Teague Pupil, 13, Is 51st Expelled

By BILL SCOTT

School Board Wednesday afternoon expelled a Teague Middle School youth, the 51st student officially expelled from Seminole County schools during the present 1971-72 term. The 13-year-old seventh grader was removed on a motion by Jean Bryant, seconded by Dr. Stuart Culpepper and approved by A. F. Keith, chairman, and Ray Slaton.

A. P. (Pat) Bue Jr. abstained from voting and later told reporters he was unable to obtain information from the superintendent's office previous to the Wednesday public hearing. "That's the reason I abstained," Bue added.

The board member stated he had asked Supt. John Angel repeatedly for data on expulsions to be brought before the board but was unable to obtain any information until he arrived for the actual hearing.

When confronted with Bue's allegations, Angel remarked, "It is in the office for him to see whenever he wants to come in and request it."

Andrew Bracken, administrative school aide, told The Herald he would furnish advance information on expulsions, if directed to do so by the superintendent.

During the actual expulsion hearing, Teague Principal William (Bud) Laver outlined the infractions of school rules by the youth, who was accompanied to the session by his parents and attorney Robert Morris.

Keith stated, "It appears the youth has not learned to abide by the rules."

Dr. Culpepper observed, "The important thing is the education of all school students. It is regrettable we don't have facilities to take care of pupils like this young man."

If you're looking for "all the action," there's no doubt but that this is the place to be!

Here in Seminole County, for the first three months of this year, as compared to a comparable time last year, this county increased its building permit dollars by more than 60 per cent.

Last year, we had $12 million and this year it's almost $21 million.

The most remarkable aspect revolves around the part which Sanford played in this tremendous growth. Last year, Sanford had a little over $2 million in building permits, this year, it's up over $5 million.

This means, for the first quarter of this year, Sanford has shared in 20 per cent of the total growth of this county.

I really don't want to wear out my welcome in your home by constantly harassing or reminding you of why we should be safe drivers, etc.

However, there are certainly some of you who shouldn't be permitted behind the wheel of any car. Here's why.

Although I'm going to use Sanford as an example, I'm quite certain that it would and could apply to other communities, hereabouts, too.

So far, three policemen have ticketed between 100 and 125 persons the first two weeks in this month.

And you want to know why?.....driving too rapidly thru a school zone, or passing a stopped school bus!

About two weeks ago, a youngster was hit by an auto while disembarking from the school bus.

She'll be in the hospital, so we've been told, for another five months....and probably have a permanent limp in that leg.

And all because somebody was in a hurry?

For what it's worth....a couple of County Commission "work sessions" ago, the clock was set to be 10:35 a.m. The meeting was to have started at 10.

Chairman Greg Drummond looked around....saw no other commissioners in their seats, but only Administrative Assistant Rodney Laver and Attorney Howard Marsee present. He offered this comment, "Do you realize that we have more press represented here today than county commissioners.... that there are more interested citizens here than county commissioners?"

"Mr. Laver, see if you can get the two Chambers of Commerce to give attendance prizes to the commissioners!"

U. S. Challenges 'Pain Killers'

Anacin, Bayer, Bufferin

Now Have Own 'Headache'

By JAMES PHILLIPS Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has challenged three major drug makers to substantiate claims that Bufferin relieves pain twice as fast as aspirin, that more doctors recommend Anacin over other nonprescription headache remedies or that Bayer is superior to other brands of aspirin.

The three aspirin-based painkillers were among 10 cited Wednesday by the FTC in a proposed complaint charging the top three firms with misleading and unfair advertising.

Robert Pitofsky, director of the FTC's Bureau of Consumer Protection, said the advertisements create the "misimpression there are significant therapeutic differences between these products."

Named in the proposed complaint were American Home Products Corp., makers of Anacin and Arthritis Pain Formula; Bristol-Myers Co., manufacturers of Bufferin, Excedrin and Excedrin PM; and Sterling Drug Inc., makers of Bayer Aspirin, Bayer Children's Aspirin, Cope, Yanduquin and Midol.

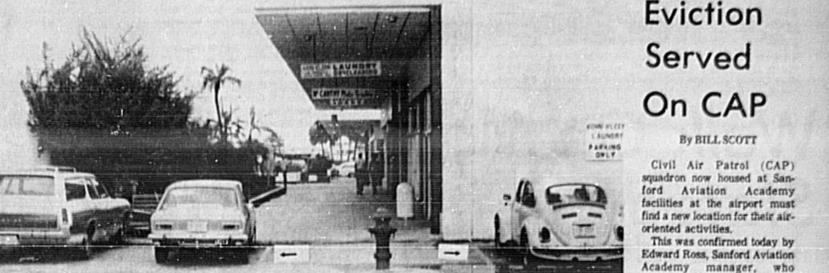

The FTC "is not going to attempt to prove in this case that the claims are untrue" in regard to such statements that aspirin, for example, can help relieve pain, Pitofsky said.

The commission's proposed order requests the three firms halt the alleged misrepresentations in their advertising and that they spend 25 per cent of their advertising budgets for the next two years on corrective advertising.

Frank K. Mayers, president of Bristol Myers, said, "We remain confident in the quality and effectiveness of our products and in the truthfulness of our advertising."

A statement by Sterling said, "We feel fully confident that the advertising claims for Bayer Aspirin and Sterling's other nonprescription pain relievers are accurate and truthful."

Total sales of nonprescription painkillers in the United States total about $300 million a year with Bristol-Myers, American Home Products and Sterling capturing approximately two-thirds of the market. The three firms spend about $60 million annually on advertising.

Eviction Served On CAP

By BILL SCOTT

Civil Air Patrol (CAP) squadron now housed at Sanford Aviation Academy facilities at the airport must find a new location for their air-oriented activities and training.

This was confirmed today by Edward Ross, Sanford Aviation Academy manager, who disclosed that the space given free to the CAP had been sublet to KOSCOOT of Orlando.

Ross stated he gave the CAP a 60-day notice to vacate the academy buildings, but the time has passed and they are still there. He added they will have to be moved out bodily if they don't remove their possessions soon.

The aviation school manager said he had been verbally insulted and abused since the CAP unit has been housed on school property and added, "I can't tolerate it anymore."

The Sanford squadron formally occupied, at no cost, another airport structure, but after involvement in a controversy over the use of ceiling tile and a water cooler with J.S. Cleveland, airport manager, the unit was relocated to the Sanford Aviation Academy.

Suspects In Drug Shoot-out

Jury Weighs 3 Men's Fate

By MARION BETHA

Assistant State Attorney Newman Brock and Defense Attorney Truman Grason presented closing arguments in a recent trial this morning, each giving summation within 45 minutes.

In his charge to the jury, Circuit Judge Dominic Sali outlined the lesser included offenses of each count of the information. In the case of Herndon, the court noted there is no lesser offense included in the charge of attempted robbery.

Scattered throughout the spectators were members of the "beat" generation, who watched the proceedings intently.

The fate of three of the defendants in the Dec. 4 drug shoot-out at K-Mart shopping center was to be decided today, with the five-women, one-man jury retiring to consider a verdict shortly before 11 a.m.

The defendants, Gary Lee Herndon, 19, Orlando, charged with attempted robbery; George H. Johnston, 18, Orlando, and John S. Cooper, 21, Orlando, both charged on a three-count information with being a criminal offender having a firearm, aggravated assault and attempted robbery, all sat impassively at the defense table.

In the cases of Cooper and Johnston, the court explained a lesser offense of the first count as being improper exhibition of a dangerous weapon and in the second count bare assault.

The court said that in order to prove the allegation of robbery which also covers the attempt, it is necessary that the fact be proved that the defendants took the money, that the property was taken against the will of the narcotics agents and by force and that there was intent to deprive the owners of their property.

Another of the defendants in the case, Rickey LaValley, pleaded guilty Tuesday to a lesser included offense, that of attempted aggravated assault.

He was charged with aggravated assault and being a criminal offender having a firearm. The state dropped the latter charge.

Two other suspects in the case, Eddie Sanders, charged on a three-count information as a criminal offender having a firearm, aggravated assault and attempted robbery, and Weyman Glover, charged with attempted robbery, face trial this week.

The suspects were captured by a combined force of Seminole, Volusia County and U.S. Bureau of Narcotics undercover agents after an arranged drug purchase backed-fired into the shoot-out. The agents arranged the purchase from an Orlando based drug ring.

CALNO Council Offers 'Candy' To Casselberry

By DONNA ESTES

NORTH ORLANDO — Alternate funding plans to "appease" and keep the Casselberry City government a member of the CALNO Council of Local Governments was recommended by Longwood Mayor Kenneth Brown, chairman of the organization Wednesday night. But neither method was received with any semblance of enthusiasm by Altamonte Springs Mayor Lawrence Swafford, North Orlando Mayor Granville Brown.

In fact, both said while they will present the Brown plan to their respective city councils, both also said they will not recommend acceptance of the proposal.

The chairman calling the CALNO Council "bigger than any individual" and of major importance to all four cities, suggested the present method of funding at $200 membership fee plus 35 cents per capita be scrapped. He recommended instead a dues of $1,000 per city plus special assessment for the planning studies, for which state funding has been approved tentatively. The special assessment would be Altamonte Springs and Casselberry, $1,500 each; Longwood, $1,000; and North Orlando, $200.

His alternate plan was dues of $500 for each city with special assessment of $2,000 to Altamonte and Casselberry.

Each, $1,500 to Longwood and North Orlando $700.

Termining his proposal for funding an equitable one, Brown said the studies can be undertaken will benefit Longwood and North Orlando the most, Casselberry some and Altamonte Springs not at all. "Altamonte won't buy it," Swafford declared, pointing to the present $15,000 planning study currently underway in his city, and being paid entirely by his city will be made available to CALNO.

The Altamonte mayor continued, "Do we have to feed Casselberry chocolates. I'm not going to feed Casselberry candy at the expense of our taxpayers. The ones to suffer will be the people of Casselberry until they elect responsible officials."

Swafford said the Altamonte Springs City Council was calling to split costs of the CALNO studies (some $8,000) with Casselberry's liking than it would be paid by Casselberry. Chairman Brown opined the difficulties with Casselberry were personality conflicts with Swafford. Swafford, by the same token, took exception to this remark, saying neither he nor the people of Altamonte feel any animosity toward Casselberry.

North Orlando's Brown said, the real problem is a certain amount of animosity and jealousy by Casselberry toward Altamonte Springs and also toward North Orlando. "They believe North Orlando will get the greater benefit from the study," Brown said.

Chairman Brown expressed confidence Casselberry would accept the new funding method. He did not mention, however, that during a luncheon meeting with Casselberry officials Wednesday he was assured Casselberry would accept.

She Suggested They Call 'Em Him-I-Canes

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The National Hurricane Center says Agnes, Betty and Carrie will be the names for the first three storms of the 1972 hurricane season.

The center's computer also selected the following names at random for subsequent hurricanes of the year: Dawn, Edna, Felice, Gerda, Harriet, Irene, Jane, Kara, Lucile, Mae and Nadine.

The all-female list drew an immediate protest from Roxcy Bolton, a women's liberation activist who has long maintained that giving hurricanes the names of women was a slur on women.

60 Miles North Of Saigon New Fight Breaks Out

By GEORGE ESPER
Associated Press Writer

SAIGON (AP) — Heavy fighting erupted anew today on two sides of An Loc, 60 miles north of Saigon, after a 1,600-round enemy artillery bombardment of the war-torn provincial capital. Six North Vietnamese tanks were reported destroyed.

U.S. spokesmen disclosed meanwhile that ships of the U.S. 7th Fleet battled North Vietnamese MIG planes, torpedo boats and shore batteries this week in some of the heaviest sea action of the Indochina war.

The destroyer Higebe and the 7th Fleet flagship, the cruiser Oklahoma City, were damaged. Four Americans were wounded. A MIG jet that bombed the Higebe was shot down by a missile, the Navy said, and it was believed that three North Vietnamese torpedo boats were sunk and a fourth was damaged.

The allied commands also reported that the North Vietnamese offensive, now in its 22nd day, pushed Vietnamese casualties on both sides last week to their highest levels since the 1968 Tet offensive. The South Vietnamese command reported 1,022 of its troops and 7,117 enemy killed; the U.S. Command reported 12 American battlefield deaths for the second week in a row, the biggest total in six months.

The South Vietnamese command said that its paratroopers and rangers were locked in heavy fighting at midday half a mile north and half a mile east of An Loc.

Twenty U.S. B52s dropped 500 tons of explosives on three sides of the city, trying to break up the enemy concentrations besieging the city.

Field reports said North Vietnamese troops spearheaded by tanks renewed the attack from the north and from the southeast.

Demos Score Bombing

By JIM ADAMS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — House Democrats voted tentatively today to condemn the U.S. Halphong-Hanoi bombing as "a dangerous escalation of our role in the Indochina war" and took their strongest action yet to set a deadline for a U.S. pullout.

The House Democratic Caucus' tentative approval of the proposal by a roll call vote of 185 to 96 came at a meeting of the caucus which then began voting on a motion by Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., to add a condemnation of Hanoi's invasion of South Vietnam.

The first vote was made tentatively pending outcome of the vote on Gibbons' proposal.

Before the caucus was a resolution calling for "promptly setting a date to terminate all military involvement in or over Indochina"—and directing the House Foreign Affairs Committee to report out a bill within 90 days for accomplishing that objective.

The recent bombings of North Vietnam," it said, "represent a dangerous escalation of our role in the Indochina war and a direct contradiction of the administration's stated policy of winding down the war."

The White House, meanwhile, said Wednesday that President Nixon still will make his next promised troop-withdrawal announcement by May 1, but has not decided what he will say or how the announcement will be made.

Walk On Moon Slated Today

By HOWARD BENEDICT
AP Aerospace Writer
SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Two Apollo 16 astronauts transferred into their lunar ship Orion 40 minutes early today and prepared to descend from orbit to explore where man has never been—a mountain region of the moon.

John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr., eager for their space adventure, donned their space suits early and climbed through a tunnel from the command ship to Orion shortly before 9 a.m. EST.

Mission Control advised them to take more potassium to avoid possible irregular heart beats.

Mission Control emphasized there was no concern about the health of the men and that the move was merely precautionary.

Capsule communicator Don

Peterson told them medical analysis indicated "your potassium levels are running a little low and we recommended you drink more orange juice. You've got a long day ahead, so we recommend you eat more food."

A potassium-laced diet was ordered for Apollo 16 after the Apollo 15 moon walkers suffered episodes of irregular heartbeats last summer.

John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. were set for an afternoon drop to a rugged, undulating plateau high in the Descartes Mountains where they seek proof of ancient volcanic activity and hope to find the source of original lunar rock.

Touchdown of the landing ship Orion was scheduled for 3:41 p.m. EST, leaving Thomas K. Mattingly II alone in lunar orbit.

As the landing nears, Young expressed some concern about zipping up Duke's moon suit.

Teacher Leave Tested

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP)—Florida has joined at least nine other states as a testing ground for the right of school boards to force a pregnant teacher into maternity leave.

Sandra Pocklington, placed on leave status last week because she was four months pregnant, requested a federal injunction Wednesday to force Jacksonville school officials to let her finish the year as teacher of her first grade class.

She claimed her civil rights were violated by cutting off her job and income.

U.S. District Judge William A. McRae said he will hand down a decision on a temporary injunction in a day or so.

Similar suits have been filed in Ohio, Kansas, Kentucky, Alabama, Texas, Washington, New York, California and Virginia.

A federal judge in Virginia threw out a school board's forced leave policy, but the decision is under appeal. A federal judge in Ohio, about the same time, upheld required maternity leave.

Mrs. Pocklington testified she is in good health and able to finish the school year two months before she anticipates the birth of her second child.

She told the court she believed her class would be better off if she finished teaching the school year.

School officials argued that the lot of a teacher is dangerous these days and maternity leave policies are even more necessary than in the past for the teachers' own safety.

Eight teachers have been injured by pupils in the past nine weeks here, Frank H. Trixy, safety director for Jacksonville schools, testified.

"It's almost beyond belief in the way of violence and unprovoked assault," strongarm robbery and things (in the schools) that were unheard of just a few years ago," Supt. Cecil Hardisty added.

He said violence is a problem in large school districts throughout the country.

Mrs. Pocklington's attorney, William Maness, argued that forced maternity leave "is an arbitrary and capricious rule that discriminates solely on the basis of sex."

Airport Firm To Expand

Jungle Laboratories, one of the first business firms to locate on Sanford Airport property when that Navy base was phased out and given to the city, has purchased 2.5 acres of property on Silver Lake Drive and will be moving from the airport in four months when new facilities are ready.

This was disclosed today by Ralph (Red) Nichols Jr., owner, at a groundbreaking this morning at the future Jungle Laboratories site across from Cobia Boats and near the Winchester Mobile Home plant just off Sanford Avenue.

Now employing 23 workers, Nichols started four additional have been hired for work in the enlarged facility.

A total of $250,000 in construction costs are expected before two buildings, one 40,000 square feet and the second containing 16,000 square feet, are completed, Nichols said.

Sanford contractor LeRoy Robb has been hired for the actual construction. He said work would begin Monday at the site.

A rail siding also will be added to the plant Robb advised.

Editors Warned Of Secret Info

By HARRY F. ROSENTHAL
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — A top Justice Department official has told newspaper editors they run the risk of prosecution by publishing secret or stolen government information. Columnist Jack Anderson replied that editors should not be intimidated by such statements.

The opposite views were expressed during a panel discussion Wednesday at the annual meeting of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, an organization embracing 700 medium- and large-size dailies.

At a luncheon today the editors were to hear three Democratic candidates for president, Sen. Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Sen. George McGovern of South Dakota and Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama. Sen. Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, campaigning in Pennsylvania, canceled his appearance.

Kevin Maroney, a deputy attorney general in the Justice Department's internal-security division, told a panel on press rights and responsibility that editors should check whether a document has been properly classified before deciding whether to publish it.

An alternative, he said, is for newspapers to print whatever information comes into their possession—thus assigning editors the question of security.

"One must ask," Maroney said, "on what basis do they arrogate to themselves the right to make such a serious determination. For although the members of the press are particularly well informed, they do not and cannot have access to all the facts... whether a particular document or piece of information, which has been classified, should be published."

Anderson, whose recent publication of papers attributed to International Telephone & Telegraph Corp.

May Drop San Diego GOP Woo Miami Beach

MIAMI BEACH (AP) — If the Republican National Convention must abandon San Diego, GOP officials admit, here's just one town to turn to.

He said the city and county of San Diego have worked diligently to complete the arrangements but problems remain in modification of the San Diego Sports Arena, 1,300 more hotel rooms must still be reserved and the $600,000 promised by the community is slow in coming.

Only $100,000 has been delivered.

A Miami Beach Source said the mere of San Diego includes much more than hotel rooms and a sports arena.

Herman, vice chairman of the committee on arrangements, conceded the committee "does have major problems in San Diego."

Disneys' Envoy To Visit Rotary

Walt Disney World Ambassador Sherry Lynn Swets will be a guest at the weekly meeting of the Rotary Club Monday noon at the Civic Center.

The charming representative of the mammoth fun center pointed out that Sanford and Seminole County really are almost a part of the "happiest haven." Hundreds of visitors from all over the world come to the world to enjoy the Disney characters' antics and the myriad of attractions so uniquely "Disney."

In February when Rotary District 698 held its conference in the Magic Kingdom, Sherry shared the platform with Roy Hickman, Rotary International president-elect, as the charter to the Buena Vista group was delivered to the newborn club.

The cog-wheel dignitary was delighted with the warm reception of Ambassador Sherry. When he was asked to return 12 months from then when he would hold the title of International President, the genial Hickman assured Sherry, "I'll just try to do that."

With Miss Swets will be Bob Bracklin, the WDW representative who coordinates her tours.

Don Jones, program chairman for April, booked the appealing appearance of Mickey Mouse's personal emissary, President Howard McNulty will have charge of the meeting.

Drinking is worst U.S. 'drug' problem

Alcohol is America's biggest drug problem today, and alcoholism afflicts more than nine million Americans, according to a recent government report.

He said that he was told that DOT would be sending an application to the Federal DOT to make certain that Seminole received all cooperation in this project.

Terri will be placed in the Division of Family Services Shelter Home where she will be loved and cared for and be with children her own age.

James is five months old. He, too, will be placed in Shelter as both his parents have been seriously injured in an automobile accident and are hospitalized. There is no one to care for him.

Shelter is a special place. It is a family home with a shelter minister and father who love and minister to the needs of dependent children entrusted to their care. Shelter Homes are licensed by the State of Florida and are supervised by the Division of Family Services. Shelter parents are available on a 24-hour a day basis to law-enforcement officers and workers from the Division of Family Services.

A Shelter Home is a regular family home which is adequately equipped and furnished to care for up to 10 children. Cribs, walkers, high-chairs, play pens and the like are available for babies and toddlers. There is a large fenced yard with play equipment, toys, and games suitable for the older child.

All Shelter Homes are inspected by the County Health Department to meet minimum standards of physical adequacy, sanitation, and safety. In certain instances, depending on the location of the home, an occupational license may be needed.

Stop Auto Accidents: It's Up To You!

Tragedy strikes daily on the highways and byways of Central Florida. No use lamenting the lack of proper roads. This issue was ignored or subordinated to the selfish interests of powerful political and other forces so that no immediate success of this plague is visible from that source.

But what is visible—and tragically so—are the accidents on the interstates, the state highways, the local roads and at railroad crossings with its mounting toll of those killed or injured and properties destroyed.

Is this too black a picture? We wish that this was so, that the one-day record which must be recorded in the daily newspapers and over the news airwaves could be brightened by facts.

There is no question but that the law enforcement agencies are stretched far beyond their capacity to ride herd on the horde of autoists which now are using central Florida highways.

We believe that there needs to be right now and right here—in every man's garage or carport—an honest and effective move to be sure that the mechanical controls of the family car are in order.

As welcome as the state inspection stations and their operations are in this matter, they are not enough. The owner who wants to preserve his investment in one or more automobiles must have the minimum check-ups which the owner's manual prescribes.

This is particularly important if the car is one which has been acquired in a re-sale transaction and the weaknesses of its mechanics are only known to its former owner.

If the motor sputters. Or if the pick-up is sluggish. These defects will be remedied by almost every owner, regardless of age or automotive knowledge.

Mechanical control, however, rests on two other factors. One is the steering mechanism. The other are the brakes. The use of auto where either of these are faulty, is the prime cause of the fender bending, the triple car collision when more than one is found to be "out of control."

However, the auto which rests in the carport or the garage is not the one which contributes to the horrid record of fatalities, injuries and

Blame must be accepted by the operator. This is not to say that in every accident, it is ever the operator who could have prevented the smash-up.

But it is the operator who failed to obey the rules of the road or who ignored the caution signs or who dared to flirt with the traffic lights or who just couldn't wait for the railroad train to speed through who sets up the accident.

Defensive driving must be adopted as the rule for auto operation by all operators if the loss of life, limb and property is to be halted or slowed down.

Nostalgic for the days of your youth, the Saturday movie matinee, the county fair? Circus chicken may be just your dish, with a popcorn-peanut coating flavored with lemonade.

Something a bit more sophisticated, perhaps? There's chicken à la mode—with ice cream. If you like to think pink, try chicken topped with strawberry ice cream mixed with rose wine.

In fact, eating the dimetime cocktail is in vogue in chicken-cooking circles this year. Alcohol-beverage—from beer to champagne—figure prominently in the recipes as cooking liquid or in sauce.

Those who prefer to keep their chickens sober can try banana caramel sauce. And chickens cooked in tea, coffee, cola, sauerkraut juice, cranberry juice, orange juice, sour cream or honey are guaranteed not to give fowl fanciers a hangover.

Soap Operas Really Attract Fans

By DON FREEMAN

Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD—in the very special, and often curious, world of the daytime soap opera, men occupy a secondary role. Presumably, that is what the largely feminine audience prefers. And if that isn't what they prefer, why is this the pattern that has been followed from the time that soap opera began?

"Men in daytime serials are generally subservient to the women," said Don Stewart, known to about seven million viewers of "The Guiding Light" as Michael Bauer, one of the few sympathetic males to grace the soaps. "My role is essentially that of a good guy, a sympathetic fellow in a bad situation. It was also a good part when it began 18 years ago."

Stewart, who has essayed the role since December, 1958, has certainly made the most of it. Last year, in a television magazine poll of the fans, he was voted the best of the actors in daytime shows.

"It's like this in the soaps," said Stewart. "Men in soap aren't supposed to assert themselves as they might in real life. What the women viewers seem to want in these serials is for the men to need an awful lot from women and then they want to keep them dangling. It may not be real but it sure driver can show-off these propensities without maximizing danger.

The traffic mess, it must be admitted, is not likely to improve during the visible future. Improvement of the driving, however, can take place.

This must be driven home to everyone who has heard about the shocking loss of life in Kissimmee when a family of bicyclists were killed and in Orlando, where railroad crossings were fatal in three auto-train collisions this month.

To be shocked is not enough. To be alert and willing to obey traffic laws in an auto which is in proper mechanical condition is the contribution which every driver can and should make!

Local Militia Is A Key in Vietnam

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)

In the end, the battle for South Vietnam may depend on the local militia—the abominably paid, lightly armed and often derided regional and provincial forces.

Unless these groups hold, South Vietnam's regular forces cannot hope to stand off a determined invasion attempt without giving major chunks of territory. But if these local militia do provide the irregular services for which they have been "trained," Hanoi's invasion armies cannot possibly prevail.

Three years back, these local troops were noted for their ability to patrol to the east of a village when the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong were in the west—and to relax in the local militia have done surprisingly well on the fringes of the main battles, they have picked off North Vietnamese sabotage and demolition groups and slowed the small-unit infiltration that has accompanied major North Vietnamese thrusts.

These local militia actions have been important in the battles to date—not crucial. But as the fighting goes on, and providing their surprising morale holds, their spoiling actions could make the difference between Hanoi's success and failure.

North Vietnam's armies have one great weakness. They are inexperienced—in conventional logistics. Their successes in the past have depended on their ability to put the supplies they needed in the battle area in advance of the fighting—by using guerrillas to infiltrate and then to deliver the supplies, or by six months or a year, gradually building the stockpiles to require size.

If air power retarded the advance supply units suffered in the past, the timetable for attack would simply be deferred to a later date. A three-week supply would be delivered in nine months instead of six.

But the current invasion is run on a somewhat different pattern. Though some large stockpiles have been built in the border areas and at some points within South Vietnam itself, more than ever before the North Vietnamese are dependent on supply trains moving in and behind the main forces.

When these are hit heavily, the North Vietnamese must concentrate on getting through essential ammunition and replacement, increasing their dependence on local food and other supplies. In this field, the local militia can do great damage to the fighting ability of the northerners.

The second stage—wide-scale Viet Cong and North Vietnamese guerrilla attacks through the southern delta and along the coast—will be heavily on the local militia. Saigon's main forces being fully occupied with the mainline invasion armies.

These second-stage North Vietnamese-V.C. guerrilla attacks will be aimed at cutting the heart out of the local structure. Though it has received little notice for the past two months, armed Viet Cong squads have been cutting down village policemen and pacification teams, whose job it is to build local civic, economic and self-defense strength.

If the local militia can guard these police and these teams from slaughter by the regular armies as they fight the invasion, then Hanoi will have failed and South Vietnam will have retained the means to survive.

But if the local militia fails, and if the Communist guerrilla forces are able to destroy major numbers of police, pacification teams and local hamlet and village governments, Hanoi will have cleared the way for re-establishing its own rule in areas where the Communists have gone downhill in recent years. The door will be open for Hanoi to effectively rebuild the underground structure necessary for eventual success.

One Gals Opinion

Watch for Meat Price Slitcheroo

By AILEEN CLAIRE

Americans are consummate meat eaters. If there is a so-called "average" American, he eats an average 192 pounds of beef, veal, pork and lamb each year.

And taking a body-check of any average group would show that most of us live to eat rather than eat to live.

This is the primary reason the consumer is squealing like a stuck pig about the high prices of his favorite food. Since we don't buy a car, a new house, pay a doctor bill or take a vacation every day of our lives, the impact of the increasing costs each year of each of these necessities and pleasures is not so painful.

Currently we are in a "down hold" period as far as meat prices are concerned, the result of several major claims agreeing to hold or to lower slightly the prices of all varieties of meats.

Supposedly, the move means that retailers will absorb any price rises that occur between the time livestock on the hoof goes to market, is processed and appears in the local stores. However, it still remains for the consumer to watch in-store price practices to see that the loss retailers may take in their meat departments is not made up in marked-up canned goods, vegetables and fruits.

The current price spiral situation is a good test of the consumer's ability to think together to effect a benefit for all. Most manufacturers privately say many questionable, expensive practices thrive because the greedy American consumer doesn't care. He'll buy anything, at almost any price, except, it seems, meat.

Hits 'Death Traps'

Editor, Herald:

I am writing you on a subject concerning "Death Traps" on our highways.

I realize this state has inspection stations and this is very good and I am all for them but they are doing a fine job.

The "Death Traps" I am speaking of is the car we buy from our new and used car dealers. On March 1972 I purchased a 1968 automobile and one week later I had to replace the brakes on it. The car had an up to date sticker for inspection on it, but our car dealers do not even have to look at a car to sell it. This, to me, is wrong and is a part of our inspection stations. This, to me, leaves little faith in the car dealer as well as the part of state government.

I took the car back to the dealer and he said I had a guarantee for a 60-day period for thirty days, but the dealer was not correct in his contract to me, so how can we trust a man or dealer to sell cars to people and sell them a "Death Trap" on our highways.

When I purchased this car I was told it was okay and ready to go or I would not have bought it. I did not buy the car to fix it up in a weeks time.

I checked with the local inspection station to see what was required for used car inspection and they told me, not to worry. I pay for my cars to be inspected so they can't "Death Traps," so why can't our dealer's do the same thing?

I am also sending a copy of this letter to the local newspaper and my insurance company. I hope, Governor, that I will hear from you soon and see some action taken on this issue in the near future.

Administrative Assistant Rodney Leyer reminded the board of County Commissioners that he had been instructed by the board to seek a systems analyst to determine the needs, if any, for data processing in Seminole County government. Commissioner Sidney Vihlen said it would seem prudent to go ahead, since the information received from the analyst could be used this year or next year. Leyer said he would need $5,500 to hire an analyst for six months.

In other action, Commissioner Al Davis informed the board the amount of $17,000 would be due to Constable Robert Jane on receipt of notification from the state of his reinstatement to office.

The board of commissioners requested the county attorney seek the opinion of Attorney General Robert Shavin on the annotation problems in the county.

"I don't care if we are proved wrong," Commissioner Chairman Greg Drummond said, "I just want this matter to be cleared up."

Vihlen said it is important to determine the legality of rebate of taxes to the cities for those areas annexed in somewhat questionable manner.

Commissioner John Zim-brough said, "We keep hearing about threats to call in a grand jury. I say, if any public official or a citizen feels that the grand jury or the Governor is needed to clear up a matter, then that official or that citizen would be remiss in his responsibility if he does not go on ahead and call in Shavin or the Governor or the grand jury."

Anti-War Strikes Slated On Friday

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
 Campus antiwar protests rekindled by the U.S. bombing of North Vietnam have erupted into violence at Harvard and led to scattered confrontations with police at the University of Maryland.

Demonstrations elsewhere Tuesday were generally peaceful and some drew little response but the reawakening antiwar movement called for student strikes on Friday.

At Harvard about 20 demonstrators split off from a peace march in Cambridge, Mass., to stage a 10-minute assault on the university's prestigious Center for International Affairs.

Police fired at least 18 rounds of tear gas over a two-hour period to disperse a crowd of 1,500 to 2,000 demonstrators who gathered outside the building. Three persons were arrested. The center, where presidential adviser Henry A. Kissinger formerly had an office, was littered with broken glass and overturned furniture. Slogans such as "Avenge Hanoi!" and "NLF Wins" were sprayed on the walls.

A fire set with papers was confined to a second floor office. The march began with a 4 p.m. rally on Boston Common where President Nixon was burned in effigy. Later the demonstrators marched five miles to Harvard Square in Cambridge where they broke windows in a few stores and a post office before going to the center.

Day-long demonstrations at the University of Maryland resulted in the arrest of 14 persons on charges of assault and carrying deadly weapons—rocks.

Windows were broken in an ROTC building during a rally and later about 500 students blocked U.S. Route 1 for an hour. About 100 riot-equipped state policemen used tear gas and dogs to break up the demonstration.

Police said one lieutenant suffered a broken elbow and several others received minor injuries in the clash. Two students were reported injured.

About 1,000 students at Columbia University and Barnard College voted Tuesday night to go on strike starting today but said they would not try to bar others from classes.

Columbia President William McGill appeared before a strike committee to argue against "coercing others who disagree with you. Coercing others is a violation of people's rights, and we will not tolerate it," he said.

McGill said the Ivy League presidents would hold a telephone conference today to discuss the call for a nationwide campus strike on Friday.

Margery Tabanin, president of the National Student Association, the largest student association in the country, made the call in Washington on Monday.

"We are asking that every campus shut down on Friday and devote its collective energy and skills to organizing sustained, intensive, antiwar actions this spring," she said.

Three college presidents spoke out against the renewed bombing of the North. They were Dartmouth's John Kemeny, Brown's Donald Hering and the Rev. John Brooks at Holy Cross.

At the University of Illinois in Champaign, 1,500 students rallied to protest the bombing and announced plans for a strike Friday.

Several hundred students from the University of Florida marched in Gainesville to protest the bombing.

One Bill $505,520 Medicare Fee Questioned

WASHINGTON (AP) — A Miami physician outpaced all other doctors in the nation in fees collected for treating elderly Medicare patients, a government report has revealed.

In 1970, the Medicare program paid the unidentified doctor $505,520 — that is an average of $1,630 per working day, the government said Monday.

Another Miami based doctor, an X-ray specialist, collected $456,613 from Medicare in 1970, more than any other radiologist in the nation.

Under Medicare law, administrators are not permitted to identify the doctor.

Both of the claims were disavowed by a member of the Peer Review Board in Miami Monday night. That is a Miami physician's group that reviews overcharging claims.

"We disclaim entirely the $505,520 payment," said a spokesman for the board, who asked not to be identified. "Both cases referred to are cases where one physician is being billed for the receipts of several."

The spokesman said the doctors in the first case have not received the money and that the X-ray specialist is a hospital practitioner who is part of a "large group" of practitioners.

The board spokesman said he obtained his information about the high-priced physicians from the Blue Shield office in Jacksonville, but said Blue Shield would not identify the doctors either.

The Miami doctor who received the highest figure runs a clinic with other doctors "working for him," the spokesman added, however.

"He has sort of an assembly line operation which his patients apparently like because they don't have to wait long," the spokesman added.

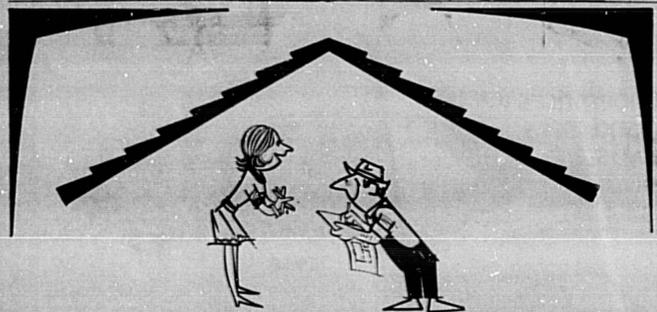

His practice is confined almost exclusively to the elderly, he said.

Disappointment Prompted Medical Discovery

BALTIMORE (AP) — "It was one of those times in life when what seemed to be a disappointment later proved to be a great opportunity," Dr. Taussig, a retired staff physician at Johns Hopkins Hospital, said.

Dr. Taussig, 73, was denied an internship in medicine after her graduation from the Hopkins School of Medicine because one woman from her class already had been accepted for the post.

The school would not put two women in the same field, Dr. Taussig explained, so she decided to intern in pediatrics.

She stayed in the field for a half-century and despite her official status as professor emerita of pediatrics, still puts in eight hours nearly every day at Hopkins.

"Retirement has no meaning to me," she once told an associate. "You sink into your bed at the end of the day, exhausted, and hope that the phone doesn't ring until morning."

"I have slowed down a bit, but if you call retirement still tingling still and doing nothing, I'll never do it."

Dr. Taussig, named in March as the first woman master in the American College of Physicians, specialized in pediatric cardiology after she joined the Hopkins staff in 1944.

In 1944, she helped develop the first successful operation for "blue babies," so-called because they are born with a constricted artery connecting heart and lungs. The lack of oxygen in the blood gives the skin a bluish hue.

Dr. Taussig had read about a surgeon in Boston who had tied off a vessel leading to the lung. "Not being a surgeon," she said, "it gave me no difficulty to ask, 'If you can tie off a ductus, why can't you build a new one altogether?'"

When Dr. Alfred Blalock, Dr. Taussig worked out the details of the operation with him. The first successful "blue baby" operation was performed nearly 30 years ago.

Though her life's work was with children, the white-haired physician never married.

"A person can't do everything she wants to in life and I've had other experiences that I wouldn't have had if I had married," Dr. Taussig said.

"Besides, I think I've been more of a success with what I've done than I would have been with marriage."

Xi Beta Eta Entertains Rushees

By ANN SIECZKOWSKI

"Howdy, pardner" - Well, now, how is yew tonight? Come in and set a spell, folks."
And that was the way it was out at "The Old Red Dog Saloon" formerly known as the

Don Cahill Residence, on Saturday night.
The occasion was the annual rush party for Xi Beta Eta Chapter of Beta Sigma Phi. The theme was country and western and all the members and guests came appropriately attired for fun festivities and food in the truest country-western tradition.
Hostess Jan Cahill and committee members, Carol Dudley and Mona Walker, really prepared some positively sumptuous chow for those cowpokes and gals.

And Dr. Walt Gardner and pett little wife, Jo, turned that gang of wranglers into the purest sounding warblers you just about ever heard as they led in some mighty fine group singing.
Completing the wonderful and convivial evening were games, dancing and conversation for members, guests and husbands.
Guests who were given an insight into Xi Beta Eta at the informal social occasion were Viola Frank, Ellen Keefer, Elizabeth Jett, Susan Byrd and Betty Jack and their husbands.

Beauty: Inexpensive Plastic Surgery New Lifestyle

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Preoccupation with youth is a typical American characteristic.

For years women who could afford to part with a heap of cash to make an aging face look younger did so eagerly. And they thanked the gods that they lived in an enlightened era where the signs of age could be obliterated. Plastic surgery was available. And they could afford it.

At one time when a person had a nose done," Dr.
Dicker said, "everyone was aware of it because of certain imperfections. The tip of the nose was a l w a y s pinched in. The pinched-in look was very prevalent then because the surgeon would remove skin as well as cartilage. Now we don't remove skin."

Nose surgery costs about $750 and recovery is quicker now because the instruments used are more refined.
While nose surgery is most popular, Dr. Dicker said eye surgery is becoming more and more in demand. "After all," he said, "no post-er-ward ecstacy over a beautiful nose."

Dear Abby

Father and son have some growing up to do

By Abigail Van Buren
16100 by Chicago Tribune, N.Y. News Bureau

DEAR ABBY: We are a family of six. All healthy and normal. I think. Our eldest son is 16. (I'll call him Bill.) Last summer Bill started putting on an act in public which I have found utterly disgusting. He puts his glasses on sideways, trembles, crosses his eyes, slurs, and giggles and pretends that he is retarded. This isn't a one-while thing; he can't walk a half a block on the sidewalk without going into his act. His father thinks it is hilarious.

I think it is a cheap, sick way of getting attention. Last Saturday at the shopping center, Bill was so "retarded" he could hardly get out of the car, and when he finally got everyone looking at him, he straightened up and acted normal.

If we attempt as a family to watch TV, Bill lies on the cheerfield with his eyes crossed, slurring and giggling until it's just a nightmare. Meanwhile his father is holding his side. I think they are both sick, but they know. Or is something wrong with my sense of humor? Perhaps I should tell you that we have no retardation in the family anywhere. What on earth is the matter with this boy?

DEAR CANADIAN: He obviously doesn't realize that he is ridiculing the handicapped. But what's his father's excuse? I hope they both grow up soon.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have been married for nearly four months. He is a wonderful man, but we have a problem. Our sex life has been all right.

On our honeymoon all we were doing was sleeping. But I thought we were just exhausted from the wedding, but I thought we have never had sex. I consulted our minister and he said we were "amazed"—but he offered no solution.

My husband is a very shy person. Could this have anything to do with it? I am not looking for a cure. Could it be MY fault? Is this unusual? Can you help me? I would sure appreciate it. DON'T USE MY NAME.

DEAR DON'T: I am amazed that all your minister could do was tell you that you were "amazed." You and your husband should see a doctor. LET IMMEDIATELY.

DEAR ABBY: Put this on your list of reasons why people come into a restaurant and sit at a dirty table. They are anything to do with it. I am not looking for a cure. Could it be MY fault? Is this unusual? Can you help me? I would sure appreciate it. DON'T USE MY NAME.

POLLY'S POINTERS

Store Quilts in Plastic To Prevent Yellowing

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—Like L. W. my quilts had yellow age spots caused by long storage. The best remedy I found was to wash them in hot suds a LITTLE. Bleach may be used and dry them outdoors in plenty of sun and air.—MRS. C. I.

DEAR POLLY—I have had good results removing yellow spots from quilts by dipping a sponge or rag in a bleach solution, rubbing this over the spots and then spraying it off with clear water.

DEAR POLLY—Mine is a suggestion to L. W. for the prevention of yellow spots on her quilts that have been stored. My laundryman told me that one should never store things such as quilts without first wrapping in tissue or a plastic wrap. Blue tissue paper keeps white articles from yellowing while they are stored.—MRS. G. D. S.

DEAR GIRLS—Do remember that removing spots from old articles is chancy business so do not be disappointed at the results. If they have been stored for years the fabric may be in almost rotten or so weakened condition so holes may appear after the use of any strong remedy like bleach. Some quilts are made from scraps of different fabrics and in different colors so that one part may take to a treatment that another cannot. Some of the new detersives that contain bleaching agents may bring out the desired brightening. Any solution must be faced with a degree of uncertainty due to varying circumstances. Try at least a corner first.—POLLY

Kathryn Has 'Ups And Downs' Lake Level Debated

There is never a dull moment down around the Lake Kathryn area, it seems. Residents of the area; Jack Cooper, developer; Casselberry City Manager Tom Bergman and county officials proceeded in this ever present problem of the level of Lake Kathryn.

Medical Examiner Studied By County

Serious efforts are being made by the County Commission to review the medical examiner.

Dr. G. W. Garay, pathologist at Seminole Hospital, and Dr. Thomas Hegert, pathologist and medical examiner of Orange County, attended a meeting with the commissioners to attempt to arrive at a workable solution to the problem.

Dr. Hegert said he currently serves Orange and Osceola Counties. He said he would be willing to include Seminole County in his area of service as a part-time relief for Dr. Garay and vice-versa. His goal he said is primarily to provide Seminole with an examiner and to help when I can.

Dr. Hegert said he operates on a fee per case basis originally, at approximately $25 per hour for natural deaths. Cases involving rape or violent death were at a cost double that amount, with autopsies additional.

With this cooperative plan in force, you can anticipate more autopsy requests. The generally acceptable fee for autopsy, dependent upon the extent of the work done, is $175 to $200. And, of course, you have the advantage of your crime lab here in Seminole where your toxicology work can be conducted at no additional cost to you.

Dr. Garay told the commissioners he preferred the fee per case basis of operation. Commission Chairman Greg Drummond suggested that he consider a minimum fee based on a minimum figure. When that minimum has been reached, then the fee per case basis could be enacted.

Dr. Hegert reminded the board that Garay would be on call 24 hours a day. He said further that he would agree with whatever fee Garay feels appropriate on a fee per case basis.

Administrative Assistant Rodney Lauer and the county attorney are to draw up a contractual agreement and present it next week.

Fla. Tech U Library Praised By Prexy Schools Set Music Festival

With National Library Week commencing last Sunday, President Charles N. Millican took the occasion to praise the librarians and staff of the Florida Tech University.

Millican, in a letter to FTU director of libraries, Lynn W. Walker, took the occasion of National Library Week to pay tribute to the FTU librarians for the signal accomplishments achieved since the opening of the University in October of 1958.

National Library Week, April 16-22, is recognized each year for the purpose of making everyone aware that reading can help them explore and satisfy their need for a greater sense of purpose and meaning in life.

"I know that our FTU Library staff has been placing 'Accent on the Individual' because students and faculty members have told me of the excellent service rendered by the Library staff," noted Millican. "It is a privilege for the FTU Library to be known throughout Florida for many of its services and programs."

The University Library has been built on a solid foundation and it is truly one of the great concentrations of this University," state Dr. Millican. "It is a center of academic activity and excellence on our campus, and we are all very proud of the dedicated and cooperative relationship between the major libraries in the state, the FTU Library resources are extensively augmented by inter-library loan from other libraries. In addition, the FTU Library uses an automated circulation system utilizing the University computer."

The present seating capacity of the FTU Library is now over 500, including 120 private study carrels. In addition, the library contains lounge-type seating. Book stacks areas are arranged to provide small informal study areas.

The library is placing an increasing dependence on non-book form materials. Many books of journals and other materials are available on microfilm or in microfiche form. The Instructional Media Center, operated in conjunction with the Library, provides film, tape, audio, sound recordings and other instructional media for class and recreational use.

Commission Chairman Greg Drummond has informed the Board of County Commissioners there is an erosion problem on the dirt road on the end of Lake Marion. The lot and the road has a deep slope, with drainage down the north side of the street over an embankment. I have taken over 10 to 15 yards of sand, Leblin said.

Continuing, he said, "My biggest complaint is that I can't get a response from Mr. Lavender (J.C. Lavender, road superintendent). I have called at least 20 times and asked him to meet me at the site under question. I have spent $300 to $400, myself, trying to solve the situation."

Commission Chairman Greg Drummond inquired why he had not called his county commissioner. Leblin said he had called Commissioner Al Davis because he did not know the name of the county commissioner. "The road grader goes in a straight line rather than on a curve as the road goes, increasing the problem. That road is at least four feet lower than it was one year ago," Leblin charged.

He wanted to extend his driveway down to the county right-of-way with some elevations to stop the drainage into his property. He said he had started the troublesome area but the graders consistently dug them up. At which point, it was established he had placed the stakes on the county right-of-way and the grader had no choice. The stakes should have been placed on his own property.

County Engineer William Bush said Lavender could not control that situation as long as the road is unimproved. "The man's entire property is below the road level."

Pearson's Favorite Truck

Well friends, David Pearson was racing on his favorite track this weekend. Pearson won the Rebel 400 in the Woods Brothers Mercury. The Darlington, South Carolina track has always been one of David's favorites. He drives like the professional he is when he is given a competitive machine. It's nice to see David Pearson in the winners circle again.

With Man's Andreotti and Jacky Icks winning the 1000 BOAC kilometer race in a Ferrari it appears that no one else has a chance at the manufacturer's title. However, the prestigious 24 Hours of Lemans is coming up in June. This is the race in which, because of their durability, Corvettes have a good chance of carrying home all the marbles.

Championship Series Begins

May 7 at Laguna Seca, California the I. & M Continental 500 Championship series begins with the open wheeled 302 cubic inch, 500 horsepower speedsters putting on their usual fine show. These cars have become more and more sophisticated and now run lap times comparable to Formula 1 automobiles. But they cost about one fifth as much as a Formula 1 car.

May 7 we have the AHRA Nationals from Green Valley Raceway, Ft. Worth, Texas. Everything I've seen that AHRA has put on has been colorful and exciting to see.

Well, the Can-Am series could receive another boost if my informants have given me the straight scoop and the aluminum block hem engine which has been developed for drag racing should find its way into the Can-Am series. Very interesting!

There's still a trace of the Tennessee boyhood in wrestler-promoter Don Carson. He trains horses and bird dogs so he can hunt, he likes to fish, and so he can afford these luxuries, he makes a buck or two wrestling in San Francisco, Reno, and Las Vegas — a place he can fit in fishing trips with wrestling bookings.

Carson is 37 years old, he began wrestling 12 years ago, aged by the idea of big bucks. At the time, wrestling was strong in the Pensacola, Fla., area, he recalls, and "I know the guys were making big money, so it was an ambition to do."

He got into wrestling via playing football on the special services team while stationed in Japan. He weighed only 190 pounds at the time and gain weight in the final period but Utah fought back behind Willie Wise, who finished with 19 points, and Ron Boone, who had 18. Wise and Jimmy Jones ran into four tackles and set out long portions of the game.

Lewis had 15 points, while Mel Daniels had 16 points and led both teams with 19 rebounds.

His clerk that night — "the first penny I ever made from wrestling" — came to $4. That's right, four dollars. Not exactly big bucks.

When he later figured it took

After Losing To Orioles Martin Fight Has 'No Decision'

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer
Billy Martin was stopped fighting with his players. It's now fighting with the fans.

The quick-fisted Detroit Tiger manager, who made headlines three seasons ago by knocking out pitcher Dave Boswell, mixed it up with a man on the street Wednesday night.

The fight, which ended in "no decision," came after the Tigers had been decked by the Baltimore Orioles, 5-2.

"I wasn't mad about losing or mad about anything," explained Martin, who playing and managing days have been studied with battles.

With several Detroit players and a group of newsmen watching, the antagonists thruded to the hard ground with Martin's fist hitting the brawl late, about a minute before members of the Detroit group pried the two apart.

The fan identified himself as Jack Sears, 25, and said he has been a red-hot Detroit roter from Pontiac, Mich., who has been living in Baltimore for 15 years.

"All I said was, 'You guys better win tomorrow night,'" said Sears. "He hit me first and I grabbed his legs when we went down because I'm not a fighter."

Martin and the Tigers weren't the only ones in action Wednesday night. Six other American League games were played as the Chicago White Sox beat the Texas Rangers 2-1; the New York Yankees trounced the Milwaukee Brewers 3-2; the Cleveland Indians beat the Boston Red Sox 3-1; the Minnesota Twins crushed the California Angels 12-3 and the Oakland A's took a pair from the Kansas City Royals, 4-0 and 3-1.

Before the fireworks outside Baltimore's Memorial Stadium, the Orioles exploded for three runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Tigers. Boog Powell's opposite-field double to left knocked in the tie-breaking run and Paul Blair added two insurance runs with a single that chased Detroit ace Mickey Luch.

An error by second baseman Lenny Randle in the ninth inning enabled Carlos May to score the winning run as Chicago beat Texas.

"It was sure good to win my first game with a new club," said Basher, who was acquired during the winter from the New York Yankees. "And I especially was happy to get by the first seven innings. I usually get hurt in the early going."

Light-hitting Gene Michael lashed a three-run triple in the fifth inning to give the Yankees the runs they needed.

"He hit the ball over my head—that's all there was to it," said outfielder Joe Laha of Michael's triple. "I was playing in about four steps shorter than usual. But then, where would you play Gene Michael?"

Michael, known more for his glove than bat, lined the ball over Laha's outstretched glove and into the left field corner. It was the shortest of his first triple in nearly two seasons.

Gaylord Perry gained his first American League victory when he pitched Cleveland over Boston. The 35-year-old Perry, who played 10 years in the National League with San Francisco before moving to the Indians in a winter trade, checked the hard-hitting Red Sox on five hits, until relieved by Steve Mingers with one out in the ninth.

Bookie Bobby Darwin dove in five runs with a homer, double and single as Minnesota bombed California. Darwin turned a close game into a rout when he drilled a three-run shot in the seventh inning.

Los Angeles won with a two-hitter—Rico Carty's second-inning double and a bloop single in the third by Marty Perez. The Dodgers gave Sutton the only run he needed when Maury Wills opened the game with a triple—his first hit of the season after 18 fruitless at-bats—and Bill Buckner's infield out. Manny Mota singled two more across in the ninth.

LA's Frank Robinson left the game with a slight groin-pull but said he felt he could play tonight.

Another former St. Louis lefty—Jerry Reuss, who was traded last Saturday—picked up the victory as Houston turned back Cincinnati for the 15th time in their last 20 meetings. The Astros scored all their runs in the first three innings, most of the damage coming against ex-teammate Jack Billingham.

Cesar Cedeno had doubles in the first and third innings while Cincinnati's Tony Perez belted a solo home run in the sixth.

Ford Aides Win Honors

Four salesmen with Jack Prosser Ford Company were honored for outstanding sales performance during 1971 at a banquet in Jacksonville last Tuesday.

A.G. Walker, Jacksonville Ford district sales manager, said 380 district dealership salesmen were presented a 300-500 Club membership award for "excellent retail sales performance." The Ford 300-500 Club was founded in 1960 to recognize the performance of outstanding Ford dealership salesmen throughout the country.

Walker said the average 300-500 Club member sold nearly $75,000 worth of automotive merchandise in 1971 to qualify for the national honor.

Prosser salesmen qualifying for 300-500 Club membership are: Oscar W. Wilson, Jack Benton, Ben Howland and W.R. Burdette.

Hide Demand Drives Up Shoe Costs Leather Prices On The Rise

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — To businessmen, the future is that of the road up ahead that disappears into a fog of shapes and mysterious, indistinguishable signals, in which it is equally dangerous to slow down or speed ahead.

Even in an age of pinpoint surveys, planning is often just an educated guess.

In the footwear industry, for example, who could have foreseen the various factors that conspired to produce a situation that industry officials now claim will result in price increases of $1 to $4 a pair?

First, the hide market shifted. Demand rose for leather jackets and coats, each of which consumes enough leather for several pairs of shoes. At the same time there developed a rage for wide, wide leather belts.

These changes developed shortly after Argentina, one of the world's biggest hide exporters, decided to drop from the market so as to build up its breeding stock. Europeans, who usually buy 9 million Argentine hides a year, began placing their orders in the United States.

At the same time, rising living standards in Japan led to a greater demand for leather from that country.

All this, say the shoe people, adds up to higher prices—or does it? For hides, to be sure; already the price has risen from 18.5 cents to 31.5 cents a pound in one year. For shoes? The answer might be different.

Commerce Secretary Peter G. Peterson called industry leaders to a conference in Washington, the purpose being to keep prices increases within a range acceptable under Phase 2 guidelines. A $6 increase might be excessive.

But shoemakers, represented by the American Footwear Industry Association, claim they have no choice unless a ban is placed on hide exports. They seek a presidential order to enforce the ban.

The situation in trucking is similar in some respects.

Truck sales are booming, and it now seems possible that 2.5 million units will be sold this year. Nobody foresaw it. Equally surprised are industry officials and stock market analysts.

Why did they see so badly? Primarily because they were looking at the old market and estimating how much it could grow. But human nature played a trick on them; it reshaped that market.

A large part of the answer is revealed by a breakdown of sales figures that show the biggest increase in demand is for smaller trucks such as vans and pickups.

And why should this be so? Thinking at the moment is that the leisure market has much to do with it.

Shopping For New Brides

Before long many brides will be choosing their china, crystal and silver patterns. Some brides, who will want to purchase dishes, glasses and flatware for every occasion.

POTTERY is made from an impure clay. It's porous, brown in color, and chips easily. Because it can't withstand high temperatures, a suitable glaze has not been developed. While it's usually used for flower pots, dishes are occasionally made of pottery.

EARTHENWARE is made from a purer clay than pottery. It's opaque and can be either white or colored. It's less expensive than other types of dinnerware. The glaze used on some earthenware contains lead. Acidic foods, such as tomatoes that come in contact with it, react causing lead poisoning.

PORELAIN is made from a hard paste clay. Another name for porcelain is "vitrified," which means nonporous with a glassy finish. It's highly translucent, white, and strong (durable). The glazes used on porcelain can withstand high temperatures. Some of the more popular brands include: Meissen (Bavaria), Dresden (Bavaria), Limoges (France), Rosenthal (Germany), Royal Copenhagen (Denmark), Lenox (United States), Franciscan (United States), Syracuse (United States) and Haviland (United States).

BONE CHINA gets its name from the bone ash that is added to the porcelain. The bone ash is what gives the china its creamy white color. Bone china is vitrified, as is porcelain. It's made in England and will ring if tapped lightly. The one quality of bone china that makes it most elegant of dinnerwares is its transparency. Popular brands of bone china are Wedgwood, Coalport, Spode, Minton and Royal Doulton.

From that little can of tuna can come dishes representative of many countries around the globe. And this can be accomplished with a minimum of fuss as well as very economical.

The bisque is a delicate balance of curry, ginger and cream topped with toasted coconut. The avogelomo combines vegetables and egg-rich broth flavored with lemon.

To make tuna a la Grecque, combine tuna, celery, olives, tomatoes, chick-peas, onions and mushrooms in a hot savory marinade, then chill. If the dish is to be served as a main dish, copy Greek cooks and add

Companies Reporting Big Gains

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — As the country fights to keep a lid on wage and price increases, some of the nation's biggest corporations are reporting tremendous first-quarter profit gains over a year earlier.

While the reports make great news for shareholders attending annual meetings, they are causing concern in Washington and anger among union leaders.

Already the Cost of Living Council has ordered some companies to roll back prices. And it has found in a review of 105 corporate reports that 20 per cent of them indicated unacceptably high profits.

In quiting the Pay Board last month, George Meany, AFL-CIO president, claimed that "profits have begun to skyrocket." And now, lending credence to his charge, profit gains of 30 and 40 per cent are common.

In the past few days, for example, the following companies were among those reporting big percentage gains:

Du Pont 32, Honeywell 60.

Congress Pressing Florida

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) — State House Speaker Richard Pettegrew says the U.S. House Ways and Means Committee is considering a $3.3 billion revenue sharing plan that could force Florida to levy an income tax.

"Florida has engaged in very extensive reform of its tax structure," said Pettegrew, citing the enactment of a corporate income tax and removal of sales tax on household utilities and apartment rentals.

"A Congress which has a very unfair federal income tax with all kinds of loopholes for various interests is trying to tell Florida how to reform its tax structure," he said. "Florida has done more to eliminate favoritism from its tax structure than the Congress."

The plan, authored by Rep. Wilbur Mills, D-Ark., includes a feature giving more money to states that levy an income tax. Florida would get $9 million without such a tax and $22 million with one.

"To attempt to force Florida into adopting one or to severely penalize Florida for not having one is bad public policy," Pettegrew said.

"It is shameful that this policy was developed in secret work sessions of the committee and points up the need for adopting a Government-in-the-Sunshine law at the national level," he added.

Pettegrew, who has been at the forefront of state legislators urging Congress to pass revenue sharing, said the Mills plan isn't the one.

Moratorium Continued

By MARION BETHIA
ALTAMONTE SPRINGS — The city's moratorium on further development in an R-3 area for 90 days was continued by City Council due to the absence of two councilmen and the attorney.

However, the resolution was presented and read by City Clerk Jane Richards.

The moratorium was established until a comprehensive zoning plan is presented by a planning firm, and because a "state of emergency exists" in R-3 areas. During the 90 day moratorium no building permits will be issued for apartment construction in R-3, areas with the exception of R-3 areas in which deposits have been made previous to April 16 for water and sewer service at which are in the process of being annexed and which have made utility deposits.

There will be no annexations in the R-3 areas during the 90 days and no rezoning from one classification to another. Councilman Thomas Radloff stressed that the week's delay in consideration of the moratorium is not to be construed as another week's "grace" for developers to "rush in" with deposits for utility service.

In another matter, Mayor Lawrence Swafford labeled as "misinformed" a petition by 235 residents of Spring Valley Farms opposing rezoning of the entrance to their subdivision. The petition stated that there was proposed rezoning from R-1AA to R-3 upon a strip 165 feet wide at Wynmore Road and Spring Valley.

The residents contend that apartments are planned at the road entrance to the subdivision which will affect the property value of 216 home owners.

Parfaits Impressive Desserts A 'Perfect' Meal Ender

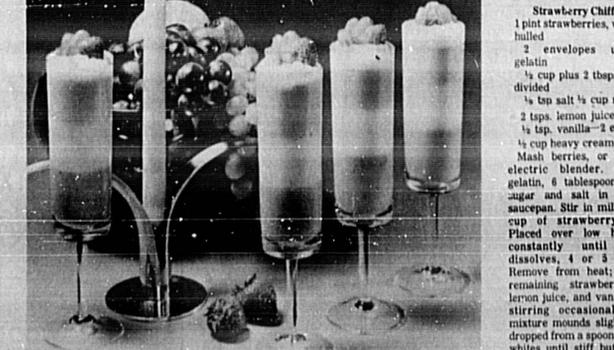

By SUSAN DELIGHT
Copley News Service

Parfaits and Bavarians are among the most impressive of the party desserts. Parfait is the French word for "perfect."

Rainbow FARFATS
Food-wise, a parfait is a layered dessert made with fruit, syrup, ice cream and whipped cream. And they are a "perfect" meal ender for a special party.

Bavarians are a desert made with custard, gelatin and whipped cream.

Either of these desserts can be made well ahead of a party and frozen or chilled for later serving.

1 cup cubed potato
4 cups chicken broth
1/2 cup dry white wine, optional
2 tbsps. finely chopped parsley
3 eggs, lightly beaten
3 tbsps. lemon juice
Salt and pepper to taste

Drain 2 tablespoons oil from tuna into large saucepan. Heat oil, add celery, carrot and onion and cook until crisp-tender. Add potato, chicken broth and wine. Cover; simmer 30 minutes or until vegetables are tender. Remove from heat; add tuna and parsley. Beat together eggs and lemon juice; rapidly whisk with a little hot liquid. Beat into hot soup. Continue cooking, stirring constantly, until mixture thickens. (Do not allow to boil.) Season with salt and pepper. Serve immediately.

DEBARY — The DeBary public affairs committee met in a special session with Adrian Freeman, president of the DeBary Volunteer Firemen's Association, and Fire Chief Maurice Eve to discuss proposed boundary lines to create a possible tax district to support the fire department in an enlarged district and, second, a smaller more compact district for other municipal services for DeBary.

Eve explained that with the announced county government policy of developing a program to make fire protection available for all unincorporated areas, the DeBary Volunteer Firemen will be expected to provide this service in adjoining neighborhoods not otherwise served by other fire companies. This need would include Enterprise and Highland Country Estates now being served by the DeBary Department and the St. Johns River.

In addition, he said, a mutual aid agreement had been set up with the Spring Lake, Lake Helen and DeBary Fire Departments to give protection in emergency fire situations. Freeman stated that in order to finance the costs of serving these outlying areas it would be necessary to set up a fire district for tax purposes similar to the Deltona Fire District.

Standards to serve this northern population is at least 2 books per capita or 47,300 currently used volumes with 4,790 added each year. A full-time staff of three professionals and eight non-professionals should keep the library open between 45-66 hours per week. The South Seminole Library with its 10,000 volumes serves those of the south of the county who pay a yearly membership fee. Three libraries are needed to adequately serve this part of the county: Altamonte Springs, Longwood-Casselberry and Oviedo. Each of these libraries should have at least 2 books per capita. The library to serve the 18,854 people in the Altamonte Springs area should have 39,708 currently used volumes with 2,300 added per year and a full-time staff of three professionals and 6 non-professionals.

Candidate To Speak Before DeBary GOP

DEBARY—Hugh M. Evans, chairman of the Brevard County Republican and a potential Republican candidate for Congress, will be the speaker at the monthly meeting of the DeBary Republican Club Monday at 7:30 p.m. in the DeBary Community Center.

He will report on Republican activities in Central Florida with particular reference to steps being taken by both parties to rectify the "gerrymandering set-up" of congressional and state seats. Plans will be presented at Monday's meeting for DeBary's participation in the coming political campaign.

Speaking at the meeting of the Volusia County Republican executive committee at Station, Evans reported that all but three of the elected officials in Brevard County are Republican.

"Save Venice" is the cry around the world. Many nations are heeding the call for help through UNESCO to save the beautiful Italian city which is in danger of being washed away because of the changing waters in the area affecting the deterioration of its buildings.

One nation to aid in publicizing this effort is Togo which has just issued a new set of stamps depicting some of the famous Venetian sites in danger.

Collectors of Australian material will be interested in the American Society of Australian Philatelists. This organization is relatively new, dating only to 1967 when its collectors assembled in New Orleans to combine efforts concerning their specialty — Australia.

Requests for more information and membership may be directed to the Secretary of A.S.A.P., James H. Hawley, 1928 S. 32nd Place, Decatur, Ill., 62521. President of the club is the noted philatelist writer Col. Leonard H. Smith, Jr.

While UNESCO is pleading for Venice, the United Nations Postal Administration is issuing four new airmail stamps to meet the revised domestic and overseas rates.

The WEEDERS GUIDE

By EARL ARONSON

Variability among grasses in your lawn provides flexibility for countering troubles — some of them your own fault because you may be a poor lawkeeper.

Dr. Robert W. Schery of The Lawn Institute in Ohio says a lawn planted solely to highly bred bluegrass, fine fescue or bentgrass can be the greatest. So long as you have suitable growing conditions. By this he means a good green or where you have a gardener to maintain constant vigil.

It's riskier, however, if only a single variety is planted in a home lawn, considering the heights and disease incidences likely to be met. Schery adds.

Many plots contain high ground, low spots, shade and sun, soil pockets of varying pH. And just as variability ensures survival value in an evolutionary sense, it can better insure grass persistence under changing lawn conditions.

Lawflood is a good dense variety of grass and Ruby is an excellent creeping variety noted for compatibility in seed mixtures in summer when less capable fescues tend to thin. Because mowing is neglected, fertilizer is misapplied, as equipment wears paths and compacts soil.

Plant breeders take the pure lines and two or more varieties. Research centers combine blends for general lawn plantings. Two or three bluegrasses, two or three fescues or fine fescue and Kentucky bluegrass are combined to take advantage of bluegrass' sod-forming ability on good soil in the open, and fescue's tenacity on poorer soils and in shade.

The trick, Schery notes, is to choose compatible grasses rather similar in appearance, responding to the same mode of lawn keeping.

Quartet Thrilled by Gold Record

They were thrilled by the news that their quartet had recorded a gold record. The quartet, two members from Warsaw, South Wales, were given a recording contract by Apple when the company began, in 1968, "Come and Get It" was recorded before they had even met.

Paul McCartney came around and said he'd been asked to write music for a film. He'd written the theme song, "Come and Get It," and he didn't want to get more involved with it. He told us to make a disk of it and of the film company liked it, he'd try to talk them into letting us write a couple more songs for the film.

We made a demo of it and they liked it and we wrote "Rock on! Till Tomorrow" and "Hick of Ages" in the film, which was "Magical Christmas." Evans says, "That is when we made ourselves."

Badfinger performed at George Harrison's concert for Bangladesh refugees last August in Madison Square Garden. Molland says, "I think George wanted to get the sound on this album. We played on his album, 'All Things Must Pass.' And I think he figured it would help us. It was the biggest, most exciting thing I've ever seen. I think everybody was excited by it."

On his third U.S. tour, this year, the group's drummer Mike Gibbons says, "We're usually top billed. We know where we stand as far as billing goes. When we are top we usually do good. It's they offered us top billing over Stevie Wonder for Carnegie Hall and we wouldn't take it."

The group played Carnegie Hall with top billing over Al Kooper and sounded in some ways like early and middle Beatles.

Evans says that to become famous you need to "play American tours for a long time or make supremely good albums. I think they go hand in hand. If you play a lot of tours you have a better chance of making a great album."

"You need to spend a lot of time with the public and don't become too studio-bound. I think that is what the public wants. The Beatles got unreal."

Badfinger is pleased that audiences know their music because he has a time. People call out requests. Molland says, "I missed an agenda the other day. I was supposed to be there."

During the American Revolution Nathan Hale, a young schoolteacher, was captured by the British as a spy without a trial. The World Almanac recalls that it is alleged that when Hale's jailer scornfully demanded some last words, he is reputed to have exclaimed: "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

Consumer Protection 'There Is Much To Be Done'

By BARBARA HARTUNG
Copley News Service
Complain, organize, lobby and complain some more. That's what Betty Furness, consumer protection adviser, says when she visits the market to do not measure up to their claims.

In and binding together as consumer protection groups, a great deal can be done to improve the lot of the consumer, says the former Westinghouse hostess who served as President Lyndon Johnson's consumer affairs adviser.

"The biggest hole in the consumer movement today is the fact that there are no organized consumer groups. And there must be in order for us to move our efforts forward. You have got to have citizens' groups. It is all very well for Ralph Nader or Ross Mizeron or me to make certain complaints. But as long as there are a limited few of us doing it, industry may choose to say that we don't really represent the public. The public has got to get up and represent themselves also," she says.

Miss Furness reports there are a few groups interested in generally improving consumerism but more often "everybody wants to get their own problem solved—their vacuum cleaner repaired, their car fixed, and they are not very interested in getting the next fellow's flag."

There is an awful lot going on in the marketplace that we can't understand—I think largely as a result of technology. We don't know what a lot of the products we buy are made of or what to expect or not expect of them. And I think that industry, in being literally far removed from the consumer, isn't there to respond to some of our questions and doesn't understand how much information we do need."

In addition to more information, Miss Furness adds, "we need to negotiate with industry, we need to persuade industry, and where all these things fail or where it is not practical to use those things, we definitely need legislation. We need legislation inevitably where there is a safety concern, no question about it."

Wearing her gray-black hair in a shoulder-length pageboy, the slender Miss Furness nearly bristles when someone mentions the concept of caveat emptor—let the buyer beware. "Why should the buyer have to beware? What kind of a world is that? We all work hard for our money and I think the bottom line concept of consumerism is that if our dollar is good, the product we buy with it should be equally good. It is not an unreasonable thing to ask. The lack of specific legal rights in the field of consumer protection is something of a problem, Miss Furness explains.

In the case of fraud, the consumer can go to the district attorney and in some cases the small claims court if of some use. But little else is available, she said. We have consumer protection officers right down to the neighborhood level, the average consumer won't have the opportunity for protection she should have," she adds, emphasizing the need for an independent consumer protection office in Washington, D.C., in addition to one at the state, city and town levels.

As a result of her consumer activities, Miss Furness admits her shopping habits have changed somewhat. "I've always been a shopper as opposed to a buyer. I really love to shop. I am more careful today."

ON THE HOUSE

By ANDY LANG
AP Newsfeatures

Two houses alongside each other need exterior painting. Both are in the same stages of despair. They are painted at the same time by two persons using the same kind of paint.

Six months later, one house still appears sparklingly fresh. The other has begun to develop cracks and wrinkles and seems not to have been painted for several years.

Why the difference? Because one person was more skillful in applying the paint? Not likely. The more probable reason is that one of the painters spent hours, perhaps days, preparing the surface to accept the new paint; the other didn't want to be bothered and figured it wouldn't matter too much anyway, since the new paint would cover whatever defects there were.

Unless loose and scaling paint are removed — by scraping, wire brushing or sanding wherever necessary — the new paint film will be disturbed within a short time by the movement of the material underneath it. But while this is the basic surface preparation, there are other necessary steps to insure a good result. Some of them are:

Mold and mildew — Should be washed off with a cleaner or bleach containing trisodium phosphate. Eliminate source of dampness. In severe cases, use point containing mildewicide. Caulking — Remove and re- place caulking around doors, windows, utility inlets, exhaust pipes, hot joints and wherever there is even a tiny gap that might admit rain.

Nails — Replace loose nails or countersink them and fill the holes with putty.

Masonry — Fill all cracks in masonry with patching cement or caulking compound. If painting masonry, use an exterior latex masonry paint.

Clapboard siding — Apply a generous coat of paint along the bottom edges. Skipping the edges or not applying enough paint to them permits moisture to move up under the paint film.

Trim — A trim paint with a gloss or semi-gloss appearance is especially resistant to the weather, but regular house paint is satisfactory if you wish a duller finish.

Peeling — Most paint peeling is caused by moisture getting under the paint and pushing it outwards. If this has been a chronic condition over the years, find the cause of it. It could be lack of vapor barriers inside or roof or wall leaks.

Knots — Resin spots and knots should be coated with one of the several knot sealers now available. This is vital when painting new wood.

Quality of Paint — You may be putting in several hundred dollars worth of labor in painting your house. Isn't it poor economy to use a poor quality paint that costs a few dollars less?

(Removing mildew, repairing brickwork and patching concrete are among the 35 problems discussed in Andy Lang's handbook, "Practical Home Repair," available by sending $1 to this newspaper in care of Box 5, Teaneck, N.J. 07666.)

Formulate A Family Budget

By JOYCE ROARK
Copley News Service

Setting up a budget can be a problem to a family. By knowing the national average budget you can formulate your own family's budget.

Joe Public's annual income after taxes is $8,600 ($720 per month). He found that his rent each month was $108 (14.3 per cent). His family spent $186 per month (22.8 per cent) on food (including alcoholic beverages and tobacco). They spent $99 per month (13.3 per cent) on transportation (gasoline and car payments). Because he has two school-age children, he spent $78 per month (10.3 per cent) on clothes. For medical care the family spent $55 (7.4 per cent). Household operations each month cost $101 (14.1 per cent). The family spent $40 per month (3.3 per cent) on personal business (insurance, care, etc.). Recreation took $48 per month (6.3 per cent). The miscellaneous spending was $27 (3.8 per cent) each month. You may spend more for rent, house payments, etc. or you may spend more for food, transportation, medical care, etc. No matter what your budget is, compare it with this one to see how you compare with the national average. U.S. government offices did a survey in 1968-1970 of more than 10,000 urban and rural families. Their average income before taxes was about $9,794; after taxes, about $8,600. My own family wouldn't be able to use this budget verbatim because our housing cost is higher each month and we like to put more in our savings each month. Your family will probably have similar discrepancies. By altering the percentages to fit your needs, you can establish a budget that fits your individual family.

There are other ways of making up a budget for a family, but this method is the easiest.

Use A String To Remind You, Mayor

By DONNA ESTES

LONGWOOD — Mayor Kenneth Brown will no doubt wear a string on his finger when he attends the work session and special meeting of the city council called for 7 p.m. Tuesday. The string will remind him to discuss and obtain formal consent from the council to go ahead with water rationing and negotiations for a $300,000 loan from South Seminole Bank for necessary improvements and expansion of the city's water system.

The mayor Thursday night "forgot" to bring the two matters before the board in official session and thus has no official sanction to pursue solution to the problems. The excessive use of water by city residents to the point where well pumps were operating continuously with fans directed upon them for cooling, was considered an emergency during a work session Wednesday morning.

The answer to the problem recommended by City Engineer William Palm was immediate action to install a larger pump to get more water out of city wells. He admitted by pumping more the water might have a slight hydrogen sulfide odor but would be drinkable. This action would take about three weeks, he said.

Long term improvements including drilling of two new wells, storage tanks, and distribution lines could be accomplished in about four months, he said.

Blow: 'No More To Be Towed Off'

By BILL SCOTT
A. P. (Pat) Bule Jr., Seminole

CASSELBERRY—Mayor Curtis Blow confirmed today that the picture of towing away cars parked too near fire hydrants in Seminole Plaza was being temporarily discontinued pending corrections of markings and signs.

It was pointed out pictorially in Thursday's Herald that those parking with in present markings may still be in violation of the ordinance. It has been reported by a reliable source that some 75 vehicles have been towed away by Mullins Wrecker Service at the request of the Casselberry Police Department in recent weeks. The parking spaces at the Plaza, usually more than adequate, have often been at a premium due to the influx of crowds to see "The Godfather" at Seminole Cinema.

The matter came to a head when police and firemen responded to a bomb threat at the theater to find hydrants and fire lanes blocked.

Longwood Divided On Administrator

LONGWOOD — Attempt to appoint Councilman William Klosky as temporary city administrator for a 60-day period failed Thursday night.

Councilman Dick Crenshaw asked the action be taken to give Klosky additional authority while devoting full time without charge and performing many of the duties which have become necessary. Klosky, a retired Air Force man, is one only member of the city council not pursuing active employment and has been giving full time to the city.

At the same time Crenshaw commended Mayor Kenneth Brown's work in the CALNO Council of Local Governments on behalf of the city and Councilman Weber's work without charge in the water department.

WEATHER — Yesterday's high 91 low 62. Partly cloudy with a slight chance of an afternoon shower. Highs 85 to 90, lows 64 to 70. The nation kept a cool head, a damp middle and warm feet today as the New England states were chilled by temperatures near freezing, the lower Plains and Mississippi valley got thunderstorms and the Gulf states enjoyed weather in the 70's.

HOMES FOR AMERICANS

THREE-BEDROOM RANCH. Designed to be built without a basement, this modern L-shaped structure exudes charm even on a small lot. A foyer leads to a combined family room-kitchen and to the dining-living room area and a hall which leads to one of two baths and the bedrooms. The house was designed by architect Samuel Paul, 107-48 Queens Blvd., Forest Hills, N.Y. 11375. Information on blueprint may be obtained by writing the architect.

Here's the Answer

By ANDY LANG

Q — soon with prefinished plywood. The walls are of poured concrete. We have two radiators in the basement that keep the place warm when necessary. We have never had even the slightest suggestion of a leak in the basement, but someone gets a little condensation on the walls when the heat is turned on. What can be put under the plywood to prevent this? I am attaching studs to the concrete and putting plywood sheets over the studs.

A — There are several ways to do this. One involves the use of insulation with a vapor barrier, but you may get by with the installation of polyethylene plastic sheets over the studs before attaching the plywood. This will keep warm, moist air from reaching the cool basement walls — provided there are no openings in the plywood installation that will permit the air to reach the concrete. If this can NOT be accomplished, the use of a vapor barrier and polyethylene plastic sheets over the studs before attaching the plywood will help.

Q — One of our closets has a musty odor. How can we get rid of it?

A — Dampness and lack of air circulation usually cause this. Try a small dehumidifier in the closet. Or get one of the electric air dryers made especially for this purpose.

Exploring Mountains Yanks Moon Walking

By HOWARD BENEDET
AP Newsfeatures

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Apollo 16 astronauts John W. Young and Charles M. Duke Jr. stepped on the lunar surface today to begin man's first exploration in the mountains of the moon.

The astronauts, who almost had their landing aborted Thursday, were in good spirits after receiving word this morning that they could make all three planned moon walks.

For the first time, the first steps of an astronaut team on the moon were not televised to earth because of a problem with an antenna on the lunar ship Orion.

One of Duke's first assignments was to set up a portable antenna so that TV could be transmitted. During the seven-hour excursion, Young and Duke planned to set up a nuclear-powered science station and drive their battery-powered moon car across an undulating plain to inspect two craters named Spook and Flag for evidence of volcanic activity and other lunar secrets.

Mission Control told Young and Duke before they retired Thursday night that one of their moon walks might have to be canceled and their time on the surface shortened because of a late landing that resulted from an engine problem in the command ship Casper.

After a night of study, Mission Control determined there was enough water and power aboard the lunar craft Orion to support the full stay on the moon of 73 hours.

After rejoining the command ship the astronauts had planned an extra two days conducting experiments in lunar orbit. The next flight plan calls for them to eliminate one of those days and to fire back toward earth Monday night instead of Tuesday. Splashdown in the Pacific will be Thursday, a day earlier.

On awakening Young and Duke today, capsule communicator Tony England announced: "If you guys are all right on the moon and that he had taken a sleeping tablet to help him rest."

John had 7 1/2 hours good sleep," he said. "I had a second and slept 6 1/2 to 7 hours. Real good."

Duke reported both men had slept soundly during their first night on the moon.

They touched down on a mountain plain in the lunar crater Crater Thursday night after three session-filled hours during which 300 experts worked on the ground to save the landing mission.

MISSION PLAN for Apollo 16, outlined on a relief of the target area with mission names assigned to the most prominent surface features. Calls for extensive exploration due north and south of the touchdown point. Numbers indicate stops and experiment activity in sequence.

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — An anonymous army scattered from coast to coast and held in reserve for just such emergencies sprang to action Thursday to save the $475-million Apollo 16 moon landing.

In Houston and Cambridge, Mass., in Tullahoma, Tenn., and Downey, Calif., a company of 200 rushed to computers, spacecraft simulators, rocket engine mockups and voluminous files of data from countless past studies of Apollo systems.

Apollo 16 was in trouble. Man's fifth manned lunar landing hung in the balance.

Shortly before John W. Young and Charles M. Duke were to fire their lunar lander Orion's engine to begin the descent to the moon's Descartes highlands, a problem with the control system of the big engine on Thomas K. Mattingly's command ship Casper developed. The two spacecraft already had separated.

The needles in meters monitoring the circuits in a backup system that swivels the engine nozzle to steer the spacecraft were flicking to and fro.

The primary control system was functioning, but mission rules forbid Mattingly to fire Casper's engine to return to an orbit 60 miles above the moon without the backup system.

Space agency officials considered ordering Orion and Casper to rejoin and use Orion's engine to blast them homeward.

But Apollo's anonymous army marched to work.

Angel 'Has Different Rules' Buie Blasts School Supt.

By BILL SCOTT
A. P. (Pat) Bule Jr., Seminole

SCHOOL BOARD member, has leveled a blast at School Supt. John Angel, accusing him of setting different rules as regards service to the board for the various members.

Amid speculation that Buie, completing a four-year board term, is about to announce his candidacy for the office of county school superintendent, the "mod" member of the board continued his insistence that the superintendent furnish him with advance information on students scheduled for expulsion proceedings by the board.

Buie said, "I'm sorry that the superintendent has decided he cannot advise me that information pertinent to my job as a board member cannot be sent in the mail."

"It is either that, or he feels I may publish a book or the like, and not hold the information confidential."

"The board member continued, 'I deeply resent this implication and must conclude there are different rules as regards service to the board for the various members.'"

In explaining his position, Buie said he told Angel he would not attend the expulsion hearing unless he had the information in advance. Angel told Buie he would have sufficient time to study the case.

"This was based on the fact that the board attorney had advised Angel to furnish the information to me," Buie added.

He stated he further asked the right-of-way. The Green representative said it is his company's wish that the city put in the sub-base and fill and estimate cost of this at $2,000.

"If the city does not bring it up to grade, it is not feasible to build there," he said.

City Spt. Ralph Fisher said although he is familiar with the subdivision of a new petition and re-adopt the annexation ordinance. He added that any person has the right to go to court if he desires.

Mayor Brown resented "being called a liar," "I'm a man or my word," he said and assured Dr. Grissom he would be glad to get together with the developer of the property and parcel owners in the area to discuss the matter on Monday. Annexation is expected to be completed Tuesday.

In other business, Council tabled a request from a representative of W. H. Green and Sons, builders, for assistance from the city in improving a previously unimproved city street—Georgia Avenue from Lakeview to Wayman—to permit building of homes on land adjacent to the superintendent to compile reasons given for suspensions in the secondary schools, so the board could be prepared for the day when the board is advised that a student had been recommended for expulsion for an offense that does not exist at another school.

Buie has either voted "nay" or abstained on all expulsion cases brought by the superintendent before the board and has consistently maintained he did not have information available to him in time to make a decision.

The long-haired board member declined to comment on when he would announce his candidacy for either the superintendent's post or to seek another term as board member. "I have not made up my mind yet," was the only reply he would give when asked about his plans.

Royalties Not Paid To State

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—Martina Farms, Fla. (AP)— Florida's first shrimp farming operation, has yet to pay the first cent of production royalties to the state under a 1970 agreement, checks have disclosed.

The Panama City firm signed the agreement with the state Internal Improvement Fund (IIF) on Feb. 2, 1970. It provided for a 3-year lease of 3,500 acres of state-owned submerged lands in West Bay.

The firm has paid acreage lease fees, IIF official John Dubose said, according to the contract. It calls for $4 an acre for the first 18 months, $6 an acre for the next 48, and $10 an acre for the remainder of the lease.

But Dubose said the state has made no efforts to extract production royalties from the firm under a second section of the contract.
