

THE SPIRIT OF NEIGHBORLINESS

If You've Ever Borrowed
a Cup of Sugar—

WHEN you must borrow a cup of sugar, or the use of the telephone or a little gas for the car, why do you unhesitatingly appeal to your neighbor?

GROCER, telephone company, filling station would eventually supply your need. But to meet the immediate contingency you call across the back-yard fence. The sugar—and it's good sugar—is handed over. That's service, prompt, efficient, honest. But there's a certain something more to that little transaction—an indefinable something that can scarcely be described in the printed word or illustrated in a catalog. It's a feeling of mutual understanding and reciprocity, as of one who, having lived long among strangers, returns again to his own people; it's the same feeling that inspires this, and our similar messages to you.

It's the Spirit of Neighborliness.

AFTER all we're more than mere merchant and patron. We're neighbors. And if service, prompt, efficient, honest, is essential to true neighborliness—and we believe it is—that's the service that we sincerely offer and promise to you.

THANK YOU

GOVERNOR OUSTS STATE ATTORNEY OF FIFTH CIRCUIT

Neglect Of Duty And Failure To Obey Instructions As Result Of Refusal To Prosecute Case Given As Reason

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Aug. 17.—(AP)—Removal from office of James Whitehurst, state's prosecuting attorney for circuit five was announced today by Governor Marshall.

The removal, effective immediately for "neglect of duty and failure to obey instructions," came as a result of Whitehurst's refusal to prosecute the case of George Scofield at a special term of the circuit court of Hernando county called for August 23.

Scofield, former prosecuting attorney of Citrus county, was indicted in Ocala, over a year ago for a charge of conduct unbecoming a public officer and alleged forgery of a grand jury certificate. He was removed from office and Whitehurst appointed as his successor. Scofield then was nominated for the legislature and asked for a trial before the general session.

Judge Bullock was disqualified because he was a witness and a change of venue was granted, the case going to Brooksville in Hernando county. At this trial the state's attorney objected to the jury and nolle prossed the case, later having Scofield re-indicted in Ocala.

Another change of venue was granted and the case went back to Brooksville, only to be prepared on account of illness of the state's attorney.

In reply to Scofield's demands for a trial a special term of the circuit court was called for Aug. 23 in Hernando county and Whitehurst was instructed by the Governor to prosecute the case but Whitehurst refused, saying he was going on his vacation, which resulted in his removal.

2 Holdup Suspects Will Be Released

Held as suspects in connection with the holdup of the Anderson grocery and the shooting of T. S. Dalk, two negro laborers will probably be released late today, Lieut. A. H. Beckwith of the Sanford Police Department, said. The men are known as "Sam" and "Bill." The victim of the shooting failed to positively identify the two men as the bandits when they were brought before him this morning, Lieut. Beckwith said. The men detained have a clean record, it was also said. They are employed by the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad in the construction department, and the men's foreman said he had not known them to do anything in the two years he has employed the men that would connect them with a holdup.

The grocery was held up Saturday night. The negro bandits shot Dalk as he answered a call for help from Mrs. Charles A. Anderson, wife of the grocer, who was alone in the store. He was shot through the finger. The bandits escaped with about $20 in cash.

No bill of complaint was included in the papers filed in the case and court attaches had no knowledge of the suit's basis. At the offices of the law firm filing the action it was stated that the concern's head was out of the city and would not return until September. Meanwhile a statement was declined.

Going to Market...

In the old days it was necessary for the housewife to "go to market" without having in mind a definite program of buying when she arrived there. It was a hit and miss game in which the merchant was forced to display his wares in many unattractive ways in order to catch the eye of the shoppers.

Today, the great majority of American women have their shopping tours mapped out in advance. They sit down in the evening and compile a list of articles needed from their evening paper. They look for the best buy in the advertisements. They scan every column for bargains and the merchant who offers daily values is cashing in.

These women spend the money. They read the advertisements. The offerings of the merchants of Sanford are many. They continually strive to render a service to the buying public through the medium of the newspaper. They offer good merchandise at fair prices.

Report Trotsky Heads Revolt

STEWART'S WASHINGTON LETTER

BY CHARLES P. STEWART
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—Senator Jim Reed's slush fund investigation has progressed far enough now so that Washington believes Frank L. Smith stands a little chance of being seated in the upper house of congress, even if he wins the senate fight in Illinois, as William S. Vare stands if he wins in Pennsylvania.

Politicians in the capital, however, are not so sure that Smith will carry Illinois as they are that Vare will carry Pennsylvania.

Smith's Democratic rival, George Brennan, has no such enormous Republican majority to overcome in the Sucker State as William B. Wilson, opposing Vare, will have to overcome in order to win in the Keystone State. Pennsylvania Democrats have their hopes, of course, but they're not very bright.

SMITH, then, may escape the humiliation of a rejection by the senate, by being beaten at the polls.

Prospects are extremely poor that Vare will get out of his difficulties in a similar manner. Elected, nothing can prevent his credentials from being turned down but an overwhelmingly Republican senate, and the best political judgment is that the next one will be anything but overwhelmingly Republican.

Vare being eliminated, it will be up to J. S. Fisher, Republican candidate for governor, who is sure to be elected, to fill the Pennsylvania vacancy by appointment.

There already is much speculation as to whom Fisher will pick, if called on to make a selection.

Florida's real estate boom was a worry to the federal government. Officials were afraid a good deal of yiddishness was going on.

They kept a very sharp eye on that boom.

Now it transpires that the government did not look advantage of the boom to sell an entire Florida town, according to the federal agent at Jacksonville did not believe it.

Five years ago an executive or trustee owned a stretch of government owned ocean frontage near a tract named Miami Beach to the eastward.

Much later it was decided the tract could be needed nothing like so much room, so in 1921 another executive order restored 40 acres of the tract to the public domain.

That is, Norton, who had a job in the Dade County assessor's office and knew about land in the neighborhood, decided to homestead this piece, since it seemed to be open to settlement again.

It was only settled as worth $50 to $100 an acre then, but even that looked good to Norton.

He squatted on the 40 acres, began clearing it, built himself a shack and applied for a patent.

The general land office said no—it had decided to name the place the "Harding Townsite" cut it up into city lots and sell it at auction.

Norton contended that he had a prior claim.

The general land office paid no attention to him. It did divide the tract into city lots and it did sell them at auction.

One lot, at the big sale in January, brought $13,000. The whole 40 acres sold for something more than $400,000.

Norton was kicking like a green thing. He was still on the ground, yet and his presence was an embarrassment.

So it was considered best to evict Norton by due legal form.

Proceedings were brought against him before Judge Jones of the federal judicial district of Southern Florida.

To the government's extreme annoyance Judge Jones has just decided in Norton's favor, ordering him left alone and holding that he ought to have his patent.

Baltimore Girl Falls To Swim Channel

CAPE GRIS NEZ, FRANCE, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Miss Lillian Cannon of Baltimore failed this morning in her first effort to swim the English Channel. A sudden storm forced her to quit the water after having been swimming for two hours and 35 minutes.

Miss Cannon took to the water here at 12:55 o'clock this morning and at 2 o'clock was swimming fast, two miles out in the channel, headed toward the English side. At that time the sea was calm.

Suddenly, about 3:30 o'clock, the storm broke, and with it came heavy seas. The experts on the boat following the swimmer ordered her out of the water. She demurred, saying she desired to keep going. Finally she was told it would be useless for her to go on.

PERFUMERY

Hon. Ed. Walthall, ex-Seminole Hudson-Essex Co., Sanford, Fla.

Dear Ed:

I hope that the fashions will change sometime so that it will no longer be stylish for women to be so scented up with this high-powered perfume.

I grant you Ed, that it is better for a woman to smell good than to smell bad, but it is better for her to be neutral, not to smell at

All these thoughts were suggested to me by a little girl somewhere not long ago.

A young fellow was talking about something and finally exclaimed:

"Oh, you are just rotting." "No, dearie," she replied. "It's not that. It's the perfume you gave me last Saturday night."

If I had anything against a woman in my acquaintance, I am glad to say I haven't. I love them all, I would give a bottle of double-headed perfume that would make a onion hang its head in shame. I'd give it to her, provided she'd be some town, at least 100 miles away.

Of course, everybody does not think like I do about perfume. Some people like to be with a woman so sweetly and so powerfully scented that when you walk near her presence, it knocks your back like sticking your toes into a bottle of household ammonia. If people do not have tastes about perfume, they did, everybody would be driving an Essex Coach.

Yours,
BILL.

PLAYGROUNDS IN WEST ACCESSIBLE BY RAIL, HIGHWAY

Many Beaches Attract Large Crowds of Tourists While Three National Parks Also Beckon To Summer Visitors

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The playground of the Pacific Coast region from the Canadian line to the Mexican border, are accessible to the tourist by both railroads and paved roads, which link the western terminus of continental railroads and highways.

Each of the coast states has its multitude of beaches and beach hotels, its scores of inland lakes, its mountain hosteries, and in the south are the latest entries in the lists of resorts catering to visitors—luscious desert oases.

National Parks
Three principal national parks are Ruben in Washington, Crater Lake in Oregon and Yosemite in California.

One of the five national parks is that about Lassen Peak, in northern California, the only active volcano in continental United States.

The summer playground in the mountains is a great scenic appeal. The equable temperatures of the coast afford relief from the heat which descends upon the inland valleys.

Mountain Retreats
The visitor to Washington is enabled to go from his hotel in Tacoma or Seattle to the fair hotelery at the top of Mount Rainier in his own car or in an automobile stage over a road which curves along the top of tree-clad precipices. North and south from Rainier stretch the Cascades, competing in an almost unbroken mountain range with the Sierra Nevada of northern and central California and the Sierra Madre in the south.

Revisiting the attraction of the mountains are the beaches and the Coast of Beaches.

Puget Sound's wooded isles and inlets cut off from the mainland the Olympic peninsula, whose forest covered mountains constitute the largest expanse of virgin timber left in the country. Oregon's beaches meet those of California which stretch away to the south, past San Francisco and Monterey bays, past Catalina island off Los Angeles and on to San Diego, and north of the Mexican boundary.

In California the visitor of a literary turn of mind can make pilgrimages to the former haunts of Mark Twain, Bret Harte, Stevenson, or Jack London, or he can visit Carmel-by-the-sea, a hundred miles south of San Francisco, which is the home of a score of present day writers. In the south also is movie-land, home of most of the great motion picture companies.

Historic interests abound. The Old Oregon Trail brought missionaries to the north Pacific territory; the gold rush took the fortune hunters to a vast area which had been peopled with Mexican overlords of Indian tribes; and the Apache trail in Arizona is rich in prehistoric relics and Indian and Spanish history.

Borah Raps New York Plan For Referendum On Prohibition Law

BOULDER, Idaho, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The New York state liquor referendum would be described as "the most original proposition ever submitted in the history of politics," by Senator William E. Borah, in an address here yesterday in which he defended the Eighteenth amendment at a mass meeting sponsored by the Boise ministerial association.

"New York proposes to determine what is intoxicating liquor and in this way we have 48 different standards and kinds of liquor in the United States," the senator said.

"A few days ago I submitted an answer to a letter written by Clemenceau and I received a telegram from a New York man asking me why I did not go to France to find out what the French wanted. On the question of the referendum I might ask the people of New York to go to the United States to find out what they want."

FEAR

Some things I am afraid of:
To live in constant fear
The thoughtless speech of mine
I shall reach
A child's retentive ear.
In anger's frenzied moment
I tremble lest I be
So saddened through that I shall do
A wrong a child might see.
Am vigilant in pleasure
I shudder, and grasp a joy
Which leads a child away.
For youthful eyes are eager,
And little ears are keen,
And no man knows the trail which grows
To mark where he has been.
All these fears beset me,
That one may hear and see
My faulty ways and through the years
Come following after me.
For life has boundless reaches,
And all we survive.
We mold and fill with good or ill
Encountered other lives.
And so I'm fearful ever
And tremble lest I may
Forget my power, for just an hour
And lead a life astray.

Who And What The Gooseberries Are

Many newspapers are enjoying the privilege of passing on Meredith Nicholson's explanation of the origin and some of the life efforts of the Ancient and Honorable Order of Gooseberries which he asserts was founded by one Benedict Arnold, shortly after he betrayed the American colonists.

Mr. Meredith's contribution to whatever anthologies on the subject that have been started appeared first in The Indianapolis News, and everybody's copying it down in his note-book. For Meredith's explanation describes some of everybody's neighbors. It says:

A Gooseberry always knows how many vacant houses there are in his home town. He can name the date of every bank failure since the year of the Big Wind. His mind is stored with liabilities; he carries no assets. The highest rank in the order is the twenty-third degree. To reach this the candidate must prove that he can kick, knock and sob simultaneously. To attain the thirteenth degree it is only necessary to make faces. The folks who laughed heartily when Noah moved into the ark were natural born Gooseberries. They didn't need to be initiated. The congressmen who voted against an appropriation to give Morse's telegraph a tryout were noble and exalted Gooseberries. The skeptics who thought Elwood Haynes crazy when he was inventing the automobile were Gooseberries. Their present address is Oblivion. Every quitter, dodger and deserter is a Gooseberry. A Gooseberry is a joy-killer and crepe-hanger. He is a purveyor of evil and a bringer of bad news. When he dies there are no pallbearers, for his fellow-members are too busy knocking him to attend the funeral.

Florida's chapters of the Order of Gooseberries even have special agents in every town. They are the town's crepe-hangers, the evil prophets, the sour-faced, gloomy-gusses, who provide a sort of poison brew for other people's cups of joy.

Usually, too, they are the people who are perfectly satisfied with themselves. They think they are an asset to a community when all the time they are a drag on the wheels of progress and obstacles in the paths of happiness and success.

Sanford, let us believe, has fewer of this order than some other places of its size may have. But Sanford, even, has too large a quota of people who go about expecting trouble; and if they don't get what they are expecting in the way of the real thing, they manufacture some for special use.

But The Herald insists upon thinking that the Order of Gooseberries is not as popular as it once was. People are learning that there is a whole lot of everyday truth in the old saying, "What you expect will surely come upon you. It is what you think, and what you do that make you what you are."

Let There Be No Further Delay

The decision of Judge W. W. Wright Monday in which he held the navigation act constitutional, has met with the popular approval of progressive Seminole county tax payers who are anxious to see the canal connecting the St. Johns River with the Indian River constructed at the earliest possible time.

Realizing, as all sensible people do, the importance of having the bill properly drawn so that there may be no technicality to halt the needed improvement, the rank and file of citizens rejoice that the act has been tested in the court and that it has been found to be well founded in law and to be in keeping with the constitutional rights of those affected.

It was a good thing that the matter was tested in court and that keen and clever lawyers endeavored to find some point or points on which the act might be declared invalid. It was well that the attempt to find the bill improperly drawn, technically imperfect, and legally unsound, was made for now the decision of Judge Wright makes its a much stronger document and much more forceful than it was before.

The county commissioners and the tax assessor have acted carefully in the matter. They have tested the act and now that they know it to be sound and in keeping with the constitution, there should be no further delay on their part. As far as The Herald can see, there is nothing for these public officials to do but to co-operate with the canal commission, appointed by the governor, and to lend every aid in order that the much needed waterway may become a reality soon.

Present high water in Lake Monroe is but another important reason for the early building of the canal. In addition to providing the means of transportation between inland Florida and the east coast, the canal would have much to do toward putting an end to the overflowing of bulk heads and the damaging of valuable farm lands and properties along Lake Monroe, and on this account, if for no other, many are hoping that the construction work on the project will go forward quickly.

The hearing on the mandamus suit was closely followed by the people of this section who are vitally interested in seeing the canal built. Arguments of counsel were freely discussed on the streets, and the case has created unusual interest. The Judge, before rendering his decision in the case, undoubtedly gave the technical points involved careful thought and study and it is safe to predict that higher courts, should railroads or other big interests carry the case to those higher courts, will rule as has Judge Wright, who has won much distinction for the able manner in which he has handled the matter.

After years of effort expended on the part of those interested, the long wished for canal is about to become a certainty. The Herald hopes there will be no further delay from any source.

The congressmen who voted against an appropriation to give Morse's telegraph a tryout were noble and exalted Gooseberries. The skeptics who thought Elwood Haynes crazy when he was inventing the automobile were Gooseberries. Their present address is Oblivion. Every quitter, dodger and deserter is a Gooseberry. A Gooseberry is a joy-killer and crepe-hanger. He is a purveyor of evil and a bringer of bad news. When he dies there are no pallbearers, for his fellow-members are too busy knocking him to attend the funeral.

Florida's chapters of the Order of Gooseberries even have special agents in every town. They are the town's crepe-hangers, the evil prophets, the sour-faced, gloomy-gusses, who provide a sort of poison brew for other people's cups of joy.

Usually, too, they are the people who are perfectly satisfied with themselves. They think they are an asset to a community when all the time they are a drag on the wheels of progress and obstacles in the paths of happiness and success.

Sanford, let us believe, has fewer of this order than some other places of its size may have. But Sanford, even, has too large a quota of people who go about expecting trouble; and if they don't get what they are expecting in the way of the real thing, they manufacture some for special use.

But The Herald insists upon thinking that the Order of Gooseberries is not as popular as it once was. People are learning that there is a whole lot of everyday truth in the old saying, "What you expect will surely come upon you. It is what you think, and what you do that make you what you are."

As Brisbane Sees It

Mr. Dempsey's Rent.
Farmers' Fairy Story.
All Cheerful Here.
Black Bread, White Bread.
BY ARTHUR BRISBANE
(Copyright 1926, by Star Co.)

JACK DEMPSEY describes with affection two detective sergeants from Chicago that will be his body-guard, one at night, one by day, while he trains for his coming fight.

It would be a pity to have anybody hurt Mr. Dempsey, or even put a "ditch" in his rest, while he is engaged in delicate and important preparations to knock out Mr. Tunney. Many in Chicago, whose nights and days and mental rest are disturbed by bandit possibilities, must wish that they were heavyweight champions, and could have two picked men of the Chicago force to watch over them.

MR. HOOVER tells farmers of the middle west they need waterways, and lower freight rates, to compete with the Panama Canal. Farmers in the Canadian northwest ship their wheat to Europe by water and save heavily on freight charges, as compared with middle west United States farms. American ships, thanks to official aid, and a desire to please Britain, must pay the same as foreign ships to use the Panama Canal. And the American farmers were taxed to build it.

MR. HOOVER'S suggestion of waterways and low freight rates to the ocean will impress intelligent farmers as an excellent fairy story. They know, as Mr. Hoover knows, that the railroads will not permit any such competition. In a short time they will not permit the public to use its own highways for omnibus routes. Watch the railroads win that fight.

NEXT WILL come regulation of air routes, forbidding competition with "selected interests" above ground. If you think that a preposterous suggestion, watch developments. When air lines are mapped out, and the government assigns mail, passenger and express carrying rights and contracts over those routes, others will be warned off.

ANOTHER WORKING week begins, with business cheerful, and big business very cheerful. Wall Street went home last Saturday noon in pleasant mood. That summer jump seems far away and "staked leaders" still lead upward and onward, like the Excelsior young man in the poem. In this country, there is nothing to frighten us, unless we frighten ourselves.

EVEN THE poor farmer, whose untended soil never seems to set anything from officials that he does not promise something. There is said to be a scheme, planned by Mr. Hoover, approved by President Coolidge, to make the farmer happy. Private capital is to provide a fund of $100,000,000 and if that money will be used for any purpose, to make the farmer prosperous.

IF YOU can suggest help for farmers by the United States treasury, you learn that such help would interfere with the sacred hoys of supply and demand. But for private capital to help the farmer is different. The plan will not be a complete failure, in any case for private capital will profit whatever may happen to the honest farmer.

EUROPE, LESS fortunate than this country, because the nations insist on fighting, is slowly digging herself out of poverty, while earnestly cursing Uncle Sam. Every little helps and Britain is alling advertising space on postage stamps. The postal office cancellation carries the advertising, so many million letters carry you ad advertisement for so much each. That will not delight British newspapers and it will not pay advertisers.

BELGIUM EATS black bread, the king selling the example. Full power was given to the king, which is about as intelligent as it would be, in a hive, to give full power to one of the drones. Those that eat black bread are not men that save a country. Anybody intelligent enough for that job, knows how to get white bread. In the French revolution, which saved France from worthless kings by ouster of white bread, the black bread enters only howling around the guillotine as it cut off heads, and later went to be shot when Napoleon sent them. Belgium might get better help from some clever banker who would do his work without giving up his white bread, or his pate de fore gras.

THE BELGIAN king, of course is having his thinking done for him by Belgium's financiers, as proved by the transfer of state ownership. The socialists whose members could prevent it, consent because they have no program to offer.

THE UNITED States ought to establish huge rubber plantations in the Philippines, for the sake of this country, and that country. The native statement say "all ground must be used," which would kill the plan.

In another hundred years, the Philippines will learn that the only really prosperous business is big business. It took us a long time to make that discovery here. Even now, we are behind Europe, where entire nations combine their steel and other industries, on an international scale.

THEY had Lieutenant Becker in his grave and Jack Rose opened a chain of wayside restaurants. Then the fact of Lincoln's pallbearers in twenty-two states and Edger Faust wrote his first syndicate poem. Then Avery Hopwood was displaced and Alfred Noyes wrote tenderly upon his cuff the significant words, "Don't forget to order empanadas for lunch."

In the emma houses patrons were chortling over an obscure comedian named Chaplin or something. Henry Ford was declaring his bank. A charming woman named Anna Nichols was wondering if she would ever get round to writing "Abie's Irish Rose." Admiral Mayo had been refused a salute at Vera Cruz, the Shuberts were denounced by all good people for letting chorus girls appear without stockings, and 52,662 soldiers in the United States were advertising "The Biggest Glass of Beer In Down For a Nickel."

Then the Archduke Whoopi was assassinated some place in Europe, the Kaiser Wilhelm developed the most disastrous attack of blusteritis in history, Lord Kitchener was laughed at for predicting the war would last three years, a cowboy actor named Will Rogers was chinking seriously of going on without his horse, and a respectable woman caused a traffic tie-up in the center of Boston by appearing on the streets in a divided skirt.

William Jennings Bryan opposed preparedness on the ground a million men would spring to arms overnight and America entered the World war because she had run out of note paper. Then George Coban wrote "Over There," the nation changed the name of Saurkraut to Liberty Cabbage, the Kaiser

LAW A MEASURE OF DEMOCRACY

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

Mr. Reed Hays in his article on judicial graft in Mexico has put his finger on the sore spot in governmental affairs south of the Rio Grande. "The chief fault," he was told, "was that politics ruled every thing, and the courts were constantly under courtship by their decisions by politicians." It is not only in Mexico that this condition prevails. It is to be found in a number of other American republics, and is a small measure of the cause of the governmental disruption which has been their leading characteristic.

Government by law and not by men has been the aim of the long struggle of Anglo-Saxon politics. It is that struggle England and America have achieved a measure of success. The administration of justice is by no means perfect in this country. There are many flaws, and corruption may be found from time to time, but in the main the courts hold the balance evenly. If the rich man has an advantage over the poor man it is because he is able to pay the price of more expert counsel and not because he can corrupt the court. The advanced stage of the political over the ordinary citizen may rarely be felt in a certain fricatziness on the part of a judge, but the cases in which justice is warped to favor the politicians are rare. Of executive domination of the judiciary we have hardly a trace.

Our judicial structure is sufficiently secure so that the interplay of politics may go on within the legal framework and violence and revolution are eliminated. The moment politics and politicians break through the judicial framework government is gone, generals become politicians, and elections are decided by bullets instead of ballots. When revolution has achieved its purpose and the new regime settles into a semblance of legality pending its overthrow

ENGAGEMENT OF MISS FARMER TO CALVIN TEAGUE IS ANNOUNCED

An engagement which will be received in Sanford with unusual interest is that of Miss Anne Marie Farmer of Anderson, S. C., to Calvin Fuller Teague of this city. The announcement appearing in a recent issue of the Anderson Mail is as follows:

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Sidney Farmer of Anderson, South Carolina, announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Anne Marie, to Calvin Fuller Teague of Sanford, Florida. The wedding to be solemnized in October.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Farmer to Mr. Teague is of the greatest social and cordial interest throughout the south, as both families are prominent in this section, and where Miss Farmer is a great social favorite.

She attended Agnes Scott college and later graduated from the Semple School in New York and has spent winters enjoying winter sports at Lake Placid and at many of the Florida resorts.

Miss Farmer is immensely popular in Anderson and her marriage will be an important social event in St. John's Methodist church with a reception later given by Mr. and Mrs. Farmer, at their home.

Mr. Teague is the son of Dr. and Mrs. J. H. Teague, of Laurens, S. C., is a graduate of Davidson college in North Carolina, and is a member of the S. A. E. Fraternity.

He is very popular socially in his home town and also in Sanford, Florida where he has lived for the best four years, and is connected with the Seminole County bank.

Mr. and Mrs. James Moughton, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. McKay and Mrs. Florence McKay were a congenial party motoring to Orlando Saturday.

Mr. Mary McMahon has returned from her vacation to assume her business at the Matinella Shop.

Mrs. W. D. Holden and son Billie Holden left Tuesday for Daytona Beach where they will spend a few days.

Mrs. G. A. De Cottes and Miss Louise De Cottes of Jacksonville will arrive here Wednesday to be the guests of Mrs. George A. De Cottes at her lovely home on Park Avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Skeen and children have returned to their home at Leesburg, after spending a week here very pleasantly as the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn E. McKay on Sanford Heights.

Dr. E. J. Bae of Daytona Beach, spent the day here Monday attending to business.

Movie Sidelights

Appearance on the screen is expensive for Ruth Roland, accounted one of the wealthiest motion picture actresses.

When she left her real estate business to support Anna Q. Nilsson in "The Masked Woman," the actress-estate broker employed a force of business managers and assistants to control her affairs so money making might not interfere with picture making.

The national parks in their natural coloring will be the background for Tom Mix in his future pictures, photographed in technicolor.

This was decided after Mix had traveled through the Western preserves, studying the possibilities of color photography and also the present conditions under which tourists must hurry through the beauty spots on abbreviated vacations, missing many of the most significant.

When "The Black Diamond Express" is released by Warner Brothers it will be the second picture of that name shown in the movies. The other was among the first motion picture films ever made, being produced in the late '20s. This picture, founded on the historic train, will include a strip from the original production which was only a photograph of the moving train.

Each time a book is pictured, motion picture fans rush to read it.

Marian Fox, head of the research department of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has discovered that after the filming of stories taken from novels, stores and libraries report increased demand for the books. Old time classics, filmed, come in for renewed favor, it was found.

A new record for motion picture rights to a novel was established when Samuel Goldwyn, dean of Los Angeles producers, disclosed that he had paid Harold Bell Wright $125,000 for the film rights to "The Winning of Barbara Worth."

Although he said his friends thought him "crazy," Mr. Goldwyn said:

"If it had been offered to me as an original story I would have bought it. As an original it was worth perhaps $10,000. But it was worth $125,000 because it had been read by approximately 10,000,000 persons."

Edible glass has entered into the movies, but for an unusual purpose. The glass is made of pure sugar candy and was developed for use as window pane, when a scenario called for the haunting of a character through a glass plate.

It appears the same as glass but does not have the same cutting and scratching effects.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has developed a "deteriorating department" where new furniture, and even pots and pans, are given the requisite wear and tear to make them in keeping with the story.

Colored motion pictures will comprise three-fourths of all films.

It is understood that the government has forbidden exhibition of the film of the alleged landing of the body and the arrival of the coffin in London.

Some of the papers say that the police and home office officials are studying the entire affair with a view to determining whether anything punishable has been done.

Frank Power, the British newspaper man who was responsible for the story that Lord Kitchener's body was picked up off the coast of Norway after the tragic sinking of the cruise Hampshire, has given no definite explanation as yet regarding the empty coffin.

The press association has quoted him as saying that naturally he was surprised to read that the coffin was empty and that he wished he had been present when the coffin was examined.

Swimming Colony At Cape Griz Aroused Over Press Comments

CAPE GRIZ NEZ, France, Aug. 17. (AP) News of the criticisms and comments in the British press concerning the record-breaking Channel swim of Miss Gertrude Ederle has aroused condemnation by the Channel swimming colony here as foundationless and utterly inaccurate.

One tug alone conveyed Miss Ederle, while the other carried camera-men and reporters. Far from assisting the American swimmer, as had been intimated in criticism of her swim, the tug is reported to have impeded her progress several times.

Forty-one witnesses followed Miss Ederle's attempt and they have indicated that the swim was carried out in accordance with every rule.

One correspondent who has been present at 29 channel starts, can testify that Miss Ederle's swim was accomplished under absolutely the same conditions as previous ones.

Sir Howard Spicer Takes His Own Life

LONDON, Aug. 17. (AP) Sir Howard Spicer, member of the paper-making firm of Spicer's Ltd., today was found dead with a bullet wound in a Strand district hotel in which he was a large shareholder.

Members of the family said he had suffered repeated attacks of influenza during recent months. He was 54 years old.

In five years, believes Dr. Herbert T. Kalms, recently director of electro-chemistry and metallurgy for the Canadian government.

Dr. Kalms, now president of the Technicolor Motion Picture Company, based his prediction on the present development of color photography, which he said had eliminated the more glaring colors.

He asserted that colored pictures now stand out so prominently only because the audiences are not used to them.

Another Western rider and his horse have been drafted for a series of "Westerns" by First National.
