5 Months Of Agony—And Love

Lightning Struck Just Once, But...

By MELISSA EDGEMONT
 Herald Correspondent

Karen Barber Hawkins of Forest City wasn't sure she'd see this Christmas.
 Struck down by what experts estimate was a 100-million-watt bolt of lightning, two months ago, it has been a long hard road to recovery, but with the help of a loving and supportive family she has made it.
 Karen has no memory of the traumatic incident, but her twin sister, Kathy Barber Shover, of Altamonte Springs, who was with her, remembers it well.
 She doesn't like to talk about the terrifying experience, because it is such a danger to her memory something she would like to forget.
 They were outdoors when lightning can provide a storm by night to 10 miles as they jogged along New Smyrna Beach about a half mile from their condominium on that fateful July 2. A storm was moving in from the direction of Daytona Beach.

Suddenly, without warning the lightning struck from a slightly overcast sky, knocking the sisters to the ground. Power from the bolt was enough to light a small city, experts later told them.

While Kathy only received shined knees and a ringing sensation in her ears, Karen lay motionless and not breathing. Her sister had turned blue and her talking unit was turned.

When Jean Latham, health service advisor of Volusia Community College, was summoned to the scene by an eyewitness she and her two daughters began administering cardiopulmonary resuscitation to Karen.
 "They thought her all practical purposes she was dead and there was little chance of reviving her," said Helen Barber of Canaberry, Karen's mother, "but they kept trying until her heart began beating and she started breathing again."

Taken to Orange Memorial Hospital in Orlando by ambulance, Karen did not regain consciousness for 10 days and was in the intensive care unit for 13 days.

Why one of the twins absorbed the full force of the bolt, while the other was minimal, is a mystery. Both girls were wearing jogging shoes at the time and were away from the water.
 However, and Volusia counties with their popular beaches are among the most central Florida counties known as the lightning corridor because of the frequency of thunderstorms. The deaths attributed to lightning occurred in Brevard and 10 in Volusia during the period of 1970-77.

Following her 10-day hospital stay, Karen underwent extensive physical therapy for a month as all of her coordination had to be relearned. "She was a very good patient," said her mother, Mrs. Barber.

During Karen's recovery her close knit family was always nearby.
 Her mother, sister, and husband spent hours visiting in the hospital, driving her to therapy, and cooking and

Delay Testing
 Certificates?
 Reaction Mixed

By LEONARD KRANSDORF
 Herald Staff Writer

A move to delay for one year the awarding of certificates instead of diplomas to students who fail the state assessment test met with mixed Thursday support from Seminole County school officials.

A task force headed by Secretary of State Jesse McCarty voted 7-4 to reaffirm a recommendation passed by a narrow 6-5 margin Thursday urging the legislature to postpone by one year the June 1979 requirement that youngsters demonstrate minimum reading, writing and math abilities by passing the exam in a given subject.
 "I have seen no evidence to warrant any delay," Education Commissioner Ralph Wirtlington said.

"To the contrary, the dramatic improvement in scores this year strongly demonstrates the program is sound, is working well and should be continued."

The vote taken Friday by a special Cabinet task force would mean that until June 1980 students would continue to receive a diploma whether they pass the state student assessment test or not, that was to go into effect June, 1979.

The move to change it came in the form of a 7-4 vote in a recommendation which still needs to be approved by the Cabinet which sits on the Board of Education and then by the legislature when it meets again early in 1981.

In Seminole County last year 85 11th graders failed some portion of the test and 12th graders this year had to retake those parts. Of the 88, only 16 failed this time and will have the chance to take it again in April. Those who fail again, would get certificates instead of diplomas in June unless the law is changed.

The state assessment test, formerly called the Functional Literacy test, was established by the legislature to combat the problem of students graduating from school and not having proper knowledge of the basic skills.

The move is getting different reactions from county education officials contacted about the task force vote.

"I really see no reason to delay giving the test," said Dan Dugg, assistant superintendent of instruction for the school district.

"I think the students had enough time to get prepared and for those who didn't do well we gave them intensive remediation which has been effective," he added.

Superintendent William Layer took a somewhat different view saying "I really don't believe in the concept of certificate of completion, and if it were delayed it would suit me

A PEDESTRIAN, A CAR: HIT AND RUN

Sanford police today urged anyone who may have witnessed the hit-and-run accident or who knows the driver of the vehicle to contact police.

Emergency personnel work on 20-year-old James Smith of Sanford, victim of a hit-and-run accident early Saturday morning. Smith, of 3417 Key Ave., was transported to the Orlando Regional Medical Center's intensive care unit after treatment at Seminole Memorial Hospital's emergency room. Police said Smith was walking on Commercial Street between Sanford and Palmetto avenues when he was hit at 7:15 a.m. Police believe the car involved in the accident is white with black stripes. The car's rear view mirror was broken off at impact.

Taiwanese At U.S. Embassy: 'Carter Is A Coward'

What Carter Did, Said

President Carter made three points in his 10-minute U.S.-China relations.
 —Seminole and Poling will establish full diplomatic relations Jan. 1 and exchange ambassadors March 1.
 —U.S. will maintain China diplomatic relations will be cut and Taiwan regarded as "part of China" and permitted only cultural and commercial relations with "the American people."
 —The 1955 Defense Treaty with Taiwan will be allowed at the end of 1980 in keeping with one-year automatic requirement. The remaining U.S. military personnel will be withdrawn from Taiwan within four months.
 —China's vice premier, Yang Shih-shan, will visit Washington at the end of January—the first Peking leader of his rank to officially visit the United States.

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI)—Hundreds of Taiwanese, angry about an "unworthy Carter," protested today against the U.S. decision to recognize mainland China. The government changed martial law on the island and postponed parliamentary elections.

A crowd of more than 100 people gathered outside the U.S. Embassy in downtown Taipei and chanted "Carter is a coward" while hours of the announcement speech by President Carter that Washington would establish diplomatic ties with Peking.

One man tried to shove a bouquet of eggs at the embassy and another on the other side of the street with other demonstrators by a strong force of police and tear gas.

U.S. Ambassador Leonard Unger made no statement on the American decision to establish relations with Peking next month and cut ties with Taiwan.

Self-immolation had erupted in the streets. One U.S. Army officer was attacked, but escaped his assailants.

...achieved, says Dr. Thibodeau. "If you get it off one year, then you will get it off another year and after awhile no one will want it," Bracken added.

Bracken noted even if a student gets the certificate, he still has the opportunity to get a diploma by going to adult high school and picking up the skills he missed on the assessment test.

It also recommended the testing program begin in the 10th grade, instead of the 12th, to allow more time for remedial instruction and 10th graders a chance to get a diploma before going into the workforce.

This test is meeting with mixed reactions.

"I think we should give this a chance to see how it works, we really haven't given it enough time to see if it sufficiently works," Bracken said.

Layor noted it was better to give it at the lower grade because "it gives us more time for remediation and with the earlier test we would be more able to better correct any deficiencies in our educational system."

Layor added however he believes a test such as the state assessment should not be the only criteria in promoting a student.

"I think such areas as job skills and how the student gets along with other people are an important part of education," he said. "The state assessment test is one test but should not be the only test to determine if the student gets the diploma."

Dugg noted the 12th grade is "the appropriate level to give the test."

"The student has already had 10 years of schooling and is only one year away from graduating and I think that is a good time to give such a test," he said.

$38,695 Left Behind

JACKSONVILLE (UPI)—Police traced several leads Friday in an effort to locate the owner of a briefcase stuffed with $38,695 in cash found by a chambermaid last Tuesday in a motel room.

Police traced telephone calls the man made from the room to Atlanta in hopes of discovering his identity. The car he was driving bore out-of-state license plates, hotel personnel said.

In Seminole County Program To Help Students' Self-Opinion Under Study

By LEONARD KRANSKOW Herald Staff Writer

Students who score poorly on tests or who drop out of school as under-achievers often have a low opinion of themselves, school officials said.

Many parents unable to deal with such students also may contribute to the student's low self opinion, those school officials said.

'One Important part of this program would be to develop a positive classroom climate for the student'

Dr. Emory Giles, superintendent of schools in the county, said that the program would be to develop a positive classroom climate for the student.

NASA executives predict that ordinary people will become part of the space shuttle program within the decade. Anyone in good physical condition could fly in the 104-foot vehicle, which will have the gravitational pull of a roller coaster. The first shuttle will be launched next year.

Chinese Shop, Watch As U.S. Satellite Orbits

CAPE CANAVERAL (UPI) — As a 15-member delegation from China and 35 astronaut trainees watched, Canada's commercial satellite ANIK-B was launched flawlessly Friday night aboard a Delta rocket.

Launch was on schedule at 7:21 p.m. and 38 minutes later the satellite was placed in a transfer orbit ranging from about 115 miles to 23,300 miles from earth.

A spacecraft motor will be fired Monday to put it in a circular orbit 23,300 miles from earth. It will then be maneuvered either by space craft thrusters or drifting until it reaches a stationary orbit 23,300 miles from earth over the Equator north of Saskatoon, Saskatchewan.

The delegation from the People's Republic of China toured the Kennedy Space Center before the launch, examining the space shuttle and other items.

The group is conducting exploratory visits throughout the United States with an eye toward buying a satellite for civilian use. The space craft would be bought from an aerospace firm and the U.S. space agency would launch it.

The 30 new astronaut candidates who will participate in the space shuttle program include 20 men and six women. They are in training at the Johnson Manned Space Center at Houston.

Also viewing the launch was a delegation of 180 Canadians, including Madame Jeanne Seavey, minister of communications for Canada, and officials of Telesat Canada, the firm that owns the satellite.

NASA Administrator Robert Frosch also looked on.

George Page, director of operations for KSC, said "It went perfect. We have had 17 successful launches for expendable vehicles this year."

He referred to 8 Deltas, 7 Atlas-Centaur, from Cape, and two Deltas launched from western test ranges.

William Zatyshch, director of satellite systems division for Telesat Canada, said he was pleased with the launch but said it was just the beginning.

"For Telesat, this is just the first portion of the mission. We have a major attitude maneuver to perform with these spacecraft motor firings on Monday," he said. "We hope to have the satellite on station in 30 days and it will take another few weeks to check it out."

The new $60 million satellite is the fourth and most advanced domestic communications satellite to be operated by Telesat Canada.

When it goes into service in February, it will replace two of the three Anik A satellites already in use.

The Anik-B will be able to handle 7,500 two-way voice circuits or 14 television channels at one time.

It has two frequency bands and the higher one has been leased by the Canadian Department of Communications for a two-year period for $20 million. Customers for the lower frequencies are expected to include the Canadian Broadcasting Corp., Bell Canada, TransCanada Telephone System, Global Television and Telelobe Canada.

AREA DEATHS

THOMAS SEGLER
Funeral services for Thomas M. Segler, 67, of 200 E. Portal Drive, Sanford, who died Friday, at the Community Convalescent Center in Gainesville, were held Saturday at the graveside in Oaklawn Park in Sanford. Born in Dale County, Ala., he was a longtime resident of Sanford. He was a member of the Church of the Brethren and was retired from the Dale County School Board.

He is survived by three daughters, Beatrice Williamson, Sanford; Evelyn McCarty, Sanford; and Mrs. Bertie Cheshire, Flaca Honor; three sons, Ishmael, Robert and Roland Bigler, all of Sanford; brothers, Ralph of Ocala, Ala., and Alvin of Thomaston, Ga.; three sisters, Cora Reynolds, Nora Walker and Emma Smith, all of Enterprise, Ala.; 18 grandchildren and several great-grandchildren.

Funeral Home, Gainesville, was in charge of arrangements.

EVERETT H. CRAFT
Funeral services will be Monday for Everett H. Craft, 78, of 1503 Sumner Ave., Sanford, who died Thursday. Born in Clay County, West Virginia, he moved to Sanford in 1948. Mr. Craft was a retired heavy equipment operator for the city of Sanford.

He was a Baptist.

Survivors are one daughter, Mrs. Clarice Linton, Sanford; two sons, Everett A. and Bernard, Louisville, Ky.; and seven grandchildren.

Granslow Funeral Home in charge.

Funeral Notice

CRAFT, EVERETT H.
Funeral services for Everett H. Craft, 78, who died Thursday, will be 11 a.m. Monday at Granslow Funeral Home chapel, 1017 S. T. Canale at the intersection of Interstate 95 and Evergreen Cemetery.

'Help Wanted' For Shuttle?

Help wanted: The National Aeronautics and Space Administration is seeking carpenters, electricians and plumbers to work in Earth orbit. Flight experience is not necessary.

By TOM TIEDE

CAPE CANAVERAL — The advertisement is yet to appear in the nation's newspapers. But officers here at the Kennedy Space Center say it will, and relatively soon.

Within the next decade, possibly by the early 1980's, ordinary people are scheduled to become part of our rocketship expeditions.

Everyday people are already something of a staple in the space program, of course.

Carpenters and electricians build the hardware that routinely orbits the earth and visits the planets.

But, thus far, the vast part of the aerospace experience — flight itself — has been reserved for a few

'Private citizens will only be groomed for shuttle flights'

NASA astronauts.

Now the time is coming when the space workload will be too much for astronauts alone.

Next year the United States will launch the first of nearly 300 space shuttle flights planned for the 1980s. Eventually the 18-passenger shuttle ships will become small airliners, departing from and returning to Earth at two-week intervals.

Naturally, enormous amounts of research and development will be done from the shuttles.

For example, program directors say shuttle crews will be launching rockets from their own into space.

And, too, by 1985 the crews may begin constructing the first structures to be put together in Earth orbit.

Highly-trained astronauts will still pilot and captain the shuttle missions, certainly.

But NASA cannot afford to hire enough astronauts to do all that the program demands.

Hence the scientific and technical aspects of space exploration will increasingly be taken over by skilled private citizens.

At first, according to Kennedy center director Lee Scherer, private citizens will only be groomed for the shuttle flights.

Astronauts alone will man the initial missions; later they will be joined by "mission specialists," government scientists who are specifically trained to handle unique responsibilities.

Then, probably by 1981, NASA will augment the shuttle crews with "payload specialists."

They will be scientists also, but private ones.

Scherer says they will come from universities and research laboratories. They will be the first "civilians" in history to be in space.

After this, the shuttle operation will be open to a host of common men and women. Scherer believes the first non-scientific space traveler will probably be a news reporter.

NASA cannot afford to hire enough astronauts to do all the program demands'

"Someone who can tell all about it," Scherer says the reporter may go up "early in the program," possibly by 1982, certainly by 1983.

And then who? NASA executives believe politicians may be included on some shuttle flights. Or businessmen.

Or anyone, Scherer says. Adm. Richard Byrd once took a 15-year-old Eagle Scout on an expedition to the South Pole, to prove it could be done; sooner or later kids will be taken into space as well.

Given the engineering of space shuttle flights, actually, even grandpas may be eligible.

Unlike older rocketships, which shoots passengers up like bullets, the shuttle vehicle is designed to be more of an airplane.

It's maximum gravitational pull will be 1.4, or, Scherer says, that of a roller coaster.

So anyone in normal physical condition, and good health, could fly in the shuttle.

Even the cumbersome aspects of former manned flights will not be required. NASA publicist Karl Kristofferson says the shuttle will have a "shirt-sleeve environment," and astronauts and passengers alike will dress casually.

This doesn't mean there will be no requirements at all for America's first civilian space travelers.

Lee Scherer says there will be many. For one thing, passengers will have to have good reasons for riding the shuttle; space travel hasn't reached the point where someone can be carried aloft for the mere fun of it.

Also, civilian passengers will have to be psychologically suited for space flight. Advanced as it will be, the shuttle program will not be routine in the airline sense of the word.

NASA officials say that only calm, cool and collected people will be sent into space throughout the remainder of the century.

But whoever the civilians selected, and whatever their qualifications, it is clear that a new day is dawning in space flight.

Exclusively is giving way to universality.

Officials predict that "hundreds" of private citizens will be taken for a space ride before the present shuttle program ends in 1980.

And what a ride they will get. The 104-foot shuttle vehicle will travel at 17,000 mph, will orbit as high as 600 miles over Nebraska, will re-enter the atmosphere at 7,500 miles per second, and will, hopefully, land on a runway no wider than a football field.

The line has not yet begun to form for available seats.

A recent article appeared in Florida Sunvets News. The headline read:

'National Cemeteries Run Out Of Sites For Veterans'

"In all, there are fewer than 135,175 remaining unused burial sites available to meet the potential demand of up to 55,000,000 eligible Americans"

As a community service to all area veterans, Oaklawn Memorial Park now offers to all honorably discharged veterans a grave site for the one-time perpetual care charge of $25.00

IF YOU ACT NOW AND PURCHASE BEFORE THE NEW YEAR.

Old Scrapbook Unfolds A Life Of Experiences

By JOAN MADISON
Herald Correspondent

Fannie Williams is one of those "unforgettable" characters, who once they touch your life, it's never the same.
In her condominium in the luxurious Springs in Longwood — far away from the rugged Alaskan wilderness where she invented so much of her heart and spirit — Fannie reminisces over a well-worn scrapbook.
"I have had many experiences, and if I tell them to people, they don't believe them," says the 81-year-old Mary Pickford look-alike.
A stand-in for the silent screen actress "years and years ago," Fannie brushes off that experience. "Stand-ins are nothing. They do hazardous work."

She also makes light of her roles in several movies at Fox Studios in Hollywood. "They weren't anything I can remember," says the vivacious individual, who was born in England on May 21, 1888, and educated there before moving to Canada.
In her early 40s, she volunteered for Army duty and "President Roosevelt and the field nurse returned the same person. 'I came back on the Liberty Ship. I was a patient. I was a good busman lass when I went over."
During the bombing, her eyes were damaged — first one eye was affected, and then a few years ago, the other Fannie, now considered legally blind, quickly points out although everything is fuzzy, "I get around very well." Even though she has not been able to drive a car since the war, she hasn't had to curtail activities.
After a stay at Ft. Benjamin Harrison where they "treated and fattened me up," she was off to Alaska to serve as a Public Health Nurse.
"I rather like this," she says of "beautiful but hazardous" Alaska. "I had a clinic with Eskimos and Aleutians... Was in Nome for six months."
Before it began to be too tiring for her, she loved to go to Sabal Point Elementary School and tell the spell-bound children about her many experiences with bears, wolves, etc.
They loved her stories, but the students favorite story was of the dinner she had with the family next door — main course boiled head of reindeer. "I took my fork — made from a stick — and the first thing the Eskimo did, was scoop the eyes out so big as golf balls — black, and supposedly hard boiled, and he said to me, 'You like eyes, Big Honor' she recalls.
Well, Fannie couldn't partake of that "feast" and as graciously as she could, returned the eyes in a manner not to offend her host. "He chewed them and the black liquid ran down his cheek. They weren't with a run hard sauce. As she serves coffee in delicate bone china cups, it's hard to imagine her sitting down with such a meal.

But she did, just as she did all else she had to do. She responded at all hours of the night to cars for the sick and injured, went wherever she was needed, and for her devoted and faithful service, she received a citation from the Metlakatla Indian Community.
Fannie also worked in a tuberculosis clinic in Seward and helped to eradicate TB there.

President Roosevelt made Fannie a U.S. citizen overnight and the U.S. Army nurse served under General George W. Patton.

Does Fannie Williams look like anyone you know (lower photo)? She was a stand-in for Mary Pickford.

As a columnist, Fannie Williams is the author of two books, "I Asked For It," and an autobiography of her life in Alaska.

hard-boiled. 'Good,' he said. When that was done, I poked my fork in and ate the meat I had to do it, you know."
And now in her spartan apartment, which she cares for herself, the gourmet cook serves delicious English mince-cured tarts with the flakiest crust ever topped.
Life Magazine featured Fannie, her late husband Marvin Perry, and son, Marvin (now married to Kathleen Perry, of BETA), as one of the 'old upper-crust-families who retired from U.S. in Chappa, Mexico."
Fannie was widowed for 13 years before marrying a U.S. Marshal at Ft. Yukon. She legally adopted an Eskimo boy, and an Indian, sort of. She has four grandchildren.
Have you ever wondered about the gauthycky of testimonials in ads? Fannie was featured in one entitled "Tale of an Indian, a Nurse and Crow."
Three months after she lost a lighter at an Alaskan Indian reserve, a crow dropped it in the lap of an Indian.
"The crow thought it was a claim and kept dropping it trying to break it," recalls Fannie. She could scarcely believe it. However, the Reason people saw it as a good ad.
Fannie retired several times. Once she went to Chacoteague where she weathered a devastating tidal wave that destroyed much of the area around her.
But her final retirement came about seven to eight years ago when she retired locally to be near her son and family.
Only once in the morning of reminiscing did her spirits falter. "People think I should be content. But I'm restless... Can you tell?" "I have been a leader, and now I'm nothing," she said forlornly.
Yes, there is a far-away look in her eyes. Next spring she will go to her beloved Alaska for a visit. Not like the time she went on a 30-foot boat that she lived on for three months, this time she'll fly.
And until then, she'll continue to burland the little animals that come out of the rain forest behind her home, especially the little racoon that loves to eat Crows cookies out of her hand.
And she'll look forward to visits from family and friends.
Perhaps she can share one more exciting adventure with them.

A Wedding Is A Day... A Marriage Is Forever...

'Encounter' Counsels Engaged Couples

A wedding is a day, a marriage is forever... (so the purplist reads.)
But that's not really the way it is today.
"Nearly one-half of the marriages usually don't explore before marriage — attitudes about money, sex, children, family, and their role in the church and society. They discuss their strengths and their weaknesses, and look at and compare desires, ambitions and goals.
Occasionally as an Engaged Encounter, couples do decide that marriage is not what they want, and that's all right also. "Actually we start with the premise that there is nothing wrong with that. It's better to break an engagement than a marriage," emphasizes Becker.
"We don't try to teach them the answers to all the problems, but try to give them a lead so that whatever problem comes along, they're able to work them out by communicating openly and honestly with each other," continues Becker.
"In order to get married, Catholics have to attend a premarital or an engaged encounter," explains Mrs. Henrick. "The program is for Catholic people, but don't restrict it to Catholics."
The Encounters are scheduled once a month at Camp San Pedro for about 30 couples.
'It's better to break an engagement than marriage.'
Couples there are presently about 100, waiting to make the EE that two a month could be held if a place could be found.
The rustic Camp San Pedro setting is ideal. Located on Lake Howell, there are separate dormitories for men and women. "The accommodations aren't the best, but are suitable."
But how does an Engaged Encounter help?
A team of lay couples share their marriage experience with the young couple, explains Becker. The couple gets an over-all view of marriage through experiences shared by teams composed of varying age groups. Ideally, one couple is between 20-40 and married 15-30 years with children, preferably one or more near the age of the participants (usually 17-23).
The EE is an adaptation of the original Marriage Encounter; both are built on couple dialogue and spirituality.
When should the EE be scheduled?
"It would be a good thing for them to do at the time they are getting engaged. If my daughter were getting married, I would want her to make it immediately after getting engaged, or before," says Becker. — JOAN MADISON

'Useless' Items Needed By VFW To Help Others

Before you throw out those cancelled stamps, old books and magazines, food and clothing coupons...

These items you consider junk or useless can still be put to good use by the Ladies Auxiliary to VFW Post 1468, Winter Springs.

Your cancelled stamps are used by the Auxiliary to bid a Christmas raffle in Germany. Old books and magazines are distributed to VA hospitals, nursing homes and the like.

Food and clothing coupons are used to assist the Home for Atypical Children in Orlando. Pet items are donated to the Orlando Humane Society.

Scraps of material are used to make dirty bags, hats, and other items for patients in the area hospitals and nursing homes.

At the Dec. 8 meeting of the Ladies Auxiliary, it was announced that this past month's coupons valued at $1,948.82 were donated to the Home for Atypical Children.

The Winter Springs VFW Post and Auxiliary No. 1468 are planning to distribute more than 15 baskets of food to needy families.

The group is also taking part in the U.S. Marine Corp's "Toys for Tots" program. These toys will be distributed along with the baskets of food.

Peach, Tangerine Bowls Behind Eight-Ball

ATLANTA (UPI) — The Peach Bowl in Atlanta and the Tangerine Bowl in Orlando, Fla., are ailing and the Hall of Fame Bowl over in Birmingham, Ala., which makes a fetish out of trying to outdraw the Atlanta game, isn't all that healthy itself.

year's Peach Bowl tickets were sold by North Carolina State. Also, Birmingham, which does not have a "major league" professional sports team, is a better college football town than Atlanta which has the Falcons, Braves, Hawks and Flames.

Orlando has neither college football nor professional sports but built a 60,000-seat stadium in hopes of attracting outsiders. George Crombley, executive director of the Peach Bowl, says the likelihood that the Atlanta Falcons will host their first playoff game the day before the Peach Bowl has hurt Peach Bowl sales.

BUSINESS IN BRIEF

25 Ex-Migrant Workers End SCC Phone Training Class

The Telephone Communication Training Center of the Division of Industrial Electronics of Seminole Community College will honor 55 graduates at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday. Twenty-five of these graduates are former migrant and seasonal farmworkers who have been recruited from the Central Florida area. Many of them have been hired by telephone companies at salaries comparable to that of beginning elementary school teachers. Their training commenced in September.

Sanford Chamber Directors

The Greater Sanford Chamber of Commerce has elected its directors for 1979. Serving three-year terms will be Wendell Agee, W. Scott Burns, Mack N. Cleveland Jr., John Fitzpatrick, Thomas D. McDonald, Kenneth W. McIntosh, C. Howard McNulty, John Mercer, H.A. (Speed) Moreland, and W. Garnett White. Vic Arnett has been chosen president.

Seminole Chamber Honors

W. Lawrence (Bud) Parker, president of Parker Lumber Co., Inc., has been presented the Matland-South Seminole Chamber of Commerce Meritorious Community Service Award.

Stromberg-Carlson Moves 3

Stromberg-Carlson Corp., a subsidiary of General Dynamics Corp., has announced a realignment of its management organization. Dr. John C. Richmond, Vice-President, has been named Vice-President and General Manager for the Digital Systems Center in Sanford. Wilfred G. Sardelli has been promoted to vice-president of research and engineering, and John W. Walters will assume responsibility for world-wide marketing, sales and field service for the company.

Flagship Christening Site

Flagship Bank of Seminole will host a ceremony at 10 a.m., Tuesday at SR 434 and Range Line Road, site of its planned new Longwood office. A highway sign designating the site will be christened. The office plans to open in early spring.

Sanford Firm Gets Army Pact

An Army contract for $121,537 has been awarded to Hammac Inc., 410 East Mattie St., Sanford, a small business firm, calling for a quantity of circuit card assemblies.

Spine Center Benefit

The Sportsman Den, together with the Third World Band and Central Florida Corvette Association, is sponsoring a benefit for the Spine Bifida Center at Florida Hospital South Sunday from 9-noon at the Den, U.S. 17-92, Casselberry. Cost: $2 cover charge with proceeds to the hospital center.

Hamburger 'Emporium' Opens

A "Judy's Hamburger Emporium," first of 20 scheduled for central Florida, has opened at 2850 French Ave., Sanford. Heading the operation is Larry Barton, assisted by Brian Woodward, Vince Tombs and Punch Edinger.

Price Your House Right

The Price is right. This will be short because I have one simple idea I want to get across today. However you do it, when you put your house on the market — PRICE IS RIGHT! Use professionals in the business to help you do this. Don't make such an important decision on any other basis. Your Realtor, moving and home appraisers, independent appraisers are the best ones to hire. They are in constant touch with the market. (Question: If you price too low, you will lose money. Nothing worse than hearing "I would have given you $1000 more if I had known your house was for sale.") If you price it too high, you will "throw out" the prospects to the agent who might have been there, and we find that even when we lower the asking price

Your Real Estate BART PILCHER later, we can't reactivate those who turned it down before. For that reason, over-pricing is probably the worst thing that can happen, since the property probably won't sell and you have "spent" your best prospects. Therefore, when listing your home, ask the opinion of several to determine your price. Don't necessarily list with the "highest bidder" — this could be a ploy to get your listing now regardless of price and bit you with the real estate later, after you have wasted precious time and potential buyers.

Paula On Refund: 'No Compromise, No Delay'

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) — Florida Power Corp. customers will get a $6 million-plus refund and possibly more to cover excess fuel oil charges they absorbed in 1973-74. The Public Service Commission and Florida Power reached a tentative agreement on the refunds Friday. The deal must be finalized during a Dec. 29 meeting. Winter Park lawyer Russell Trotman, PSC special investigator who recommended an $8.4 million refund earlier, but with stipulations that could lead to additional rebates. The PSC accepted the settlement unanimously and Florida Power lawyer Reese Smith of Tampa agreed to it "in principle." "There is no compromise involved in this as far as I'm concerned," said PSC Chairman Paula Hawkins. "It's speedy. It's today. There's no further delay." Public Counsel Jack Sherwin and Syd McKenna, special counsel representing Attorney General Robert Sherwin, urged the commission to accept the proposal, saying it is basically what they were on the verge of working out with Florida Power this summer. That deal fell through because of political bickering between Mrs. Hawkins and Sherwin and the PSC's decision to hire Trotman and conduct its own investigation. State and federal officials have accused FPC of knowingly paying too much for fuel oil. Seven people, including former FPC president Angel Perez, have been charged with conspiracy for involvement in a complicated scheme to inflate oil prices and make excess profits through a daisy chain of purchases. Florida Power will put up $6.5 million — $6 million in rebates to go to its customers in early 1979, and $500,000 to cover the administrative expenses of making the rebates. Any portion of the $600,000 not absorbed by administrative costs would become part of the rebates. The $6 million figure was determined by eliminating a $1.2 million apparent overcharge which Trotman says he can't prove personally, but had believed would surface during the upcoming conspiracy trial, and eliminating an interest penalty. It is questionable, he said, if the commission has the power to assess the utility for interest. The settlement eliminates the

OPEC: Hike Sure, But How Much Uncertain

ABU DHABI (UPI) — The Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries met today determined to raise the price of oil but undecided about the amount. Venezuela wants a 10 percent increase and Saudi Arabia 5 percent. Venezuelan Oil Minister, Venustiano Carranza Acosta said today he expects a petroleum price increase in 1979 of at least 10 percent. The minister rejected a Saudi Arabian attempt to keep the price hike as low as 5 percent. The 13 member nations of OPEC, which produce about 80 percent of the world's supply of oil, began a two-day meeting in closed session that was certain to raise the price of oil. Oil currently sells at $12.70 for a 60-U.S. gallon barrel. Saudi Arabian Oil Minister Ahmed Yamani said he was asking for less than this as an increase because Venezuela was aware of its responsibility to avoid creating a world recession. While ministers spoke of the need to preserve stability, it was clear the conference was sharply divided between countries wanting a modest hike of much less than 10 percent, and those wanting much more. The minister favored an aggressive hike would create recession in the West that would rebound on them and on their huge dollar investments. The sources said Yamani was putting pressure on the United Arab Emirates to bring its demand down below 10 percent. "It must be at least 10 percent averaged over the year," he said. Conference sources said Yamani's stand could act as a moderating influence because Saudi Arabia is OPEC's largest producer and can affect the price by the amount of oil it sends to market. Hermandes Acosta said Venezuela had lost 10 percent of its real income from oil because of inflation and dollar depreciation. DEAR HELOISE:
We have found a way to keep up with our children's scrap and trunk, and provide a little knowledge of legal procedure. We have drawn up a legal form resembling a bill of sale or deed in which the item and its consideration (price) are stated.

Both family members concerned have to sign it before one of the parents (acting as family "notary"). Then it is presented to Miss (acting as family clerk) to be filed.

DEAR HELOISE:
We have come up with a great idea for your column.

When you write are co-

You can take the ribbon and

This is a great way to display

Ban Nativity From City Halls? Knowles: 'Ridiculous' Thought

By MAX ERELIETIAN
Herald Staff Writer

An effort by the Illinois Division of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU) to ban nativity scenes from government buildings is being called "ridiculous" by one Sanford city official and a local religious leader terms it a "historical, not a religious issue."

The ACLU has filed the suit in U.S. District Court in Chicago, contending the use of public funds for nativity scenes at public buildings is a violation of the constitutional provision for separation of church and state. A hearing on that suit was scheduled for today.

"We think it is dangerous to all religions when the government becomes involved," said Jay A. Miller, executive director of the ACLU's Illinois Division.

The Florida chapter of the ACLU has no present plans to join such a suit, according to Ellen Ginsberg, executive director. However, she said, such a suit has been discussed many times. Since the matter is in federal court, a ruling would affect all states.

Sanford traditionally erects a nativity scene at city hall every Christmas. The scene is located at the east end of the building on view from Park Avenue and Seminole Boulevard.

The present nativity scene was purchased in 1971 for $1,200, according to Bob Kelly, public works director. The money for the scene came out of the city's contingency fund, he added.

Kelly did not have figures on the time or expense of erecting the display, but commented it does not take a great deal of time or effort.

"I think it's ridiculous," Warren E. Knowles, Sanford City Manager said of the suit.

Asked if any question about the city's nativity scene has ever been raised, Knowles replied, "Yes. How soon are you going to get the scene up."

"I believe in the separation of church and state," commented Rev. Don Cox, president of the Sanford Ministerial Association. "But the nativity is a part of our culture."

Cox said he views the matter as more than a religious issue.

"It can be looked at as part of our history," argued Cox. "I don't believe this is a religious issue, but it is a historical issue. It's part of our culture."

Cox contended the nation was founded on a strong belief in Christian religion.

"American history has been built on the teachings

Hammock Tree Chopper Near Win

A.L. Seligman, a Casselberry realtor, after a court battle of 18 months with the Seminole County Commission, may be allowed to clear his property in Spring Hammock of trees.

Former County Attorney Harry Stewart, who is completing some court cases for Seminole County while he is officially Broward County attorney, said today it is not likely he will recommend that the Seminole County Commission appeal to a higher court, the latest court decision in the Seligman case.

The Fourth Circuit Court of Appeals last week denied Seminole County's motion to rehear the case. In November the appellate court ruled the county had to issue a land-clearing permit to Seligman, owner of Cross Country Realty Inc. of Casselberry.

County Commission Chairman Bob French said today if Stewart does not recommend the county appeal the case further, Seligman will be free to re-apply for his land-clearing permit.

Stewart said by telephone from Ft. Lauderdale this morning he is leaning toward a "no-appeal" recommendation. However, he added, he will make a final determination later today and a final recommendation to the county commission by Tuesday.

Seligman filed the suit in the circuit court at Sanford originally in August 1977, after the county commission turned down his request for a permit to clear trees from 25 acres of a 21-acre parcel he owns in Spring Hammock.

Seligman's property is located at U.S. 17-92 and General Hutchison Parkway in the heart of the hammock, a 2 1/2-square mile natural green belt that provides a vegetative buffer between northwestern and southwestern Seminole County.

Commissioners denied Seligman's April 13 application to cut down his trees because the Realtor's proposed intent to grow vegetables and raise horses didn't fall into the proper category, according to Stewart.

Commissioners denied Seligman's April 13 application to cut down his trees because the Realtor's proposed intent to grow vegetables and raise horses didn't fall into the proper category, according to Stewart.

In March, commissioners ruled that all building-permit requests in the hammock must come before them for final ruling. Another reason for the denial, given by commissioners at the time, was that Seligman refused to guarantee he would use his land for agricultural purposes for five years.

Seligman's attorney, in a brief filed with the court, said the latter reason was not a valid one for denying the permit since that is not listed in the arbor ordinance as a reason for denying a permit application.

The brief also said the commission ignored Seligman's stated intention to immediately convert the land to agricultural uses and raised questions about his speculative intent in buying the property and his lack of previous activity or experience in agricultural pursuits.

Hit-Run Victim Dies; Today Car Owner Quizzed

A 30-year-old Sanford man who was hit by a car Saturday died of injuries Sunday and this morning city police were interviewing the man who may have been the driver in the hit-and-run accident.

City police said they were talking this morning with Fred Bray, 21, of 124 Bunker Lane, who went to the police station Saturday to declare he is the owner of the car involved.

Police said they were attempting to determine if Bray is in fact the owner of the car and if he was the driver when the accident occurred.

Police also said they were waiting for the results of an autopsy this morning to determine if traffic charges or felony charges in connection with the accident will be filed against Bray if he's proven to be the driver.

James M. Smith, 20, of 241 Key Ave. in Sanford, died at the Orlando Regional Medical Center Sunday morning. Police said Smith, originally from Memphis but a long-time area resident, was hit as he was walking on Commercial Street between Sanford and Palmetta Avenues at 2:15 a.m. Saturday.

Following an autopsy this morning, Seminole County Medical Examiner Dr. G.V. Garay said Smith died of a fracture of the skull resulting in massive brain hemorrhaging.

Beckwith Asks Key --Again

By DONNA ESTES
Herald Staff Writer

Seminole Clerk of the Circuit Court Arthur H. Beckwith Jr. has submitted a memo to County Commission Chairman Bob French asking reconsideration of the commission's refusal to grant him a key to the Seminole County Courthouse.

"As you are aware in the past few days there has been considerable publicity surrounding my request to secure a key to gain access to the courthouse," Beckwith wrote. "In order to halt further unpleasantness this is to request that your action denying the clerk of the circuit court a key be rescinded. Further, this is to ask that the request for a key be reconsidered and affirmative action taken to provide the clerk of the circuit court with a key."

The Beckwith memo, directed to French, states:

The county commission last week on a 3-2 vote, turned down Beckwith's latest request for a key. Voting to deny the request were Commissioners Dick Williams, William Kirchhoff and Holt French, chairman. Beckwith has periodically made the request for the more than two years since the 150 keys to the facility which had been in the hands of various personnel in the courthouse were collected by the county commission and tumbled in the lock-changed.

According to county commission office manager Dorothy French:

"This may be a philosophical approach rather than a reasonable reason."

Chairman French

Wade, keys to the courthouse now are in the hands of all the county commissioners, the county administrator, director of administrative services and maintenance personnel.

French said this morning his key to the courthouse will open everything except the snack bar. "I tried to get into the snack bar one night when I was working late to get a coke and couldn't," he said. "If no one had any keys the responsibility would remain the same. Just because I have a key or do not have a key has nothing to do with it."

As World Title Shot Nears

Clark: Ah, To Sit Back And Watch TV...

By JIM HAYNES

Around the Orlando Sports Stadium they call Scott Clark

the Golden Boy. He has a nice tan, but that's not what glitters most about this young phenomenon who has caught the imagination of the boxing world. He's scheduled Jan. 20 to challenge for the World Boxing Association welterweight championship.

Clark, a Casselberry resident, will provide Pipino Cuevas with his fifth title defense in the last two years.

The fight is tentatively looked in either Houston's Sam Houston Coliseum or Los Angeles' Olympic Auditorium and will be televised by CBS on a delayed basis.

However, closed circuit TV will be available, and Sports Stadium officials are negotiating for local rights.

At age 28, Clark has already achieved what 90 percent of all the boxers who ever stepped into a ring never get -- a world title shot.

"I know I'm lucky, but I also know I have put a lot of hard work into it," said Clark the other day after a short workout on a set of exercise equipment.

"If you want to know what this fight means to me, just picture a million dollars at the other end of this room and you telling me that if I want it, just go get it."

Clark, a refreshing youngster with a flair for coming right out with what he has to say, makes no bones about admitting he is in the boxing business for the money.

"I don't want to be knocking around the rings when I'm 28," he says. "This fight is worth a lot of money to me. Just to challenge Now if I win, I have it made."

Among the eventual goals Clark has set for himself is financial security. He is enrolled at Central Florida University, his particular interest presently in communications.

"Winning the title would virtually assure me of a position in this field," Clark noted. "I have possible interests in other things -- acting, also acting in the capacity of sponsor, and also in the promotional field. What I am looking forward to is being able to get married, have a home and sit back at night and watch television."

The latter might not seem a problem to most folks, but for Scott Clark it would be taking a long-awaited vacation.

His present schedule calls for a 9 p.m. bedtime, 5 a.m. rising and a series of roadwork which finds him running as much as 18 1/2 miles as the sun peaks over the horizon. His dad, Jim Clark, a junior high physical education teacher, follows in a car.

Scott hits the modern gym at the Sports Stadium for several hours of intensive workouts under the eye of trainer Dominick Polo during the day. "This is no ego trip for me," Clark explains. "It's a matter of mental and physical preparedness. Most boxers
