Rain wreaks havoc in Georgia

Rain continued to fall in Georgia today after the remnants of Tropical Storm Alberto washed out roads and bridges, broke dams, killed at least six people and forced hundreds to flee their homes.

More than a foot of rain fell in some places Tuesday. Gov. Zell Miller declared a state of emergency in 21 counties in central and southern Georgia, where power outages hit up to 12,000 customers.

Peachtree City was one of several places south of Atlanta that recorded 14 inches of rain in 12 hours. About 75 residents had to be rescued by boat.

In Crawford County, a rising creek forced 58 Girl Scouts to flee their camp for the shelter of a school.

Interstate 75 was closed this morning in middle Georgia, where several dams broke or were washed over. State police said the road was impassable and there were no alternative routes.

SANFORD - J.C. Penney becomes the second of five major tenants ready to begin construction after site plans for its store at Seminole Towne Center are presented to a city board Thursday.

Dillards became the first major store to present site plans to Sanford's Planning and Zoning Commission during the June 2 meeting.

Thursday night, the J.C. Penney site plans will be considered.

Three additional major tenants will also bring their site plans up for approval before construc-tion begins. They include Sears, Burdines and Parisian.

Approximately 130 smaller stores locating in the mail will have collective site plans included in the overall structure.

LAKE MARY — Some controversy surrounds a building to be named after a prominent but long-dead Lake Mary citizen.

Frank Evans was an influential man in the city's history. As such, citizens believe that in addition to the street named Evansdale in his honor, it is only appropriate to also have a building named after him. What follows the name however, appears to be discussion Thursday evening. The building under consideration has been known as Old Lake Mary City Hall, at 158 N. Country Club Road.

The matter is scheduled for city commission

The actual age of the structure is unclear. Some say it was built in 1922, while others say it was 1935.

A Seminole County Cultural Arts brochure, which was compiled by a number of sources, gives the year as 1935. At that time, it says the structure was for use, "as a social hall for performances and dances, and is currently used by the Lake Mary Senior Citizens's art classes and the Lake Mary Historical Commission." Elsewhere in that same document however, the same building is identified as the "Lake Mary Senior Center."

Jim Thompson, chairman of the Historical Commission says, "Frank Evans was in-strumental in the development of Lake Mary. He built and paid for the 'Old City Hall' in 1922, and allowed the community to use the building for some of the same purposes as it is used for today."

Schaeffer said Tuesday Chandler would be tried in Pinellas County but jurors would be brought in from Orlando and sequestered.

Police believe the killer fured the mother and her daughters on a sunset cruise that day, raped them and threw them alive into Tampa Bay. Their partially nude bodies - bound, gagged and weighted with concrete blocks - surfaced three days later.

Silent Witness: Money well spent

Too often we are afraid to get involved in cleaning up crime or delinquent activities because we don't want to be identified as a "snitch" or a "tattle tale."

In many areas, students are afraid to tell teachers or administrators when something is wrong because they suffer the same fears.

Such is not the case locally. Authorities report 232 calls received between September 1993 and May 1994.

The school's Silent Witness program is proving to be money well spent. It allows students, their parents and even teachers the opportunity to present anonymous informa-tion that may help prevent a fight, the use of drugs, vandalism, or any number of other acts.

For $5,000 a year, the district is able to provide an anonymous outlet where information can be given to help the school wage its battle against those who are not adhering to the rules of the school or the rules of society.

If even one weapon was kept off campus, if even one opportunity for drugs to be brought into a school was avoided, it was worth every penny spent.

We must provide our students with a safe environment in which to learn. Teachers must not fear for their lives when the enter that safety ..... We laud this expenditure by the school district and believe that our students can be better educated and thus become better

Clinton's crime bill could work out

The promising crime bill - promised by Memorial Day, promised by July Fourth - is still only a promise as House and Senate conferees try to mesh their different versions of the proposed law. Still, it looks as if it may happen, costing about $30 billion over five years, and in a way that may please both liberals and con-servatives, currently feuding about the bill.

Three issues have the congressional conferees tied up in tight knots.

One concerns the mistitled "Racial Justice" act. It is the work of the Black Caucus, which in effect wants capital punishment to meet quota principles, giving black murderers a greater chance to legally delay or escape execution, by use of racial statistics. There is an irony here: Blacks make up 12 percent of the population, and commit 47 percent of all the murder and manslaughter. About 94 percent of blacks murdered — are murdered by blacks. And the Black Caucus says: Do not fully punish the people who are killing blacks!

It also doesn't make sense otherwise. Having reviewed all the available studies, crime scholar John Dilulio of the Brookings Institution says that punishment in America - including capital punishment - is essentially color-blind.

The second hang-up concerns the ban on assault weapons. Conservatives are against it. Too much gun control, they say. Silly. Real hunters and real sportsmen don't use or need automatic assault weapons. The third key item at lasue goes to the essence of the bill. All along the legislation has been a balancing act be-tween liberals seeking "prevention" and conservatives looking for "punish-ment." Both make sense, although punishment keeping known vio-lent criminals in jail longer — is more likely to cut crime faster than prevention remedies such as midnight basket ball leagues, or more drug rehabilitation programs.

Both House and Senate bills have seriou money set aside for additional cell space, to deal with over-crowded prisons. The amounts in the various proposals in play differ enormously, free $3 billion, to $6.5 billion, to $10.5 billion, to th $13.5 billion figure from the House bill, number recently reinforced by Rep. Bill M Collum's, R-Fla., successful motion instruction House conferees not to go below that figure.

That is a lot of money, and the formulas for spending it engender great arguments. Some money will be for new prisons; some may be used to convert abandoned military bases to prisons; some will be tightly linked to reforming state penal codes to insure that violent criminals spend 85 percent of their sentence in prison (vs. an estimated 35 percent presently). Some money will have looser linkage to longer terms and "truth in sentencing." But all versions providthat there will be more cells for violent criminals which should decrease the promiscuous state parole and probation policies that are at the root of much violent crime.

That's the important part. Remember: A thus on the street is committing at least a dozen serious crimes per year, not counting drug offenses. When the predators are in jail, they can only kill other prisoners, not you.

Space mess needs to be cleaned up

WASHINGTON - Government scientists have confirmed that at any given moment billions of Unidentified Flying Objects are circling the earth. But they've got nothing to do with E.T.

Thanks to three decades of exploration: espionage and cable TV, the heavens are littered with debris from space gloves to paint chips. Billions of other pieces of debris are too small to identify. The threat from this tide of debris is so great that the Na-tional Aeronautica and Space Administration (NASA) TET cently estimated that there is a one in five chance the debris will strike the instation planned for completion in 2002. "Left unchecked," one report to the National Security Council of the Bush administration warned. "the growth of debris could sub-stantially threaten The heavens are littered with debris from the safe and reliable operation of manned and unmanned

LETTERS Fireworks editorial

HOW DARE YOU! In an editorial Tuesday June 28, 1994, you stated "one would think that those who served their country so proudly would be anxious to help the community celebrate the founding of the nation they fought so valiantly to defend. Apparently they are not."

The above quote is from an aditorial about the lack of fireworks on the Pourth of July. I am past commander of the Disabled American Veterans. Chapter No. 30 of Sanford. I am also Bergeant of Arms, DAV, sizie of Floride.

DAV No. 50 has always denoted to the Fourth of July firewarks. Every year that we were asked, a check was written. DAV No. 50 weently desated 8500 to the Outruck Mission as well as 9600 to the Sanford Good Bemaritan Home. The DAV No. 50 also gave money to two students for a trip to Washington, D.C. to receive awards. In the past, DAV No. 30 has donated to the Sentiable High School Computer Lab and to their denoe team and band.

The Honor Society of the Disabled American Veterans is called the NOTR. DAV No. 30's NOTR members just closed out their fiscal year. One thousand two hundred dollars ($1.200) went to running a bingo at Hillhaven Nursing Home. Banford.

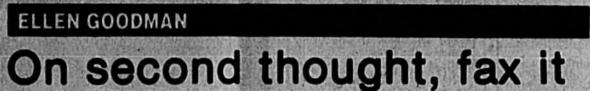

DAV national by-laws mandate that all chapters and NOTR dugouts donate 51 percent of their profits to veterans' assistance. The above-mentioned donations come out of the chapters' 49 percent.

Therefore, I repeat "Don't You Dare" say that the veterans in this city or county have forgotten the Fourth of July and what it stands for.

See you at the Memorial Day and Veterana Day parades as we march down the near empty streets of Sanford!

BOSTON - 1 have a friend who writes letters. Real letters, on real stationery, with a real pen. What is more unusual, she mails them. I hate to date her like this, but she goes casually feeds it envelopes full of her hopes and dreams.

I, on the other hand, have joined the legions of Americans who now regard using the mails as risk-taking activity. I think of the mailbox as a slot machine. I never gamble on it more than I can afford to lose. I feed it at 29 cents a abot. wave the envelopes goodbye, and then place my bet on how many days it will take to get to its ZIP code.

If it gets through to anyone in Chicago — known since last winter as the black hole of mallbage — I feel as if I've won the jackpot. I also get mail — a lot of it — from around the

I also get mail — a lot of it — from around the country. I figure that roughly one letter in four must take a long circuitous route from, say, Oregon to Karachi to Minak before it arrives on my desk. The all-time record belongs to a large manila envelope from sixth graders in Min-nesota who were learning to write letters. By the time it arrived, the children were writing applications to college. But they'd learned their lesson about the mail.

lesson about the mail. This explains why few Americans will be surprised to hear that mail delivery is getting slower again. The spring statistics from the business Mailers Review show that only 82 percent of the letters that were supposed to arrive in one day, actually did so. That's down two percent in one year. Only 71 percent of the letters within 600 miles of their destination arrived within two days — traveling at 13 miles an hour. As for the so-called three-day niles an hour. As for the so-called three-day arrived within two days - traveling at its miles an hour. As for the so-called three-day letters, only 77 percent made, their deadline. This is a record that makes the baggage-handling at the Rome airport look like a model of efficiency. Maybe the popular expression "Snail Mail" is unkind, but how about "Any Day Now Mail" or "Sooner or Later Mail"? In my childhood, when the post office was "a sinkhole of political patronage," stamps cost 3 cents, the downtown mail was delivered twice a day and none of us worried about disap-pearing letters. Now the Postal Service is going lean and mean, the stamp costs 29 cents going on 32 cents, the annual deficit is headed to 82 billion, and the mail carriers worry less about deranged dogs than about some stressed-out co-worker with an Uzi. The pace of the world has sped up and the mail has slowed down. A whole population of "diagruntied postal customers" has fied to the competition. There's a middle-class, busi-ness-class flight from U.S. mail to e-mail and voice mail.

In offices, people still "send" things to each other but they do it by fax or. if they have time to kill, by Fed Ex. The Letters to the Editor column is more often the Faxes to the Editor column. The private mail service is becoming the modem.

Just a few years ago, a fax came with an aura of urgency. Now, anything that's mailed comes with the message that it can wait. As for the premise that it can wait. As for the premise that the check is in the mail? It's become the cynical gag line in an era that regards mail as a way to slow the flow. In fact, the check - if it's a Social Security check or a pension check - is probably not in the mail, but not in the mail, out electronically depos-ited in the bank. Even the Publisher's Clearing House that bribes us to open the envelope, delivers their checks in person. As for "junk mail," the phrase is becoming redundant. If it's mail, it's prob-ably junk. Only 3 or 4 percent of the mailbag these days consists of letters

SI shink of the mailbox as a slot machine.

What comes through the door probably lands in the recycle bin. This is the dirty little secret of a deteriorating delivery system. The mail service we can't count on is one that we won't count on. If vast numbers of Americans drop out of mass mail the way we dropped out of mass transit, the costs go up higher, the service goes down further, and the gap grows between those who have and have not .... alternatives. Anybody know the ZIP code for Postmaster General Marvin T. Runyon? Somebody ought to send him a letter. On second thought, fax it.

LETTERS TO EDITOR

Letters to the editor are welcome. All letters must be signed, include the address of the writer and a daytime telephone number. Letters should be on a single subject and be as brief as possible. The letters are subject to editing.

tional cooperation is essential to a satisfactory solution. NASA has taken the lead in addressing the problem in talks with the European Space Agency, which had been leaving thousands of pieces of debris in space with the launch of its rockets. NASA also initiated secret talks in late 1989 with Russia to cut down on the space flotsam, which this column was the first to reveal.

The primary hazards of space pollution are posed to astronauts who will work and live in the environment, and to expensive satellites put up by various nations and commercial ventures - like cable television satellites. The space station designers are trying to minimize the likelihood of damage with heavy, expensive shielding. The U.S. North American Aerospace De-fense Command (NORAD) has cataloged more than 20,000 major pieces of debris in orbit since the Soviets first sent up the Sputnik in 1957. More than 7,000 are still up there. NORAD, the United State's primary ballistic missile warning agency, has to track all these pieces because it must differentiate between the junk that loses orbit and plunges to earth and hostile missiles on their way to U.S. targets.

Beyond the more than 7,000 larger, trackable pieces, there are literally billions of other pieces of debris that cause hazards in the space lanes. Those in low earth orbit travel at the incredible speed of 17,500 miles an hour, or seven times faster than the fastest rifle bullet.

Even a paint chip can be quite damaging to a satellite - and one can be lethal to an astronaut out on a spacewalk who might he struck by one. A piece of paint about the size of a grain of salt struck the three-layer windshield of the U.S. space shuttle at high velocity in 1963 gouging a crater in the outermost layer. The window cost $50,000 to replace. At least three such collisions have occurred in recent space history which destroyed U.S. and Soviet satellites. In the late 1980s and 1970s, the Soviets tested an anti-astellite weapon in space which destroyed satellites by striking them with fragments, like a grenade. The repeated experiments produced hundreds of large pieces of metal shrapnel.

Additionally, the Soviet Union, deliberately destroyed 11 electronic surveillance satellites between 1975 and 1963, producing almost 600 relatively large fragments. The last known exploded Soviet satellite was in 1988. The United States is also responsible for many large pieces from at least nine accidental explosions of rockets.

made against the club. As a result, club officials were asked to contact the district whenever watering occurred outside permitted hours.

According to Joyce's memo, the club notified the district the system was switched on eight times during unpermitted hours between March 8 and May 17. On each occasion, the club reported they were repairing the system, replacing a pump or testing the irrigation system.

In addition, district inspectors who inspect the fields weekly, report seeing the system operating once in January and once in June 1993. No one was available on the grounds to speak to, Joyce wrote.

Adamkiewicz mys the club is working to upgrade the system, but says electrical disruptions will cause the irrigation system's automatic timer to switch on the pumps at unscheduled hours.

"If it happens on a weekend, we may not notice it until Monday," she says. Seminole Soccer was issued its first permit to pump 36.7 million gallons per year to irrigate the fields in 1985. That permit expired April 8, 1992, according to district information. Rich Kimmel, district hydrologist in the Orlando office, says the club was warned of the need to renew their permit last year and discussions have continued since.

Kimmel says Seminole Soccer wanted to increase their pumping to about 43 mgy, but eventually accepted staff's recommendation of 40 mgy. Kimmel says the state's institute of Food and Agricultural Sciences standards suggest 36.7 mgy is adequate for the type of turf and acreage, but sometimes those standards are exceeded for special cases.

The nearby 120-acre Sylvan Lake Park, owned and operated by Seminole County, was permitted last year to pump 157.1 mgy, says Kimmel.

We sometimes allow for more for golf courses and the like," sava Kimmel.

Adamkiewicz says the additional water was needed because the turf used for the fields is similar to golf grasses and requires higher-than-normal amounts of water.

The staff recommendation report states the added pumping allowance should be permitted for one year to allow Seminole Soccer to resolve the mechanical problems. After that, the allocation will return to 36.7 mgy while a new allocation is under review, recommenda Kimmel.

"It is believed that the present condition of the irrigation system may have contributed to the unusually high apparent water use at this facility," wrote Kimmel in his report.

Kimmel says he believed the additional water uscage is just until the irrigation system is repaired.

Chris Swenzy, director of water use permitting in the Orlando office, says an expired permit is not a factor in considering renewals. While complaints or water violations are noted, they also do not play a role in whether to issue pumping permits, says Sweazy. But as a result of the reported mechanical problems, permit conditions were included to assure the system will be fixed, says Sweazy.

The permit, if approved, will require Seminole Soccer to report tests and useage regularly and to keep a log of all repairs made on the system.

Adamkiewicz says she was disappointed the district staff didn't reccommend a higher pumping classification, but the allocation should be adequate.

budgeted $8,000 to put Reiter Park restrooms and the fire department on the sewer line this year. However, by upgrading the lift station pumps and running the necessary lines, all the city buildings will be on sewers. A malfunctioning septic tank and drain field at the community building prompted the move.

Due to new state laws, the repair or installation of septic systems has become very expensive. Public Works director Richard Kornbluh reported in a letter to the commissioners that it would cost $7,500, $5,700 in materials alone, just to fix the community building system. The YMCA childrens' program is held at the community building. Since the restrooms there are not functioning, restrooms in near-by city hall are being used when necessary.

Under the plan chosen by the commission, a gravity line would be laid from the northwest corner of the community building parking lot to the southeast corner of the police department. The line will be installed under Church Street so the brick paving will not be disturbed, according to Mayor Steve Miller.

The necessary manholes, force main and gravity lines would eventually take the sewage south on Milwee Street to the Bay Avenue force main.

Two businesses and Christ Episcopal Church will be within the 500 feet mandatory hookup zone under the option chosen by the commission. Miller said the plans will be discussed with property owners including development assistance fees, connection fees and user fees.

In other business, the commission delayed the first reading of the adult entertainment ordinance because members did not complete their review of the proposal during a one hour work session prior to the regular meeting. A second work session is scheduled July 18. The commissioners will also consider a new ordinance extending for an additional 90 days the 180-day moratorium on issuing licenses for adult-type businesses. The original six-month moratorium is about to expire.

Further, the commissioners agreed to look for ways to recoupe nearly $91,000 in tax money the city will lose since South Seminole Hospital became a non-profit organization.

"The fire chief is livid," Miller commented, "and I don't think the police chief likes it. The city administrator doesn't like it."

Miller noted the city agreed to a number of incentives to altach the hospital to Longwood and purchased special equipment to provide service. About $300,000 to $400,000 was spent on a fire department tower truck to service the hospital.

Since gaining non-profit status, the city will loose tax revenue which the hospital paid when it operated as a business, Miller complained.

When HCA (Hospital Corporation of America) planned to move into Hernado County, Miller commented, the county required the corporation to buy the expensive fire apparatus and then deed it to the city before granting the hospital a license. Miller suggested the city could look into a rate adjustment for the hospital's license.

The hospital also has a special $1 per gallon rate for up to 100,000 gallon sewer rate which was granted by the city. The current hospital usage is 46,000 gailons per day.

City engineer Fernand Tiblier suggested it would be possible for the city to take back the 50,000 plus unused gallon capacity and sell it for the going rate of $11.50

The commissioners agreed the hospital is a user of city services and instructed city administrator W. Shelton Smith to look into fees the hospital can be charged. Officials at the hospital were in a meeting this morning and unavailable for comment.

In other business, the commissioners:

 Agreed not to annex Lake Oaks subdivision after a majority of home owners said they did not want to be part of the city.

Approved a resolution against any gambling, either casino or riverboat, in Seminole or adjacent counties. The resolution will be sent to the county commissioners along with state officials in Tallahasece.

Will pursue annexation of enclayes into Longwood. In a letter to city administrator Smith, county manager Ron Rabun suggested an interlocal agreement could "serve as the appropriate vehicle to finalize any proposed or completed an-nexation plan." He also suggested property owners in the enclaves be given the opportunity to comment on the proposed annexation. The enclaves are unincorporated areas within the city limits which receive city services but do not pay city taxes.

and sidewalk and landscaping areas surrounding the exterior.

From original plans, the Penney facility was proposed to occupy 148,656 square feet of space in two levels. It may be larger. It is expected to be the third largest store in the entire mail. Only Burdines and Dillards were originally scheduled to have more square footage.

When the application for regional development at the mall was initially submitted in 1990, Melvin Simon and Associates proposed the mall for 1,250,000 square feet. Since that time, an amendment has been submitted bringing the total area up to 1,485,000 square feet. When that rea submitted, it was reported that several of the major tenant stores would be using more space than originally planned.

At the present time, Penney has over 1,300 stores in every state in the nation, with 180,000 employees, referred to as "associates." When the new facility was announced for the mall, it was reported that the present J.C. Penney store located at the Sanford Plaza, U.S. Highway 17-92 at Airport Boulevard, would be closed once the new department store is completed.

The mail is expected to be in operation with dedication ceremonies set for September 7, 1995. Other new businesses planned within the Sanford city limits are also scheduled for consideration at Thurdday night's P&Z meeting. A public hearing is scheduled for a conditional use for property at 110 N. Holly Avenue, for the purpose of an automobile and truck repair, auto paint and body repair shop. A new automotive dealer (used vehicle) sales is proposed at the corner of Country Club Road and Airport Boulevard. Tire Express, 2650 Orlando Drive, is seeking approval for a chain link fence with barbed wire at the automobile and truck accessory sales and installation facility.

In residential growth, P&Z will consider the preliminary plat for Upsala Oaks, an 87 single-family dwelling subdivision, located at 320 Upeals Road.

Additional items include requests for dimensional variances and conditional uses.

The Sanford Planning and Zoning Commission meeting is scheduled to begin at 7 p.m. Thursday in the commission chambers of Sanford City Hall, 300 N. Park Avenue.

Citizen Paulie Stevens however, a long time Lake Mary resident, has suggested the building be named as the "Frank Evans Community Center." According to a report the name was better "because it included the entire community and described what purpose the building served in earlier days. as well as what the building is used for today."

Lake Mary City Manager John Litton says he doesn't believe either of the names would change the use of the building. He has informed the commission that the Historical Commission would like to turn a portion of the building into a museum, and would open it to the public on a regularly scheduled basis.

"On the other hand." Litton said, "the seniors continue to grow and need a facility in which

THE REPORT OF LODING

The matter will be brought up before the city commission during the city manager's report near the beginning of Thursday night's commission meeting. Litton is not making a recommendation toward either of the names, but has suggested if either is chosen by the commission, the city staff would prepare an appropriate resolu-tion for consideration at the next commission meeting scheduled for July 21.

Case coming down to minutes

LOS ANGELES — On the bloody Sunday that transformed O.J. Simpson from superstar to defendant, he played golf, watched his daughter's dance recital and drove to McDonald's in his Rolls-Royce for a hamburger.

Then he disappeared for about 75 minutes, according to testimony Tuesday at a preliminary hearing to determine if Simpson will stand trial.

The testimony showed that "this case is going to come down to minutes," said Loyola University Law Professor Laurie Levenson.

"it's a very tight squeeze," Levenson said. "He has to get there, commit the crimes, get back, clean up and leave in a mousine for the airport. How can you get this all done in this period of time?

"On the other hand, he's O.J. Simpson, the man known for running through airports. His own image may work against Meanwhile Tuesday, attorneys argued a defense motion to throw out all evidence seized at Simpson's house. Testimony on the motion was to continue today.

Simpson, 46, has pleaded innocent to murdering Nicole Brown Simpson, 35, and Ronald Goldman, 25. Prosecutors have not said whether they will seek the death penalty.

Refugees redirected to Panama

WASHINGTON — The tidal wave of Haitian refugees trying to reach the United States is being redirected to Panama and other countries under a new U.S. plan that offers financial aid to Caribbean nations in return for easing the crush of asylum-seekers.

But the new policy is drawing fire from backers of exiled Haitian President Jean-Bertrand Aristide, who are threatening to challenge the new policy in court. "For the people of Haiti who are trying to escape from the reign of terror, this is a step backwards," said Michael Barnes, close adviser to Aristide. Under the policy announced Tuesday, Haitians who flee their country will not be allowed into the United States. They either Il be returned home or taken to safe havens in Panama, Antigua or Dominica.

Ira Kurzban, a Miami attorney who represents Aristide and the Haitian Refugee Center, said he expected to file a lawsuit challenging the new policy because international law requires safe havens to admit all refugees without making individual determinations.

DETROIT - For the third year in a row, a survey found that new Lexus, Infiniti and Saturn owners were the most satisfied with the reliability of their cars and their treatment by dealers.

Lexus, Toyota's luxury car line, led with 176 points in the J.D. Power and Associates 1994 Customer Satisfaction Index released Tuesday. Nissan's Infiniti line had 171 points and General Motors' Saturn 155.

Honda's Acura luxury line and Germany's Audi filled out the top five. The highest possible score is 202.

The survey of 25,000 buyers of new cars ranked their satisfaction with repairs, reliability, and how they were handled by dealers during the first year they owned their cars. A similar Power report based on a survey of 10,000 light truck owners was to be released today.

Industry sources who had seen that report said Chrysler and Toyota tied as the highest ranking nameplates in the category.

The average score for the industry in the car survey was 135, unchanged from a year ago.

General Motors nameplates averaged 136, the first time in the history of the survey that a U.S. manufacturer average was higher than the industry average. Chrysler brands averaged 128 and Ford was at 125.

In 1986, the Big Three average was only 94.

Five U.S. nameplates, six Japancse and six European finished above this year's average score. Fifteen car lines were below the average, with Suzuki last with 108.

Tuesday. The claimants, some of whom have died, filed a class-action iswault in 1991 against the Social Security Administration after being denied benefits. The administration agreed to re-evaluate the claims to avoid a lengthy court battle, agency spokesman Phil Gambino said. Lawyers for the plaintiffs said the tentative settlement proves the guidelines used to determine disability benefits for HIV-and AIDS-infected people were too narrow. "The Social Security Administration previously used rules based on the Centers for Disease Control's definition of AIDS, which basically is confined to full-blown AIDS," said Marian Nowell, one of the plaintiffs' lawyers. "It also does not include other types of symptoms and opportunistic infections that particularly affect women, children, minorities, people of color, poor people and IV drug users," Nowell said.

assount of money, if any, will be determined on a case-by-case basis by Social Security officials. The definition of AIDS and of the HIV virus for benefits would be expanded and revised under the settlement. But the administration said it was premature to detail the new criteria. The 1991 lawsuit was filed by Community Legal Services inc. of Philadelphis, a nonprofit organization that provides free legal services to low-income clients. It affects residents of Penneylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and the U.S. Virgin Islands who were denied disability benefits based on HIV or AIDS between March 1991 and July 1993.

Colon, Vessey pitch Lake Mary to sweep

From Staff Reports

OVIEDO - Convergent Resources couldn't do much with Carlos Colon and did even less with Robert Vcaacy.

The Lake Mary Mudcats, behind the pitching of Colon and Vessey, swept an NABF Pat Torre League doubleheader from Convergent Resources, 4-2 and 12-0, Tuesday night at Oviede High School's Mikler Field.

In the first game, Colon limited Convergent Resources (Oviedo High School's summer team) to a pair of unearned runs on seven hits. He struck out nine and walked only two.

Suffering the loss for Convergent Resources was Mark Metcalf, who allowed four runs (two carned) on five hits while striking out six and walking four.

Vessey was masterful in the nightcap, throwing a three-hit shutout in a game stopped after five innings by the 10-run mercy rule. He struck out nine without walking a batter.

Robert Carver was the starting pitcher for Convergent Resources in the second game and suffered the ions. He gave way to Jerry Parks in the third inning (when the Mudcats erupted for eight runs), who was succeeded by Mike Bergman in the fourth inning.

Mike Buky and Bryan Schumaker led the Mudcata' attack in the first game. Buky hitting a double and scoring a run while Schumaker doubled and drove in a run. Luis Rivera contributed a single, one run, and an RBI. Adam Sumner singled and scored a run. Rene Peres also hit a single. Brent Wehmeyer scored a run.

For Convergent Resources, Andy Neufeld hit a double. Metcalf singled twice. Kevin Jackson singled and scored a run. Parks, Brian Baer, and Pat Nave each hit a single. Bergman scored a run.

Jason Yero did most of the damage for the Mudcats in the second game, hitting two doubles and driving in four runs.

Since Yero was the catcher, Lake Mary could use a courtesy runner for him whenever he reached base. And each time Yero did (three times in all). Wehmeyer went in to run for him, finishing with two stolen bases and three runs scored.

Jason Garszczynski added a double and one run. Buky and Dwayne Sanford each contributed a single, one run, and an RBI. Colon singled and scored a run. Chris Kapelka scored two runs and had an RBI. Schumaker also scored two runs. Nick Soss scored a run while Sumner chipped in with an RBI.

The only hits for Convergent Resources were singles by Richle Schneck, Bergman, and Elio Cestero.

Italy, Bulgaria complete World Cup quarterfinals

AP Sports Writer

A superstar from Italy and a stingy goalkeeper from Bulgata worked long hours to keep their teams alive in the World Cup.

Roberto Baggio, the interna-tionally renown striker and 1993 tionally renown striker and 1993 player of the year, finally sur-faced Tuesday. He waited long enough, into the final moments of Italy's second-round game with Nigeria, before tying it with his team short-handed. Then he put home a penalty kick in overtime, lifting the Italians to a 2-1 victory. "We already were at the alroot, we were mentally pre-airport, we were mentally prepared to return home. I took them all down from the plane," said Baggio, who had gone eight games without scoring.

Bulgaria's Borislav Mihaylov waited even longer to grab the spotlight. Mexico and Bulgaria were tied 1-1 through overtime, and the first penalty-kick shootout of the tournament was staged. Mihaylov stopped two of Mexover the net - while Bulgaria got three past Jorge Campos to advance to the quarterfinals. The Bulgarians never had won a World Cup game until last week. Now, they're on a three-game winning streak.

Those dramatic wins finished off a captivating second round from which seven European teams advanced. Only Brazil, which plays the Netherlands in Dallas on Saturday, made it from outside Europe.

Italy returns to Foxboro Stadium on Saturday to play Spain. Bulgaria is back at Giants Stadium on Sunday against de-fending champion Germany. Sweden takes on Romania at Stanford Stadium on Sunday. In other World Cup news:

IN BRIEF

Meaning of new food labels

ORLANDO - Consumers can now be certain that nutritional words or phrases found on food labels are accurate since the Food and Drug Administration enacted new laws on May 1.

For example, fat free doesn't mean it's free of fat - it means It must have less than 1/2 gram of fat per serving. Cholesterol free means the item has less than two milligrams of cholesterol. And for meats to be considered lean they must have less than 10 grams of fat, four grams of saturated fat and 95 mg of cholesterol per serving.

A program to help consumers read the new food labels and make wise food choices is now offered at Orlando Regional Healthcare System. Called "Go For Food" the course is taught by registered dicticians and includes hands-on experience in label reading, an in-house grocery store tour and access to a nutritional library.

July and August classes are scheduled for July 14, 19, 28 and Aug. 4, 16 and 25 at various times. The program cost is $10 and pre-registration is required. For further information and reservations please call the ORHS HealthLine at (407) 648-7899.

Cook of the Week Banker finds time for family, fun and food

Cook of the Week Virginia Simmons finds it a bit amusing these days as she begins to discuss the amount of time that she seems to have now to spend towards cooking and baking. "I have all this time but yet there are fewer people home these days," said Simmons.

Simmons has a long-standing career within the world of bank and financing. Currently, she is employed at NationsBank in DeBary. She's been in 'their employ for the last 13 years as a consumer banker.

· Philadelphia is were Simmons was born and raised. She has lived in the state of Florida for the past 39 years. She met and married her husband, Robert, 32 years ago. Together they've raised four children, two sons, Robert and John, both from Deltona. And, two daughters, Candy, from Orange City and Angle, who lives in DeBary. They also have seven grandchildren. "I try to spend just as much time as I can with the grandkids," Simmons said. "Of course, it's much easier for us to get together then some as we all live so close to one another."

Simmons does have her select ways of how she likes to spend her time. It might be going out for the evening and kicking up her heels with Robert or it might be just simply kicking back with a good book to read. However, the most unique way she spends some of her free time is crocheting dolls. She makes the complete wedding party or she will make just one doll. "Most often that request will be for the bride doll," said Simmons. "When I do these dolls the girls will bring me samples of their colors and fabric. I try to get as exact to the original as I can. It's kind of like doing a wedding but on a much smaller scale."

Simmons will share today some of the recipes that her family and friends have always

Writing notes helps heal grief wounds

DEAR ABBY: I'm writing in response to the letter signed "Still Grieving." The writer cannot believe that anyone would expect a grieving person to acknowledge floral tributes, memorials, etc. My husband and also buried two children: One was 18, the other was 20. They died two months apart of unrelated causes.

the state of the second second

Abby, you are so right when you say that such a double blow is more than the human spirit should be expected to endure. However, I found that writing those excruciatingly painful acknowledgments was therapeutic. I wrote notes to everyone, telling them how I felt. I cried with each note, thus ventilating my grief. Those who received my notes were very appreciative and understanding.

It has been almost 20 years since our children died, and like "Still Grieving," we, too, are -and always will be - grieving to some extent, but we have to go on with our lives and learn to live with our loss. We couldn't have existed permanently with such searing pain. It has taken

"Still Grieving" needs not give up one lots of the essence of her children. She can have them with her in all their beauty and sweetness forever. And the more she is able to live her life rather than simply exist in it, the more she will be able to exemplify what her children would want. Her life can be a tribute to them. I wish her peace.

STILL GRIEVING IN CHIGAN DEAR STILL GRIEVING: Only those who have experienced the tragedy of having lost a few thank-you notes? Thanks, a child will appreciate the depth of such indescribable pain. But, thank God, it does become more tolerable with each passing day.

Many other readers also wrote to say that they found writing thank-you notes very therapeutic. Read on:

DEAR ABBY: "Still Orleving" wrote concerning thank-you notes for flowers sent at the time of death: "There is absolutely nothing you can say that will make me believe that all those people who sent flowers and cards expect a thank-you note."

Abby, thank-you notes have more than one purpose. Yes, they acknowledge the gift and the giver, but I learned the grieving process is enhanced as you express your thanks, praise another's thoughtfulness and show your appreciation.

I wrote some 500 notes of thanks after our son took his own life. I found that expressing our thanks over and over for the kindness of others helped me through my grieving. May I suggest that it's not too

DEAR ABBY: I could not believe that anyone would think it was inappropriate to wear a military uniform to a formal wedding. Those people would have been quite upset had they attended my wedding. When my police officer husband and I were married in 1972, even though his groomsmen were police officers, we chose tuxedos for their attire.

However, on the morning of our wedding, my husband-to-be was advised that a protest march was to take place downtown, so members of the riot squad were put on alert. This meant they had to wear their uniforms to our wedding.

At first my husband was quite upset, thinking that some of the guests might think ours was a "Shotgun" wedding, which it most certainly was not. Then he saw the humor in it - and we still laugh about it to this day! DEBORAH BURKE IN

Murderer's gift: Paintings, art from prison

Sanford Herald, Sanford, Florida - Wednesday, July 6, 1994 - 68

By LAURA TUTOR The Anniston Star

ANNISTON. Ala. - The buck bolts from the forest toward the lake stretched across the canvas. His head is high, his tail raised in excitement.

Surrounded by trees, under cover of a gloomy sky. the animal's flight holds the viewer's eye just as it must have held the painter's fascination.

The artist's technique may not be art academy caliber, but the woman who imagined the wildlife scene is one of Anniston's most famous - or maybe infamous - citizens.

Audrey Marie Hilley Homan was well into her term at Julia Tutwiler prison when she began dabbling in art. From 1983 to 1987, while incarcerated for first-degree murder, attempted murder and bad check charges, she rediscovered a hobby from her earlier life.

Now her daughter is selling one of her paintings.

"I can't afford to get it framed." Carol Hilley, now 34, said of the 56-inch by 36-inch painting of the forest scene. "It's just hanging around."

She put a classified advertisement in The Star seeking a buyer for her mother's work. If not for the name of the notorious artist, the ad might not have drawn a second glance from someone who wasn't in the market for a painting. As it is, though, the inch of type is a footnote to the life of a woman whose exploits are legend in Anniston.

Audrey Marie Hilley Homan's story of murder, charade and intrigue began in 1975, when her first husband, Frank Hilley, died of a strange illness. About three years later. Carol Hilley was stricken with similar symptoms and sparked suspicion.

It wasn't long before authorities learned that the loving wife and mother had poisoned her husband with amenic to get insurance money and had similar plans for her daughter.

Mrs. Hilley was arrested, but escaped from authorities, identity and lived a double life as a fugitive. She married John Homan in May 1981, moved to New Hampshire and lived an ideal - if mysterious - life until her record caught up with her two years later. when she was again living under a different name - that of a sister she had imagined.

FTTTT

She was convicted in 1983 and sentenced to life plus 20 years in Julia Tutwiler prison in Wetumpka. With a stretch like that in front of her, she needed an outlet for her energy.

"When she was in prison, she didn't have anything to do." Miss Hilley said. "For somebody who never really (painted) before, she was fairly good."

Mrs. Homan was interested in drawing long before prison. Miss Hilley remembers how her mother would sketch while they were sitting in church. Mrs. Homan would draw a picture and challenge her daughter to copy it. When she went to prison, art became her main entertainment.

In addition to the oil painting. Miss Hilley has dozens of other pencil drawings. watercolors and pictures done by her mother. All are signed "Marie Homan." She even did one especially for the daughter she had tried to kill signed, "With Love From Mom."

In February of 1987 while on a weekend furlough, Audrey Marie Hilley Homan tried to flee again. Instead of meeting husband John at an area restaurant, she set out on foot for a destination no one has ever learned. A few days later. she crawled onto the porch of a house in Blue Mountain, cold and drenched. She soon died of hypothermia.

Miss Hilley said the time when her mother was painting represented some of the best years of their relationship. They never talked about her mother's crimes, though. Miss Hilley said she had come to terms with what her mother had done, and still cared, for her.

That love is one of the reasons she's selling only the large oil painting. The others decorate her house and are treasured.

Railroad museum awakens sleepy, tiny town Shepherd and a dozen or so museum members pay for their love of railroading with sweat. For the past five years, they've gathered every Saturday at the site near the Mack Truck plant to paint railcars, refurbish ROCKTON, S.C. - Howard Shepherd adjusted his gray train engineer's cap.

their interiors and lay down new track. If they seem as slow as a freight chugging up a mountain grade in reaching their destination, there's a reason.

The work is financed, almost exclusively, from the dues of the museum's 300 members. And a museum doesn't get rich when dues range from $15 to $25, Shepherd sald.

"We've had no federal or state funds," he said. "You're looking at folks who pay to work out of their own pockets."

They do it because of the allure of railroading, said the Wisconsin native, who fell in love with railroading when he first saw a locomotive coughing smoke and spewing sparks.

Also, short of a telegram handed to you by a porter, there is no way anyone can reach you once the conductor bawls out "BOARRRRD," leaving you free to untether your mind and soul, he said.

Shepherd is "almost frightened" by the museum's potential as a tourist attraction.

At two recent unadvertised dry runs, more than 1,000 people queued up for the four-mile round trip that features two cabooses pulled by a diesel engine.

School children from Lexington, West Columbia and Fairfield also have visited the museum. A Boy Scout troop has camped out, rising early to help lay track.

"I've never seen Boy Scouts so excited," said Harold Berzley, a Winnsboro resident who grew up along the New York Central Railroad in Michigan.

One day, the museum will be a showcase, Berzley predicted.

Right now, there are very few amenities only a trailer that houses restrooms and memorabilia. "People must remember we're a moving museum, not a setting museum," Shepherd said.

No large signs decorate the grounds either. So first-time visitors must keep a sharp lookout for the museum's railcars.

A dining car will anchor the museum site one day. And the train ride will eventually include about 16 miles of track, ending up at the old Anderson Quarry in Rion - where there'll also be a large building to house ralicans.

"Some day," Shepherd vowed, "the South Carolina Railroad Museum is going to be a tourist attraction that ranks with the best."

50-year Red Cross Volunteer retires

By ANNE MONTGOMERY Statesbore Norald

STATESBORO, Ga. - Friends and admirers of retiring Red Cross volunteer Dr. Mary Fortune huddled around her, eager to squeeze her hand and sing her praises.

Fortune, who would only say she's "not yet 80," has resigned after 10 years of volunteer service as chairman of the Bulloch County blood drives. She was honored recently by her fellow volunteers and Red Cross associates.

Fortune's commitment to the Red Cross extends far beyond her 10 years in Statesboro, in fact it is merely the culmination of a lifetime of dedicated service, said fellow volunteer Steve Skinner.

Her Red Cross career started during World War II, and in-cluded the Korean War and the Victnam War. From 1945 to 1970, she was a professional staff worker with the American Red Cross. She served in United States military hospitals around the world.

'At first, I didn't want to go (to Europe) because I was afraid the ship would sink, but I went anyway. The hostilities were over by the time I got there," she said. "I was in Japan during the Korean War for two years, then I was in Hawaii for another two years in the '60s. When I was in Japan, it was still an occupied country. There were still vestiges of war, but we were really in no danger." Usually, she was the supervisor of the recreation staff, planning recreation and encouragement for patients in the military hospitals.

"I majored in drams and speech, and I'd done a lot of plays and things, so I thought I was going to entertain them. My first assignment was in a big military hospital where they shipped the patients in on the train. We would go out and meet the trains, then go back to the hospital with them and do therapeutic activities with them," she recalled.

Fortune has many fond memories of her career, such as the time she took 200 orthopedic patients to a baseball game in Kentucky.

"They all managed to find the beer stand, so I spent the entire night under the bleachers picking up crutches, arms and legs," she laughed. "I had to tell the man at the beer stand to stop selling to them."

When Fortune returned to the United States, she continued to work full time and earned her M.A. and her Ph.D. in therapeutic recreation from the University of North Carolina. In 1971 she came to Georgia Southern where she worked until retiring in 1983 to start her new career as a volunteer worker with the American Red Cross.

After retiring, Fortune volunteered to help organize local blood drives. Starting with just seven annual drives, her commitment increased until last year when she was chairman for 22 blood drives in the county. "Mary has truly been ultimately responsible for the growth of the blood drives here in Statesboro," said Nancy Martin, Red Cross blood services consultant. "Without someone

AIDS spreading rapidly in India; virus in all states

By THOMAS WAGNES Associated Press Writer

NEW DELHI, India - AIDS is racing through India just eight years after the first case was detected. Prostitutes, drug addicts and untested blood supplies are the conduits.

More than half the prostitutes in cities such as Bombay have HIV, the virus that causes AIDS. The truck drivers and itinerant workers they serve carry it to their own villages.

In northeastern India, 70 per-cent of the estimated 30,000 intravenous drug users have become HIV-positive.

Hundreds of private blood banks rely heavily on professional donors, poor people who survive by selling their blood. Seldom are the donations properly tested for AIDS.

The HIV virus has been reported in all 25 states. Although the AIDS pandemic came later to India than to most large countries, the National AIDS Control Organization estimates there are 1.62 million cases in the population of 880 million, up 60 percent from 1993.

if India follows the path of sub-Saharan Africa, the AIDS epicenter, that number could frow to 10 million by the decade's end, according to world health authorities.

"AIDS is no longer just a problem of high-risk groups. It has spread to every area of India." Dr. P.R. Das Gupta of the national AIDS agency said in an interview. "So many people are migrating from their villages in search of jobs that this epidemic is spreading very fast."

Few countries face as many obstacles in combating AIDS.

Medical facilities are so inadequate in rural areas that hundreds of thousands of Indians die each year of cholers, measles, tuberculosis and other easily curable diseases.

Mainutrition leaves millions with weak immune systems. In a nation where 43 million cases of sexually transmitted diseases are reported each year, even faithful married women have untreated infections of the reproductive tract that make them susceptible to AIDS.

Indian doctors often refuse to treat patients with AIDS, for fear of catching it. Many people still believe wrongly that the HIV virus can be spread through a handshake, that it is unsafe to ride on a bus or work beside an infected person.

Sex has traditionally been a taboo subject in India and homosexuality is still illegal. There is little research on sexual behavior to help direct the fight against AIDS.

That means no one knows whether commonly accepted assumptions are true: that India is less vulnerable than the promiscuous West because sex before marriage is uncommon, and that only the poor and uneducated buy sex.

Few politicians are willing to discuss AIDS publicly because the official number of reported deaths - 713 - reinforces the popular notion that there is no crisis.

Most experts on AIDS dismiss the official figure as abourdly low, but none has a reliable estimate.

The World Bank, which gave India an $84 million loan in 1992 to finance anti-AIDS programs, recently complained to the government that some states had not yet put the money to USC.

Nearly half of all Indiana are illiterate, so educating them about any complicated subject is difficult. State-run television carries few warnings or programs about AIDS.

Effective education is vital in a male-dominated society where few men use condoms and few women - wives as well as prostitutes - would dare ask them to.

An investigation of unusually high demand for governmentsupplied condoms among longdistance truck drivers in southern India revealed that they were being used to plug radiator leaks.

Birth-control programs have had uneven success in India, which is expected to surpass China as the world's most populous nation early in the next century. The government is trying to make sure all men will have access to reliable condoms. Bombay is one of several large cities where poor, illiterate girls are kidnapped or sold by their families to work as prostitutes.

At least 100,000 women work in Bombay's 25 red-light districts. Activists trying to help them say the women cannot afford to turn away customers who refuse to use condoms.

Many of those customers are truck drivers or migrant daylaborers who use prostitutes in the city, then return to their wives and villages.

The situation is even worse in the northeastern states of Manipur, Nagaland and Misoram, which border Burma and Southcast Asia's infamous Golden Triangle drug-producing region. There, heroin is as popular as cigarettes and often cheaper than alcohol.

Many addicts belong to tribes in which sharing is a tradition. That now includes sharing needles, which spreads the AIDS vinue.

State governments in the northeast, faced with tribal uprisings for autonomy or independence, have given low priority to AIDS.

The realities of confidentiality

DEAR DR. GOTT: What is your opinion of a doctor having his wife work in the office? My doctor is well-established now. so I don't believe he needs the tax deduction. She's very pleas-ant and works well with other people. I just feel uncomfortable knowing she's working with patients' files and has access to the information therein. Your opinion?

the state of the state

DEAR READER: This is a vexing problem and I don't have an easy answer for it. Most doctors' wives, who work in the office, may be registered nurses or hold other degrees. They understand the exceedingly delicate concept of confidentiality and, in fact, may be more reliable in this regard than non-spouse office workers.

Nonetheless, once in awhile doctors can get into real trouble if their wives search out and pass on information in inappropriate social settings. Fortunately, this situation is unusual.

In general, patients' office files are kept confidential no matter who is working in the office. However, I want to emphasize that this confidentiality is relative. Insurance companies, fed-eral authorities and the legal profession -- not to mention other agencies -- can obtain confidential documents from any doctor's office, even without signed permission from the patient.

Consequently, once a doctor records information, the potential exists for its dissemination. This is the reason that I seldom make any reference in my records about my patients' truly intimate secrets: Even the most secure system, with the most stringent attempts at confidentiality, can be breached.

While I share your concern, I don't believe that it is solely related to your doctor's wife. Nonetheless, you might mention your views to the doctor, just as a matter of record. I don't subscribe to the theory that making a change to another doctor would solve the potential problem. Your best bet -- and one that I cannot publicly en-dorse -- is to use discretion when giving information to your

What do you think of logic problems? Probably you either love them or hate them. As Gloria Steinem mid. "Logic is in the eye of the logician." Nevertheless, most bridge problems can be solved by thinking logically. I particularly like deals that feature analysis along these lines: "If A is true, then suit B must be played like this; but if A is false, suit B must trick two, play a club to your queen. If she loses to West's king (A is false), you must win six heart tricks. To try to ac-complish this, you should finesse dummy's jack on the first round of the suit. But here the club finesse wins (A is true). Now you need only five heart tricks. How should you play to maximize your chances of winning those five heart tricks?

Right -- you should duck the first round of hearts, planning to
