

Feds Trounce Highly Touted Eustis Panthers 36 To 23

Seminoles Get Revenge For Early Season Loss

Lake County Cagers Suffer Only Conference Defeat As Locals Stage Comeback From Costly Slump

By GLENN GOVOCEK

Returning to early season form, the Seminole High School Celery Feds licked the highly touted Eustis High School basketball team by the impressive score of 36 to 23 in a hardfought battle in the Eustis gym last night.

For the Panthers it was the only Northeast Conference loss of the season and brought the Lake County team, which apparently had the conference crown etched down to a par with the Daytona Beach Buccaneers who also lost their only game to the Celery Feds.

Had it not been for their slump in the past two weeks, during which they lost games to the Daytona Beach and DeLand quintets, last night's victory would have capped the climax and assured the Feds of the Conference title for the second consecutive season.

The Celery Feds went into an early lead over the Panthers and at the halftime were leading by a 10 point margin with a score of 23 to 12 in their favor. As the game continued the Feds were able to increase their lead while holding back the Panther's scoring attack.

For the Feds, last night's game made one lost and one won in their contests with the leading conference teams, namely Daytona Beach, Ocala and Eustis. The Eustis quintet won the first meeting with the Feds by a score of 35 to 26. The game was the season's opener for the local dribblers.

The Celery Feds conclude their season's schedule in Orlando Friday night against the strong Orlando Tigers, whom the locals conquered in their first encounter by a score of 44 to 27.

In their games with Miami teams last week-end the Celery Feds held the strong quintets of the magic city to narrow victories. The Miami Edison team won by a score of 38 to 29 and the Feds lost the Miami Beach game by a score of 29 to 22.

Leaders Ask Roll Call On Guam Defense

Wallace Outlines Surplus Disposal

Bill To Abolish Officials' Salaries Exemption Keyed

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—Leaders forced a roll call when the House convened today to bring out the maximum voting strength for the Administration proposed $5,000,000 naval development of the Pacific island of Guam.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the House Naval Committee demanded it when only a handful of members appeared just prior to the scheduled vote.

Secretary Wallace outlined to the Senate Agricultural Committee possible plans for dealing with the large surplus of American cotton.

They were to continue the present loan program and find a way to put surplus cotton on the world market on a "competitive basis; increasing the growers' income as it would give up loans; a plan for fixing a high domestic price that would let the surplus flow on the market for what it would bring."

Secretary Wallace outlined to the Senate Agricultural Committee possible plans for dealing with the large surplus of American cotton.

A bill to abolish tax exemption on all salaries drawn from public treasuries was approved.

Mayo Expected To Rule On Canner's Suspended License

WINTER HAVEN, Feb. 23.—State Chemist J. J. Taylor said last night he expected to announce today the decision of Commissioner of Agriculture Mayo on a request by the Florida Grapefruit Canning company at Bradenton for an order to restore the company's fruit dealer's license.

There was no indication in the request when the company planned to resume operations, Taylor said.

The license was suspended on Feb. 8 when Mayo ruled that an over-crowded, calling for the payment of 20 cents in cash and 12 cents later was a violation of the minimum price law.

In a statement Taylor said the company of which Fred J. Eker, Jr. is president, has "fully complied" with the suspension order which shut down the plant and had completely abandoned the berry contracts under which it was operating.

BRADENTON, Feb. 23.—A. B. News, Bradenton attorney, said yesterday that a charter had been granted the Lee County Cooperative Packers, of Fort Myers by Secretary of State Gray and that work had been resumed at the Fort Myers grapefruit cannery plant which had been idle since the citrus commission invoked a 1935 law that pegged the price of grapefruit at 22 cents a box.

Gibbs Gives Local Canal Boost At Waterway Meet

WANTS TO FIGHT

Declaring that the growth of a city or community is dependent largely on its accessibility to yachts of wealthy winter visitors, George W. Gibbs of Jacksonville, president of the St. Johns River Improvement Association, outlined the benefits to Sanford and the whole St. Johns River Valley of the proposed St. Johns Indian River canal, a project given the full endorsement of the Florida Inland Waterways Congress which held an annual meeting in Mt. Dora yesterday.

Presided over by Walter P. Cochran, Jr., of Jacksonville, who was re-elected chairman, C. L. Lewis H. Watkins, chief of the U. S. Army engineers for the Jacksonville district, was one of the principle speakers at the session. In his address, Mr. Watkins asserted that the proposed Florida cross-state canal was economically justifiable and could be constructed without disturbing the underground water supply by use of lock.

Attending the convention from Sanford were Ralph Russell, secretary of the Seminole County Board of Commerce, Executive Director Gerald L. Ash, and Seminole County Representative H. J. Lehman who is a director in the Waterways Congress.

In recapitulating his support of the proposed development of the continuation of the St. Johns River channel from Sanford to the Indian River, Mr. Gibbs declared that the St. Johns Valley and central Florida would rival that of the East Coast if the project were completed.

One of several speakers at the fourth annual meeting of the waterway group, Col. Watkins, speaking in regard to the proposed cross-state canal, said "the proposed canal is the most debated waterway subject, but our findings indicate the canal is economically justifiable and could be constructed without disturbing ground water by use of locks."

"However," he continued, "engineers decided on a sea level route because they considered the ground water danger very remote."

Possible harm to Florida's underground water supply has been one of the points raised by canal opponents.

Waterway proponents, however, said increased traffic from the Atlantic Ocean to the Gulf made the canal desirable. They also said the excavating would not harm water-producing formations.

The congress reinforced the cross-state canal and proposed for "meritless listing" waterway projects at Cocoa Inlet, Crescent Lake to Flagler Beach, Sebastian and the West Palm Beach canal. Recommended for approval was the Lee county flood control project. Action was deferred on the Apopka-Lake Marshall canal.

The group re-elected all officers and decided to hold its 1940 meeting in Mt. Dora in Feb. Officers are: Walter P. Cochran, Jr., of Jacksonville, chairman; W. P. Franklin of Fort Myers and W. C. Brown of Clermont vice chairmen, and Karl Lehmann of Yulee, secretary-treasurer.

Henry W. Adams of St. Petersburg, said the waterways group would seek to have the 1938 legislation erect a bill to provide funds for navigation and flood control projects by diverting three cents of the Florida tax on gasoline to motorboats. He estimated this would raise about $90,000 annually.

Col. Jarvis J. Bain of Richmond Va., division engineer for the war department, said a study was being made with a view of recommending a depth of more than eight feet for the intra-canastal waterway from Jacksonville to Miami.

L. H. Kramer, president of Florida Citrus Growers, Inc., said the waterway congress by encouraging shipments by water was helping to lower citrus freight rates.

Kramer said the citrus industry in Florida must standardize its pack, grow better fruit at lower cost, regulate canning, and conduct research on by-product if the industry is to progress. He said cooperation of Florida, Texas and California in a constructive program for the industry is necessary.

McCall Gets Sanity Test At Raiford

Appeals Court Turns Down Second Plea Of Attorneys For Delay In Execution

RAIFORD, Fla., Feb. 23.—(AP)—Three physicians and three attorneys conducted a sanity test of the ransom kidnaper Frank Pierce McCall in his death row at the State prison here today.

The test was made in request of McCall's attorneys and reportedly was sought by McCall himself. Results were not announced immediately.

Meanwhile Attorney C. A. Avrett planned an appeal to the U. S. Supreme Court during the afternoon in a last-minute effort to save the confessed kidnaper of little Jimmy Cash of Princeton, Fla.

At New Orleans the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the second time today turned down the petition of E. C. Rutledge, another of McCall's attorneys, to stay execution which is scheduled to take place at 11:00 A. M.

Judge Rufus E. Foster, senior judge of the fifth circuit court of appeals at New Orleans, denied the last application for a certificate of probable cause which would have delayed McCall's execution.

Judge Foster said attorneys had not shown sufficient reasons for obtaining the certificate.

E. C. Rutledge, Avrett's associate, told the court McCall had been intimidated by federal agents when he confessed that he snatched the cash child from his parents' home last May and held $10,000 ransom after the child was dead.

Judge Foster said no evidence had been brought by anyone to prove the allegation, and that for the fact of it there was probable cause why the certificate should be issued.

Issuance of the certificate would have permitted McCall attorneys an appeal to the Florida supreme court for a reason of the case. The state court already has affirmed the death sentence and declined to interfere with the execution.

Governor Clegg said yesterday he had asked Prison Superintendent Chapman to delay McCall's death because "there was a constitutional question involved that I wanted to clear up."

Chapman said he acted on the governor's request under provisions of the death law which fixed the week of Feb. 20 for the execution, leaving the exact date to be selected by the prison superintendent.

The celery industry operated last year under an AAA marketing agreement and the volume for shipment was set weekly by a control committee composed of an even number of growers and shippers. The growers voted out this agreement in a referendum last July.

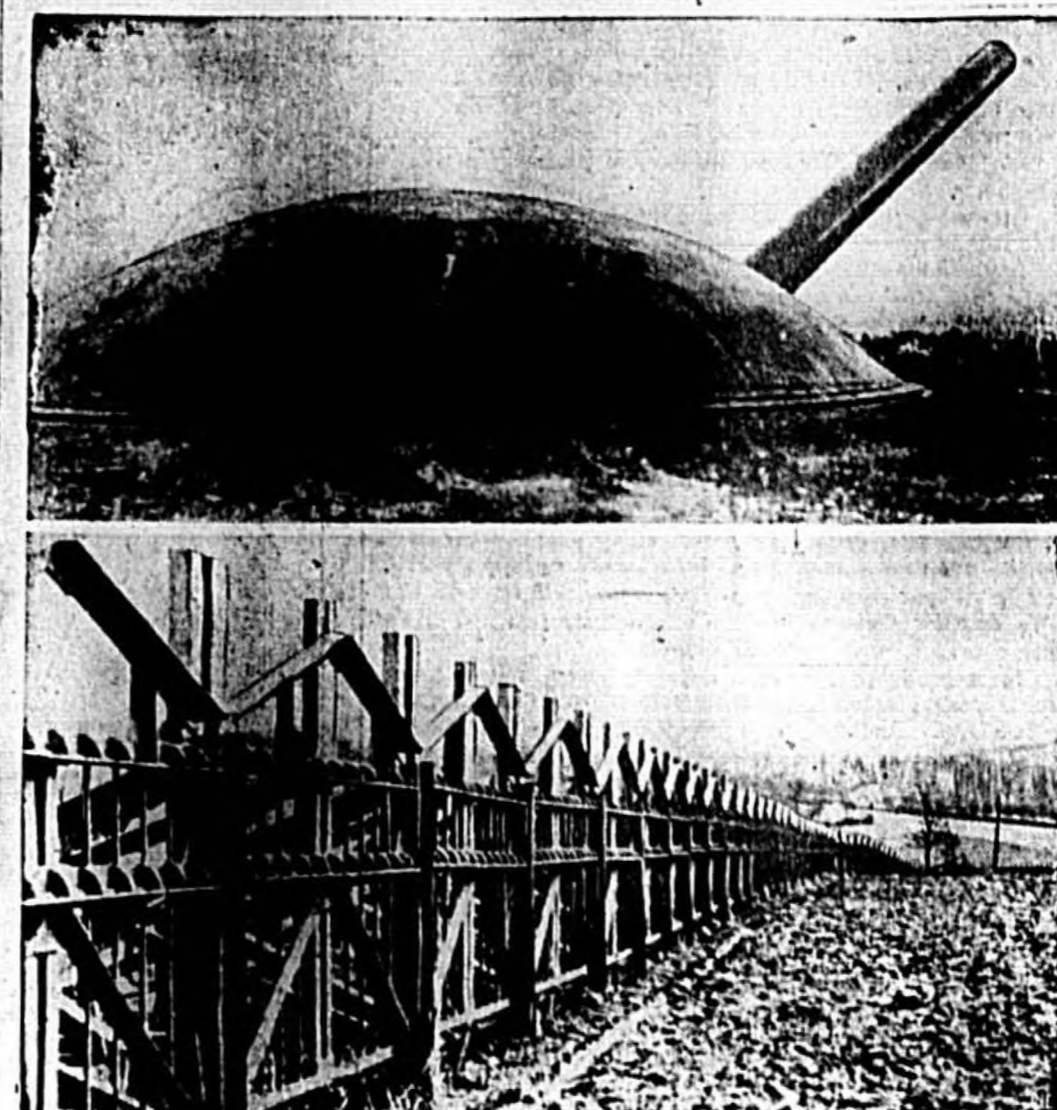

With the present demoralized condition of the celery market, limited celery farmers of the AAA soil conservation program which was approved by the Agriculture Adjustment Administration last fall as an emergency measure is still in effect. The program provides for payment of about $30 an acre for celery land planted to soil conserving crops up to about 15 percent of the total acreage.

The program was designed to reduce the Florida acreage sufficiently to prevent a surplus in the commodity.

Agent Dawson declared that the program "was not intended as a plug-up program, but since there is no definite date for compliance, farmers may still take advantage of this offer." He cautioned growers, however, to contact his office before compliance with the program was made. When asked about the degree of compliance, Mr. Dawson said he would rather not divulge this information.

Many Proposals Are Expected At Celery Meeting

Farmers Told Acreage Reduction Program Is Still Available

Many proposals for the stabilization of the celery industry are expected to be offered at the mass meeting of growers and shippers in the Court House tonight when the industry will decide upon a plan for controlling the shipping volume during the peak of the season.

Declaring that Seminole County is by far the leading producer of celery at this time of the season, Gus Schmitt, president of the Seminole County Agricultural Association, declared that if some method of controlling shipments to prevent a glutted market could be worked out in this county, the serious condition now existing could be alleviated.

The celery industry operated last year under an AAA marketing agreement and the volume for shipment was set weekly by a control committee composed of an even number of growers and shippers. The growers voted out this agreement in a referendum last July.

With the present demoralized condition of the celery market, limited celery farmers of the AAA soil conservation program which was approved by the Agriculture Adjustment Administration last fall as an emergency measure is still in effect. Plans Made For Annual Meet Of Audubon Society

LAKELAND, Feb. 23.—(AP)—The Weather Bureau today forecast another night of low air temperatures, with light to moderate snow or sleet, and a few rain showers, Friday, with a cold to the end of the week.

The Bureau's next advisory service said temperatures tonight and tomorrow morning might be as low as 10 degrees below zero, with a high of 15 degrees.

Report from the U. S. Fish and Wildlife Service, released by Lake H. Storer, of Washington, Mo., said that just now, when the water is still open, the birds are beginning to migrate.

Another feature of the meeting which will hold special appeal to scattered people will be the illustrated talks by Jack Russell and M. H. Taylor, former Sanford men who recently graduated from the University of Florida and who have consistently maintained a keen interest in bird and land life, and has spent considerable time studying birds on the coast of the Bahamas.

Two field trips, which are part of the program, will both be held in Seminole County. One of them will be a local trip on the 24th to Lake Wales, where the birds are beginning to migrate.

The regular monthly meeting of the club will be held in the Elk Hall Friday night (Continued on Page Seven)

Bullitt Declares In Paris U. S. Isolation Policy Ended

CHATHAM, Mass., Feb. 23.—(AP)—An organized search was abandoned today for an unnamed vessel which yesterday flashed a sudden SOS, reporting she had been torpedoed near the Azores, and the beleaguered affair appeared likely to be recorded as another mystery of the sea.

No trace of the vessel was found and her call letters were not listed in the registry of any nation.

British Prime Minister Chamberlain was pictured in Rome today as preparing to mediate issues between France and Italy as both Chamberlain and French Premier Daladier made it clear that "appeasement" does not mean surrender.

A dispatch from London to the newspaper Il Popolo Di Roma quoted an "excellent" French informant as saying that overtures already had been made for a plan Chamberlain is preparing to settle Italy, as yet unofficially, as a reward for colonial concessions from France.

Maneuvers of the French in both Italy and France denied the reports of clashes of Italian and French soldiers last Friday in Tunis.

France continued efforts looking toward the recognition of the bourgeois regime in Spain.

In Paris last night United States Ambassador Bullitt disclosed that America's geographical isolation was ended and that the United States was rearming to defend its democratic institutions.

The ambassador spoke at the American club's Washington birthday banquet in the presence of Premier Daladier and other members of the French cabinet.

The ambassador said the protection bestowed on the United States by the Atlantic and Pacific oceans in Washington's day no longer existed.

"At this moment the minds of Americans are dealing slowly and carefully with important problems," he said. "A growing apprehension that if there should be war in Europe we might be drawn into it is causing much thought at home. Indeed, never in my experience has the discussion of foreign affairs been so widespread or so intelligent. The discussion is thoroughly realistic. Only a negligible number of fanatics are arguing in terms of 'isms.' Americans as a people sustain religion and not religious wars."

One cheering feature about Prime Minister Chamberlain's recent address to Parliament on the armaments race, is that apparently the world is all going to hell together.

Hard times do not mean that there is not plenty of hard work to do. As a matter of fact, it seems that there is more than ever. The trouble is getting paid for it.

Another silly thing, it seems to us, with respect to the cross state canal, is the fact that they spent over five million dollars on the project before it was ever authorized by Congress.

We see where Britain and France are planning to recognize Gen. Franco. We rather imagine they had been hoping they wouldn't be able to after the Loyalists got through with them. But it seems that President Azana is the one they can't recognize.

The Commerce Department, now that Harry Hopkins, champion New Dealer, is head in hand, has reversed a former ruling and come out in favor of that "fally" Cross State Canal. It seems that another boat has been put on the New York to Galveston run since 1931 and it won't be the canal either.

Indicating that the tourist business is fairly good on the lower West Coast at least, the Fort Myers News Press says that perhaps the reason President Roosevelt decided to pass up that section on his visit to Florida was because he tried to get a room down there.

Avoiding Eye-Strain

As this is national "Save Your Vision Week", it might not be a bad idea to celebrate the occasion by having your eyes examined by a good eye specialist, and if you need glasses, have your eyes properly fitted for them.

Many people put off the wearing of glasses long after they need them. Very few people realize their need of glasses at first, and frequently do not have their eyes examined until some real and permanent damage has been done.

Unfortunately the need for glasses does not manifest itself by a hard snap in the face or a swift kick in the pants. The earliest symptoms are often no more obvious than an occasional slight headache, which you think probably came from something you ate, or a feeling of wooziness when you read which you probably attribute to dullness of the author.

The advantage in obtaining glasses at the earliest opportunity after the need for them arises, and consequently the importance of recognizing this need immediately, lies in the fact that, as with anything else, proper care of the eyes will serve to check more serious trouble in later life.

A person who needs glasses for reading may, if he obtains them early enough and wears them when reading, avoid the necessity of having to wear them all the time. If he postpones wearing them when he reads, in a few years, his eyes are likely to deteriorate until he will have to wear them continuously.

We hear people say that wearing glasses, particularly with young people, is a fad, that many people wear them who do not really need them, that wearing glasses gets to be a habit and that once you start it you will have to keep it up, or that if you wear them occasionally you will all the sooner have to wear them all the time.

It is probably true that a great many more young people wear glasses today than was the case a generation or two ago. But it is also true that young people are likely to use their eyes a great deal more than the young people of the nineteenth century.

When America was largely agricultural and the average man spent his life plowing his fields and going to bed when the sun went down, there were few people indeed among them who suffered from eye strain. Industrial work of today where even the unskilled laborer may spend a great deal of his time watching minute parts of complicated machinery presents more of a problem for one who wishes to go without glasses.

Reading itself has increased tremendously. Education has advanced and with it the opportunities to read. Newspaper circulations have increased a thousand fold. Magazines are more popular. The demands upon public libraries are infinitely greater. Where the day used to end with the sundown, it now is more than likely to last until sun-up. Eyes are needed for attendance at moving picture theaters, unheard of two generations ago.

And so in modern times it is necessary to take greater care of the eyes than ever before. If you would have them last out a rapidly increasing average span of life, take care of them. Have them examined at least once every four or five years. Wear glasses as you need them.

What About It?

What is America going to do about such things as happened in New York City the other night when some 20,000 American Nazis met in Madison Square Garden and in effect pledged allegiance to Adolf Hitler and all the un-American ideals and activities which he represents?

If it had not been for the thousands of police who stood shoulder to shoulder around the Garden and who were held in reserve at advantageous points where they could do the most good, a hundred thousand other Americans who picketed the place would have made short work of them.

As it was there was considerable disorder. A Jewish boy got beyond the police lines and heckled Fritz Kuhn, was attacked by "Storm Troopers" and badly beaten before he could be rescued by police. The famous newspaper columnist, Miss Dorothy Thompson, had to be escorted out by police to avoid probably a similar fate.

At the present time it appears that the New York demonstration is but the forerunner of more serious clashes to come. Fritz Kuhn boasts a million men for his organization by 1940. The more he gets, the more trouble there will be both for him and for the American public.

Should the United States abandon its traditional policy of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly, and prohibit such un-American gatherings, or should it tolerate these Nazi meetings and make the best of the turmoil they are bound to generate?

BRANDEIS STOOD LIKE A LIGHTHOUSE

By WILLIS THORNTON

Among the gravest necessities of government at the moment is the finding of a successor to Justice Brandeis on the U. S. Supreme Court who can approximately fill his shoes.

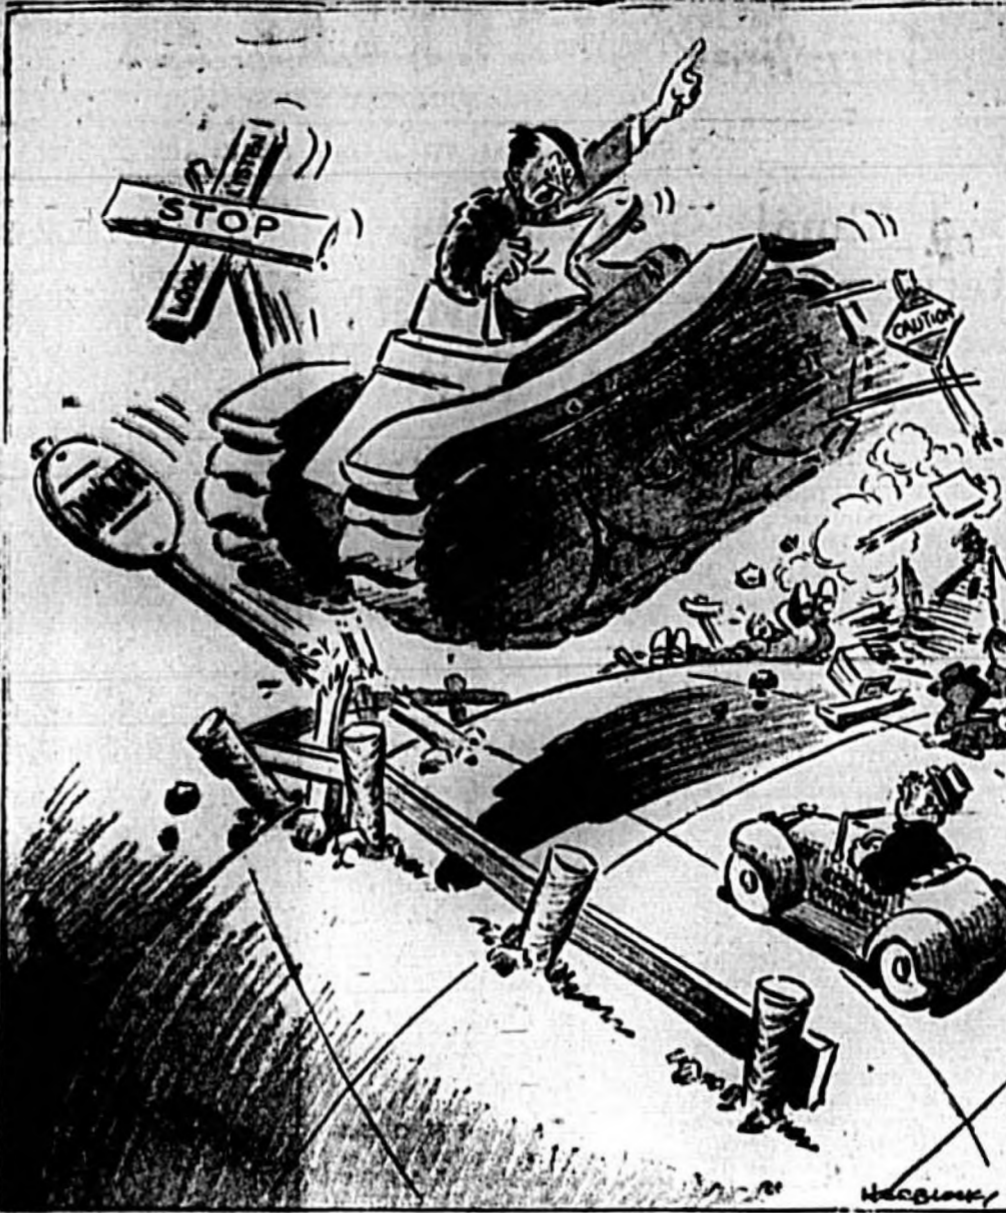

In integrity, in steadfast adherence to fundamental principles, Justice Brandeis has stood for more than 20 years like a great lighthouse unmoved by the currents and tides of American life which whirled about his feet.

That is not to say that Brandeis was aloof from life. It is merely to say that the current of American legal thought has passed alternately to the right and left of Brandeis' position, which has always remained grounded unshakably on the rock of the Constitution and the Declaration of Independence.

Today it is interesting to note the comment on his passing from the active judicial scene, because some of the honest and most obviously sincere regrets are being expressed in conservative quarters.

Yes when Brandeis was nominated to the court by Woodrow Wilson, a Congressman who had tried what up from almost the beginning of the nation, Mr. Brandeis was the only one of the American

HITLER TELLS GERMANS 'RECKLESS DRIVING IS A CRIME'

Quiz Winners To Be Announced At Theatre Monday

Most motion picture audiences will be interested in National Announcement Night, that will be held in motion picture theaters throughout the country Monday evening, Feb. 27, for this day will be truly remembered by 5,401 persons—winners of the $250,000 Movie Quiz Contest. On this occasion announcement of the winners will be made from the stages or screens of all motion picture theatres that have participated in the campaign that marked Motion Pictures' Great Year.

Manager J. L. Marentette of the Ritz Theatre will celebrate this occasion by announcing the names of all national prize winners from the $50,000 first prize, $25,000 second prize, $10,000 prize winners, $5,000 prize winners, down to the $1000 successful contestants. In addition all local prize winners will be announced. Should winners be present in the theatres, certified checks, issued by the Chemical Bank & Trust Company of New York, will be presented to them on this occasion.

The judges of the contest are: Mrs. Ogden Reid, Dr. James E. West, Mrs. Helen Willis Moody, the Honorable Bruce Barton and Mrs. Hendrik Willem van Loon.

In the selection of the winning letters, the entries were considered without signature and identified by a key number. In that way even the judges did not know the names of the successful contestants until after they made their selections.

The motion picture industry is proud of the success of this contest and the manner in which it was judged. Although a tremendous task, because of the large number of entries, each one was carefully checked by a staff of experts, and through a process of elimination the letters were graded and then considered by the judges.

also or fear, may be prone in the future, as it has often been in the past, to stamp an disloyal opinions with which it differs.

One justice for all men, rich or poor—that stamps the great judge, Justice Brandeis has been a great judge, and the good wishes of many who once hated and feared him follow him into whatever fields of activity he chooses for his remaining years.

Choosing Brandeis was one of Woodrow Wilson's best moves yet. To choose a worthy successor in one of Franklin Roosevelt's most pressing duties.

The Farther Back, The More Belligerent

By WILLIS THORNTON

The man in the grandstand is always the one who hollers loudest for the team to give a leg for Old Siwash. The man in the back row is always the one loudest in demand that the wrestler break his opponent's leg off and throw it in his face.

War talk is a little like that, too. The vehemence of the demand that somebody get in there and stop Germany last Fall was almost in inverse ratio to the distance from Berlin.

That is why it is so interesting to find Eudard Benes, the former president of Czechoslovakia during all the tentativeness of the Munich settlement, talking quite quietly and calmly on his arrival in the United States to teach some university courses. At no time since his arrival have Dr. Benes' replies matched in fervor the almost hysterical questions that have been put to him.

Is war absolutely inevitable, as some insist? Not at all, says the calm Dr. Benes. There is great danger of war, of course, but it is not in the least inevitable. It all depends on the leaders and governments involved. "In my opinion, war can always be avoided," said the indomitable little Czechoslovakian leader.

Really, here is something to make ashamed the doubters of democracy, the pessimists who give up on peace and decency simply because they have had a series of setbacks. Listen to the man who, perhaps more than any other individual, has suffered from the misfortunes of a Europe in which orderly procedure has broken down: "The United States—as a state and nation, and your citizens as individuals—represented for me always that perfect fighter who knows that life is sometimes difficult, but who knows also that in human life there should be a room for despair or pessimism. Man, as long as he is alive, must never give up optimistic idealism. He must never, even if he sees the real situation in rather dark colors, cease to hope for better times, and he must, most of all, never cease to work for them, and never be discouraged on his way by ill success."

Brave Benes! Here is the fighter, back from the thick of the fight, bloody, but unbowed! And yet some how who have never yet felt a blow! Faint-hearted ones who cringe before our many difficulties, who bow before an "inevitable" collapse, an "inevitable" war, take renewed courage from such as Benes! The very air is better to breathe because courage like that has come to our shores!

Elvira Garner Reads Tales About Sanford

Mrs. Elvira Garner read from her "Way Down in Sanford, Florida" tales Tuesday afternoon in the parlor of Chaudron dormitory at Stetson University, DeLand.

She illustrated her talk with whimsical minute sketches of Kachel, "Manelation," and her other characters which she called "work of a can't draw artist," and announced that she is writing a new story with a little white girl included in the characters.

The illustrations of Mrs. Garner's "Workations" of Mrs. Garner's life for a little colored girl's face is comparatively simple, being just a blob of ink, but a white child's is something else.

Tea was served at 4:00 o'clock from a beautifully appointed table centered with a large bowl of red and white snap dragons. NATURE'S WAYS

Edited By C. R. Mason, President Audubon Society

"Flying flowers"—surrounded by colorful bloom—was the description given by Mrs. C. E. Mason of gardeners filled with birds and butterflies, when she spoke on Friday morning on "Knowing the Birds in Our Gardens" before the Rose Circle of the Sanford Garden Club. The meeting was held at the home of Mrs. Augusta D. Covington in Ovidale.

Mrs. Mason mentioned the "friendliness of a garden where one can enjoy the companionship of bees, birds, and butterflies" and told how birds can be coaxed to linger by feeding them the proper food, describing what food they like best, she urged the provision of fresh water and proper feeding shelves, and exhibited several ideal houses and feeders.

Mrs. Covington was elected chairman, and Mrs. E. B. Stone, vice-chairman of the circle, both by a unanimous vote. The meeting was presided over by the outgoing chairman, Mrs. Walter S. Coleman.

Mrs. Kent Rosetter, general chairman of the annual flower show requested that members be considering window arrangements, shade boxes, and arrangements for tea, luncheon, and dinner tables. She announced there will be sections for displaying roses, saved peonies, annuals, perennials, and potted plants.

Horticulture chairman, Mrs. J. H. Colclough read from "Subjects made by Mrs. R. A. Newman, Mrs. George A. DeCotte, and Mrs. G. D. Bishop, co-chairmen. The former, chairman of the Junior Garden Club, also spoke of the magnolia planted on the grounds of the Southside School by the club.

Mrs. W. H. Tunncliffe donated an attractive basket for the books and flowers, which are exchanged in the circle.

Bank Clerk's Wife Dubbed Typical Consumer In U. S.

NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—(AP)—"Backbone of the nation" is what the Dry Goods Association's managing director called Mrs. J. Richard Powell in dubbing her Mrs. Typical Consumer.

She's a 32-year-old bank clerk's wife who finds that being "just naturally a little suspicious" helps a lot in shopping for bargains.

When the Powells were wed 11 years ago, they both had jobs. Along came the kids—a boy now 10 and a girl now 5—and the depression, and Mrs. Powell learned how four can live as cheaply as one, even in New York.

Shaking Every Penny Count—Here's how she manages it: One week's pay covers one month's rent on an apartment with two bedrooms, a parlor, kitchen and bath. Another week's pay more than covers a month's food. That leaves about two weeks' pay for everything else that adds up in a month.

For step into her tiny parlor and hear how Mrs. Typical Consumer handles three big items:

LAUNDRY—She talks her husband into wearing shirts with detachable collars so that she can wash and iron the shirts herself and send the collars out. She has no margin for ironing sheets, but she makes them look nice by hemming about 12 inches at the top of each one.

CLOTHING—She reads the ads (the Powells get both a morning and an evening newspaper), noting especially the details given in small type, and thinks nothing of buying five pairs of shoes at once when she spots a bargain. Frequently she gets good material and makes her own dresses rather than buy them ready-made.

FOOD—She buys two quarts of Grade A milk, a quart for the children and five quarts of Grade B a week for cooking.

(From Lord & Taylor, New York) Little Sister and Litter Sister look as chic as Mother as they promenade in their matching coats and new bonnets. The high pockets are an especially "grown-up" style touch. Little Sister's reefer, of herringbone tweed, is in stone gray, and Litter Sister's is in tan.

She chooses cheap cuts of meats, she shells her own peas. And she uses a steam cooker to cook meat and vegetables at the same time.

Worked Out Own Budget—When Mrs. T. C. began budgeting, she consulted the pamphlets put out by banks and insurance companies, but discarded them because those plans called for saving more or putting more into insurance than she felt she could afford. So she made up her own budget.

The Powells have an auto because she doesn't see how they could get along without one, and they don't figure on saving much money. Their theory is that some day the income will be larger.

Records Reveal Foster May Have Visited Florida

Did Stephen Collins Foster, to whom a magnificent memorial will be begun this winter on the banks of the Suwannee River—the famous "Swanee" throughout the world, ever see the Suwannee, or ever visit Florida at all?

His descendants say no. Historians say no.

But little by little facts and proofs are piling up which show that Foster used the name "Swannee" in his most famous song because he knew and loved that particular north-Florida river, and was familiar with the cotton plantations that used to line its banks.

W. D. Cash, the state historian, now long past his seventieth year, says he's almost incontrovertible proof—that Foster knew from experience the scene he described in "Swannee River." An old boarding house register has recently come to light, Mr. Cash said, which contains the name of Stephen Collins Foster in his own handwriting. Foster's signature is in the old register—in 1860—four years before he died. Both the hotel and the town, which was called Columbus, have disappeared, but the site where the town used to stand is approximately across the Suwannee from the modern village of Ellersville.

An old copy of the Tallahassee Floridian, dated 1876, contains an article by an old Tallahassee resident who described the visit of a composer named Stephen Collins Foster, then famous for his negro songs, to the state capital some sixteen years previous to his writing. Foster had been dead two to five years when this article was printed, but the writer of it maintained that he had met Foster on that long-ago visit, and still recalled bits of conversation that had passed between them.

Other rumors are afloat in Florida pertaining to that same visit. There is a very old man at Ocoee who says he remembers discussions of a visit made to that section by a composer named Foster, and that he heard when a very small child of a certain famous rock beside the Suwannee where Foster sat and meditated.

New Cane Varieties Increase Sugar Yield

CLEWISTON, Feb. 23.—The discovery of new varieties of cane giving a better production balance enabled the United States Sugar Corporation to reach the highest average yield this year in the history of Florida, Jay W. Moran, vice-president of the Corporation, stated last week.

On Feb. 4, the ninety-fourth day of the present season, a new all-time high grinding record of 3,519 tons of cane were put through the crushers, and most of the heavy-harvested cane is yet to be cut. The old type of cane matured late and had to be cut before it had reached maturity and had attained top sugar yield. The new varieties now planted give better balance by having some ripeness early, some in mid-season and some late, enabling the corporation to attain maximum yield.

Book Critic Reveals Entire Mystery Plot

LONDON.—(AP)—Mystery story readers, who rival in card-sharper-covered crime, are mad enough to slay a London book critic who deliberately revealed the entire plot, secret clues and solution of a best seller.

The critic took the drastic step as a protest against "light reading" and persons who fritter away their time by reading because they have nothing better to do.

But the plot back-lashed. One librarian said sales of the book which was laid bare immediately mounted. He said he didn't know why.

Sound Waves Put To Diverse Uses

TOLEDO, (AP)—A sound laboratory here finds that it can sour milk by sound waves and then reverse the process to sweeten the milk again.

Sound waves also can be produced to create nausea. As by-products of the loud-speaker field the laboratory has developed listening devices to find leaks in underground pipes and to locate ore bodies.

New Pope Will Be Vatican's Temporal Ruler For Catholics, Independent City Symbolizes Authority

The new Pope will be not only spiritual ruler of the world's 450,000,000 Roman Catholics but also temporal ruler of the world's smallest independent state—Vatican City.

The Vatican, where St. Peter's church is located, symbolizes the authority, dignity and power of the church.

Since Constantine I began construction of a magnificent basilica over the tomb of the first Roman Bishop, St. Peter, in the early fourth century, new buildings and additions have added to the size and splendor of the site.

Once a hill where Christians were martyred, the Vatican now is a city of medieval splendor and renaissance art. It has its own government, its own police and courts, and its own railroad and radio stations.

A treaty negotiated by Pope Pius XI with the Italian kingdom in 1929 established the Vatican as an independent state and the 440 persons living on its 138.7 acres are Vatican citizens living under the Vatican flag—a white and yellow banner charged with crossed keys and triple stars.

The residents live in Belvedere Palace at the rear of the papal gardens. They spend Vatican money—first coined in 1931—on the new Vatican postage stamps.

Governor Rana City

Although the Pope is temporal ruler of the domain, he appoints a governor charged with the protection of property, the maintenance of public order and hygiene, and ordinary relations with the church. The Secretary of State acts as the Vatican's chief political organ.

Four branches of the colorful Pontifical Armed Corps carry out the city's police duties. They are the Noble Guards, chosen from nobility; the Pontifical Swiss Guard, the Pontifical Guard of Honor, and the Pontifical Gendarmerie.

The impressiveness of the Piazza St. Peter's Square at the main entrance to the city carries on throughout the entire state. The building is more awe-inspiring than St. Peter's basilica, built and decorated during the 16th century to replace the original Constantinian basilica. Its huge colonades represent Christ opening his arms to receive in a protective embrace his millions of children spread all over the world.

Several Palace Additions

The 1,000-room papal palace, although the chambers of the Pope are relatively simple, has been added to and beautified during nearly every Pontificate since the pape finally was transferred back to Rome from Avignon in 1367.

Theistine Chapel, where Cardinals elect the Pope, is one of the most famous buildings in the city, its beauty enhanced by the famous frescoes

Political Satire Lays 'Em In The Aisles In London

By WILLIAM McGAFFIN
LONDON, Feb. 23.—(AP)—A left-wing people's theater is laying 'em in the aisles nightly with "Babes in the Wood"—one of the most biting political satires ever seen in England.

Retelling, in the framework of a nursery story, the tragedy of Czechoslovakia, the play takes bitter aim at Neville Chamberlain, Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini, the Cliveden set—and even the King and Queen of England.

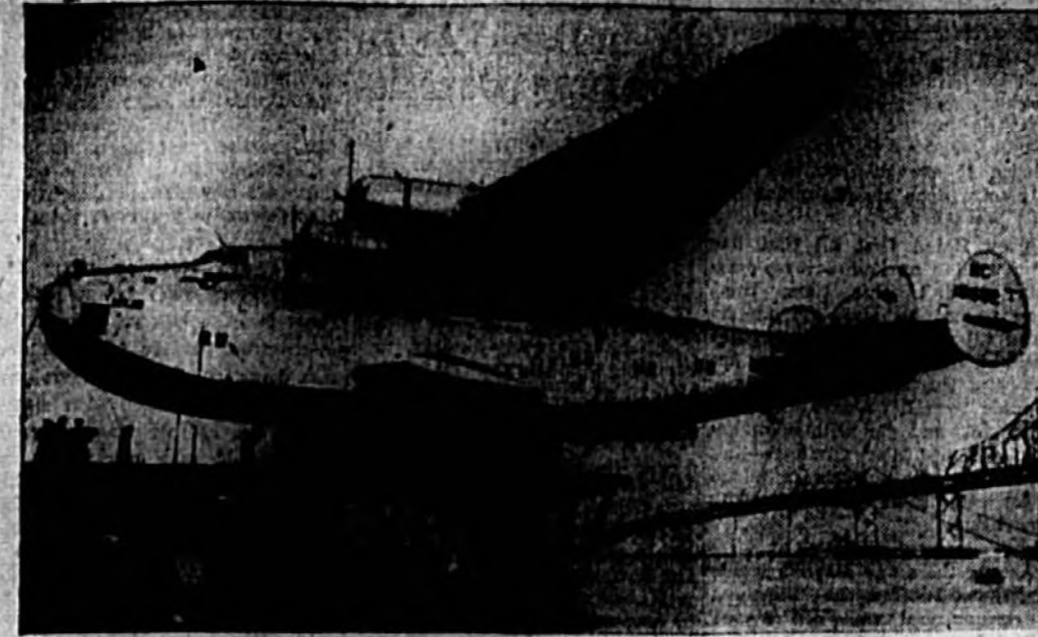

The plot concerns the machinations of "the wicked uncle," a glib old gentleman, with two avicious, land-hungry robbers.

Unlike the Czechoslovak incident, however, the play has a happy ending—thanks to the timely intervention of brave Robin Hood. By "educating" and uniting the people, Robin prevents uncle's from forcing his little charges to give their estate to the robbers—in return for the privilege of being allowed to go on living.

Although only 380 persons can be packed into the tiny Unity theater in north London, where the play is showing, 14,000 persons had seen the show up to a recent date and another 20,000 are expected before the run ends.

Like America's "Pins and Needles," it is an amateur production, put on by workers. It gets away with murder because the theater's a club (membership fee 50 cents, plus 25 to 62 cents for a ticket)—and thus out of reach of the censor.

Several leftist intellectuals are listed on the general council of the theater which says its aim is "to help in the terribly urgent struggle for world peace and better social and economic order and against fascism, by establishing a drama which deals with realities and reflects contemporary life, instead of plays which merely provide a dream world of escape and at best depict false ideas of life."

Just wheel it into the hangar, boys. Easy to say, but not easy to do when you're handling the world's largest commercial seaplane, 42-ton Boeing clipper No. 18 of the Pan-American Airways, shown above being brought ashore at Treasure Island air terminal in San Francisco for a checkup before going into trans-Pacific service. A combined railroad and elevator does the trick.

Harmonizing Fabrics Are In Demand For Women's Wardrobes

By ADELAIDE KERR
"Scene-shifter clothes" are playing all over the fashion stage.

Stage directions specify a variety of clothes all made of the same or harmonizing fabrics and then call for rapid shifts, according to the time, the place and the scene to be played.

The wardrobe may be large or small. For instance, a set of scene-shifter sports clothes consists of seven pieces—shirt, slacks, shorts, knee-length shorts, skirt, cardigan and bush jacket—all made of lightweight 7-ounce gabardine in such colors as wheat beige, leaf green, rose, medium blue, navy blue and rust brown. You assemble the pieces you want for the scenes in which you will appear, in colors to match or contrast—and then the fun begins.

Badminton To Boating

You shift from shorts to slacks as you switch from badminton to boating. You shift into a skirt for that unexpected trip to the village where shorts and slacks are taboo and shift again to a bush jacket as the wind shifts to the northeast.

Suits and sport frocks make more scene-shifted clothes. In this skit, directions call for a tailored tweed suit and tailored shirtwaist blouse and separate skirt of light-weight gabardine (turquoise, beige, rust, green or wine). Wear the gabardine blouse and skirt with your tweed jacket and you are dressed for a spectator sports scene; switch to the tweed suit and gabardine blouse and you are costumed for town, country or travel.

For Bright Spots

When the scene shifts to the swift tempo of the town's bright spots you can provide for quick costume changes with a suit which has two skirts—one short, the other long. Have the suit of soft wool, crepe or more. Wear it with the short skirt and your smartest blouse to make a

Cobb Finds More Profit In Coupons Than In Baseball

Baseball Figure Recalls His Biggest Thrill On Diamond

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23. (AP)—Among the everests recommended for the more mature athlete is that of clipping coupons off long-edge bonds. Ty Cobb no longer knocks 'em over the fence or outruns an infielder's throw to first, but he wields an expert pair of scissors. And those who know something of his highly successful investments say that scissors bring the Georgia Peach a better income than his baseball prowess ever did.

Cobb clips coupons, plays golf and goes hunting and fishing. But the man who still holds more baseball records than any other player likes to let his mind run back to those days with the Detroit Tigers when he was the outstanding attraction of the diamond.

His biggest thrill was coming in his career, when he was a raw-boned, 160-pound kid of 17. The Tigers and the Philadelphia Athletics were in a neck-and-neck race for the pennant. The teams met in a crucial series.

"We were behind 9 to 7 when I came up in the ninth inning," Cobb relates. "We had one man on base, but there were two out.

"Rube Waddell was pitching and there were two strikes and two balls on me. Then I made a guess, and it was the only time I ever tried to guess in a baseball game.

"I just figured he was going to pitch me a fast one, and when Waddell started to wind up I started to swing. The ball went over the fence.

"Well, that tied the score, of course, and it stayed tied until the game was called on account of darkness after the 17th inning. But the Athletics tried up all their pitchers, while Wally Pile's troupe, which had Suzanne Lenglen as the star attraction, was the first big-money professional tennis enterprise.

"In the next series, the Athletics lost to Cleveland because of lack of pitchers, while we took four straight from Washington and won the pennant.

"Yes, that was my only guess in baseball."

Hazel's Sons May Again Bring Name To Grid Spotlight

MARSHALL, Mich., Feb. 23. (AP)—Fifteen years ago the name Hazel was on the tip of every football fan's tongue and that day may come again if the sons of the first gridder ever to achieve All-America recognition at two different positions approach their father's athletic feats.

Homer Hazel, the father who won acclaim at Rutgers, today is the personnel director of the Easton Manufacturing Company plant here while his sons, Lawrence, 20, and William, 18, are freshman athletes at the University of Mississippi, a school their father served as athletic director and head football coach for five years. Both boys are guards.

As a junior at Rutgers in 1923, Homer Hazel was placed at end on the late Walter Camp's mythical All-America. The following season he was switched to fullback and was again picked by Camp. Only one other athlete, "Bronko" Nagurski, of Minnesota, achieved the distinction of winning All-America rating at two positions, having been picked at tackle in 1928 and at fullback in 1929.

Hazel's brilliant career started in 1912 when he entered Montclair Academy at Montclair, N. J. He entered Rutgers in 1916, was married and left college in March, 1917, and did not return until 1922 when he was made a special student until the Fall of 1923. Hazel started in football, basketball, baseball and track the next two years.

Immediately after graduation, Hazel went to Mississippi, coaching successfully until 1930 when he was succeeded by Edgar Lee Walker who remained until the Spring of 1933.

Huskies Are Driven To New York Fair

WINNIPEG, Canada, Feb. 23. (AP)—Driving a string of huskies from the frigid northland, Leland (Eakino) Abbott, 29-year-old Harrold Lands guide, and Hector Deppins, 23, are on the second leg of a 2,776-mile jaunt to New York.

The two men, who normally wear the parkies of the Hudson Bay country, are traveling through civilized territory with their usual equipment of the trail: a train of seven native dogs, an Alaskan sled, tent, sleeping bags and grub box. They made the first lap of their journey, from the Pas to Winnipeg, 470 miles, in three weeks.

Dressed in the colorful garb of beaded parkies, breeches and mukluks (Eakino's Eskimo footwear), they plan to ride their sled to New York by April 1. They'll use wheels on the led wherever their route isn't covered with snow. They expect to make 25 miles a day.

They're interested in the conservation projects of Ducks Unlimited and carry a banner on their sled with the legend "From The Arctic Nesting Gryppins Of Ducks Unlimited To The New York World's Fair." Events they will make several talks on conservation at school.

Johnston Doesn't Regret Refusal To Turn Professional

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 23. (AP)—Other players of his caliber have made fortunes out of tennis by turning professional, but Little Bill Johnston doesn't regret the day he looked a big offer in the face—and turned it down.

"Of course, I could use the money," he mused, in the San Francisco office where he handles a patented lock nut, "but really, I never think about the matter."

Johnston was at the peak of his long and brilliant net career when he was offered a contract with "Cash and Carry" Pyle's troupe, which had Suzanne Lenglen as the star attraction, was the first big-money professional tennis enterprise.

Laudatory editorials followed Johnston's decision to remain an amateur. Since then other leading amateurs—Tilden, Vines, Perry, Budig—have weighed the same question and decided otherwise. They cashed in.

Johnston started winning tennis championships in 1909 and kept it up for 18 years. He has held nearly every important championship here and in England and has been on seven victorious Davis cup teams.

Fans probably remember him best for the tournaments in which he and Big Bill Tilden fought it out.

"The matches I remember best are those long tough ones with Tilden," he said. "The Frenchmen played against Cochet and his mates when they were at their peak) were not so bad.

"It's hard to say just how Budig and Vines compare with him, but I don't believe Tilden has been surpassed.

As to the moot question of Wills vs. Lenglen, Johnston said: "I'm in a great admiration of Helen Wills, but that French girl—Vines! He shook his head to indicate he admired Lenglen's play even more.

Johnston admits that such fall fellows as Tilden, Vines and Budig have an advantage over shorter men. He himself is 5 feet 8 1/2 inches.

Today Little Bill has given up the sport even for fun. He speaks of his exploits rather shyly, and prefers not to pose for pictures with his racquets or trophies.

Will Strife In Spain Brewed For Over Five Years

... Has Led Results To Many Victims In Campaign

By Associated Press
The time of revolution spent through five years of history before that mid-summer night, two and a half years ago, when Spain burst into war.

April 12, 1931, republicans won the municipal elections. A year later, King Alfonso XIII fled into exile and Spain became a republic, with a constitution providing for the separation of church and state and the election of large estates to the peasants.

The peasants, in seeking economic reform, effect tried Lollista, anathemas, executions, strikes, and riots rocked the country. To put down the "Reds," the government picked Gen. Francisco Franco, "wonder" of the army.

When Lollista won the parliamentary elections of February, 1932, Franco was "busted" to the civil command of the Canary Islands. One day early in 1933, President Azana inquired of him and was told: "He's guarded in the Canaries."

France, in civilian garb, "incidentally" gained passage on a tourist plane to Spain. And there, on Nov. 18, 1933, the garrisons revolted and seized political control. The revolt spread quickly, and flow to the Spanish mainland and took command at Cadix.

The insurgents—backed by churchmen and capitalists—most of northwest Spain, the Basque and Asturias regions. From there on, the course of the civil war falls into four major sections: 1. Government holds Madrid while the northern insurgent forces smashed through iron and steel.

San Sebastian. Franco's army—Moors, Foreign Legionnaires and Spanish regulars—drove north to consolidate insurgent territories in western Spain. A gathered-up Government army, mostly militia, drove itself west from Madrid to drive a wedge between the insurgent columns, and was turned back with heavy losses at Badajoz.

The insurgent army then turned east. By Oct. 21, 1933, they paused to relieve Rightist forces trapped in the Alcazar of Toledo. Franco was marching at Madrid. Even President Largo Caballero had donned a uniform and was in the trenches. Loyalist lines held at Madrid's main gates, though insurgent tanks and bombers hammered at the capital most of that first winter.

Ultimate Ruin Is Inevitable End For Gamblers, Mathematician Says

TAMPA, Feb. 22.—"Ultimate ruin" is the inevitable fate that faces all gamblers, if they gamble long enough, W. C. K. Brown, adult student at the University of Tampa, told the University Math club in a lecture in which he demonstrated his statement with the figures of mathematics.

"But the public does not realize this," he said. "The amateur or the occasional gambler is flush with the excitement of a temporary win, and the professional is controlled by the passion of gambling, so that cold figures mean nothing to him."

Pointing out that "this is a math lecture and not one on morals," Brown told the club gambling is simply a question of whether you can afford it financially—and financially it means ultimate ruin.

"Gambling is a process of alternate wins and losses," he explained. "If you gamble with only one person, you may continue until one of you is financially ruined. And that may end it."

"But the whole of society is your potential gambling opponent. Hence, your asset is only the amount of money you have to start with. But you must put that comparatively small amount up against the combined assets of all society."

"Suppose you start with $1,000. You may win $1,000 more—and keep gambling. But if you lose $1,000, you must stop. You are ruined. If you win $10,000, you can keep on. But you may lose $10,000, and that ends it."

"If you gamble, you are pitting your limited resources against the unlimited resources of society. In the simple game of tossing a coin, heads or tails, the chances are mathematically even that you'll win or lose. But eventually you or the other fellow will be ruined. Now, if you toss a coin against all society, or all of society who gambles, it will inevitably come your turn to be the one who is ruined. Even in a fair game, the chances are against you."

He said the betting on a basis of "double or quits" is stacked against the bettor. "Suppose you owe me $1. You propose a loss-up, 'double or quits' that is, you'll owe me $2 or nothing. I win. Then you owe me $2. You propose 'double or quits' again, and again—and still I win. Now you owe me $8. I'm beginning to feel good about it."

"Then—just one time—I lose. And I had to lose sometime. That one loss wipes out all my winnings. If all my capital were at stake, I would be ruined. Each individual bet was fair. But the series was unfair."

Experts say the wreckage found at Kilmouth came from ship that has long been under water and now is breaking up.

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa.—(AP)—Fragments of cork and wood washed up at Kilmouth, near East London, may solve one of the great mysteries of the sea—the fate of the 9,500-ton passenger ship Waratah, which disappeared in 1909 with 211 passengers between Durban and Capetown.

The Waratah was last seen off Port St. Johns by the Clah MacIntyre, the two ships exchanging signals.

Experts say the wreckage found at Kilmouth came from a ship that has long been under water and now is breaking up. The Waratah is the only large vessel lost in that neighborhood.

You are hereby directed to cease operations under said contracts immediately. Failure to comply will subject your license to suspension or revocation."

Agreeing that the present celery market is unfavorable and painting a dark picture for the future of the celery industry in Sanford section if there is a market collapse similar to last year's, the growers adopted this recommendation with only nine voting out of approximately 50 present.
