State creates toll-free number for Census information

A toll-free number has been established by the state as an outreach to ensure that every Floridian is counted on the U.S. Census.

Individuals who did not receive a Census form in the mail or a knock at their door from an enumerator can call 1-800-465-3013 and give their name, address and telephone number through July 7. English, Spanish and Creole speaking operators will be available to take the information from callers.

Information obtained as a result of the toll-free number will be forwarded to the Census Bureau's Atlanta Regional Headquarters on a daily basis for follow-up during the bureau's coverage improvement program that will take place in July.

The Census means billions of dollars to local communities. If a family of four is missed by the Census, it can cost the community almost $60,000 in lost federal benefits over the next 10 years.

Seminole schools make the grade

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

Twenty-seven schools make 'B' or higher on state report card

SANFORD — Elementary schools in Seminole County and statewide made the largest gains in school grades released Wednesday by the state Department of Education.

Four out of six Seminole County elementary schools receiving D's in last year's report improved at least one letter grade. In addition, English Estates Elementary in Fern Park improved from a D to an A.

Overall, 13 Seminole County schools received A's, while 14 made a B, 17 received C's, and only the two elementary schools made D's. Last year, 14 Seminole County schools made A's, but six made D's.

Thirteen of the county's elementary schools improved their grades. District officials gave credit to an emphasis placed on writing skills over the past year.

"I think it's wonderful," said Seminole County School Board Chairwoman Sandra Robinson. "It shows the tremendous work and commitment of our teachers."

This mirrors improvements statewide, with 20 percent of elementary schools moving up two grade levels when comparing 1999 to 2000, and 30 percent moving up one grade level.

A total of 31 percent of the state's schools received A's in this year's report, compared with only eight percent in 1999. Meanwhile, 17 percent of the state's schools made D's, compared with 29 percent last year.

Seminole children experience Florida wildlife

Creating Animal Respect Education (CARE) from Christmas recently paid a visit to North Branch Library in Sanford. The "Florida Native Program" is an educational show unique in style. Focusing on Florida wildlife, the show is centered around a variety of hand-raised animals that were specifically chosen to be ambassadors for their species. Ambassadors include Jake the snake, Tommy Tortoise and alligators, Smiley and Baby Brutus. Pictured above, Tara Barton, left, plays with Ellie May the ferret while Rosa Malador plays with Jethro. Pictured at right, Wildlife Educator Christin Burford shows off Kacha the Florida panther's teeth. Kacha is the Seminole Indian word for panther. According to members of CARE, all of the animals in their presentation are leash trained and are very accustomed to being in the public's eye.

School Board approves plan ending federal court oversight

By Bill Kerns
Staff Writer

SANFORD — Through an agreement approved by the Seminole County School Board Tuesday, the school district may be released from federal district court oversight by 2003.

The school district has been under the oversight of the federal district court on matters such as transportation and facilities since 1970.

The Board unanimously approved an agreement with the U.S. Justice Department which calls on the district to make Croon's Academy a magnet school for technology training and to make facility improvements at Lyman High School.

The agreement, known as a consent decree, also requires the district to recruit and hire more black teachers, increase the number of black students in advanced-placement classes, and investigate why black students are disciplined more than their white classmates.

In addition, the district is required to encourage more black students to try out for cheerleading.

Humane Society plans to take closer look at animal cruelty cases

By Michelle Jeria
Managing Editor

Education is an important key in preventing animal cruelty. However, employees at the Humane Society of Seminole County realize it doesn't always stop the abuse.

As a result, the Society decided to once again implement its animal cruelty investigation division after a seven-year hiatus.

"Lately, we've decided that we want to get back to the things we really need to do," Betty Munoz said. "We want to conduct animal cruelty investigations the way they should be done."

According to Munoz, who was recently named executive director of the Humane Society of Seminole County, the local organization stopped conducting official animal cruelty investigations in 1993. The Society, which receives funding only through private sources, didn't have the money to pay for an investigator and other expenses needed to examine reports of abuse.

"It's not a cheap thing," Munoz said. "You've got expenses for lawyers, expert witnesses, the investigator and shelter. And, if it turns out the animal has been abused, you've got the medical cost."

At the beginning of the year, the Society decided the funds were available to once again conduct investigations. To help with re-establishing the process, Munoz asked Sherry Schlueter, an expert in animal cruelty investigations, to come to Seminole County and lead a seminar on the subject.

"She pointed to the link between animal cruelty and human abuse," Munoz said. "She listed 12 serial killers, including Jeffrey Dahmer. Out of the 12, only one could not be proven as an animal abuser."

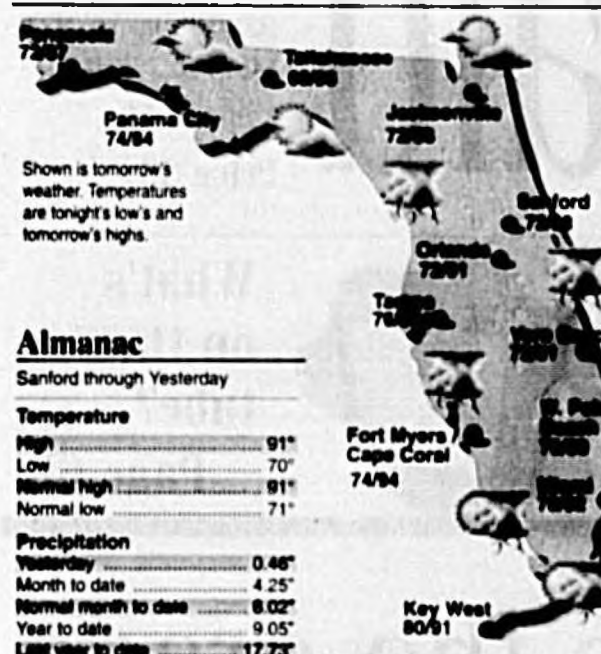

"In our business, because of our concern for animals, people tend to call us tree huggers," Munoz said. "We are concerned about animals, but we also realize that animal cruelty often

Life Style

Decision not to wear bra is more function than fashion

DEAR ABBY: Regarding the teen-age girl who is being called a lesbian because she finds wearing a bra uncomfortable — at age 66 I have grown weary of people whose only exercise is jumping to conclusions!

I do not wear a bra because the straps hurt my pacemaker site. (My "alien implant.") I wear clothing with double chest pockets, or T-shirts with wonderful, happy designs so my braless state is not obvious. At my age, if I did wear a bra it would be a 34-long!

GLENNA MAHON, CONCORD, VA.

DEAR GLENNA: I agree; there may be mitigating circumstances for going braless. Your letter reminds me of this old joke: "When is a brassiere like the Salvation Army?" Answer: "When it uplifts the downfallen."

DEAR ABBY: A close friend died unexpectedly. It was a shock to all of us who loved her. Attending the funeral helped me to say goodbye and eased the grief. The service was so beautiful that I commented later to my husband how I wished I could have videotaped it in order to remember the wonderful moments in your own life. He, too, would have liked a videotape, but that people would have thought it "tacky" if we showed up with a video camera. My husband is 66 and I am

31. We know the odds are that he will die before me, and would like this question answered before that happens. Abby, is it awful to want a record of saying goodbye to a dearly loved human being in this manner?

GRIEVING IN CALIFORNIA

DEAR GRIEVING: Some churches provide audiotapes of funerals. If the family would like a video of the eulogy portion of the service, to record the tributes for later viewing or to share with those who could not attend, I see nothing wrong with it. However, some attendees might prefer that their grief not be recorded for posterity, and their wishes should be respected.

If the family makes the arrangements, I'm all for it. But for someone to simply show up with a video camera would be intrusive and insensitive.

P.S. Since none of us has a contract with God, there is a chance that you could predecease your husband. How would you feel about your funeral being videotaped?

DEAR ABBY: I am responding to Jim Isbell's letter about his experience with the Vietnamese man who was working in a restaurant on Mother's Day. Vietnam DOES have a Mother's Day. It takes place on the 15th day of July on the Vietnamese calendar, and is called Vu Lan.

On Vu Lan day we go to the temple and pray for our mothers to live long lives. If our mother is still alive, we wear a red rose. When people wear a white rose, it means their mother has died but they are at the temple to remember her.

Most Vietnamese Buddhist temples have a tradition of wearing roses on Vu Lan day. If you go to a temple on this day without wearing a rose, people in the temple will ask you about your mother and will pin a red or white rose on you.

D.N.K., ROSEMEAD, CALIF.

DEAR D.N.K.: What a lovely tradition. I'm struck by the fact that we have a similar one in our culture. A red carnation is worn on Mother's Day to signify that one's mother is living; a white carnation signifies that one's mother is deceased.

Graham and Kellogg were health nuts

DEAR DR. GOTT: It seems to me that the average American diet has changed greatly in the last 50 years, with less fat and more grain foods, for instance. Am I correct?

DEAR READER: I'm going to address your question with a history lesson. For hundreds of years, the practice of medicine was based on the theory that health and disease were due to a balance — or imbalance — of four bodily fluids: blood, phlegm, yellow bile and black bile. Medical "science," far from being a science at all, was a baffling collection of unstructured miscellany that eventually became organized into practicable systems of self-care in the 1900s.

At the intellectual center of this philosophy of personal care, Sylvester Graham, a Presbyterian minister, developed the thesis that physical habits had moral overtones and that health depended on diet. Using a code of Christian Physiology, he taught that God had not designed the human body to function on meat, spices, white flour and certain vegetables. Graham became a tireless crusader for celibacy and vegetarianism. His principles enjoyed wide popular support.

In the late 1800s, John Harvey Kellogg, himself a physician, became committed to the Grahamite health doctrine. As director of the Battle Creek (Michigan) Sanatorium from 1876 to 1942, Kellogg insisted that his patients obtain fresh air, partake in regular exercise, eat meatless diets and sample numerous whole-grain health foods. In the sanatorium's food laboratories, Kellogg developed soy-based meat substitutes and pre-cooked breakfast cereals (the first of which he named granola) and made peanut butter. Success was so immediate and sustained that John Kellogg's brother, Will, and a former sanatorium patient, C.W. Post, emigrated to Battle Creek to find gold in grain.

Of course, we have inherited the legacy of high-fiber vegetarianism. Graham crackers, originally created by the preacher as a whole-grain snack, are still very much with us, even though they are now more like cookies than Graham's Brillo-like prototypes. The theories of Kellogg and Post, the originators of the dry breakfast-cereal industry, are as much a part of the American scene as are corn flakes and Post Toasties. Not since the 1920s have we been bombarded by so much rhetoric about dietary fiber and the wholesomeness of grains as we are today.

Unquestionably, medical studies have conclusively proved that many health benefits accrue from consuming less saturated fat and red meat, and more natural grains and complex carbohydrates. Yet we mustn't yield to fads and commercialism in the form of macrobiotic diets, megadose vitamins and the worship of roughage. In short, perhaps we should resist the temptation of dietary excesses that merely reflect our fear of illness and our need for personal control over our lives and futures. The current emphasis on aerobics, fish oil and bran seems, on occasion, to reach the proportions of mystical fervor reminiscent of the Graham/Kellogg nutritional theology.

For example, although dry breakfast cereals are often marketed as sound modern nutrition, their manufacturers tend to work both sides of the street. Many brands contain huge amounts of sugar and unacceptably high levels of salt. Clearly, in terms of balancing our diets, we need to read labels carefully and to distrust advertising claims. This dietary balancing act requires moderation, common sense and variety in what we eat. To give you related information, I am sending you a copy of my Health Report "Fads I: Vitamins and Minerals." Other readers who would like a copy should send $2 plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope to P.O. Box 2017, Murray Hill Station, New York, NY 10156. Be sure to mention the title.

Pit Stop answer: Richard Petty

By Nate Ryan
Lap by Lap

After bumping Terry Labonte for the win on the last lap at Bristol Motor Speedway last August, Dale Earnhardt was vilified by fellow competitors who stopped just short of comparing him to Attila the Hun.

After nudging past Earnhardt in the final turn to win at Pocono Raceway on June 18, Jeremy Mayfield was lionized to the edge of folk-hero status by his comrades.

Is there a difference? At Sears Point Raceway last weekend, mouths in the NASCAR garage were flapping about the ramifications of Mayfield's big move. And in a sport often characterized as divisive with its rival teams, manufacturers and drivers, a consensus seemed to emerge.

The methods of Mayfield and Earnhardt might have been similar, but the outcome seems to serve as the true standard for judgment.

"There's a difference," Kyle Petty said. "Earnhardt wrecked Terry. [Mayfield] knocked Earnhardt out of the way. There is a line there, and it's been my opinion that Dale crossed the line. I don't feel like Jeremy crossed the line because everyone's done that. You go back to Casey Atwood doing it to Jeff Green at Milwaukee last year to win his first Busch race."

Ricky Rudd finished third when Earnhardt won at Bristol, but his Ford was damaged during the incident with Labonte.

"When Earnhardt runs into Terry, he wrecks the top five cars," Rudd said. "It's a whole lot harder to do what Jeremy did. It was a finesse move that wasn't as violent as what Earnhardt did. Jeremy was so cool in the way he did it. There was no torn equipment, and he didn't wreck the people behind him."

"On the other part of that, you've got Earnhardt, who has probably won 50, 60, 70 percent of his races by wrecking somebody."

That's a slight exaggeration, but The Intimidator's reputation precedes him.

"[Earnhardt] has set the example of what he's going to do when he's running second," Jeff Gordon said. "And that's pretty much opened the gate for anyone running second to him. Maybe he didn't intentionally hit anyone or whatever at Bristol. But the fact of the matter is he did [hit someone]. And he's done it a few times. And people remember that stuff. He'll remember it, too."

Gordon recalled his narrow victory over Jeff Burton in the 1997 Southern 500 at Darlington Raceway. They made contact twice on the last lap, but Burton didn't wreck Gordon.

Gordon returned the favor at Richmond International Raceway a year later. The pair raced side by side for the final 10 laps. Burton barely stayed ahead as Gordon declined the opportunity to get rough.

"If a guy was in second and he would take you out to get the win, if you're in second, you race him the same way," Gordon said. "You can't say Earnhardt's been in the position of being the cleanest guy."

According to some, he apparently isn't the most feared, either. Rudd believes the majority of Winston Cup drivers would emulate Mayfield in a last-lap duel with Earnhardt — they just haven't had the chance.

"I don't think it took guts to do it," Rudd said of Mayfield's stand. "That Intimidator stuff that's been going on about Earnhardt for so long ... go talk to these young guys about if they've been intimidated by Dale Earnhardt."

"That's a deal he just created to sell a bunch of T-shirts."

Nate Ryan covers NASCAR for the Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Dale Earnhardt was vilified after bumping Terry Labonte for the win in the last lap at Bristol, which caused Ricky Rudd to wreck.

Jeremy Mayfield nudged past Dale Earnhardt in the final turn to win at Pocono Raceway, causing an uproar and trapping praise from his peers.

Jeff Gordon and Jeff Burton have made contact more than once on the track without causing themselves or anybody else to wreck.

NASCAR NOTES

Kenny Wallace, who hasn't had a great season, had a good race at the Save Mart/Kragen 350, leading 16 laps and having an outside shot at the victory. He finished 13th, but it was his best finish of the year. "We had a strong race car and great pit stops," Wallace said.

There was no major pileup in the closing laps of the Save Mart/Kragen 350, but Joe Nemechek left complaining about Robbie Gordon's hardball tactics in the final 2 miles. "Robbie Gordon just drilled me in the door," Nemechek said. "He just ran straight into my door and knocked me up in the gravel."

Sterling Marlin is excited. Chip Ganassi is on the verge of taking majority control in Felix Sabates' multicar team. Ganassi is bringing Andy Graves, Terry Labonte's ex-crew chief, into the fold. Ganassi's Indy-car teams have won the past four CART championships and this year's Indy 500.

Loomis, Gordon prepared to win at Daytona

SONOMA, Calif. — Robbie Loomis has been under more pressure this season than probably any other crew chief on the Winston Cup in a long time, but he's holding up quite well.

Jeff Gordon's win at Talladega didn't turn the tide for Rick Hendrick's star team. Will his Save Mart/Kragen 350 victory do the trick?

"Everybody else expects you to win, because of all the success they've had on the road courses," Loomis said after Gordon won his sixth straight road race, an amazing NASCAR record. "Now I guess when we go to Watkins Glen in August they'll be expecting us to make it seven."

"I learned a long time ago you just have to go out and do the best you can, and you can't look back at what could have been, just try to do better the next day."

"Wow. That's my new saying: 'Working on Winning.' We have a new pit crew and a lot of new guys on the team, and we're building. ... Now we've got two wins this season, and nobody has any more, and we're heading to Daytona ... not necessarily expecting to win but being prepared to win."

"With all the outside stuff that's surrounded us on the team this year, we've worked together to block it all out and just keep chugging along, and now we've got two wins."

"I learned a long time ago ... you can't look back at what could have been, just try to do better the next day." — Crew Chief Robbie Loomis

"Most of the pressure in this business you put on yourself. When I made the decision to come to this team, I thought long and hard about it. I asked 'How can I wake up on Sunday mornings and feel any more pressure than I already feel?' But there is a little difference."

"The key here was fuel mileage. When we pitted on lap 70 [of the 112 laps], everybody followed us. If we'd have gone by the pits and not stopped [during the last yellow of the race], a lot of other guys would have pitted. We wound up third last year [with John Andretti] by doing sort of the same thing. This time we figured we had one more lap [of fuel in the car], but on a road course you never know if you're on the high side or the low side."

"We stuck to our plan all day, and it turned out to where it looked perfect. Sometimes you follow your plan and you end up looking like a dummy. But when Rusty and most of the field pitted real early [10 laps into the race], that left us out front. We were planning to make our first stop on lap 37 or lap 38, and we did. What really surprised me was when Rusty came in on lap 38, too. That made me breathe a little easier, because it put us all back in sync."

Indeed, those two pit calls by Wallace and crew chief Robin Pemberton raised eyebrows up and down pit road.

Loomis admitted he was curious, too.

"A lot of times a driver and a crew chief will get talking, and can get sort of mesmerized by what's going on, and the next thing you know you're looking back and saying: 'Now why did we do that?'" Loomis said.

Wallace's unexpectedly early pit stop almost seemed to give the race to Tony Stewart, who drove an aggressive race — until he had to get a relief driver.

"I wasn't feeling 100 percent all weekend, but I didn't feel bad enough to have to go to the doctor," Stewart said, still tired when he emerged from the infield hospital after getting fluids for dehydration.

Despite falling to 35th during the driver change, Andretti rallied to finish 10th in Stewart's car.

"I wasn't surprised about how strong Tony Stewart was this time," Loomis said. "What surprised me about Tony Stewart was how strong he was when he qualified on the front row [as a rookie]. I said right then, 'This kid is getting a hold of this road racing, and you'd better look out for him.'"

Which means Watkins Glen could be a very, very interesting show.

"Jeff and I said that we both know the competition is getting tougher, and you never know who the next guy is going to be," Loomis said. "You never know what's going to happen in road racing."

Grades

 with seven percent of the schools moving up two grade levels and 17 percent moving up the grade level.
 High schools showed the smallest gains, with two percent of the schools moving up two grade levels and eight percent moving up one grade level.
 The same trend was present in Seminole County. The grades of two high schools and four middle schools dropped slightly. Lake Mary High dropped from an A to a B, and Oviedo fell from an A to a C. However, both schools had high test scores overall. The district's other five high schools maintained the C ratings they received last year.
 Robinson said that overall, she is pleased with the scores for Seminole County schools. In addition, she said the grading was more fair this year than last year.

 Absenteeism, suspension and dropout rates had a decreased role in determining grades. Schools had to exceed an acceptable level in all three categories for it to count. Next year, absenteeism and suspension will not be factors in the grading.
 In addition, the grades of students who attended school both semesters were counted. Previously, a school grades reflected the performance of students who only attended a partial year, even if they transferred to the school shortly before FCAT testing in February.

 Many educators have criticized Governor Jeb Bush's A+ Plan for Education, enacted in 1999. The educators argue the system forces teachers to spend too much time preparing students for a standardized test.
 However, Robinson said the school grades have helped the district identify areas where improvement is needed.
 The most dramatic improvements statewide were made by two elementary schools, in Escambia County and Marion County. The schools moved from grades of F to A.

 "The improvements in school grades announced today are a great accomplishment for Florida's dedicated teachers and students," Bush said.
 "Educators have done an exceptional job of improving student achievement throughout our schools with the A+ Plan's increased funding and true accountability."
 Last year there were 78

schools earning an F, although none were in Seminole County.
 Students attending schools with grades of F twice in four years can receive state vouchers to attend private schools. Each school improved student performance enough to move up at least one grade level and eliminated the need to issue new vouchers for the upcoming school year.
 Four schools, located in Dade, Duval and Putnam counties, earned F grades for the first time this year.
 The grades are partially based on FCAT reading, writing and math scores. Other criteria include the percent of eligible students tested, and improvement or decline in reading scores of the lowest performing students.

 Schools receiving an A or those that increased student performance enough to move up at least one letter grade may receive up to $100 per student as part of the state's School Recognition Program.
 Schools may appeal their grades if they think they were improperly awarded.

 times translates into human abuse. And, that really concerns us."
 According to Munoz, animal abuse is not always easy to define and in many cases is a result of ignorance. Cruelty includes physically harming an animal through violence. But it can also incorporate not feeding, watering or providing adequate shelter.
 She gave the example of a dog chained to a tree. The owner may feel it is adequate shelter. But, according to Munoz, it isn't.
 "The sun eventually moves, the shade is gone and the animal may get tied up in the chain," she said. "Through education, some people realize this is abuse and they stop."
 But, that's not always the case. Currently, the Society has several animals who were abused, including Inferno. The cat was brought to the shelter to recover from severe burns after someone set it on fire.
 Several dogs have also been brought to the shelter so undernourished, they couldn't stand.
 "This is what we want to prevent from happening," Munoz said.
 The Society will start investigating reports of animal cruelty once the county and the municipalities within Seminole County adopt resolutions authorizing it to do so. The organization has already selected Carol Woodward as its primary animal cruelty investigator and Pam Williams as its back up investigator.
 Investigations include taking down reports, attempting to talk to the people involved and working with local law enforcement agencies, Munoz said.
 "We are allowed to walk up to the front door and talk to the people," Munoz said. "What happens next depends on the circumstances, but it has to be done lawfully."
 "We are not out to take any animals away," she said. "We aren't the animal Gestapo."

Agreement

 chairman Sandra Robinson believe the agreement will lead to the lifting of a federal desegregation order by 2003. The district would then be declared as having gained "unitary" status.
 "That's our goal," Robinson said. "We're going to be reviewed on a yearly basis. We're going to know what progress we've made or haven't made."
 Robinson said the school district should have addressed the concerns raised by the Justice Department before now.
 "As far as getting more kids into higher level classes, for instance, we should have been doing that," Robinson said. "But, we're a large district with a lot of issues and curriculum matters we need to deal with.

Now, we can address these concerns."
 Board member Bob Goff said he voted in favor of the consent decree because he is encouraged by a commitment from Hagerly to provide the board with documents about ongoing negotiations with the Justice Department as soon as he receives them. Goff also said he did not hear the amount of objections from the community he was expecting.
 Hagerly said a briefing regarding the agreement will be held with school administrators on July 26.
 Goff has frequently complained that the School Board is merely a "rubber stamp" in negotiations between the district and the Justice Department.

"Maybe we need as a board to set specifics for the Superintendent to follow instead of us following his direction," Goff said. "This whole thing is flawed."
 He said that while he agrees with a plan to make Crooms a high-tech magnet school, he is concerned the Justice Department may keep the district from creating similar programs at other schools.
 Hagerly, who was part of the negotiating team for the agreement, said the agreement simply outlines the district's commitment to make Crooms the district's top high-tech school.
 A former Crooms school principal will recruit students to the new magnet school, Hagerly said.
 Meanwhile, as part of Justice Department requirements to meet the needs of black students, the district has previously created magnet programs in north Seminole County.

 Programs for math, science, technology, health careers and fine arts have been started at several schools, including Sanford and Millennium middle schools, Goldsboro Elementary School, and Seminole High School.
 "I didn't believe we would have waiting lists for children to go to Goldsboro Elementary, Sanford Middle and Seminole High," said board member Larry Furlong. "We have people that are remarkably talented. There's a lot of work in here. It's a compromise, which means there's a lot in here that's not comfortable."

Miller a Magic man

Herald photos by Arch Boothie

The Orlando Magic gave themselves even more of an opportunity to sign several big-name free agents, which they can begin doing on Saturday, sending forwards Corey Maggette (No. 50, left) and Doree Strong (No. 33, above) and draft pick Kenyon Dooling, who the Magic had taken with the No. 10 pick on Wednesday, and cash to the Los Angeles Clippers for a future First Round draft pick, clearing even more room under the NBA salary cap.

Florida swingman taken No. 5 in NBA Draft

MINNEAPOLIS - Mike Miller's new address is not too far from his old one.

The Orlando Magic made the 6-foot-8 University of Florida guard/forward their first of three First Round picks in the NBA Draft Wednesday night, grabbing him with the No. 5 pick.

Miller, a sophomore who decided to leave Florida after leading the Gators into the NCAA Division I Championship Game this year, is projected as a small forward who can play some guard because of his passing and ball-handling ability. He is also a very good shooter from three-point range who can also drive to the basket, something Magic coach Doc Rivers was looking for.

Baldwin, Weaver on front row for Paul Revere 250

Special to the Herald

DAYTONA BEACH - Practice made perfect for Jack Baldwin Wednesday at Daytona International Speedway. When scattered showers canceled the evening qualifying session, Baldwin was awarded the Informis Way Fast pole position award for Thursday's Paul Revere 250, based on his lap of 123.228 mph from afternoon practice.

This was the first pole position of the season for Baldwin, who co-drives the Informis Riley & Scott Judd with car owner George Robinson. They will be joined on the front row by four-time 2000 pole winner James Weaver and Andy Wallace, in the Dyson Racing Riley & Scott Ford.

"We weren't even thinking about the pole during practice," said Baldwin, who won Grand Am races at Phoenix and Mid-Ohio this season. "We know we can get better. The team to beat is still James (Weaver) and Andy (Wallace), that's our benchmark."

"We wouldn't have minded holding qualifying in the rain, our car was that good," said Weaver, who holds a five-point lead over Baldwin in the Grand Am point standings. "Andy (Wallace) actually ran the fastest lap in our car during practice."

The Paul Revere 250 will take the green flag immediately following tonight's 8 p.m. Bud Pole qualifying for Saturday's Pepsi 400 NASCAR Winston Cup Series race. This will be the first running of the historic event since 1986, with the Paul Revere 250 a holiday classic at Daytona dating back to 1967.

Mimmo Schiattarella and Ralf Kelleners, driving the Risi Competizione Ferrari 33SP, will share the second row with the second Dyson R&S Ford of Elliott Forbes-Robinson, John Paul Jr. and Rob Dyson.

Starting in row three for the 70-lap, 250-mile race will be the Doran Lista Special of Didier Theys and Ross Bentley, and the R&S Chevrolet of Tom Volk and Jaret Schroeder.

Larry Oberio and Ryan Hampton won their 8th Informis Way Fast Award for the SportsRacer Lights class. Other class pole winners were the Saleen SR of Terry Borscheller and Ron Johnson, GTD, GAW Porsche drivers Darren Law and Mike Fitzgerald, GTU, and the Spirit of Daytona Camaro of Craig Conway and Doug Goad, American GT.

Thursday's on-track activities begin at 3 p.m. with NASCAR Winston Cup Series practice.

Tickets are still available by calling the Speedway Ticket Office at (904) 253-7223.

Miracle mauls Miami

From Staff Reports

ORLANDO - Shannon Johnson scored 14 points to lead a balanced attack as the Orlando Miracle posted a 61-53 victory over the expansion Miami Sol Wednesday night at the TD Waterhouse Centre.

Johnson scored seven of her 14 points in a 15-2 run that gave the Miracle a 19-10 advantage midway through the first half. They led by as many as 17 points over the final 20 minutes.

Nykesha Sales, rookie Cintia dos Santos and Adrienne Johnson added 11 points apiece for the Miracle, who have won three of their last four to move two games over .500 for the third time this season.

Milena Flores netted nine points to lead Miami, which matched a season high with its third straight loss.

It was the first meeting between the Florida rivals. The teams meet again on Friday in Miami (1 p.m. at the American Airline Arena).

Following Friday's game, the Miracle have home games with Indiana on Thursday (July 6) and Seattle on Saturday (July 8), both games beginning at

PREDATORS GO LOOKING FOR 10TH WIN IN TAMPA

Ty Law (No. 15, left) caught five passes for 112 yards, including touchdown grabs of 33-, 14-, and 45-yards, and Joe Douglass (No. 12, right) caught one touchdown pass and ran for another as the Orlando Predators improved to a AFL-best 9-1 on the season with a 46-32 victory over the New England Sea Wolves at the TD Waterhouse Centre last Friday night. Saturday night, the Predators head west for another "war on I-4" against the bitter rival Tampa Bay Storm starting at 7:30 p.m.
