County not willing to part with tax dollars to help finance road plan

By J. MARK BARFIELD Herald stall writer

SANFORD - Seminole Mall developers and Sanford officials aren t giving up on a tax plan to pay for more than $6 million in road improvements for the proposed Seminole Mall despite opposition Tuesday from most county commissioners.

"I'm pleased they're at least willing to consider what revenues the mall will create," said Thomas Schneider, property development director for Melvin Simon and Associates Inc. The Indianapolis firm is developing the proposed $100 million, 1.2 million-square-foot mall southeast of Interstate 4 and State Road 46.

"We will have to restudy the funding proposal." Sanford City Manager Frank Faison said. "There were several million dollars in Impact fees that were not even discussed."

But most county commissioners made it clear during a workshop Tuesday they are unwilling to consider any substantial diversion of their badly-needed property tax revenue. Board adopts plans aimed at curbing local dropout rate

By VICKI DoSORMIER Heraic staff writer

SANFORD - The Sentinole County school district will implement a variety of plans which, it is hoped, will help minimize the problem of students dropping out of school before graduation. The comprehensive plan was presented to the board during their board meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Jim Dawson, coordinator of depout prevention, presented the board with six plans that he and his stall are using and that will be used. over the next year to help stem the tide of students who leave school before they earn their diploma.

The first program is the resource-tutorial program. That program will be implemented at three middle schools during the 1990-91 school year. Designed to serve at-risk students one hour per day, the plan calls for students to continue in their regular academic programs while receiving specific academic tutorial or remedial

"These students will be given the opportunity to achieve where they would not have while staying in their academic classes," Dawson

The plan also calls for a comprehensive counseling program to help students deal with other problems that might be a deterrent to their success.

The Seminole Education Association's "Project Excel" will offer positive role models for students who have not found such models in their everyday life. Volunteers from the schools will "adopt" a student and follow hits or her progress until graduation.

In addition to acting as role models, the teachers will provide students with additional intertal help and enrichment opportunities.

Dawson hopes the program will be implemented at first at schools such as Midway Elementary School, 2251 Jitway. Sanford, and Goldsboro Elementary School, 1301 W. 20th St., Sanford which have been targeted as having the most Bos Dropouts, Page 5A

School board approves plan for Milwee Middle facelift

LONGWOOD - The Seminole County School Board on Tuesday approved the master plan for the proposed demolition, renovation, remodeling and new construction at Milwee Middle School.

The board did not, however, give final approval to the educational specifications that detail specific measurements and other details of items which are established us a combined effort of the architect and curriculum planners in the district.

"I want to have a chance to look at these", said vice chairman Nancy Warren thumbing through the notebook that she had received less than an hour before. Other board members have yet to receive copies of the report which is several inches

They plan to take action on the specifications in a special one item agenda meeting on April 16.

When construction gets underway at Milwee, 1725 County Road 427. Longwood, the school will become a "portable city." according to assistant principal Doris Poole.

In addition to the 14 portable classrooms already on campus. Poole said 30 more will be added to accomodate all students while the other buildings, built between 1924 and 1956, are removed to make mom for the new construction.

'It's a matter of safety," Poole said. "The old buildings are literally falling down."

The work will be done as one project rather than a little at a time. Poole said it is her understanding that the work will be completed in time for the 1991-92 school year. Boo Milwee, Page SA

Committee stalls child care bill

Dy Mena UPI writer

TALLAHASSEE - The chairman of the House Committee on Children and Youth failed Tuesday to persuade his own members to approve a proposed constitutional amendment guar-anteeing basic care to children. Rep. Mike Langton, D-Jacksonville, delayed a vote on his proposal (HJR 2623) after members of his committee warned it was unrealistic and might make the state vulnerable to lawsuits.

The action followed release of a committee staff report showing state government is $1 billion short of providing all the day care, drug treatment, juvenile justice and other children's programs called for under state

Langton said he simply failed before bringing it before the committee.

"I don't mind being embarrassed by the Appropriations Committee, but I don't want to be embarassed by my own committee." Langton said in stalling action on his proposed amendment.

The amendment would enshrine & declaration of children's rights in the Florida Constitution. It would guarantee a right to adequate nourishment, housing, clothing, education, medical care and adult supervision and protection from disease and injury, exploitation, abuse and neglect:

The question would be placed on the November ballot.

Insurers blast bankers

Hed Press International

TALLAHASSEE - Insurance industry spokesmen re-jected Monday what they called an attempt by bankers to salvage a few "crumbs" in the lobbying battle over whether banks should selfinsurance.

Scott Johnson, lobbyist for the Florida Association of Insurance Agents, said the bankers have offered to settle for the right to sell annuities, leaving other insurance lines to insurance companies.

"The bankers sense that their legislative cookie is beginning to crumble and are asking lawmakers for a few of the crumbs." Johnson said during a news conference.

"Bankers need to know that we cannot deal on this we cannot deal on this particular issue. It isn't fair to individual insurance agents in Florida that we make deals that jeopardise their futures." he said. "It isn't fair to the public, because they are the one who will ultimately be corred by banks to purchase insurance when they need to have that loan."

Herb Morgan, the former House speaker turned lob-bytes for the Florida Associa-tion of Insurance Under-writers, said banks offered the compromise on annuities.

State law currently forbida banks from selling any form of insurance except credit life.

THE PRINCIPAL Chiles, Nelson to discuss race

TALLAHASSEE — Former U.S. Sen. Lawton Chiles, who is considering running for governor, will discuss the race with Democratic Party front-runner Bill Nelson on Wednesday, a spokesman for Nelson said.

Don Pride, campaign press secretary for Nelson, said late Tuesday the meeting is scheduled for 3 p.m. at the Democratic Party's state headquarters in Tallahassee.

In Tallanasce.

Chiles, a popular Democrat who quit the U.S. Senate in diagust in January 1579, has become the capital city's most-talked-about political figure in recent days since his announcement that he is seriously considering a run for the Democratic nomination.

Word of his possible candidacy began to circulate Friday. Chiles at first was reluctant to confirm the rumors, saying he was in no hurry to make a decision.

"A lot of people have talked to me for about a year," Chiles said. "I really thought I'd be doing this in a more reflective manner."

Prids said that Nelson, the congressman from Melbourne, sought the meeting with Chiles not to dissuade him from running, but to discuss their positions on issues.

One prominent Democratic Party official, who spoke only on the condition of anonymity, said insiders are predicting that Chiles will run.

"He wouldn't have let it (the speculation) go this far and wouldn't have confirmed it if he wasn't ready to jump in," the official said.

Chiles has been under pressure to run from some prominent Democrats who fear that neither Nelson nor his challenger state Sen. George Stuart of Orlando has shown the strength to defeat Republican Gov. Bob Martines.

Nelson was plagued early in his campaign by miscues, and Stuart has not generated much enthusiasm or contributions so far.

An 'unfair' tax can be taxing Margaret Thatcher's miseries have been mounting lately. Inflation is up, the Con-servative Party has been getting pasted in local elections and, after 11 remarkable years. there is talk among party members of dumping the "iron lady."

Thatcher's admirers in this country would do well to take heed because similar seeds of discontent could take root in this country.

The prime minister's most pressing pro-blem is a full-fledged taxpayer's revolt against a poll tax she has long championed. The tax was conceived as a replacement for "the rates," the British term for property taxes. Thatcher and her fellow Conservatives considered "the rates" an unfair tax on responsible home owners, many of them

Conservative Party supporters.

Thatcher wasn't interested in reforming the rates: she wanted to abolish them. Last year, she finally got her way, replacing them with what she prefers to call the "community bears".

The community charge is, in essence, a politax, because anyone who does not register for the tax will not be eligible to vote. The tax requires local city councils to set a sum to be paid by every resident at least 18 years old. Unlike income tax or property tax, the new tax is levied at a flat rate for everyone. That means the Duke of Westminster, the richest man in England, pays the same amount as man in England, pays the same amount as any working class bloke.

The poll tax, which took effect in England and Wales April 1, sparked riots in the streets of London. In Scotland, where the tax has been in effect for a year, an opinion poll showed Britains's ruling party trailing the opposition by 3G points.

The American taxpayer has experienced a similar slide into regressivity. No one's rioting in the streets, perhaps because regressivity, like Eliot's fog, has crept in on little cat's feet.

Despite the tax-cutting rhetoric of the 1960's, middle-and lower-middle income Americans are paying more in taxes today: the rich are paying less. There are two reasons for this regressive redistribution: the 1961 tax cut, which lowered the top rate from 70 percent to 28 percent, and the 1963 Social Security revisions.

Many Americans were not even aware of the sharp increases in the Social Security payroll tax until Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan, D-N.Y., began sounding the alarm late last year. Moynihan pointed out that three-quarters of American taxpayers now pay more in payroll tax than in income tax. Someone making $500,000 pays at the same rate as someone making $500,000. Moynihan also charges that the administration has been using the Social Security surplus to mask the size of the federal budget deficit.

Moynihan has proposed reducing regressive Social Security taxes by $55 billion in 1991, but he has had trout le rousing the Democratic leadership. They realise that if payroll taxes are cut, income taxes or other taxes must be increased. Except for Rep. Dan Rostenkowski, D-Ill., Chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, politicians have been exceedingly rejuctant to state the obvious.

As elections from in 1990 and 1992, the tax issue may take hold. Politicians may discover that tax fairness is at least as important to voters as tax rates. They could ask Margaret Thatcher about it. She may soon have time to ponder the question.

Cheney, Webster split on Soviets

WASHINGTON - Washington hosteness be warned: At your next dinner party don't seat Defense Secretary Richard Cheney and CIA Director William Webster at the same table. Cheney is reportedly furious at Webster. The ctA director has publicly taken a position at odds with the Pentagon's on the question of whether the Soviet Union remains a serious military threat and whether military budgets must remain high to meet this continuing threat. Essentially, the argument is over "reversibility," Chency and the Pentagon believe that Mikmail Gorbachev could be forced out of office at any time and a hard-line successor could reverse the changes be has made. The United States could more again, force an agreement military threat changes he has made. The United States could once again face an aggressive military threat from Moscow.

As a result, says Cheney and the military chiefs, the United States must remain strong—that is, no significant cuts in the Pentagon budget.

However, Webster and the CIA's Soviet analysts don't agree. As they see it — whether or not Gorbachev remains at the heim — the changes in the Soviet Union and Eastern Europe are insversible, the Warsew Pact in dead, and Soviet citizens will not allow the recent changes in their political system to be reversed.

This difference between Cheney and Webster came to a head on a recent morning when both men were on different sides of Capitol Hill.

Cheney was meeting with top Senate leaders to argue that there should not be significant cuts in the administration's $306 billion fiscal 1991 Pentagon budget request. He argued that a resurgent floviet military threat must be guarded against.

Even as Cheney spoke, Webster was appearing before the House Armed Bervloes Committee giv-

Webster told the House panel, "There is little chance that Soviet hegemony could be restored to Eastern Europe ... even a major reversal of leadership and policies in Moscow would be unlikely to restore an international order resembling one that existed only a few years ago."

He then proceeded to say that any future Soviet leader "would face the same types of economic and political pressures that President Gorbachev has, and would probably continue to pursue arms control agreements with the West. He would be unlikely to seek a bread reversal of changes...."

Kunin fights 'tide' of cynics

BOSTON — Madeline Kunin doesn't want to be seen as "another body on the pile of politicians who have gotten out." The three-term governor of Vermont isn't disenchanted with politics, or alienated, or cynical. Yet when this thoughtful woman announced that she wouldn't run again, that she was ready to leave politics, it was natural to count.

that she wouldn't run again, that she was ready to leave politics, it was natural to count. One, two, three governors in New England — from states that have seen better days, better bond-ratings, surely better feelings among taxpayers — have called it quits.

It cannot be much fun, after all, to govern like a CEO in charge of a company that is down-string, not much fun to try and get your kicks from damage control, not much fun to be a politician in an era when chief executives have become chief targets, and the public has soured toward them like milk on a shelf.

But Kunin's decision strikes a particular note of concern. The soft-spoken, introspective and intelligent governor is not only one of the few women to come this far. She is one of the few women to come this far. She is one of the few politicians who has tried to keep the public eye on the long run by emphasizing the environment and children, and on the bottom line by asking for taxes. And she admits, "It's taken a toil. I have no regets, but I'm going against a powerful tide."

When a politician who has, in most ways, done the right thing finds herself running against the tide, it is right to ask just what that tide is. The governor added her own voice to what is being said more often these days. Even in a civil state like Vermont, there is reason to fear "a cancerous cyniciam which is multiplying in the body politic and weakening in a civil state like Vermont, there is reason to fear "a cancerous cynicism which is multiplying in the body politic and weakening our very capacity for self-government."

As she told the Montpelier crowd, "We are living in a time when we set the stage nationally for political disillusionment because politicians make promises which are impossible to keep. Worst amongst these is the promise of no new taxes, while guaranteeing continued or even vastly enhanced results."

Kunin was circumscribing the closed circle of American politics. In this none that often strangles the dialogue for change, voters say they wish for honest leaders, and politicians say they wish the mood of the public would permit to hard honest talk. Voters blame politicians and politicians blame the "climate," the human weather pattern they watch. We all read each other's lips, minds, polis and watch the long slow slide of the country on the graphs marked "deficit" or "education."

The politicians who are most adept at staying in office — the legislators, the permanent Congress in Washington — have by and large become as risk-aversive as a worker in a one-company town. Even the press doesn't seem to expect courage anymore from people who are "just" trying to hold onto their jobs. Indeed we may disparage those who speak for change, or for sacrifice, as politically naive, suicidal.

But there may be another message in one governor's leave-taking. She was quite clear and genuine in say-ing that politics was just one way to make change. She is ready to try others.

The savvy insider analyst may describe Kunin as a politician who is leaving because she became controversial. But it is equally fair to de-acribe her as a politician who risked controversy because she was willing to leave.

Indeed if we usually define departure as loss, perhaps it's because we've forgotten the model of the citizen-politician. Not the respectational the professional campaigner and lifetime legislator, but the American who holds office for a time and then goes back to "real life." The person who finds in public office just one answer to the lifelong question Kunin posed in her announcement. "How can I lead a meaningful life?"

If we usually define de-parture as loss, perhaps it's because we've forgot-ten the model of the citizen-politician.

Forgive me if I commit a sin against cynicism, but there are many attracted to politics as a way of improving society, solving problems. Somewhere along the line, if they are not careful, they spend all their time improving their approval ratings and solving the problem of re-election.

It may be that the only way to speak freely is with one foot out the door. It may be that the readiness to leave mutes ambition and amplifies honesty. Risk-taking may come most easily to those who are willing, if necessary, to leave. If that is true, we have to learn once again that ideal public service is, by definition, temporary. temporary.

Whistleblower loses Navy post

WASHINGTON — Joe Richards used to be a top civilian engineer for the Navy working on nuclear submarines. Now he drives a particle truck in Connecticut, all because he blew the white on a biatant waste of money by the Pentagon. Richards first mistake was that he pointed out what he thought was a cently flaw in $5.6 million worth of soner equipment. His second mistake was that he wouldn't shut up and mind his own business when the business when the Navy failed to correct the problem. He was fired for insubordination.

Richards was a construction oversight engineer for the cophisticated sonar systems on the Trident and Los Angeles class submarines built by Electric Boat, a division of General Dynamics. The "towed array" sonar systems, costing $500,000 each, are dragged on half-mile-long cables behind the submarines. They are the eyes and ears of the various ocean depths.

For three years, Richards worked on the towed array sonar and was frustrated by the lack of interest his superiors showed in lack of interest his superiors showed in construction problems. He reported that the long cables could not retract emouthly at high speeds when a submarine head to maneuver quickly. Submarine commanders would be forced to cut the cables and dump the expensive sonar on the ocean floor.

Richards also says the cables have been cut by submarine propellers because they are deployed too close to the blades. The sener is cut loose and the propeller is demaged, making it louder and more easily detectable by the enemy. The Navy loss only a portion of its investment when the sonar is cut loose, but the ship ends up in dry dock and the costs escalate from there.

Richards told his superiors about the problems, and they raised the issue with Electric Boat in a meeting on May 6, 1998. Electric Boat agreed to-the the problems and pay for it. But a few days later, Richards' superiors inexplicably told Electric Boat not to worry about it.

Frustrated, Richards called the Defense Department Inspector General's Office and Frustrated, Richards 'called the Defense Department Inspector General's Office and they launched an investigation.

A month later at a meeting with his superiors, Richards raised his voice and walked out. He was fired for insubordination. He told our associate Tim Warner that he was fired only after he biew the whistle to the inspector general.

The inspector general concluded that Richards had a legitimate gripe that should have been taken seriously by his superiors. But the investigators also found that Richards' firing had been justified because of insubordination:

Richards found enough holes in the first report of the inspector general to inspire that office to begin a second investigation. He hopes it will vindicate him and get him his job back. Both the Navy and Electric Best stand by the first inspector general report. An Electric Bost spokesman told us that Richards' allegations are groundless.

Richards makes a living now doing odd jobs. His house is in forecissure. He struggles to put food on the table. Engineers with his skills are in demand in the defense contract-ing industry, but Richards says employers won't touch him because of his beef with the Commissioners Glenn, Pat Warren, and Bob Sturm echoed Streetman's concern over the use of county taxes to pay for road improvements required by local, regional and state planners to accommodate the traffic going and coming from the 217-aere mall site. Btate planning laws require the developers to pay those costs, not the local government authenties. ernment authorities.

The county must approve the plan or delegate authority to Sanford to approve it under state laws governing charter counties. Seminole County voters approved the charter in 1866. It took affect Jan. 1, 1989. Commissioner Jennifer Kelley, whose commission district includes the mail site, argued in favor of studying the proposal, saying it should not be dis-missed. "This is another thing that can show the county can work with the city," Kelley said. "They're only asking that you look at it, not to approve it

Falson said with the status of the tax plan in question, the roads could still be built by Simon and credited against the fees Simon would be required to pay when the mall and the remaining portions of the development are complete.

Sturm also offered the suggestion that Simon create a special assessment district at the mail site and use the annual collections to repay the bonds. Willard said Simon was rejuctant to consider that proposal because it. represented an additional cost above the amount paid for taxes.

Indian hostages found dead

SRINAGAR, India — An Islamic scholar and his assistant abducted by Kashmiri Moslem separatists were found shot to death today, a day after their kidnappers killed a Hindu hostage following the government's rejection of their demands.

A paramilitary patrol discovered the bodies of Mashir-ul-Haq. vice chancellor of Kashmir University, and his personal secretary, Abdul Ghani, in the southern Padshahi suburb of Srinagar, 400 miles north of New Delhi, police said.

The two had been shot late Tuesday or early Wednesday, they said. No further details were available.

Haq, a non-Kashmiri Islamic scholar, and Ghani, a Kashmiri Moslem, were abducted Friday by the Kashmir Students Liberation Front, which in a separate operation the same day kidnapped H.L. Khera, the Hindu general manager of a watch factory owned by state-tum Hindstan Machine Tools Ltd.

Grenade kills 18 at Thai fair

BANGKOK — A hand grenade thrown into a crowd at an outdoor fair in rural Thailand killed 18 people, including four children, and wounded more than 40, a physician said today.

Dr. Chatchai Nualla-Or, director of Buntharik Hospital said the grenade was thrown late Tuesday at an outdoor fair where hundreds of villagers were watching an open-air movie at Ubon Ratchathani, 335 miles east of Bangkok.

He said police were investigating the incident but had made no arrests. He said some army troops earlier had quarreled with villagers in the area.

"The blast killed 11 people instantly and seven others died in local hospitals. The victims were 10 men, four women and four children." Chatchai said in a telephone interview.

More than 40 people were wounded in the blast, with 12 of them in critical condition, he said.

Gorbachev seeks reform

By CORALD MADLER United Press International

MOSCOW — With the Soviet budget spiraling out of control, President Mikhail Corbachev said two top government councils will meet this weekend to work on speeding up radical economic reforms expected to include sharp price increases.

Last week, the Izvestia government newspaper revealed that national income declined for the first two months of 1990 by up to 2 percent — the first negative growth registered in Soviet history — while money supply increased by 15 percent.

The budget deficit last year was $192 billion, and other figures released recently showed that the government in 1988 printed twice as much money as in 1987 with no corresponding increase in the goods and services available.

Because the ruble is not convertible, the budget deficit cannot be financed by foreigners buying into the economy as in the United States. The into the economy as in the United States. The absence of a money market of stocks and bonds means the deficit cannot be financed internally.

Gorbachev told delegates to a congress of the Young Communist League Tuesday he wanted to speed up reforms to "improve the situation at the consumer market (and) do away, at least partially, with the deficit, which poisons the whole atmosphere of public life and unsettles people."

The reforms designed to eventually improve the consumer market, however, are expected in the short run to be felt in drastically higher prices.

Newspapers this month have spoken of an impending "shock therapy" to halt the printing presses and the hemorrhaging of worthless rubles to cover the budget deficit.

"Unprofitable enterprises will be closed and unemployment will increase fast," the official news agency Tass said last week. "It is unclear whether the population will reconcile itself to such a shock therapy.

Gorbachev said his presidential council of advisers and the federation council of repre-sentatives from the nation's republics will meet Saturday to look into speeding up the reforms.

The situation allows us to predict that these will be very difficult but necessary decisions," he said. "We shall need the national agreement on this question.

"The president and the presidential council intend to adopt an early package of measures to give fresh impulse to economic transformations,"

He did not spell out exactly what measures would be taken besides saying "the basic steps initially planned for 1992 and 1993 should be taken instead this year and early next year." Those are the years vast price increases were Gorbachev said he expected some opposition, at one point switching from Russian to use a Spanish battle cry to make his point.

"It is a paradox," he said. "At one time we are criticizing the slow speed of the reform, in-decisiveness and half-measures, and call for their speeding up. Then without learning about the suggestions for speeding up, we cry with en-thusiasm, 'No Pasaran,'" or they will not pass.

In addition, a total overhaul is being planned to bring prices into line with costs of production.

Bush vows progress on summit plan

WASHINGTON - Pres dent Bush, citing the value of dialogue "when you have difficulties brewing." vowed to press ahead with plans for a U.S.-Soviet summit next month even in the face of tension in Lithuania.

After meeting with Ca-nadian Prime Minister Brian Mulroney on Tuesday in Toronto, Bush told reporters he made it clear to Moscow deterioration of the situation in Lithuania would make it "extraordinarily difficult to move forward as rapidly as I'd like" in arms control and other areas. Meant to reinforce earlier calls for a peaceful resolu-tion. Bush's warning was accompanied by signals that the crisis in Lithuania would not imperil plans for his May 30-June 3 summit in the United States with Soviet President Mikhail Gorbachev.

Mother Teresa resigns as head of organization

VATICAN CITY - Mother Teresa, the nun who won the Nobel Peace Prize in 1971 for her work with the impoverished and the sick, has resigned as head of her Missionaries of Charity organization for health reasons, the Vatican said Wednesday.

A brief announcement by the Vatican press office said only that Pope John Paul II had accepted the resignation of Mother Teresa as superior of the worldwide organisation she founded in 1950.

Mother Teresa, 79. spent months in a Calcutta hospital between September and Desem-ber last year for treatment for "unstable angina," a condition that causes contractions of arteres and a restricted blood flow.

She was discharged from the hospital Dec. 11, 10 days after doctors implanted a pacemaker.

Lack of math stalks U.S. workforce

By REDECEA KOLE UPI Science Writer

WASHINGTON - The nation soon will

WASHINGTON — The nation soon will face a serious shortfall of mathematically skilled workers unless more Americans, especially women and minorities, are persuaded to study math, a National Research Council report showed Tuesday.

The study found Americans' interest in math appears to have fallen drumatically in the past two decades. Only one-sixth as many college students said they planned to major in math in 1965 as did in 1966, even though total college enrollment doubled. though total college enrollment doubled during the 20-year period.

Overall, mathematical sciences degree production now stands at levels of the mid-80s — about 15,000 bachelor's, 3,000 master's and 800 doctorates each year. Those levels are "generally considered too low to meet the demands of the near future," the report stated.

tiets, engineers and hosts of other workers for business, industry and government will not be met," the report's authors warn.

By the year 3000, the U.S. economy is expected to create more than 31 million new jobs, most of which will require both college education and the use of mathematics, the study showed. The rate of growth in mathematically based jobs currently is about twice that for all other occupations.

The 119-page report conceded some of the apparent downturn in math interest probably stems from students entering related fields like computer science. But it added "part of the decline may be due to the shift of interest away from science and engineering."

The report notes although white males now dominate the mathematics field, their numbers in the college-age group are expected to decline 34 percent between expected to decime 1981 and 1995.

Blacks and Hispanics, both growing portions of the college-bound population, have taken part to a lesser degree in math than have whites, and the number of women advanced math degrees trails behind men, the study said.

"Meeting the increasing need (for a mathematically skilled work force) with fewer students and also a greater proportion who have shown a lower interest in mathematics poses a major challenge to the nation's education system." researchers

Asians may take up some of the slack, the report said, noting they accounted for 24 percent of math doctorates in 1986.

Oviedo rallies in sixth to win Volusia tourney

WOOLS STOCK Herald Correspondent

DeLAND — After enjoying two dream games in the first rounds of the Volusia County baseball tournament, the Oviedo Lions found themselves in a nightmare entering the bottom the fifth inning of the championship game Tuesday, trailing Mainland 3-2.

But the Lions awakened just in time and railled for four runs in the st inning and pulled out a 7-3 over the Buccaneers.

The win gave the Lions the three-day tournament title in which they outscored their opponents

"A tight game is good for us." said Oviedo coach Mike Ferrell, who watched his team improve to 19-5. "We wanted to get in some games over spring break. We accomplished everything we wanted to accomplish."

LONGWOOD - Strange things happen under a

On Tuesday night, for example, the Lyman High School baseball team — noted for its good pitching, solid defense and somewhat spotty offense — made like the 1927 Yankees in a 10-0 romp over the Bamberg-Ehihardt (S.C.) Red Raiders.

The Greyhounds pounded out 13 hits, three of which were doubles, as Jason Goodpastor limited the Red Raiders to six hits in the six-inning shutout.

"We hit the ball a little bit tonight," said pleasantly surprised Lyman coach Bob Mc-Cullough. "This is their (Bamberg-Ehrhardt) third game in two days, so their pitching is down. Their last kid (Gray Yelton) did a good job.

"But we did hit the ball well, better than we have been hitting it. It gives some of the kids a little more confidence. It also helped get some kids off the bench and into a game so we could see them play.

a scorecard couldn't figure out who was playing where and when.

The few fans who braved the beautiful conditions got an inkling of what to expect when John Jump pulled the first pitch from Bam-berg-Ehrhardt starter Brian Wilson into right field for a single. Two walks and a fielder's choice later. Heath Greenlee ripped a bases-loaded double to give Lyman a 2-0 lead.

A wild pitch plated the 'Hounds' third run-before Chris Pleicones doubled to score Greenlee.

Wilson managed to work through a scoreless second inning, but Lyman jumped all over him again in the third frame. After Frank Harmer drew a lead-off walk, Greenlee, Joe Talbot and Pleicones followed with consecutive singles to chase Wilson. Pleicones' single drove in two

The keyals lead the standings with a 4-1 mark, followed by the A's and Red Sox (both 2-3) and the 1-4

Playing in the second game of the doubleheader, the Royals watched the Red Sox send 12 hitters to the plate will building a 7-0 lead in the top of the first inning. After acoring four in their half of the first and adding single runs in the second and third, the Royals took the lead with a six-run fourth inning.

Also contributing to the Royals' attack was Lloyd Dixon, who was 3 for 3 with two doubles, a single and four runs acored. Alexis Acosta, who was named last week's "Player of the Week" by the Recreation Department, was 4 for 4 with three singles, a double and three runs

The Royals also got support from Donald Hinson (two runs scored). Marcus Beasley (two singles).
Maliam Wynn and Chris Giovanelli (both with a single and a run scored) and Alvin Kilgore (one run scored).

Pierce converts free throws, steals win from Magic ORLANDO - Ricky Pierce connected on four free throws in the final 25 seconds to propel Milwaukee past Orlando 130-127 Tuesday night. Pierce scored 10 of his game-high 31 points in the final period to help the Bucks clinch their fourth straight victory. Brad Lohaus, a 7-foot forward, finished with 23 points, while Jay Humphries contributed 21 points.

Humphries connected on a three-pointer to lift

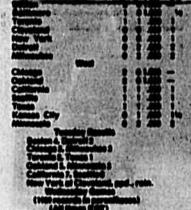

Milwaukee to a 126-125 lead with 1:24 left. Magic veteran Reggie Theus, who combined with Terry Catledge for 56 points, hit two free throws with 30 seconds showing to give Orlando a 127-126 advantage until Pierce fired his game-sealing free throws.

Majkowski, Freeman file antitrust suit against NFL

Green Bay Packers quarterback Don Majkowski, New York Jets running back Freeman McNeil and six other players filed suit against the NFL Tuesday, demanding an end to free agency restrictions and seeking a court order against implementation of a wage scale.

The suit, filed in federal court in Newark, N.J., claims the league's restriction on free movement of players among the NFL's 28 teams violates federal antitrust laws and seeks triple damages for each of the eight players. quarterback Don Majkowski.

The suit represents a major tactical change in the long-simmering NFL labor dispute, as the NFL Players Association. the NFL Players Association, rebuffed in its antitrust assault on the league, is not a party in the case, although NFLPA officials strongly support and helped orchestrate the action.

According to a statement released by the NFL Management Council, this lawsuit comes as no supprise.

Council, this lawsuit comes as no surprise.

"Our attorneys will deal with it," the statement read. "We have not received a copy of the complaint and have no comment on the merits of the case."

Majkowski was a Pro Bowl selection last season after leading Green Bay to a 10-6 record and McNeil, a nine-year veteran, is the Jets' all-time leading rusher. The other players who filed suit were: cornerback Mark Collins and running back Lee Rouson of the New York Giants; offensive tackle Dave Richards of the San Diego Chargers; defensive end Niko Noga of the Detroit Lions; cornerback Tim McDonald of the Phoenix Cardinals; and offensive tackle irv Eatman of the Kansas City Chiefs.

The suit is an attack on the so-called Plan B free agency system put in place in the league on Feb. 1, 1989 as a gesture by the NFL to convince the courts that there is free agency in the league. Under that system, each team is allowed to "protect" the rights to 37 players, making any other player under contract an unrestricted free agent able to join any other team.

However, the 37 protected players are subjected to restrictive rules against player movement, giving the team a right of first refusal on any deal involving a protected player and awarding a team commencent. awarding a team compensation in the form of high draft picks for in the form of high draft picks for lost players.

All eight plaintiffs were "protected" players. The suit asks the court to lesue a permanent injunction against the free agency system and another court order to halt any future plan for a wage scale that would apply a ceiling on salaries for individual players.

The monetary damages sought by the players represent

The monetary damages sought by the players represent the difference between what the player would have made on an open market versus what he made under the NFL's restricted market and all damages awarded in antitrust cases are tripled.

"We fully support and encourage the players in their suit and we hope that they are successful," Gene Upshaw, executive director of the NFLPA, said in a statement. "The NFL's restraints on player freedom and movement are patently illegal and we feel confident that a jury will agree. It is only a matter of time before the courts finally bring the NFL's unlawful restraints to an end."

The strategy of filing suits by the strategy of filing suits by

The strategy of filing suits by individual players against the league rather than by the NFLPA stems from a decision by the Eighth Circuit Court of Appeals in St. Louis last year.

The three-judge panel, hearing a league appeal of a ruling in the NFLPA's 1987 antitrust suit NFLPA's 1987 antitrust suit against the league, ruled that the league was shielded from antitrust acrutiny as long as there existed a certified bargaining representative of the players. Since then, the NFLPA has declared itself decertified as a union clearing the way for union, clearing the way for individual players to sue for antitrust damages.

The suits come on the heels of a suit filed by the league against the NFLPA in federal court in Minnespolis March 30.

NHL investigating Norton incident

United Proce International

UNIONDALE, N.Y. - The guarantees after the third game of a bad-blood hockey series were no sweep and New York Islanders defenseman Jeff Norton would live.

At the expense of Norton's concussion, the Islanders claimed their first victory of the postsesson to draw within 2-1 of the New York Rangers in their best-of-seven first-round playoff series

After the Islanders railled for two third-period goals to force the first overtime. Brent Sutter scored the winner 59 seconds into the second. The winning goal was aided by a power play bridging the extra sessions after the Rangers' Troy Mallette received a major needly for bearding Marian. penalty for boarding Norton.

Norton, who was released from the hospital Tuesday after spending the night listed in fair condition, is highly doubtful for Game 4 Wednesday on Long Island.

The incident, only the latest in a chain that began with Islanders center Pat LaFontaine's concussion in the series opener. Tuesday was under investigation by the NHL.

Mallette rammed Norton Into the boards from behind after the Islander already had been spun away from the play by a jarring but clean check from Chris Nilan. The penalty in fact had to be called by a linesman because the referee was so far away from the incident to stay with the game

If a hearing is scheduled and Mallette is deemed to have had intent to injure, he would receive a match penalty. Al-though the LaFontaine concussion called for no action - resulting from a clean check by James Patrick - the Islanders' retribution tactics resulted in $30,000 fines.

Ripley rides 'Eight Ball' to popular 'B' Bomber win at Orlando

Openial to the Horold

ORLANDO — Sanford's John Ripley put the rest of the "B" Bomber field behind his "Eight Ball" machine on Friday night at Orlando Speedworld as he scored a popular win.

Barbara Ann Pierce, talented Ted Head, John Potts and Dave Waddell trailed Ripley across the stripe.

LeRoy Porter held off a determined Dick Anderson to win the FASCAR-sanctioned 25-lap Late Model headliner.

While Porter led most of the way, after a fender-banging duel with Mike Pitch in the early laps, Anderson, a two-time Florida Governor's Cup champion, was the show.

After Anderson's car slowed abruptly on the second lap and stopped on the back stretch, a quick pitatop fixed the problem and he restarted at the tail end of the 19-car field.

Quickly working his way up to third, Anderson got by Pete Orr on a late restart and pressured Porter to the checkers, but had to settle for the runner-up-spot.

For Porter, it was his seventh win of the year while Anderson's second-place finish came on his first 1990 appearance in a FASCAR-sanctioned event. Orr held on for third over rookie Mike Fitch and "Steady" Steve Lathem.

Veteran Wayne Marshall finally got one up on his son Ricky as he won his second Sportsman feature of the season in wire-to-wire fashion.

After starting near the rear of the field, Ricky worked his way up through the pack, then recled in his father. But he could never muster a pass to take the lead and had to settle for second.

Taking an impressive third in the Jack's Country Vittles Chevy was "Caveman" Jones, who bested Mike Todd and Von Crews.

David Indivers scored a surprise win in the Florida Modified final as he held off hard-charging Gary Salvatore for the victory. Finishing third was Glen Carter.

In the "A" Homber main event, Jimmy Johns took win No. 2 of the season, Johns' son Rick, Dave Savicki, "Cruisin" " Curtis Narmore and Cindy Cition followed him in the standings. Bobby Sears won the Mini Stock feature for the 11th time this season, finishing ahead of Gene Van Alstine and salvage yard operator Richard Newton.

After apparent Four-Cylinder Enduro winner Brian Earls was disqualified for illegal tires. Steve Lenzi was declared the winner of the highly entertaining event.

Rick Johns won the "B" Bomber final.

Driving a Ford Pinto sporting a new motor he built himself, 17-year-old sensation Dwane Cochran won the Mini Stock final. Early leader

Treatment of kidney stones can be varied

DEAR DR. GOTT: I'm a heart patient. My first bypass surgery was in 1975. I'm now bothered with kidney stones, in spite of being on a proper dief. Can you recommend a diet that would eliminate the stones?

DEAR READER: Kidney stones vary in their constituents. About 80 percent are made of calcium oxilate. 5 percent of uric acid. 2 percent of cystine and the remainder of magnesium ammonium phosphate.

Calcium stones are common in several diseases, including sarcoidosis (an inflammation of lymph glands), hyperthyroidism. multiple myeloma (a form of blood cell cancer), too much dietary vitamin D. malignancies and primary hyperoxaluria (a kidney condition marked by excess excretion of oxalate).

Idiopathic hypercalcuria (an hereditary condition charac-terized by high levels of calcium in the urine) is a cause of kidney stones in more than 50 percent of calcium stone-formers. Prevention consists of treatment for any underlying disease. high fluid intake (more than a quart of water a day, to dilute the calcium in the urine) and thiazide diurctics (watercliminating pills that lower urine calcium).

Uric acid stones are related to gout and are preventable using anti-gout medicine, such as allopurinol or probenecid. In addition, the use of bicarbonate of soda pills changes the urine's acidity, making stone formation less likely.

Cystine stones can be pre-vented by a high fluid intake and blearbonate of soda.

Magnesium ammonium phosphate stones are usually secondary to chronic urinary infection. Because the stones themselves act as a source of infection, they should be removed. Antibiotic therapy will usually prevent formation of new stones.

As you can see, the treatment and prevention of kidney stones depend on many factors. Diet is probably not an effective therapy. whereas a high fluid intake and certain medicines are.

Before advising you, your doctor must obtain one of your stones for analysis. This is easiest if, at the time you pass a stone, it is salvaged and later tested in the laboratory. Once the constituents of the stones are identified, therapy is fairly straightforward, as I mentioned above.

To give you additional information. I am sending you a free copy of my Health Report "Kidney Disorders." Other readers who would like a copy should send $1.25 with their name and address.

We concluded that the berries needed to be crushed so that the powdered pectin would be more evenly distributed throughout the mixture.

Fruits and a variety of herries.

Fruits and a variety of berries will soon be plentiful and at their flavor peak. A delicious way to preserve this freshness for year long enjoyment is by making jama and jellies.

Your microwave can case Your microwave can ease some of the jam and jelly preparation work. Scorching or sticking is not a problem when microwaving, so less stirring is needed. It is important, though, to stir to dissolve ingredients and to evenly distribute heat. When using commercial fruit pectins, its essential that the mixture comes to a full rolling boll for 1 minute. So be sure to etir these kinds of jams and stir these kinds of jams and jellies. Using a proper sized cooking container makes the process easier. Since the mixture needs to reach a full rolling boil and bubbles up as it boils, a cooking container that holds twice as much as the mixture is twice as much as the mixture is essential. Start the micro cooking on 100% power and have hot pads to protect your hands. Follow a well-tested recipe and use exact measured ingredients. Sugar is a major part of all jams and jellies and remember that microwaves are attracted to sugars. That means they cook quickly. Do not double recipe, make several batches. Commercial pectins come in a dry powder and liquid form. The two powder and liquid form. The two

Injury proves bathrooms full of risk

DEAR ABST: I am writing this breause I believe it may help your readers to avoid a tragedy.

Last year, our I I-year-old son. Daniel, fell through a glass shower panel, severing an artery, a nerve and three muscles above the elbow. He required 5 1/2 hours of reconstructive surgery and five units of blood. He is still undergoing physical therapy, and we are hoping that eventually he will regain full use of his arm and hand.

Also, it's a good idea to teach young children never to lock the bathroom door, because a bathroom can be a dangerous place. If Daniel had lecked himself in the bathroom when he fell through the shower door, much time would have been lest in our efforts to help him. GRATEFUL IN GREAT MICE.

She will be 56 years old this year. My question: When does a woman fall into the non-bearing age? And is it possible for my wife to get pregnant at her age?

DEAR MUSBAND: Although there are exceptions, if a woman's menatrual periods have ceased for a year, the possibility of pregnancy is inconceivable. (No pun intended.)
