution to boast of much in the way of football prowess.

With Faint Hope For Protest Cause

NEW YORK, Feb. 18 — The solid ranks of the Richard Croker crowd, who have been strictly professional since the death of the late mayor, are beginning to show signs of a crack. There's a dab here and there in the professional ranks, and wrestling is creeping toward it as it has done elsewhere else.

Gentlemen:

What is wrong with the word "spit"? We have been spitting for years and will probably continue to spit for many years to come. It is the unmentionable or indelicate word that does the harm, as it contains so many communicable germs.

Any type of campaign or advertising against the use of human sputum is endorsed by this Department because it protects public health.

Very truly yours,

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

PROVERBS—Take heed, brethren, lest there be in any of you an evil heart of unbelief, in departing from the living God.—Heb. 3:12

PRAYER—Look on me with Thy favor, Lord. Vouchsafe to me Thy grace.

Florida Beds of History—Mile after mile of Florida history are being opened up by the new roads. Many of these roads are also covered with the remains of the past.

How lovely are the pellucid, limpid, lustrous lakes of Florida. Those of Lake County last Sunday were sparkling blue as the eyes of her who accompanied us—Phil Barney. Boy! Who is she?

Times are so hard that a friend of ours who used to subscribe to The Herald for his mother who lives in the north, now sends her his own copy, paying two cents postage on it each day, thus saving approximately one dollar a year, not counting wrapping paper.

What was believed to have been the largest turnip grown in Marion County this year was displayed in the Chamber of Commerce window last week. It was grown by Eugene Dobbs of Ocklawaha Avenue, and weighed eight and a half pounds. Since then four more large specimens of turnips and rutabagas have been received by the Chamber of Commerce and put on display in the window. None of them surpasses the Dobbs turnip in weight, however.—Ocala Star.

Miami has plans under way which will make that city the center of the world's dirigible air traffic. A section and a half of suitable land is being sought and a number of mooring masts will be erected. The promoters of this plan believe that the safest transatlantic air route lies over the south Atlantic between Miami and European parts. The development of aviation undoubtedly will come to mean as much to Miami as steamboat developments meant to New York City.

Sanford has cause for enthusiastic optimism in the announcement that the State Road Department has included the lake front boulevard and also the new bridge across the St. Johns in this year's fiscal budget, with the work to be commenced this year. That means the expenditure of a large sum of money in this vicinity, as well as the employment of many persons now idle. Sanford seems to be getting the breaks at last—and we don't mean the bank breaks of the past either.

The unrest in Spain has brought about many new and peculiar forms of the adjectives referring to monarch or monarchy. A common Associated Press form for the latter is "monarchical," and is used as the "monarchical form of government," but in reality "monarchical" is a noun and means a person who believes in that form of government. The word which should be used is "monarchic" or "monarchical" while the adjective to be used when pertaining to a monarch is "monarchical" or "monarchic." "Monarchical" is a monarchic government or monarchic principles or the advocacy of them. While a "monarchist" is one who believes in the monarchic principles, of a monarch or of a monarchism.

When Alice Roosevelt married Nicholas Longworth (now a judge), she received a thirty thousand dollar pearl necklace from the Republic of China, a powerful chest full of silk and silverware from the empress dowager of China, a gorgeous jewelry from the president, of course beautiful embroidered and silver vases from the emperor of Japan, a diamond and pearl necklace from the emperor of Italy, a mosaic of a Venetian saint from the pope, and a quantity of antique jewelry from the king of Spain. In these days of depression, conservatism, and conservatism, she would be getting a silk handkerchief or a pocket square.

The Age of Transportation

If you go back far enough in history you will find a period known as the "Old Stone Age," or Paleolithic period, we believe the geologists call it. It was a time made famous because of the many and varied developments in the use of stones. It saw the invention of such weapons as the stone-headed spear, the stone-headed arrow, the stone-headed hatchet, the stone plow. Prior to that time, plows had consisted of only the sharp prongs of hardened sticks. No doubt the people of that period looked upon these discoveries of new uses for stones as marvelous inventions, something which would stand out in history as a matchless credit to the ingenuity of that age.

Fifty thousand years from now, our descendants, if they know anything about the Twentieth Century at all, will doubtless call it the Transportation Age. The period opened with fifteen miles an hour the accepted speed for normal transportation. Trains did better than that, of course, but less than a hundred years before the opening of this century, the promise of fifteen miles an hour even for locomotives provoked roars of derision. Automobiles in 1900, with an extra burst of speed could pass a fast trotter on the highway, but every town had a speed limit of twelve or fifteen miles an hour to hold these speed demons in check.

In what field of endeavor has greater progress been made during the past thirty years than in the speed of transportation? Trains idle along now at sixty miles an hour. Good highways and vastly improved motors have combined to give to most automobiles an average speed on a long drive of fifty miles an hour. Airplanes cruise normally at slightly better than one hundred, and some of them can make twice that rate for long periods of time. An automobile with an English driver recently raced over the sands of Daytona Beach at nearly 250 miles an hour. The mind of the layman has been so accustomed to speed in thirty years that legal limits have been raised from the time-honored fifteen to forty-five or fifty.

If speed development continues at the present rate, it is entirely conceivable that before the close of the present century, the journey from New York to Paris will be made in a single hour. You gasp! Men gasped a hundred years ago when the fifteen mile speed was threatened for locomotives! And if the one hour flight from New York to Paris, whether by plane, tube, or rocket, becomes a reality, why not a similar flight to Jupiter, Venus, and Neptune with stop-overs at the moon and Mars? Imagine the subdivision development which will take place on these neighboring planets as soon as transportation facilities are arranged.

Pedagogy has experienced many new and startling innovations since Hamilton Holt came to Rollins College to assume the presidency of that institution. For generations colleges had adhered rigidly to traditional forms of instruction and had apparently failed to take cognizance of changing customs, beliefs, minds, and personalities. The boy of today, as different from his grandfather as an ocean liner, was taught by exactly the same methods as the boy of one hundred years ago. Holt remedied all this at Rollins. He proceeded to teach the modern youth in a thoroughly modern manner.

One of his innovations was the Animated Magazine, a "publication" which makes its appearance once a year. It is now in its fifth year and is becoming increasingly popular with each appearance. It has become a fixed part of the celebration of "Founders' Week," and has the editorial quality and precision which only Hamilton Holt, who gained his editorial experience in the editorial sanctum of the "Independent," can give it. This year the Animated Magazine will be accompanied by another innovation. It will be broadcast from Radio Station WDBO.

Aside from President Holt, who will preside as editor, this year's Animated Magazine will include such literary notables as Irving Bacheller, author; Ray Stannard Baker, who wrote the biography of Woodrow Wilson; Robert Herrick, author of "The Master of the Inn"; Jessie Rittenhouse, poet and anthologist; Willard Wattles, poet, and author of "Lanterns of Gethsemane"; Fred Lewis Pattee, authority on American literature; Ople Read, humorist and author of "The Kentucky Colonel"; John Erakine, author, critic, poet, and musician; Rev. S. Parkes Cadman, eminent Brooklyn clergyman; Albert Shaw, editor of "Review of Reviews"; John Palmer Gavitt, journalist and author; Corinne Roosevelt Robinson; Mrs. Raymond Robbins, social economist; and many others.

All of these writers will appear in person in the campus amphitheater and will read their own manuscripts. Needless to say, "subscribers" will come from all over Florida to "read" this important annual magazine. And when people come from all over Florida at this time of year, it means that they are coming from all over the nation, for there is no state which is not adequately represented in Florida during the winter months. We hope that many Sanford citizens will avail themselves of this opportunity to hear many of the nation's most distinguished authors and poets.

WORLD'S WINDOW

By Pierre Van Paess

Hardly had the applause for the Socialist discourse of M. Cacin, French Chamber of Deputies, who reviewed the generalization of the Communist group, mounted the tribune and presented a motion to liberate the Communist deputies, who are in jail for anti-militarist and anti-patriotic propaganda.

M. Cacin is no mean orator, and in this speech he surprised himself. He appealed to the Chamber to respect the wishes of the electorate. Some of the prisoners, he said, had been elected to parliament, but they could not exercise their mandate because they were in jail. What was somewhat unusual in Communist procedure, he invoked the great traditions of the French Revolution.

One must have been present in the Chamber to appreciate fully what effect this always has upon the members. As Cacin spoke the assembly grew solemnly respectful. Not a sound, but the speaker's basso voice, broke the silence in the amphitheatre. "Liberty," "humanity," "idealism," these words spoken alternately with passion and tenderness never fail to move a French audience, whether it be in the austere halls of the Senate or in a dingy workers' club of the Faubourg St. Antoine.

As M. Cacin developed his theme and refrained from threats of violence and invoking Moscovite instructions, M. Briand stuck his hands in his pockets and let his head drop thoughtfully on his breast. I looked down at M. Painlevé and saw his eyes grow misty and the tears starting down his face. When M. Cacin had finished his proposal was combated by M. Magniot. M. Magniot asked the Chamber to leave the Reds in jail.

And then the chairman announced that a vote would be taken. For a moment there was a breathless silence. Everybody felt it wasn't those particular men in jail who caused the emotion. It was an ideal that hung in the balance. "Those who are for the motion of M. Cacin, please rise!" came the chairman's voice. Edouard Herriot, his face deadly pale, rose to his feet slowly and deliberately. Briand followed and Delahaye and Chautemps and Hugu and their groups. And so there they stood for a moment, 200 men, without stirring. Only the gasps of a woman in the visitors' gallery broke the stillness.

"They are free!" exclaimed the chairman, suddenly breaking the spell, as he saw that there was a majority. And then there was a lot of nose blowing and happy laughter. They are a great people—those French. So long as they are there, freedom shall not pass from the earth.

Where are the golden days of Bohemia? It is not so long ago that the artists of the Latin Quarter enjoyed their gypsydom without a thought of the morrow. What mattered an empty purse, so long as the waiter brought another little absinthe and a few cigarettes on credit? Who cared that the rent of the garret wasn't paid? There was always a hospitable friend who had an old couch in his studio.

Two years ago, one year ago, the poets and painters and sculptors who spent their nights in the joyous, smoky caverns on the hill knew nothing about the social question. Perhaps the past looks rozier now than it really was, but this much is certain: Bohemia has grown more serious. The waiter lost his generosity long ago. Unpaid rent means a catastrophe as with the rest of us. And the "grisettes" are by no means the careless, little songbirds who laughed away financial worries as they used to. The phantoms of distress has been soaming the garrets and caves and studios of the Quarter.

The suicide of Picasso, the painter, some time ago has had the effect of a sinister alarm signal. A few weeks before his death Picasso said to some friends: "I have started to sell my canvases 'au numero'." To sell "au numero" and just plain boozers. This is going to be a push of a funeral. I hope to tell you, it's for Whiskey that's being buried—No. 71 on the line-up. Whoop!—wait a minute. No, not it's Gov. Flump that's being buried—Gov. Justice B. Flump—and what a fall! Flump, you never saw such flavers as there are at this funeral. Just bushes and bushes of fragrant petals and delicate blossoms—reminds me of the flowers at the Pasadena Rose Bowl—boy, oh, boy! What a game that was! Well, folks, the funeral is about to begin—and believe me, they're not a pip of a day for Flump. Flump comes the expert in now—it's covered with the same old pathos that you'll see in the light of the day.

TAX FACTS

Ed. Note—This is one of a series of short articles to the credit of daily for the convenience of our readers who may be confronted with preparation of their income tax reports.

Salaries paid employees constitute one of the largest items of business expenses. To be allowed as a deduction such claims must conform closely to the wording of the statute, which provides for the deduction of "a reasonable allowance for personal services actually rendered." The test of deductibility is whether the amounts paid are reasonable and whether they are, in fact, purely for personal services. Money paid an officer of a corporation for which no services, or services inadequate to the compensation, are rendered is not deductible as "salary." Reasonable compensation is held to be an amount that ordinarily is paid by like enterprises in like circumstances for like services.

Amounts paid to employees may be deducted by employers when such payments are made in good faith as additional compensation for services actually rendered, provided that when added to the stipulated salaries, the total does not exceed "a reasonable compensation for services rendered." When the amount of a salary of an officer or employee is paid for a limited time to a widow or heirs

LUCKIES are always kind to your throat

The advice of your physician: Keep out of doors in the open air, breathe the fresh purity of sunshine in the million sunshine, and have a peppy check-up on the health of your body.

Everyone knows that sunshine mellowers—that's why the "TOASTING" process includes the use of the Ultra Violet Rays. LUCKY STRIKE—made of the finest tobacco—the Cream of the Crop—then—"IT'S TOASTED"—an extra, secret toasting process. Health irritants present in all raw tobacco are expelled by "TOASTING." These irritants are sold to others. They are not present in our LUCKY STRIKE. No wonder LUCKIES are always kind to your throat.

TELLING THE WORLD

By NEAL O'HARA

THE RADIO ANNOUNCERS' SCHOOL

Dr. Frank H. Vitelly, the eminent lexicographer, is conducting a school for radio announcers at Station WABC, New York. We should like to suggest to Dr. Vitelly some good questions for the mid-year exams.

Q.—What is wrong with this announcement? "Ladies and gentlemen of the radio audience, you are about to hear what Lily Lush says about this product." As you know, Miss Lush had an abscess put some years ago in a movie I've forgotten, and she has been leafing around Hollywood ever since looking for another role. So, naturally, when we offered her $15 for this indorsement of her hair dye she snapped it up like a starving wolf. We could have probably got it for $12.50. Don't take what Miss Lush says of her hair dye too seriously, however, as she never uses it herself, inasmuch as she is bald. We shall now hear from Lily Lush.

A.—There is nothing wrong with that announcement. It sounds like the truth.

Q.—What would you do if you had to announce in a musical number on a national radio?

A.—Go ahead and announce and then pretend you announced Technikon's produce—even though the camera stayed focused on delish.

NEED SEEN FOR STATE FIGHT IN TARIFF ISSUE

On the other hand if Florida's contents are upheld for a continuation of the present rates, the probability is that the crop in time will be doubled so that the state's income from that source will be around $75,000,000, Mr. Wilson thinks.

The Federal Tariff Commission will hold a hearing on the question sometime within the next 90 days, although the exact date has not been set as yet.

Florida vegetable products must have the protection of a tariff against foreign competition because of low labor and land costs in Mexico, Mr. Wilson explained. For instance, land in that country can be purchased for a dollar or two per acre and labor costs only 25 to 30 cents a day. The cost of packing are about the same in Florida and Mexico but Florida shippers must pay more freight on their products than Mexican shippers although they are twice as far away from American marketing centers.

Mr. Wilson said speculators, who have asked for the revision, will attempt to show that Florida and other southern states cannot supply the northern cities and Canadian cities with enough vegetables to take care of their wants.

Mr. Wilson said that contention, Florida produced so many string beans that northern markets were supplied. With a fair growing season, he declared the state could produce an equally large supply of tomatoes, eggplants, peppers and other vegetables.

The standards of American farmers cannot be maintained when they must compete with low production costs of other countries, he pointed out. Another thing that favors Mexican producers is the fact that a warm climate produces fast crops and without the necessity of fertilizers, Mr. Wilson said.

LeRoy Advances To Semi-Finals In Golf Tourney

(Continued from Page One) quarter final matches were played last Saturday afternoon from 11 to 12 o'clock. LeRoy defeated Mr. Johnson by a four and three score in a match which was declared a trifle ragged. A high wind hampered play considerably, and was a contributing factor in the carding of scores well in the eighties. Mr. Spencer had the better of Mr. Johnson practically all the way, although a number of the earlier holes were halved. When he carded a birdie three on the fifteenth hole, Mr. Spencer had Mr. Johnson four up, with three to play, a score which moved him into semi-final play which begins tomorrow.

Lawrence Lundquist defeated E. F. Housholder, four up, two to play in a match which was evenly played over the entire distance, although your Lundquist indicated what was coming later as he turned loose some crack golf in the early part of the play.

Play in the women's division for the 1921 championship title has been limited because of the fact that several of the first round matches ended in defaults. Mrs. W. R. Russell, 1920 champion who is defending her laurels, won by default from Miss Carmeta Baraberi. Mrs. F. W. Bender won by default from Mrs. E. F. Housholder. Mrs. Ralph Wight won from Mrs. Walter Bach, by default. Mrs. Vivian Spier won by default from Mrs. W. R. Dyson. Mrs. R. Melling won from Miss Katherine Symes by default. Miss Jane LeRoy won from Mrs. Well-set, seven and six. Mrs. A. G. Scott won from Mrs. C. L. Park, three and one. Mrs. Lou E. Johnson won from Miss Margaret Peters by default. Miss Helen Marentette won from Mrs. Allan Stewart by default. Mrs. Glenn Lingle won from Mrs. Phil Perkins, four and three. Mrs. Leon LeRoy won from Mrs. H. M. Watson, two and one, and Mrs. Roy Symes defeated Mrs. E. Compton, ten and eight.

Second round play in the women's division must be completed by Sunday night and the following teams are scheduled to turn in cards: Mrs. Russell and Mrs. Bender; Mrs. Wight and Mrs. Spier; Mrs. Melling and Miss LeRoy; Mrs. Fort and Mrs. Johnson; Miss Marentette and Mrs. Lingle. Mrs. LeRoy and Mrs. Symes drew bye.

SPAIN TO QUIET DAYS AFTER TURBULENCE

(Continued from Page One) Let's with liberal compromise and Catalan independence, reported and according to his chief, the heart of its program will be the restoration of legal and political stability.

Premier Aznar was expected to first of all consider the release of prisoners arrested after the revolts of last December and who are now crowding the jails. Indications were that even if amnesty were not granted he planned a policy of indulgence.

More serious are the political problems immediately facing him. Berenguer was forced from office last Saturday because he wished immediate elections for the Cortes whereas his opponents asked for a constitutional convention that would decide whether the king was to be a holiday in the future political status of the country and whether it would become a republic or remain a monarchy.

It was said in an authoritative circle, that the new government expected to evolve a new election program to include a firm principle, then district and finally parliamentary elections, the latter probably several months hence. Parliament probably would be converted into a parliamentary
