ARMING OF MERCHANT SHIPS CAN BE ACCOMPLISHED

Washington, D. C., March 9.—Senator Lewis, Democratic whip, will introduce a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the President "by virtue of his office has the right to protect international trade the same as interstate commerce."

The resolution is not expected to operate except as an expression of the sentiment of the senate if it is adopted.

The resolution further declares the President's authority is not related to the power to declare war, but it is derived from his right as head of the executive branch of the government.

President Wilson is believed to be in favor of the resolution, which would give him the power to arm merchant ships in case of a national emergency.

CONVENTION OF SHERIFFS IN SANFORD

SHERIFF BRADY INDUCES THEM TO HOLD NEXT MEETING HERE

The next convention of sheriffs of Florida will be held in Sanford. While at the meeting held in Jacksonville on Wednesday of this week Sheriff E. E. Brady of this city pictured the charms of this city so vividly that the sheriffs just couldn't resist giving the next meeting to Sanford.

There were several other cities after the convention but the sheriffs could not talk as fast as Sheriff Brady did he won out hands down. The convention brings the officials from every part of the state and it will be a grand opportunity to see the state.

AMERICA COULD END CONFLICT

JAPAN THINKS U. S. SHOULD GET IN THE GAME

Tokio, Japan, Feb. 8.—The diplomatic rupture between the United States and Germany was welcomed with enthusiasm throughout Japan. The press devoted columns to the telegraphic reports announcing the break and to the observations of diplomats and publicists on the situation.

Interviews given by prominent diplomats and navy officers to the press unanimously agreed that, as the American navy is one of the strongest in the world it would be an easy task to help crush the German fleet in the event of a declaration of war and thereby accelerate the progress of the great war.

The U. S. navy said the strength and useful effect of the American navy will be far revealing, especially in sweeping the German submarines from the Atlantic, the Mediterranean and the North Sea.

Thinks We Should Declare War. Too much liberalism and leniency has been shown Germany by the United States, according to the Asahi. If President Wilson did not take a decisive step, declare war on Germany and force her to give up her aggressive ambitions, he would not be able to realize his coveted lasting peace of the world.

Admiral Kato, minister of the navy, said that if the American navy took the offensive against the Germans it would surely be effective in sweeping the German navy from the international sea routes and stop the progress to the world's shipping interests.

Merchants China deferred the determination of the United States was a natural course of events of the war and now that America had openly declared her hostile attitude, it was needless to say that Germany would eventually be compelled to lay aside her arms and yield, abandoning her ambitions and aggressive designs. This was a cause of great gratification for the sake of the world and the peace and happiness of humanity.

Fears that the situation would affect the importation of Japanese silk caused a panic in the Yokohama silk market. Prices fell abruptly, causing losses estimated at $500,000. The directors closed the market. Merchants think the price not justified by conditions and believe Japan will eventually benefit by complications between the United States and Germany.

ONE HUNDRED CARS CELERY THIS WEEK

SANFORD CELERY IS BRINGING SPLENDID PRICES

Sanford celery continues to move and this week will witness about one hundred cars going north at good prices. The celery is smaller than usual but of fine flavor and quality and is bringing $2.50 per crates of 6, Sanford.

The crop that is being shipped now is mostly of the celery that was either planted after the cold spell or just before and was not touched enough to be hurt but the cold retarded the growth with the result that the celery is smaller than usual but the market wants Sanford celery and the chances are good for still prices all during the celery shipping season.

In fact the Sanford growers can be assured of good prices on everything they raise here this spring and summer as the markets are bare of green stuff and the cold spell of a week ago killed off the tender vegetables further north giving Florida a clear field in the next month.

The growers here have planted considerable green top celery and this is bound to bring better prices than ever before as it will come in on the bare market when there will be no other celery from any other source.

For The White Way. The Sanford Herald has ordered a White Way Post and it will be here in a few weeks and be installed in front of The Herald office where the public can see it every night. The post will be of the new style Colony post with the single globe light, which is the very latest type of street lighting.

Among The Theatres

"Pidgin Island"
Scenery of remarkable beauty is shown in "Pidgin Island," the Merto Yorke five part feature production starring Harold Lockwood and May Allison, which will be seen at the Star Theatre on Tuesday.

The story, which has been pictured by Fred J. Balshofer, from Harold McGrath's famous novel of the same name island on the rugged shores of the Canadian border, where woods and water form a wild scene making a proper background for the meeting of two such daring spirits as John Cranford, played by Mr. Lockwood, and Diana Wynne, played by Miss Allison. Both these young people are secret agents of the United States Customs Service in pursuit of their duties they meet with many strange adventures.

In one scene a great storm breaks after they have embarked on a treacherous lake to follow the smugglers. Their boats are capsized, and they are dashed against a rocky reef, to which they cling in terror as the waves dash over their heads.

Great praise is due to the right direction for this feature, and Director Fred J. Balshofer, with the stars and their supporting company.

journeyed many hundreds of miles in a specially chartered train to reach it. Historic Monterey, on the California coast was chosen as having the ideal combination of ruggedness and romance.

Mr. Lockwood as John Cranford has one of the strongest parts of his entire career, and Miss Allison in the fascinating part of Diana Wynne has an opportunity to fish, swim and hunt, and indulge generally in the outdoor life which appeals to her so strongly.

"Pidgin Island" is a screen play for those who have adventured, romanced and the outdoors.

He forces Fanny Adair, a widow, who has lost all her money, but has set out to the Pacific coast to find a fortune. She is supported by an all star cast including George Macdonald, Walter Allen, and George Macdonald.

Employees and guests alike, supposing that it is simply a quarrel between two lovers, do not interfere and try to restrain Donald from doing so. He, however, throws them off and follows the madman and his victim. The chase leads down the long fire escape, across an alley to the basement of an occupied house. Edward all the time threatening Patria with a knife, tries to barricade the door, and in doing so lets go of Patria who seizes the opportunity to run up the stairs to the attic, where she hides herself by rolling up in an old rug. Before Edward can find her Donald breaks in upon him and a terrific fight ensues. The drink crazed Edward drops his knife but he gets the upper hand of Donald and is about to recover the knife when Patria unrolls from the rug and seizes it in time to save her lover.

Patria has planned to return to Newport, with Fannie Adair and Captain Parr, by the Fall River line. Huroki, having coached Elaine for her part sends her on board disguised as an invalid in charge of a nurse. She has a stateroom on the upper deck next to the one reserved for Patria, who goes on board with Fanny, expecting to meet Donald there. That gentleman, however, has been arrested for assault on the complaint of Edward inspired by Huroki and misses the boat.

That night when Patria is on deck enjoying the moonlight she is thrown overboard by Huroki's hirelings. Elaine slips into Patria's stateroom where Fanny, trembling with fear awaits her and the nurse gives the alarm that her charge has escaped and jumped overboard. Patria seems doomed, but at the last moment Fanny throws a life preserver after her when Patria slips over her shoulders.

"Wanted—A Home"
Devotees of the motion picture will recall with pleasure the sweet-faced blonde girl who was the suffering heroine of "Shoes" and the maligned victim of society in "Saving the Family Name" and to the following Mary Mae Laren has related as a Bluebird playing lady, the news will be welcome that she will return to the Star Theatre on Wednesday in "Wanted—A Home," a third feature Lois Weber has created for her special exploitation. This time Miss Mae Laren plays the role of an orphan girl, compelled to begin early in life the battle for an existence, against great odds, she struggles to live righteously and still cloth and feed herself in semblance of respectability and wholesomeness, succeeding unexpectedly in winning the battle and "living happy ever after."

At The Lyric
No photodrama of recent years has created so profound an impression as the production which is coming here to the Lyric Theatre Monday evening, "Where Are My Children?" The obvious title itself is a forerunner of thought which unconsciously reveals the theme of the play. "Where Are My Children?" is founded on the Biblical text, "The Slaughter of the Innocents" and was prepared by a true genius of the screen, Lois Weber, with the purpose of awakening a great people into the knowledge of the suppression of child-labor. It presents says Berisad Maschuden, the prominent physical culturist, "a great moral lesson that is most tragically needed in this foolish, besotted age."

"Fortunately within the present generation there has sprung up the intelligent feeling that to have a gelfully prepared to assume the responsibilities of womanhood and motherhood, it is necessary to commence early with the enlightenment of the mysteries which surround birth and the child. It is here that heretofore from the most morbid and which has been a whisper among the laboring class. But notwithstanding these are hindrances, it is an unqualified type of fathers who consider it to even allow their children to tread upon their own ground."

"Where Are My Children?" has been applauded by the clergy as "The most powerful sermon with which humanity may combat insidious crime."

Farmers and Fruit Growers

Items of Interest for the Man Behind the Plow

There is Money in Bees
 "Every farmer who does not keep a few colonies of bees is overlooking a valuable source of income," says F. L. Stirling of the State Plant Board at the University of Florida. In the interior districts of the state, beekeepers have colonies that produce as many as fifty pounds of surplus honey from orange blossoms, which retails in northern markets for twenty-five cents a pound or more. The colonies will put out new swarms which will also make honey and add to the value of the colony and its product.

Any part of Florida where citrus, palmetto, Spanish clover, partridge, pea or tubulo grows in abundance will make a very good bee section. The northern part of the state is as good as the southern part for bee culture; the returns will be less, however, because the bees cannot work the year round and must be fed for a short time in the winter.

In the spring the bees get their first and best honey from the orange blossoms. Spanish clover found in abandoned fields produces a good quality of honey. The bees work on the clover until the partridge pea season arrives. While honey from the partridge pea which grows in abundance in the wildwoods is not as good quality as orange blossom honey, the plant is a good producer and the honey gathered can be used as a stock to carry the bees over the winter. The wild mangrove and the mangrove yield large amounts of honey, but of a poorer quality than orange clover honey. This honey is used locally.

The western part of the state where the tubulo grows is perhaps one of the best bee raising sections of Florida. The honey produced by the tubulo is almost as good as orange blossom and demands almost as high a price. The bees work on the tubulo from the time it begins to blossom until it is another two weeks with blossoming crops. If a bee is compelled to travel several miles to the stand, the production of the stand will be limited. If the stand is not a good one in honey, the bees will fly to a great amount of the year than in any other part of the state. The chances are that the farmer who keeps a few colonies of bees will find that the opportunity is worth the farmer's time.

The production of livestock and the raising of a greater production of foodstuffs are necessary to sustain the population in some counties feeds are being sold, which shows that the farmer will grow them. It is a poor farmer who sells his foodstuffs for the farmer, he is selling just so much of the fertility of his soil each year. Selling foodstuffs on the hoof is the best method of marketing the greatest returns will be made both to the soil and to the pocket-book, says C. L. Willoughby of the University of Florida college of agriculture.

The farmer who has good cows and feeds them properly with home grown feeds forming the bulk of the diet, invariably makes money. The farmer who keeps scrub cows and feeds and feeds carelessly or poorly suffers a loss.

Good dairy cattle are hard to get, but many of the farmers in Florida are getting them. They are interested in their bankers and county agents in the proposition and through the efforts of these men the cattle are being found and brought into the state. Not all of the cows are pure-bred, in fact, most of them are grades, but they are such grades as will build up the dairy herds profitably. Other farmers who cannot afford the cows are buying good bulls.

The production of milk on many farms is a mere side line. It will develop into one of the most important businesses for the farmer.

Better Cattle Bring Better Prices
 The production of improved cattle will return to command a higher price in the market. One Florida farmer gave this information while attending a recent meeting of the State Live Stock Association at the University of Florida.

"I know of a breeder in the south-west who some years ago, when he shipped his cows to the E. Worth market and sold them, a great deal of the packer's careful report on their dressed weights, and especially as to the quality of their meats," he said. "This request naturally centered the interest of the packer and his buying department on this particular load of steers. When the live weights and the dressed weights were compared it was quite apparent that there was a justifiable reason back of the request for the report, as they proved splendid killers. Later this man brought another shipment and recalled the killing qualities of the former load, saying that he desired a report also on this load, which was similar to the first. The result was that he received a considerable advance over the first shipment."

This is a practical illustration of the value of the use of improved blood. Nothing that you can do as a cattle raiser will improve your position at the market so much as to furnish steers that are well bred. Competition is keen today in the field, and the man who attempts to market a success of raising his cattle on the assumption that they are profitable will find himself severely handicapped, because cattle of the improved lines go to market in larger numbers and are given the preference by the buyers.

Protect the several birds.
 A valuable source of information is the report of the Bureau of Entomology and Plant Quarantine, which is published in the form of a many families of purple martins. Every farmer can well afford to make room for and protect this valuable insect eating bird.

Don't farm. They are Bluebird, brown, white, and black, and quail. All that is necessary to attract them is a few holes in the ground.

of the world put together, and the rate of production is putting the country further ahead in an industrial race every moment, despite vast exportations.

Death of John McDonald
 On January 27, 1917, the death of John A. McDonald occurred at Corcoran Green Fla. He was 75 years of age. He was buried at Miami on January 29, 1917, with full Masonic honors. He had been to New York for his health and his daughter, Mrs. Mary E. McDonald, Carter came home with him as he was too ill to travel alone. He died ten days after their arrival in Florida. His wife, two sons and a daughter were with him at the time of his death. He had spent three months with another son and daughter in the north just prior to his death.

John A. McDonald came to Florida in 1865 from Marietta, Wisconsin. He settled in Sanford, buying the town while he remained there. He came to Eustis to live in 1876, and he can be credited with the founding and booming of Sanford, Mt. Dora and Eustis. He was editor and owner of the Florida-New Yorker in 1876. He was always a very enthusiastic and devoted champion of all matters that pertain to Florida and was a firm believer in the future of the state.

He was a resident for the last few years of his life in the city of Key West. His many friends through this section of the state will remember his vision of the future for this section of the state which we are today enjoying. He died at Lake Region.

U. S. CAN BECOME MIGHTIEST NATION

Experts Agree All Other Belligerent Countries Could Be Surpassed.

LEADS IN ACTUAL WEALTH

Possibilities Are Unlimited, It Is Declared, if Uncle Sam Should Choose to Develop Vast Powers.

Should the United States choose to develop all her vast powers, military experts agree, she will become the mightiest military nation in the world. No belligerent on either side will equal her.

Other nations, or empires, have larger populations; but none has so many intelligent, energetic citizens of the type from which universal experience shows the best fighting material.

No other nation can approach her in natural resources. No other nation can approach her in actual wealth.

No other nation can approach her in self-efficiency and ability to flourish without outside assistance of any sort. No other nation can approach her history shows, in the invention of new weapons of war, and leading American military men know that this factor takes a very important position in the calculations of foreign military powers when estimating the ability of the United States to resist or to conquer.

The population of the United States is the largest in the world. The United States produces more than any other nation in the world.
