Secretary Hull Says Reports Received That British Have Stopped Mail Ships

Letters Censored, Returned To U. S.

Austin Suggests Ban On Arms Be Raised To Assist Allies

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20. (AP)—Secretary Hull said today the State Department was considering whether to make representations to Great Britain over the seizure of American mail en route to Germany.

Hull said the department had just received reports that in some instances ships carrying American mail addressed to Germany had been stopped by the British, the mail censored and returned to this country.

Meanwhile the situation in the Baltic had not changed a great deal from yesterday when, during a brief, frank interim, the neutrality debate got down to what many senators consider the essential questions involved in re-opening the arms embargo—and a point that has been largely avoided in nearly three weeks' discussion.

This was the argument that the ban on arms shipments to belligerents should be lifted to help Great Britain and France win the war and thereby eliminate any danger of German aggression against the Western Hemisphere.

A Republican supporter of President Roosevelt on the neutrality issue, Senator Borah, raised that question yesterday, and in doing so set the Senate off to a short, excited flurry of give-and-take debate.

While Senator McCarran (D-Nev.) was asserting that the supporters of the Administration bill had lost sight of the objective of neutrality and instead wished to take sides, Austin interrupted to observe that "I think it is necessary to promote the peace and the security of the United States that the Allies win."

Senator Borah (R-Idaho), was on his feet at once demanding a definition of the word "win." Austin replied that "winning" meant stopping aggression and halting events that might lead to the occupation of Canada or nearby islands by totalitarian nations engaged in efforts to dominate the world.

But McCarran was anxious to get on with his set address and overhauled the exchange while Borah, smiling faintly, remarked that he did not yet understand what Austin meant by his use of the word "win."

McCarran stated his agreement with Vandenberg. The flurry of debate followed the passage of a series of amendments by democratic supporters of the bill which Senator Pittman (D-Ore.) said vitally reduced the issues before the Senate to the one question, whether the embargo should be repealed.

Local Guardsmen Ordered To Hold 2 Drills Weekly

7-Day Field Maneuver Is Also Included In Intensified Training

Pursuant to instruction received from Adjutant General Vivian Collins, the three local National Guard units have been ordered to drill twice weekly until Jan. 31, 1940 at least, according to orders issued today by Major George A. DeCottis, commander of the local post.

The three local companies now drill on Monday nights and the commanding officers of the units have not yet decided definitely the day of the week for the second drill.

In addition to increasing the drill to twice weekly, Major DeCottis said the local units will participate in a seven-day field training maneuver sometime before Jan. 31. The date nor the place of the maneuver has not been decided upon, he said.

The telegram from the Adjutant General to Major DeCottis, commanding officer of the first battalion, of the 124th Infantry regiment, was as follows: "Pursuant to the War Department directive, you are ordered to conduct a 7-day field training maneuver for the period Oct. 11, 1939, to Jan. 31, 1940 which will consist of two drills per week, but not exceeding eight in any one month. Additional pay is authorized for unit officers and enlisted men."

The increase in training which will mean a corresponding increase in pay for the enlisted men may encourage enlistments, Major DeCottis said, pointing out that some vacancies still exist in the three local units. Officers of the National Guard have expressed a desire to have all companies in the 124th Infantry to their full authorized strength before any new increase in pay.

The Florida national guard now has 196 officers, three warrant officers and 2199 enlisted men. All active members of the national guard will receive their regular pay for participation in extra drills and field training.

A district meeting of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows will be held in Kalamazoo tonight and all local members of the lodge who desire to attend were requested to meet at the Odd Fellows hall at 7:30 p. m. on Thursday.

Sub Sighted Off Daytona Beach Pier

Three Men Say They Saw Conning Tower, Super Structure through Binoculars

DAYTONA BEACH, Oct. 20. (AP)—George Messer, employe of ocean pier here, reported he and two other men saw a submarine at sea off the pier this morning.

He said he could distinguish the conning tower and outline of the craft plainly but could not tell its nationality. While he was looking he said, it began to submerge and soon disappeared. He estimated the vessel was about ten miles off shore.

Clarence V. Hudson and John F. Good, who were fishing on the pier at the time, corroborated Messer's story. All three said they watched the submarine through binoculars.

Germans Dig In After Pushing Frenchmen Back

PARIS, Oct. 20. (AP)—Official dispatches from the Western Front last night reported that the Germans are hastily digging trenches and installing machine gun pillboxes in the area occupied Monday, indicating that the German general staff may be preparing to follow up its advance of four days, especially another thrust in the West.

Despite driving rain and stiff winds, Thursday German patrols occurred through the forest, which the Germans hope to re-occupy and complete the banishment of French troops from German soil.

The French have consolidated the front, both sides, especially about eight miles wide jutting in to the French frontier west of Saarbrücken, as part of their main defense line. It is virtually the only point of German territory they now hold.

Elsewhere the front was quiet except for artillery exchanges. Rain kept planes grounded all day.

French war communiques No. 102 reported last night that "during the day there were many patrols by both sides, especially in the region east of the Meuse."

"Our artillery was particularly active in the same region," the communiques continued. "Complete reports received indicate that the Germans on Oct. 16 attacked heavily over a six-kilometer (3 1/2 mile) front east of the Meuse and a 20-kilometer (12 1/2 mile) front east of the Saar. These attacks were ineffective."

Elements of cavalry supported by some infantry units were retained in contact with the enemy after the retreat of the main force of our divisions which participated in the offensive during September, a retreat which was foreseen simultaneously with the beginning of preparation by artillery.

Their (the French) movement was effected successfully over the whole front at a depth amounting to 10 kilometers (six miles). At certain points they halted, as foreseen, at a line previously organized in front of our permanent fortifications.

"They (the French) suffered only very slight losses. However, only one officer and 50 non-commissioned officers, was overtaken by the enemy and defended himself courageously. We took prisoners at various points."

Along the 20-mile front south of Zweibrücken and Pirmasens, where the second German attack occurred Monday, both sides voluntarily surrendered unfavorable terrain at several points and pulled back to higher ground, thus creating a wider no man's land which nevertheless is swept by the fire of both the Maginot and Siegfried Line guns.

A score of other titled persons, financiers, industrialists and lawyers also heard the ambassador, who recently returned from a visit to the United States and a meeting with President Roosevelt.

They (the American people) agreed with growing seriousness the violation and interference with American rights in Japan, and the American government and army forces in China in violation of treaties and agreements. Grow declared.

Continuation Of Hyacinth Control Urged

U. S. Engineers Hear Testimony On Benefits Of Program At Statewide Hearing

Navigation interests, fishermen, yachtsmen, and others from all over Florida commended Col. Lewis H. Watson and the U. S. Army engineers for their hyacinth control program and expressed a desire that the program be continued at a statewide hearing in the City Hall this morning.

Approximately 200 persons attended this morning's hearing and considerable data were presented on the economic value of keeping the troublesome water plant under control in the St. Johns River and the lakes through which it passes, as well as the value of the programs in other navigable streams over the state.

The cattle interests were also represented at the hearing, expressing a desire that the program be continued, requested that the engineers refrain from the use of poisonous chemicals in killing the water plants.

C. E. Watkins, chief of the district staff, explained at the opening of the hearing the work that has been done in connection with freeing the St. Johns River channel of hyacinths. He pointed out that a number of traps have been erected between Sanford and Jacksonville and also explained the mechanical equipment which is used to saw the hyacinths into bits that gradually sink to the bottom, thus clearing the water.

Pointing out that approximately 10,000 acres of 25,000 acres of hyacinths in the St. Johns River and its tributaries have been destroyed in the campaign since it was launched in August, he said that the Chief of Engineers had approved the hyacinth control program and had allotted approximately $250,000 to each of the 100 branches of the district.

Watkins stated that it would require from $50,000 to $75,000 annually to continue the program and pointed out that he had no authority to increase the amount of the program at the hearing on the benefits to be derived from these expenditures.

Mayor Edward Higgins was the first speaker and told the staff of engineers that the City Commission was vitally interested in the work being accomplished and that it was the desire of the people of Sanford that the program be continued, because of its benefits to navigation and portmen.

Many other speakers followed from all sections of the state.

Jurors Recommend Safety Devices For ACL Crossing

Installation of safety devices at West First Street railroad crossing were recommended by a coroner's jury verdict investigating the death of Leroy Hill Wednesday morning when the auto in which he was driving was struck and demolished by a through passenger train of the Atlantic Coast Line Railroad.

The verdict of the jurors is that the railroad company be advised to install better safety devices or a more competent watchman.

James of Peace J. C. Roberts heard the testimony of seven witnesses this morning and the jurors reached their verdict this afternoon about 2:30 o'clock.

The witnesses included the father of the victim, J. W. Hill; the engineer, Mr. Minardi; the fireman, Joe Waller; and the following witnesses: Charlie Williams, Robert Carter, Chester T. Jones, and E. B. Carter.

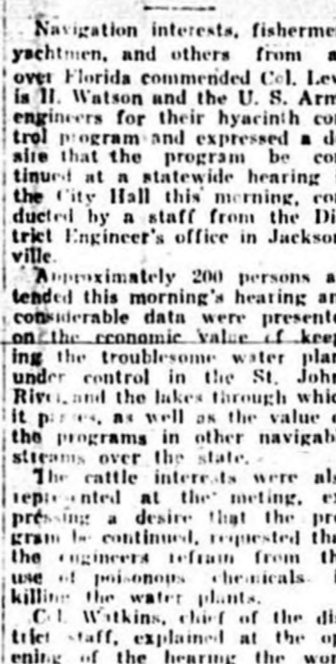

The jurors were: Frank Akers, Fred Long, A. B. Wallace, W. C. Wendroff, Paul F. Johnson and H. A. McMichael.

DeWolfski Deplores Unpreparedness Of Nation Against Surprise Attacks

Deplores the unpreparedness of the United States to resist any surprise attacks on its frontiers, Capt. Constantine DeWolfski declared in another of his series of discussions on developments in the European war that Germany had been meted two major defeats on the political front: one the allied Turkish agreement and the other the contribution of the North Atlantic pact.

The armies of such small European countries as Rumania, Greece and Turkey could easily defeat the armed forces of this nation, Capt. DeWolfski said, pointing out that while there is a lack of trained troops, the most deplorable condition is the complete absence of equipment.

"We insure our homes and lives. Why not insure the nation from aggression by having an armed force furnished enough to check any ideas of conquest in America," he said.

The U. S. Navy is being pointed out, adding that the nation depends upon the navy to protect the Atlantic coast since the fleet is concentrated in the Pacific.

There is also a big shortage of planes which are a large percentage to the protection of the coasts, he said. Congress should 12,000 planes were needed but decided to wait until 1941 and 1942 to build them. "We should have them now," he said, "because a strong air fleet cannot be built overnight."

He also deplored the shortage of artillery weapons, saying that the Army had developed an excellent semi-automatic rifle but that only six regiments were equipped with them, the others are using the 1911 model Springfield.

The United States has developed one of the finest and most powerful battlefields, he said.

Nazi Planes Attack But Are Stopped

Rains Churn Up Mud On Western Front As Communiques Report All Quiet

Germans Threaten Neutral Shipping

Turkish Pact Stuns Nazis As Allies Show Satisfaction

German warplanes reached Scotland anew today but were forced back without bombing by British defenses. On land, rains churned up mud on the Western Front where both German and French communiques noted a night of quiet.

On the sea, Germany warned of the possible extension of warfare in declaring neutral ships would risk being sunk if escorted by Allied warships.

On the diplomatic front there was anxiety in Germany and jubilation in the Allies camp over the British-French-Turkish pact of mutual assistance. Foreign press channels have analyzed the treaty signed yesterday in Ankara and each nation, according to its own fears, ambitions or location, produced a different answer to what it meant.

Germans were stunned, fearful that it might hold the spark for a general war was given as the particular reason for weighing the treaty closely. At the same time, they sought to minimize its significance by saying the Allies would not get expected help because Turkey was not obliged to fight Russia.

Dance Revue To Be Given At Theatre

Preparations are being made for the Ruth Gordon Wright Dance Revue to be presented at the Ritz Theatre, Thursday, Nov. 9, at 8:15 o'clock.

Grace Dore is designing all costumes to be worn in the revue which is expected to introduce the latest song and dance hits.

Featured on the program will be a tap toe dance by Beverly Rogers and Clifford Proctor, Jr., an acrobatic dance by little Denise Stevens, an acrobatic dance by Dolores English and a bowery to waltz by nine couples of the younger set.

Sixty Sanford children will take part in this colorful revue. Mrs. Wright announces, and the following are assisting in the solo numbers: Kay Holtzclaw, Barbara Ann Pearce, Sarah Blount, Sylvia Smalley, Walter Smith, Mary Lou Copeland, Milton Robert Heron, Ed Littleton, Ellen Bragg, Ross North, Frances Cobb, Neil Powell, Betty Jane Corradi, Mary Grace Dore, Ruth Jean Wright and Harry Robson.

WE, THE WOMEN

By RUTH MILLETT

Girls who are to become September brides, and have had time between shopping and showers...

Wives used to be called "little misses" and "young ladies"...

Now the wife spends only part of her day in actual work. The rest is hers—to do with as she likes.

Why should that make her hands were busy all the day long? The answer is—it doesn't.

While the bride of 1935 may be a luxury to her husband as far as the actual work she does is concerned, if she is typical of most modern brides—she is going to make up to him for that in many ways.

She does so much more "hostessing" than her mother ever had to do. And "hostessing" is as much the duty of a 1935 wife as was backbreaking work the job of her grandmother.

Her grandfather often needed his wife beside him in the field. Her husband will need her just as badly standing by his side when the grand old man is gone.

NEW DUTIES DIFFICULT
Then, too, the husband who worked for himself in the old days didn't need to have his ego built up constantly. Today it keeps a wife working over-time to repair the damage the boss does to her husband's ego.

Children are better cared for today, too, in spite of the opinion of people who resent Mama's leaving them with a nurse occasionally. They are better fed, better educated. Mama sees to that.

And today it is expected that a wife will be her husband's companion. Grandmas didn't have to keep up her golf game, or study up on her husband's latest hobby.

Colored clothes need a little special care in laundering. First wash them through regular soap, warm water, then rinse them thoroughly in lukewarm water of cold water. Shake out and hang (clean) and then through 3 rinses up to dry in the shade.

Violation Shown In State Labor Statute By Wall

TALLAHASSEE, Oct. 20.—A subject in which Governor Cone is vitally interested came in for considerable discussion today when the report of the State Labor Inspector was transmitted to him by Harold C. Wall, Chairman of the Florida Industrial Commission.

T. H. Hutchinson, State Labor Inspector, reported that during the month of September he inspected 479 establishments and had found 36 minors working in violation of the State Child Labor law.

"This is a law that I would like to see enforced to the limit," Hutchinson said. "I would like to see the state government spend the money that it has to employ children of immature age -- and besides, there are so many people unemployed who should take the place of all these children in these establishments."

"Every year the education of our children becomes increasingly important, and we cannot expect them to meet the competition of today if they are allowed to spend their formative years working for some hot dog stand that features curb service in a sweat shop where their health and future are both ruined."

"This state is doing its utmost to fulfill its duty to its future citizens and if necessary, we are prepared to prosecute those companies who lack vision and evade their responsibility for the welfare of the children of our state."

Violations were found in the following cities: Miami 3; St. Petersburg 2; Haines City 3; Sebring 2; West Palm Beach 2; Mims 2; Tampa 2; Clearwater 2; and Vero Beach 1.

The Florida Industrial Commission does not administer the Child Labor Act, but under the new law the Commission has authority for compensation of death shall be double the amount otherwise payable if the Commission determines that the injured employee at the time of the accident is a minor employed, permitted, or suffered to work in violation of any of the provisions of the Child Labor Law of Florida. The employer shall be liable for the increased compensation or increased death benefits.

Any provision in an insurance policy undertaking to protect an employer from this increased liability is void," Wall explained.

Some quarters were predicting tonight that Germany and Russia would enter into a new agreement providing for cooperation "in all fields," another varied warning that the Russians might enter the war on Germany's side.

The German ambassador to Moscow, Count von Helldorf, was expected in Berlin this week-end bringing Josef Stalin's answer to a personal message from Adolf Hitler.

(In Paris it was reported that Hitler's personal message to Stalin carried an appeal for Soviet aid in the air and on land for the prosecution of a full-force war against Britain and France, but that Russia was demanding a big price involving demands for a free hand in Scandinavia and the eastern Balkans.)

Nazi quarters said that a joint German-Soviet communique might be issued within a few days laying down a common course of policy, in accordance with the Sept. 26 Soviet-Nazi agreement containing provision for consultation on matters of mutual interest.

Reports in some German quarters said the joint Soviet-German declaration would contain a clarification of the views of the two governments on the European situation in general and perhaps lay down a basis for further collaboration between the two powers "in all fields."
