WASHINGTON (AP)—President Eisenhower puts to the acid test tomorrow his ability to stir up the voters and to win support for Republican candidates.

The White House announced last night that Eisenhower will take off tomorrow on a one-day flying campaign trip to Cleveland, Detroit, Louisville, Ky., and Wilmington Del., in that order.

This will follow close on the heels of his radio-television talk here to night at a campaign rally staged by the Citizens for Eisenhower congressional organization. Mrs. Eisenhower will accompany him to the rally. The speech will be carried by NBC television and radio and by ABC radio.

It is scheduled for 9:30 p.m. EST.

Tonight's speech has been billed as an effort to arouse in the battle for control of Congress, to be decided at the polls next Tuesday, some of the "crusade" spirit of the 1952 Presidential campaign.

White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerly announced that on tomorrow's trip the President will speak to airport crowds at each stop, with Republican candidates from the surrounding states on hand.

There are heated Senate contests in the four states he will visit.

Hagerly, asked by a reporter whether the four states were chosen because GOP Senatorial candidates were "in trouble," replied "I do not admit your premise." He said they were selected because of central location and because, except for Kentucky, the President had not visited them during the campaign.

Eisenhower told his news conference yesterday his chief objective will be to dramatize his desire to see everybody vote next Tuesday's election.

But the selection of the sites by the Republican National Committee and its financial sponsorship of the tour indicated party officials expect him to come close to the kind of barnstorming in which the President said last April 29 he would not engage.

Eisenhower told reporters yesterday he was puzzled by reports of apathy among the voters who might not share his belief about the importance of Tuesday's election.

The GOP national Committee's guarded here an indicating mixed hopes and fears of party officials about next Tuesday's balloting results.

In Cleveland, Eisenhower will be trying to aid Republican Rep. George H. Bender, who is opposing Democratic Sen. Thomas A. Burke in a state that Eisenhower carried by a half million votes in 1952.

Republicans have been planning large hopes on Bender's regaining the Ohio seat that Burke was appointed to fill after the death of Republican Sen. Robert A. Taft.

A Republican spokesman said Eisenhower's Wilmington appearance was arranged in the hope of tipping the scales in favor of Italian Rep. Herbert R. Warburton in what is reported as an extremely close race with Delaware's Democratic Sen. J. Allen Frear Jr.

In Detroit and Louisville, the President's objective will be to help save the seats of two Republican Senators now depicted as being given strong battles by Democratic opponents.

They are Sen. Homer Ferguson, opposed by Democrat Patrick J. McNamara in Michigan, and Sen. John Sherman Cooper, opposed by Democratic former Vice President Alben W. Barkley in Kentucky.

vely through his attorneys in the court action.

The suit was brought yesterday by Louis Hill, president of the Tallahassee Chamber of Commerce, in the form of an amendment to an earlier action seeking to block construction of the proposed Blox-hum cutoff.

The cutoff is a controversial project which would by-pass Tallahassee and, it is charged, be of principal benefit to Wakulla Springs, a commercial resort owned by Ed Hall, head of the Florida duPont interests.

In a formal statement issued from his campaign headquarters here, Collins said:

"I did not initiate this effort to stop the road department from appropriating further our primary highway funds. But I have considered that such an action would become necessary and I have been accumulating information and material to support a court test of the power of the department to plunge our road program further toward bankruptcy.

"The simple facts are that this department is feverishly trying to contract roads and bridges with payments to become due, not while they are in office but next year after the next.

"Some carryover obligations are to be expected, of course, but they are trying to carry over obligations they well know go far beyond sound business practices and obligation of such size as will prevent our new administration from having a sound road and bridge program of its own.

"The tragedy of the situation is that in their fever and haste, the taxpayers and people are paying through the nose by:

"1. Loss of federal aid.

"2. Greatly increased cost of engineering, right of way procurement, etc.

"I think this suit raises serious questions which in the public interest should be resolved by our courts. The basic question is whether we are to waste our road money coming in next year and the next fulfilling political promises or spend it on the basis of need in the development of a sound highway system.

"Since these issues have been raised and so that the people will know that I fully support the objectives of this suit, I will ask attorneys representing me to assist in the case in any way they can be helpful."

Navy Coach Ready For Notre Dame

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—"I feel we have the best chance to beat Notre Dame Saturday since I've been here," said Navy football coach Eddie Edelezak Thursday.

"This going isn't afraid of Notre Dame or any team for that matter," he said in reporting on the attitude of his Middles toward the game before an expected 60,000 in Baltimore's Memorial Stadium.

The Middles undoubtedly are eager to get at the Irish. Several upon being congratulated for playing a good game after last Saturday's 57 victory over Penn replied "wait until you see next week's."

Navy hasn't beaten Notre Dame since 1941 and Edelezak had coached the last four losers.

College President Says Schools Shouldn't Be Church-Dominated

MIAMI (AP)—Denominationally controlled colleges cannot allow freedom of mind or spirit, says Dr. Theodore A. Distler, president of Franklin and Marshall College and executive director of the Assn of American Colleges.

"But if the secular spirit should triumph and religion be excluded from education, we would be on our way to national disaster," Dr. Distler told delegates to the International Convention of Disciples of Christ here last night.

He called for church affiliated, but not dominated, schools where the assumption is that "the word and will of God are so much beyond our present human understanding that a great variety of interpretations is inevitable; all have their right to be set forth, partial and incomplete though they are."

He said the sought-for result is that the graduate, of whatever persuasion, of religious persuasion when leaving the campus might say, feelingly: "Well, I didn't agree with everything taught me here, but this I know: my alma mater is Christian."

Dr. Jesse M. Hader, general secretary of the World Convention of Disciples, announced plans for the convention to be held in Toronto, Aug. 16-21, 1952.

Mrs. Arthur M. Depew of Joplin, Mo., was elected chairman of the board of managers of the United Christian Missionary Society of the Disciples of Christ and the Rev. J. Wayne Drash of Birmingham, Ala., was named vice chairman of the 120-member body.

Speaking for Neuberger are Senators Henry Jackson and Warren Magnuson, both Democrats from neighboring Washington, and Sen. Wayne Morse, the Oregon independent.

Seven visiting Republican senators backing Cordon are Frank Carlson of Kansas, Frederick Payne of Maine, Frank Barrett of Wyoming, George Malone of Nevada, Edward Thyne of Minnesota, Herman Welker of Idaho and Arthur Watkins of Utah.

A demand for an enlarged program for old-age and children's homes, was voiced by Dr. A. C. Brooks of Indianapolis.

The Rev. John C. Knowles of Houston, Tex., declared "those who are horrified by the thought of the communists torturing and killing everyone who stands in their way and yet continue to fill overflowing our warehouses with

Strolling In Sanford

Due to the fact that the Sanford Junior High School P-TA will not have a December meeting, a general business meeting has been scheduled for 7:30 p. m. Tuesday in room 30 at Seminole High School prior to the joint P-TA session at 8 o'clock. Mrs. J. P. Wilson, president of the Junior High group, urges all parents to attend this important session.

The Florida Power and Light Corp. is in the process of installing street lights throughout the city. They have been deferred almost a year due to the lack of city funds, City Manager Warren E. Knowles said today.

300 Delegates Study Business Of Civil Defense

MEMPHIS, Tenn. — With the moon of air raid sirens at background, 300 delegates today mullied over the immensely complex business of civil defense in an atomic age.

Emphasis of the third annual conference of the United States Civil Defense Council was on the developing art of swiftly evacuating a city threatened by atomic attack.

Systems set up to give advance warning of any approaching enemy bombers were outlined yesterday by Air Force Maj. Gen. J. V. Crabb, commander Central Air Defense, headquartered at Grandview, Mo.

Gen. Crabb told the crowd that "sky watch" posts that will need at least 100,000 volunteer workers are planned for the nation's south-west, west and north.

The Gulf states, and their neighbors, lie across a potential bomber route here, and are relatively unguarded. Similar networks have long been maintained around the nation's northern perimeter—the side closest to Russia.

Crabb said 17 filter centers clearing agencies for receiving, plotting and relaying information on aircraft movements probably will be set up by Jan. 1.

Each center would handle about 200 observations. States involved are Alabama, Mississippi, Texas, Oklahoma, Missouri, New Mexico, Colorado, Arizona, Louisiana, Utah, Arkansas and Kansas—and parts of Tennessee and Florida.

Maj. M. C. Des Voljnes, Nashville, state coordinator for the Ground Observer Corps, said each center would require about 1,000 volunteers. Each post will need at least 25 more if watch is kept on 24-hour basis.

Target date for starting operations and training is July 1.

Halloween Was 'Holy Day' Of Ancient Pagan Religion

Should a traveler in some rural region of France or Italy come up with a wide-eyed tale about having seen an actual gathering of witches the night before, he might be telling the truth, according to the Encyclopaedia Britannica.

For Halloween, Oct. 31, was one of the two "holy days" of an ancient pagan religion that is still practiced in remote parts of those two countries. This cult was known in England at least 1,300 years after the coming of Christianity, and for the most part, the comical festivities we now associate with Halloween are imitations of actual ceremonies of that heathen system.

The chief "witches' sabbaths" were on Halloween and Walpurgis, the eve of May Day. In other centuries these often were attended by hundreds of worshippers, of all ages, who frequently traveled long distances for the assemblies. The priest dressed himself in the skin of an animal, often a bull or a goat. Then, with horns on his head and a tall hang-

Ex-FHA Official To Serve Term Of Year In Jail

WASHINGTON — Clyde L. Powell, ousted assistant federal housing commissioner, was sentenced today to serve a year in jail for criminal contempt of court.

The sentence was passed by U. S. Dist. Judge F. Dickinson Letts, who ruled that Powell had "willfully, deliberately and contumaciously" disobeyed his order that Powell answer specific questions put to him by a federal grand jury.

The grand jury is investigating charges of bribery and misconduct in the Federal Housing Administration. Powell had charge of a multimillion-dollar mortgage program which has been under fire.

The 58-year-old former official was discharged from his job at the start of the investigation of housing scandals.

Judge Letts, after passing sentence, turned down a plea by Daniel B. Maher, Powell's lawyer, that Powell be allowed liberty pending an appeal. He also refused to delay execution of the sentence until Maher could file a petition with the U. S. Court of Appeals.

The questions Powell refused to answer before the grand jury dealt with whether he had received official papers from his FHA office.

Touhy Heads Drive For CofC Members

Annual Drive Set To Start On Nov. 17 After Kick-Off Supper Previous Night

George Touhy, vice-president of the Chamber of Commerce and president of the First Federal Savings and Loan Association, has been appointed by Earl H. Eggenbush, CofC president, to direct the annual CofC membership drive.

The campaign is scheduled to start Nov. 17 following a kick-off supper the previous evening, according to Forrest Breckenridge, manager of the CofC.

Plans for the drive were made yesterday at a meeting called by Robert Hillman, membership chairman, Breckenridge said. Other members are Don Baker, John Fitzpatrick, E. J. Moughton Jr., Ralph Wright and Harry Lee Jr.

Plans in the campaign will get underway on the morning of Nov. 17. Participants in the drive are being divided into four groups, into four ten-man teams, in addition each of which is being appointed a team captain. These teams will be teams out in the county.

Each worker, he explained, will minimum of $12.50, it was the opinion of directors who met to discuss the matter that any business firm would willingly pay at least $25 for membership in the organization and that a current membership dated Oct. 29 would amount out on that basis.

It was pointed out that a $25 membership costs a firm seven cents a day to attract more business, which a majority of the directors agreed was quite reasonable in view of the coverage obtained.

Touhy further stated that while owners of managers of firms may still become members of the Chamber of Commerce at the minimum rate of $12.50, such memberships would be recorded in the name of an individual and the firm name would not appear in the Chamber's Classified Business Directory of Seminole County.

GEORGE TOUHY

He given information kits and a report which gives a breakdown of the CofC's activities and accomplishments during its past year.

Prizes will be awarded to members of the top team on a system of points. A thousand points will be awarded for each renewal of membership. 1,500 for each new member, 100 points for each unit bringing $12.50 and an undetermined amount of points for membership renewals in which dues are increased.

A campaign thermometer showing progress of the drive, also is planned.

The CofC now has more than 500 individual memberships, according to the manager.

Response to statements mailed for membership dues on Sept. 20 has been very satisfactory, according to Touhy.

He explained that while heretofore firm memberships have been accepted on the same basis as individual memberships, with a

Searchers Find Body Of Girl, 6, In Eerie Setting

JOHNSTOWN, Pa. — A little girl was found dead early this morning in an eerie Halloween setting in a cemetery tax miles from her home in nearby Conemaugh.

A member of a searching party, hastily organized after the girl was reported missing by her parents, stumbled across the little body in a Halloween costume.

The girl was lying near her head in a bag of candy which she apparently had gathered in the traditional Halloween custom of "trick or treat."

Police identified the girl as six-year-old Karen Mauk. The cause of her death was not immediately determined. Deputy Cambria County Coroner Richard P. Wilkinson ordered an autopsy, but said there were "no visible marks" on Karen's body.

Police said they were working on several leads in the girl's death. The parents, Mr. and Mrs. William H. Mauk, said Karen had come home about 6:30 p. m. on Oct. 28, and had been missing about 8 p. m. to make the rounds of home begging for Halloween favors.

The reason for her disappearance was not clear. The girl's parents reported Karen missing about 8 p. m. and had searched the Conemaugh area for two hours without success, then the law search was limited to summer friends and volunteers to both in the search.

The body was discovered about 12:30 a. m. by Steve Sletch and Richard Barkley. It was taken to Johnston Memorial Hospital for the autopsy later.

Jack Fox, a photographer for the Johnston Herald, happened to reach the death scene shortly after Karen was found. He said she was lying on the ground near a road on the outskirts of a cemetery.

"She was absolutely nude," he said. "She was sprawled on her back and her poor little feet were clenched."

Research Team Says Reserpine Is 'Dramatic' Aid To Insane

CHICAGO — A research team today reported "dramatic" and "incredible" results in treating "hopelessly" insane patients with a new form of an old snakeroot remedy from India.

They said the drug, reserpine, brought improvement in 80 per cent of the 74 "back ward" mental hospital patients they treated. Eight have been discharged and 20 others have become so much better with continued use of the drug that they may be sent home on leaves of absence.

Reserpine also appeared to help mentally retarded patients.

The doctors said reserpine should not be regarded as a "panacea" in the treatment of the mentally ill and mentally retarded. However, if further studies bear out their results, they added, "reserpine will be the most important therapeutic development in the history of psychiatry."

They said they expect it to revolutionize present psychiatric treatment.

They added they believe reserpine can be substituted as superior for the often-feared electroconvulsive shock treatments in 75 per cent of mental cases.

Reserpine is a chemically pure derivative of rawolfia serpentina. This Indian plant has been used for centuries in the treatment of mental illness, insomnia, snake bite, anxiety states and other conditions. Lately it has been found effective in lowering blood pressure in hypertensive patients.

The team of American physicians, Drs. Robert H. Noyce and David B. Williams of Mofett, Calif., and Walter H. Rappaport of Sacramento, investigated reserpine because of recent enthusiastic reports from India on its effectiveness in mental illness.

They selected for their study only those mental patients at Mofett State Hospital with the poorest prospects for recovery.

Sergeant Is Sentenced To Life Imprisonment

TTUSVILLE (AP) — Herbert D. Denny, 28-year-old Air Force sergeant, was sentenced to life imprisonment today after a Circuit Court jury convicted him of raping a 19-year-old telephone worker but recommended mercy.

Circuit Judge Vassar B. Carlton imposed the life term mandatory under the verdict, crashed by pity when after an hour's deliberation Denny, who faces trial on another rape charge, showed no emotion and made no statement.

The teen-age victim of the attack on a lonely road, Ave. 4 pointed out Denny in a crowd of men yesterday in the man who raped her. She said she had a gun at her throat and "I was afraid he was going to kill me."

Denny denied the charge and said it was a case of mistaken identity. Both he and his wife testified they and their children attended a drive-in movie on the night of the attack.

The victim, a 22-year-old woman, complained that night she had about 100 candy.

The two women testified they were accosted at a street corner by a man who forced them at point-blank to get into his automobile and accompany him to an empty section where the attack occurred.

Denny from Denny, Tex., he also been charged with raping the wife of a Patrick Air Force Base resident.

Eye of All Hallows

Ten witches met in conclave at the brink of their inferno on All Hallows' Eve. Said one: "My point is merely this — I think we should give shaken mortals a reprieve. They've brewed enough of terror for themselves in their atomic pots and solder war pans." Another scoffed: "What are we, silly elves? That we should cancel all our spooky plans!" A third witch spoke with grave and candid air, "Let's face the truth: we're all afraid to roam on broomsticks through the eerie darkness where a mischievous trillium may go boom!" All seven others groaned, "Alas, it's thus! Meek men we used to frighten, now scare us!" —Ken Woodman

Sunday is the Feast of Christ the King, and is dedicated to the beautiful ideal of the Supreme Dominion of Christ over all the people of the world as their King, their Lord and Master, and their God. This Jesus himself claimed when Pilate asked him if he were a King. "Thou art then a king?" Jesus answered, "Thou sayest it: I am a king. This is why I was born, and why I have come into the world, to bear witness to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears my voice." (John 18:36-37).

TOUCHDOWN FOR YOU?

Watch that Quarterback carry the ball! He's over for a touchdown... and victory!
But it was more than an outstanding run by a great quarterback. The coach had carefully worked out the play. It had been practiced over and over. There were signals, blocking, deception—all according to pattern.
In the game of life, you must carry the ball. You must strive toward the goal. But you must not run blindly and without help. To win, you must run according to pattern—this one the Master Pattern—of love and brotherhood.
Come to Church. Learn how to live from Him who is the Master Coach. Win the victory of peace and salvation.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL... ALL FOR THE CHURCH
The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sources regularly every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

League Members Discourt Article

Three members of the Welfare League, Negro organization in Goldsboro, today emphasized that an article in yesterday's issue of The Herald, "Negro Publisher Speaks on Issue," was not known to the group in general prior to its publication.
 The league hasn't anything to do with Mr. Lee and his article, according to A. A. Fields, 1015 W. 12th St., who acted as spokesman for the trio, and stipulated the article "doesn't express our sentiments at all." Dixie Lee, Negro publisher of a daily newspaper in Washington, D. C., is the author of the article.
 Others with Fields were J. H. Ward, 119 W. 11th St., and J. J. Thompson, 1021 Avenida Ave. Fields also pointed out that J. W. Knowles, who brought the article up to The Herald, is not secretary of the league.
 Fields said he is willing to be governed by rules and laws of the United States government. The other two agreed.
 Lee's article dealt with the issue of segregation.

7 Cases Processed In Morning Session Of County Court

Seven cases were handled in County Court this morning as the docket moved into its final phase. John H. Jackson, 1021 Orange Ave., forfeited a $100 bond he had been charged with driving while under the influence of an intoxicating beverage.
 A case in which he is charged with assault and battery and failure to possess a driver's license was continued against Hodges Taylor, address unknown, when it was learned that state witnesses were not present in the court room.
 A case of aggravated assault against David Jackson, address unknown, was also continued for the same reason.
 The case in which the charge was possession of moonshine whiskey, had against Monte Boyce, 1017 W. 11th St., was postponed. Prosecutor Karoly Honebinder said, after Judge Ernest Housholder ruled in favor of a motion to suppress the evidence made by defense attorney Gordon Frederick. The prosecutor said this was done because the search warrant issued by the justice of the peace was found defective. This left the state without evidence, Housholder said.
 Moses Mill McQueen, Winter Park, was found guilty of reckless driving and fined $10 and $100 bond.

Forest Rangers In New Uniform

"Keep Florida Green" has been taken quite seriously by the Florida Forest Service as its members blossom out in new green and khaki uniforms this month.
 A veteran County Ranger Joe Ramsey said that the new uniforms were chosen after a statewide vote by Florida Forest Service employees on whether or not to wear them at all. The majority favored the distinctive garb and Oetler was designated the month of metamorphosis.
 All field personnel will wear the forest green trousers and khaki shirts with green tie white or khaki undershirts. Assistant County Ranger Ramsey said.
 Shoulder patches identifying the wearer as a member of the Florida Forest Service have been designed and will be worn on the left arm.

 Owner Charlie Booth told the Escambia County sheriff's office that the money, hidden in the office, was gone when he opened for business yesterday. He said he did not own a safe.
 Booth said a rear door was opened from the inside, indicating that someone hid in the store until after he closed.

W. Virginians Tired Of Being Orphans

MORGANTOWN, W. Va. (AP)—They feel they're the "orphans" of college football and West Virginia's big, tough Mountaineers are out to prove Saturday they rightfully belong among the sports heavyweights.
 Undefeated and seventh-ranked nationally, they play rebounding Pittsburgh Saturday in their traditional rivalry. If they win, the Mountaineers appear headed for a certain perfect season and a first season bowl bid.

BLAKANG MATI, Malaya (AP)—A British Army courtmartial today sentenced Maj. John Charles Moore, a 47-year-old career soldier, to be severely reprimanded and lose one year's seniority for photographing a member of the Women's Royal Army Corps in the nude.
 Moore pleaded guilty to associating with Corp Joan Cheverton and allowing her to enter his billet and to photographing her in "a state of undress."
 In a statement read to the court Moore said he was teaching Cheverton diving at her request. On one occasion she followed him into his billet and browsed through a book of photographs including nude studies.
 The statement said she agreed when he asked her to model for him. She undressed and lay on his bed and he photographed her. He denied that anything improper took place.

Two Commissioners To Be Named At City Election Next Tuesday

On Tuesday, city voters will be given the opportunity to select two commissioners to take part in the administration of City affairs for the next three years.

Now, the workings of our City commission is not a matter to be taken lightly—although considerable apathy has been evidenced on the public's part in its past dealings with our City government.

Operating the City government is big business. The budget formulated by the present commission for the 1954-55 fiscal year totals $826,873.27.

A program for improvement of the City's water and sewerage facilities is running over $1.5 million.

Old indebtedness amounts to about $4 million.

Our city government should be run by intelligent, hard-working, civic-minded, efficient commissioners. For a job as commissioner, the pay is small, only $5 per regular meeting, so there is not much incentive as far as pay is concerned.

However there is a certain amount of prestige to being on the commission and there should be a feeling by a commissioner of wanting to promote the City's best interests.

Commissioner candidates are as follows: Group I, Commr. John Kader, incumbent who is a local jeweler, and Jack Ratigan, manager of Seminole County Motors.

Group II, Ewing Dean, associated with

TODAY'S BIBLE VERSE

Have I not seen Jesus Christ our Lord? —Corinthians 9:1. Paul saw a convincing vision of Christ that transformed his life. In this century a similar vision appeared to a certain depraved degenerate man named Jamison in Delaware, Ohio. His life was utterly transformed and he became a saint with radiant face and spotless life. Men still living in this college town agree he became the most outstanding saint they ever saw.

Glamour Boy Does Not Hold Appeal

NEW YORK — Many wives of three businessmen think their lives would be more exciting if they were married to a glamorous stage or screen star.
But pretty, blonde Louise Hoff, a small town Indiana dancer who is now in the big time as a singing comedienne, wouldn't marry a glamour boy if she won him in a bingo game.
"I've never gone for them—they don't appeal to me," said Louise, who is currently starred in the musical revue, "Bon Voyage," at the plush Versailles supper club. "I'm too much of a farm girl."

Louise intends to stay a bachelor girl until her dream man comes along, and her dream man is the guy some wives complain is a boring nightmare—a substantial, level-headed businessman.
"I've met all kinds of men," she said, "and I don't think you can beat a businessman for a husband—a good solid citizen, but one who doesn't overdo being solid."
"I've never even been tempted to marry anyone in show business, although I love show business. People are always asking me why I don't get married. But when you're two weeks here, and two weeks there, how can you, unless you believe in making snap judgments? I've got that plodding Hoosier mind. I like to think things through."

Louise shocked the strict Quakers of her native metropolis—Spiceland, Ind., population, 600—when she started her dancing career at the age of 13. But her home town is proud of her now, and Spiceland is still the only place Louise calls home.
"You don't need a street address there," she said, "and everybody in town calls me 'Sis.'"
Recently her Aunt Ernie Risk and her grandmother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hoff, who reared Louise after her mother died in childbirth, came to visit her here. Mrs. Hoff, a redoubtable lady of 82, immediately plugged in the hearing aid she refuses to wear back home, and announced:
"After all, there's something to hear here. I've already heard everything in Spiceland."
The party old lady fell in love with New York City and when it was time to leave, she remarked wistfully: "I'd like to live here. There's so much going on. Nothing's going to look good back in Spiceland when I get home."

Appliances Movable

NEW YORK — There's a movable version of almost every appliance in the kitchen today but the kitchen sink and even in that line there's an automatic dishwasher you can wheel around the house. America's changing living habits have brought this about since the war—mostly in the last year or two. Stoves, ovens, electric sauce pans, dishwashers have joined the electric coffeepot and toaster as items that can be used in the dining or livingroom or out on the lawn, or taken in the family car to the summer camp.

Smaller houses call for smaller, portable kitchen appliances. Many a housewife likes to do her kitchen work in the living room, watching the soap operas on TV, or out in the patio with the family in the evening.

Sales have been booming. Take just one field, infrared broilers. Sales didn't start in volume until 1950. In 1951 the industry sold nine million dollars worth, the next year 13 million dollars, and last year 22 million. Some industry spokesmen are talking confidently of 100 million dollars of retail sales or better this year.

The broilers or ovens are now found in about 10 per cent of all electrically wired homes. A dozen companies are in the field, Competition is bitter.

Roto-Broil Corp. of America estimates sales of its broilers should top 35 million dollars this year at retail prices.

Peerless Electric Inc. says sales of its Broil-quick, at wholesale, rose from less than one million dollars in 1950 to 10 million last year. In the first six months of this year, its sales were more than double those for the same period last year.

When sales showed signs of slowing down late this spring, companies brought out new accessories. Peerless added a baking tray, a corn popper and a frying device.

Restyling has been a major trend in the infrared cooking field this year. The broilers were made socially acceptable in the living room or at garden parties.

Taking a look at the new trends in home living, Westinghouse restyled its electric roaster-oven this summer, adding an infrared broiler grill, a look-in glass panel and even makes a sort of cart for wheeling it about.

For the housewife who likes to cook elsewhere than in the kitchen, boat-shaped cooker with built in heating unit that deep fries, boils soup, pops corn or bakes apples wherever you plug it in.

Nesco Inc. has brought out a four-quart electric saucepan, with built in heating unit, so that the housewife can cook where she will, anything that normally would be done on top of a burner in the kitchen stove.

Adenauer Called "Mr. Germany"

WASHINGTON, Oct. 29 — "Mr. Germany" comes to town today. Konrad Adenauer, chancellor of the Federal Republic of Germany, might reject that title. And a great many of his fellow Germans might have misgivings. The idea of wrapping up a whole nation, or even half a nation, in the person of one man seems to have perished there with Adolf Hitler.

Still, Adenauer is a symbol of the West to most other Western countries. Since the deaths of Ernest Reuter and Kurt Schumacher, he is about the only West German political figure whose name is widely known in the United States.

He occupies a dominant position in the eyes of Western political leaders who deal with Germany. It is a respected position. Secretary of State Dulles went out of his way, in addressing Monday night's televised Cabinet meeting, to praise Adenauer as a "great statesman."

Many of these political figures can't figure out who the Germans have to fill Adenauer's shoes when, inevitably, the time comes for someone else to become chancellor. And Adenauer will be 79 next January. Only Winston Churchill, among the West's political leaders, is older. Churchill will be 80 Nov. 30.

In a real sense Adenauer can be called the "father" of the new West Germany. He directed the drawing up of the basic law which set up the Bonn Republic. Actually, this law is a constitution but Adenauer prefers not to use that word until such time as it can apply to a united Germany.

Just when East and West Germany can be brought together under such a constitution, nobody in a responsible post cares to predict. But Adenauer — like Dulles, British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden and most others who were involved — say that day may well have been brought nearer by the agreements reached in the past few weeks at London and Paris.

By means of these agreements Germany changes from an occupied country to a practically sovereign member of the Western defense system.

That means 12 German divisions, some 500,000 men, along the Iron Curtain by the spring of 1957, if all goes according to plan.

It also means a voice for Germany in all the cold war planning of the West. And as the voice of a much strengthened country in Europe's strategic heartland, a country whose eastern half is occupied by the Red army, this promises to be a firm and influential voice.

So Adenauer comes to Washington today as a bigger man than he was on his last visit.

That was in April 1953. Soviet Premier Stalin had died not long before, and the whole world wondered if a change in Russia's attitude toward the West might follow. Adenauer was one of those who cautioned against too rosy expectations.

Mario Lanza Says He Refused Offer Of $100 Thousand

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—How would you like to earn $100,000 for an afternoon's work?
Impossible, you say? Yet Mario Lanza claims he was offered such a deal.
"When I was in Palm Springs last year," said the bulky tenor, "my agent came to me with an offer from the Metropolitan Opera House. Rudolf Bing offered me $100,000 to sing one opera on one of their shows to be sent to various theaters throughout the country via theater television."
Lanza denied making the offer and added: "Who is he? Oh, that folk tenor. I heard a few of his records the other day. I hardly know the man and I'm not altogether sure I would want to do that. I do know that none of our singers would sing for such chicken feed as $100,000."
Lanza said he turned down the offer. He said he'll accept when the money is $150,000. But he added:
"Money, it is nothing. Absolutely nothing to me. But unfortunately money is the standard by which you are judged in this business."
Concern over money is one of the principal causes of Lanza's two-year retirement after being on top of the show business world. He had been earning a million a year, yet the United States slapped a lien on his earnings for back income taxes. The blow added to his emotional upset.
"The government claimed I owed a quarter of a million dollars," he reported. "In the past year, I have paid them over a quarter million, but I am still behind, according to them. I still must pay income tax on the money I earned to pay them!"
His entire $100,000 check for his TV debut—the celebrated "record session"—went to Uncle Sam.
"But I am very fortunate," Lanza said. "In six or eight months of work I can wipe out everything I owe."
Judging from his offers, that is no idle boast. His agents report that he has received deals of much more than $50,000 a week from Las Vegas casinos. Lanza said he does not consider them. He is opposed to singing in night clubs.
How is he going to recover his financial stability?
He is starting with the TV appearances. He does one Thursday and another Nov. 18. He plans to make personal appearances in a few weeks. He will start off with dates with symphony orchestras in the East, singing a few songs on the program. A full-scale concert tour will follow after he makes a movie.
His agents say a movie deal will be announced any day.
"Whatever I make will be 50 per cent of the profits," Lanza said. "Several studios have been perfectly willing to go for such deals. They said I could write my own ticket."
Lanza said that his fans have

Eggs for Halloween Favors

Which is witch? None! They're all good eggs in witches' hats. Twist collars into circles of size to hold eggs and fasten with paste. Then paste names of guests on collars.
Make witches' hats by joining the two straight edges of the crown on the inside with cellulose tape. Attach crown to hat band with more tape. Use pieces of wool yarn for witch's hair by pasting to under side of brim.
When hand-cooking eggs, cover them in pan with water to come at least one-inch above eggs. After bringing rapidly to boiling, turn off heat. Cover and let stand 15 minutes. Then cool promptly and thoroughly in cold water. This helps prevent dark surface on yolks.

OUR COVER

Pretty little Rose Anne Fowler is stirring up for Halloween a real witches brew from her Bugs Bunny "Cookbook." Rose Anne, who is the three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fowler, of Palatka, stoutly maintains that the kitten she is holding is NOT to be included in the brew, but is a necessary part of a real scary Halloween. Our little Cover Girl may be seen Halloween night, soaring over Palatka aboard her broomstick. Incidentally, she put a "hex" on our photographer, Trent Rogers, in case "my picture isn't pretty." Rogers should be safe, because her picture is pretty.

Loved the cover on the Oct. 3 issue of All Florida — except it didn't seem quite as clear as some of your others. But the subject was great. It seemed so typical of the family problem, the 10 year old who gets into everything.

TELL US MORE, WE LOVE IT

At one of our recent civic club meetings a few of our members got to talking about the vital need for a Florida-wide publication that would bring to the fore in variety form the vast number of interesting things we have in our state.

Several of us who read your magazine regularly, pointed out that All Florida Magazine fulfills this very need, and while we appreciate the fact that it is still small when compared with other magazines of much older existence, I feel that you should know that we think All Florida has come a long way, and that in time it will become almost what you can call an "institution" in Florida. Your articles, stories, features, and all are well selected and what is most important, I think, it has a special appeal to old and young, resident and non-resident. What more could one ask?

I shall watch All Florida grow and grow with interest and pride.

MAKING this "Nativity Scene" can be the start of many pleasant hours for the entire family. Everyone should help.

Most of us lose sight of the wonder of Christmas in our mad dash through the last days of December. Why not start enjoying the "spirit" long about the first day of the month, if not sooner. Get your plans started well in advance. You will gain many pleasant hours.

Today, as you drive through the countryside, you can see the universal spirit of Christmas depicted by beautiful Nativity scenes outside homes and churches. Such scenes are made of rough boards, straw, etc. The figures may be moulded or cut out of plywood.

The pattern offered below provides full-size cutting guides for making the stable, manger and entire group of 11 figures. The stable measures 16 inches wide by 14 inches high, an ideal size for use on a table or below the Christmas tree.

Each figure is traced on panel board or fibreboard and then cut to exact shape of the pattern. The figures are then painted the colors the pattern specifies. Guidelines separate each color, for professional results.

Symphony in Sports

By BOB BALFE
All Florida Sports Editor

A whirring hum with a staccato beat. Some folks call it plain old noise, but the outboard racing enthusiasts call it the sweetest symphony in sports.

That will be a theme song next weekend, Nov. 6-7 at St. Petersburg, when the State Championship outboard races are held under sanction of the Florida Federation of Outboard Clubs.

Boats of varying descriptions and sizes will converge on the Sunshine City for two days of competition in trials and finals in 11 different classes, to decide as many state championships.

Some of the FFOC boats are hydroplanes, which literally fly across the water and have earned for their drivers the nickname "Shingle jockeys." Other boats are more conventional runabout types. In addition the motors are classified in A, B and C ratings by mechanical standards. So the program won't lack for variety.

Outboard enthusiasts in the FFOC have other activities, including popular club cruises and weekend fishing tournaments, FLORIDA OUTBOARD racer, Chris Erneston, West Palm Beach, with a few of his trophies collected in the process of winning two world championships.

REGGIE HURLEY, West Palm Beach, is president of the Florida Federation of Outboard Clubs.

but the State Championship racing, of course, is the high note in the annual activity, climaxing the year-long series of events to determine high point winners by classes.

Although there have been Florida winners and record setters in outboard racing on a national scale in the past, the FFOC gained its greatest glory only last month when one of its members, Chris Erneston, Jr., of West Palm Beach, won four "World" titles in a national regatta in Indianapolis, Ind.

Erneston, a professional merchandiser, this week spends his holidays in boating and he has the makings of the top world champion. He took along two hulls, one about and hydroplane, and two motors, won two firsts and two seconds in the five events in which he could compete. A and B Stock Hydro and A and B Outboard runabouts.

While the St. Petersburg races will climax the year's program, the FFOC is already looking ahead to a long series of sanctioned races in the coming years.

In addition, the Southeast Region of the American Power Boat Association, which directs racing in both inboard and outboard classes, has mapped the annual "Grapefruit Circuit" which not only attracts Florida's top racing bugs, but also national water pilots.

LIKE AN airplane landing, this is a three-point hydroplane, so called because at high speed it touches water only at sides and with the motor at the stern.

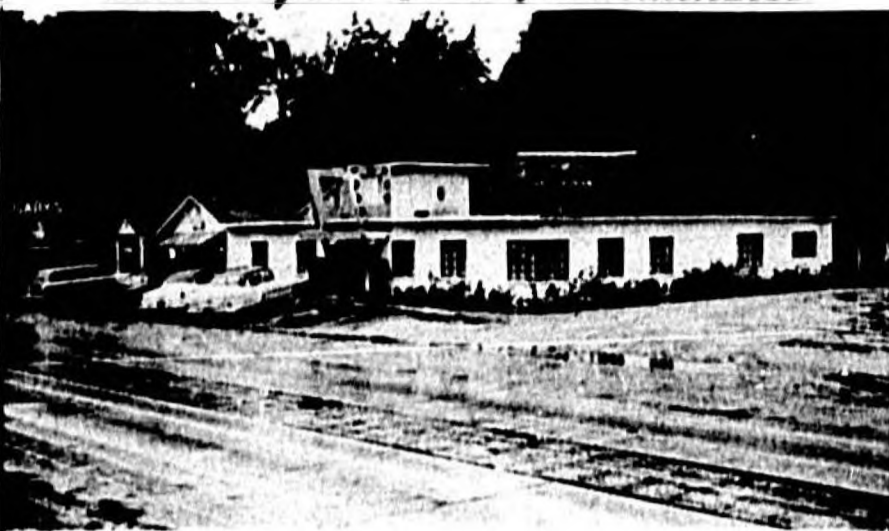

COMPLETELY OUT of water at times, these high-powered outboard racers require exceptional skill to operate, particularly on curves.

LAKE BOAT outboards, too, get into the Florida racing act. Normally used for fishing and pleasure, these powerful little boats provide plenty of thrills when racing.

Edison

By

ROBERT K. PEPPER

AMERICA'S thriving electrical industry is observing Light's Diamond Jubilee throughout 1951—the 75th anniversary of Thomas A. Edison's invention of the incandescent lamp. Edison demonstrated the first practical electric light on Oct. 21, 1879, 75 years ago this month. The lamp burned for 40 hours—and touched off a revolution in the American way of living.

Since the jubilee revolves around Edison, it may be interesting to recall some of the great inventor's adventures and experiments in Florida, where he made his winter home for nearly half a century.

It was in the fall of 1884 that Edison, in poor health and weary from his arduous labors, first came to Florida seeking rest and relaxation. He arrived in St. Augustine by railroad, but found the weather unusually wet and disagreeable. He crossed the state to the tiny port of Cedar Keys on the Gulf of Mexico, and from there he drifted southward by schooner. Early in 1885 he reached Punta Rassa, a small settlement which had gained some fame as the site of the telegraph station linking the United States and Cuba.

Here the Caloosahatchee River empties into the Gulf, and Edison heard stories of a remote up-river village, marked by immense clumps of bamboo. At this time the inventor was experimenting with the charred fibers of bamboo in seeking to perfect his light filament, and so he decided to investigate.

Edison was charmed by the sleepy, tropical town. He immediately purchased a 15-acre tract, and determined to build a hideaway here. He had a house prefabricated in Maine, and shipped to Fort Myers by schooner where it was assembled by local carpenters. Although designed for tropical living with wide breezeways and huge screened porches, the house has a touch of New England with its colored window panes, many fireplaces and graceful, rambling style.

Edison brought his bride, Mina Miller, to Fort Myers in 1886, and they lived in "honeymoon cottage" on the estate until the home was completed.

Today the Edison Home stands exactly as he built it, although it is now hidden in a maze of tropical palms and shrubbery. The Edison Estate was decided to the City of Fort Myers in 1947, by his widow, and is now open to the public as a memorial in his honor.

EDISON'S LABORATORY at Fort Myers where he extracted rubber from Florida goldenrod in one of his last major experiments.

NOW A public shrine this is a wing of Thomas Alva Edison's home at Ft Myers, one of the first in the world to be entirely illuminated by electric lights

in Florida

During the Jubilee year, Edison's Home has been of especial interest to visitors because it was one of the first in the world to be completely lighted by electricity. Edison had a dynamo shipped from his New Jersey laboratories, and the lights were first turned on Saturday night, March 27, 1882, when the whole town turned out to witness the miracle of science.

After Edison vanished in his tropical retreat, the world became increasingly concerned about his health. Despite the fact that Fort Myers was inaccessible by road or railway, the New York World sent a reporter 1,500 miles to interview a man they supposed was "dying slowly but surely in the agonies of consumption."

"Never felt better in my life," Edison was quoted by the enterprising newsman, Sydney Smith. "The air here is perfect; the weather, as you see, is beautiful, and the days are a constant succession of blue skies and warm sunshine. To this I owe my rapidly returned health."

Fort Myers just missed being one of the first villages in America to have electric street lights. The files of the Old Fort Myers Press disclose this story clipped from the New York Tribune, which says in part:

"Many things are being said about Fort Myers, Fla., on account of its being the winter home of Thomas A. Edison, the inventor. In spite of its prominence, it is a very small town, having less than 300 inhabitants (Editor's Note: The population is nearer 500.)

"Edison's place is a mile from the village. He has a laboratory there and a large workshop where he pursues his experiments in electricity. His villa and grounds are lighted with electric lights.

"Recently he offered to light the town with electricity, if the citizens would put up the funds for poles and wires, which they did, and now the road leading to the house, as well as the little village, is nightly illuminated as brightly as any place in New York."

Unfortunately, the New York paper was slightly premature. Edison returned to his northern laboratories in the spring of 1882 with the street lighting project still in the planning stage, and he apparently dropped it in the press of other activities. It was not until 1898 that the town of Fort Myers had a light plant, installed by a local citizen, A. A. Gardner.

The rush of modern civilization, with its wars and depressions, and atomic bombs has dimmed the luster, and grip on the world's imagination, that Edison enjoyed in the latter part of the 19th century. But the files of the old Fort Myers Press reveal some fantastic Edison lore which is not recorded in the history books of today. There is this item from the issue of March 17, 1882:

"Mr. Edison, the great electrician, has arrived in Fort Myers and is playing havoc with the fish. It is said that he runs a wire on the bottom of the Gulf of Mexico on rice and electricity all the fish that come near and they rise to the surface dead. Fish thus electrified will keep indefinitely without ice."

A "special dispatch" from Washington disclosed that W. A. Croft, not otherwise identified, had slyly revised the old tale of a "food manufacturing machine," attributing the invention to Edison.

Mr. Edison wrote: "Your hope is so feasible that I do not know but that it may some time or other be realized. I am getting 20 to 30 letters a day inquiring about food machines."

Among letters Edison received receiving was one from a Florida man, who said:

"My dear sir, I am a fan of yours down here, and hope you will be (Continued on page 15)

THE ASHLEY GANG

The Terror-Ridden Story of Florida's Most Infamous Band of Pirate - Robbers

By P. O. GORDER

PART I

KILLER - Bandit - Robber - Outlaw - Pirate

Those six-letter words denoting death, terror and violence, may well be said to be almost synonymous with another six-letter word that struck deadly fear into the hearts of thousands of Floridians a generation ago.

That word is ASHLEY.

It is the name of a desperado who blazed a trail of murder and terrorism with his hair-trigger pistols and high-power rifles up and down the East Coast of Florida for 13 years before he was cut down in a bloodbath with three of his companions in crime. November, 1934, marked the 30th anniversary of that crimson event.

Like the more recent Dillinger of equal infamy, Ashley's first name was John.

John Ashley?

There are many still alive today who remember that name—a name that has gone down in the history of crime in Florida as that of a young man who spread a reign of terror across the state, the like of which has not been equalled before or since.

The story of John Ashley and his gang is a fearful one. It is a story of a man who dedicated his life to the violation of law, without mercy or scruples. But he died with his boots on, as the saying goes, and at the hands of the law which he despised and defied so long, but which he was unable to conquer.

IT WAS this man, Sheriff R. C. (Bob) Baker who was credited with exterminating the Ashley gang.

PAGE 8—All Florida Magazine

JOHN ASHLEY in Raiford Prison just previous to his escape from a road gang. Ashley was 28 years old when this was taken. He was killed not long afterwards.

John Ashley was one of five boys in the family of Joe Ashley, who moved from West Florida to South Florida in 1901. John was then 11 years old. The father, whose occupation was that of a woodchopper, had been attracted to South Florida when he heard that a new empire was being hewed out of the wilderness by a Henry M. Flagler.

Little is known of the family from 1901 to 1911, except for a short time when John worked in a packing house at Pompano. In 1911 the family moved to the West Palm Beach area, but John, who had become an expert trapper, preferred to spend much of his time in the deep fastness of the Everglades.

Perhaps the first chapter in the bloody career of John Ashley, who was then about 18 years old, began on Dec. 29, 1911, at a lonely spot about 30 miles northwest of Fort Lauderdale, where a dredge was digging the canal from that city to Lake Okechobee.

On that December day the dredge scooped up the body of a Seminole Indian, who obviously had been murdered. The body was soon identified as that of DeSoto Tiger, a trapper, by Sheriff George B. Baker, first sheriff of Palm Beach County, which had just been created from a part of Dade County.

Suspicion pointed to John Ashley when it was learned that he was the last man to have been seen with the Indian as the two of them set out from a camp in the Everglades with a boatload of furs. And the suspicion turned to almost conclusive evidence when it was discovered that Ashley had sold the furs in Miami for more than $1,000.

The search for Ashley began, and Sheriff

Baker had been tipped off that Ashley was in hiding near Hobe Sound. Deputy Sheriffs Robert Hannon of West Palm Beach and S. A. Barfield of Pahokee, were sent to Hobe Sound by Sheriff Baker. They found Ashley, but in a manner they least expected. While pushing their way through the brush, the two officers suddenly found themselves looking into the muzzles of pistols held by Ashley and his brother, Bob. Disarming the deputies, the Ashleys were quoted later as telling them to "tell Baker not to send any more chicken-hearted men or they might get hurt." There the trail ended, temporarily.

John Ashley was later traced to New Orleans, and from there he is said to have gone to the Pacific Northwest, where he worked in a logging camp. One story head about him is that while in the Northwest he boasted of having robbed a bank in Canada, but this was never sustained.

Two years passed without any word of John Ashley. It was not until in early 1914 that Sheriff Baker received word that he had returned to Palm Beach County and was at his former headquarters near Gomez in the northern part of the county. Ashley sent word to Baker that he was weary of evading the law and wanted to surrender. A meeting was arranged and Ashley was taken into custody and brought to jail in West Palm Beach, where Robert (Bob) C. Baker, son of the sheriff, served as deputy and jailer.

When Ashley's trial was started in the courthouse at West Palm Beach, the first day's proceedings ended in a dispute between attorneys over an attempt to change the trial place to Dade County. This angered Ashley and a host of his relatives who were in town for the trial, and that evening Ashley escaped by scaling a high wire fence surrounding the jail yard. His trial led into the Everglades where he had ransacked a Negro's shack for food and stolen a shotgun.

The amazing underground methods of communication soon brought the Ashley gang together again, consisting of John, the leader, his brother Bob, a "Kid" Lowe, who had fled to Florida from Chicago, another desperado known as "Arizona Kid," and Ike Mitchell. And perhaps there were others. It was then that the gang planned to stage a train robbery in Dade County, but this reportedly failed when the gang members got into an argument about how the holdup was to be carried out.

But on Feb. 23, 1915, the terror of the Ashley gang exploded with full force when the outlaws suddenly appeared in Stuart and robbed the Stuart Bank of approximately $4,300. A. R. Wallace, bank teller, was covered with a rifle in the hands of a youth later identified as Clyde Caldwell, another member of the notorious band. While Caldwell was ordering Wallace

The photograph of John Ashley on this page and other photographs of the Ashley Gang which will appear next week with Part II of the story on the operations in Florida and final extermination of the notorious gang of gunmen and robbers were furnished All Florida Magazine through courtesy of L. F. Chapman, superintendent of Florida State Prison at Raiford.

around, Ashley appeared with a pistol in each hand, and with him was "Kid" Lowe. After dumping all available cash into a bag, the bandits forced a bank customer to drive them out of town. However, before leaving, Ashley lined up the bank employees and a few customers, and warned them of death if they attempted any "funny business."

Some Wild West style gun play followed, and "Kid" Lowe accidentally shot Ashley in the face, destroying his left eye. This led to his early capture as Ashley needed medical attention.

Eventually Ashley was taken to Miami to be tried for the murder of DeSoto Tiger, Palm Beach County retaining a hold order on him for the Stuart robbery.

But with Ashley in Miami, it was not long until blood flowed in the streets of that city.

Rumors had been circulated there that members of the gang were determined to free their leader, and on June 2, 1915, the futile but bloody attempt was made.

Bob Ashley, armed with a rifle, went to the residence of W. C. Hendrickson, jailer, adjoining the Dade County Jail, to force him to free his brother, and in the argument Ashley shot and killed Hendrickson. Commandeering a car and driver, Ashley attempted to flee, but the shooting and subsequent uproar attracted the attention of Miami Police Officer Robert Riblett, who gave chase. In the gun battle that followed, both Bob Ashley and Riblett died—killing each other.

In a spirit of revenge for the death of Bob Ashley, gang members threatened to "shoot up" the town, but this threat was never carried out, as the DeSoto Tiger murder charge against John Ashley was quashed after he had been in jail until November, 1916, when he was removed to West Palm Beach to face trial for the Stuart robbery.

Surprisingly, Ashley pleaded guilty and was sentenced to 17 years at Raiford, entering the prison on Nov. 25, 1916. But Ashley had no idea of staying there, so he mapped a plan. He decided to become a "model" prisoner so he would be sent to some road camp, from which he could escape. His ambition was realized on March 31, 1918, when he and Tom Maddox, also a bank robber, were sent out to work in a prison camp.

They fled the camp almost immediately, rejoining Lowe and Ashley's two brothers, Ed and Frank, who were engaged in rum-running between West End in the Bahama Island group and the Florida East Coast. But some new chapters were soon to be written in the life book of John Ashley and his gang.

Details of a long series of crimes and how John Ashley finally came to the end of his bloody trail will be told in Part II in next week's issue of All Florida Magazine.

PETER F. COLE

A Florida Commentator's 20 Years With Death At The 'Mike'

THAT title doesn't come easy. To get it, you'd have to spend around 20 years with races, thrill shows, vaudeville acts, chills, spills and ulcers. You'd have to work in wayside towns, and big cities. You'd become used to seeing death laughed at, and dared, crowds up to 81,000 and a lot less. You'd have to see many of your best friends die, smashed to pieces, in an attempt to thrill the customers. After this, you could claim the title of "Mr. Speedway . . . In Person."

Reed McConaghy, of Lake Worth, has that title and it looks as though no one will challenge him for it. For the past 20 years Reed has lived with death, and is still doing it. Over the years Reed, who is a track commentator, has worked at such showplaces of speed as Roosevelt Raceway, Langborne, Daytona Beach, and practically every major fairground and racetrack in the East and Middle West, announcing midget and big car racing of every description, with such notable drivers as Bill Cummings, Tazio Nuvolari, Wilbur Shaw, Ted Horn, Rex Mays, Bill Schindler, Mauri Rose, George Robson, Bill Holland and Lee Wallard. The names of the famous and near famous in show business are many, for Reed has introduced or worked with such notables as Paul Whiteman, Tex Beneke, Louis Prima, Sally Rand, Beatrice Kay, Judy Canova, Gary Cooper, Jackie Cooper, Clyde Beatty, Bob Burns, Gene Autry, Marion Hutton, Jack Dempsey, Mickey Walker, Jack Johnson, Babe Ruth, Gertrude Ederle, Bill Tilton, Harold Hoffman, Jimmy Walker, Bert Acosta, Clarena Chamberlain, and many others, including top acts in show business that worked on the same bill as Reed in the hundreds of cities. During the thrill shows that formed slightly less than half of the time, Reed introduced these top acts along with the daredevil drivers of such groups as Ralph Hankinson, Sam Nunis, Bill France, Jack Kochman, and perhaps the greatest of them all—Lucky Teter. Reed knew Lucky for many years and worked with him on many of his thrill shows.

For the younger generation who never knew "Lucky" Teter, he was and still is considered the best, and the hosts of daredevils who came after have carried on the tradition. In just one stunt "Lucky" has no followers and, strangely enough, that is the stunt that killed him! This will be the second time in 12 years that Reed has been called upon to tell the story of "Lucky's" last leap . . . to death!

It happened back on July 5, 1942, and the place—Indiana State Fair Grounds at Indianapolis. "The show this day," as Reed tells it, "climaxed a three-day presentation for Army Relief. Lucky knew that with the wartime restrictions on cars and tires, plus his entry into the Ordnance Corps, spelled the end of Lucky Teter and his Hell Drivers, so the afternoon of the 5th Lucky called all his drivers together, thanked them, and broke the news."

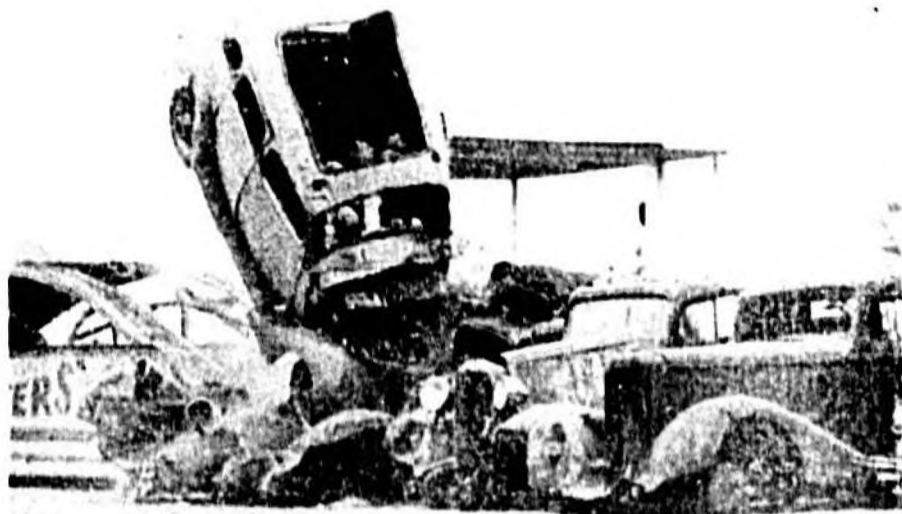

—Reed goes on to say, "I missed Lucky close to show time and when I found him in his tent he was sitting down with his head cradled in his arms. I asked him if he was ok, and all he would say was, 'I'm so tired, Reed, so tired.' No one in the vast crowd outside knew the great Lucky Teter wouldn't be tired for long. It came show time and the Daredevil Drivers went through their paces, with the Oh-hi's and Ah's of the crowd mingled with lusty applause. Then came the big moment—the siren screaming for the 150-foot ramp to ramp jump for life by Lucky Teter. As usual, just before his stunt Lucky would be introduced, take the mike, and say a few words to the fans crowding the stands. But this evening, after I introduced him and he left the stands, he suddenly turned, came back, and thanked the 20 officers who had cooperated with him in presenting the show. I took back the mike, and as Lucky went down to his car I began telling the crowd what would happen, that Lucky would come roaring down the track up on ramp, go flying across a truck and trailer parked lengthwise, and come crashing down onto the second ramp. I watched him start up, and right away I notice something is wrong. It's that crazy feeling you get. Anyway, along the back stretch I can hear Lucky's motor missing and sputtering, and I'm sure he'll either pull in and change cars or take another turn around the track. Then suddenly, with a sputtering roar, I see Lucky has entered the straightaway and on the first ramp, roaring up into the air, over the truck and trailer, but he fails to make it and his car crashes into the second ramp with the leading edge crashing through the wind shield into his chest. It was awful, with the dust settling on the infield, the crowd up on its feet and yelling. My wife Margaret, who is a trained nurse, elbowed her way to the track, but even before she came back and quietly said, 'Teter is dead.' I knew the world had lost its most daring driver and I had lost a good friend. The world mourned him that day, for every newspaper in America and Canada, as well as across the world, carried the story of his death, with the headline topping the latest war news. But it's all in the game, they all stand a chance of going.

Reed tells this story quietly, because that's the kind of guy he is, quiet and pleasant. His serious brown eyes sparkle, though, when he tells the story of the driver in one of the thrill shows who had both a girl friend and a wife. He made a date with both of them, accidentally one day to see his crash dive into a pile of punkers. "He survived the crash alright," says Reed, "but he didn't have the courage to get out of his car after it." This daring kid stayed in the partly wrecked car until the ambulance took him off the field, whereupon he yells, 'Let me out of here!

Let me out of here!' Of course, the straddle ambulance man let him out, and he promptly caught the first train out of town. So humor and tragedy go hand in hand, by as Reed says, "In this business, tragedy leads the way." And now, after reading it far, you may ask, "What does he do now after being in the thrill and being famous all this time?" As you may think, he's still in the racing business. Every Saturday night, at the Palm Beach Speedway, Mr. Speedway can be found and giving machine-gun like commentary as the race cars go roaring around the track. Reed's spunky young drivers who will just kill when Reed McConaghy was here as a microphone 20 years ago. Reed is a regular announcer had a field.

He still uses a "mike" at the track, in other at the many boxing and wrestling matches, and still another on the air one week at WFLA, West Palm Beach.

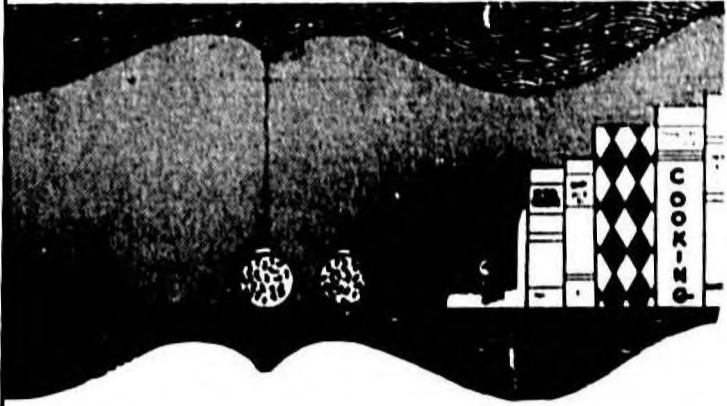

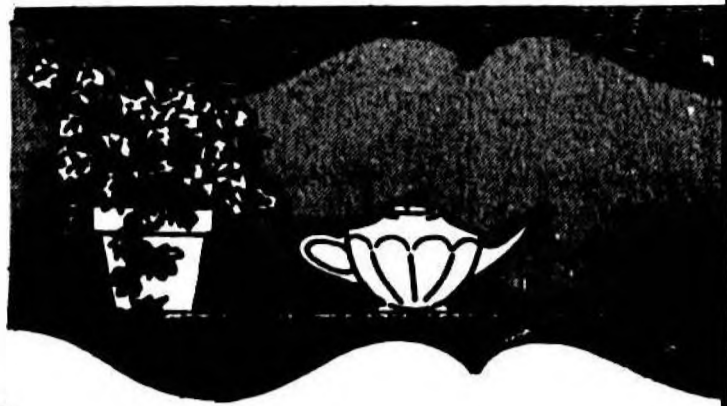

IT WAS this type of stunt that brought death to the famed Lucky Teter, but only after he had successfully completed his breath taking leap thousands of times at tracks over the nation.

IN our sunny state of Florida, there may be found a gold mine of attractive citrus fruit. These fruits, well known to most of us as kumquats, limequats, orangequats, calamondins, tangelos, tangerines, pomelos, sweet and sour Seville oranges, lemons and limes and many others, combine into many delightful and delicious culinary uses. Anyone interested in preserving this sunny gold for their pantry shelf may enter a wide and useful field as a Florida homemaker.

With the opening of the Florida citrus season in the fall and winter months, these colorful and flavorful citrus fruits should receive the enthusiastic attention of the particular housewife who wishes to add interest and enjoyment to her menu. One of the many ways to do this is in the making of jellies and marmalades.

Of all the many fruit jams and jellies, citrus marmalades and jellies are the best suited for serving with hot toast, muffins and biscuits. The orange best suited for making marmalade is the Seville or sour orange, which was brought to Florida during the days of the early Spanish explorers. Grapefruit, of course, substitutes admirably for the sour orange where that bitter-sweet flavor is desired.

A good marmalade should be bright and clear, free from all cloudiness, with the pulp and peel suspended in the jellied juice. The jelly should be soft enough to spread easily, the peeling, having been thinly sliced, should be evenly distributed throughout. Most citrus fruits cook to the utmost transparency. However, the sweet orange and some few others do not.

Pectin, as well as acid, is necessary for making high quality jellies and marmalades. Citrus fruits in general are rich in pectin when used at the proper stage of maturity. A powdered pectin made from lemons may be purchased at your grocery store when additional pectin is required and used when the condition of the fruit is questioned.

If a test for pectin is desired, denatured alcohol may be used. Put a tablespoon of the cooled jelly stock into a small glass or cup. Gently add to this one tablespoon of alcohol. Mix by gently turning the container from side to side. Let stand half a minute. If the pectin forms a single large lump of jelly-like material, it is safe to add an equal amount of sugar to stock. If the pectin "precipitate" is slightly broken use only one-half to three-fourths amount of sugar to one of stock. If the pectin is in small flecks, the stock has not sufficient pectin to make a good jelly.

When making jellies and marmalades with the open kettle method, after weighing or measuring the combined fruit pulp and water, use sugar at the rate of three-fourths to one pound per pound of fruit. The amount of sugar used depends on the acidity of the fruit and the amount of pectin present. The jelly stock is boiled until the fruit is tender. The mixture should be allowed to stand for several hours. The required amount of sugar is then added and the cooking is continued rapidly until the jelly stage is reached. The mixture must be allowed to cool slightly with gentle stirring before being poured into the containers. This permits an even distribution of the peel throughout the jelly, rather than rising to the top when poured in the jar. The containers should be filled, sealed and processed below simmering for 10 minutes, for 12 ounce or pint jars to insure a perfect seal.

All marmalades can be made by this method or by the "quick" method by using a pressure cooker or pressure pan.

In order to give another variety of jelly made from citrus fruit we suggest you try:

Grapefruit Jelly

1 lb. peeled grapefruit
2 pints water
1/2 pound of sugar

After the peel has been removed, weigh the fruit, cut into small pieces, place in a kettle and for each pound of grapefruit add two pints of water. Boil until it thoroughly cooks. Pour into a flannel jelly bag and press until no more juice can be obtained. Drain this juice into a kettle and bring to a boil. Add three-fourths pound of sugar for each pound of fruit. Continue boiling until the jelling point has been reached. Fill sterilized jelly glasses. Seal.

Weekly Household Hint

Baked apples may be stuffed with leftover Christmas candies, or with the dried and crystalline residue left in the bottom of the jam jar.

PUDDIN' PROOF

For a new taste thrill try this recipe for Cheese Dreamie, which was sent in by Mary J. Young of Bunnell. It is a cheese sauce that can be used over cold boiled potatoes to make potatoes au gratin, can be spread over toast, poured over macaroni or over boiled vegetables. Another delicious use for it is to spread on fresh ginger snaps and serve them with fresh pears. For a quick snack put three sardines on a slice of toasted rye bread, cover with cheese dreamie and place under the broiler until cheese bubbles. Super!

Cheese Dreamie

In top of double boiler put one tablespoon of dry mustard, 1/2 tablespoon onion salt, 1/2 tablespoon cayenne, one tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce, two cups of water and two pounds of process American cheese cut into small pieces. Cover the pan and keep over boiling water until cheese melts. Stir to mix well. Heat for a few minutes. Pour into a jar and keep it in the refrigerator.

All Florida Cookbook

Sour (Seville Orange Marmalade)

1 lb. peeled sour oranges      1/2 of peel removed from oranges
2 pts. water                      1 1/2 lbs. sugar

Wash fruit. Remove peel. Discard seeds. Wash the peel, removing the dried forest from the inside, and with a knife remove any blemishes that may be on the peel. Cut this peel in thin slices. Place in a kettle and add water about twice weight of peel. Boil 10 minutes then drain. Repeat this process from three to five times, each time boiling the water for 5 minutes. Peel should be tested. Bitter taste may be removed by changing the water a sufficient number of times.

After the peel has been removed, weigh the remaining fruit, cut into small pieces, place in a kettle and for each pound of orange taken add two pints of water. Boil until it thoroughly disintegrates. Pour into a flannel jelly bag and press until no more juice can be obtained. Strain this juice again through a clean flannel jelly bag without pressing.

Pour this juice into a kettle, add peel and bring to a boil. Add one and one-half pounds of sugar for each pound of fruit. Continue the boiling until the jelly point has been reached, which is indicated by the flaking of sheeting from spoon.

When over-ripe oranges are used the amount of sugar should be reduced to one and one-half pounds for each pound of fruit.

Orange Marmalade—Quick Method

1 pound, or 3 to 4 medium oranges,      1/2 cup sliced lime or lemon or 3 cups sliced oranges

Select ripe, firm, bright colored fruit. Wash, grate lightly to remove outer rind. Remove stem end from fruit. Cut fruit into thin slices. Keep knife sharp. Cut slices into quarters. Remove seeds and core. Measure. Place in pressure saucepan. Add two cups of water for each cup of sliced fruit. Cook at 10 pounds pressure for three minutes. Cool cooker quickly.

4 cups of orange marmalade stock      1 teaspoon citrus pectin
4 cups of sugar                              (optional)

Measure four cups marmalade stock. Place in heavy kettle. Add four cups sugar slowly. Mix one teaspoon citrus pectin thoroughly with last of sugar before adding to stock. Stir gently until sugar is dissolved. Boil rapidly until jelly stage is reached, which is indicated by the flaking of sheeting from the spoon (about 20 minutes to reach 220 degrees F.). Cool to about 180 degrees F. Pour into sterilized containers. Seal immediately. If desired, three cups of sugar to four cups of marmalade stock may be used. This makes a more tart marmalade.

FLORIDA FACTS

By HELEN THERRILDSON

Lobster-Crayfish

THE Florida lobster is a spiny lobster or crayfish. It is a weird creature about the size of the northern lobster, but does not have the large pincer claws.

This member of the briny waters is completely covered with sharp hook-like spines and long lance-like antennae. The spines make the lobster difficult to handle without getting hurt.

This Florida lobster is colorful.
The brightly banded armored body, spotted with brown, green and cream color, is covered with hairs which are sensitive to touch.
They have a keen sense of smell at a considerable distance. Their food consist of shrimp, mollusks and sea worms.

The crayfish is very important in Florida seafood markets as it has a most delicious flavor, many preferring it to the northern species.

They come out of their hiding places at night when it is easier to catch them. If you have one of the simpler diving outfits now used, some time you will see some of them on the bottom of the sea walking about on the pointed tips of slender legs that barely touch the bottom.

Do You Know?

That in the Everglades are found underground dugouts that have been made by the alligators and that these holes, often 25 feet or more long, make excellent water holes for cattle and horses as the water filters into them?

That Ellen Call Long, author of "Florida Breezes," was the first white child born in Tallahassee?

That the root of the orange milkweed differs from other species as it does not give off milky juices when cut?

That many early Florida
"Crackers" preferred guavas to peaches because they make such excellent jelly?

That guavas will often make three times as much jelly as the weight of the fruit?

That old Floridians and Indians used to roast the guava seeds, grind and mix them with the pulp, to produce guava cheese?

EDISON IN FLORIDA

mightily hard to get a living, and if your new machine for manufacturing victrols of all kinds don't cost more than $10 you can send me one C.O.D."

Another intriguing item is clipped from the Jacksonville News, which follows:

"It is said that Mr. Edison, after consulting with Professor Proctor, a noted astronomer of that city, has set himself to work to devise an immense solar devise by which midsummer's heat may be turned away from any point or graduated to a comfortable temperature. The central office will be in Fort Myers, where orders from cold latitudes will be received, and the sun's rays deflected thither on short notice.

"When there is an overproduction of the rays and no prospect of early orders for them, the surplus will be turned into the Atlantic or Pacific Ocean. This will furnish employment for a large number of hands, and indicates the growing importance of the South. The Great Solar Deflector Company (limited) will make application to the Legislature for a grant of atmosphere at some convenient point above the state in which to locate the machine."

So it appears that Edison was adventuring with a space satellite project long before our modern scientific days.

There is an authentic record of an Edison invention in Fort Myers—the electric boat, which was first launched from his Ca-loosahatchee River dock in 1901.

The event is described in Karl Grismer's "The Story of Fort

Myers," quoting Fred Menge, boatman and friend of Edison,
as follows:

"It was a pretty little thing, but there was no machinery of any kind in sight. I was amazed when we suddenly started off, without vibration or noise of any kind. Later I learned that the power was being provided by 100 Edison storage batteries concealed beneath the floor. Edison told me that all boats would soon be run by batteries. But later he warned me and said he feared that it would take so many batteries to run a big ship that their weight would sink it. But one Edison's idea wasn't practical."

Edison's major activity in Fort Myers centered around his experiments in seeking to produce natural rubber from indigenous trees with them on the part mountain chibis from India. Edison's African rubber trees, including snake-like night-blooming creeper from Mexico, a compound from Madagascar, and even breadfruit from the South Pacific.

In the Edison scheme, everything remains exactly as the gen-inventor left it. His test tubes and racks, scientific notes and prepared, precise hand, his white overalls and even the cot where he took naps between experiments.

A frequent visitor is Charles Edison, the inventor's son and former governor of New Jersey, who spent many happy boyhood hours on the estate and was ex-married in the Fort Myers caden.

Once he remarked, after wadering through the home at laboratories, "Why, it seems to Father is still here."
