Legislature To End Saturday at Noon

TALLAHASSEE, Nov. 17 .-(A)-The house adopted a concurrent resolution just after convening this morning setting Saturday at noon for sine die adjournment of the extraordinary session of the legislature. The resolution was introduced by Representative Davis of Leon, chairman of House Rules Committee. He said the business of the session should be expedited and the members get back to their homes without de-

Representative Holmes, submitted an amendment making the date of adjournment next Wednesday noon. The amendment was tabled and the original resolution adopted.

The sine die adjournment resolution had not reached the senate when that body adjourned for the day. Senate leaders expressed the opinion that it would not be adopted at once but would be held until the senate could guage the work before them and decide how many days will be necessary for completion of the business.

It was emphasized by the leaders, however, that the senate planned to expedite the work as rapidly as possible and they said it might be possible to get through and adjourn Saturday.

MERICAN pioneers of other days and other frontiers faced hardships unknown on the Florida frontier of today. They were hardy adventurers of whose courage and indomitability we as a nation are justly proud. Just the same we recognize that life to them was far from pleasant, with its remoteness, poor transportation, lack of all conveniences, climatic torments and poverty.

The Florida pioneers live in a different world. Florida is not a "frontier boom." It is a sound growth resulting from the awakening of the richest nation on earth to our attractions of accessibility, climate and natural playgrounds.

The early day pioneer in other parts of America seldom possessed any real amount of worldly goods. But these Florida pioneers are business and professional men of wealth. Their forebears fought the wilderness in search of free land. But they invade the Florida paradise in limousines in search of ideal living conditions.

Daytona Shores is designed to gratify the wishes of these modern pioneers who have the money to buy the best that Florida can offer. Supreme in accessibility and beauty of location, it is being developed on the highest plane commensurate with its rich natural endowment. Here, as the months roll by, more and more pioneers of wealth will elect to make their homes.

As an investment, therefore, Daytona Shores property today is without a peer. Moderate initial prices will allow of a large margin of profit to early investors. And the tremendous development program combined with the factors of accessibility and location guarantee continued enhancement of values.

Rules for Pedestrains

Even though numerous rules and regulations have been made for the prevention of automobile accidents, people continue being killed and injured and it seems as if the more rules we have the greater are the number of serious accidents.

The newspapers of the country have given much space n their efforts to make motor car drivers more careful and rules and suggestions of much variety have been suggested. However, it is the driver of the automobile who is told that to do and what not to do, while the pedestrain seems to have little check on his movements.

Various publications have had their fun at the expense of the autoist and it is no more than proper that a set of regulations be suggested for the pedestrain to follow. And so the Brooklyn Union makes the proposition that officials pass rules regulating the person who walks in order that traffic may be made safer. The rules suggested by the northern paper are interesting to say the least. They are:

"No person shall cross a street on which there is an au-

"Persons wishing to cross a street will notify the policeman on the corner, who will notify them when their turn

"Pedestrians must wear a green silk ribbon on the right arm and a red silk ribbon on the left arm to enable the will find material in the officers policeman to tell which side of the pedestrain is nearest to that tried to bully an unfortunate him, port or starboard.

"Pedestrians must also be provided with small horns to from her. A trial of those men blow when crossing the street.

"Pedestrian - rry cards on which are their hist. names, addresses, occupations, married or single, and their favorite undertaker.

"While no pedestrian may cross a street on which there is an automobile, still a car may suddenly dash around a corner, in which case the above information will be of great assistance to the police.

"Old and feeble persons must have an escort of at least four persons when crossing a street.

"Don't cross a street if possible, no matter how urgent your business may be; telephone, telegraph or write. "Don't read newspapers while crossing a street. "At night pedestrians should carry flashlights or miners' lamps attached to their hats. "Strict observance of these rules, it is believed, will lessen the number of accidents, and keep many homes intact.'

Measuring Energy

Every movement we make requires a certain amount of energy and in this day of efficiency it is no wonder someone has gone to the trouble to make a study of the matter in order to find out just what motions are effort-saving and what postures tire least.

By a series of tests conducted by Dr. Francis G. Benedict, director of the Carnegie Institution's Nutrition Laboratory, the amount of energy required for various motions of the body has been determined on the basis of the amount of heat each produces.

"The corner loafer," says Dr. Benedict, "might better ing as it would be to enter the unusually pathetic example of would contribute 31/2 per cent of stay at home in bed since it costs ten per cent more energy to stand up than to lie down." He goes on to say:

"The heat produced in twenty-four hours in a human body is made up, first, of an irreducible minimum going on body is made up, first, of an irreducible minimum going on all the time to maintain the fires of life at a normal rate when in complete repose in bed. To sit quietly in a chair calls for practically no increase but there is an increase of ten per cent when standing.

There is one advantage—it enables the traveling American to buy, all cooked, for four shillings or less, a pheasant that has cost the Earl of Iveagh twenty shillings, merely for the pleasure of killing it.

There is one advantage—it enables the necessity of more humane provision being made for superannuated employes of the government. Happily the ground-work has been laid for so doing in the preparation of a bill, which in the approaching session. It is killing it.

"Changes in posture make a great difference. Some persons actually require forty per cent more energy to stand than to lie, but the best and most comfortable pose, with a minimum of sway or balancing, such as would be assumed by an artist's model, results in the smallest increase of effort. Evidently skill is required to learn how to stand easily and most effictively.

"Many small movements may be expressed in heat units. If when lying down one brings the hand to the forehead and back, as in a military salute, one such movement each minute actually raises the heat output about one per cent, and every one, including railroads. with delicate new instruments this increase can be measured. Crossing or uncrossing the legs while lying increases the heat output five times more than moving the arm.

"From this one can easily see that every little movement has a calory all its own until, when working to the limit of human endurance, a man may increase his normal heat output one thousand per cent."

The Skimmed Milk of Human Kindness

We hear a great deal about the milk of human kindness, but the skimmed milk is in more abundance. In fact, the kindness in most people's hearts is of the skimmed milk sort. Their kindness seldom goes beyond the point where its result will in any way deter from their own personal daughter, after taking care of her pass. He is accustomed to making The man we goes the highest is pleasure or happiness. Yet we all have an inward longing or desire that the world will learn of our noble or praiseworthy deeds, while we want our ignoble ones hid from all save those who themselves are steeped in crime. While here too it is a spirit of boastfulness that makes us want our superiority asserted.

In the Path of Sanford's Greatest Development Lies MARVANIA

The trend-of the city's greatest activity is Eastward. Improvements in all developments in all developments in this section are being rushed to be completed within the next two months. The completion of the new Forest Lake Hotel is being pushed so as to be ready for the tourists when the season opens.

Marvania is surrounded by all these activities. To the south lies Fort Mellon where all streets are now under construction. To the West is Mayfair where all improvements have been completed, and where lots for less than $4000 are unobtainable. Just four and one-half blocks away is the new Forest Hotel where great activity of all kinds will be carried on throughout the winter months.

Marvania with all this activity offers the foresighted investor an opportunity to reap enormous profits. Lots in Marvania are exceedingly low and range in price from $2500 to $3650, on terms of 20% cash and the balance 10% every three months.
