JAFSIE TELLS OF NEW MOVE IN KIDNAP CASE

Says He's In Touch With Abductors In Renewed Effort To Get Lindy's Child

HOPEWELL, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—Doctor John F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the kidnap search, says he is in touch with the kidnappers of the Lindbergh baby in a renewed effort to place the tot's arms "around his mother's neck."

Back from a mysterious night journey, Condon indicated new negotiations are under way to get the stolen Charles A. Lindbergh Jr. from persons who took the $50,000 ransom and ran out on the promise to return the baby. "I am convinced I had contact with the kidnappers and I still have contact with them," he said.

I have never identified them or said anything against them. My life would not be worth anything if I said anything against them," Reports from London said some of the ransom money had turned up there and rumors continued here that Mrs. Lindbergh is critically ill from worry.

From police at the Lindbergh home came word that "no further negotiations nor resumed negotiations with the kidnappers have been reported to us; and nothing is known of any anticipated resumption."

Colonel Lindbergh himself was authority for the statement:

Hoover, Roosevelt Continue To Lead In Primary Polls

CHICAGO, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—The mantle of popular favor for presidential candidates apparently rested more snugly today on President Hoover and Governor Roosevelt. Two states, Illinois and Nebraska, surveyed the outcome of yesterday's primary elections and found an indicated trend definitely favoring them, and from three other states came expressions of political convention favor.

Kentucky pledged its entire Democratic delegation of 26 to Governor Roosevelt. Missouri's slate of 41 Republican delegates was instructed by the state Republican meeting for Hoover. To the President also went Florida's Republican delegates. Governor Roosevelt set the pace in the Democratic preference vote in Nebraska and widened the margin he set early over Speaker Garner and Governor Murray.

Delegates favoring Hoover were well in the van in nine districts in Illinois and those militantly opposed to him and prohibition led him only two. Senator Hamilton Fish, the state's favorite son, was unseated in the Democratic preference vote.

Progressive Club Of A. C. L. Meets Tonight

Clarence Adams, president of the Sanford Progressive Club of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad announced that there will be an important meeting of the club, for members only, at the City Hall tonight at 7:30 o'clock.

R. A. McCrane, assistant general manager of the railroad, will be the principal speaker on a short program devoted to the interests of the club and its members. "Tonight's meeting is one of the most important of the early spring season," Mr. Adams said, "and I urge that every member be present."

FALLS TO HIS DEATH

NEW YORK, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—John A. Mobley, of Houston, Texas, general counsel of the Missouri Pacific Railroad, was killed early today when he fell or jumped from the ninth floor of the Hotel Pennsylvania. Houston associates said he was a sleep walker and suffered this way, the probable cause of his death.

MAN STUCK IN CRAB
ORLANDO, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—Alfred G. Hoban, 22, a student of Miami University, injured severely when he stuck his head in the mouth of a crab. Hoban was taken to a local hospital where it was said he had a partial spinal fracture, broken left arm and hand immobility.

Beer For Revenues Again In Tax Dispute

WASHINGTON, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—Beer as a source of revenue was thrust back into the tax dispute today before the Senate Finance Committee. James A. Emery, counsel for the National Association of Manufacturers, called for an amendment to the Volstead Act and regulation of manufacture of beverage to produce $275,000,000 annual revenue. Emery said the association is not concerned with the "pros or cons of prohibition. The only issue is whether we shall have beer with or without revenue."

RESOLUTION FOR STORM AID PUT INTO PIGEONHOLE

Senate-Approved Proposal For 5 Million Dollars Is Shunted

WASHINGTON, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—The Senate-approved resolution to let Southeastern storm sufferers borrow $5,000,000 from the federal government was permanently stuffed into a pigeonhole yesterday by the House Agriculture Committee.

Without even the necessity of a roll call the committee agreed after two days of hearings that final congressional passage of the measure would commit the federal government to a policy not advisable at this time.

Instead of voting to let Alabama, Georgia, South Carolina and Kentucky victims of the recent storms pay up to $5,000 each—as the resolution would have provided—the committee later decided the Agriculture Department by a lenient administration of crop production loans, could handle the situation in all the affected states.

Therefore it decided to ask the Agriculture Department to "grant the loans on an as free a basis as possible."

This action was taken after Dr. C. W. Warburton of the Department of Agriculture had agreed with Representative Adkins (R., Ill.), that the $400 maximum placed on crop production loans would meet the limit of the loss suffered by 75 per cent of the farmers in the storm states.

Robert Bondy, director of disaster relief for the American Red Cross, had testified his organization would be able to take care of all the farmers who owned 100 acres or less.

He said that after his recent work in the Southeastern states hurt worst by the storm he believed the livestock losses compared with the Mississippi floods were proportionately small.

By May 8, he testified, the Red Cross will have completed its relief work.

The Red Cross, Bondy said, is building small two-room houses for the smaller farmers at a cost of about $125 each, and in some instances will replace other things the farmers need to make a living.

Representative Brand (D., Ga.), supported the bill, telling of the people who praised his "courage" for sentencing Capone to 11 years instead of accepting a government recommendation for a sentence of 2 1/2 years.

"The criminal organizations of the organized gangsters in Chicago," have reached that place of authority where their machine guns at times command the streets, where they browbeat and murder witnesses, intimidate and corrupt juries, and often apparently, render futile and timid the courts.

Judge Wilkerson's name has been associated with the effort of the good people of Chicago to hold possession of the great city against organized crime. I was not willing to add anything to the discouragement or embarrassment of these people in their fight."

SENATE BACKS WILKERSON IN CAPONE CASE

Judge's Severe Sentence Of Gangster Receives Approval Of Sub-Committee

WASHINGTON, Apr. 13.—(A.P.)—A sharp warning to organized gangland was thrown out by a Senate Judiciary sub-Committee yesterday in approving the promotion of Judge James H. Wilkerson, who sent Al Capone to the penitentiary for 11 years.

The committee voted 3 to 2 to recommend confirmation of Wilkerson's nomination to the Circuit Court.

Chairman Borah announced that he voted for Wilkerson because he did not want to discourage those in Chicago "who are fighting for their lives against the most ruthless band of thieves, cutthroats and murderers that ever infested a civilized community."

The statement was issued with the approval of Senators Walsh (D., Mont.), and Robinson (R., Ind.), who also voted to confirm Wilkerson. Senators Dill (D., Wash.), and Blaine (R., Wis.), voted against the nominee.

Wilkerson is bitterly opposed to organized labor, which has charged him with "prejudice" against labor unions as a result of injunctions issued by him in the railroad shopmen's strike of 1922, and against striking musicians in Chicago in 1928.

Confirmation was asked by Frank J. Loesch, president of the Chicago Crime Commission, and others who praised his "courage" for sentencing Capone to 11 years instead of accepting a government recommendation for a sentence of 2 1/2 years.

Business And Volcanic Eruptions

It seems rather coincidental that, with political upheavals occurring around the world, with financial and business difficulties affecting most every country and individual, the inside of the earth should get on the band wagon, so to speak, and begin erupting, to add its terrors to an already troubled world.

From dispatches from South America tell of several volcanoes in the Andes Mountains which are belching forth dust, gases, and ashes menacing a wide area. The scene of the trouble is in the vicinity of Santiago, Chile, but clouds similar are being carried eight hundred miles away to the opposite coast of South America and are terrifying the residents of Buenos Aires and Montevideo.

Like the economic disturbances of one country which are extended to another far away, the regurgitations of a volcano can cause difficulties to other places far remote. Instances of volcanic dust and ashes being carried around the world are on record. Ships in the middle of the sea have encountered a pall of smoke coming from some far distant shore while passengers and crew stand in awe at the phenomenon.

Another similarity between volcanoes and economic eruptions is that both can be foreseen in advance, though the warning of the former is usually a little more pronounced. Rumblings inside the earth and violent shaking precede the emission of the pent-up gases, while the eve of business disturbances is marked by inflated values, over-production, and speculation.

And, oddly enough, the results are the same. In the case of the former, the lid is blown off, ashes cover the sky and fill the eyes, people lose their lives, homes, and are terrified; and the effect is felt around the world. But soon the belching ceases, and things return to normalcy. In the case of the latter the lid is also blown off, prices fall, people also lose their lives, homes, and are terrified, and the effect is also felt around the world. And, as in the case of the volcano, the trouble soon ends, and according to economists, things return to normalcy, at least, we hope so.

Fictitious Success

Romantic tales have been told of the great Ivar Kreuger, the Swedish match king, how he started from scratch and worked his way up to become the possessor of one of the world's biggest fortunes, and how he possessed such unusual astuteness for amassing such fabulous wealth. Many wonderful things have been said about Kreuger, but the Miami Herald paints the end of the chapter and tells us of another side not so wonderful. Beginning its editorial by commenting on the praise bestowed on the great industrialist by magazines and newspapers, the Herald commences: "They praised his ability in accumulating a great fortune by the combining of many and widespread institutions."

"And Kreuger was a wonderful man. Starting with a small match factory, inherited from his father, he rapidly reached out and secured control of all the factories of the kind in Sweden and other European countries and even extended his activities to England and the United States. He practically controlled the match making industry of the world.

"But he did not stop there. From the fortune made in matches he developed investments in many other lines, notably in banks, railroads and manufacturing enterprises. In order to gain the monopoly of the match business in many countries he made loans of very large amounts to various governments, loans amounting to millions of dollars.

"He was regarded as one of the richest men in the world, although still a young man, and the magnificence that glorified success pointed him out as a great example of what ability, energy, and vision, coupled with personality can accomplish. They advised a study of Kreuger's life in the belief that other young men could and would profit by his example."

"But come a day when the world was astounded to find that the balloon was about to burst, Kreuger had put an end to his life.

"Then it all came out. The great fortune it was thought he had built up proved to be nothing but a thin shell. It house of cards that fell to earth immediately its only support was withdrawn.

"It was all fictitious, and when it became all too evident that the balloon was about to burst, Kreuger could not face the disaster and put an end to his life to escape the consequences of his fall.

"Really, then, he was not the great man the magazine and biographies pictured him. He was a wonderful exploiter, a juggler with an uncanny facility with the cards, but ambition lured him beyond his powers and he goes away leaving financial disaster in his wake.

"Successful men, so-called, are not to be judged, fully, until long after they have left the field of their activities.

"Scarface" With Paul Muni Is At Milane

"Scarface" With Paul Muni Is At Milane
