By PETER SCHAAI.
Woodrow Riser, whose high school football career came to a close when he turned in another great performance for Coach Edward McLucas and his Seminole High School team against Leesburg on Thanksgiving Day, is the only member of his team to land a place on the official 1932 All-Conference football team, selected in Palatka last night by the coaches of the several Conference teams.

The big fellow landed a place on a team that, according to Coach McLucas, represents, above all, football wisdom that asserted itself almost without fail in every quarter of every game played this season. Riser has as a running mate Lake City's great end, Long, and Landon's scrappy light-weight McNeill at guard. On the other side of the line is Chambers, Ocala's six foot, two inch right end, Leesburg's lanky Kane at right tackle, Fraliegh, the stellar Lake City right guard, and DeLand's hard working Miller at center.

In the all-star backfield is Spano of Daytona Beach, line-plunging fullback who was a team all by himself; McDonald, bald-headed and bulky Ocala half-back who is the unanimous choice of the coaches as finest halfback in the Conference and one of the best in the state; Smitherman of Landon, who held his team's honor high in esteem and whose defensive play was a feature of the season's work, and Miller, the tiny Leesburg quarterback who was a real triple threat and handled a team that ranked with the best of them for three years of the five it was undefeated.

Europe's Debt Case Summed Up In Plea For Postponement

(By The Associated Press)
Europe summed up its case in a plea today for postponement of debt installments due the United States this month and the next move is up to this country. England's second note to Washington, presumably putting forward additional data in support of its request for delay, was delivered to Secretary Stimson by the British Ambassador Sir Ronald Lindsay and probably will be made today

With this out of the way for the moment, Prime Minister MacDonald left for Geneva for the disarmament conference. Another note from France also has been finished and will be presented immediately after the British communication. It was reported that Premier Herriot will pay if he has to, risking the life of his government in the face of parliamentary opposition to payment.

Al Smith Offers New Governmental Plan

—NEW YORK, Dec. 1.—(AP)—Alfred Smith today presented to the Hofstadter legislative committee a detailed plan for the complete reorganization of the city government under which the mayor would be the supreme executive officer with the legislature of two houses, the city senate and city assembly under him. He said the borough system adopted 25 years ago has become antiquated and it is time to decide whether there will be five cities or one city.

BIBLE VERSE FOR TODAY

BETTER THAN LIFE!—Because thy loving kindness, O God, is better than life, my lips shall praise thee.—Psalm 63:3.

The country is getting plenty news from Europe but very few notes.

Senator Huey Long, the Louisianian Kingfish, has recommended to Gov. Roosevelt the appointment of a New Orleans publisher as secretary of war. And we'll bet there'll be war if Huey doesn't get what he wants.

The wages of labor may be low but the wages of money are lower.
The other day the federal treasury paid $100,000,000 worth of 1% day bills at an interest rate equivalent of 0.1 percent (not one percent), but one-tenth of one percent). And the issue was over-simplified by $200,000,000.

History was made Tuesday when the British pound slipped to a new all time low of $3.14 5/8.
The previous "low" was reached shortly after the war in February of 1920. Then the pound dropped to $3.16 and made people wonder what was going to happen in the world. About half the people on earth depend upon the pound for their medium of exchange.

The U. S. War Department pays for wages for services of soldiers, and sometimes works them hard even when the nation is at peace.
Discussions have been rather common during years gone by but at present are showing a tendency to decline. In 1931 there were 5,070 discussions from the regular army; in 1932 only 2,800. Doughboys prefer their thirty-a-month to the bread lines.

Even William Randolph Hearst, billionaire nationalist and bitter opponent of all foreign governments, takes a modified attitude toward Great Britain in the debt matter. Said he recently in a signed statement: "She (England) is the one nation which may have a right to ask, not for cancellation of the debt, but for a modification of terms so much harsher than terms imposed upon or accepted by any other European nation." England, of course, has not asked for cancellation. She seeks the vision of a funding agreement which forces her to pay 3.3 percent while France gets off with 1.6 percent interest and Italy with 0.4 percent interest.

A writer in the Readers Digest reminds us that the English have a very peculiar brand of pronunciation.
Marjoribanks, and Cholmondeley is called Chumley by the well-posted Englishman. Such eli-gions are perhaps understandable as, for instance, even in this country Dartmouth, and Greenwich is Greenidge, and Worcester is Wertester. But the way the Britisher says St. Osyth, a little English village, takes the prize. A tourist asked a native whether to pronounce it O-say-ing or O-sath, and the villager replied, "I have never heard it called anything but Toosey."

Intimation that a dividend may yet be paid at the Seminole County Bank will come as a welcome surprise, if not to say a distinct shock, to the few remaining survivors of that defunct institution.
The Seminole Bank, it will be recalled by pioneers of this city, failed in 1907 when the depression was yet in its infancy. Since then it has been in the process of painful liquidation. The Chase National Bank has been paid about five million dollars, about half of what it had needed to it and the survivors had about $1,000,000 left over. Mr. Franklin, the president of the Seminole, was just in time for many of the survivors to make a slight concession to the "Toosey" Seminoles.

A Tough Hombre

We have always had the impression that football was a pretty rough sport, and after watching the news reels showing Pittsburgh trampling the Army and of Notre Dame also running over the West Pointers as if they were a bunch of toy balloons, we had become thoroughly convinced that unless a man is made out of drawn steel he should stay away from active participation in the pigskin pastime.

But along comes a wrestler who shatters all our illusions about the rugged heroes of the gridiron. Stanislaus Zybynsko has challenged any college eleven in the country to a wrestling match and guarantees to throw every member of the team in succession within the limit of one hour, or forfeit the match. He even goes further and says he will take on any three outfitts and will throw all thirty-three men in the space of three hours.

How does this make the prom trotters feel over their handsome halfbacks or their towering tackles whom they have looked upon as the acme in physical toughness? After reading Zybynsko's challenge it gives us a sort of feeling that football players are sissies and ought to be kept at home where they won't get hurt.

Of course, a challenge is far different from proving one's boast, but we have an idea that this old veteran wrestler just about knows what he's talking about and is not taking any chances with his professional career. And it goes without saying that if he gets in the ring with any footballers he's not going to take time out to discuss the rules of the game, but will take hold of his job with methodical decisiveness and proceed to fill the air with hurtling bodies.

Whether or not any team or teams will accept the offer is problematical but if they do take him up we suggest that plenty of trainers and doctors are on hand to take care of the biggest epidemics of sprained ankles, twisted knees, and loosened vertebrae that ever hit a football team. And before accepting, the men should realize that a flying tackle on the gridiron is somewhat cushioned by the soft soil, but in the ring there is nothing to break the fall except a piece of muslin over hard boards.

The "Mounties" Afoot

The machine age has been blamed for many of the evils which beset the world. The preponderance of machinery, doing the work which used to require countless hands, has been pointed out as one of the biggest factors in causing unemployment. Whether or not mechanical inventions are responsible for the present lack of jobs is a debatable question and one with which we do not wish to burden ourselves at this time.

There has arisen a regrettable situation, however, for which the full responsibility can be placed at the door of the men when iron and steel, and nuts, and screws are king. That is the demise of the horse as a steed of war and more recently as the means of transportation for the Northwest Mounted Police.

The World War spelled the death knell of horses for military purposes, the fact being conclusively shown on many occasions that modern rifles, machine guns, and field pieces are too effective for the use of cavalry and that horse-drawn guns and caissons can be more efficiently operated with motorized equipment. Thus the glamour of dashing horsemen, swinging sabers, and cavalry charges has been taken from warfare.

We could tolerate this change all right but when we see that the Canadian authorities have decided to dismount the "Mounties" then we feel a rising wave of resentment sweeping over us at the thought that this one last stand against the encroachment of modernity has been taken away.

No longer will these red coated defenders of the law be seen astride spirited mounts, but instead will sit behind the steering wheel of an automobile, much more efficient but infinitely less picturesque and romantic. How fortunate, though, that this change did not come about until after the movies and Zane Grey caught the spirit of this mounted organization and preserved for us the exploits of these men and their horses.

What is disability allowance? So much confusion has arisen in connection with the discussion of this monetary benefit now being paid to World War veterans that a clear statement of what it is and the history leading up to its adoption seems desirable. Disability allowance is a pension paid to World War veterans for disabilities acquired subsequent to their leaving the military service. It is true it came into being ensuing and misnamed, but it is here, and whether we like it or not is a pension. Requirements for entitlement to this benefit are:

(1) A permanent disability of not less than 10 percent degree. (2) Ninety days' service during the World War. (3) Honorable discharge. (4) Ascertainment of the disability, either more than or a result of the

SMITH'S PLAN OF NEW SYSTEM FOR GOTHAM CHEEREDScheme Would Revolutionize New York City's Government

NEW YORK, Dec. 2. —(P)—Alfred E. Smith, with blueprints, charts and record books spread out before him, yesterday outlined a plan which would revolutionize the New York City government.

The inquiry board, after spending about 18 months investigating the Tammany-controlled city government, now has reached the stage of formulating concrete recommendations to the legislature for basic improvements.

Smith's program called for:

1. Creation of a city legislature of two houses, with the mayor as supreme executive officer, assisted by 10 "cabinet members" and an elective assistant and mayor.

2. Elimination of practically all the present county and borough offices, with the object of making New York "one city" instead of "five cities in one."

3. Life appointments for all judges, instead of choice by election, with the governor naming judges of higher courts and the mayor naming magistrates and lower court judges.

4. Payment of all teachers' salaries by the state instead of by cities and towns.

5. Adoption of a single, unified pension system, supplanting the many and varied systems now in force, with the provisions that restricted policemen and firemen be given other city positions for which they are fitted.

6. Adoption of a system whereby the cost of major public improvements, such as highways and sewers, would be spread over the entire city, instead of being borne by taxpayers owning property in the vicinity of the improvement.

7. Unification of the New York subway system and the elimination of stockholders in the subway companies, "so that anything been found entitled to such benefits.

The total expenditures for disability allowances so far have been $105,147,800—$29,469,667 for the fiscal year 1931 and $75,648,233 for the year 1932. The number of men eligible and the amount expended, however, are on the increase and, when it is realized that there are approximately 4,300,000 veterans living who have reached an average age of 40 years, with all the disabilities which the average person of such age has and which will multiply with the increase of age, it can readily be seen that we are merely on the threshold of payments in so far as this benefit is concerned.

Because disability allowance is a pension, it is only fair to compare disability allowance with pensions paid to veterans of the Spanish War, who constitute the group of veterans nearest in point of time of service to World War veterans. At the present time we are some thirty-four years removed from the Spanish-American War, and, out of some 292,000 Spanish War veterans estimated to be living, more than 197,000 are drawing pensions ranging from $20 to $80 per month, as a general rule, with certain of them drawing more than this amount for specified conditions.

We are now only fourteen years removed from the World War and this year, it is estimated, $104,000,000 will be required to pay disability allowance benefits. This amount will increase each year and, applying the same yardstick for World War veterans as has been used to pension Spanish War veterans, and projecting our expenditures to the end of thirty-four years from the World War when it is estimated that 5,400,000 veterans will be living, it is only a matter of simple arithmetic to arrive at the stupendous amount that will have to be appropriated to pay this disability allowance—namely more than $800,000,000 a year with approximately 2,000,000 veterans on the rolls.

Up to June 30, 1932, 879,985 veterans of the World War had made application for this allowance. There can be no doubt that the depression and economic depression, to a great extent, contributed in bringing about this large number of applications and they are still pouring in at the rate of about $20,000 per month. Of this number 482,518 veterans have in excess of the nickel that is paid for carfare goes directly to the city to relieve the crushing burden of sinking funds and interest on the enormous amount of money expended on the subways.

8. Adoption of toll charges for use of New York bridges.

The native East Side New Yorker lashed out at the "red tape" he said has tied the present city government in knots.

In making suggestions for immediate relief of city financial problems, Smith repeatedly criticized the Reconstruction Finance

Corporation.

"The R. F. C.," he boomed, "is not willing to lend money (for an East Side housing project)

because they are talking about adequate security and they are talking about additional equity money.

"They've got a lot of high-toned phrases down there that really don't mean anything.

"They don't stop to realize that we are at war here and we cannot stop to think whether the government of the U. S. is going to lose a couple of hundred thousand dollars or gain it.

"The holdup at the present time is in the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

2. Elimination of practically all the present county and borough offices, with the object of making New York "one city" instead of "five cities in one."

3. Life appointments for all judges, instead of choice by election, with the governor naming judges of higher courts and the mayor naming magistrates and lower court judges.

4. Payment of all teachers' salaries by the state instead of by cities and towns.

5. Adoption of a single, unified pension system, supplanting the many and varied systems now in force, with the provisions that restricted policemen and firemen be given other city positions for which they are fitted.

6. Adoption of a system whereby the cost of major public improvements, such as highways and sewers, would be spread over the entire city, instead of being borne by taxpayers owning property in the vicinity of the improvement.

Talks Are Made At Garden Club Meeting

By CAPT. E. T. LOUCKS

Editor's note: The following is one of a series of articles written by Capt. E. T. Loucks on rose culture, which will appear in The Sanford Herald during the next few days.

CARE OF ROSE BUSHES

There are only three matters to consider in the care of rose bushes—1. To keep the bushes free from disease. 2. To properly prune back the bush every time a rose is cut off, and 3. to continue to feed the bush enough and properly.

As to rose plant disease in Florida there are only three which bother us very much, black spot, plant lice, and rose beetle.

1. The black spot appears as a brown or blackish spot in the green leaf. This spot becomes larger each day, propagates new spots in the same leaf and spreads to others. Eventually the leaves turn yellow and drop off. Black spot saps the strength of the bush by killing off the foliage and thus preventing the bush from obtaining enough oxygen from the air and health rays from the sun. Dusting once a week with 20-80 mixture, obtainable at Kilgore, will kill all the black spot you now have, if any, and will absolutely prevent any black spot from getting a start on your bushes.

Those attending the meeting were: Mrs. J. H. Colclough, Mrs. W. E. Watson, Mrs. R. M. Warren, Mrs. R. B. Monroe, Mrs. E. I. Hoy, Mrs. B. D. Thrasher, Mrs. C. E. Gormley, Mrs. James G. Sharrow, Mrs. H. M. Papworth, Mrs. G. L. Loucks, Mrs. T. N. Scott, Mrs. J. C. Busson, Mrs. E. H. Laney, Mrs. Chan L. Thomas, Mrs. William Holden, Mrs. C. H. Winn, Mrs. M. L. Wright, and Miss Leola Evans as hostesses.

Dr. Kettler's talk covered the planning of a flower show, the arrangement of the schedules to provide in a clear and definite manner for the points upon which each exhibit should be judged, and suggested certain rules and regulations all of which should be made available to incoming exhibitors in good time so that exhibits may be prepared and presented at the show in the best condition possible.

He pointed out that the schedules should be signed to conduct an exhibition only if a single plant, bloom or some variety of fruit or vegetables, fall within the scope of the schedule. Each exhibit should be judged and awarded a ribbon according to the schedule, and the schedule should be placed in a prominent position and then clearly explained to the exhibitor.

Adding more to this subject, he said that the schedules should state the kind, variety, and number, whether of plants, stalks, branches, stems or blossoms and collections should be limited to a stated number. While competition on certain colors is intended, he added, the schedule should indicate this.

It should be understood that the speaker said that a flower show is an educational affair for the exhibitor and for the public who visit the show and see that the exhibits on the exhibits should show both the botanical and common names of plants. Emphasis should be placed on garden planning as a feature of the show because of its educational value to the community. A plan room should be given for this feature and the schedule should name the minimum size of an exhibitor area for each exhibit of that kind.

In the large show round red and blue paper labels, two in height and diameter, and gummed, are being used instead of ribbons. These can be attached quickly to the top of the stalk and actually look like flowers. The 20-80 with its mixture of lead powder and glue will hold the paper labels firmly in place. If you do not use the 20-80 mix, add a few drops of glue to the paper labels and then dip them in a mixture of black ink and water.

Point judging is the basis of standard bidding adopted by the National Rose Society, the Dublin Society, Sweet Pea Society, and other similar organizations. It is suggested that the fairest method and the schedule should provide for it. As an example, he offered the following table now commonly used in point judging.

If you do not use the 20-80 mix, add a few drops of glue to the paper labels and then dip them in a mixture of black ink and water.

By way of bringing his talk to a close Dr. Kettler said that professional exhibitors since they are highly trained, should be given every encouragement.

Andrews Home Scene Of Society Meeting

Plans were made for the coming month and the work of the past months was discussed at the meeting of the officers of the Orlando District Christian Endeavor Society held Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Mary Frances Andrews in this city. Miss Violet Douglas opened the meeting with a short invocation and Miss Luaine Milham brought the meeting to a close with a prayer after all business had been attended to.

Games and contests were enjoyed during the second hour and prizes were awarded to Miss Edith Starbird, and Mrs. Eliza Bingley. Refreshments were served at late hour by the hostess.

British And French Notes Renew Their Plea For Extension

In Congress, whose decision on the debt question will be final, there was little disposition to change views previously expressed in opposition to postponed payments, revision or cancellation of the foreign debts.

The note was an amplification of the similar appeal; Great Britain made a fortnight ago, to which the United States replied with the advice that payment on Dec. 15 would make it easier to obtain the desired re-examination and with an indication the Washington government felt no sufficient reason had been advanced for postponing the installment now coming due.

In addition to Great Britain, France and Belgium together with several smaller countries had asked for an extension of the moratorium and a thoroughgoing survey of the debt situation.

Turning down President Hoover's suggestion for payment in the currencies of the various debtor nations, the British government said:

"The exchange difficulty would remain even if the device were adopted of payment in sterling to a blocked account; for the existence of a large sum awaiting transfer would affect the market almost as seriously as an actual purchase of exchange."

The only remaining alternative would be payment in gold. Such a method would involve the sacrifice of a considerable part of the gold reserves of the Bank of England which are widely regarded as no more than sufficient for the responsibilities of London as a financial center."

The note said the London government is convinced the "resumption of war debt payments as they existed before the Hoover moratorium would inevitably deepen the depression in world trade and would lead to further falls in commodity prices with disastrous consequences from which no nation would be exempt."

A discussion of the entire debt problem between the United States and Great Britain was urged as likely "to bear fruitful issue for revival of world prosperity."

The note also said the British government was "convinced that prospects of success would be materially improved by the postponement of the December installments" and that it is "prepared to consider with the government of the United States of America any manner in which that postponement might be most conveniently arranged."

In suggesting the suspension of December payment of $90,000,000 the note said this proposal "would in no way affect any ultimate settlement" and "is necessary in order to create conditions favorable to a successful issue of subsequent conversations."

The note said: "The difficulties of making transfer in present circumstances are so great and would involve such far-reaching reactions both financial and political, that the resulting doubts and anxieties in regard to the immediate situation would distract the attention of governments and peoples when the chief need was an objective and systematic approach to the problem to be solved."

The note discussed at length the history of the financial agreements growing out of the war. It conformed with the suggestion of President Hoover that more facts about Great Britain's financial condition would be necessary to command the attention of Congress.

Picturing the changed conditions which the depression has brought about in the world since the debt agreements were made, the note said:

"Currencies are threatened with instability if not with collapse and controls and restrictions intended to remedy the trouble have merely aggravated it . . . In all directions there are signs of paralysis of trade and the threat of bankruptcy and of financial collapse. The international monetary mechanism without which the world cannot effectively conduct its daily life is being broken into pieces with all the manifold forms of privation and distress which this involves. The countries of the world cannot even begin to consider how to restore this mechanism until the causes which undermined confidence have been removed. One of the most important of these is inter-governmental debts . . ."

"It will not profit a creditor country to collect a few million pounds on dollars if it thereby perpetuates a world disorder which reacting on itself involves losses of revenue many times greater; and a settlement, however generous it may seem, which relieves the economic machinery of the world by clearing up these inter-governmental payments, would be repaid again and again by the contribution it would make to the world revival.

"For this loss and suffering is not due to the niggardliness of nature. The triumphs of physical science are ever growing and the vast potentialities of the production of real wealth remain unpreserved. It is in the power of the governments of the world and particularly of the United States and of the United Kingdom, as the two greatest creditor nations, if they unite in co-operation, to make the first essential step towards averting disaster, financial, economic and political."

Secretary Mills yesterday announced that, "taking advantage of an optional clause in its debt

"The British debt due on the 16th instant", it is added, "can be paid in gold, but the United States is already on a gold basis, with all the reserves it needs. It is more important to this country that other currencies, and particularly British currency, shall be stabilized than that we should increase our gold stocks. It is in the common interest that Britain shall not reduce her gold reserve, for that will tend to make her currency more stable."

"If Britain is not to pay by shipments of gold, she must go into the market and bid for the means of payment in the United States, in other words, for dollar exchange. On account of the low state of international trade and the falling off of exports to this country, the amount of dollar exchange (claims on the United States) is abnormally small, and the demand for it will raise the price, not only in London but in all markets. Thus it will be made more difficult and costly to obtain the means of making payments in the United States, manifestly to our disadvantage."

"In other words, by forcing the issue at this time, we make it more difficult to sell our produce not only to Great Britain, but everywhere. Many currencies are now related to British currency than to the gold standard, and the effect of widening the gap between the pound sterling and the dollar must be to depress the general price level in all of these countries in comparison with our own price level, and since prices on our export commodities abroad affect our own domestic prices, the final effect of depressing these currencies is to drag all commodity prices to a lower level. Above everything else, this should be averted."

GRAND JURY WILL INVESTIGATE FEW CRIMINAL CASES

One of the smallest lists of alleged law violations in recent years has been prepared by State Attorney Lloyd F. Boyle for presentation to the grand jury which will be drawn at the Court House next Tuesday morning at 10:00 o'clock, the opening day of the Fall term of Judge Millard B. Smith's Circuit Court.

"The Grand Jury should be able to complete its investigations in less than three days", said Mr. Boyle today as he announced the names of the principals alleged in violations and the crimes they are charged with.

For the first time in several terms there is a temporary docket that does not contain a murder case although Abraham Johnson, negro man who stabbed another, negro, to death and is now in the state insane asylum at Chattahoochee, is charged with the murder.

Cases of alleged law-violation which the grand jury is expected to investigate are:

Charles Beck, white, attempt to murder Christian Hernandez.

Raymond Cortadella, white, obtaining money under false pretenses.

Edgar Elliot, James Knowles, and Burton Wilbur, young white boys who are charged with breaking and entering.

Ralph Kelly, white, charged with the larceny of an automobile and breaking and entering.

James Manning and Lonnie Ogleby, charged with desertion and non-support.

Joe Petty and D. T. Richardson, charged with setting fire to an automobile.

H. P. Walker, charged with obtaining money under false pretense.

Hattie Whitaker, charged with assault with intent to murder.

George Alexander, charged with

Rebecca Gramling, charged with receiving stolen property.

The Forrest Lake case is expected to be revived again, according to deputy sheriff O. R. Estridge, who said that Mr. Lake, who has been in Sanford for several months under a $300 bond, is scheduled to appear before the court to be re-sentenced.

Floyd Richard Jenkins of Lake Mary writes, "I have been a very good boy this year so I am writing a few lines to tell you what I want. This is what I want, a football, a box of checkers, a toy watch and a train and a wagon so I can haul wood for my mother. JAPANESE LIGHT BULBS MENACING INDUSTRY IN U. S.

Imported Product Is Cheaper To Buy But Burns More "Juice"

PITTSBURGH, Penn. Taking cognizance of the reported dumping of approximately $1,000,000 Japanese-made electric light bulbs on the American market during the past year, the University of Pittsburgh's department of electrical engineering has completed tests which show it costs $1.10 more to operate a 50-watt Japanese lamp during its life of 1000 hours than to operate a similar American-made lamp.

Although the Japanese lamps are selling in American stores for 10 cents—approximately one-half as much as American lamps—Prof. H. E. Dyche, head of the department of electrical engineering, under whose supervision the tests were made, said that "if the American people were able to buy Japanese lamps free of charge, it would cost them 90 cents more per 50-watt lamp to burn them than it would cost an American-made lamp for which the purchase price is 20 cents."

Six 50-watt American and six Japanese lamps were purchased in lot of Pittsburgh's chain stores for the purpose of the test. The final results showed that for the same amount of light, the lamps installed in City Market consumer's electric light bill would be 41 percent higher when using the Japanese lamps. Expressed in another way, the power consumption of the Japanese lamp is 1.63 watts per candle power, while that of the American-made lamp is but 1.13 watts per candle power.

"Based on a nominal life of 1000 hours and an average rate of .5 cents per kilowatt hour," Prof. Dyche said, "the energy consumed in the life of the American lamp costs $2.50, and since the Japanese lamp consumes 41 percent more energy for the same light it costs $3.60, or $1.10 more than that of the American lamp."

Figures have been also advanced to show that Japan has encroached upon the American Christmas tree light business to a great degree. Imports of these "indoor" lights in 1928 were 27 percent of the domestic consumption, it has been reported. The General Electric Company sells approximately 21,000,000 of the lamps in the United States and the Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company about 12,000,000.

It has been estimated that approximately $40,000,000 Japanese Christmas tree lamps will be imported this year. As a result of the Japanese dumping, the General Electric Company has closed its Cleveland small lamp factory, consulted its Newark factory with a "large" lamp factory and last month suspended operations in its "small" lamp factory in Buffalo.

The final results showed that

Daytona Beach To Make No Payments For Racing Trials

By LAWTON CARVER

Daytona Beach will not make an application of any kind for the international speed trials tentatively proposed for February.

Commissioner Winkler, P. O. Clerk and Shandor went into a meeting of the city commissioners on Tuesday night with persons and officials who were interested in the trials.

This typewritten statement was prepared:

"Commissioner Winkler, speaking on the city commissioners' behalf, made the statement that the commissioners had agreed to cooperate in every way possible toward bringing Sir Malcolm Campbell to Daytona Beach, but in view of conditions the city could not afford to do so at all financially. Winkler said that once the decision is made to go on to the Daytona Beach-Volusia County Racing association to collect the necessary funds to pay all expenses. Offers such as that of the American Legion would be of great assistance in making the trials possible," he said.
