SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (UPI) - Gunmen ambushed a U.S. Navy bus today in an attack that killed two sailors and wounded eight others, the Navy said. A Navy mokesman said the Americans were ambushed while riding in a yellow school bus with a Navy marking as they were en route to the naval communications base at Sabana Seca.

A police spokesman said the raiders fired from a white van on the north coast highway in Toa Baja, where the naval facility is located about 25 miles from

Crisis Causes Dollar Woes

LONDON (UPI) - Anti-American feeling in the Middle East caused the dollar to slide further on the world's money markets today, losing ground against all major currencies.

against a previous close of $415.75. "The whole market is holding its breath waiting to nee where the shah ends up," one Zurich dealer said. But the ailing dollar slipped to its lowest ever against the powerful German mark, dipping to 1.7165 marks in Frankfurt from Friday's closing 1.7305.

Casselberry City Clerk Mary Hawthorne today predicted that 26 percent - 1,200 - of the city's 4,607 qualified voters will turn out to cast ballots in Tuesday's municipal election. Poils will be open from 7 a.m. - 7 p.m. at the city hall poiling place for the election. Poll officials will be Gertrude Wyener, Lynn Stevens, Ernie Hall, Mollie Steudle, Vincent

Ballassonna, George Ristum, Ella Ristum and Jeanice Con-The names of six candidates are to be on Casselberry's ballot

- two men for each of the two council seats and the mayor's office up for election.

Nathan Van Meter, 34, 600 S. Lake Triplet Dr., who served a one-year term previously on the city council and was an un-successful candidate for the Florida Senate a year ago, and Owen Sheppard, 50 500 S. Lake Triplet Dr., currently a city councilman, are vying for the office of mayor.

For the two seats on the city council, the candidates are Tom Embree, 43, 512 Jupiter Way, a former councilman and currently chairman of the board of adjustment; Al Gregory 32, 350 Micanopy Court, a former city fire inspector; John Leighty, 49, 661 E. Seminola Boulevard, incumbent councilman completing his fourth term in office; and Donald Willson, 301 Lake Triplet Dr., former two-term councilman and past mayor.

Sheppard and his wife Phyllis and children, Scott and Erin, have been residents of the city for the past 10 years. He is a native of Penhsylvania. Sheppard retired from the U.S. Navy after 23 years; attended William and Mary College and Jones College. His daughter, Erin, is a junior at Lake Howell High School and son Scott is a commercial artist. Sheppard is a Dariene, 15, is a student at Lyman while Nathan Jr., 14, and Casey, 9, attend Lake Howell Academy. A resident of the city for eight years, Van Meter is a self-employed contractor, financial investment counselor and a real estate and mortgage broker. Born in Arlington, Va., he attended Alexandria Institute of Technology and took engineering courses.

"The city is threatened with change," Shepperd said. "The threatened change would serve a narrow scope of business interests instead of the broad range of homeowners. I intend to establish good and proper priorities that will benefit the people who pay for them - the taxpayers. I will set these priorities by bold, honest and justified action that will be clearly recognized by the people and accepted by our citizens," Sheppard said. He said the city is facing possible reduced revenues, rising costs and a growing need for expansion of city services while the public demand for efficiency and economy is strong.

Van Meter said his primary concern is the direction of the city government today. He said he supports improved communication between the people and the government by sending out quarterly news letters letting them know what is happening at city hall to stimulate two-way conversations between the city hall and the citizens.

A major project, he said, will be improving Casselberry and South faminate's economic stability by promoting light in-

"Probably the city's greatest need is to use restraint, and to proceed with caution in financial matters because of the problems of inflation and talk of recession," Embree said. "We must be sure the city's resources are not misused.

Gregory is a fire inspector in Orange County. A resident of the city for the past two years, he is a native of New York. "I'm a believer in responsible government. And I don't believe we have that in the city right now," Gregory said.

"Casselberry is going to grow no matter what the council or program. mayor in office does. There is no way to stop it. We need to have planned growth and development," Gregory said. He added that he sees a need to encourage clean, viable

He said the city should encourage development of office buildings and electronic manufacturing plants which generate a lo⁴ of tax dollars, but require little in services. Earthquake: Grim Champion

Apparently it was part of China's more open approach to the world which prompted the official announcement from Peking a few days ago that the 1976 Tangshan earthquake left 240,000 dead and 164, 000 seriously injured. So vast a tragedy boggles the mind and seems unreal and impersonal unless translated into American terms.

At the time, it was known countless thousands had died in this shattering quake which registered 7.8 on the Richter scale and 11 at the epicenter. But the Chinese for their own reasons veiled the extent of their disaster until now.

It is a grim thing for persons in quake-active regions to contemplate, but earthquakes are the runaway champions among natural disasters when it comes to death and destruction. Floods, tornadoes, hurricanes and tidal waves, although cataclysmic, don't come close to earthquakes as killers.

As terrible as it was, the Tangshan earthquake ranks fourth among the quake disasters in recorded history. It is exceeded by the quake in Calcutta, India, in 1737 that killed 300,000 the worst of all recorded quakes at Shaanxi, China, in 1556 that killed 830,000, and the well-remembered quake of A.D. 526 that destroyed Antioch, Syria, and killed 250,000.

Altogether, around 3.5 million persons are known to have perished in earthquakes.

And although no place can be said to be immune from the possibility of an earthquake, those who dwell on that part of the earth's surface which is under stress can reasonably expect moments of terror when the constant foundations beneath to consider the prospects for politics in the their feet begin to heave. Adequate preparations for an earthquake emergency should claim a much higher priority in future planning.

The Rental Crisis

A study by the General Accounting Office, the matter the second for Congress, shows, not account to a source shorting of . The conclusions of the GAO report should be studied carefully by the advocates of rent control. For one thing, of course, more families are staying in the rental market simply because they can no longer afford to buy a house. Younger families, as a consequence, find the pickings slim when searching for an apartment. And the continued spiral of construction costs and interest rates insures that "rental housing will continue to be the sole source of shelter for millions of American households."

But developers are reluctant to construct moderate-cost apartment buildings because rental rates do not keep pace with costs of operation, according to the report

In addition, the gap between operating costs and adequate revenue is encouraging more and more landlords to convert to condominiums, which meet the continuing demand for home

And many owners of older buildings simply give up and abandon their operation when the return from rentals is insufficient to maintain their structures.

A survey earlier this year revealed that 186,000 multifamily units were abandoned in 1978 in 150 cities across the nation.

The GAO report does not address the rent control issue specifically, but the study does make clear that more units are the only feasible solution to the housing famine. And actions that discourage investment in rental housing compound the problem rather than easing it.

NEW YORK (UPI) - The courier rides through the streets of Manhattan about dawn each day, delivering to the doorsteps of several corporations a 2½-pound publication unlike anything available on the newsstands. It looks nothing like a newspaper, has only a handful of clients, carries an annual subscription price of $18,000 and is intricately ross-referenced.

The report is a daily news intelligence service called ACCESS, a compilation of business and political news for multinational corporations and banks that brings to its subscribers news from foreign and domestic sources not readily accessible.

Most major companies and banks have public relations or news staffs that go through news and trade periodicals to compile news and information of use to their executives. Publisher Stanley Stillman, a Harvard lawyer who gave up his job as a Time nagazine business writer to found ACCESS, emphasizes that it is designed to supplement, not substitute for, a corporation's own intelligence gathering effort. "It provides basic information, but it also fills in the blanks, giving a more compresame topic, from several reports on the available," says Stillman. The summary section looks more like th the cataclysmic events in Iran: In the last year of his reign, the shah was er constant pressure from Washington to

As the situation deteriorated, the president started to send a naval task force, led by the nuclear carrier Constellation, into the Persian Gulf. But he had a change of heart and conceled the order. Instead, he pressured the shah to vacate the throne.

As the shah tells it, he acted American advice and agreed to leave Iran. But he was led by Carter to believe it would be emporary absence - just long enough to permit the military to stabilize the country and block Khomeini from returning.

The shah recalls that he was offered refuge in the United States until the way was paved for his return. He turned down the invitation and remained in the Middle East so he would be more accessible to his generals.

CHERRY HILL, N.J. (UPI) - Thirty cases of sexual "fraternization" have resulted in disciplinary action against soldiers at the Army's Fort Dix facility since women recruits began training at the base two years ago, officials say.

Lt. Col. Peter Drury, an Army spokesman, said the Army considers actions such as a request for "sexual favors" by a permanent base employee or actual participation in the Action 7 "sexual act" to constitute illegal "fraternization" or Trust in "socialization."

Drury said punishment for the 30 rules infractions ranged from letters of reprimand to at least one court-martial. The Army declined to identify the men and women involved in the cases and refused to discuss details of the incidents.

The Philadelphia Bulletin reported Sunday that the Army is 1979, and also investigating charges placed by an 18-year-old female recruit who said she had sexual relations with several soldiers at the base and was raped on at least one occasion. The newspaper said the woman, who was not identified, claimed she was raped by a sergeant who was teaching her how to drive a truck.

Drury told the Bulletin the Army was investigating the woman and 11 men with whom she allegedly was sexually involved. He said at least one court-martial is pending in that case.

Sarasota Hostages Freed In Lake City

LAKE CITY, Fla. (UPI) - An 18-year-old man took two DEP-S3 hostages at Sarasota, Fla., and led officers on a nine-county chase before he was shot and killed at a roadblock in Columbia County today, sheriff's deputies reported. Authorities said the man, identified as Dennis James Miller of Sarasota, took unidentified male and female hostages and drove north. They said the male hostage was released at NOTICE Micanopy, south of Gainesville, Fla., but the kidnapper and the woman continued north.

Columbia County sheriff's deputies said he stopped at the enactment of roadblock near Lake City and negotiated with officers while holding his handgun to the woman's head. After 45 minutes, deputies said, Miller was shot and killed by a sheriff's department sniper. Mormons May
