UCLANS CALLED SPLIT - SECOND TEAM OF SEASON

Last Minute Efforts In Games Give Californians Distinction

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 15.—(AP)—If the University of California at Los Angeles football eleven isn't the championship "split-second" team of the season, it will do until another comes along. The Bruins, surprise squad of the Pacific coast conference this fall in more ways than one, was involved in more story-book games this year than usually has been spread over the entire West.

The situation, which became acute this season, really had its beginning a year ago. To the dismay of everyone, the Bruins had held Stanford to a 6 to 6 tie and nine seconds remained to be played. Harold (Dusty) Allen threw a 17-yard pass to Don Colvin, winning the game 12 to 6. This year, the Bruins have been early in the season they put the plan to valuable use. Mike Frankwick intercepted a pass on his eight-yard line with less than a minute to play and the Webfoots ahead 7 to 6. With mere seconds remaining, he faded back to his goal line, completed a pass to Ransom (Pants) Livesey, as the gun barked, and the Bruin half-back ran for a touchdown, winning the game, 12 to 7.

Along came Stanford again, was uppermost in the minds of U. C. L. A.'s team. With three seconds of the first half to run Stan Anderson went back to punt for the Indians. Verdi Boyer, a guard, rushed in to block the kick and Bob McChesney picked up the ball, to race over the goal line and tied the count at six-all, as the half time gun barked. The Bruins went ahead and scored again in the second half to win the tussle. Just to keep in practice, the Bruins completed a last second half of their game with California Tech which resulted in a 51 to 0 victory.

There had to be a day of reckoning. It came Thanksgiving afternoon in the game with Washington State. After a scoreless battle, John Fubank, Cougar fullback, stood 40 yards from the Uclan goal line and with a second left of the game, kicked a field goal from a placement to defeat the Bruins, 3 to 0. The ball cleared the uprights as the echo of the final gun was dying away.

If football history repeats itself, and sometimes it does, there may be an exciting last minute or last second at Gainesville, Fla., Dec. 17, when U. C. L. A. and the Alligators of the University of Florida clash.

Florida fans are advised to take nothing for granted when the "split second" Bruins are finishing the opposition.

Roosevelt Denies He Made Assertion About War Debts

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 15.—(AP)—Franklin D. Roosevelt, governor of New York and President-elect, denied yesterday that he made a statement regarding war debts to a representative of a London newspaper to the effect that he would have an important announcement to make on Mar. 5, the day after his inauguration as President.

Mr. Roosevelt had been informed a story appeared in a London newspaper to the effect that the newspaper's representative upon interviewing him last week, gained the impression Mr. Roosevelt would favor some concession regarding some foreign nations' financial obligations to the United States.

Mr. Roosevelt was told the London story said he might insist on payment of the foreign nations' capital debt, "at the same time waiving interest charges."

"That story was made out of whole cloth," Governor Roosevelt said.

The Americans and British tried to avert the financial collapse of eastern Europe, he added, and "when it came, the German moratorium embarrassed even America, and thrust an insupportable burden upon England. The financial crisis in consequence spread to London. In spite of French and American assistance, the effort to support sterling quotations in the face of a steady gold drain failed and on Sept. 20, 1931, England announced the suspension of gold payments. This resulted in spreading the financial panic to the whole world."

are domestic rather than foreign and the recent return of commodity prices to the pre-war levels of 1931 has intensified them. The gross debt of our federal government has grown from $1,339,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1914, to about $17,825,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1932, while the net amount of American state and municipal bonds outstanding increased from about $3,833,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1914, to about $14,168,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1931.

Discussing means of dealing with debt, he said, "debts can be paid, postponed, or written off. In every depression all three methods are to some extent employed. Under the present circumstances, a first and obviously sound step is for debtors to strive to liquidate their indebtedness steadily by practicing effective economies in expenditures of governments no less than those of private persons."

The sharp drop in commodity prices in the past three years, he explained, has had the effect of increasing the actual weights of existing debts by one-third.

England's Credit Standing

The importance of credit to England is indicated not so much by the fact that she was one of the six debtor nations which did not default on the December 19 payments as by the circumstances under which her payment was made. Only when it is realized that the transfer has necessitated the further depletion of England's gold reserves by approximately one-fifth, and that these gold reserves were already in a precarious condition, can the means by which England went to make this payment be appreciated.

In this connection it should be remembered that of the total sum borrowed by Great Britain from the United States, slightly more than four billion dollars, $5,798,000,000 was lent before the Armistice for the explicit purpose of buying supplies in this country to prosecute the war in which we had become an ally. As much cannot be said of France which borrowed two billions before the Armistice, $1,330,000,000 afterwar for purposes of reconstructing the devastated war zone.

It is also interesting to note that while England borrowed only 31 percent of the total war loans of this country, she agreed to repay fifty percent of them. This resulted from a general scaling down of original interest rate agreements, less in the case of England than of other countries. In the refunding agreements England agreed to pay interest on the original debt over a period of sixty-two years at the rate of 5.5 percent. The interest rate for France was finally settled at 1.5, not because her credit standing was better than England's but because her capacity to pay was thought to be lower.

On our total war debts of a little more than eleven billions, England has actually repaid 73 percent of all that has been collected previously to yesterday's payments. We have thus far collected $2,228,000,000 of which $1,922,000,000 was interest. England has paid $1,912,000,000, and yesterday's payment increases this amount to $2,007,500,000. France has already paid $428,000,000, and yesterday with only $19,261,000 due, and with three-billion in gold-in-horvaits, went into default.

It is needless to say that when the subject of war debts comes up for a final settlement, England will have a number of good talking points which will be lacking to some of our other debtors. England, in fact, has broken her back to keep to the original agreements and deserves all the credit possible for her good faith. At a time when so many agreements are proving to be mere scraps of paper, it is refreshing to find our best customer maintaining its reputation.

Threatening Congress

The United States has witnessed the unusual sight during the week of a young man brandishing a pistol in the House gallery and demanding the right to address the lower branch of Congress. Though no one was hurt the incident is significant for several reasons.

First, it demonstrated that some of our representatives have nerve, even if not given credit for much brains. The action of Representative Maas of Minnesota in coolly approaching the revolver welder and taking it out of his hand is worthy of much commendation, for which due praise has already been given by his colleagues.

Secondly, it revealed the tenor of the people, who, harassed by the uncertainties of the times, are turning their thoughts and attentions to the federal government where they hope they may be accorded some measure of relief. Every one has some plan or scheme whereby all will be made well and some have had the temerity to attempt to lay their plans before the lawmakers and executives of the nation. It is an interesting aspect of human nature that the real time for words of wisdom and advice, that is the time when America was running wild during the big boom period, never heard a single word of warning from the "smart guys".

Thirdly, the affair shows how egotism and ignorance will often lead men to make monumental asses of themselves. Here was a man, who evidently thought he had an all-right panacea for the world's ills, so ignorant in the processes of government and in human nature that he believed he could do some good by telling Congress about it, even if he had to use a pistol to make himself heard. And undoubtedly his panacea was as bizarre and fantastic as the method he adopted to propound it.

PARENTAL RESPONSIBILITY

ROCKY MOUNT, TENNESSEE

An appeal in Kansas City draws attention to the fact that parents frequently must share a part of the responsibility when their children are knocked down in the streets and painfully injured or maimed. In many cases, fault is laid on the shoulders of the child, and this serves as a punishment. Parents should be held responsible for the safety of their children. Parents should be held responsible for the safety of their children. Parents should be held responsible for the safety of their children.

Education, like charity, begins at home. When the home neglects its first responsibility, is it not reasonable to suppose that the remaining gears in the complex social machine can grind along smoothly. Jarring, raucous noises of people being knocked down and killed on the highways, a by-product of the improperly operated machine, will continue to grate on our senses until we have succeeded in making necessary readjustments in the whole mechanism. The business of teaching children to be careful and to exercise their store of common sense begins, if it does begin, in the home.

Railroads, through a program that carried the appeal for safety into every office and every shop and every train of the system, have succeeded in establishing a record that is marvelous in many respects. Railroads made it a family affair, a matter of pride, and safety was talked, slept on, taken with meals. The scooter was virtually ostracized. Not until the general public takes safety on the highways and city streets as seriously need we expect that the results will be any more conducive to security. Parents who neglect to teach their children, early in life, some of the advantages of using every possible precaution at the intersections and when they cross streets are failing to educate their progeny as fully as they could be educated. We are living in an age that insists upon great

New Chevrolets To Go On Display At Agency's Saturday

Larger and greatly refined the new 1933 Chevrolets are on display at the Maxwell Chevrolet Company Saturday.

Longer wheelbase, new "aer-stream" styling, more power and

The first is that the special $1.75 week-end trip rate between Sanford and Jacksonville that has been in effect for the past few months will remain in effect on future week-ends until further notice.

The second is that the "Gulf Coast Limited" is now beginning its fifth consecutive season as the "One Night Out" train between New York and Florida. Equipped to the last degree of modernity, the Limited reaches Florida in a new record time of 21 hours and 50 minutes from New York City to Jacksonville. From Sanford to New York City the time has been reduced to 24 hours and five minutes because it is now possible to reach Jacksonville by train from Sanford in two hours, 35 minutes.

When equipped with greater steering, larger and lower Fisher ventilator, shockproof glass in windshield and ventilators, cushion-balanced motor mounting, improved free wheeling plus synchromesh transmission with silent second gear, and a "starboarder" for simplified starting are still all listed as new standard features included in the list price.

The new models, with longer and wider bodies, represent the bid for continual leadership of that company which led the industry in four out of the past six years, and which has just completed its year of greatest comparative success in the industry. In presenting a larger and more extensively improved car than any annual Chevrolet model since the car was changed to a six in 1929, Chevrolet is reversing a trend indicated by a number of other manufacturers in reducing the size or cost of their models, and is emphasizing the basic policy on which the company founded its success—that of building style and quality rather than the bare necessities of transportation.

Nearly 100,000 people were not back to work as the result of the introduction of the new Chevrolet which goes on display tomorrow.

TO MORROW CHEVROLET PRESENTS A NEW SIX

Longer • Larger • Faster • Smoother • New in Styling • More Economical • And Featuring Fisher No-Draft Ventilation

TOMORROW will be Chevrolet Day throughout America. And the new car that millions have been watching and waiting for—the latest product of the world's leading builder of automobiles—will go on display: the New Chevrolet Six—at a new scale of low prices. Front, side, rear—inside, outside—everything about this new car is advanced, improved, exciting. Longer wheelbase makes it the biggest automobile in today's low-price field. The latest principle of car design, "Aer-Stream" styling, gives it a totally different, ultra-modern appearance. The new Fisher bodies are larger, wider, faultlessly streamlined—swung lower to the road—and offer the first basic improvement in travel comfort in over ten years: Fisher No-Draft Ventilation. Chevrolet performance in every gear is faster, flashier, more brilliant. The time-proved six-cylinder engine is more powerful as well as more economical. Improved Free Wheeling is combined with a "silent second" Synchromesh gear-shift. Chevrolet engineers have developed a remarkable new invention that was a complete victory over vibration: The Cushion-Balanced Engine Mounting. And as far as prices are concerned, several models now sell at the lowest figures in Chevrolet history. Chevrolet is able to do all this because Chevrolet has the advantage of being the world's largest builder of cars for 4 out of the past 5 years. Chevrolet builds cars in greater volume—buys materials in greater quantities—does everything on a bigger, more economical scale. Hence, Chevrolet is in a position to provide a better car at a better price than could possibly have come from any other source. The leader can accomplish what others dare not try. Black-Face Comedian Is Coming To Milane

The management of the Milane Theater is proud to announce the coming of the sensational black-face comedian, Colonel Jack George, R. K. O. vaudeville and musical comedy star, in the first and following stage show with a college flapper "Campus Cut-Ups."

In support of this well-known star will be a company of youthful and talented artists when he opens his engagement next Wednesday for one day.

The laughable, likeable Colonel Jack George will offer a wealth of new laughs, delivered in his own style, when presenting his fellow artists to Rut Carlson, who wields his baton over the orchestra, and in turn presents to you radio's singing trio, the Kimball Sisters. In every city that these girls have appeared they have been acclaimed by both press and public as the only rivals of the Boswell Sisters.

Velma Sanders, the acrobatic sensation, will present her marvelous acrobatic dance, and Ruby Lane, with Alice Perrell, will offer their exotic fan dance.

PAUL REDFERN, LONG MISSING, MAY BE ALIVE

He had plenty of arms and ammunition, fish hooks, matches, medicine and other paraphernalia for life in the wilderness. These he displayed and discussed at length. "If I am lost," he declared, "you can gamble I'm down somewhere in that big Amazon swamp. I will come out o. k. If it takes any number of years. Tell them not to give up hope in three, five, or any number of years."

Un-equipped with weapons and alone, Redfern pointed his plane over a circle course which should have carried him along the chain of the Bahamas and the Caribbean to a point off Venezuela, where he hoped to follow the coast line into Rio de Janeiro. No report of him was received from any of the West Indies and a few days after the takeoff it was virtually conceded he was lost at sea.

Then, a vessel arrived at New Orleans with the story of a plane circling about it at sea, the pilot dropped a "bottle" with a note inquiring the way to the "nearest land." Master of the vessel said a signal was given toward the Venezuelan coast not far away and the plane moved off in that direction. The description of the plane filled Redfern's monoplane. Subsequently another vessel reported it picked up the wreckage of a plane in the Caribbean not far from where the first vessel reported seeing Redfern. This wreck was said to resemble the Redfern ship but it was not definitely identified as the vessel failed to keep the find.

Next the Venezuelan government said it was investigating a report that Indians living in the delta of the Orinoco River saw a plane pass overhead at about the time Redfern should have reached that point, and he held to his course.

Redfern's parents have continued to express confidence their son is alive and will some day emerge from the jungle. They were not present at the takeoff, but Mrs. Redfern came from Toledo, Ohio, to bid her husband goodbye.

The broad, smooth beach from which Redfern took off in 1927 was virtually a lone expanse of ocean shore at that time. It is now a fashionable winter and summer resort developed by Howard E. Coffin, Detroit, a profitable manufacturer.

GUARD IS RELAXING ITS LIFE SAVING SIDE

Service Continues To Aid Distressed And To Hunt Smugglers

WASHINGTON, Dec. 16.—As the Coast Guard in the line of stopping the smuggling of goods into the United States has not been permitted to result in any diminution, slowing down or suspension of effort in the direction of the normal duties of saving life and property, Rear Admiral E. C. Hamlet, commander, said in his annual report yesterday.

The service operations against smuggling continue to be a permanent feature of the Coast Guard's work.

The report showed that discipline continues satisfactory, comparable favorably with that of other military services of the country. There was gratifying evidence that a high standard of morale was maintained among the force, the commandant paid tribute to the gallant Admiral Fredrickson who died May 17, 1918, while commanding of the Future Of Cotton Court Will Handle Disputes Arising Out Of Advertising

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—A "court of appeals" which will review cases considered as violating sound advertising practices is being set up by the legislative boards of the Association of National Advertisers and the American Association of Advertising Agencies.

The "court," which will have 20 members, will also give advice to advertisers, agencies and publishers. Five national advertisers and five advertising agents will be appointed to the court by the presidents of the Association of National Advertisers and of the American Association of Advertising Agencies, respectively. These 10 will choose five publishers as members of recognized standing and good repute, but not connected with advertising or publishing.

Cases considered by the "court of appeals" will be those which violate advertising practice as defined in a code recently promulgated by a joint committee of the two associations and which have already been tried in a lower court and appealed because of disagreement.

The Better Business Bureau will function as the lower court, since it already has the necessary machinery and the two associations have agreed to recognize it. Subject to the discretion of the review committee, however, any eligible case may be referred to it for consideration at the instance of the complainant or the defendant or the Better Business Bureau.

The code, which the court has been appointed to uphold, classifies, as unfair to the public and tending to discredit advertising, any false statements or misleading exaggerations, indirect misrepresentation of a product or service, statements or suggestions offensive to public decency, misleading price claims, statements which distort the actual meaning or application of opinions of professional or scientific authorities, and testimonials which do not reflect the real choice of a competent witness.

Future Of Cotton Depends On Debt Issue, Is Opinion

NEW YORK, Dec. 16.—The immediate future for the cotton-growing industry in the United States hinges on war debts, and the Washington administration should act vigorously on the whole problem in the opinion of Mr. Will L. Clayton, president of Anderson, Clayton & Co. of Houston, Texas, said to be the largest raw cotton firm in the world, and Clarence Ousley, newspaper editor of Fort Worth, Texas, and Assistant Secretary of Agriculture under President Wilson.

Their views were made public yesterday by the Committee for the Consideration of Intergovernmental Debts, of which Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., president of General Motors Corporation, is chairman.

Mr. Clayton, who is for downward revision of the South, upon which the employment of several hundred thousand workers in factories throughout the country is dependent, is inactive today because Europe cannot buy American cotton.

He declares that the cotton market is in a state of chaos. He says that the cotton market is in a state of chaos. He says that the cotton market is in a state of chaos. He says that the cotton market is in a state of chaos.

Way Is Told How U.S. Can Cut Its Expenses

CHICAGO, Dec. 16.—Governments can economize in only one way. This is by reducing the unit costs of services which they render to the public. This is the opinion of Louis Brownlow, director of the Public Administration Clearing House, and former president of the International City Managers' Association.

Defining what is true economy in government, Mr. Brownlow pointed out practical ways in which governments can economize when he spoke to the Forum of the League of Women Voters here. He has served as a city manager of Knoxville, Tenn., and Petersburg, Va.

"It is necessary to distinguish between economy and mere cheapness," he said, "between saving public money by competent administration and whacking at public budgets with butchers' cleavers. It is not economy to cripple or abolish useful social services that only government can render.

Debt Readjustment Called Necessary

CINCINNATI, Ohio, Dec. 16.—Readjustment of debts, both domestic and international, down to the limits of present and future prospects for prices and income, must be made to restore that financial stability so necessary to a return to normalcy, was the view held by Prof. W. P. Calhoun, of the University of Cincinnati Down-Town Discussion group recently.

Payment in gold, the possibilities of which are small, is of no value to a nation already having unduly large gold reserves and will lead to further currency disorder," he said.

"Adjustment is inevitable. Will

JUDGE DECLARES U.S. CANNOT SET PHILIPPINES FREE

Says Congress Has No Authority To Give Islands Self Rule

PALO ALTO, Calif., Dec. 15.—Congress has no authority to grant independence to the Philippine Islands, and even if it had, the move would serve the interests of neither the Filipino people nor the United States.

This is the opinion of the oldest American official, in terms of service in the Philippine Government, Judge E. Finley Johnson of the Supreme Court there, who is on vacation in this city.

"Congress," Judge Johnson declared, "has no more authority to transfer the sovereignty of the United States over the Philippine Islands than it has to dispose of the sovereignty of any of the states in the union."

Section 3 of Article 3 of the Constitution, which provides that Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory or other property belonging to the United States," applies to public lands, but does not extend to the transfer of sovereignty, the Justice declared. This opinion, he added, is held by many eminent jurists. It was stressed by Senator Royal S. Copeland (D.), of New York, recently.

There have been cases in which the United States has disposed of its sovereignty over territory, but these were where title to the land was disputed and it developed that the claim of this nation was unground, Judge Johnson declared. There is no such question, he said, involved in the Philippine separation movement.

The Judge, who has been a resident in the Philippines since 1901 when he was sent by President McKinley to help organize the American courts there, sees little benefit that will accrue to either Americans or Filipinos by independence. With the exception of a few executive officials sent from the United States, the natives, he points out, are in full control of their government. The legislative department is entirely in the hands of Filipino people, as well as the governments of some 900 municipalities. Each of these communities elects its own officials, appoints its own policemen, levies taxes and expends the money, he explained.

When the courts of the Philippine Islands were first established, a great many Americans were sent over, but today practically all judges are Filipinos, only two Americans remaining in the trial courts, Judge Johnson explained.

"The people of the Philippine Islands, numbering about 12,000,000," he said, "control their own affairs as independently as the people of many of our states, with practically no interference from the American government. The move for independence or separation is simply nothing less than the aspiration that comes to every nation that feels itself capable of taking care of its own affairs."

"Many Filipinos, however, are opposed to the move for independence. I hope that the people of the islands will be patient for a few more years before insisting on separation. The situation in the Orient where nations are clamoring for more territory to supply demands for overpopulation should induce the Filipino people to study the present and future situation with great care before taking a final step."

Judge Johnson declares that the instructions of President McKinley to Gov. William H. Taft when the latter was sent to the Philippines have been conscientiously carried out. These were that the people should not be exploited; that they should be trained for self-government; and that their customs and traditions should be changed as little as possible, consistent with the advancement of civilization.

There were no public schools at that time; today about 2,000,000 Filipino boys and girls are enrolled in the schools, with about 27,000 young men and women serving as teachers. Continuation of the American influence is desirable, he stated.

The Filipino people were described by Judge Johnson as being capable and kind. He recalled that when he was sent to organize the courts he was obliged to travel on horse-back, riding a distance of more than 140 miles on some trips. At that time the instruction was still in progress, but he was treated with great hospitality, the people seeming to rejoice that American judges had come to preside over their courts. In his 31 years' service in the supreme court, of which he has been Chief Justice, Judge Johnson has never missed a single session.

While believing that independence, if it is possible to grant it, should be delayed for some years, Judge Johnson declared that immediate Philippine independence would please certain groups of agriculturists and laborers in the United States and for that reason the Filipinos are likely to have their independence thrust upon them prematurely. Congressmen are apt to vote to please their constituents, he stated, without considering the welfare of the Philippine Islands.

Those Americans who favor independence so that this country can raise tariffs against imports from the Philippines fail to take into account a growing export trade with the islands and the fact that in the case of independence, the Filipinos can retaliate by putting up their own tariff walls, he pointed out.

The Philippine Islands as a unit in national defense was stressed by Judge Johnson. The United States has spent approximately $50,000,000 alone in fortifying Manila Bay.

'Foundation' Work To Continue, Officials Of Body Determine

BRIARCLIFF MANOR, N. Y., Dec. 15.—Optimism that the future work of the Rockefeller Foundation and its allied branches would not suffer because of depreciated values in the business world was expressed recently by directors of the foundation who met in Briarcliff Lodge here to plan activities for the next six months.

Officials of the foundation and members of the General Education Board here for the annual two-day meeting, heard reports that the work of the foundation was to be curtailed because of a material shrinkage in available funds. It was explained that the planned work already had been covered by appropriations and that all proposed work would be carried through.

The session was devoted to the work of the General Education Board, which operates under a national charter and confines its activities to this country. More than thirty leading educators from all parts of the United States were present.

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., chairman of the board of the foundation, presided. In the past the meetings have been held in New York City, but this year they were moved to Briarcliff Manor, as Mr. Rockefeller makes his home nearby.

The General Education Board is a Rockefeller philanthropic enterprise with offices at 61 Broadway, Manhattan, where the foundation also has offices. The directorates of the organization are interlocking, but they work independently.

The discussion Tuesday afternoon was not made public but the board members are understood to have studied reports from the North Central Association of Colleges and secondary schools which was authorized two years ago on an appropriation from the foundation. Data has been collected on which to base recommendations for improvements in systems of education. This investigation is to extend over a five-year period.

The board in recent years has done a great deal toward increasing educational opportunities for negroes in the South, including the building of several libraries, but the extent of its future appropriations is not likely to be made known until the annual report of the foundation is issued next year.

The treasurer's report of the Rockefeller Foundation, the parent organization, made public last Nov. 1, revealed a total of $191,793,207, of which approximately 40 percent was in bonds. The two principal stock holdings of the foundation included Standard Oil of New Jersey and Standard Oil of Indiana issues.

It was the depreciation of these and the bond holdings that brought about the report that activities for 1933 might be on a smaller scale. The members, as they filed out of the meeting room, were declining to enumerate the educational projects discussed, expressed confidence that the work would go on as usual.

Among the holdings of the foundation were $2,122,000 of Samuel Insull's Middle West Utilities gold bonds, according to the November report. These bonds were defaulted last June. Another shrinkage was seen in the reported purchase of $531,000 Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific bonds at 30, whereas the issue now is being quoted in the twenties.

The Rockefeller Foundation, composed of practically the same group, will meet again to consider

GUTENBERG BIBLE HAS BEEN CENTER OF MANY PLOTS

Book Finally Arrives in Permanent Place in Capital Library

NEW YORK, Dec. 13.—A tale of plot and counter-plot which is the story of how the Gutenberg Bible, the rarest book in the world, was rescued through legal red tape into the United States and is now in the Library of Congress, is told in a Gutenberg Bible memorial just published by the United States Government.

The memorial is titled, "The Yellow Incurable and the Book of Books," and is made up of an address with the same title that Frederick W. Ashley, chief assistant librarian of the Library of Congress, delivered before the seventh National Conference on Reading Education at a session held in the Library of Congress auditorium last June 27.

In the memorial, the memorial is printed in old eldritch type and is illustrated with the initial letters, just as in the original Bible. It was prepared by George Henry Carter, public printer for the United States, and is issued in an edition limited to 200 copies. The expense was borne by the government and proceeds of the sale of the memorial will go to the government.

The Gutenberg Bible is the first of the Valdebe's incunabula for which the United States paid $1,500,000 two years ago. When most of the collection was delivered to the Library of Congress the Bible was still in Europe. Dr. Otto H. F. Vollbehr went to Europe to get it at the Benedictine Abbey of St. Paul, where it has been guarded for almost 500 years. The monastery, in need of money due to the financial crisis of the war, had sold it to him for the highest price ever paid for a book, $375,000.

Dr. Herbert Putnam, librarian of Congress, was in Europe, and he received the Bible, which is in three books, from Dr. Vollbehr. The books were fitted in a water-tight metal case, inclosed in a cubical trunk. The trunk was sealed and sent by legation courier from Vienna to Paris, and then on by another courier to the deck of the Leviathan in Chesbourg Harbor, France.

A few days before Dr. Putnam and the precious trunk were due at Manhattan it was learned in Washington that a New York agent and a Washington attorney planned to meet the ship in New York and seize the book on the ground of a claim against Dr. Vollbehr for $150,000. Their story, which the courts have found untrue, was that the agent had hired an important man to lobby through Congress the bill to buy the collection.

"Before dawn on the morning of the Leviathan's arrival," Dr. Ashley said, "two men from the Library of Congress, armed with authority from the Treasury in Washington, went down the bay in a revenue cutter to meet the

Airmail Increase Has Exceeded All Early Predictions

WASHINGTON, Dec. 13.—(AP) Twenty-one years ago Sunday the then postmaster general, Frank H. Hitchcock, said:

"The progress in aviation encourages the hope that ultimately the conveyance of mail by this means may be practical."

Naturday Assistant Postmaster General W. Irving Glover said:

"Air mail has increased to a greater degree than anybody had any conception."

The accuracy of Hitchcock's prediction and Glover's estimate is borne out by the following facts:

1. More than 3 percent of all first class mail is transported by plane.
2. In 1927, nine years after the immigration of the government air mail service, there was only one transcontinental air mail line from New York to San Francisco. Today there are three.

3. Fifty scheduled lines operate 571 planes.
4. In 1928, eight years after the birth of United States air mail, there were 8,000 miles over which this class of mail was carried; in 1928 the figures had nearly doubled; in 1929 it had tripled and up to Dec. 1, this year, more than 45,500 miles of air mail line was counted.
5. Only slightly more than 900,000 pounds of air mail was transported during 1929. The figure more than doubled within the following year, was several times greater in 1928 and in 1931 totaled $5,500,000.
6. In air mail's first year, 1918, no postage was carried on letters.

Today today every other post box may be used as an air mail drop. The air mail stamp becomes more familiar daily and a substantial portion of post office department revenues are derived from this branch of the service. While revenues from all other kinds of mail dropped sharply during the last fiscal year, air mail revenues increased by several hundred thousand dollars.

Assistant Postmaster General Glover predicted that in the future the development of the airplane would come so rapidly that there will be a large number of feeder lines.

"The availability to smaller communities of this kind of transportation," he prophesied, "will come into its own."

"Within a decade air mail will be handling a large majority of first class mail."

Device Discovered To Force Sap From Newly Cut Trees

FAIRFAX, S. C., Dec. 13.—Perfection of a pressure machine which forces sap from common woods, including the resin from pine, and supplants it with any color or combination of colors before the log is cut into lumber was announced here yesterday by Dr. Joseph A. Hartig, M. D. chemical engineer and furniture manufacturer.

Dr. Hartig, who came here several months ago from Jacksonville, Fla., is associated with C. W. Brewer, local lumber company owner, in development of his process, which, he claims, will revolutionize the furniture and building trades. He is a native of Spain, Georgia.

In a demonstration staged for Hunter and newspapermen, Dr. Hartig placed a 6-foot hickory log 12 1/2 inches in diameter, in one end of his pressure machine. At the other he placed a 20-gallon wooden wash tub.

The operator, at a word from the inventor, threw a lever and in four and one-half minutes the log passed through the pressure machine, the wash tub was virtually filled with sap and a blue and green color substance had been forced into the log to replace the sap.

The coloring substance followed the rings of the annular growth of the tree. A section of the log was sawed off to show that the coloring, which may be made uniform by regulation of the pressure, had gone on throughout the tree.

Dr. Hartig said the sap from the logs so treated is not a loss, but may be used for the chemical and pigments that form the base of paints and varnishes. The pressure treatment, he said, can also be used to treat fireproof or waterproof chemicals into the log or wax that will provide lumber for waxed floors.

The process not only colors the log, but does away with the necessity of air drying for veneer. Dr. Hartig believes one of the best possibilities of the new discovery lies in the veneer field because of the varied colored effects possible there.

With this process timber now worthless as lumber, such as beech, black gum and sweet bay, may be made into colored veneers at small cost.

The pine family may also be treated the same way, the sticky resin being forced from the log just as the sap is forced from other trees.
