

U. S. Soldiers Are In Dangerous Spot As Big Jap Drive Nears

Stray Shots Almost Certain But Japanese Command Says It Can't Be Helped

NANKING, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Wang Ching Wei, Chinese premier, said tonight the national government had rejected the Japanese demand that the army at Shanghai retire to a point 12 and a half miles from the city. The army will withdraw, he said, only on condition the Japs withdraw the same distance.

Two powerful armies waited today at Shanghai to go into what is expected will be a battle comparable to some of those in the World War. The zero hour was seven A. M. Saturday (six P. M. Eastern Standard Time, Friday) the time at which Japan's ultimatum to the Chinese commander expires.

There is every indication the Chinese government would reject the ultimatum and that Japan thereupon will begin a major offensive.

American infantrymen patrolling the settlement border along Chapei were in one of the most delicate spots along the whole front line of the line of fire where it is almost certain some stray shells would fall in the general bombardment.

The Japanese command said it would be satisfied if the settlement could not be helped. American civilians hurried out of the danger zone.

Tokyo, awaiting the general election tomorrow, heard that Ching Kai-Shek, influential Chinese war lord, was on his way to Shanghai with a large number of troops.

The government is considering sending reinforcements to the Japanese expeditionary force in Manchuria. It is reported the executive committee of the new independent state has chosen Henry Pu Yi, former boy emperor, as the chief executive. In Geneva the League of Nations council called a special meeting at the request of the Chinese delegate.

China has the alternative of withdrawing her forces from the Shanghai battlefield by sundown Saturday, or combating the concentrated power of the Japanese army and navy.

Yoshida, Gen. Kichichi Ueda's ultimatum to that effect specified today that Chinese troops at Chapei, Kiangsu and Wosung must evacuate their front lines by 7 A. M. Saturday (8 P. M. Friday eastern standard time) and complete their withdrawal beyond a 12-mile radius of greater Shanghai by 7 P. M. Saturday night (8 A. M. Saturday eastern standard time).

The Chinese government temporarily located at Honanfu received the demands and indicated it had no intention of acceding to them. Officials described the communication as "intolerable and absolutely unacceptable," and Gen. of Taid Ting-Kai, commander of the defense forces, said "I am ready to fight if the government orders me to."

The Japanese commander in chief's statement stipulated that the Chinese army cease firing and demobilize that the forts at Wosung and Paochow be dismantled and no defense erected; that the Chinese

Postoffice To Have Holiday On Monday

According to Postmaster J. F. Hall, the Sanford postoffice will observe Monday Feb. 22 as a holiday. Carriers will make one complete delivery on that day, he said, but no service will be required at that time.

General delivery windows will be open from 9:00 o'clock to 10:00 o'clock, but money order and registry windows will be closed all day. Special delivery mail and parcels will be delivered during the day, and mail will be delivered on the same as on other days.

TOKYO CHARGES U. S. INFLUENCE IN LEAGUE NOTE

Accusation Is Made By Japanese Foreign Office Circles

TOKYO, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—American influence in framing the first draft of the League of Nations' latest note of protest regarding Shanghai was charged by Japanese foreign office circles yesterday.

"There are strong indications that America had a finger in this pie," a spokesman said, basing his belief on what he called official information.

The first draft was much milder in tone, he admitted, than the note finally sent to Tokyo and appealing to Japan's "supreme sense of honor" to terminate hostilities at Shanghai out of respect for article X of the League covenant.

This action of the 12 neutral members of the council was described as irregular, illegal and "entirely inadmissible."

"Few members of the council now are empowered to act in its name," the spokesman continued. "These twelve councillors are not diplomats accredited to Tokyo, hence they have no right to address the Japanese government in the name of their respective states. We intend to stress these legal objections in our reply."

"The document 'M' created a most unpleasant impression here and it is unacceptable because it is addressed to Japan alone. Those who sent it assume thereby that Japan is the aggressor, whereas the fact is that China is the aggressor."

"Such a one-sided appeal is unprecedented in League history, it prejudices Japan and intimates the Chinese are in the right. We are unable to accept any such intimation."

Schiffley Seeks Constable's Job In June Primary

George A. Schiffley, Jr., formerly deputy sheriff under J. F. McClelland, today announced his candidacy for the office of Constable for the Fourth District of Seminole County. This district embraces Sanford, Altamonte Springs, Lake Mary, Longwood, Forest City, Lake Monroe, and Paola.

Mr. Schiffley is a native of South Carolina and a former auditor. He came to Florida in 1922 and was at one time the general manager of the Mavis Bottling Co. He moved to Sanford in 1925 with his family and has lived here since, acting as deputy sheriff during 1929, and since that time has been engaged as a salesman.

He sees the duties of constable as being one of the more important of the many county offices, and believes that his wide experience and long residence will stand him in good stead as a holder of this office. If elected, he said, he promises an economical administration in which he will heartily co-operate with officers closely associated with that of the office of constable.

Mr. Schiffley resides on South Sanford Avenue with his family. He is a member of the Sanford Elks Club, the Knights of Pythias, and the Seminole County Chamber of Commerce. He has acted as secretary of the Board of Stewards of the First Methodist Church for the past four years, and is a member of the Maud Club.

BRITISH CRUISER EXPECTED

NEW REPUBLIC IS DECLARED IN MANCHURIA

Independence Is Proclaimed In Province Recently Subdued

(By The Associated Press) MUKDEN, Manchuria, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—The new republic of Ankuo, born of military conquest, proclaimed its independence from China yesterday and unfurled its five-barred rising sun banner over Manchuria and Inner Mongolia.

The executive committee of Northeastern Manchuria, composed of Chinese leaders raised to high places by the army of occupation declared an area half again as large as the Japanese Empire and holding 30,000,000 people to be what is generally regarded as a protectorate of Japan.

In classical language calling their country the land of milk and honey the proclamation asserted: "We have decided to sever ties" (Continued on page eight)

Garner's Victim Is Reported As Better

WAYCROSS, Feb. 19.—Although Cyrus M. Stephens, road patrolman for Ware county, Georgia, who was shot twice Monday night, by W. F. Garner, of Sanford, Fla., is still in a critical condition in the Waycross Hospital, hope for his recovery was expressed yesterday.

He was shot as he questioned the driver of an automobile he had stopped for speeding Monday night. While making a search of the car Officer Stephens was shot through the abdomen with a pistol shot while on the ground a load from a shotgun struck his shoulder. His alleged assailant was arrested in Sanford.

HOOVER'S PLAN TO REORGANIZE STARTS STRIFE

Democrats Charge He Failed In Making Specific Suggestions For Economy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—A party war over President Hoover's proposals to reorganize the government broke out in the House yesterday with Democrats charging he failed to make specific suggestions for economy and Republicans defending his plan.

Speaker Garner said the Chief Executive's message to Congress Wednesday showed that he wanted "to create a lot of new offices, but make no specific recommendation for abolishing any." The Democrats he said were seeking to eliminate bureaus and commissions to promote economy as a party policy.

In an indirect reply to the Democrats the White House last night issued a 30-page mimeographed document, containing recommendations by Mr. Hoover for consolidations over the last 12 years.

In one high administration quarter it was said notice had been taken that Garner's announcement last Tuesday of a Democratic committee to study federal reorganization had provided the President's special message to Congress on this subject by only one day.

It was pointed out in the same (Continued on Page Five)

Garner Appears To Be Headed For Top Of Democratic List

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—John Garner of Texas now appears headed for a place among the really strong contenders for the Democratic presidential nomination.

William G. McAdoo's announcement in Los Angeles of his support for the Speaker of the House not only put that powerful leader behind the Texas but also emphasized the determined efforts of Garner supporters to shove him into the breach created by the "Stop Roosevelt" movement.

Garner, behind a wall of silence on things political, which is broken only to disavow connection with the acts of his supporters, sticks to the job of running the House of Representatives. This job is the most conspicuous one nationally held by a Democrat and Garner's handling of it is what his volunteer supporters count upon to arouse enthusiasm on a country-wide scale.

McAdoo spoke of Garner as a candidate under whom all elements of the party could unite. McAdoo is a staunch dry and his announcement is considered important in the light of the prohibition issue for Garner, although since voting for enforcement measures, cast a ballot against the adoption of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Linton Allen And Sharon Unhurt As Car Turns Over On Way To Wedding

Linton E. Allen, president of the Sanford-Atlantic National Bank, and James G. Sharon, Jr., young Sanford attorney, are today nursing bruises and minor cuts they received in a miraculous escape from death in an automobile accident near Maitland late yesterday afternoon.

Traveling to Orlando, where they were to be attendants in the wedding of Miss Mary Lynn and Roy Mann, the car driven by Mr. Sharon started skidding on the wet pavement of the long, dangerous curve which enters Maitland on State Road No. 3, swung from side to side of the road, and turned over on its top, just in front of the small wooden church near the highway.

Flung beneath the machine which was demolished, both men found themselves unable to move. They were pulled from the wreckage by C. E. Rawson, Sanford, who happened on the scene just a moment after the accident happened. A passing motorist took them to Orlando not more than five minutes after the wreck, and they took part in the wedding without any persons at the ceremony knowing of the accident.

CHICAGO FACES SERIOUS CRISIS WITH NO FUNDS

Most Critical Condition Is Confronting Town Since Big Fire, Says Mayor Cermak

CHICAGO, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Chicago, in the words of its mayor, faces its most serious crisis since the fire which destroyed it in 1871.

The city had borrowed to the limit of its bonding power. Its own officers offered to market for its bonds. The legality of its tax bills was jeopardized in two unfavorable court decisions, and its employees were many millions behind in pay.

The state legislature convened to aid it took a 60-day recess with no relief legislation.

In this extremity, Mayor Cermak, with words of utterance against a homeless legislation, announced he would ask the city council today to cut 24,000 employees of the municipal payroll.

"I don't know what else to do," he said. "But unless things straighten out, this cut may be followed by more."

Announcement of this sent representatives of 4000 unpaid employees of Cook county, a housing commission jurisdiction, into a protest meeting. Fourteen thousand school teachers, unpaid since September, called mass meetings. Some of them talked of a "walkout."

Chicago officials and Illinois legislators indulged in mutual recrimination. Each group accused the other of all faith. Cermak blamed the legislators for releasing their special session yesterday without accomplishing the principal purpose of its call—tax relief for Cook county. Downstate leaders called him "insolent" and "ungateful."

Informal officials of Detroit had appealed for financial help to the Reconstruction Finance corporation, the mayor looked hopefully towards its two billion dollar fund. He ordered the city attorney to investigate the possibility of an appeal in that direction.

"If Chicagoans are going to let the Chicago sink," he said, "we will go outside for help. The city is a corporation. It we are eligible for loans we offer the taxing power of a great metropolis. Anyway, money for the reconstruction fund is coming from Chicago. We should get some of it back."

A conference of bankers was called to map some action.

Stock Prices Rush Upward Then Fall

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Stock exchange prices rushed up one to seven dollars a share at the opening today on a flood of buying orders and then quickly lost about half of its gains on profit taking. At Chicago, in a general rush of buying, wheat jumped to a new high price record, but reacted somewhat later.

$6.90 or $3.00

A Little Chat With The Secretary Of The Seminole County Chamber Of Commerce

"We are one of the biggest map making companies in the United States and we are bringing our maps up to date. In order to show Seminole County as it ought to be we want to get enough local citizens to co-operate with us to assure the cost of handling this atlas" is the story the salesman told the Chamber of Commerce secretary on Friday morning asking if the Chamber of Commerce would participate in the cost of the plan.

Upon further and insistent questioning the facts were finally developed that they were not preparing a new map but were selling an atlas that had been prepared some time ago, and this atlas was sold at a "special low cost price of $6.90 provided enough public spirited citizens would subscribe to assure this low price." The salesman wanted to know whether the Chamber of Commerce would give them co-operation and give them a letter to the citizens.

The secretary assured him that the Chamber of Commerce would not encourage any peddlers or book sellers, particularly those who were selling articles that could be purchased just as well and at lower cost at local book stores. The salesman assured the Chamber of Commerce secretary that this atlas could not be secured in the book stores. The secretary was in a position to assure him that the local book stores in Seminole County sell Rand McNally atlases and similar nationally authoritative atlases at $5.00 and $4.00 a copy instead of $6.90, and that the Chamber of Commerce would urge local people who want to buy atlases and maps to buy them from local book stores and not from traveling book salesmen. He wound up by saying, if the Chamber of Commerce feels that way about it, he didn't care to work in Sanford and Seminole County, and he would go on to where there is not so much opposition. Probably he has gone but in any event folks will do well to consult local merchants before buying any items from transient salesmen in the community.

Milk Ordinance Is To Be Enforced In Entirety Very Soon

Sanford's new milk ordinance, patterned after one used as standard by the United States Government, is soon to be put into effect with drastic force.

G. P. Paxton, city health officer, this morning announced that the ordinance, enacted to secure the people of Sanford a quality of milk fit for human consumption, will be enforced to the limit and that the penalties for violation, a fine of not more than $200 or 90 days in jail, will be sought for all offenders.

He pointed out the following clauses from the ordinance, believing that they are of interest to the milk consuming public. These points will be enforced as of once, for samples of milk will be taken to fix the grade sold by local producers who sell milk within the city limits.

"All bottles, cans, packages, and other containers enclosing milk or any milk product shall be plainly marked or labeled (1) with name of contents as defined in the ordinance, (2), grade of contents, if graded, (3), whether pasteurized or raw milk, and (4), name of the producer."

"Every restaurant, cafe, soda fountain or other establishment selling or serving milk in any other manner than the original package, (unopened), shall display at all times a card stating the grade of milk at the time when delivered and whether the same is raw or pasteurized."

"No person shall within the City of Sanford or its police jurisdiction, produce, sell, offer or expose for sale any milk or milk product which is adulterated or misbranded."

"Grade A is the highest quality milk produced, and only those who have fully complied with the state and local laws will be permitted to use that designation."

"Grade B and C milk differs only as to temperature and bacterial count, while Grade D is the lowest type of milk, produced without regard to the requirements of the law."

Persons should insist that milk they purchase is of Grade A quality if they wish to guard a quality health. Mr. Paxton said, as he urged all patrons to notice the caps on milk bottles delivered on or about Mar. 1 and after.

DE VALERA IS GAINING VOTES IN IRISH POLL

Bitter Enemy Of English Control Looms As Next President Of Irish Free State

By MICHAEL ROONEY DUBLIN, Irish Free State, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Eamonn de Valera, the lanky Span- ish-Irishman who once was condemned to death for his unending battle against England, last night became a real possibility as the next president of the Irish Free State.

All day long the tallies counted the ballots in Tuesday's general election and the more they counted the further ahead went De Valera's Fianna Fail ticket.

In the morning he had 15 seats in the new Dail or 12 for President William T. Cosgrave's government party. At a late hour last night he had 38 to the government's 30.

The standing was: Fianna Fail—38; Labour—5; Independents—30.

As a matter of fact the standing was 14 to 16, for the Labour party is an ally of the Fianna Fail and the Independents usually vote with the government. There were still 62 precincts to be heard from and seven seats.

There were still 20 precincts to (Continued on page eight)

Gotham Garment Strikers Engage In Street Brawls

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—Sawed-off billiard cues thudded against the heads of non-striking in Manhattan's garment district yesterday, and several young women models were bitten as 26,000 dressmakers continued their strikes for better pay and improved working conditions.

The garment district, where about 20 per cent of the clothing worn in the United States is manufactured, lies immediately south of the Times Square Theater belt. There were six policemen in every block yesterday to keep pickets from becoming undisciplined.

Cutters, operators, finishers, pressers, capers, sample makers and cleaners wandered up and down the sidewalks, many of them with their truncated billiard cues in their pockets.

Disorders were general, mostly petty skirmishes between police and strikers, but early in the day several major engagements brought riot squads into the district.

Little groups of non-striking dressmakers moved furtively through the streets, occasionally finding it necessary to fight their way to their shops. Many of the strikers are young women, and on several occasions today small bands of them fell upon their non-union sisters, pulling hair, scratching faces and biting legs.

McKay Will Handle Enrollments For 1932 Training Camp

Professor G. E. McKay has been appointed County Aide to the Secretary of War for Seminole County. He will have charge of enrolling boys in the Clifton Military Training Camp from this county and will at once accept enrollments.

The camps are annual affairs put on by the Federal Government under the direction of the War Department. They will be held from June 14 to July 13 this year, and the government furnishes free transportation and other necessary expenses. There is no military obligation attached to attendance at camp, and all boys physically fit, from 17 to 24 years of age, are entitled to apply for admission. Owing to a curtailment of funds, it is imperative that boys hoping to attend, send in their applications early. Last year nearly 12,000 applications were received for the 4500 places open.

In this connection, Doctors J. Wm. Mastie, Orlando, Arthur W. Knox, Charles L. Park, and Dr. Selman, of Sanford, have been appointed as official medical examiners for the Camps. They will, in conjunction with Professor McKay.

Judge Wright Said In Deep Coma Today

QUINCY, Feb. 19.—(Special)—Judge Wright is in a deep coma today from which it is impossible to arouse him. He is gradually growing weaker and the end may come at any time now. Physicians say that it is possible that he may last a day or more longer. Mrs. Wright and other relatives are here.

EUROPEANS PAY ANNUAL TAX FOR RADIO PROGRAMS

Higher Class Type Of Entertainment Is Thereby Afforded

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 18. — Owners of radio sets pay for their entertainment in European countries, and Walter Gieseking of Hanover, Germany, internationally known concert pianist, sees in that fact the enabling act for the station operators to keep their programs upon a high standard as to the quality of appearing artists.

Mr. Gieseking is spending several days in Jacksonville, and is stopping at the Windsor hotel, playing around a bit in his hobby of taking nature pictures and catching butterflies for his collection. He is on his sixth tour of the United States, and came down here after a concert in Atlanta, and got away from there for a few days before a Sunday night appearance in Carnegie Hall, New York City.

Owners of radio sets in Germany pay 50 cents a month for the privilege of having that entertainment. Mr. Gieseking said. Other European countries have similar taxes on radio sets, England charging something like 10 shillings a year, he said, the funds being used for the operation of the stations. Radio is an international proposition in Europe, for a person with a powerful machine can pick up "most any country he wants," according to the pianist.

Conditions are worse in Germany, from the standpoint of human suffering as the result of the economic stress, than in America, Mr. Gieseking has seen. The pianist has found American audiences as appreciative groups, although he has learned the necessity of carefully choosing his programs so as to play those things which might interest the individual audiences. He likes the United States and has enjoyed his several visits in Florida, for he has found this climate something like that about the French Riviera.

Mr. Gieseking differs from most artists in that when he is "vacationing" he also gets away from his music. He is spending his time here walking about, snapping pictures, catching an occasional butterfly—and he says he has found some unusual specimens here—admiring the tropical flora of this section and thoroughly enjoying himself in the Florida out-of-doors.

The artist speaks English fluently after "picking it up" on his visits in the United States. He talks French, German and Italian, too, and knows enough Spanish to order his meals when the necessity arises.

Mr. Gieseking hopes that he will return to his homeland in time to at least participate in the second primary of the pending elections. He sees President von Hindenburg as the next president, in view of the fact that the aged former general is the only one able to satisfy the many existing political parties in Germany.

Seminole Indians Charge Public To Watch Weddings

MIAMI, Feb. 18. (A.P.)—It's possible that members of two Seminole Indian camps here mixed their rhetoric and decided upon a wedding day keeps the wolf away from the door, as a slogan.

Anyway, three public weddings yesterday and today were offered by the Seminoles as an attraction to cash-paying customers at the camps—and the red man of the Everglades recognizes no other than cash customers at his local ballroom.

Ala-Machee, an Indian girl, and Fanchachee, a brave of one group of Seminoles, were married in a ritual ceremony and by Seminole judges at the Pirates Cove camp here yesterday.

As they start their honeymoon the Seminoles of the nearby Muckalee camp, striving for supremacy in the matter of weddings, will present—for the benefit of the cash customers—the first double wedding in the history of the two groups.

One pair of principals will be Cherokee, better known as Anna Cypress, and Kupe Cha Chee, known as Johnson Billy. The other bride and groom will be Miss Tiger, whose tribal name is Lachee, and John Martlow, known among the Seminoles as Cho Chee Na Nachee.

The Buffalo, Steel and Screen dances, part of the Seminole tribal ritual, are performed by men and women of the tribe at wedding ceremonies.

Miami City — Keweenaw Club has recently moved to the new and improved grounds at the city.

DO YOU KNOW?

That the bull moose has to grow a new set of antlers every year? He sheds the old ones between January and February and almost immediately starts to sprout a new set which reach their full growth in the Fall. The moose, by the way, was named such by the Algonquin Indians, a translation of the name meaning "he eats off." The tuft of hair under his chin is known as a bell. The photograph shows a fine specimen of young Canadian bull moose with his antlers full grown.

Cabell, Southern Author, Gives Interview While On Short Visit To New York

By EDWARD ANGLY

NEW YORK, Feb. 18.—Branch Cabell, the author who called himself James Branch Cabell until he retired from the land of Poictesme with its glaming stations to become a Virginia realist who rides around in an automobile bearing a Richmond license plate, drove his dusty car into New York recently for a stay of several days. He said he never came to New York unless he had to. This time he was here to be the guest of honor at the fifth birthday of the Literary Guild, which, more than incidentally, has selected his latest novel, "These Restless Heads," for its February distribution.

Some one wanted him to define style.

Mr. Cabell is a soft-spoken, unassuming Southern who pronounces the words "house" and "about" with the distinctive accent of the Old Dominion. He is of medium height and solid build, neither lean nor plump. Though he could name no other recreation he enjoys except writing, there is a healthy outdoorish glow to his complexion. He is approaching his fifty-third birthday and his hair is turning gray at the temples.

With quiet restraint he chatted for more than an hour with an inquisitive group. He answered questions about his personal habits, his methods of work, his early struggles and he explained why he had after all these years, chopped the James off his name.

He did it because he wanted to make an outward line of cleavage between the work he did until two years ago, and that which occupies him now and will continue to engage his typewriter. Briefly, he has become a realist. After pounding out and carefully polishing eighteen volumes concerning the glamorous places and people of his own created land of Poictesme, he has now written a book with Richmond as its setting.

"I have put aside," he said, "what I call The Life of Don Manuel. This last book is realism, the first attempt I have made to write about the life that is immediately around me. For years I have been plagued by my neighbors to write of my own environment. Well Branch Cabell is a realist. James Branch Cabell was not. I shall try to keep the two Seminoles twins away from one another."

Some one mentioned "dual personality," but Mr. Cabell said: "No, I am not conscious of any change in me."

Nor had there been, he thought, a definite change in his style, though since expatriating himself from Poictesme, he had "tried a few effects," which he had not attempted before.

What, he was asked, did he consider the more important for a literary man, style or ideas?

"I don't see how anything can survive except style," he replied. "You can't expect a man to have an original idea. I don't know of any man who ever did have an original idea."

"Too many people have been trying to do that," he said. "It is like speaking of a gentleman. You cannot define a gentleman."

but every one knows what you mean."

Mr. Cabell left the impression that his own style, commonly considered as classic, does not come easy. Telling of his own work he said that he first typed out a book then revised it, then typed it again, and revised it once more. Usually, he said, he re-typed his stories seven or eight times.

He usually worked through the mornings, he said, and during part of the afternoons.

"I don't sit around waiting for inspiration to come," he explained. "You have got to go to a desk and work if you ever expect to get anything down on paper. It is no fun getting started, but the pleasure comes when I have earned my release by having written something. For me, it is impossible to write without a window or a door open in front of me."

It was then that he was asked to tell what were his recreations. "I have no recreations that I know of except writing," he said. Well, what did he read? He said he liked "those large thick books that are very badly written and full of information. To some extent I mean folklore and books of that sort." It did not get much pleasure out of reading novels. They gave him the irritating and uncomfortable feeling that the other fellow was doing something better than he could.

Yes, he had noticed that more writers were springing up in the South than used to exist down there. He didn't know why. Maybe it was because writers these days had better possibilities in the South. Formerly the outlet for expression was politics. Almost every Southerner, with anything to say, got on a platform and made speeches. Writers were looked upon as being well, not quite respectable. They were now being treated more kindly.

Mr. Cabell mentioned his friendship with Ellen Glasgow, with whom, he said, he had more in common than with any one else in Richmond. Being from Virginia, he said, most of his friends were his relatives. Almost everybody in Virginia was related to one another, he went on, so one's social contacts worked down to a matter of cousinship. Talking of the younger school of authors, Mr. Cabell said he had read Thomas Wolfe's "Look Homeward, Angel," and he thought Thomas Bell, who he had heard, was an employee in a New York bookstore, had shown great promise with his novel, "The Gred of Basil." He also "believed in the future" of Lorene Pruette, and felt that had Frances Newman lived she would have fulfilled the promise of her genius.

As for himself, Mr. Cabell said he had two or three more books already in mind. He recalled the two years at the turn of the century when he was a district reporter for "The New York Herald," logging it around the upper West Side and Harlem. He seldom wrote anything. Mostly he telephoned.

He began to write after he returned to Virginia. He sold three of his first five short stories. One of them brought in $35, the others $10 each.

He wrote for eighteen years before recognition came, he said. Both President Roosevelt and Mark Twain had liked "The Line of Love," published in 1905 and had put in some good words for it, but the book was forgotten quickly, the author remembered. Burton Rascoe, reviewing for a Chicago newspaper, had liked "The Cream of the Job" and never gave the people of Chicago a moment's rest, insisting every Sunday for weeks that they should get the book and read it. Then came "Jergen" and the controversy over it, and, after that, fame.

FOREIGN TRADE OF NATION HAS SIZABLE SLACK

Exports And Imports Fall Off, Official Records Disclose

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—First official commentary on foreign trade of the United States for the calendar year 1931, made public by the Department of Commerce recently, shows that exports fell off 37 per cent in value, imports, 32 per cent, and the balance of trade was a deficit of $2,090,000,000 in 1931, as compared with a surplus of $2,090,000,000 in 1930.

smaller," the report says. "Inasmuch as domestic industrial production fell off 16 per cent and freight car loadings dropped 19 per cent, it appears that the shrinkage in the foreign trade was about as great as the decline in domestic business—the decrease in exports being slightly larger and that in imports somewhat smaller."

"Among the more important commodities which experienced sharp decreases in foreign sales were agricultural machinery and implements, automobiles, gasoline and heavy and advanced manufactures of iron and steel and copper. Quantity shipments to foreign countries of many classes of fruits and raw cotton—our leading export commodity—were larger than in 1930."

"The excess of merchandise exports over imports for the year 1931 amounted to $2,090,000,000—the lowest favorable merchandise balance for any year since 1914. The previous low balance for this period was a total of $375,000,000 in 1923. Except for October, when gold exports amounted to $399,000,000, every month of the year showed an excess of gold imports over gold exports. For the year, net gold imports totaled $145,000,000, or $125,000,000 less than those in 1930. Net imports of silver were

$2,200,000, as contrasted with a net excess of exports of $11,400,000 in 1930.

"A conspicuous feature in export trade during 1931 was the sharp falling off in value of foreign sales of agricultural machinery and implements (50 per cent), motor vehicles (47 per cent), and manufactures of iron and steel (51 per cent). From a total of $539,300,000 in 1929 and $277,400,000 in 1930, exports of automobiles, including parts and accessories, fell to $145,700,000 in 1931—a drop of 73 per cent in the two-year period. Declines in the value of other groups, which are mainly finished articles, were as follows: Chemicals and allied products, 22 per cent; electrical machinery and apparatus, and manufactures of paper, 28 and 26 per cent; cotton manufactures, silk manufactures, tobacco manufactures, wood manufactures, and photographic goods, 30 to 35 per cent; and rubber, manufactures, wood manufactures, and industrial machinery, slightly over 35 per cent."

"Nevertheless, sales in foreign countries of certain articles included in the above-mentioned groups continued undiminished. Radio sets, electric refrigerators, carbon black and sensitized motion-picture films reached new high records in quantity, while ex-

ARBITRATION IS SEEN REAL ROAD TO WORLD PEACE

Opinion Expressed At Foreign Policy Association Luncheon

NEW YORK, Feb. 16.—Reliance upon the development of international courts and arbitration rather than upon armaments to settle international disputes, is the only road to world peace, according to speakers at the Foreign Policy Association luncheon at the Hotel Astor recently, at which the limitation of arms conference was discussed.

The speakers were Mr. Frederick J. Libby, executive secretary of the National Council for Prevention of War; M. Pierre Denoyer, correspondent of Le Petit Parisien; Mr. S. K. Ratcliffe, English journalist and lecturer, and Mr. William T. Stone, Washington representative of the Foreign Policy Association.

Only Mr. Denoyer defended the suggestion made by M. Andre Tardieu for France at the Geneva conference for an international police force but even he declared that the proposal was premature, "while Russia, with the largest army in the world, and the United States, with one of the two largest navies in the world, were outside of the League of Nations."

Mr. Ratcliffe coupled the suggestion of M. Tardieu with that made upon a previous occasion by M. Aristide Briand calling for a United States of Europe and declared that realization of this scheme was something so far in the future that discussion of it at present amounts to dodging the real issues.

"The real problem is whether the representatives of the governments will come around the table and make concrete suggestions as to whether they will reduce the crushing armaments that are burdening all people," declared Mr. Ratcliffe. "They must frankly face the causes of those antagonisms that now set the nations of Europe against one another, the economic difficulties and those fundamental causes of war that are at the root of the troubles. I think it was exceedingly unfortunate that the League conference should have been postponed until after the limitation of armaments talk. "One of the great difficulties which face the conference is the very special fear under which M. Denoyer's nation is living at present. The French idea of security is based upon military guarantees of help. You know all that sort of thing is fantastic. Britain has gone far beyond what any other nation has ever gone in guaranteeing the security of France and beyond what any other nation is likely to promise. The world will never again come to have a European nation that is plunged into war.

"There is just one road for France to take toward peace, and that is a recognition of the organic economic realities of Western Europe and learning how to lay the foundation of peace by living in harmony with all her neighbors."

Head Of Steel Industry Optimistic Over Business Recovery

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Charles M. Schwab, emperor of steel and doctor of optimism, reached No. 70 from his list of birthdays yesterday and let it be known that he wasn't through yet. Furthermore, this happy and hearty chairman of Bethlehem Steel Corporation vigorously asserted his belief that America wasn't through, either.

Mr. Schwab's interview was crowded into a busy day of anniversary observances. First there was the family breakfast at the mansion on Riverside Drive. Then there was the ride to work in the new automobile presented by his Bethlehem associates.

For lunch there was a gathering of survivors of the old Carnegie Steel Corporation.

Then last night came dinner at home with the Bethlehem executives.

Mr. Schwab announced that he had retired from all but three of his directorates. He is retaining membership on the boards of Chase National Bank, the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company and of course Bethlehem Steel.

"I'll never retire from Bethlehem Steel unless they kick me out," he chuckled. "I'll still be around here for a long time."

Mr. Schwab, nevertheless, has given over many of his executive duties to Eugene G. Grace, president of the corporation.

Once during the interview Mr. Grace interrupted his chief. Mr. Schwab had just said that Bethlehem had grown to an annual input capacity of 9,000,000 tons.

"It's the first time he ever underestimated anything in his life—his 9,500,000," broke in the president.

"Well, I meant to say 10,000,000," came the quick reply.

Mrs. Pauline Schwab, his 91-year-old Mother, was to have moved her son for the birthday. He lives in Loretta, Pa., but at the last minute decided not to make the trip.

Tokyo Charges U. S. Influence In League Note

(Continued from Page One) embracing Manchuria and parts of Mongolia, the foreign office said, until it has proved it has "all the attributes of an independent nation."

He reiterated Japanese protestations that the new government is being set up by the Chinese people without interference from Japan and added postponement of recognition "does not mean we won't deal with it. We must deal with it."

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—From the State Department yesterday came an emphatic denial of charges that the United States aided in framing the note of the council of the League of Nations to Japan.

A spokesman of the Tokyo foreign office had charged American influence in drawing the note which urged Japan to evacuate Chinese territory and respect her treaty rights.

The denial was followed by a clarification of this government's attitude toward damage to American life and property in the Shanghai International Settlement during impending major clashes.

It was made known that Consul General Cunningham informed Chinese and Japanese officials two weeks ago that both would be held responsible if Americans were injured or their belongings damaged.

The same action is believed to have been taken by British and French consular officers in Shanghai.

Great Britain has already had two sailors killed by a shell in the International Settlement and the big battle which seems imminent is awaited with apprehension by all interested powers.

Cunningham advised the State Department yesterday that 14 shells fell within the International Settlement between 8 P. M., Feb. 16, and 5 P. M., Feb. 17, when the artillery bombardment was the heaviest Shanghai has yet suffered.

Cunningham also reported the Standard Oil ship, Metung, was fired upon on its way from Shanghai to Hongkong and was forced to turn back.

Meantime, Japan's ultimatum to the Chinese forces at Shanghai that they must evacuate has dashed the hopes of the department for amicable settlement of the crisis.

HOOVER'S PLAN TO REORGANIZE STARTS STRIFE

The only official explanation given to the White House compilation yesterday, however, was that it was issued "in response to numerous requests for statements made by the President on organization of the government."

Opening the debate on the supply bill for the State, Justice, Labor and Commerce Departments, Chairman Byrnes of the Appropriations Committee, charged the President's message was sent to Congress to state off a favorable report by the expenditures committee on his bill to consolidate the War and Navy Departments.

One hundred million dollars could be saved annually by consolidating the War and Navy Departments, the Tennessee Democrat declared in his attack on Mr. Hoover for opposing the merger.

"If the President really favors consolidation, if he is really in the interest of economy, I wish to say to him and the country that he can save infinitely more, vastly more, by the passage of that bill, than he can by consolidating every other agency in this government."

Byrnes said the message appeared hastily prepared, after it was learned that the Democratic House was making an effort to curtail expenditures.

Representative Mages, (R. Mich.), and Representative Tilson (R. Conn.), arose in defense of the President, recalling he had urged economy steps in government operation in numerous instances.

Meanwhile the expenditures committee concluded hearings on the Byrnes bill to consolidate the War and Navy Departments.

Chairman Cochran said he hoped it would be approved Saturday and reported to the House next week.

Brazil Nuts Being Used In Making Of Costume Jewelry

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Petitified Brazil nuts are used for new sporty necklaces, and very decorative they are too.

There is a sort of a back to nature movement in the designing and fashioning of costume jewelry to be worn with the simply tailored dresses, and suits of sheer or rough surfaced wools.

Necklaces, bracelets, buckles, and pins, even buttons, are made of cork or natural wood crudely cut and these have provided a particularly smart finish to winter daytime ensembles.

One of the new "natty" necklaces is combined with beads of ivory separated by tiny discs of gold or silver. Only one very large nut is used. It is sliced, both shell and kernel, into even sized pieces. They are highly polished.

Another necklace features three whole nuts, petitified chestnuts are also used for jewelry.

JACKSONVILLE, Feb. 19.—(A.P.)—Jouett Shouse, chairman of the National Democratic Committee today laid before the Florida state committee his advocacy of unstructured delegations.

Shouse declared "I could cite no better illustration of the ideas I have as to the freedom of choice that should be allowed delegates to a convention than to quote from a letter of Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt. It appeared in the New York Times in 1920 when Roosevelt was a silent secretary to William W. Farley, chairman of the Democratic state committee of New York. The letter said in part: 'Let the people feel that a Democratic choice was made in a real Democratic way by the free and frank interchange of opinion, with every man voting according to his conscience.'"

Shouse said Roosevelt took issue with his recent statement on delegations, "and I am glad to be able to quote him in setting forth to the party my view of the matter."

Shouse's speech followed the election of J. B. Hodges, Lake City, as chairman of the state Democratic committee. Hodges defeated Pat Johnson, Kissimmee, 42 to 20.

FOREIGN LENDERS TO GERMANY ARE GIVEN WEE HOPE

Scant Chance Is Seen For Bondholders To Realize Upon Money

BERLIN, Feb. 19.—Holders of foreign long-term loans taken up in Germany are doomed to disappointment if they anticipate on the date of maturity, a full or even majority of capital payment, recent events here indicated. Though the terms of neither the 1921-22 agreement nor the official German edict governing disposal of foreign currencies contain repayment, the glaring reality of the Reichsbank's ever-dwindling foreign currency account explains why such payments, necessarily will take place on the installment plan, bringing long terms also under all but complete moratorium obligations.

Two important foreign loans mature this year — $10,000,000 notes of the Reichsbank Werke Corporation (the Saxanian state-owned electrical power system) in mid-July, and the $25,000,000 loan of the Deutsche und Diskontobank in September. The still pending $10,000,000 loan, Rurg, on which repayment was due the first of this year, will create a precedent, probably, since only a quarter of the sum due is being repaid now, but it is believed here that creditors are prepared to agree to the special trustees' proposal that the remainder be postponed. The government recently refused to grant permission for open-market purchase of the necessary currencies in preparation of the repayment in full on the Reichsbank Werke notes.

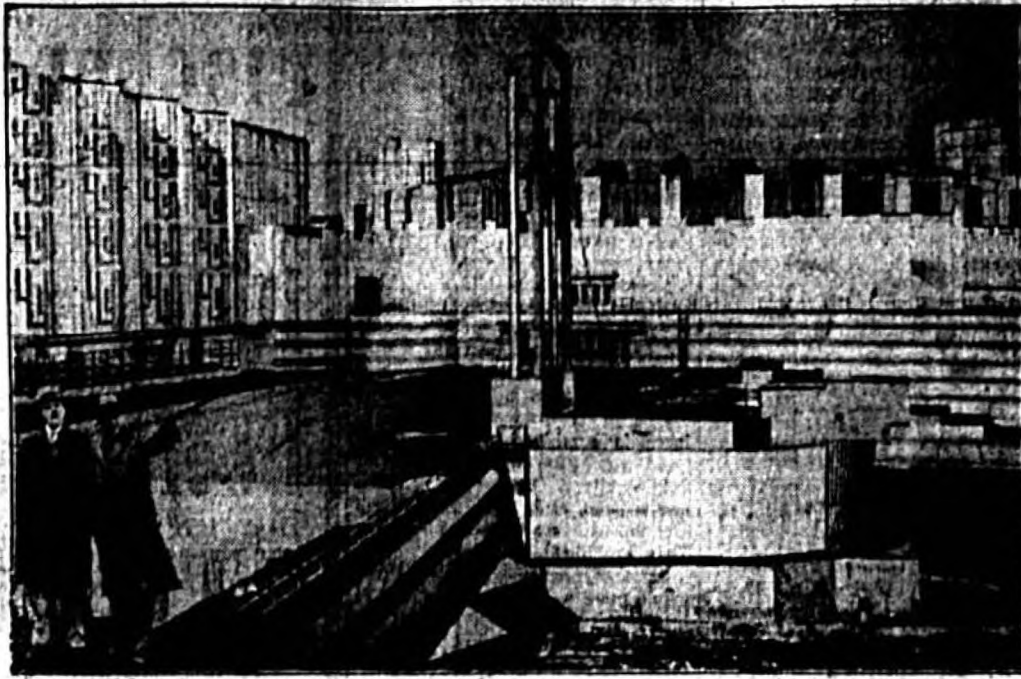

Since future developments in the Reichsbank's foreign currency holdings are not foreseeable, the situation may be altered so that holders of the other two loans maturing this year may receive different treatment. It is hardly to be expected, however, that available sums of foreign currencies later on in the year will be essentially greater than now, in fact, the contrary seems most likely. The government has taken the stand that will permit the outward shipment of foreign currencies in payment of long-term obligations being funded at a rate of annual repayment equivalent to a tenth of the total capital involved. Financial experts here are pointing out that such discrimination is likely to damage the confidence in Germany since there is no essential difference of obligations between funded and embold repayable loans. The motives of the this spring are the promptings of dire necessity.

The fate of the much-discussed currency credit revision plan by Professor Wagemann, head of the National Statistical Bureau, in view of the government's definitely unfavorable stand, passes from the realm of purely private proposals and acquires a significance with respect to the official pecuniary policy. No experimenting with anything which is tainted, however faintly, with an inflationary tendency remains the motto of the being.

Though this may seem to sound the knell of the Wagemann plan it would be risky to assume that it has finally been disposed of. What seems better is that it may well turn out to be a case of suspended animation. Big industrialists, especially in iron, steel, coal and other one-time export leaders, as well as junkers, are exerting increasing pressure for inflation. Any change in the government certainly would signal the introduction of financial measures aimed to gratify heavy industry's demand, which is placed again on the basis of competitive equality with their exporting Berlin rivals, and desires of the large landholders for relief from their debt burdens. This means "moderate" inflation.

The Wagemann scheme embodied a scheme of dual currencies — namely, a new internal money to be in circulation, the volume of whose circulation is supposed to be regulated by the Reichsbank, and money of 100-mark bills and up, which would be based on a security of 40 per cent gold coverage and which would be the sole instrument of international exchange. These bills, for a discussion of the economic credit expansion feature, but the fact remains that the total currency volume would be increased from 100,000,000 to 1,000,000,000 marks. Wagemann has been repeatedly that inflation would be possible follow.

G. O. P. To View World's Fair Hall Dedicated Next June

When delegates to the Republican national convention meet in Chicago next June they will witness the dedication of the Hall of Science of A Century of Progress, Chicago's 1933 World's Fair. The ceremony will take place in the huge court shown above. The figure pointing with the cane is President Rufus C. Dawes of the exposition. Notice the rotunda in the center, from which speakers will be able to address assemblages of as many as 80,000 persons. To the left appears the rear wall of the court with its striking cactus-tree design. In the background one discerns the backs of the twelve angular pylons, flanked by twin towers, which is to surround an electrical fountain. The Hall of Science is approximately 700 by 400 feet, two stories and a mezzanine. It is modern in design, gray, white, gold and red in color and a combination of the mysterious and gay in effect. The Hall of Science was designed by Paul Phillips Cret of Philadelphia.

California Citrus Is Menaced By Weather

LOS ANGELES, Feb. 19.—

(A.P.)—Extensive damage to California citrus is anticipated unless heavy rains of the past few weeks cease. Citrus growers in Southern California said yesterday.

Precipitation totals are twice as high as last year and in many localities the normal rainfall for an entire season, based on a 50-year average, has been exceeded.

The growers yesterday said that sunshine is the only cure for the abnormal conditions, and weather forecasters offered little hope of clear skies. Normally at least another month of bad weather is in prospect. Brown rot is expected to develop if bad weather continues.
