HUNGER ARMY QUITS LONDON AFTER RIOTING

Series Of Savage Encounters With Cops Mark Activities Of Unemployed Hordes

LONDON, Nov. 2.—(A.P.)

Balked in a third attempt to enforce their demands by violence, the unemployed "hunger marchers," who straggled into London last week, turned homeward today. W. A. L. Hannington, communist agent, who organized a march of idle from Scotland, Wales and industrial centers of England is in jail. His associates who precipitated the riot in Parliament Square last night are also in custody.

The sharpest fighting arose when strong groups of mounted men charged mobs in Trafalgar Square, Pall Mall, the Strand, Whitehall, and Victoria Embankment. Many persons were arrested and injuries were inflicted. The rioters had been chased away from the Trafalgar Square, the center of the fighting, by the time the rioters in the other parts of the city got into the streets and the police had to call for police protection from angry attachments of marching mobs.

The riots were the culmination of six days of anarchy in London resulting from the onsets of hunger marches which converged on the capital from all parts of the island. The protest against the method by which the government collects its taxes.

The hunger marchers sought to present their case at the bar of the House of Commons. In obedience to the tradition that petitions must be presented by a member of the House, permission was denied them, and through it they announced they would force their way into the House.

They failed to accomplish their aim. The police, swinging their batons and cutting into arrangements of stones and bottles, to keep the processions organized in different parts of the city. But first of all the authorities moved against the demonstrators by arresting W. A. L. Hannington, communist leader.

Vaudeville Troupes To Patronize Hotels

Word was today received from Alger Lancaster, general manager of Southern Productions, and Booking Offices at New Orleans, that in future Sanford hotels, vaudeville troupes will patronize the vaudeville unit which play Sanford every Wednesday.

Mr. Lancaster's attention was called to the matter by E. F. Lane, former motion picture theater owner of this city, and an old friend of the Lancaster family. In a letter to Mr. Lane today he said "I note with interest all you say relative to shows not staying over in Sanford or stopping at local hotels. Of this I am in complete ignorance since I had no idea they were doing this. You may rest assured that I am notifying all shows owned outright by my company to give some of their business to the Sanford people, for this is a thing but right."

He added that "I am mighty glad that all the show people and that business is holding up as well."

Pet Mocking Bird Is Located By Whitner

If the Sanford person who lost a pet mocking bird some weeks ago will visit the B. F. Whitner, Jr., floral gardener on the lake front near the George G. Herring home, the bird will be found in one of the large clumps of bushes between the two homes.

B. F. Whitner, Sr., this morning said that because this particular mocking bird has not left an area of about 100 yards for the past several weeks, attention was called to it and investigation revealed that the bird is apparently an escaped pet because there is a small brass bell tied around one of its legs.

MANY FOOTBALL UPSETS FEATURE GAMES SATURDAY

Notre Dame, Harvard, and Stanford A re Among Those Losing

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—(AP)—Weeks bloody but unbowed, the nation's football prognosticators were convalescing yesterday from the season's most astonishing series of form reversals.

Notre Dame, Harvard, Stanford, Fordham, Chicago, North Carolina State and Dartmouth were just a few of the major machines which stalled completely on a Saturday which belonged strictly to the underdog.

As a result there was considerable shifting in the alignment of teams bidding for sectional championships. Basing the following ratings mostly on the won and lost records, the outstanding contenders in each of the major groups and conferences were:

East—Pitt and Colgate outstanding, with Brown, Columbia, Penn and Holy Cross also unbeaten.

Big Ten—Michigan the only unbeaten and untied team in conference competition with Purdue a close behind.

Pacific Coast—Southern California and the University of California at Los Angeles.

South—Tennessee, Auburn, Virginia Poly and Louisiana State all unbeaten with the first two apparently the stronger.

Southwest—Texas and Texas Christian.

Big Six—Nebraska and Oklahoma.

Rocky Mountain—Utah and Denver.

Missouri Valley—Oklahoma A. & M.

Standing out over all the rest of Saturday's amazing results was the sensational defeat of Notre Dame by the Pitt Panthers, 12-0. The Ramblers, touted as one of the greatest machines ever assembled at Notre Dame, started the game 2 to 1 favorites but collapsed in the fourth quarter when Pitt unleashed a smashing offensive and scored two touchdowns within a minute of play while a partisan crowd of 65,000 roared in delight.

That entirely unexpected triumph boosted the Panthers into the forefront of the battle for national as well as eastern honors. At the same time it gave the East not a little consolation for the defeat of Princeton by Michigan, 14-7, New York university by Purdue, 24-9, Syracuse by Michigan State, 27-13, and Georgetown by Detroit, 13-0. Along with Pitt, West Virginia and George Washington turned in surprisingly one-sided victories over Marquette and Iowa respectively. West Virginia whipped Marquette, 34-7, and George Washington walloped Iowa 11-0.

Harvard went down to decisive defeat at the hands of Brown, 14-0. Penn won from Navy by the same score, Columbia completed a Montgomery to Matal pass to beat Cornell, 6-0. Colgate trounced Penn State, 21-0, and Holy Cross defeated Catholic, 8-0, in other games affecting undefeated eastern teams. At the same time Yale won its first victory of the season, a 6-0 triumph over Dartmouth, and Boston college upset a highly favored Fordham outfit, 10-0.

With the leader, Michigan, playing an intercollegiate game, Big Ten interest swung to Bob Sapp's Illinois eleven which handed Chicago its first defeat, 35-7, with a sensational passing attack. Ohio State and Wisconsin played a 7-7 tie and Minnesota, swept the village in the past three years, leaving most of the buildings on the three blocks in shambles, and causing some damage to others.

Telephone lines to Dothan and other nearby communities were carried away by the storm and the call for help was brought here by a citizen who drove through a terrific downpour of rain. Every ambulance in this city an physician and nurses were hurried to the scene.

One of the freaks of the storm reported by relief workers returning, was that the garage of B. R. Forrester and his automobile were picked up and deposited across the street, 50 yards away, undamaged. The Forrester residence was wrecked and all other buildings near the garage were reduced to kindling.

CAIRO, Nov. 1.—(AP)—A tornado swept across the north-western section of Cairo about 3 P. M., injuring about a dozen persons, most of whom were negroes, and inflicting a heavy property damage.

A negro church and half dozen negro houses were demolished while scores of other dwellings were practically unroofed. Many trees were uprooted.

A cloudburst of rain followed the twister, hampering relief work and making an immediate checkup on the damage difficult. The tornado was also reported as having struck west of Cairo but roads to that section were temporarily impassable with debris.

Part of Cairo was without lights and telephone service early last night. The city's water tower was unroofed.

The tornado followed the same path of a similar windstorm in this section several years ago.

principal stumbling block to Michigan's hope for clear title to the conference championship, beat Northwestern, 7-0, but the score failed to show the Gophers' tremendous superiority on the attack.

The University of California at Los Angeles moved up to the top of the Pacific Coast standing along with Southern California by handing Stanford a 13-0 beating. The Bruins, as well as Southern California, now are conceded an excellent chance to finish their conference slate undefeated.

Texas whipped Southern Methodist, 14-6, and Texas Christian won from Baylor, 27-0, in the Southwest and their meeting on Nov. 11 may well decide the title. Rice, beaten only by Texas, defeated Creighton, 41-7, in an inter-sectional game while Texas A. & M. was bowing to Centenary, 7-0.

Big Six conference action was limited to Nebraska's 6-0 victory over Kansas State as Oklahoma bowed to Oklahoma A. & M., 7-6, and Missouri lost to Washington university, 14-6, in inter-sectional games with the Missouri Valley Conference.

Utah brushed aside the Utah Aggies, 16-0, in the Rocky Mountain conference race while the defeat of the Colorado Aggies by Colorado College, 3-0, left Denver the only threat to Utah's supremacy. Denver has been tied but not beaten in conference competition.

Democratic party. The seal of these men indicates they have sure confidence that they will have a voice in the administration of our government.

"I may say at once that the changes proposed from all these Democratic principals and allies are of the most profound and penetrating character. If they are brought about this will not be the America which we have known in the past."

Speaking directly of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Democratic nominee, the Chief Executive asserted that the "philosophy" upon which he "proposes to conduct the presidency of the United States is the philosophy of stagnation, of despair."

"It is in the end of hope," the President continued. "The destinies of this country should not be dominated by that spirit in action. It would be the end of the American system."

At another point in his address, while attacking Democratic proposals to reduce the Republican protective tariff and institute a competitive tariff for revenue, Hoover said:

"Whole towns, communities and forms of agriculture with their homes, schools and churches have been built up under this (Republican) system of protection. The grass will grow in streets of a hundred cities, a thousand towns; the weeds will overrun the field of millions of farms if that protection be taken away. Their churches and school houses will decay."

Hoover directly assailed what he characterized as eight proposals of his opponents. He named them as follows:

First: A proposal which would "break down the American system in the expansion of government expenditure by yielding to sectional and group raids on the public treasury."

Second: A proposal, in the form of a measure which passed the House last session, looking toward "inflation of the currency" by a $2,300,000,000 issue of paper money.

Third: A measure to "extend the government into the personal banking business" which was vetoed at the White House during the last session.

Fourth: A proposal to "reduce the protective tariff to a competitive tariff for revenue."

Fifth: A proposal to have the government "go into the power business."

Sixth: A letter quoting Roosevelt as saying he would support measures "to provide employment for all surplus labor at all times."

Seventh: A statement quoting Roosevelt as saying in Baltimore that after Mar. 4, 1929, the Republican administration was in control of all branches of the government including the supreme court.

Eighth: A statement quoting Roosevelt as saying in San Francisco early in October that "our last frontier has long since been reached" and that the task of the nation now is in "distributing the wealth and products more equitably and adopting the economic organization to the service of the people."

After speaking of each of the points he listed at some length, the President said: "If these measures, these promises, which I have discussed, or these failures to discuss these projects; this attitude of mind, mean anything, they mean the enormous expansion of the federal government; they mean the growth of bureaucracy such as we have never seen in our history."

"No man who has not occupied my position in Washington can fully realize the constant battle which must be carried on against incompetency, corruption, tyranny of government, expanded into business activities."

"If we first examine the effect of our form of government of such a program, we come at once to the effect of the most gigantic increase in expenditure ever known in history. . . . But that is not all; they would break down our form of government."

The President said legislative bodies would be a board of directors for the government's business activities, and that "capable men cannot be chosen by politics for all the various talents required."

"Expansion of government in business," he said, "means that the government in order to protect itself from the political consequences of its errors is driven irresistibly without cease to greater and greater control of the nation's press and platform. Free speech does not live many hours after free industry and free commerce die. It is a false liberalism that interprets itself into government operation of business."

"Every step in that direction poisons the very roots of liberalism. It poisons equality, free speech, free press, and equality of opportunity. It is the road not to liberty but to less liberty. True liberalism is found not in striving to spread bureaucracy but in striving to set bounds to it."

WHO SHALL ENTER:—Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.—Matthew 7:21.

As important in the outcome of this campaign as the "forgotten man" will be the "forgotten woman."

President Hoover again pledges a chicken in every pot. It only remains for Roosevelt to promise caviar with every cracker.

The Orlando Sentinel puts it another way and says, "How'd you like to be a baby these days and get kissed by a candidate?"

The people of this country are really more concerned with substantiating the Literary Digest poll than in electing a president.

The Republicans in this state are making a frightful mistake in trying to capitalize on the judgments said to exist against Dave Blythe. That immediately puts him in a class with all the other people in Florida who are also broke.

Dunbar's Weekly says that the next time it borrows money it will do so on the European plan. That is a common practice not only in Europe but also in this country. Bliply borrow so much that your creditors cannot afford to pay you.

In the final count of the Literary Digest straw poll Roosevelt has 1,715,789 while Hoover has 1,150,398. It would be like an overwhelming landslide. Yet we find that this week the Roosevelt lead over Hoover is 305,391; last week it was 552,943; the week before it was 500,079. In other words the Roosevelt plurality increased 65,312. In the first three weeks of the poll it increased nearly 800,000. That may indicate nothing at all, or it may indicate that the Hoover speeches are making an impression, that the election today would not be as one-sided as it would have been three weeks ago.

It will not be necessary to memorize the names of the presidential electors in order to be sure of voting for your favorite presidential candidate. Remember only this: that the first seven names on the ballot are Democratic electors; the second seven are Republican electors. But in case you are interested anyhow, their names are: Democratic—Willard W. Ayers, George M. Dorman, William Fairbanks, Ferbert William Fishler, W. B. Lanier, G. T. McClellan, Hugh C. Sparkman; Republican—Julia A. Aldrich, George S. Ames, Herbert L. Anderson, F. Ray Anderson, Miss H. Draper, W. R. O'Neal, and John F. Walter.

We feel sorry for any candidate who may be elected president on Nov. 8 unless there is immediately thereafter a decided return in business. That there will be any decided return would be almost miraculous in view of the staggering debt under which the entire world is now laboring. We are not pessimistic enough to think that things are going to get worse, but we do believe it will be a long time before we see again the prosperity to which the people have come to believe they are entitled. No president and no government, regardless of promises, can deliver that, and when they fail to deliver, there will be hell to pay! Prosperity is the product of economic laws, not of congressional legislation or presidential pronouncements.

A Comparison Of Policies

Early next week the people of Sanford will be called upon not only to elect two commissioners who will serve for the next three years but also to determine in large measure the policies which will guide the destinies of this city throughout the coming years. A change in administration, as we see it, means not only a change in the Commission, but also a reversion to the policy of costly litigation which characterized the early attempts of this City to effect a settlement with its bondholders.

Before the people of Sanford endorse any such change in policy, we believe they should consider, carefully the program made under the Miller regime of 1928-'31 as contrasted with that of the past two years, particularly with regard to the burden of taxation, the cost of litigation and the increase or reduction in bonded indebtedness. If it can be shown that during Frank Miller's previous three year term in office, he actually accomplished anything toward a reduction, or a settlement, of the City's indebtedness, his reelection would not be regarded as so detrimental to the City's welfare.

In this connection it should be recalled that Mr. Miller took office in January of 1928, a few months after the closing of the Seminole County Bank. He remained in office until January of 1931 when Clyde Byrd and T. L. Dumas were elected to the Commission and the new policy came into effect. From the City Clerk's office we have obtained the following figures showing the City's indebtedness at the beginning of its fiscal year shortly before Mr. Miller went into office, shortly before he went out of office, and at the beginning of the present fiscal year:

Table with 4 columns: Bond Debt, Accrued Int., Other Debts, Total. Rows for Oct. 1, 1927; Oct. 1, 1930; Oct. 1, 1932.

From these figures it will be seen that the total obligations of the City actually increased $279,859 or 4 per cent during the three year period when Mr. Miller was resorting to the courts, and actually decreased by $29,344.28 during the two year period since then. Furthermore, under the terms of the present agreement which the City has with the Bondholders' Protective Committee, all accrued interest as of October 1, 1932, on the bonds controlled by the Committee (approximately 85 per cent of the total), will be cancelled. This would reduce the total indebtedness of the City on October 1, 1932 by $862,598.39, making a total reduction since Mr. Miller retired from the Commission of $891,940.67, or 12 per cent.

Now while Mr. Miller was pursuing this policy of appealing to the federal and supreme courts, those taxpayers who could pay taxes, were continuing to pay. It is true that Mr. Miller decreased the assessed valuations of the City from $15,880,113.19 to $10,561,245.78, or by approximately 33 1-3 per cent. But it is equally true that he increased the millage from 20 to 30 or 33 1-3 per cent, or a net reduction in taxes of absolutely nothing. Whereas in the past two years, while the millage has remained at 30, the assessed valuation has been reduced by $538,913.69, making a net reduction in actual taxes assessed of 5 per cent.

In these days of hard times, when governmental costs are weighing heavily on all business interests, and when most cities and counties are experiencing continually rising costs despite efforts to economize, Sanford occupies the unique position of having reduced expenditures. During the three year period when Mr. Miller was on the Commission, operating expenses of the City, exclusive of legal expenses, amounted to $354,658.92, or an average annual expenditure of $118,219.64. During the two year period since then, the actual expenses for the fiscal year of 1931-'32 together with the appropriation for 1932-'33, exclusive of legal expenses, amount to $151,426.21, or an average annual expenditure of only $75,713.10. This represents a reduction in operating expenses, not including litigation, of 37 per cent, a reduction which we feel deserves the serious consideration of every taxpayer in the city and of every voter upon whom the ultimate burden of taxation inevitably falls.

We have deliberately eliminated the legal expenses from our comparison of operating costs because it is well known that these costs were enormous during the Miller regime. It is well known that the policy which he pursued and which he now contemplates embraces to a very large extent a resort to the courts in a tremendously expensive and absolutely futile attempt to wipe out Sanford's bond obligations. For three years he tried this method. He hired some of the best lawyers in the state. He succeeded only in increasing the bond indebtedness by several hundred thousand dollars, and in leaving unpaid legal costs which called for an appropriation in last year's budget of $38,484 and in this year's budget of $15,800, and no telling how much in the years to come.

We are aware, of course, that Mr. Lehman was a member of the Commission during the last year of Mr. Miller's term of office, but during that time he was consistently opposed to the policies then in vogue. Since Mr. Miller retired from office in January of 1931, the policies which Mr. Lehman advocated have been pursued. The wisdom of these policies is sustained by the figures which we have procured from the City Clerk's office and which show beyond all question of doubt that substantial progress has been made.

No pretense is made that the agreement under which we now operate is wholly satisfactory or that a permanent settlement upon a reasonable ability-to-pay basis is not far more preferable, but we do insist that definite progress in this direction has been made in the past two years, and that a persistence in the present course of City affairs, however irksome it may be for the present, will ultimately result in a satisfactory settlement of our difficult and troublesome financial problem. Whereas we are firmly convinced that any return to the methods of Mr. Miller will immediately preclude any possibility of a final settlement, and will inaugurate a prolonged period of uncertainty with inevitable increases in the burden of taxation.

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

The Welaks Club observed Hal in Sanford, having formerly resided in the usual brilliant style that characterized all the affairs of this organization and although there were several other attractions in the city the rooms of the club were filled to overflowing and during the dances there was hardly room on the floor for the couples.

James F. McCombs is among the new arrivals and with his wife will become permanent residents of Sanford. He is the editor of the Growers' Association News that has been published at Miami and will be printed here from now on. Mr. McCombs is no stranger in Sanford, having formerly resided in this section, and his many friends are giving him the glad hand at every turn.

CARTER GLASS MAKES SPEECH FOR CANDIDATE AFTER RIOTING

Referring to President Hoover's statement that the United States was within two weeks of being driven off the gold standard last winter he said that if this was true, administration leaders were guilty of amazing dishonesty in failing "so to advise the banks and private investors." During the period from Jan. 1 to June 30, he said, the treasury with the President's approval sold $2,700,213,450 of treasury notes and certificates of indebtedness redeemable in gold.

The Virginian prefaced his address with a statement that it was "outrageous" to him to deny the assertions of the President and his cabinet officers, but, he added: "To speak with suitable restraint, I may say that neither Hans Christian Andersen nor Karl Grimm, in appealing to the imaginations of children, ever overtaxed his imagination as President Hoover reportedly has done in his endeavor to regain the lost favor of the American people. Contrasted with his speech of acceptance and his addresses at Des Moines, Cleveland and elsewhere Aesop's Fables deserve to rank as an accurate history of things that actually occurred."

Asserting President Hoover has "converted the Treasury at Washington into a national pawnshop," Glass said that while the "expedients" adopted with the intent of improving business were "bad" they are "not as vicious as originally proposed by the administration."

Turning to President Hoover's contention that business collapse was "superinduced by economic convulsions abroad," the Virginian declared the "reverse" was true. He said:

"I assert that the improvidence if not the direct profligacy, of incompetent Republican administrations at Washington is measurably responsible for the deplorable situation in which we find ourselves today."

The Senator, reviewing events leading up to the business slump said an era of cheap money was started during the Harding administration and expensive governmental activities expanded. Without precedent or authority, he said, the State Department took upon itself to pass upon loans to foreign nations and later made a "childish" differentiation between the terms "approved" and "unobjectionable."

Great banking institutions, he continued, by "high pressure" methods, and with salesmen "not too scrupulous to invoke the moral obligation thus incurred by the state department, were enabled to sell these high-interest bearing but now worthless securities in competition with our own state and municipal industrial and commercial securities."

Glass denied assertions that the Democratic party was responsible for the Patman bonus bill, saying it would have been defeated in the House but for the fact that 60 Republicans voted for it. An "overwhelming majority of Democratic senators," he said, defeated the measure in that branch of Congress.

After quoting Republican statements that if the Democrats are successful in the coming election the business interests of the country will be increased, he said that his party "could not do worse" than the present administration if it tried.

"Franklin D. Roosevelt as governor of one of the largest states of the union, clean of body and clear of mind, dealing promptly with almost insuperable difficulties, is simply unprepared for the tremendous task of reconstruction which will face the next federal administration," he said. "He will not go to sleep at his post. The congressional contacts and understanding and plain common sense of John Garner preeminently equip him for helpful service in promoting the legislative program of a Democratic administration."

"We shall not make impossible promises and then proceed to break them. We shall not employ political pills nor psychological poultries as a cure for the maladies of the country. We shall not rely upon transient devices and mere temporary remedies for serious situations; but, holding fast to sound Jeffersonian principles and applying tested orthodox processes we shall hope to rescue the government and the country from the unendurable confusion and distress into which Republican misadministration has thrust us. So serious is the situation that only by the help of Almighty God can this be done."

Informing that Secretary Mills planned to reply to his speech with a radio address last night, Senator Glass distributed the following: STUART—Contract awarded for construction of new building at St. Louis, Mo.

'HUNGER ARMY' MARCHES OUT LONDON AFTER RIOTING

After the processions had been broken up, the jobless started drifting toward parliament in small groups.

By 7:30 P. M. when the marchers had expected to reach the parliament building, spectators anxious for a thrill thronged all nearby streets. Strong police forces guarded the entrances to parliament and mingled with the crowds. Nearby at Scotland Yard, other detachments were held in readiness.

By 8 o'clock the huge press of spectators overflowed into the streets, blocking traffic and pushing dangerously near to the massive iron gates leading into parliament.

Then the mounted police filed silently out of Scotland Yard, converging on the square from three different directions. The crowd booed and catcalled.

The mounted men quickly this way, to answer me on the radio tonight: If that is his conception of courage and courtesy in debate I am glad it is his and not mine.

"Had Secretary Mills desired a debate with me in open meeting where each could give and take blow for blow he would have experienced no difficulty in getting accommodated but if he prefers the back stairs method of controversy it is his choice."

"I prefer to make my rapier clean and play the game as gentlemen in their code of to-hits require."

cleared the streets surrounding parliament and strong detachments of foot police held back the throngs in Whitehall, the Embankment and other streets. Up to this time everything was good natured—both on the part of the crowds and on the part of the police.

Slowly the sturdy bobbies edged the main body down Whitehall away from the House of Commons and toward Trafalgar Square. On the way they made a baton charge near the cenotaph, Britain's most sacred World War memorial, where the crowd attempted to grab up wreaths.

One tow headed youth, clouted on the head by a mounted man, picked himself up and slugged a patrolman down with a blow to the jaw. He went to jail, fighting all the way down the street.

By the time the crowd had been pushed all the way to Trafalgar Square, its good temper was worn out and the mob spirit showed itself.

The police endeavored to keep traffic moving through the square, but this was impossible. The throngs stopped buses and motorcars, until finally repeated pressure by the mounted men pushed them along the Strand.

The mob was eager to battle with the foot police but for the most part fled before the mounted men, although now and again attempts were made to pull policemen from their horses. On such occasions riot clubs flashed.

Police and mob rolled around the square and nearby streets until shortly before 11 o'clock when, with a determined and well organized effort, the mounted men and foot men combined, swept the square bare.

One of the fiercest moments in the entire battle came when the mounted and foot men drove several scores of demonstrators off the lions and the stone base of the Nelson monument in Trafalgar. Many women had taken refuge there and they were caught in the charge.

In the side fighting in Victoria Embankment the mobs pulled destination signs from tractors and used them as clubs. Numerous attempts to set automobiles afire were made—the favorite method being to throw lighted matches toward gasoline tanks.

Virtually every window and light in Villiers Street, leading out of Charing Cross, was smashed by missiles of various sorts. For some time there was pandemonium in the Charing Cross district, where the demonstrators cried: "Down with the baby stayers" and hooted and hissed the police.

Wheat Prices Reach New Low In Chicago

GIBRALTAR, Nov. 2.—(AP)—Wheat prices reached new record low prices Monday for the third time in less than a week. The continued weakness was due chiefly to sympathy with bearishness displayed by the Liverpool market.

The December delivery dropped to 43 1-2 to 3-4 cents a bushel on initial dealings, 1-8 to 3-8 cents under Saturday's low point, and later dropped another 1-8 cent. Prices have not been as low since about 1922 when wheat sold for 35 cents a bushel on the Strassburg market.

Advices from Liverpool said dispatches from the United States were discouraging and that buyers had withdrawn from the market. Chicago sellers also found buyers waiting. Trading was quiet with no signs of excitement.

December wheat also hit a new low at 45 1-2 cents a bushel at Winnipeg.

Cross-Blending

WHAT IS IT.. and how does it improve cigarette taste?

YOU'VE heard how fruit of one variety has been crossed with fruit of another to produce a new and more pleasing flavor. The loganberry, for example, is a cross between the raspberry and the blackberry.

Chesterfield's Cross-Blend gets the same result—better taste—by a different method.

It welds together the different kinds of several varieties of tobacco. Many types of Bright tobacco, a great many types of Burley tobacco, and numerous grades of Turkish tobacco are all merged into one—Chesterfield tobacco.

This welding of Cross-Blending goes beyond ordinary blending or mixing tobaccos together. It actually makes every kind of tobacco in Chesterfield partake of the qualities of every other type.

It's the Cross-Blending of fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos that gives Chesterfield a distinctive, better taste.

They are milder. They have a flavor and aroma which, we believe, you will like.
