Zoo welcomes Hanna, guests

SANFORD — The director of the Columbus Zoo visited the Central Florida Zoological Park Saturday, accompanied by some very special friends.

Jack Hanna, the first director of Sanford's zoo, spoke to about 450 people between 10 and 11 a.m. yesterday. Lisa Nason, visitor services manager said.

The animals, including a snow leopard and a lynx kitten, hung around until noon for photos. Hanna was also accompanied by several zoo keepers from Columbus.

"Visitors were permitted to pet and touch the lynx cub," Nason said.

Hanna, who often appears on "Late Night With David Letterman" and "Good Morning America," was in town to attend the annual "Black Tie on the Wild Side," the Central Florida Zoo fundraiser for conservation projects.

Nason said Hanna paid a special birthday visit to the zoo's elephant, Maude, who turned 18.

"She wrapped her trunk around him," Nason said.

All-year school starts

Open house set Aug. 7

By NICK PFENAUER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Year-round school sessions will begin Monday at three Seminole County elementary schools: Goldboro Elementary in Sanford, Geneva Elementary in Geneva and Lawton Elementary in Oviedo.

For Goldboro and Lawton, students have been assigned to groups designated by colors, called "tracks". Five of the six tracks begin school tomorrow. These include groups labeled as green, yellow, red and purple.

Initially, students will be attending classes for a limited number of weeks, after which they will have three weeks of vacation.

Goldboro principal Geraldine Wright explained: "The yellow track will start on July 20 and be in class for nine weeks before their first vacation. Some of the other tracks will get their first break on Oct. 10."

Students assigned to the orange track will not start school until Aug. 10 at these two schools.

Lawton is starting its second year of year round schooling on July 20.

At Geneva, students are in only one group which will continue classes until Oct. 9, after which they

Better check bus schedule

By VICKI DeSORMIER

SANFORD — Students who take the bus to school and think they know where to meet the bus on the first day of school, better check.

With the elimination of the majority of the district's courtesy bus routes, there have been many changes in the routes all across the district, including routes for year-round school that begins Monday, said Jerry Klein, director of transportation for the Seminole County school district.

"In addition to the loss of most of the courtesy bus routes," Klein said, "other routes have been combined and moved to new locations."

About half the 50,000 students in school district ride a bus to school.

Klein added that, despite a great deal of publicity surrounding the courtesy bus routes, many people are unaware that their routes have been eliminated.

"Not everyone is aware of the changes that have taken place," he noted.

Many courtesy bus routes have been in place so long, that the riders of those buses were not even aware that they were set for elimination under the courtesy bus guidelines.

A good Sunday morning to you! Instead of me telling you about things you might not know, how about you telling me some things I don't know.

For example, I'm told there was a place called Lincoln House located at First Street and Elm Avenue. I've dug up everything I know about that area but can't put my finger on a Lincoln House. I do recall there was a hotel or rooming house at that intersection at one time called The Palma. It was torn down sometime in the mid 1950s.

And there's another establishment I can't get any information about. I'm told there was a drugstore in Sanford at one time called Newberry's. I do know it was in Sanford in 1922. If you know anything about a Newberry's drugstore, give me a call.

There was an eating establishment I can't get any information about. It was the Welaka Dining Room. I'm not sure if it was in the Welaka building as we know it today or not.

And, I've got another question for you old timers. At one time there See Stenstrom, Page 5A

Ruling disappoints Gardner

From Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — State Sen. Winston W. "Bud" Gardner, the Titusville Democrat who represents Seminole County, says he is disappointed that the state Ethics Commission has concluded he probably broke the law and denied again any wrongdoing.

Gardner, who has announced that he will not seek re-election, and two former state lawmakers probably broke the law when they went on lobbyist-paid trips, the Florida Ethics Commission concluded on Friday.

State law bans lawmakers and other officials from accepting anything of value in exchange for a "vote or other action."

The Ethics Commission voted Friday that there was "probable cause" in allegations against state Gardner, who chaired the Senate Appropriations Committee, and former Republican state Reps. Dale Patchett of Vero Beach and Frank Messersmith of Lake Worth.

fishing trip with several other lawmakers and lobbyists in May 1988. Patchett and Messersmith went on Georgia hunting trips with lobbyists in 1987 and 1988.

The next step in the process is for a state administrative hearing officer to hold public hearings and then make a recommendation to the Ethics Commission.

The complaint against Messersmith and Patchett, now a top official with the state Department of Natural Resources, was filed by Paul Harvill, a Tallahassee resident.

"What the Ethics Commission did was the right thing," Harvill told reporters after the closed-door meeting.

Gardner and lawyers for the two former lawmakers said they were disappointed with the decision.

Gardner and Mark Herron, Patchett's lawyer, said they had hoped the commission would have waited until a pending court challenge to the law is settled.

The lawsuit, pending in Leon County Circuit Court and filed on Patchett's behalf, argues the law is unconstitutional because it doesn't sufficiently alert lawmakers to what would be a violation.

Gardner also said the decision wasn't fair since the Key West trip seemed to him the equivalent of the See Gardner, Page 5A

Democrats: Clinton can win Florida

By GARY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

NEW YORK — Democrats say presidential nominee Bill Clinton can wrest Florida from the Republicans if he's willing to actually mount a serious campaign there, something Michael Dukakis didn't do in 1988.

Jimmy Carter's 1976 victory for the Democrats stands alone in the last 25 years in Florida, and party elders acknowledge they face an uphill fight again this year to take Florida from President Bush.

But at least Clinton plans to put up a struggle, said Lt. Gov. Buddy MacKay.

"It's an outside shot, but it's an excellent outside shot," said MacKay, the Clinton campaign chairman in Florida. "We're not the odds-on favorite at all. But I think we've got our act together."

Sex complaints cause license restriction

TAMPA — An acupuncturist faces possible loss of his license following a state regulatory investigation into patient complaints of sexual misconduct.

One alleged Robert C. Yang tried to sexually assault her while she was temporarily immobilized with needles in her back and neck, another said she was given vaginal exams when she sought treatment for back pain, and others described fondling incidents, according to complaints filed with the state Department of Professional Regulation.

The agency concluded Yang had improper sexual contact with six patients and restricted his license until a hearing is scheduled to suspend, revoke or limit his license.

The DPR ruling said Yang's "continued practice of acupuncture constitutes an immediate and serious danger to the health, safety and welfare of the public."

Yang, who operates clinics in Port Richey, Tampa, St. Petersburg, Clearwater, Bradenton and Sarasota, must have a licensed woman health care worker in the room with him while he examines or treats female patients, DPR said.

Judge wants trial moved again

MIAMI — The chief judge in Tallahassee doesn't want to host the manslaughter retrial of a Miami police officer whose shooting of a black motorcyclist triggered three nights of rioting.

The chief judges in both cities and the trial judge have refused to release the letter about the case of William Lozano.

But a prepared statement from Dade Chief Judge Leonard Rivkind said, "I can safely say that Chief Judge William Gary prefers that the Lozano trial be assigned to another circuit other than Tallahassee."

Gary said he would be willing to host the trial under an order from the state Supreme Court, Rivkind said.

Attorneys on both sides said they were unaware of the letter and declined comment.

Dade Circuit Judge W. Thomas Spencer moved the trial first to Orlando but changed his mind after the Los Angeles riots and switched it to Tallahassee, citing the potential for seating more black jurors in a city with a larger black population.

Lozano, who is Colombian-American, is charged with two counts of manslaughter in the deaths of two black men in January 1989.

Quayle urges GOP: Woo Perot's people

TAMPA — As Vice President Dan Quayle campaigned in Florida urging Republicans to woo Ross Perot supporters to the fold, he was pressed to defend his own place with the GOP.

"I'm going to be with George Bush in '92 just like I was with him in '88," Quayle told a television audience on a live talk show Friday night.

Despite critics who would like to see him ousted, he said he was confident his spot on the ticket with President Bush was firm.

"There has never been any hesitation, any doubts, in his mind or my mind. The president has spoken to this subject a number of times," Quayle said during WTVT's "Eye on Tampa Bay."

At an earlier news conference during his five-hour visit, he was asked whether there were discussions at the White House about the president dropping him.

"That's not true. You'll have to ask someone else that question," he replied. "It was not discussed by the President."

In Tampa, the last stop on a three-state campaign swing, Quayle also made a surprise visit to a shopping mall and met with GOP and anti-abortion leaders urging them to recruit Perot followers.

NEWS FROM THE REGION AND ACROSS THE STATE

Big mortgage refunds due

Associated Press

MIAMI LAKES — One of the nation's largest mortgage companies has agreed to refund excess escrow payments to homeowners in a multimillion-dollar lawsuit settlement.

The case against J.I. Kialak Mortgage Corp. is one of dozens of class-action lawsuits filed over non-interest bearing escrow funds paid to lenders for property taxes, mortgage insurance and other expenses.

A 1990 study by seven states concluded lenders systematically broke laws for more than a decade by requiring homeowners to keep a huge cushion of excess money in escrow accounts. An estimate this year by New York Attorney General Robert Abrams placed the excess holdings at $2 billion to $4 billion.

"Escrow accounts are the hot topic for the mortgage industry right now," said Robert Pratte, a Minneapolis lawyer representing

-Richard McCracken, lawyer

Kialak and 16 other companies with pending escrow lawsuits.

Kialak's refunds could run into the tens of millions of dollars, he said.

"There are a lot of mortgage financiers out there and escrow accounts are big favorites," said Richard McCracken, lawyer for one of Kialak's customers. "A great deal of money is involved."

Notices of the settlement and some refund checks already are in the mail to Kialak borrowers. A California judge still must give formal approval to the plan.

In the lawsuit, a California man and Minnesota couple charged the company broke federal and state laws by keeping leftover money.

Anywhere from a few dollars to $3,000 was held back, and Kialak kept the money if customers didn't specifically ask for it at the end of the year by filling out a card from the company, attorneys charged.

The leftover money "was not applied against anything — not the principal, not the interest and not the escrow for the following year," McCracken said.

Kialak admits no violation of law in the settlement. But the company agrees to automatically refund surplus money in the future and will credit accounts with 4 percent interest dating to 1989 on past excess escrow amounts.

Kialak operates loan offices in Florida, New Jersey, Illinois and California. The company is one of the nation's largest loan servicers, handling customer billing and payments for $8.5 billion in mortgages.

FP&L plans more coal use and some officials worried

Associated Press

STUART — Regional planners worried about Florida Power & Light's plans to increase reliance on coal-powered plants want plans for the next 10 years to incorporate more conservation and clean energy programs.

Members of the four-county Treasure Coast Regional Planning Council have voted to rewrite and tighten a staff report on FPL's plans to meet electrical power needs for the next 10 years.

"Frankly, the plan alarms us," said Martin County Commissioner Mary Dawson. "We all agree that the rules need to be changed."

FPL expects electrical demand to increase 2 percent a year but doesn't plan to build any new plants.

Instead, the state's largest utility, which serves portions of Seminole County, plans to expand fossil-fuel burning plants in Broward and Martin counties and buy power from private companies and out of state.

FPL would buy excess power from two co-generation plants proposed in Palm Beach County, Sugar cane waste and tree trimmings would be the prime sources of fuel, but coal and oil also could be burned.

Power also would come from three coal plants: AES Cedar Bay under construction in Jacksonville, a proposed Cypress Energy Partners plant in Okeechobee County and the Southern Co. power plant in Georgia.

The council also wants to see the utility planning to build several nuclear plants in the region and coal and gasifier plants such as trash-burning incinerators.

Coal and other fossil fuels produce sulfur dioxide, a pollutant blamed as a contributing factor in acid rain.

Council members said they want the staff report to emphasize the need for financial incentives to promote utility conservation, solar energy and other alternatives.

The attitude was welcomed by environmentalist Ron Durando, who called the conservation awareness "a minor victory."

Dan Cary, director of the planning council covering Palm Beach, Martin, St. Lucie and Indian River counties, wants to get other regional councils to take their ideas about FPL's plans to the state Public Service Commission.

The utility operates eight conservation programs expected to reduce generating needs by 600 megawatts by the year 2001 — nearly the capacity of its fossil-fueled Riviera Beach plant. The utility also is building the state's largest solar cell test plant in Martin County.

AIDS work endangered by trouble

Associated Press

TAMPA — A Tampa hospital picked to take part in an experimental AIDS vaccine program for HIV-infected people ran into transportation trouble that endangered its participation in the project.

The federal research program set to begin July 28 requires blood to be drawn at St. Joseph's Hospital from HIV-infected volunteers and flown immediately to the virology lab at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center in Washington.

Blood samples drawn in the morning at the hospital must reach the lab by 6 p.m., said J. B. Loveland, research coordinator at Walter Reed.

USAir and Delta offer flights that could get samples to Washington National Airport on time.

But USAir "flatly refuses" to transport the samples on its non-stop flights, said Vicki Kenyon, nurse manager at St. Joseph's Infectious Disease Research Institute.

"USAir's policy is they do not carry any type of hazardous material like that," Agnes Huff, USAir spokeswoman in Los Angeles, said Friday.

Meanwhile, Delta Air Lines cargo supervisor in Tampa assured Ms. Kenyon on Friday that the blood samples could be flown to Washington with a change of planes in Atlanta to meet the study deadline.

But since pilots have the last word on what goes on a plane, even in the cargo hold, Delta could not give any guarantees, said spokesman Clay McConnell.

"It's a very frustrating. We have to prove we could get blood there in time, and it's not going to be easy if some airlines refuse to ship it," Ms. Kenyon said.

The Federal Aviation Administration imposes no restrictions on shipping HIV blood samples other than certain packaging and labeling requirements. Federal regulations call for packaging in a double-walled container with absorbent materials to prevent leakage.

A sample run on Delta is set for July 28, Ms. Kenyon said. If all goes well, Tampa can join the project.

Couple serves as example of overlooked victims of abuse

By BETH DUFF-BROWN

CLEWISTON — Bene and Bernice Rovira spent the past three of their golden years trying to survive a "living hell" for which their years as missionaries in Cuba had not prepared them.

With the help of observant neighbors, the couple who've been married for 51 years finally got away from the control of neighbors who face criminal charges for frightening the Roviras into submission, nearly starving them and stealing an estimated $30,000 from them.

"They are cruel people, and now they've got to face themselves," said Rovira, 77, a Cuban-born retired missionary, writer and radio host. "The Bible says, forgive and forget. But the Bible says eye for an eye, too. I want to see those people in jail for the rest of their lives."

It's unlikely Robert Lanman, 62, and his wife, Rosemary, 60, will spend any time in jail. They were charged last month with one count of grand theft, a second-degree felony, and one count of elder abuse, a first-degree misdemeanor. Both have clean records, however, so they'll probably be sentenced to probation instead of the sentencing guideline of up to one year in a county jail, said the Roviras' prosecutor, Tony Young.

The Lanmans were released from the Okeechobee County Jail on $20,000 bond while awaiting trial, set for Sept. 9. Their attorney, Albert Moore, did not return telephone calls to his office.

The state attorney's office claims the couple fed the Roviras' nothing but fast-food hamburgers for three years in the small Central Florida town of Okeechobee. A broken water heater flooded and rotted the floors, leaving open beams for Mrs. Rovira, nearly blinded by cataracts, to balance on to get from room to room.

Rovira weighed only 117 pounds and was suffering from a liver ailment when state health workers were led to them by a concerned neighbor, Mrs. Rovira, 93, weighed 78 pounds.

The Lanmans allegedly controlled the Roviras by telling them that their other neighbors in the Town and Country mobile home park hated them and would harm them if they went outside.

Mrs. Lanman admitted she and her husband took most of the Roviras' money, but she said the couple insisted on paying them for taking out the garbage and getting them food.

P&Z OKs Sanford businesses

By WOK PFEFAUF

SANFORD — The Planning and Zoning Commission had no problems approving two new businesses wishing to locate in Sanford. Both conditional use requests were passed during Thursday night's P&Z meeting.

One facility is a distribution center and warehouse for Hudson Furniture of Ormond Beach. P&Z approved a permit to put up a 24,000 square foot building on 1.5 acres of land at 3310 W. 1st Street, approximately 1,300 feet west of Rand Yard Road.

According to Hudson's agent Dean Downs, "Hudson Furniture is planning to build a new retail sales operation on Highway 436 in Altamonte Springs, and the Sanford area would be the logical place for a storage warehouse to serve both of the stores."

Downs added, "Eventually, Mr. Hudson may also use the Sanford facility as a third retail store, but that's something planned for the future. Right now, we just need storage space."

The second approval was for Automatic Cable Corp. ACC had requested a permit to establish a business for light manufacturing and assembly of cables and harnesses for computer and other electronic related equipment.

The property, 41,818 square feet, is located at 2895 South French Avenue, behind ABC Liquors. At the present time the property contains a building of approximately 7,000 square feet, which ACC President Gary Martinet indicated would be ample for the operation, which would be moving to Sanford from its present location at 135 Mingo Trail, Longwood.

Sanford City Planner Jay Marder had recommended approval of each of the requests.

County rejects Dog Track Road project

By J. MARK BARFIELD

LONGWOOD — Seminole County commissioners have decided that week the $5.4 million to $10.8 million additional cost to realign Dog Track Road to meet Charlotte Street was too much and voted to spend only $1.6 million to widen Dog Track Road to four lanes.

A study by county road consultants Glace and Radcliffe Inc., Maitland, showed that more than 57 percent of the eastbound Charlotte Street traffic turns left on County Road 427, then drives 800 feet north to Dog Track Road to continue east. About the same amount of westbound traffic on Dog Track Road turns onto Charlotte Street.

Last year, an average of 15,017 autos used the road each day, according to county traffic studies. By the end of this year, the amount of traffic is expected to climb to 18,069. In two years, when construction is expected to begin, the traffic is expected to reach 24,800 daily.

The consultant's study stated between one and three businesses would have to be razed to accommodate the twists in the streets to create the new intersection. As a result, the land and business damage expenses would range from $5.4 million to $10.8 million.

So How Do I Pay For It?

What a great idea! It'll brighten up the entire hallway. I love the shape. And it'll be easy to put in. The only real question is, how do I pay for it!

It seems I spend all of my time in the kitchen. So I decided to make it the best room in the house. Now how do I pay for it!

I can picture it now... Hardwood floors. Recessed lighting. Maybe even a stone fireplace! It'll be a great room. Now how do I pay for it!

It's amazing how fast they've grown. Maybe it's time to add another bathroom. The kids will love it. And we could use the privacy. Yeah, that would be nice. Now how do I pay for it!

The living area can be blue. The kitchen, a warm peach. And the exterior! Definitely pearl gray with white shutters. It'll look great inside and out. Now how do I pay for it!

MIA in D.C.

How much was the Pentagon hiding when military officials declared after "Operation Homecoming" in 1973 that all living American prisoners of war in Southeast Asia had been repatriated? How much has it been hiding since?

Even as those assurances were being made, U.S. officials had the names of 51 servicemen who were listed as captured but never came home. Sen. John Kerry, who heads the Senate select committee looking into POW-MIA affairs, says that perhaps as many as 80 American soldiers may have been left behind.

That's not to say that any of these men are alive today. There is no credible evidence for that. A total of 21,266 U.S. military personnel involved in the Vietnam conflict are still unaccounted for. Given the confusion and stresses of war, their fates may never be known.

But that doesn't eliminate the troubling questions about how the issue has been handled. Some Americans who disappeared were participating in covert operations in Laos and Cambodia, countries with which we were not officially at war.

Recently declassified documents show that relatives of soldiers and airmen who disappeared in those two countries were given false information about the circumstances of those losses. That may have been defensible, if not justifiable, at the time. But to continue the dissimulation two decades after the end of the war is shameful.

What makes it doubly shameful is that it has generated no end of false reports and false hopes about "sightings" and, behind it, a cottage industry of adventurers selling pictures and promoting rescue missions to find people still allegedly held in Vietnam or Laos, despite the lack of real evidence that any are there. The fact that Rosa Perot has turned it into a political issue makes candor all the more urgent.

New openings have developed to the regimes with which we were once at war. The U.S. government has an opportunity now to get as full an accounting of missing American soldiers, sailors and airmen as can be achieved.

It also has an obligation to disclose how and why the story has been covered up so long. Those who served and the families who still wait for answers deserve no less.

Sanford police deserve praise

After hearing and reading a number of derogatory comments about the Sanford Police Department, I felt I had to write and give an account of my first experience with them.

Two weeks ago my van stalled at a busy intersection in Sanford. I was frantic and embarrassed when it wouldn't restart. Within minutes Officer Ricky Cummings arrived on his motorcycle and immediately took steps to arrange for a tow truck and, more importantly, put me at ease. A short time later, Lt. Doug Bishop came and between them they moved the vehicle off of the street until the tow truck came. Their consideration and professionalism was of the utmost.

Should I ever require the services of a policeman again, it gives me great comfort to know that there are people like Officers Cummings and Bishop in the police department serving us.

Taxes: past, present, future

Remember last year when all our politicians insisted we have more taxes, new taxes, fees, charges, new revenues of all sorts, just to continue basic services?

Now this year, strangely, there is little action toward new taxes; maybe even property taxes will remain even.

Folks, this is an election year and those incumbents and candidates know they can't pick our pockets while we poke their names into the ballot box.

But...this time next year they will be settled into those cushy jobs from which only the governor can suspend them. Will we get the double whammy then? You betcha! Best we meet the candidates now, question them now, and vote accordingly!

What's in a plan?

Commissioner Pat Warren recently told a Chuluota crowd (in a church) she "believes it's in God's plan" for her to run again. Well, Pat dear, you may believe that, but I don't believe necessarily that it's in God's plan that you be re-elected. Rather, God's plan may be that we are to vote you out of office in order that our resources and lifestyle will not be destroyed by your repeated efforts to protect development interests. Did you really think the people of Chuluota are stupid enough to fall for your line...it's in God's plan?"

Local teacher granted fellowship

Art Woodruff, physics teacher at Seminole High School, is one of 15 teachers from across the nation attending a workshop at Arizona State University. Woodruff is the recipient of a fellowship for this program funded by the National Science Foundation and will be in Arizona for five weeks.

The paradigm for the workshop was developed by Dr. David Hestenes, Arizona State University and Dr. Malcolm Wells, Marcos DeNicattis. The first group of teachers to be involved in these workshops participated last year. The salient premise is based on the constructivist theory of learning. In essence, students do not learn from being told, but by constructing their own knowledge. Each person does it differently. The role of the teacher is to guide students through the activities and questions that will allow them to construct their own knowledge.

Teachers involved in the workshop will examine the curriculum and develop skills necessary for teaching using the constructivist methods. Students in physics laboratories will be taught the basic principles of physics by building their own models.

Woodruff's father, Jack, indicated that Art is a teacher by happenstance. When Art Woodruff graduated from the University of North Carolina in the fall of 1984, it had been anticipated that he would attend medical school. However, in January 1985, he became a substitute teacher at Lake Brantley and in the fall of that year, was appointed to Seminole High School.

Woodruff was born in Sanford. He attended Sanford Middle School and was graduated from Seminole High School. Consequently, Seminole High School and the students attending the school are very, very special to Woodruff.

Woodruff was excited about this opportunity to acquire additional knowledge to impart to his students. His principal, Gretchen Schapker, indicated that Woodruff had spent many hours of his own time ordering equipment and planning for their new $60,000 applied physics laboratory at Seminole High School.

Woodruff advised that only 10-20 percent of current students have enrolled in Physics class and the projection is that within two years 90 percent of the students will be enrolled.

Schapker advised that Woodruff will be teaching a Principles of Technology course in consonance with their Technical Preparation program. The technical prep program was developed by a technical prep consortium sponsored by the State Department of Education. This was done because research reveals that the fastest growing occupations in the nation are technicians and technical support workers. The prognosis is that these areas will experience a 32 percent growth spurt by the year 2000. Among the 10 fastest growing technical jobs, seven will be health related and will require technical training. Eighty percent of the occupations listed in the job related almanac will require post secondary training. Seminole High School's new curriculum will prepare students with skills for the job market and post secondary pursuits.

Central Florida Regional Hospital is co-authoring a Partners in Excellence grant that will significantly impact Seminole High School's Health Technology Careers program. Central Florida Regional Hospital and the Department of Education will supply funding for technical equipment.

Woodruff is a product of Seminole County's public schools who has remained in his community and made positive contributions. Woodruff sponsors the yearbook at Seminole High School. At his church, First Presbyterian Sanford, he is the fifth generation to attend the church.

Generational politics to the hilt

BOSTON — So much for the idea that geography is destiny. The old ironclad rule that a political ticket ought to look like a Triptik for a party that travels north to south, east to west, was just torn into as many pieces as a used airline stub.

When Bill Clinton picked Al Gore for the second spot, he barely stretched from one Southern state to another. It's not a lot of frequent-flier miles from Hope, Ark., to Carthage, Tenn.

By the traditional political map, the Tennessee ticket looks lopsided. We not only have two white guys, mid-40s and middle-of-the-road, but they were raised in two towns where as Gore said, "people know about it when you're born and care about it when you die." A hub if there ever was one.

In many ways tough, this choice says something about the changing American reality. America is less divided by place than ever before.

We may still use geographic terms as if they had philosophical meaning. We may talk about the West, the South, the Midwest, the Northeast as if they were distinct nationalities. But we rarely even consider geography when we think about diversity.

Regionalism has gone the way of the local accent. In the older generation, Howell Heflin of Alabama was the Southern standard. Cabdrivers spoke linguistically pure Brooklyn-ese. By comparison, today's accents carry a hint of origin and the spice of local color. But we rarely have trouble understanding each other.

People may root for the hometown boy, but they find it as hard to identify their hometowns as George Bush does. The average American moves 12 times in a lifetime. We reach out and touch our parents or kids by telephone. The most popular family policy in America this summer is the bargain air fares.

In Garry Wills' new book "Lincoln at Gettysburg" he says that the Civil War president deliberately encouraged citizens to think of the United States as a singular, not a plural name. People used to say the United States are, now they say the United States is. It took awhile but it worked.

Today the Electoral College counts us as residents of a state but in presidential elections we vote as individual Americans. Today each region has its own weather, history, traditions, establishment. But we are more likely to divide by class, age, race, zip code and "lifestyle enclave" than by map.

We think of the country like merchants do.

Spangles sell in Dallas and black dresses are hot in Manhattan. But there are T-shirts and jeans in every mall in America.

The Democrats in essence are going for the T-shirts. If not The Gap market, the generation gap market. This flat-out baby boom ticket is generational politics to the hilt.

As Gore said, "That time has come again — the time for a new generation of leaders." In fact the old regionalism has been replaced by a lingering civil war over values with baby boom roots in arguments over Vietnam, over drugs, over gender roles. The baby boom generation has been fractured by its own internal divisions which have kept the best and the brightest of them out of power.

What this team lacks in geographical balance it may make up for in a kind of intra-generational balance. Al Gore, the son of a senator, and Bill Clinton, maybe the last candidate to grow up with what he genteelly calls outdoor plumbing, both ran up against the issues of their generation.

One fought in Vietnam; one didn't. One inhaled; one didn't. Indeed their wives provide a truly balanced ticket of gender roles. Tipper was mercilessly trashed by the left for proposing that records carry a label like the movies. Hillary was trashed by the right for stepping on a land mine in the mommy wars.

If these two couples travel these rocky trails and end up a team, it's not a bad sign. The distance this generation has to cross to common ground may be getting shorter.

Carthage to Hope, Hope to Carthage. This was the easy leg of the trip. The only geography that counts now is finding a way to Washington.

The Democrats in essence are going for the T-shirts.

Gingrich has tough battle on home turf

COBB COUNTY, Ga. — Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., once said he had "an enormous personal ambition" to "shift the entire planet." He added, "I'm doing it." He has also called himself a "revolutionary" and a "romantic."

Political stargazing is something Gingrich has little time for these days. His cosmic agenda has yielded to constituent service — sometimes even to Gingrich's embarrassment.

Gingrich's campaign headquarters recently heard that a federal office was moving from downtown Atlanta to the suburbs, and assumed it would be located in his new district, which stretches mostly through Cobb County. Gingrich fired off a press release to cash in politically for delivering the pork.

"I am happy to let Cobb Countians know that the new government printing office facility will be located at One Park Place in Marietta," Gingrich stated in the release.

The only problem was that his campaign workers mixed up the address. There is no One Park Place in either Marietta or Cobb County. In fact, the new office will be located at Two Park Place — several miles outside Gingrich's district.

As this anecdote illustrates, this has been a mean season for the No. 2 House Republican, one rich in irony as he limps toward a July 21 primary shoot-out.

After years of targeting the government trough, Gingrich is now touting his access to it. After delivering scalding criticism of President Bush, Gingrich's main selling point back home has been his access to the White House. And after spending the better part of a decade fomenting revolution, Gingrich now finds the barbarians at his own gate.

His challenger for the GOP nomination in the redrawn 6th district is local lawyer Herman Clark, who is out-Newting Newt by inciting voters over Gingrich's 22 bounced checks and the $67,000 a year chauffeured limousine he had until recently. Since Clark is a conservative Republican, he is bullet-proof to the hail of charges Democrats hear regularly regarding how "inner-city mayors" and "neo-socialist Democrats" are destroying the country.

"Never in Mr. Gingrich's wildest dreams did he figure that he'd be in a race like this," says Clark.

To beat back his challenge — which comes two years after Gingrich eked out re-election in a familiar district by fewer than 1,000 votes — Gingrich appears to be practicing what his old nemesis, Tip O'Neil, preached: All politics is local.

Consider Gingrich's recent appearance before the local headquarters of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers in Marietta, Ga.

Even the grizzled union activists — who could be the swing votes in this Republican stronghold — gave Gingrich points for having the guts to show up one recent Saturday morning. Gingrich has never been forgiven for supporting President Bush in opposition to federal arbitration between Eastern Airlines and striking workers in 1989. Although long-standing custom bars press from the union's meetings with political candidates, our associates Ed Henry and Andrew Conte were present during Gingrich's remarks.

"Fine, vote against me if you want to," Gingrich told the unionists at one point during the stormy session. "But I repeat, you need to understand whose job is at stake."

It was a veiled threat from an increasingly desperate incumbent directed at these workers who are already jittery over defense contracts.

This has been a mean season for the No. 2 House Republican.

Flotilla of Cuban exiles sails off Havana to protest Castro

KEY WEST — Twenty-five boats carrying Cuban exiles motored to waters just off Havana on Saturday in a protest against Fidel Castro's communist rule.

Organizers of the "Cuban Freedom Flotilla" held a 1 p.m. religious ceremony about 13 miles off Havana — staying just outside Cuban waters — and tossed a Cuban flag made of flowers, as well as wooden crosses into the sea.

"That close and so far," said Eugenio Rolando Martinez when he saw the Havana skyline. The 70-year-old former Watergate burglar, who was pardoned by President Reagan in 1983 and now sells cars in Miami's Little Havana neighborhood, added, "We are divided by just one man."

"This is to show these people over there in Cuba that we have not forgotten," said Alberto Beguiristain, 60, of Miami.

Two exiles also boarded a symbolic raft made of innertubes and burlap, the way many Cubans have fled their country.

The boats used by the exiles Saturday ranged from single-engine outboard speed boats to 50-foot commercial fishing vessels.

No Cuban navy boats were spotted.

The purpose of the flotilla "is to show support of the Cuban people and send a message of hope and solidarity with them," said Alex Rodriguez of the Association of Veterans of Special Missions, a 30-year-old group of former Cuban freedom fighters.

Rodriguez said the flotilla honored Cubans who have died fighting for democracy in Cuba or drowned trying to make the 90-mile crossing from Cuba to Florida.

The boats left Key West, the southernmost city in the continental United States, just before dawn and planned to return around sunset.

Meanwhile, the Coast Guard reported Saturday that 49 Cubans fleeing their homeland on rafts and boats had been picked up in four separate incidents since Friday night. They were turned over to Immigration and Naturalization Service officials.

The Florida Straits were calm Saturday with swells of 2 to 4 feet, but the area is prone to dangerous currents and sudden storms. Coast Guard jets and cutters on routine patrol were prepared to help if any of the boats had trouble, said Lt. Cmdr. Jim Howe.

However, Howe warned flotilla organizers they were on their own if they drifted into hostile territory.

"We told people, 'If you get in Cuban waters, odds are it won't be the Coast Guard that helps you out,'" Howe said.

The Coast Guard's rescue of a leaking boat inside Cuban waters two weeks ago was an exception, Howe said. Four men who turned out to be armed anti-Castro militants later claimed they exchanged gunfire with a Cuban vessel while trying to flee.

The FBI is investigating to determine if those on board, including former Black Panther member and airline hijacker Tony Bryant, violated the U.S. Neutrality Act.

A similar flotilla on May 20, 1990, attracted 58 boats.

Famous mouse house invaded by mice

Associated Press

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. — Orange County, home of world-famous Mickey Mouse, is being overrun by less loved mice in what experts call the worst infestation in a decade.

"I thought the stories were exaggerated, but then I checked into it. They're coming into people's homes, literally by the hundreds," said Dan Fox, president of Animal Pest Management Services Inc. in Chino.

Fifteen miles south of Disneyland, new tract homes in the affluent communities of San Clemente, San Juan Capistrano and Laguna Niguel have been overwhelmed by thousands, perhaps millions, of rodents.

"They are just conquering us," said Jeannie Fuller, a sales coordinator for Mission Pest Control in south Orange County.

"One lady said she caught 30 in jars today. They were too small to trigger the traps," said David Perez, a clerk at Ace Hardware in San Clemente. "One lady said they're running all over her carpets. One said they were in her baby's crib. I'm telling you, it's crazy."

San Clemente city leaders confessed that they were no Pied Pipers when residents demanded action last week. "I've caught two dozen in my own home in the last two weeks," said City Manager Mike Parness.

The most likely reason for the proliferation of rodents is the abundant food supply after this year's drought-busting rains set the foothills flush with fields of new shoots and seeds for the first time in five years.

Now that the food supply has dried up in the summer heat, hordes of young rodents are rushing into houses for meals.

The best advice for homeowners: Sit back and let nature take its course. The mouse life-cycle is one year, so the rodents will retreat by autumn, said Fox and Mike Chapman, an entomologist for Western Exterminators.

Otherwise, they said, homeowners can best cope by sealing windows, weatherstripping doors and vents, buying snap traps and glue boards, hiring exterminators or buying cats.

Geneva is the only school which also offers a day care operation from 6 a.m. until 6 p.m., daily, for children age 2 to 4.

Wright said, "We look at this as an excellent opportunity for students and their parents to stop in and get to meet the teachers who will be working with them for these terms."

Open house at Geneva will be held from 2 until 4 p.m. Goldboro will have their doors open from 1 until 3 p.m. and Lawton will hold open house from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m.

that everyone just go down to their zoned school and take a look at the list," Klein said. "Many of the routes are the same as they have been, but so many have changed that everyone should check it out."

Klein said "quite a few" buses which carried fewer than capacity students were combined with those on other routes in an effort to better use the resources of the district.

The lists of routes which are posted at all schools in the district are divided according to neighborhoods, Klein said. Students need to find the stop that is nearest their home on the list to determine which bus they are scheduled to ride.

"We are trying to make the best use of the school district's resources," Klein said.

value of a free visit to Walt Disney that most legislators used to take.

"If it's good for one, it should be good for all," he said.

However, the Ethics Commission doesn't have the authority to start investigations without specific complaints.

Harvill said he agreed with Gardner's point but that he did not have the time or want to take the responsibility for filing over 100 ethics complaints.

"There are over 13 million citizens in Florida and more of them need to get involved in the political process," Harvill said.

Gardner, Patchett and Messersmith were among the 24 current or former legislators charged with misdemeanors last year for failing to report tips as gifts, which was the law at the time. All pleaded no contest and paid fines.

Also Friday, the Ethics Commission dismissed a complaint filed against Chancellor Charles Reed, who runs the state university system, in connection with his acceptance of a directorship at Florida Progress Corp., the parent company of Florida Power Corp.

Reed was out of town Friday and had not yet heard of the decision, said Bill Shade, vice chancellor for public affairs. Reed has said in the past that no conflict existed in his taking the outside post.

Clinton

and then abandoned the state in a September pullout that may have cost MacKay the U.S. Senate seat won in a close recount by Republican Connie Mack.

MacKay is still bitter about it. "I thought at the time it was the most unfair thing anybody's ever done to me," he said.

Added Attorney General Bob Butterworth: "We told them, 'Don't come in here and tell us how to win elections with 22-year-old kids.'"

Bush took Florida with 61 percent of the vote. Four years earlier, Ronald Reagan did even better against Walter Mondale, getting 65 percent.

During last week's Democratic National Convention, Clinton national campaign manager David Wilhelm went out of his way to assure Floridians he'd depend on them for advice and talent.

"I know there was a lot of frustration in 1988 about the Dukakis campaign coming in and taking off," he said. "We're setting a different tone. I do not know personally how to run a campaign in Florida."

The campaign plans to have three top officials in the state — a manager, a field director and a press person — drawn from national and state ranks.

"They're going to help us across the ticket," said U.S. Sen. Bob Graham, who's running for re-election himself. "Our state is going to be a key battleground."

Now that Texas tycoon Ross Perot has decided to abort his presidential bid, Democratic strategists think they can contest Bush for the conservative Democrats and moderate Republicans that make up 40 percent of Florida's voters.

Gov. Lawton Chiles said many of those voters were considering Perot because he represented radical change compared to Bush. The trick in Florida, he said, is to sell them Clinton as the symbol of change.

Perot "got a lot of them because they turned on Bush," Chiles said. "We think that's what winning Florida is all about."

Even some Cuban-Americans might swing to the Democratic side, said state party Chairman Simon Ferro, who is Hispanic. Cuban-American voters tend to be Republicans, mainly because they believe the GOP is more virulently anti-Fidel Castro.

"A lot of Cuban-Americans were looking at Perot," Ferro said. "They're just as fed up. This year you'll see more Cuban-Americans voting Democratic."

In the 1990 governor's race, Chiles got about 19 percent of the Cuban vote in South Florida. He said that's proof they'll vote Democratic if they like the candidate.

Clinton is helped in Florida by an organization made up largely of state and local elected officials, put in place early to ensure he would win last December's state party straw poll.

Vice presidential nominee Al Gore still has contacts in the state from his 1988 bid for the White House. Both men are Southerners, like two other presidents who carried Florida: Carter and Lyndon Johnson.

"Florida's a melting pot. But when somebody moves to Florida, it doesn't take them long to regard themselves as being from the South," said Pat Tornillo, a convention delegate and teachers' union president. "That's going to go to Clinton and Gore's credit."

Because Bush has ties to Texas, Clinton must look to New York, California and Florida among the other largest states for electoral votes.

Clinton "would be a fool not to make it a high priority," MacKay said. "I have a personal commitment from his mouth to my ear, that he's going to stay in Florida."

Suber, Valdez win new terms, others face stiff competition

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — Property Appraiser Bill Suber and Tax Collector Ray Valdez will retain their office for the next four years without opposition.

Qualifying for county candidates ended at noon Friday with no opposition for either Valdez, seeking a second term, or Suber, who will serve a fourth term in office. It was the third election Suber won without opposition.

"I'm pleased," said Suber, Friday afternoon. "This kind of thing does two things to me. First, it instills confidence in me. But it is such an honor to be put in without opposition, it's very humbling."

Valdez was unavailable.

Also retained without opposition were Seminole County Judges Fred Hitt, Marlene Alve and Don Marblestone. Hitt was first elected in 1984. Marblestone and Alve were appointed to the bench earlier this year to fill vacancies on the bench.

Democrats and Republicans will have a full ticket on the Sept. 1 primary.

Most political attention has been placed on the race to replace the long-time career of John Polk who died last year. On the Republican side, Don Ealinger is seeking to retain his post as sheriff following his appointment to serve the remaining two years of Polk's term. GOP contenders are Harvey Morse, a Longwood private investigator, Larry Conniff, of Winter Springs, and Beau Taylor.

Democrats will select from Charles Fagan of Sanford and David Locker of Casselberry.

In the District 1 county commission race, Republican incumbent Pat Warren will face John Tracy in the primary. The winner will face Democrat Ray Bertrand of Sanford. A court ruling this affirmed candidates do not have to live in the district they are seeking, though they must move after their election to the office.

In District 3, being vacated this year by incumbent Fred Streetman, two Republicans are vying for the party nomination, Jerry Korman of Longwood will face Dick Van Der Weide, also of Longwood. The winner will face Democrat Ginger Bowman of Longwood.

In District 5, GOP incumbent Jennifer Kelley of Sanford will face Daryl McLain of Sanford. The winner of the Republican primary will face Fred Harden of the Wekiva River west of Sanford in November.

Republican Art Davis of Sanford did not qualify by the closing time Friday.

Davis said his plumbing contracting business was too busy to allow him to complete his signature drive this year. He said decided not to qualify this week because a portion of the fee could be used for the re-election campaign of George Bush, who he described as a "wimp."

When asked if he would support any of the District 5 candidates, Davis said "It might be interesting to see Harden and the other Volkswagon driver together and what they will do." Larry Furlong, the District 4 commissioner, frequently drives a Volkswagon "beetle."

In the District 3 School Board race, incumbent Nancy Warren will face Barry Masters of Longwood in November.

In the District 4 School Board race, Robert Kilcourse of Maitland, Donald MacCulish of Casselberry, Norris Jennings of Longwood, Bob Goff of Fern Park and Rafael Valle of Casselberry will face on Republican and Democrat ballots. Unless one candidate gets the majority of votes, the two leading survivors will face off on the general election ballot in November.

Seminole unaffected by court ruling

From Staff and Wire Reports

TALLAHASSEE — The Florida Supreme Court extended Friday's filing deadline for state legislative candidates whose districts were left in chaos by conflicting rulings from federal courts.

The state's highest court said candidates in districts 90-120 in five South Florida counties will have until Wednesday to qualify. The decision does not affect Seminole County House qualifying, which ended at noon Friday.

The state Division of Elections will let people seeking those House seats declare which district they want to run in depending on which reapportionment map is finally adopted, director Dot Joyce said.

Rulings from the U.S. Supreme Court and a panel of three federal judges left candidates unsure which of two sets of districts will be in effect on election day.

Attorney General Bob Butterworth requested the extended filing deadline after the U.S. Supreme Court granted a stay Thursday of a federal court-imposed map that Republican lawmakers favored.

That apparently restored South Florida districts that the Legislature had adopted and that House Democrats favored. But the federal judges ruled Thursday night qualifying would proceed under the Republican-backed plan.

House Democrats asked the U.S. Supreme Court on Friday to overturn that order.

Republicans led by Rep. Miguel De Grandy, R-Miami, filed a motion Friday asking the federal judges to declare the state Supreme Court powerless to act in the case, even to extend the filing deadline.

The U.S. Supreme Court's ruling had caused many lawmakers to rethink their plans, including House Commerce Chairman Art Simon, D-Miami, and Rep. Anne MacKenzie, D-Fort Lauderdale, who had called off re-election bids after the GOP map was adopted.

U.S. Circuit Judge Joseph Hatchett and U.S. District Judges William Stafford and Roger Vinson had imposed the plan to fix what Republicans said would be a voting rights violation in Dade County.

The U.S. Justice Department, Republicans and minority groups said in an appeal that the Legislature's map had too few Hispanic seats.

The GOP plan, altering lines in state House districts 90 through 120 in Dade, Broward, Palm Beach, Collier and Monroe counties, raised the number of Hispanic seats from nine to 11.

Pay local calls by the minute?

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — Southern Bell asked state regulators for permission to charge customers a per-minute rate for local calls, a plan called "measured service" and opposed by consumer advocates.

Southern Bell has 3.8 million customers along Florida's east coast from Jacksonville to Key West, in the western Panhandle and in parts of Central Florida.

Consumer advocates say measured service is controversial because it makes local service just like long-distance. Every call costs something.

But Spero Canton, a spokesman for Southern Bell, emphasized Friday that the new rate plan would be an optional one for customers, who could elect to keep their current rates.

Those who select the new option would get a $3 credit on their residential bill, but they would be charged "message units" — 2 cents a minute within a limited local calling area and 8 cents a minute within the expanded area of up to 40 miles, an area now considered a long-distance call.

Residential customers would pay no more than $10 a month for this service and businesses would pay no more than $30 a month, Canton said. Other discounts could be offered for a flat fee.

"This plan gives you more control over your phone," Canton said. "Let's say someone makes a lot of calls within the expanded local calling area. They are now spending a lot on long-distance and they would save money."

For example, he said someone who makes a three-minute call from Fort Lauderdale to Miami now pays 57 cents. Someone who lives in Lake Worth who wants to call Boca Raton would now pay 42 cents for three minutes.

Both would pay 24 cents under the new plan.

Although Southern Bell may say consumers have more control over their phone bills, Jack Shreve, a state official who represents consumers before state utility regulators, was skeptical.

"They call it optional, but it doesn't stay optional," he said. "Southern Bell is likely to shift the cost to the flat rate, and soon the flat rate is prohibitive."

The proposal is included in a $60.8 million rate-reduction plan that Southern Bell has just filed with the Public Service Commission. It includes $47.5 million that the state regulating board had ordered Southern Bell to refund to consumers because of prior overcharges.

Shreve criticized the rate-reduction proposal, which he said really amounts to only $13.3 million when the mandatory rebates are deducted. Shreve says the utility could afford to refund $100 million.

Southern Bell customers now receive a monthly credit on their bills to compensate for the overcharges. Bell's proposal would remove that credit and actually result in a slight rate increase for basic service.

State regulators have not reviewed the details of the proposal. Neither has Shreve. If the rate-reduction plan is approved, it would become effective next year.

Air traffic control boosted

WASHINGTON — Retired Air Force Gen. Thomas C. Richards, the new chief of the Federal Aviation Administration, says he's committed to modernizing the nation's air traffic control system.

Richards, who was sworn in Friday, said the FAA must be "future-directed" to cope with increasing congestion.

"Between now and the early years of the next century, this agency will literally have to reinvent itself through technological innovation on a scale perhaps unprecedented in our nation's history," Richards said.

But he also noted criticism from Capitol Hill and elsewhere that the effort to modernize air traffic control so it can deal with increasing congestion is years behind schedule.

"Like many others, I'm concerned with the slow pace of some projects," Richards said. "I will get involved in the effort to avoid further delays."

Mortgage rates again decline

WASHINGTON — Interest charged on 30-year, fixed-rate mortgages fell again last week, averaging 8.09 percent, according to a national survey.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corp. said Friday the average, down from 8.13 percent the week before, was the lowest since June 1973. Three weeks ago, the rate averaged 8.48 percent. It has fallen in most weeks since late March, when it hit a high for the year of 9.03 percent.

On one-year adjustable rate mortgages, lenders were asking an average initial rate of 5.5 percent, down from 5.56 percent last week and the lowest since the corporation began tracking ARMs in 1984.

The most recent declines, triggered by the Federal Reserve's July 2 reduction of its benchmark discount rate to a 29-year low of 3 percent, have caused a wave of mortgage applications, according to the Mortgage Bankers Association of America.

Don't harass the ducks

MADISON, Maine — Game wardens said there will be no mercy shown for people caught harassing ducks with radio-controlled boats.

There have been several reports recently about people using the high-powered boats to scare ducks that wander close to shore in area lakes, authorities said. One bird was slightly injured.

"This is another example of people harassing and hurting wildlife in the name of entertainment," Warden John Whalen said Friday.

The high-powered boats are up to 3 feet long and can reach speeds of more than 20 mph.

"This behavior is a crime and we will arrest and prosecute anyone guilty of hurting these birds," said Warden Roland Tilton.

Homicide doesn't anger widow

MORRIS TOWNSHIP, N.J. — The wife of Exxon executive Sidney J. Reso said she isn't angry at a man and wife charged with kidnapping her husband, who died in captivity.

"Anger eats up an awful lot of energy," Patricia Reso said in an interview published Friday in The Star-Ledger of Newark.

"I don't know whether I'm just not feeling, or what," Mrs. Reso said. "But I have never expressed anger at them and it doesn't seem to be within my control."

Arthur D. and Irene J. Seale, both 45, were arrested June 19 and charged with kidnapping Reso, the president of Exxon Co. International, Reso, 57, disappeared April 29 on his way to work.

Arthur Seale also was charged with felony murder. Ms. Seale told authorities that Reso died after five days in a sweltering storage locker.

Pope's recovery progresses

ROME — Pope John Paul II's doctors said Saturday his recovery from intestinal surgery is progressing well, and the pontiff was given the go-ahead to do a radio broadcast Sunday from his hospital room.

Three days after his operation to remove a bowel tumor described as benign, the 73-year-old pope had no fever, doctors at Gemelli Hospital reported Saturday.

Dr. Luigi Ortona, who heads the hospital, said the pope was no longer taking sedatives or antibiotics.

The latest medical bulletin — signed by Ortona, two doctors on the operating team and the pope's personal physician — said John Paul was able to walk around his room and sit up in an armchair.

The pope's recovery "is proceeding within the norms," it said.

A biopsy taken before Wednesday's surgery as well as one during the operation indicated the tumor was benign, or non-cancerous, according to the Vatican and the surgical team.

Czechs, Slovaks bewildered

Associated Press

BRATISLAVA, Czechoslovakia — With the back-to-back announcements of Slovakia's sovereignty declaration and President Vaclav Havel's resignation, the 74-year-old federation of Czechoslovakia appears to be in its final months.

Minutes after Slovakia's regional parliament issued a declaration of sovereignty for the eastern republic, Havel announced he would step down on Monday.

Although Czechoslovakia apparently is following Yugoslavia and the Soviet Union into disintegration, its breakup almost certainly will be peaceful.

The leaders of parliament in the two republics, Milan Uhde of the Czech lands and Ivan Gasparovic of Slovakia, met behind closed doors today in Brno.

They were expected to set a timetable for further talks on the division of the country.

In Bratislava, hundreds of people gathered in a square Friday and cheered Slovak Premier Vladimir Meciar as he waved a copy of the sovereignty declaration, approved 113-24 in the 150-seat parliament.

Peace process is picking up

By BARRY SCHWEID AP Diplomatic Writer

WASHINGTON — After a three-month interlude, the pace of the Middle East peace process picked up Saturday as Secretary of State James A. Baker III prepared to head for Israel and meetings with Yitzhak Rabin, the new prime minister.

Rabin has pledged not to "lose precious time" in negotiating an interim agreement with Palestinian Arabs and has set up a meeting Tuesday in Cairo with Egyptian President Hosni Mubarak that could give the process a lift.

The last round of Arab-Israeli negotiations was held in Washington three months ago. Rome is the designated site for the talks to resume, but a date has not been set.

Rabin's slowdown on settlements — there are to be no new contracts for Jewish housing on the West Bank and in Gaza — prompted Mubarak to arrange the summit with Rabin and could improve Israel's chances of getting U.S. guarantees for $10 billion in bank loans.

Baker is likely to take up Israel's long-denied request for U.S. aid with Rabin and Foreign Minister Shimon Peres in light of the suspension of new contracts. President Bush has been demanding a halt to settlements in lands won from the Arabs in the 1967 war as a precondition to helping Israel borrow the $10 billion.

The loans would be used to help absorb tens of thousands of new immigrants. Bush, seeking re-election, could improve his standing with supporters of Israel by providing the guarantees, and Rabin's slowdown of the settlements might give him an opening.

A group of 193 House members, Democrats as well as Republicans, urged Bush in a letter to submit a loan guarantee package to Congress and support its enactment this session.

"As a new government forms in Israel, we urge you to use this opportunity to take immediate action to aid the immigrant Jews in Israel who have arrived from the former Soviet Union and to rebuild U.S.-Israeli relations," the letter said.

The appeal was spearheaded by Rep. Charles E. Schumer, D-N.Y., and supported by Rep. Richard Gephardt, D-Mo., the House majority leader, and Rep. Newt Gingrich, R-Ga., the minority whip.

Baker has set a rapid pace for his trip. He will be whisked to the meeting in Jerusalem with Rabin right after landing at Ben Gurion airport on Sunday, will

School district staff completing budget

By VICKI DeBORNIER
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — The finance department of the Seminole County school board has been working long hours over the last week, still the first draft of the 1992-93 budget won't be ready until a few minutes before the school board's first work session on the subject Monday afternoon.

Finance employees worked Friday, despite the four-day work week schedule, and into Saturday. They hoped to have the preliminary document to the printer Sunday afternoon in order to have it ready for the board members in time for the 3 p.m. meeting.

Rosh Khatri, budget officer, said the staff was still working with the figures and trying to make the numbers reflect the philosophy put forth by school board members.

"I can't really tell you any final numbers, because I haven't got any yet," Khatri said Friday.

The state legislature provided the school district with $4 million that they had not been counting on and the board members have said that their first priority will be to rehire as many laid-off employees as possible.

"To me, that has got to be the highest priority," vice chairman Jeanne Morris said.

Board members met with Supt. Paul Hagerty and finance staff members last week in executive session to discuss what they believed the district's priorities ought to be.

"We talked about philosophies not dollars," Morris said.

Board member Barbara Kuhn said she is "looking forward to finding out" what the bottom line of the budget will be.

"I've seen some numbers here and there, but I haven't seen a bottom line figure."

Though the legislature has allocated the additional $4 million for the school district, some are very hesitant to disburse that money yet.

"We're almost paranoid about pre-planning the use of a n y m o n e y f r o m Tallahassee," Kuhn said. "If we promise it and it doesn't get here, then we're still obligated."

Board member Joe Williams said he will just wait until Monday to take a look at what the finance department offers.

"The legislature was very slow in getting figures to the districts because of their own budget stalemate this year," he said. "We have told the staff what we believe is needed, and we will begin looking at it on Monday afternoon."

The work session on Monday will give board members and the public the first opportunity to look at the budget.

Staff members are scheduled to go over the document they are preparing line-by-line to answer questions for the school board members.

Following the work session, the board will hold a one-item agenda meeting to reinstate the positions and programs they will be able to finance with the unexpected money from the state.

On Thursday, July 23 at 9 a.m. the board will meet to approve a draft of the budget for advertising.

The first public hearing on the budget will be held on Wednesday, July 29 at 7 p.m.

The board meetings and work sessions are at the school board headquarters, 1211 S. Mellonville Ave., Sanford.

Court clerk challenger still leads

By J. MARK BARFIELD

SANFORD — Clerk of courts candidate Mona McGregor has retained her fundraising lead over incumbent Maryanne Morse, according to the most recent campaign finance reports.

The most recent reports filed with the supervisor of elections office show McGregor had raised a total of $11,332 for her Republican primary challenge against Morse. Incumbent Morse, seeking a second term, has raised a total of $4,500, although $4,150 of that amount was raised during the April 1 to June 30 reporting period. McGregor raised only $1,110 during the same three-month period.

Candidates for county races were required to submit their campaign finance reports July 10 for the previous quarter.

Sandra Brown, a Democrat

Judge says he'll move up hearing on gambling

Associated Press

TALLAHASSEE — A circuit judge said Friday he'll schedule a hearing within about two weeks on the state's powers to regulate gambling when state pari-mutuel laws have expired.

Leon Circuit Judge F.E. Steinmeyer had earlier granted race tracks' requests for a temporary injunction extending the pari-mutuel laws that expired July 1 and had scheduled a hearing on the question Nov. 16.

"I don't feel comfortable keeping laws in effect that the Legislature has said should not be in effect," Steinmeyer said after state regulators outlined a prospect of unregulated gambling and lost state revenues.

The 1991 Legislature had said pari-mutuel laws would expire this year, expecting the 1992 Legislature to rewrite the statutes.

Bogged down in redistricting and budget squabbles, the 1992 Legislature didn't do so, allowing the statutes to die un-replaced.

Donald Conn, attorney for the state Department of Business Regulation, said the court must clarify how the $1.7 billion-a-year industry, which contributes $100 million a year to state revenues, will be regulated.

Until it does, Conn said, the department's pari-mutuel division is powerless to perform functions like checking prospective track owners' criminal

Rumrunner, fishing boat returns to port

By BILL KACZOR
Associated Press Writer

PENSACOLA — The American Eagle, a former rumrunner and fishing boat, is back in this Gulf Coast port as the last vestige of a sailing fleet that once made Pensacola the world's red snapper capital.

But it took fate and a Coast Guard rescue to return the 65-year-old snapper smack from Miami.

Its new owners, lawyer Peter McDavid and his business partner, Bill Heritage, hope to restore the weary and storm-battered vessel.

"It's a romantic notion," Heritage said. "She had to come home."

The homecoming odyssey started last year with a classified ad offering an "old wooden sailing boat" for sale. There was no mention of type, size or age, but it was enough to intrigue McDavid and Heritage.

They have a marine supply store in an old waterfront building once a repair and supply shop for Warren Fish Co. They are turning the back section, facing a slip where the fishing boats tied up, into a restaurant.

Snapper fishing was a major industry in the late 19th and early 20th century but it nearly disappeared by World War II because of the Great Depression and over fishing.

"Since I got this place and before, I thought Pensacola needed to have a snapper smack," McDavid said. "I didn't know whether any of them were still left."

The ad was in a Pensacola newspaper, but it said to call a phone number in Miami, 600 miles away. The owner, Bill Bonner, told Heritage the boat was a snapper smack that used to sail out of Pensacola.

"I said, 'What's the name of it?' And he says, 'The American Eagle,'" Heritage recalled. "I was almost speechless. Later on he told me my voice broke."

The American Eagle, built in Biloxi, Miss., was among the ships listed on Warren Fish Co. papers McDavid and Heritage had found in their building. The 62-foot-long, 30-ton ship had spent about 15 years on the Miami River as Bonner's home before he sold it to them.

The trip back to Pensacola last October turned out to be as adventurous as its maiden voyage in 1927. It was Prohibition and American Eagle had gone to Cuba to pick up a load of rum.

But the smuggling operation failed. Customs agents seized the vessel as it entered Pensacola Bay. It was sold to Warren, which fished it out of Pensacola for the next 40 years. It continued as a fishing boat in Niceville until 1971 when sold to a man who turned it into a live-aboard. He sailed the vessel to Key West where Bonner bought it.

A stuck drawbridge in Miami and stormy weather around the tip of Florida plagued American Eagle's homecoming trip, but the stage for near disaster was set in Venice.

A piling the ship had been tied to for the night broke and American Eagle's hull was damaged. No one knew how seriously at the time. Heritage, McDavid and two other crew members delayed their voyage across the Gulf of Mexico for temporary repairs near Tampa and to wait out bad weather.

The Lake Brantley Dodgers team mobs Jason Jalliet after he blasted a long home run in Friday night's 3-1 victory over the Lake Mary Mudcats. The Dodgers came LAKE MARY — It was championship baseball at its finest — great pitching, timely hitting, spectacular defense, tough baserunning and most of all — a dramatic ending.

Jake Winger's two-out, bases-loaded double in the top of the eighth inning lifted the Lake Brantley Dodgers to a 3-1 win over the Lake Howell Bucks and gave the Dodgers the National American Baseball Federation at Lake Mary High School Saturday afternoon.

Lake Brantley advanced to the tournament final with a 3-1 over Lake Mary Friday night while Lake Howell battled through the loser's bracket and knocked off Lake Mary 5-3 Saturday morning to earn a

Friend working to become No. 1

By ROBERT STOCK
Herald Correspondent

LAKE MARY — Shelly Friend is an oxymoron — a feminine bodybuilder.

With sparkling brown eyes, long, curly hair, and a streamlined physique, her muscular features do not stand out until she puts on her workout clothes.

But in the weight room, Friend is anything but feminine, pushing her body to its limits as she strives to become the state's best female bodybuilder.

And if her first three years of competition are any indication, Friend, could be well on her way to that goal and more.

Friend, 26, won the Sun City Bodybuilding Championships, a state-wide invitational — last year in addition to placing second at two local competitions, the Space Coast Tourney in DeLand and the Seminole Classic in Lake Mary.

She has continued to improve and strengthen her muscles while working for the Florida Highway Patrol in Seminole County.

Despite her success and muscular physique, Friend does not consider herself an Arnold Schwarzenegger in tights and said she doesn't understand why more women fail to strengthen their bodies.

"You can have big, defined muscles and still be feminine," Friend said. "I think they (most women) are afraid that it will make them more masculine."

Friend, who had worked out on and off throughout her life, began taking it seriously after she met Rick Friend, her future husband who worked at Gold's Gym in Lake Mary. Rick — a bodybuilder himself at one time — trained her for two years before their hectic schedules prevented them from being together in the gym.

After a year of training, Friend placed second in her first competition — the 1990 Seminole Classic.

Rick said his wife's style of building muscle helps retain femininity and that maintaining a low percentage of body fat is important.

"Friend credits her success to several intangibles, including biology, determination and religion.

"There are all sizes of bodybuilders," Friend said. "The top and bottom (of the body) have to be in proportion to each other. You

Oviedo Americans move into district finals

From Staff Reports

OVIDO — The long road back is complete. Now can the Oviedo Americans take the final step?

The Oviedo Senior Americans won their fifth straight game out of the loser's bracket and in the process avenged their only loss Friday night as they edged the Altamonte Americans 4-3 in the loser's bracket finale of the Senior Little League District 14-Area 3 Baseball Tournament at Oviedo.

Brion King and Byron Coffee combined on a one-hitter as Oviedo avenged last week's 9-4 loss at the hands of the Altamonte Americans that knocked Oviedo into the loser's bracket.

The win earned Oviedo the right to play undefeated Ocoee Saturday for the District 14-Area 3 championship. Oviedo had to beat Ocoee twice to advance to the district tournament.

Brion King started for Oviedo and carried an no-hit, shutout into the seventh inning before tiring. After allowing Altamonte's only hit and three runs, Coffee came on to strike out the only two men he faced to save the victory for Brion King.

Oviedo got to Altamonte starter Shawn Newberry for a pair of unearned runs in the bottom of the first inning.

With two out, Mark Metcalfe reached on an error and scored on Brion King's third home run in the tournament.

Oviedo added single runs in the second and third innings to increase

Anthony King led off the second with a walk, advanced to second on a sacrifice, moved over to third on a passed ball and scored on Brian McMahon single.

Altamonte miscues again led to the run in the third. Brion King led off and got all the way to second on an error. He moved over to third on a fielder's choice and scored on a single by Scott Root.

Altamonte finally got to Brion King in the seventh inning. Tim Frazier led off with a walk and stole second. Frazier advanced to third on a wild pitch as Newberry also walked. Frazier scored when everyone was safe on a fielder's choice grounder by Jared Rouse.

Newberry and Rouse then moved up a base on a grounder by Bryan Schumaker and scored on Danny Antonelli's two-run single, the first hit of the game by Altamonte, to chase Brion King. But Coffee came on to shut the door and give Oviedo the victory.

Brion King led the Oviedo Americans hitting with a home run, while Coffee, McMahon, Root and Mike Duncan each had a single.

SANFORD — Lauren Binger, a rehabilitation provider in Sanford, has returned from a one week special training session in Houston, Texas.

She is co-owner along with Inez D. Perry, of Pathway Consulting, Inc., a licensed rehabilitation service provider with offices in Sanford and Altamonte Springs.

Binger was one of 400 persons from across the nation selected as one of 80 persons invited to attend the seminar sponsored by the Disability Rights Education and Defense Fund, and Independent Living Research Utilization.

The main focus of the training sessions dealt with understanding the provisions of the Americans with Disabilities Act, dispute resolution techniques, and evaluating buildings and other facilities for access by people with disabilities.

"This is really going to help Pathway as well as all of the people we serve," she said, "through the methods of training and information I was able to gather during this seminar."

Binger said the training was extensive. "We went from early in the morning until late afternoon, and on several days, even had night sessions to attend."

Phase I of the training project, from July 8 through 12, was financed through a contract with the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission and Department of Justice.

Because she was selected for Phase I, she will automatically be considered for one of 100 persons slated to enter Phase II, which is expected to expand on all facets of the needs of the disabled.

Binger operates from offices at 709 Briarcliffe Street, in Sanford.

Fertilizer comes from near and far

By J. MARK BARFIELD
Herald Staff Writer

SANFORD — That bag of fertilizer you may have bought at a local store to spread on your lawn this Spring may have contained sewage by-products and may have been produced as far away as Boston.

For example, during the first three months of this year, more than 1,000 tons of sewage sludge from Boston were shipped to Florida, according to state documents. Locally, about 55 tons of the BB-sized dry black pellets were shipped to Sunniland's fertilizer factory south of Lake Mary.

The sludge meets state standards for reuse, said Julie Gissendanner, a state wastewater specialist. The federal Environmental Protection Agency is still trying to decide whether the sludge is safe, although the agency did recommend in 1989 that Florida receive the sludge.

Not long after, the EPA made Florida and Texas target states. Later this year, the EPA is expected to issue regulations on toxic metals in sludge.

Sludge is the material left after solids are allowed to settle out of sewage. The sludge is baked at more than 700 degrees Fahrenheit to kill disease-causing bacteria. But it still contains trace amounts of lead, mercury, chromium and other heavy metals that can be harmful. Florida has no restrictions on mercury or chromium.

Sunniland president Tom Moore said the material his company received was blended with other materials for use in several of the company's fertilizer products. Moore said his company purchased only one load of the sludge because the pellets were too large for use in their products. Moore said the company routinely uses wastewater sludge, the dry byproduct of sewage treatment in fertilizers.

"The 55 tons went into a mix that yielded about 80,000 tons," said Moore.

Moore said the fertilizer containing the Boston blend is likely "on the ground," sold and used.

Uday Yadav, county cooperative extension manager, said he does not recommend fertilizer that contains sewage sludge be used on fruits and vegetables which will be consumed.

Yadav said such materials contain high levels of "heavy metals" which can be dangerous to humans. Cadmium, lead and nickel were included in a list of materials in the sludge sent to Gissendanner by Enviro-Oro Technologies, a Pennsylvania company marketing the Boston sludge.

"We recommend it be used on lawns and ornamentals, not vegetables," said Yadav. Sunniland's Moore said he agrees. "We recommend that it be used on lawns," he said.

Nevertheless, Florida Department of Environmental Regulation records show the sludge has been shipped to at least 10 sites in Polk, Orange, Manatee, Seminole, Oklawaha and Hillsborough counties to fertilize orange and vegetable crops.

A researcher on heavy metal in the food chain said there is no scientific evidence that crops grown with fertilizer pellets from properly treated sludge threaten human health or the environment.

The researcher and two environmentalists said that, based on Massachusetts Water Resources Authority information, its pellets are more than acceptable as an agricultural fertilizer.

They told The Boston Globe that sludge fertilizer, if clean enough and used properly, is useful and a valuable way to recycle.

And Nina Sankovitch, a sludge specialist with the Natural Resources Defense Council, said, "It is completely counter to the public interest to raise fears about sludge, which is a feared substance, when you don't have sound science."

LONGWOOD — John Gabrovic, 28, formerly of Longwood, is heading for Poland later this week. The 1984 graduate of Lake Brantley High School, will be working with the MBA Enterprise Corps.

The Corps, based at the University of North Carolina, gives young managers the opportunity to obtain experience working in a foreign environment.

Although he attended schools in the Longwood area, Gabrovic was born in Texas. He recently graduated with an MBA degree from Fuqua School of Business at Duke University.

His parents, Luke and Annetta Gabrovic, live at 1540 Tracy Drive in Longwood. "John has already been overseas," his mother commented. "He spent about 2 1/2 years in Germany working with GE." She added, "As any mother, my only concern is whether he will get enough food."

She admitted, "We are very proud of John and his accomplishments and we know he will do well in this new environment."

Regarding his previous work in Germany, John commented, "Near the end of my assignment in 1989, the Berlin Wall collapsed sending a wave of freedom throughout Eastern Europe." He added, "A visit to East Germany soon thereafter proved what 40 years of Communist control could do to a society and economy. As I walked the grey, dirty streets, I vowed to someday return to the region to assist in the formidable task of integrating the region into the West."

Gabrovic is getting his chance. He will leave from Houston, Texas on July 23, along with 67 other recent MBA graduates from business schools around the nation who will venture to formerly Communist countries to assist the Eastern European enterprises in their transformations to the free market.

Spotlight focuses on firm's acquisition of 13 hospitals

Associated Press

HOUSTON — A little-known Houston company has caught the attention of some industry observers with its recent move to acquire 13 hospitals in six states from Louisville, Ky.-based Humana.

Champion Healthcare Corp., which owns the medium-sized, 191-bed Baytown Medical Center, announced Friday it has signed a letter of intent to buy five Humana hospitals in Louisiana, three in Florida, two in California, and one each in Kentucky, Mississippi and Texas.

The 13 hospitals have a total of 1,652 licensed beds.

The Houston Chronicle said Champion is backed in the bid by the Sprout Group, a major venture capital firm based in New York City; by the New York investment banking firm of Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette; and by the financial arm of a major insurance company.

The letter of intent is subject to financing arrangements.

Of the hospitals to be acquired in the transaction, only two: a 250-bed hospital in Beaumont, Texas, and a 214-bed hospital in Daytona Beach, Fla., have more licensed beds than Champion's Baytown hospital.

Champion bought the Baytown Medical Center from Humana last year.

Champion also has signed an agreement to acquire a 324-bed, two-hospital system located in the Fargo, N.D., area, according to a statement from the company.

Health care analyst Eugene Meintchenko, with the Baltimore firm of Lee Mason Wood Walker, told the Chronicle that although he is unfamiliar with Champion, it would fit into Humana's plans to sell off smaller hospitals and concentrate on its major medical centers.

The Humana hospitals Champion seeks to acquire are: — Huntington Beach, Calif., with 133 beds;

LONGWOOD — He bounds up the stairs to his bedroom with the seemingly endless energy of any 12-year-old. After finding the photographs he was searching for, he makes a return trip with the same vigor to retrieve his toy penguin, Seymour.

Longwood resident Eric Lorenz is a gangling youth with a ready smile and friendly disposition who is fighting a two-year-old battle with cancer.

Diagnosed in August 1990 with T-cell lymphoma, the youth has battled his illness with courage and the help of his father, Richard.

"We are the two stooges," Richard jokes, as he clowns with his son in the living room of their home. "We are best friends. He makes me feel like I'm 15 and I make him feel like he is 20. We will get through this together."

"We are always making jokes," the sandy-haired Eric adds, "that helps us get through."

The disease has placed an emotional, physical as well as a financial burden on the family.

"We are totally wiped out financially," Richard says matter-of-factly. "We are probably going to lose this house."

The family lost its health insurance in March because 80 percent of Richard's co-workers had to be enrolled in order to qualify for a group plan.

"Some of the employees couldn't afford it," Richard said. "So they cancelled us."

Richard currently works as a one-man operation constructing custom cabinets.

The disease has required many hospitalizations for Eric. Every 54 days, he must return to the hospital for three or four days of chemotherapy.

In a picture taken one year ago, Richard and Eric Lorenz fight the battle of Eric's cancer together. This dad and son are best friends. Together, they intend to win Eric's fight for his life.

Today, Eric Lorenz holds his pal, Seymour, a toy penguin he has had since beginning his fight against cancer two years ago.

Something that Eric and other young cancer patients can look forward to is summer camp. With the help of corporate sponsors, cancer patients from central Florida are taken to a recreational camp in upstate New York called Camp Good Days and Special Times. The Olive Garden is sponsoring Eric.

"We review the kids' medical records so that we have a good understanding of the medical requirements the kids have while at camp," John Bolls, a volunteer for the camp's Central Florida office said.

One staff member and one medical volunteer will travel to New York with Eric, a practice Camp Good Days employs for all its campers "in case something comes up, or if there is ever a problem," Bolls said.

The camp is equipped to care for the special needs of the young patients with a volunteer medical staff on site.

"We have staff and a well stocked infirmary at camp. Any and all medication for the children is put in the infirmary. No one administers any medication except the doctors and nurses," Bolls explained.

The opportunity to play basketball, tennis or softball with others while making friends and renewing old acquaintances is offered by the camp.

"When you see these kids laugh and have fun, all you want to do is let them laugh and have fun," Bolls said.

Eric who will go to the camp in August plans to organize some games of his favorite sport — softball.

In addition to camping session for cancer patients, Camp Good Days also has sessions for the brothers and sisters of cancer patients who bear the stress of having a sick sibling. Locally, representatives of Camp Good Days conduct a day camp for younger campers.

Before Eric was diagnosed with cancer, Richard said he knew very little about the disease, but he learned quickly and was amazed at how many cancer patients there are.

"We are working with all the groups, the Starlighters, Candlelighters, Wish Foundation, B.A.S.E. and Rock Camp," which help sick children, Richard said.

The B.A.S.E. camp is another camp conducted in Florida for cancer patients which is beginning its program. Camp Good Days has been in operation for over 13 years and was organized by a father to satisfy the dying wish of his daughter.

Some confusion about which camp is which resulted when a director who had worked in the Camp Good Days program left to work for the B.A.S.E. program.

As a single father, Richard, 43, is raising Eric and Nicholas, 7.

Casting call lures local dancers to silver screen

By BOB FREEMAN
Herald Correspondent

SANFORD — A group of local dancers have stars in their eyes as a result of being stars of the silver screen. Miriam and Valerie's School of Dance Arts in Sanford sent 50 students and parents to the first call from a movie production company, and another 100 to the next movie call, and they're anxiously awaiting for another call which may come this summer for yet another appearance in a third movie.

The young dancers were forewarned they would be dancing in "Passenger 57," an MGM movie filmed at the airport. All are students of tap, jazz, and musical theatre, and many also perform in a mother/child program, tap dancing with their moms, and/or add ballet to their busy schedule of activities. None, however, were prepared for the square dance they ultimately performed.

No matter, Miriam Doktor and Valerie Weld, owners of the dance studio, were prepared for anything. Ms. Weld choreographed a square dance number on the spot, and the young dancers spent ten minutes learning the routine and then went into the studio and, "kept doing it for them," according to 11-year old Matthew Twilleger, who has five years dance experience under his belt.

"We probably did it 20 times while they were taping," Matthew said.

Ten-year-old Valerie Heaton, with six years of dance expertise, said the production company wanted everyone who could walk and talk for the movie "Passenger 57," which starred Wesley Snipes. "We got to bring our brothers and sisters who weren't dance students," she said, "and some of them got into the movie. They really needed lots of little boys."

Kimberly Huffman, 11, a veteran of nine years of dance instruction, talked about the tutors the studio provided so that the kids wouldn't miss regular school. "You had to sign in and you had to do your work, and they sent reports back to your school to verify that you were keeping up," she said. Only one day was lost from school while filming "Passenger 57," she said, but the troupe spent seven days on the Universal Studios movie, "Matinee," starring John Goodman.

Jarred Groom, approaching his imminent tenth birthday with movie credits under his belt and a realistic view of stardom, said the food wasn't necessarily something to write home about. Going into his fourth year of dance, Jarred clearly was pleased to be in the movies, but hopeful that the fare would improve on the next project.

Leading friends through Europe

Mr. and Mrs. Kyle Frakes

Forehand, Frakes marry in Orlando

ORLANDO — Donna Jean Forehand and Kyle Frakes are announcing their marriage today. They were married Dec. 14, 1991, St. Michael's Episcopal Church, Orlando by Father Richard Bowman.

The bride is the daughter of Edward and Ann Forehand of Seminole. She is a graduate of Seminole High School in Seminole, Fla. and the University of Florida in Gainesville. She is employed by Catering Expressions in Orlando.

The bridegroom is the son of Owen and Cynthia Frakes of Longwood. He is the grandson of Marvin and Ruth Ault of Longwood and the grandson of Mrs. Donald Carl of Fairfield, Ohio. Frakes is a graduate of Lake Brantley High School, Allamonte Springs and Rollins College in Winter Park. He is the assistant basketball coach at Rollins College.

The bride wore a traditional gown of ivory satin with a lace-edged train. The Victorian sleeves featured inserts of lace.

The fitted lace bodice was framed by a sweetheart neckline. Her fingertip illusion veil was held by a lace and pearl tiara, and she carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, holly and baby's breath.

Shelley Graham, sister of the bride, served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Erika and Monica Frakes, sisters of the groom; Jennifer Meade, cousin of the bride; Julie Palmer-Nicholson, Dagni Christian and Kelly Clark. They wore forest green taffeta sheath dresses with ivory satin off-the-shoulder cowls and ivory satin gloves.

Stuart Goffman served as best man. Groomsmen were Steve Abrass, Scott Anez, David Forehand, brother of the bride, Richard Maloney, Todd Oas, and Scott Udine.

A reception following the ceremony was held at the DuPont Centre in Orlando. After a wedding trip to San Francisco, the newlyweds are making their home in Orlando.

For the fourth time, Jean McLain, counselor for an educational touring company, has led an entourage of friends to Europe. The group of 25 spent 15 days having a "super good time" under the watchful eye of "Mama Jean," as she is known to her young students and the community.

After departing from New York, the group landed in Paris, then took a fast train to Geneva, followed by a bus to Lucerne, then on to Venice, Florence and Rome. An all-night ferry ride took the travelers to Greece where Jean said on their last night they were at a celebration. "I never had so much fun in my life dancing with the Greeks and Turks."

This is the first time Jean has been to Rome and she said, "I love Rome. The Vatican and St. Peter's are so beautiful...so much history." She said she was also impressed with the ruins at Pompeii and the mummies encased there. "The Isle of Capri was simply gorgeous," she said.

In general, many Parisians are not too friendly to Americans, but Jean said her party of 25 fell in love with their French guide in Paris when they could not get a taxi during the rush hour and the young woman accompanied them almost to their hotel via a subway.

Jean commented on the excellent food and accommodations and said the watermelon in Greece, the olives in Italy and lamb in Greece were "delicious." She also mentioned the outrageous prices they paid for soft drinks and pastries...like $8 for a Sprite.

Others from Sanford taking the delightful tour were: Debbie Bowlin and her son, Randy; Susie Dickey and her daughter, Laurie; Elizabeth Gallant and her son, Nick; Ruth Mason, Betty Freer, Carolyn Pierrro and her grandson, Eric Larson; Margaret Parrish, Jean Bengé and Minnie Barnshaw.

Shower honors Erica

When Erica Smith enters the garden on Aug. 1 to become the bride of Mark Wolfgang, she will be wearing the gown that her mother, Vera, wore when she married her father, the Rev. Freddie Smith, 30 years ago. The gown was made by her maternal grandmother.

The young couple moved their wedding date up from October to August when the family reunion will take place at Perry's Ocean Edge Resort in Daytona Beach. Erica has always wanted a garden wedding attended by all her family and, as it turned out, the garden at the resort is the perfect spot. Her father will perform the ceremony.

On Saturday, July 11, about 60 friends and relatives called at a drop-in shower honoring Erica in the Christian Activities Center of Central Baptist Church.

Erica's colors of pink and white were used in the decor including corsages created by Mary Pugh and a lovely arrangement of roses, daisies and carnations on the refreshment table arranged by B.J. Reeves.

The charming bride-elect wore a pink dotted Swiss dress complemented with a pink rose corsage. Assisting her with opening the variety of miscellaneous gifts were Suzanne Smith, maid of honor, and Amanda Smith, flower girl.

The refreshment table featured a punch bowl surrounded by an appetizing array of delectable party fare, including a red velvet cake, the bride-elect's favorite, decorated with a pink heart and two white kissing doves.

Among the guests were the bride-elect's mother, her grandmother, Vida Smith, and her great, great aunt, Lottie Cason of Crystal River.

Hostesses were: Evelyn Yates, Sherrill Thomas, B.J. Reeves, Ann Settle, Sue McIntosh, Glyna Hood, Glynda Alderman, Carol Reasa and Vida Sue Christensen.

"Just Because" luncheon

The sizzling heat of summer captures many Floridians ducking for air-conditioned cover to keep their cool — instead of a pool.

Longtime friends, dressed to the nines, showed up at the marina Holiday Inn Tuesday, July 14, for a "Just Because" luncheon. Already, the busy contingent are getting geared up for an active fall season as well as a few cool breezes.

Dorothy McReynolds and Nellie Coleman arranged the event. "Just so we could get together and talk," Dorothy said. "We miss each other." Politics was the topic of the day since the Democratic National Convention was in the news spotlight.

The friends enjoyed a leisurely lunch at the waterfront facility overlooking picturesque Lake Monroe while gabbing and solving the problems of the world.

Others attending were: Charlotte Knowles, Jeri Kirk, Virginia Burney, Martha Yancey, Faye Kelly, Liz Helfrich and her cousin Sandra Buratti from Rome, Italy. DeLores Laah and this writer.

Sandra turns heads

Speaking of Sandra Buratti from Rome, the alluring Italian beauty causes heads to turn wherever she goes while in America for a month. But Sandra is unaware of all the fuss made over her because she doesn't speak English.

At the "Just Because" luncheon Tuesday, Sandra wore a natural colored suit with a very short skirt and a see-through brown dot overblouse complemented with matching high-heeled shoes. Very striking!

Sandra, her husband, Giovanni Giancanti, and their daughter Azurra, are having the time of their lives in Florida. They are relatives of the Paulucci family and are being shown the American way, which they love, by Liz Paulucci Helfrich and her husband, Dr. Norman A. Helfrich Jr. The visitors "just love America."

Like father, like son

A 10-year-old lobbyist or maybe a budding politician made his political debut at the Sanford City Commission meeting Monday night.

Miles Howell, son of City Commissioner Lon Howell, addressed the commission on our lovely city, but, while plugging Sanford, he showed concern over the rusty flagpole gracing the lakefront. The young advocate was assured that a paint job would be taken into consideration by City Manager Bill Simmons.

Miles arrived from Charlotte, N.C. to spend the summer with his dad. The two are having an exciting time together and Miles accompanied his dad to Richmond, Va., where Lon restored a home.

"It's the first time he's spent any time with me," Lon said.

Routhe home from Vietnam

Sanford Missionaries Walter A. Routh and his wife, Pauline, arrived in Orlando Friday on furlough after serving in Communist Vietnam. According to Lois Butcher, while in the area, their headquarters will be at the home of their daughter, Donna Meeks, 218 W. Smith St., Apopka, 34787.

The couple arrived from the Philippines after spending stressful and somewhat dangerous times in Vietnam.

Their son, W.A. "Buddy" Routh Jr., is still in Vietnam where he is teaching English while being constantly monitored. Buddy organized a soccer team there whose shoes were supplied by Sanford's Don Knight. More on this family later.

30th class reunion

The 1962 class members of Seminole High School are meeting this weekend for the 30th class reunion. Chairmen are Carol Ann Smith and Ann Schumacher Esterson. Activities took place at the American Legion and Timacuan Country Club. More on this next week.

Her fingertip-length veil of silk illusion was held in place by a floral headpiece of Venetian lace, pearls and beads. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses, pink miniature carnations and white Monte Cassino flowers entwined with ivy.

Patricia Keith, sister of the bride, served as matron of honor.

She wore a tea-length gown of pastel floral print with a scooped neckline, Beaque waist, shirred elbow-length sleeves and full skirt. She carried a hand-tied bouquet of long-stemmed white daisies, pink miniature carnations and blue delphiniums.

A reception followed the ceremony at Rolling Hills Country Club, Monroe, N.C. Assistants were Angela May, Camden, S.C.; Anita Lanning, Salisbury, N.C.; and Nicholas and Matthew Tarlton, Monroe, N.C.

After a wedding trip to Blue Ridge, Ga., the newlyweds are making their home in Matthews, N.C. The bride is employed by Teledyne-Alivac, Monroe, N.C. and the groom is employed by Champs Sports, Charlotte, N.C.

Boys, bass clubs 'gone fishin'

A fun day began at 6:30 a.m. when the Midway Boys and Girls Club staff arrived to pick up 16 boys from the Midway Club to begin a fun-filled morning of boating and fishing at Mullet Lake Park with the Oviedo Bass Club as their sponsors.

This club of community-minded men arrived early to take the boys out in boats and show the boys how to fish, bait their rods, and ride the waterways of Mullet Lake for over four hours. The men of the Oviedo Bass Club showed their concern and love for a group of boys most of whom had never been in a boat and had never been fishing. The morning went so fast said some of the boys because they were having fun, and, oh yes, there were some great fishermen who came in with a few catches.

The Oviedo Bass Club is headed by Monty May, president, and Stan King, coordinator of the fishing trip, saw that all went well and that all the boys were happy. After the group docked at the pier, the boys and fishermen were treated to hamburgers, chips, and plenty of cold Gatorade to help quench their thirst.

This is the second fishing trip of the year and the Oviedo Bass Club members are looking forward to the next two trips. The club has been organized for over a year. It is a non-profit group, out just for fun. The fund was donated by various businesses. The following Oviedo Bass Club members turned out for the day of boating and fishing: Jim Burke, Red Facemyer, Bill DuBue, Rick Woody, David Caffery, Dennis La Perma, Tony Smith, Bill Hatley, Phillip Chandler, Dennis Weatherbee, Pat Holt, Dennis Crooke, Eric Ferrall and Doug Martotte.

Club president Monty May and coordinator Stan King presented the boys a trophy for their carefree and fun-filled day. Midway Boys' Club members receiving their awards were: Kenneth Braker, Warren Hinton, Jeremiah Jenkins, Jeremy Mc-

Mom's death from smoking doesn't end family's pain

DEAR ABBY: I have been carrying around a letter I clipped from your column several years ago. For me, it was the most important column you have ever written. I am enclosing a copy. I am begging you to run it again. It had such a strong impact on two people I love very much; I truly believe it saved their lives.

VICEI IN ANNAPOLIS, MD. DEAR VICEI: With apologies to those who dislike re-runs, here it is:

DEAR ABBY: (July 7, 1989) I am writing this letter in the waiting room of the intensive care unit of the Boulder (Colo.) Community Hospital. My mother is on a respirator due to severe lung damage. She has asthma and smoked cigarettes for 50 years. Now she has emphysema and pneumonia.

Before she was hooked up to the respirator, she begged me to help her. Now I can only comfort her and pray for her. For years, the family asked her to quit smoking, but it was something she couldn't — or didn't want to — do. My mother is a strong woman, but her addiction to cigarettes got the best of her, even after seeing my father go through surgery for lung cancer eight months ago.

(Aug. 6, 1989) I was interrupted when I started to write the above letter and am now able to finish it.

My mother passed away on July 18. She was only 65 years old. It's too late to save her now, but it may not be too late for some of your readers.

Smokers, please think about the pain and suffering you can cause yourself and your family by continuing to smoke.

I don't have a mother now, and my children, ages 12 and 18, don't have a grandma anymore. Please, please quit smoking now, if not for yourself, then for those who love you.

SUSAN ORTEZ, DENVER DEAR SUSAN: My heart goes out to you and your family. If your letter inspires only one person to quit smoking, it will be well worth the space in this column. Thanks for writing.

DEAR ABBY: I may have the solution for "halitosis." I, too, had a sudden, persistent and embarrassing problem with bad breath. I asked my general physician, ENT specialist and my dentist. None of these professionals was able to pinpoint my problem.

After a year and a half, I solved the problem myself when I realized that the antibiotics I had been taking might be the culprit. They had not only killed the bacteria that were making me ill many months earlier, they had also killed the "good" bacteria that I needed for fresh breath.

After eating a cup of non-fat plain yogurt daily for a couple of weeks, the proper bacterial balance was restored and I am kissable again!

I hope this helps. I got all this information from the public library and pamphlets from my health food store.

COLUMBUS, OHIO, FAN DEAR COLUMBUS FAN: Congratulations for having ingenuity, common sense and a determination to solve your own problem.

DEAR ABBY: I read your column faithfully and have since I was a teen-ager.

Years ago, you published a contract between a teen-ager and his parents regarding the rules of driving a car. Our teen-age son will be getting his permanent driver's license at the end of the month, and we want him to sign this contract.

Won't you please publish it again? I'm sure that many other readers would find it useful.

(MRS.) DOROTHY MC GILL, KEMPTVILLE, ONTARIO DEAR MRS. MC GILL: The contract was the brainchild of "Proud Parents" in 1988 — and here it is, with pleasure:

DEAR ABBY: Being the parents of a 16-year-old who has just passed his driver's license examination, we feel that other parents such as we are apprehensive about our child's newly found freedom, and perhaps would like to ease some of that anxiety by drawing up a contract as we did, as a reminder of the seriousness of this work responsibility. It has worked wonders for us.

DRIVING CONTRACT I (), on this day do agree to the stipulations stated below rendering me the privilege of driving my parents' cars. If, at any time, I violate the said agreement, the driving privilege will be forfeited to the extent and degree of violation.

1. Should I get a traffic violation ticket, I agree to pay for the ticket as well as the difference in the insurance premium for as long as the premium is in effect.

2. I agree to pay for damages that I incur not covered by insurance.

3. At no time will I ever drink alcoholic beverages and drive at the same time, nor will there be any liquor or beer in the car at any time.

4. I will never transport more passengers than there are seat belts, and will not drive the car until all passengers have buckled up.

5. I will keep the car that I drive clean, inside and out, and be aware of its needs for gas, oil, etc., plus wax the car once a month.

I have read the above agreement and do sign this in accordance with the rules.

"They were mostly bus lunches and we got breakfasts of doughnuts and bagels, and a snack, too," Jarred said. On the movie "Passenger 87," the dancers said they ate steak, chicken and ice cream, but their seven-day stint on "Matinee," filmed at Universal Studios, saw the same food every day, Jarred said, and some pretty soggy, wilted lettuce on the sandwiches.

Eric

the father and son received a trip to Knoxville, Tenn. where Eric received the key to the city and met members of the Cherokee hockey team. In addition, he was given a citation from the city police with ID #1 and went for a ride in a police cruiser.

Eric missed so much school due to complications of his cancer, his father is unsure if he will be promoted or have to repeat a grade.

"Eric missed 50 days of school," Richard said. "He took finals but I don't know if he will be in the seventh grade or not."

The transition from elementary to middle school was a difficult one for the young cancer patient.

Richard, referring to Eric's sixth grade class at Milwee Middle School, said "Eric was nearly always the last to be picked (for teams) and some students made fun of him."

While a student at Altamonte Elementary School, the school declared Eric Lorenz Day and everyone was allowed to wear a hat (something usually not allowed). Eric wore hats to school after he lost all his hair during chemotherapy.

"We have a box upstairs," Richard said, "that must have over 400 hats in it."

Keeping a positive attitude is something that both father and son strive for. "Hopefully, in December when we get the results of another CATScan, we will know that he is cleared of this disease. That's what we've been praying for."

Richard would like to see Eric become a doctor but Eric would like to follow in the footsteps of his role model, Richard Petty. "I've always wanted to be a stock car driver," Eric said with a smile.

Julia Higgins, 11, a dance student for seven years, said no one was told whether their appearances might be cut, nor did they get an opportunity to arrange for a copy of the movie. The kids were told that the movies might be out sometime around year's end and available in video stores next summer.

They each made $50 to $60 a day, they said, but the money seems a secondary consideration to the excitement of being in a film, instructed not to speak to the stars or ask for their autographs, nonetheless, they enjoyed interacting with the famous people during their appearances on screen.

Jarred and Matt had to run down an aisle during a scene where Matt had to step on John Goodman's toe, and Julia's sister had to run straight into Goodman. Kim's mom's assignment was to make Goodman run into the wall.

"It's fun," pronounced Matt, and Julia added that there was a lot of just standing around. Kimberly agreed, that, "You hurry up and wait, but it's worth it." All said the biggest impression was one of standing in make-up lines and then wardrobe lines, and then just standing around.

All said the 5 a.m. call came awfully early, and the boys in particular have the lasting after-effect of a different look as a result of having their hair cut to a more traditional 1980s look, but all agree they'd do it again without hesitation, and many say they are Hollywood-bound in the years to come.

Their recital was held June 19, 20 and 21 at Lake Mary High School. Featured were the show-opening song and dance number, "No Business Like Show Business."

Amen to that, say these young film stars.

Otoplasty remedies protruding ears

"Not everything you inherit is worth keeping!" And this includes protruding ears.

Not that there is usually anything functionally wrong, but unkind comments and peer pressure may turn the bearer of the protrusion into a social introvert. Parents may frequently feel guilty in thinking that the deformity was preventable. Fortunately, correction of this cosmetic defect is possible by a relatively simple operation, called otoplasty, as early as five or six years of age.

The human ear achieves 85 percent of its adult size by three or four years of age and the protrusion changes little after the third year. Anatomically, the major fault lies in the cartilage of the ear and its inability to curl properly. Protrusion may also result from a frontal rotation of the hollow that lies adjacent to the external auditory canal. Sometimes both defects exist and are correctable simultaneously.

The surgery takes place in either an office or hospital out-in addition, the rotated conchal hollow may be recessed by deepening the space behind it. Closure of the wound on the back of the ear results in a straight line scar and a bulky soft dressing covers and protects the ear for five to seven days.

Since cartilage has a certain retentive "memory," it is helpful to wear an elastic band at night for about two months following surgery to "train" the ear in its new position.

The ear should be closer to the skull, but not flat against it, and in a position that will not draw attention to the individual.

For the female, the operation allows her to wear her hair up with the ears exposed. A male can wear his hair short and not be obvious.

Since the surgery takes place through the back of the ear, no visible scar is evident.

patient setting under general anesthesia or local anesthesia with sedation. The procedure, itself, takes 1 1/2 to two hours and once the patient is awake and reactive, they may return home.

The actual procedure is straight forward and proceeds from the back of the ear by removal of the wedge shaped segment of skin that allows exposure of, and access to the posterior cartilage. Then, via a small entry wound from behind, the skin overlying the defective cartilage in front of the ear is elevated. Disruption of the confining membrane that covers the cartilage allows the cartilage to curl backwards into a semi roll. The surgeon then secures the desired position with sutures. In

Herbs may sometimes be harmful

By A.J. HOSSTELER
Associated Press Writer

PHILADELPHIA — Herbal medicines touted as natural and healthy can sometimes be dangerous, researchers warned today.

French physicians writing in Annals of Internal Medicine reported on seven patients who developed hepatitis while using the weight-loss herb ginseng.

The liver disease disappeared when the patients stopped using the herb — a member of the mint family taken in capsules or in tea — but recurred in three who started taking it again.

The cases demonstrate nature's toxicity, according to a pharmacologist who wrote an accompanying editorial on the "myth of benignant nature."

"The reality is that plants elaborate the chemicals found within them for their own purposes and not for ours," said Dr. Ryan Huxtable of the University of Arizona.

"Many more people in North America are killed or injured by plants than by animals, yet the herb industry in the United States is largely unregulated, and there are no requirements to demonstrate safety or efficacy in marketed products," Huxtable said.

The Food and Drug Administration has been trying to resolve the safety and labeling issues of medicinal herbs, vitamins and amino acids, said FDA spokesman Emil Corwin. He said a task force report is awaiting FDA Commissioner David Keizer's approval.

Huxtable said illness caused by herbs can be difficult to identify because commercial preparations often lack proper botanical identification.

Bergamot, rosemary, mint, nutmeg and cloves — commonly found on kitchen shelves — can be toxic in certain amounts.

But herbs, he said, also "add color to our gardens, spice to our food, and interest and aesthetic delight to our lives." The trick is "not to stop the use of plants but their abuse."

Parents, public budgets straining under boom in multiple births

By BRENDA G. COLEMAN
Associated Press Writer

CHICAGO — Fertility drugs and delayed motherhood have caused a boom in triplets, quadruplets and quintuplets — children whose special demands on parents and society have been largely ignored, a study says.

"In most of the United States, multiple-birth families have no official recognition as a population in need of special services," said researchers led by John L. Klay of the National Center for Health Statistics in Hyattsville, Md.

Among white American women, triplet births in the United States from 1972 to 1989 rose 156 percent; quadruplet births zoomed 356 percent; and quintuplets and greater-number sets increased 182 percent.

Among blacks, increases were smaller — ranging from 18 percent for triplets to 126 percent for quadruplets — probably because relatively fewer blacks can afford costly infertility treatment, researchers said.

Parents of these babies often suffer extreme sleep deprivation, emotional turmoil and financial hardship.

Multiple-birth infants are far more likely to be born prematurely and at low weight, the two best predictors of death and illness in infants.

Dr. Louis Keith of Northwestern University Medical School led a study that found that each quadruplet averaged $105,000 in intensive-care bills, vs. $60,045 for every triplet, $8,338 for every twin and $3,600 for each single baby.
