BATURDAY, JANUARY 2, 1932

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

FURNISH NO FUEL—Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out; so where there is no tale-bearer, the strife ceaseth.—Proverbs 26: 20.

THE BODY OF THE ROOTS
The hand that, up the dark and twisted stair Carries the tulip's candle in its case;
The shoulder and the thigh that,
straining, bear
Up to their shelf each gossamer
urn and vase,
Are tense and knotted, lean and
velued and spare.
Not with deft swiftness nor with delicate grace,
But in slow agonies of strength
and care,
The burden of a flower's ephemeral
age
Is lifted and unbended in the air.
—Winifred Welles.

This is January 2, and about the time of year when the New Year resolutions are getting their biggest breaks.

1932 though it may be, we are among the saps who will continue to date our checks and letters 1931
for several weeks at least.

As we get it from this Culbertson-Leng affair, the most successful fitness in bridge is a right
cross to the jaw.

Gen. Chang Chin-Chui has ever-uated Chinchow and the victorious
Gen. Shigeru Honj is being served with show men. Who said we couldn't speak Chinese?

As the Old Year closed it was difficult to find big business leaders who would make a cheerful prediction as to 1932. Most of them made their cheerful forecasts
a year ago.

One hundred persons killed on New Year's Day in traffic accidents failed to start the New Year off right. New Year's resolutions to keep traffic regulations and to drive carefully were too hastily broken.

Someone should have told that twenty-five year old college professor who committed suicide because his affection was spurned by his sweetheart, that that sort of thing
just isn't being done any more.

The leader of the hunger marchers promises to make it "damned uncomfortable for those who won't feed the unemployed." We'll bet
he had indigestion from over-eating when he said it.

That heavy downpour on the last day of the old year simply made it possible for the newspapers to characterize it as a wet New Year's Eve without unduly reflecting on constitutional amendments.

Handshaking is an American characteristic, and we would probably be among the first to condemn an American president who would refuse to shake hands with the vast hordes which visit the White House throughout the year. And yet we admit it must have been a lucky break for the President on New Year's Day
when after greeting personally about three thousand callers, a rain storm kept other thousand away. Handshaking is a splendid mode of greeting, but the last couple of thousand are the hardest.

However bad conditions may be in the United States and however much we may blame our government for them, we cannot get around the fact that if our form of government is unable to cope with present conditions, it is not because we are doing a much better job than any other government in the world today. We compare our things but we boast ourselves as many automobiles, radio sets, and other articles of consumption. If the United States did not have anything to show, it would be hard to consider her

A Good Health Resolution

As one means of starting the New Year off right, Dr. Royal S. Copeland, eminent health authority and United States senator from New York, suggests that everyone give a thought to his personal health. Those of us who are wise will follow Dr. Copeland's advice. Those of us who are not, well, we may not be here next year to make resolutions anyhow. This is the way Dr. Copeland puts it:

"Now 1932 is here! What are you going to do with it? Do not fear, I shall not preach to you or at you! But I should be remiss if I said nothing today about the importance of health."

"Your education, influence and wealth will do you or the world little good if you become shattered in health. You cannot be cheerful, content or good-natured if you suffer aches and pains."

"You are not sane and sensible if you are absolutely heedless of your physical welfare. You are unkind to your family and friends if you neglect your bodily welfare."

"I am quite sure the year just ended brought to me personally more shocks than I experienced in any previous year of my life. I refer to the amazing number of sudden deaths among my acquaintances."

"Sudden death is not an accident in the ordinary sense. An automobile collision, the breaking of a wheel on a rail-way train, a slip on the ice—most of such accidents can not be anticipated and prevented."

"But deaths from Bright's disease, heart disease, tuberculosis, cancer and other serious ailments are preventable. In most instances early attention will give complete relief. On the other hand, if neglected, these diseases lead to sure disaster. Their ultimate effect is to shock and sadden the friends of the victim."

"Disease is not a savage, stalking its victim, setting him suddenly, striking him down without warning of any sort. Almost without exception, the first evidences of fatal disease date back years before the disastrous end. Further, practically every ailment is curable in its first stage. By change in the manner of living, by appropriate treatment, the otherwise inevitable result is avoided."

"There is no mystery about how to escape the unhappy effects of disease. Its early discovery is the secret. That is effected by a careful physical examination."

"In all probability you are normal in every respect, but won't it be a comfort to know it? On the contrary, if he finds a defect, your good doctor friend will advise you what to do to get rid of it entirely."

"Make this resolution. You may add years to your life by acting on it."

Slow Motion Worthless

Two thousand years ago Aesop told a fable about the race between the hare and the tortoise. The tortoise won because he kept plodding along while the rabbit traveled by fits and starts. Following the logic of this fable, a school of those who are slow and sure has sprung up and the do-it-in-a-hurry boys are often looked down on. Very few worthwhile diplomas come from the school of slow motion. It pays to think what you are going to do, and then to do it. But the plodders aren't getting as high these days as they once did. The demand today is for those who can match sound judgment with action.

If you're going to build a high skyscraper, naturally you wouldn't want to start work the day you had received a commission. You might spend months planning just how the building was going to be constructed and also in choosing the materials that were to go into it. But after you had done begin work on the building, unless you move with celerity and alacrity, you would receive few commissions for future buildings.

Work has been speeded up. The plodder is being left behind. Even in science, one of the slowest moving and most sedately accurate fields, they are moving with greater speed than ever before. Speeding up of doing may be a drawback to some, but its day has definitely dawned and we as workers must bow to the new conventions.

If you have the ability to combine quick and sound thinking with quick action, there is a place in the sun for you. If you haven't, you'd better begin taking stock of yourself so that you can qualify.

THE LOWER FREIGHT rates for fruit shipments from Florida will mean a considerable saving to growers. The citrus industry has won a very great victory in this rate reduction. The railroads too, will find that conceding the lower rate will improve their business as it will hold a considerable portion of the business for the rails that would otherwise take to the trucks. It is an all-round victory of the sort that will go far toward restoring better relationships between growers and railroads and also in restoring business equilibrium.—Orlando Reporter-Star.

GRAPPLING WITH THE PROBLEM

NEW YORK HERALD TRIBUNE

The European powers are shown action before we can adjust our an admirable promptness in policy any further to it.

facing the problem bequeathed to them by the Basle committee.

The report of the committee has made it virtually certain that there will be no resumption of German reparation payments next July. Thus a first fixed point in the discussion has been established: the committee left the consideration of it to the governments, and already Great Britain and France have set January 18 as the tentative date for an international conference upon the questions which it presents.

Reparations, in other words, remain an affair between the European creditors and Germany; debt

remain an affair between the European debtors and ourselves. The German reparation payments

next July, a local painter, declined the breakfast invitation. With the departure of the four he became

first at the gate, where, he said, he had stood for five years. Rain

did not damp him.

Inside the executive mansion

there were other incidents. During the official reception in the morning Little Peggy Ann and Peter Hoover, whose total ages are nine, were seen seeking at the elevator from behind heavy walls.

The two youngers, now Ambassadors to Martine at Italy, recently uniformed sons of the opposite sex, received the first salute. The boy followed by other diplomats to the State Justice

Building, and the girl by her mother, Mrs. Hoover, were invited to a reception given by

President Hoover at the White House to honor the new ambassadors.

RESOLUTIONS

Resolutions passed by the Truth Seekers Class of the Methodist Church at Sanford on the death of a dearly beloved member, Carrie Spencer:

In recognition of the long and untiring services of our sister member, Carrie Spencer, in church and class work, the Truth Seekers Class of the Methodist Church wishes to express its sense of personal loss in the death of Mrs. Spencer and its appreciation of her services as a member and past officer of the class.

From the beginning of our church in Sanford, Mrs. Spencer has been an ardent and loyal member, working in true Christian spirit wherever and whenever the call or need came. No call was too small for her to answer when it meant the helping of a neighbor in the true sense that Jesus taught.

With the sense of community and church loss is mingled deep sympathy for the members of her family.

It is therefore resolved that this expression of our sympathy and love be sent to the family of Mrs. Spencer, that it be spread upon the minutes of our next meeting and that it be printed in an issue of our daily paper.

And one clear call for me to make may there be no mourning of the bar.

When I put out to sea, But such a tide as now none seems asleep.

Too full for sound and foam, When that which drew from out the boundless deep.

Turns again home, Twilight and evening fell.

And after that the dark, And may there be no sadness of farewell.

When I embark, And may there be no sorrow of parting.

For this is from out our source of Time and Tide,

The flood may bear me far,

I hope to see my pilot face to face.

When I have crossed the bar."

BIG FORT MADE TO STAMP OUT BOMB MENACE

and reported that the explosion was strong enough to wreck a large city building.

The other bomb sent by express to Chicago was addressed to Oscar Durante, editor of a prominent newspaper. He refused to accept the package and his fears were confirmed when police fired at the box and found it to be a powerful bomb.

Count Ugo Berni Canani, Detroit Italian vice consul; Count Giacomo Buzzi Grandolfo, Italian consul at Cleveland and Dr. A. Ruspone, Italian consular agent at Youngstown, Ohio, were the targets of similar attempts. In each case, however, the bombs were turned over to the authorities and disposed of harmlessly.

The combined home and grocery store of R. Dionisio, an Italian living in Trinidad, Colo., was destroyed by an explosion, believed to have been caused by a bomb, early Friday. The family was not at home and no motive was apparent.

In the rear of a Cincinnati commission merchant house, eight sticks of dynamite, a fuse and two batteries were found. The authorities thought, however, that they had been hidden by a gang of safe-blowers.

Bellire, Ohio, reported the frustration of a plot in Angelo Cifaldi, Italian merchant. Police stationed at his home after he had received threats arrested three men and seized 11 sticks of dynamite under his house.

The combination home and restaurant of an Italian at Paris, Ill., was rocked by the explosion of bombs. The man said he knew of no enemies.

The fuse on a dynamite bomb placed under a porch at Seattle went out in time to save the home of Yoshiro Ono, vice president of the Sumitomo bank. Ono said he thought it was the work of an enemy of the bank.

A suspicious package received by the Associated Press in Chicago apparently was harmless. It was returned to the postoffice because the addressee was unknown, and erroneous announcement was made that police were investigating it. Apparently, however, the package went into the dead letter office. Postal officials were unable to check this Friday because of the holiday, but the package was not turned over to the police.

The Chicago office of the American Express company established a squad of 12 men to scan every package brought into Chicago at all railroad stations.

Flood Waters Rage Bringing Danger Of Famine To Citizens

GLENDORA, Jan. 2.—(A.P.)—Climbing levees still held flood waters out of towns of the Mississippi delta today but the danger of a famine brought new fear to refugees. Convicts and farm laborers continued to pile sandbags on creaking barriers against steadily rising waters as provisions dwindled. Meanwhile Red Cross workers surveyed the flood area to determine the extent of relief work needed.

Tallahatchie, Quitman, and Panola counties lay under expanding flood waters swelled by recent rains as torrents washed down below Glendora, MS, northern LeFlore county. City officials of Webb today called on the people of Mississippi to furnish boats to carry flood-jaded thousands to safety from the Tallahatchie river flood. It is estimated that 5,000 are in need of rescue or food.

STRAY SHOT KILLS WOMAN

ANNISTON, Ala., Jan. 2.—(A.P.)—A stray shot fired on a downtown street during the new year's celebration killed Mrs. Paul Correllus, 40, wife of a wholesale produce dealer, early yesterday. Charles Hamilton, 22, son of the president of the local chamber of commerce, was picked in jail for several hours but was released when an investigation revealed the shooting was accidental.

“FORT FIZZLE” STILL STANDS

MILLERSBURG, Ohio, Jan. 2.—(A.P.)—An old crumbling stone building, known as “Fort Fizzle,” still stands in a wilderness surrounded by seven high hills here. Early in the Civil War a band of settlers told the government to make their home in the army and fortify the hilltop building. Opposed to the secessionists, however, when a considerable armed force approached at the “fort.”

ties, but made no report on its profits.

The mass of statistics disclosed also that banks all over the country which participated in selling the bonds made large aggregate profits.

Statistics on this phase of the situation were not complete, but the National City's figures showed that the total profits for all banks concerned on issues it originated, amounting to $1,071,055,000, were $77,560,343.

Altogether this company participated in selling $5,626,912,000 in securities. If the same ratio of profit was made on the entire amount, then, American banks would profit by about $200,000,000.

Many of the figures filed by the three companies overlapped, because they participated jointly in some of the issues. But the three houses originated a total of $3,955,838,000 of securities, in addition to those in which they acted jointly.

The National City company originated $489,285,000 of Cuban and Canadian issues at a net profit of $3,487,204, and $1,071,055,000 of other foreign securities at a profit of $11,363,501.

It participated in the sale of $795,295,000 of additional Canadian and Cuban issues at a profit of $777,304 and of $3,200,407,000 other foreign securities at a gross profit of $11,363,501.

Kuhn, Loeb & Co. managed issues totalling $577,750,000 with a gross profit of $31,100,811 and participated in others amounting to $580,430,000 at a gross gain of $11,17,584.
