Officers Shot At By Moonshiners In Polk County

BARTOW, Oct. 15.—(Special) Moonshiners in dry Polk county, venting the inquisitiveness of State Beverage inspectors here last week, met the investigators with a hail of bullets which caused officials to appeal to the sheriff's office for help.

Deputies reinforced the posse and the illegal citadel was stormed to take the culprits into custody. The still, located near Auburndale, was being guarded by Mrs. Inna Green who is alleged to have fired the volley at the officers as they approached her house.

A still was discovered nearby and 20 barrels of mash and 20 barrels of moonshine were destroyed.

Merchant Arming Bill May Be Passed Friday

Before Debate Opens Rayburn Predicts Measure Will Be Passed On Friday Majority Over

100 Expected Speaker Says Vote Will Reflect Attitude Of People

WASHINGTON, Oct. 16.—(AP)—Shortly before the House debate opened on the Administration's merchant ship arming legislation, Speaker Rayburn predicted the measure would be passed tomorrow with a majority of "100 to 150 votes."

The speaker told a press conference the overwhelming support he saw for the measure was a clear indication that members just back from visits to their districts, were reflecting attitude of their constituents.

Ship arming legislation moved to the House floor yesterday coincident with announcement by Navy Secretary Knox that the Navy "is ready to put guns" on American merchantmen as soon as Congress gives the signal.

The House probably will give its floor vote to the bill this afternoon, but it is not certain whether the Senate will act on the bill before the adjournment.

Opponents of the bill are expected to be in the minority in both houses. The bill would require the fitting of guns on merchant ships.

Important Meeting Of Townsendites Is Scheduled Tonight

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

RULE FOR LIVING: He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doeth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly, and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God.—Micah 6: 8.

MY MARE

July Van der Veer I see her on a hill The wind in her mane; I hear her running hoofs Through the narrow lane.

I remember how she loved The green grass of Spring, I see her crowning, I remember everything—

The quick and eager way She would toss her head— It is harder to remember That my mare is dead.

Not hard to see again The sunshine on her coat, Feel once more the softness Of her neck and throat.

It is sorrow to remember Her imploring eyes, To see the stricken look That comes to one who dies.

So I shall be forgetting Much of a certain day, And never more remember How she went away.

ENEMY

(From Poetry) The reason for my laughter lies Not deep nor far; That way you have of hating me For what you are! —CARLETON FORD SHAW

Over in Daytona Beach a young Greek named "Nick" is being hailed as a hero today after rescuing two U. S. Army men caught in an undertow. Nick whose name happens to be "Nikantolis," is quite a fellow as well.

Even Senator Wheeler says Japan and America should be able to settle their difficulties without the hot heads in Japan. The "hot heads" in Japan are more than likely to proceed with the common consent of all Japanese in authority. But in the time to ripe Japan will be against the United States whether we want war or not.

Senator Henderson has ordered a Senate resolution in January 1942 to make it a good job to make a complete inventory of all the things that are being made in the United States. It will also be a good idea to make a complete inventory of all the things that are being made in the United States.

Longer Life

The average length of life of Americans is closely approaching the biblical limit of three score years and ten. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company shows that the expectation of life at birth in 1939 was 66.4 years for white females and 62.6 years for white males.

Not only is the present average length of life for women above that for men, but their improvement since 1900 has also been the greater, with the gain for women amounting to 15 1-3 years and that for men to 14 1-3 years. The Metropolitan further reveals that the major part of the improvement has been concentrated in the last two decades, which witnesses an improvement of 9.3 years in the average length of life whereas that for the first two decades was only 5.6 years.

"The huge saving of life during the past 40 years reflects for the most part giant strides made by medical science and the public health movement in the control of disease," the Metropolitan declares. "In this relatively short period there has been a sharp decline in the death rate from tuberculosis, the communicable diseases of childhood, diarrhea and enteritis, pneumonia, typhoid fever, and a number of other diseases.

Indeed, at no age period has there been any retrogression in the health of the American people as measured by mortality or by longevity. Altogether, the record bears eloquent witness to the vitality of the American people.

The greater longevity of women as compared with men is said to be partly due to inherent biological disposition, but even in early childhood mortality is less among girls than among boys. It is partly due to the occupational risks to which men are exposed in industrial pursuits, and which at least offset the risks of childbirth to which women are exposed. And it is partly due to a very materially higher mortality among unmarried men as compared with unmarried women, though for both sexes the mortality of the unmarried exceeds that of the married.

Abolishing Millionaires

With the enormous cost of the war bearing down more and more on the little fellow, the time may well come when the public will wish for more millionaires upon whom higher income taxes could be levied to run the government. But if the profit motive is eliminated, and the millionaires destroyed, there will be no one left to pay the bill but the rank and file.

"It has become a real distinction to be a millionaire in these years," says the Miami Herald, "and this decline in million dollar incomes deserves some study. Perhaps there ought to be a new agency set up by the federal government to see what can be done for the relief of and increase in millionaires.

"Last year only 42 admitted the million-dollar revenue and paid $46,073,000 federal income taxes, which is a pretty good sum to come from so few persons. It must sadden them, however, to note all these riches being dumped into the lap of spendthrift Uncle Sam.

"This number was eight less than the preceding year, indicating that depression is still hurting the millionaire crop. Compare that 42 with 1929 when there were 513, who paid $191,000,000 in taxes.

"It would benefit the government to boost and not curtail the million-dollar business, for in time those millionaires, mainly working for Washington, might earn enough to balance the budget and relieve the little fellow. What this country needs is more millionaires who admit the crime, and turn over their disgraceful wages to the government.

"Perhaps, what with war and defenses, there will be more this year, millions made out of government expenditures, and in reciprocity turned back to the government. That's fair enough."

The Joy Of Work

One hot summer day a boy was hoeing corn, apparently oblivious of the heat. His cheery whistle rang out as he worked. A man who was walking along the road stopped and said, "My lad, I am curious to know how you can hoe corn on a hot day like this and whistle while you work."

"Well, sir," was the reply, "I don't know unless it is that I feel somehow that I am doing something that even God couldn't do if I wasn't here to help Him."—Alice Crowell Hoffman in Your Life Magazine.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

By MRS. IRVING FEINBERG

There came through the port of Philadelphia in 1760, when it was the prime gateway to turbulent young America, a youth from Cologne who was filled with romantic dreams and sound German skill. His name was "Baron" Steigel, whose name is perpetuated in that glass which is one of the most beautiful products ever made in the United States. The story of "One Red Rose Forever" is based upon his tempestuous life.

Steigel was a man of giant passions, of a temper to smash all obstacles. He loved fine glass, but he also loved beautiful women and great music and when one of his fierce desires came into headlong conflict with another, there was forged the tragic pattern of momentary triumph and eventual loss that marked his life. Although he was twice married and had the belles of Philadelphia at his feet, the woman he really loved, Diane, eluded him. Although he browbeat his army of workmen into a huge discordant orchestra, he lost his own fine skill on the violin. And although he defied the restrictions against colonial manufactures by making glass more beautiful than England could supply, he ended his industrial enterprises in a debtors' prison. But in the end he found a kind of humble and unexpected happiness.

The scene moves from Elizabeth Furze to the Philadelphia of Benjamin Franklin and Robert Morris, the Philadelphia of Quakers and slave-traders and Quakers and social brilliance—and a marriage with the social status of life in the United States is created. Canada and the West Indies, nor have they interfered with her devotion to such strenuous hobbies as tennis, skating and skiing. She is something of a musician also, an able performer on the piano and especially fitting in one interested in the eighteenth century—the harp.

"One Red Rose Forever" is her first novel. Miss Jordan first became interested in Baron Steigel some years ago, when with her husband she drove past his old house in Mannheim. In its finished form the book represents four years of solid work—meticulous research as well as careful writing and rewriting. Readers will agree that the time was well spent; for it would be difficult to imagine a more lastingly satisfying re-creation of earlier America or a better story.

It's purely a matter of psychology and the publishers are crowing over it. It seems as if most readers don't go for mysteries and a sale of 10,000 for any one of these two dollar sellers is considered exceptional. Little, Brown received the manuscript of the rip-roaring mystery dealing with the Gestapo, two English spies, etc., and decided to try a new advertising angle. So they pushed up the price to two dollars and billed it as an exciting "adventure" novel. The results need not be lingered upon long. "44 Hours Suspended" by Helen Matheson now holds third place on best seller lists throughout the country.

The title of Lin Yutang's next novel will be "A Leaf in the Storm." The phrase is descriptive of the situation of the Chinese who flee to the interior of China as the Japanese invaders pour in from the east, and it symbolizes flight from pursuing danger. It is intended to convey to English readers the same sentiment that the title Dr. Lin has chosen for the Chinese edition of the book—"Winds Howl and Herons Cry"—will convey to his countrymen. The Chinese characters for the Chinese title will appear as part of the design of the John Day jacket along with the English title.

Harper's will part with $12,000 in return for a non-exclusive manuscript to be submitted before May 1, 1942, on any subject of general interest treated in such manner as to be readable by the public at large. The manuscript should be over 70,000 words. The winning author will not be absolutely excluded if a winner should be in the crowd of writers at less length. All authors may submit any number of manuscripts if he happens to be prolific with projects of his genre. The work must be in English, but

Pensacola Woman Collects Money To Entertain Soldiers In Service

PENSACOLA, Oct. 15.—(Special)—Slogan "A Penny For Their Pleasure", Mrs. E. A. Murphy she reasoned that if everyone in the city would contribute only a month for the U. S. A., it would provide immediate funds, so with the aid of local groups whom she interested in the project she placed attractive little coin collection boxes at convenient location throughout the city.

Made in the form of Uncle Sam and painted red, white and blue, they are found on cigar counters, in drug stores, restaurants and numerous other places where folks find it easy to drop in their spare pennies.

Enlisting the aid of the Federal Art Project, she had at tractive posters drawn showing the flag centered with a soldier on one side and a sailor on the other and the slogan "A Penny For Their Pleasure". These were placed beside each coin receptacle.

Pensacola fell in with the idea and pennies are rolling in, few contributors stopping with one but generously emptying their pockets of all copper coins.

"I hope that other cities throughout the country that are located near army camps or naval stations will adopt the idea," said Miss Murphy. "A penny

Apology To Public For False Report Sought Of NYA

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 15.—(Special)—Public apology to the people of Florida was sought Monday by Aubrey Williams, by Harold Cole, executive vice president of the Florida State Chamber of Commerce, for one "hyperbolic" and "moronic" report made on Florida in 1936 by a field representative of the National Youth Administration's division of guidance and placement. The report came to light by action of the comptroller general, Lindsay C. Warren, who submitted it to the house appropriations committee as an example "of the character of official travel" engaged in by NYA.

Cole made his demand through Florida members of the house. To them he wrote: "The Associated Press account of the letter found in NYA files by the comptroller general and submitted to the House appropriations committee by him, in which one 'Red' (identified as a field representative of the NYA sent to Florida in 1936 on a tour of investigation) engaged in hyperbolic and moronic statements concerning this state should draw from National Administrator Aubrey Williams a full and complete apology to the people of Florida for such reprehensible conduct on the part of an official in his employ, and a guarantee from Mr. Williams that he will exert greater care in the future in the selection of the traveling envoys sent by him to 'report' on Florida people.

"As a matter of fact, we are not prepared to admit that the character of the people of Florida is of official concern to any federal agency."

Cole said he would follow up his request to the highest Washington authority in the event Williams failed to accede to the request.

"The whole correspondence," he said should be laid before the congress, "that the people might know how their tax monies are being spent."

Cuba freshman catcher, is good to his folks, handles the pitchers at Buffalo last year by catching 145 games for the Bisons, but what they really like about him, those Wrigley Field fans, is his headlong plunging in a Pepper field in which his bunting and the play at the next bag is going to be close.

Moscow Battle Takes Terrific Toll Of Lives

Germans Are Making Fierce Assault, Say Reds, But Do Not Make Any Advance

By Associated Press
The Germans are fiercely assaulting Moscow's outer defenses within 60 miles of the city and the defenders said the fight is taking a terrific toll on both sides. The Soviets said there are no further advances by the Nazis. The Russians said nothing regarding the situation in Odessa but the Rumanians reported their troops are mopping up in the city's streets. The Germans said 14 Russian ships in Odessa's harbor were damaged in air attacks. Officials of the Stalin government were reported on good authority last night to be evacuating Moscow, while three unhalted German offensives directly menaced the capital, and it appeared that Kazan, 450 miles to the east, was rapidly becoming the new seat of Soviet authority. Censorship hid the full extent of the withdrawal, but some informants in London understood in fact that all governmental heads had departed, leaving Moscow a capital only in name and in the hands of the Red army. Also leaving the capital, said from the Russian functionaries, were U. S. Ambassador Steinhardt and his embassy staff. Withdrawn also were the Swedish and Japanese diplomatic personnel and apparently those of all other powers represented. While the Russian center was being pushed back toward disaster the Red far southwestern anchor was declared to have been smashed. Both the Germans and the allied Rumanians announced that Odessa, on the Black Sea, at last had fallen after 59 days of siege and thus that substantially the whole of the coast from the Rumanian frontier eastward to the Crimean peninsula approaches now was in German control. Fighting of an almost incredible horror—where Russian women and half-grown children stood with smoking guns upon the last tragic barricades and struggle alongside the men—was proceeding in flaming Odessa, as the invaders sought to knock out the last pockets of resistance. Sometimes, said Axis officials, the whole of the coast from the bodies of the Russian dead. Concurrent with all this, Japan went through another political convulsion which informed British and United States. The United States held likely to produce a more belligerent attitude—conceivably an attack on Russian Siberia or a harder policy, which might in the end lead to war, toward the United States.
