BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

NO RESPECTER OF PERSONS.—Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: not in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him. Acts 10:34, 35.

No 'Southern' Type of Girl, says Science—headline. Well, maybe not scientifically, but it has been our experience. . . .

9.9 Percent Foreign Born in United States Are Shown in Inter-County—headline. In fact, almost everyone is illiterate when born.

As one commentator put it, the people didn't change horses in the middle of the stream last Tuesday; they changed handwagons.

If all the liquor is drunk by Christmas that people are talking about, Santa Claus is apt to arrive bringing a couple of panthers in lieu of tangle of reindeer.

Thanksgiving this year will find many people thankful for many different things. Those who have a buy turkeys, for instance, will be thankful that they cost from 10 to 25 percent less than last year.

Hair can be cut in Miami for fifteen cents as a result of a hair-cutting war. Fifteen cent haircuts look good to customers who have to pay for them, but do not look good to barbers who are losing money on that account. Nor do they look good to anyone who considers it as the low cost of living which is hurting business. Many hair prices get back up to a pre-Thanksgiving level will they be able to carry high hair charges which practically everyone has.

Theoretically, if G. V. Roosevelt and John Garner were not candidates for the newspapers, they would not know to this day how last Tuesday's election turned out. It was the Associated Press which gathered the results and compiled them into continuing totals. They not been for that, everyone could have waited the morning of the Electoral College in January before learning who will be the next president. It pays to read the newspaper and not to rely on advertising.

The impression was generally held that Norman Thomas would pull an unusually large vote, but most complete returns indicate that he has pulled proportionately fewer than any previous socialist candidate in a quarter of a century. It is apparent that he carried in this election less than a million votes out of forty millions, not quite 2.5 percent. Debs in 20 pulled 3.4 percent; Benson in 26 pulled 3.3 percent; Debs in 1912 had 6.9 percent; and in 1907, 7 percent. In no sense of the word can the election be termed a socialist triumph.

If any one thing marked last week's election more than Roosevelt's overwhelming victory, it was the landslide of inconsistencies in a contest which generally saw triumph for the west, McAdams' cry, was elected to the state in California and Hiram Johnson, equally ardent west, was elected to re-election in Connecticut. In an election which generally saw a clean sweep for "outs" over the "ins" Representative Bacon, of New York, defeated his Democratic opponent, Cornelius Vanderbilt Riney; Lieutenant Governor Heman triumphed over his Democratic opponent, Col. Hill; Levan in the gubernatorial race. Gov. White, of Ohio, was re-elected over Dave Ingalls, World War ace. And in a year which almost universally saw a repudiation of professional politicians, the president since U. S. Grant, had never previously held an elective office, was defeated.

The plan of France and Great Britain for an extension of the moratorium and reconsideration of the war debt settlements follows naturally the reduction granted in Germany's reparations at Lausanne last summer. So precipitately did these notes from our European debtors arrive after last week's election that the impression is apt to be aroused in this country not alone that the matter is of utmost concern to Europe but also that American politics may be playing an important part in these war time obligations.

If there is anything in the world today which should be completely divorced from political intrigue and, in fact, all partisan feeling, it is the question of war debts, reparations, and other national and international obligations. To such stupendous heights have the debts of all leading nations risen as a direct result of the war, so involved are their innumerable complications, that any reasonable solution, or any solution of any kind, must be directly dependent upon the honest, impersonal, non-political manner in which the problem is attacked.

The loans which this country made Europe during the war are as honest and as real obligations as ever nations incurred. At the time they were made they were looked upon by Europeans themselves as the very salvation of their countries and undoubtedly contributed largely to their success in the war. Since the loans were made this country has continued to show Europe every possible consideration regarding them.

Accrued interest from the date of the loans to the date of funding were in all cases reduced and in many cases completely cancelled. Interest rates at the time of funding were also reduced from five and six percent to an average of a little more than two percent and in several instances to as little as three-tenths of one percent. Furthermore, American citizens, in order to help European nations recover from the effects of the World War and to regain their financial stability so that they might be better able to pay their war debts, have lent European governments, industries, and individuals many additional billions.

Now Europe asks further considerations, this time to the extent of virtual cancellation. If the United States grants this request, it loses eleven billion dollars, not counting interest spread over sixty-seven years. It loses an annual federal income at the present time of $250,000,000 which is supposed to increase materially as the years go by. And the United States still owes the bonds on which the money was raised to Europe and must devise ways and means, through additional taxation, to pay those bonds.

It is a big order which Europe asks, but suppose we refuse as now seems likely. Both the President of the United States and the President-elect of the United States have expressed their opposition to cancellation. The present Congress is on record as being not only opposed to cancellation but also to any extension of the moratorium or even any further consideration of the war debt problem.

If the request which our debtors have made is not granted, the settlement effected at Lausanne becomes void. By this settlement, German reparations were reduced from sixty-five billions to $710,000,000. A revocation of the Lausanne agreement would call for the payment by Germany of $100,000,000 a year, which Germany will not, and could not if she would, pay.

Any attempt to collect by force would precipitate an armed conflict. No such attempt, of course, would likely be made. But worse than that, a repudiation by Germany of her obligations to this country. Such wholesale repudiation of public obligations would be followed by a similar repudiation of private obligations.

Private loans of American citizens to Germany alone amount to about four and one-half billion dollars. American private loans to other European nations aggregate many billions more. The destruction of so vast an amount of accumulated American wealth would have a disastrous effect not only in this country but throughout the entire world. Credit and confidence would be destroyed for many years to come. If such consequences can be averted by reconsideration of the war debt settlements, even to the point of considerable scaling down or eventual cancellation, it might be the part of good business to do it.

AGRICULTURE NEWS NOTES.
CORN CONTEST AWARDS TO BE MADE EARLY IN DECEMBER
 Visits are now being made to the farms of all contestants in the Seminole County Corn Growing Contest for the purpose of checking up on the weevil damage, means of storing the corn, and records. Several fine yields have been made according to the records as judged from field estimates. However, as the yield is based on the amount of shelled corn per acre some very interesting factors will be brought out in making these Corn Champion awards. The prizes this year will be a silver loving cup and $10.00 for first prize, $25.00 for second prize, and $15.00 as third prize.

PART-TIME AGRICULTURE CLASS FILLS REAL NEED
 At the present time there are eleven young men registered in the part-time farmers' class now being held each Wednesday night.

A Vote Of Confidence

It must be a source of particular gratification to the City Commission that Commissioners Lehman and Speer received such popular endorsement at the poll last week, endorsing as it did a vote of confidence in the work of the Commission as a whole. That this view is rather generally held is indicated by various comments on the election in the state press, one of which, taken from the Miami Herald, is as follows:

"The city of Sanford has been and still is one of the blackest spots on the civic bond map of Florida, but its efforts to protect its own interests as well as to assure to bondholders at least a maximum return on their holdings have been of a remarkably active type.

"It is interesting to note that the taxpayers of Sanford have just re-elected for a three-year term two of five commissioners who have initiated and pushed the only feasible plan for handling the city debts. H. J. Lehman and V. A. Speer, who helped to start the bond settlement for Sanford, have been returned in the face of the determined challenge of two other men, one a former commissioner.

"Just how long the present bond negotiations for Sanford can proceed smoothly, and what the ultimate outcome will be cannot be foreseen. But at least the people of that city have found they can base definite hopes for recovery upon the business and political acumen of their commission, and the electorate was not hesitant about indicating that fact when voting time arrived."

SANFORD, TWENTY YEARS AGO

Mrs. D. E. Thresher was hostess at a consultation candy pulling Tuesday evening given in sympathy to a number of her friends who, with herself, are temporary "grass widows" while their husbands are enjoying the delights of a hunting trip and camping expedition near Ft. Christmas. Mrs. F. J. Gonzalez won first prize, a dainty box of candy, in a contest conducted by the hostess. The hokey prize, a large stick of candy, went to Mrs. A. P. Connelly. The special feature and real amusement of the evening was a genuine old-fashioned candy pulling which afforded a great deal of fun to the partici-

THE BATTLE OF HASTINGS—1066 A. D.

"Nature in the Raw"—as portrayed by J. Scott Williams... inspired by the surging fury of the Norman hordes under William the Conqueror, in their merciless onslaught against the English in the Battle of Hastings, October 14, 1066. "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes.

"Nature in the Raw is seldom MILD"

No raw tobaccos in Luckies —that's why they're so mild

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

Cecilian Music Club Begins Season With Meet At Mrs. Munson's

At the first meeting of the season of the Cecilian Music Club, held Saturday afternoon at 3:15 o'clock at the studio of Mrs. Fannie S. Munson, Myrtle Avenue, Mrs. Munson told of some of the activities of the club since the last meeting on May 14 and called attention especially to the recital given on May 30 in honor of the 1932 graduating class of Seminole High School.

During her talk Mrs. Munson also advised the members that Miss Gene Martin Laney, with the assistance of Mrs. R. C. Maxwell, reader, gave a certificate piano recital on July 6 and Miss Mary Elizabeth Tolar, with the aid of Miss Eleanor Herzig, violinist, and Mrs. R. R. Doss, accompanist, gave a similar recital on the evening of Aug. 28.

The short instruction by Mrs. Munson for the afternoon was based on the keys of the piano. She stated that the 36 black keys are made of the hard heart wood of the ebony tree, grown only in the tropics, while the ivory of the 52 white keys of the best make pianos comes from the tusks of elephants. The glue used in attaching ivory on piano keys must be absolutely pure and is tested by tasting. It must be applied while very hot.

At the close of the piano selections Miss Mable Bowler, accompanied by Miss Fannie Roba Munson, sang "Because" by Guy D'Harlot.

The program was presented as follows:

- "With United Strings", August Snielek, Mary Louise Merrivether.
- Climbing Blossoms - Spaulding, Mary Young.
- Military March - Schubert, Donald Lawson.
- Dance of the Rosebuds - Keats, Jane Lloyd.
- The Rosary - Edwin Whelpley, Kathrine Morrison.
